Lisbon, Aug. 13 (AP)—One of the passengers on the clipper plane leaving tomorrow for the United States will be Marie Pons, mother of Lily Pons, the singer, and known as "Mama," she says, to everybody in the United States including President Roosevelt.

Mme. Pons is traveling with her 9-year-old granddaughter Vivianne

Britain Strengthens Defenses Of Gibraltar

Gate Of Wall Skirting Algeciras Side Plugged, Buildings Razed For Greater Efficiency

Algeciras, Spain, Aug. 13 (AP)—To better their defense setup, Britons are plugging the gate in the old wall skirting the Algeciras side of Gibraltar, and warehouses and other buildings in the commercial dock area are being torn down.

The razing of the buildings will give defenders greater efficiency from higher dominating positions in the British stronghold.

Gibraltar was visited twice by planes today, but no bombs were dropped. Considerable alarm was caused when a ship anchored in the military port at Gibraltar caught fire and flames from oil tanks shot skyward. However, the fire did not spread.

Stocks In New York

New York, Aug. 13 (AP)—War stocks and commodities tumbled today as news of the mounting Nazi air blows against England apparently unnerved speculative markets.

Wheat slipped more than a cent a bushel. Hides, sugar, cotton and other staples were off moderately.

Bonds likewise moved lower.

And In London

London, Aug. 13 (AP)—Security dealers, favorably impressed with air-battle reports, posted higher prices for many issues today. British Government bonds advanced as much as ¼ point.

U. S. To Send Military Mission To Ecuador

War Department, However, Maintains Strict Silence On Duties Of Officers

Washington, Aug. 13 (AP)—The War Department disclosed plans today to send a military mission to Ecuador, but maintained strict silence on its duties.

Two army Air Corps officers, Major Walter K. Burgess, March Field, California, and First Lieut. Harry N. Renshaw, at Randolph Field, Texas, will report to the American Legation at Quito after a short stay here.

Some observers here considered it possible the mission might be in connection with development and training of an Ecuadorean air force. Ecuador is only a short distance by air from the Panama Canal.

British Columbia Making Count Of All Firearms

Owners Must Register Guns And Give Detailed Information About Themselves

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13 (Canadian Press)—A census of all rifles and shotguns in British Columbia begins Thursday.

Gordon Wismer, Attorney General, said today all owners must state whether they are British subjects, give their racial origin and detailed information about the weapon. If the returns are not approved, owners must surrender the guns.

The registration must be completed by September 15. It was estimated more than 60,000 weapons would be registered.

Apology Given By Parliament To Gracie Fields

Comedienne Reveals Cable Deprecating Charge She Took Away Unfair Sums

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 13 (AP).—Gracie Fields, English comedienne, and her husband, Monty Banks, said today they had received an apology from the British Parliament for accusations recently voiced there that the couple had taken large amounts of cash from England when they came to the United States.

Mr. Banks said the cabled apology as signed by Baldwin Webb, Secretary of Parliament.

"Miss Fields and I left England to go to Palestine to entertain the troops," Mr. Banks explained. "At the last minute the War Office changed the orders because of war conditions and instructed my wife to proceed to Canada."

He asserted that they had been back to England three times since Oct. 3, when they first came away, and that nothing was said about the money they brought with them. It was a comparatively large amount, Mr. Banks said, because Miss Fields was paying not only her own expenses but those of her troupe as well.

The cablegram, signed by Mr. Webb as "honorary secretary and member of Parliament," said:

"We deprecate the suggestion that Miss Fields acted unfairly regarding her visit to America. We all trust she will be restored to full health shortly. Miss Fields has countless friends who will always remember her untiring work on behalf of many good causes in Britain and elsewhere. She has always been a source of inspiration to our people and we trust will be spared for many years of useful endeavor, both here and in America.

"Please accept my personal regards, and again thanking Miss Fields for her generous assistance on the occasion of the all-star matinee held in the Phoenix Theater on the 24th May for my ambulance corps."

U. S. Recalling Consuls From 3 Baltic States

Accedes to Red Request; Trade Talks Continued by Welles and Oumansky

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—The American government prepared today to withdraw its representatives in the three tiny Baltic states whose independence from Russia spanned a brief twenty-two years.

While disapproving of Russia's absorption of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, the State Department was understood to have decided it could do nothing but comply with a Russian request to recall diplomatic and consular officials from the three countries.

At the same time, conversations continued in the effort to improve relations between the United States and Russia. Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet Ambassador, conferred with Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, for more than an hour yesterday. It was their third long conference in little more than a week. These were understood to aim chiefly at eliminating trade difficulties following the recent renewal of the annual trade agreement between the two countries, but the talks were said to have extended over the whole field of relations which have been rather strained for some time.

The American ministers were called home from the Baltic countries soon after they were annexed by Russia. But Russia now has asked that consular officials also leave by Aug. 25. The Latvian and Lithuanian ministers in Washington are still recognized by the American government. Estonia is represented only by a consulate in New York.

Meanwhile, reliable information reaching here indicated Russia was fast sovietizing the Baltic states which gained their independence from the World War. Already the process of breaking up farm properties has begun; industry is being nationalized; stocks and bonds have been ordered surrendered and surplus clothing and other articles taken over by the Russians, according to these reports.

Seven legation and consular officials are involved in the Baltic withdrawal, in addition to the ministers. The ministers, John C. Wiley, of Washington, Minister to Latvia and Estonia, and Owen J. C. Norem, of Sioux City, Iowa, Minister to Lithuania, are already en route home.

Legation and consular officials who act in dual capacities are:

Latvia—Earl L. Packer, of Ogden, Utah, and Edwin Allan Lightner jr., of New York.

BRITISH WILL GET 365 PLANES A WEEK

Purvis Says U. S. Can Put Them Out Late in '41.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (A. P.)—Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent, disclosed today that the United States had offered to supply the British with between 1,300 and 1,400 (about 365 planes a week) of the 3,000 fighting planes monthly they had requested. Delivery of the war planes, however, would not start before "late 1941," he added.

He said this smaller program had been suggested by William S. Knudsen of the Defense Commission.

The British wanted the larger number starting noxet January, but Mr. Knudsen suggested that they plan on a smaller number beginning "late in 1941."

Mr. Purvis said the proposals were still in the study stage. He could not predict what eventual arrangements might be made. He likewise declined to say how many planes would be delivered under existing contracts.

He said he was here to discuss the matter with officials and also to introduce Charles Richard Fairey, noted British yachtsman and airplane manufacturer, who has come here to assist in the purchasing program.

2,100 Planes In Raids On England

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 13—In four blasting days of her prelude to Blitzkrieg Germany has sent at least 2,100 planes against England.

Starting last Thursday, Hitler's sky raiders have subjected the island kingdom to a terrific intensified pounding.

Here is the four-day picture:

THURSDAY—Mass waves of 800 Nazi planes attacked shipping in the English Channel, engaging in huge aerial dog fights with British R. A. F. fighters over the Channel.

SUNDAY—Four hundred German planes smashed at the big naval base at Portland, on the south coast, and also attacked Dover and Channel shipping convoys.

Technique Of Raids

A consecutive picture of Germany's mass air raids yesterday showed that they began with a concentrated attack on a limited area, fanned out wide and then narrowed down again to the first hard-hit area.

	German Claims		British Claims
	British Lost	Germans Lost	Germans Lost	British Lost
Thursday	49	10	60	16
Sunday	93	21	60	26
Monday	89	24	62	13
Today	69	7	31	No Report
Totals	300	62	213	55

The series began over the Kentish coast about breakfast time, ranged far down the English Channel in the midday and ended again over Kent in late afternoon.

(Kent forms the lower jaw of the Thames Estuary, closest British soil to the Nazi-held air bases across the English Channel, and includes such important ports as Dover, Deal, Margate, Ramsgate and Canterbury.)

In the first, ten Junkers dive bombers, accompanied by about a dozen Messerschmitt 109's, were driven off by R. A. F. fighters, which shot down six Messerschmitts and pursued the remainder all the way to the French coast.

Three hours later, fifty Messerschmitt fighters and about thirty Junkers returned to the same Channel area to attack shipping. Nine were shot down—six dive-bombers and one of the Nazis' new Heinkel 113 fighters.

Then more than fifty Messerschmitts operating as bombers and Junkers 87's crossed the Kentish coast. At least one bomber and one Messerschmitt fighter were downed.

Mixed Force Attack

Meanwhile, a mixed force of Junkers, Dorniers, Heinkels and Messerschmitts attacked Portsmouth (to the west of Kent). This was the most costly raid of the day for the Germans. Twenty-seven raiders were shot down, seven by anti-aircraft fire and the rest by British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

One squadron of Spitfire fighters accounted for three Messerschmitts, a Dornier bomber and three single-seat fighters and returned without one casualty.

The last large-scale raid of the day was by fifty bombers escorted by 150 fighters. In this attack on the Kentish coast, the fighters stretched out behind the bombers in groups of thirty in tiers reaching as high as five miles. British fighters brought down seventeen.

Sergeant Claims Three

One sergeant pilot claimed three Messerschmitts.

"I gave a Messerschmitt 109 one long burst and saw him crash on the sands," he said. "On my way back, I saw a Spitfire chasing another Messerschmitt. I got above the Spitfire and gave the Messerschmitt a long burst. Clouds of smoke came from it and the enemy aircraft went down toward France.

"As I was nearing England, I saw a third Messerschmitt. I attacked it out of the sun. It turned over, pouring out black smoke, and went down over England."

Communiques of Three Belligerent Nations

British

LONDON, Aug. 13 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique said to night:

Enemy aircraft approached the coast early this morning, the points ranging from the Sussex coast to the Thames estuary. Bombs fell in several seaside towns causing a few casualties, but no military damage was done.

Some of the enemy aircraft crossed the south coast and dropped bombs in a country district of Hampshire, causing a small number of casualties, some of which were fatal.

Royal Air Force fighters attacked the enemy and anti-aircraft guns opened fire. Enemy casualties are believed to be considerable, but full reports are not yet available. So far ten enemy bombers and one fighter are known to have been destroyed. Three of our fighters are reported missing.

A second Air Ministry communique announced tonight:

Targets attacked by R. A. F. bombers last night included the Gotha airplane factory and other objectives in northwest Germany and enemy-occupied territory in France and Holland. The attacks were pressed home in spite of ice and clouds.

Raids also were made on seventeen airdromes and the seaplane base at Borkum. From these operations four of our aircraft have not returned.

The harbor at Helder, on the Dutch coast, was bombed in cooperation with aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm.

Reports of today's activity received up to late this afternoon show that twenty-seven enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters and one by anti-aircraft guns. Four of our fighters have been lost, but the pilots of two of them are safe.

Medium bombers carried out daylight operations today over an area extending from Jutland to the Bay of Biscay.

Included among the objectives were enemy-occupied airdromes attacked at Waalhaven, Hingene (Belgium), Caen, Cherbourg, Morlaix and the seaplane base at Brest (France). Twelve aircraft have not returned.

A supplementary Air Ministry communique on British raids said tonight:

Airdromes at Cherbourg and Caen, and a seaplane base near Brest were attacked. A heavy bomb hit a hangar at Cherbourg, hits were scored on the center of Caen airdrome, and two seaplanes at Brest are thought to have been damaged.

Still another communique issued tonight on German action today said:

In the course of further enemy attacks this evening bombs were dropped on Southampton. Several fires broke out, but these were soon extinguished. Very few casualties were caused, though these included fatal injuries.

Bombs were also dropped in the Isle of Wight and in country districts of Berkshire and Wiltshire. No casualties are reported from either of these areas.

Several R. A. F. airdromes in southeast England were attacked and at one of these a number of casualties was caused, including some fatal injuries.

Further reports show that fifty-seven enemy aircraft have been destroyed today, fifty-four by fighters and three by anti-aircraft fire. Nine of our fighters have been lost, but two of the pilots are reported safe.

Full reports of yesterday's enemy casualties show that a total of sixty-two enemy aircraft were destroyed, made up as follows: Bombers, twenty-five, single-engined fighters; eleven twin-engined fighters and fighter bombers.

During last night enemy aircraft dropped bombs in widely separated districts, chiefly in Wales and southeast England. Casualties were caused in several residential districts, but the number of fatal inquries reported is very small.

An Admiralty communique describing a fight between British motor torpedo boats and German "E" boats appears elsewhere in today's Herald Tribune.

CAIRO, Aug. 13 (AP).—The British communique said today:

Reports are now received of a general attack on our positions covering Jugargan Pass on Aug. 11. In spite of intensive support by low-flying aircraft, the attacks were broken up and repulsed by our artillery and small arms fire.

In one place, the enemy obtained a small local advantage, but were immediately counter-attacked. One large enemy bomber was brought down by infantry fire.

On other fronts, nothing to report.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 13 (AP). — The German high command communique said today:

German flying units yesterday attacked port facilities and airdromes along the English southern and eastern coast. Numerous bombs were dropped on the war harbor at Portsmouth. A big power plant at the shipyards at Vosper was burning.

Dock and quay facilities as well as a patrol boat in the English Channel were hit by bombs. During these raids, fierce air battles developed in which forty-three enemy planes were downed. We succeeded in destroying or setting afire hangars, wharf facilities and barracks on airports at Monston, Canterbury, Hawkinge and Lympne.

At Manston, a British chaser unit was caught at the start and three planes of the Hurriccane type were destroyed in the air and four on the ground. At other points, an additional eight planes were destroyed on the ground.

At Dover, German planes set afire two barrage balloons.

During air battles developing in these regions, the enemy lost thirty planes in the sea east of Southend.

Dive-bombers attacked a strongly protected convoy and, despite hectic defense by chasers and anti-aircraft, sank two merchantmen totaling 5,500 tons. Another ship was set afire.

In the course of the night of Aug. 12-13, bombing raids were aimed at ship targets at Swansea and Cardiff (Wales), as well as anti-aircraft and searchlights near Plymouth and Humbermouth. Mining of British ports continued.

British planes in the course of the same night bombed northern and western Germany, causing immaterial damage. In these operations, four planes were shot down by anti-aircraft over German territory. The enemy's total losses yesterday were ninety-two planes, of which twelve were destroyed on the ground, four by anti-aircraft and the rest in air fights. Twenty-four German planes are missing.

A skirmish in the North Sea between German minesweepers and several enemy speedboats was successful for us. It can be assumed that at least one of the enemy speedboats failed to reach a harbor, while the German boats were undamaged and continued scheduled activity.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Italian communique said today:

The first clash with the main body of the enemy forces defending British Somaliland began at 3 p. m. Aug. 11 with an attack by our forces and developed with a series of sharp fights in the vicinity of Adadleh, which we occupied. The battle is continuing.

In the same zone we shot down a Blenheim plane and recovered the body of the pilot, who was a captain. We lost one of our planes.

An Admiralty communiqué said:

In the early hours of this morning some of our motor torpedo boats made contact with enemy light forces. The enemy, when sighted, were only about 100 yards from our motor torpedo boats, which were traveling at about thirty knots. They were two small ships.

One of our motor torpedo boats, thinking that the enemy ahead was an E-boat [motor torpedo launch] and being too close to take other action, rammed the enemy. The enemy ships were, however, larger than E-boats and this motor torpedo boat suffered some damage to her bows.

Another of our motor torpedo boats passed between the two enemy ships and engaged them with machine-gun fire and grenades at almost pointblank range. It is considered that this fire took considerable effect. The enemy's return fire was ineffective.

A third of our motor torpedo boats passed beyond these two enemy ships and sighted two larger vessels. These che engaged with machine-gun fire at very close range.

Later one of our motor torpedo boats had two running fights with an enemy E-boat. It was too dark to ascertain what damage was inflicted on the enemy during these fights.

After this action some of our motor torpedo boats were attacked by a German aircraft from a height of 500 feet. A hot and accurate fire was opened by our motor torpedo boats and when last seen the aircraft was on fire and losing height rapidly.

No casualties were suffered by the British forces in any of these engagements and none of our motor torpedo boats suffered any damage apart from the damage sustained by one boat through ramming. This boat also returned safely.

BERLIN, Aug. 13-AP-Kazys skirpa, Lithuanian minister to Germany, was near the end of his resistance tonight to the Russian annexation of his country.

Since Friday Skirpa has been refusing in vigorous language to surrender his legation to the Russian Embassy but he indicated that his opposition had run its course and that he would withdraw tomorrow.

It was announced here today that Russia had sent fxmmz formal notice of annexation of Lithuania, Estonia and Lattia and that Germany hxd taken official cognizance of the chage in status.

Then , informed quarters reported, Skirpa was summoned to the German Foreign Office and told that Russia's Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff had sent a telegram expressing his desire to take possession of the Lithuanian Legation promptly.

After some discussion, Skirpa was convinced that it would be futile to hold out any longer.

Skirpa, insisted however, that he would not submit to the Russians and was looking around for someone to whom he could give the keys of the Legation. It was reported he might hand the keys to the policeman on the beat, who could, if he saw fit, give them to the Russians.

AIR DEFENSE PROGRAM

BY DEVON FRANCIS

ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

NEW YORK, AUG.13--THE AMERICAN AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY BY OCTOBER 15 WILL HAVE DOUBLED ITS WORK-ROOM CAPACITY IN THE 15 1/2 MONTHS SINCE JUNE 30, 1939, A RECAPITULATION OF PRESENT AND PLANNED CONSTRUCTION SHOWED TONIGHT.

WHAT THAT ZI L MEAN IN TERMS OF WARPLANES TO BE PRODUCED UNDER THE GOVERNMENT'S AIR REARMAMENT PROGRAM WILL DEPEND ON THE TYPES OF PLANES ORDERED AND THE FLOW OF THE ORDERS THEMSELVES.

FIGURES OBTAINED AT THE AERONAUTICAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, HOWEVER, INDICATED THAT NOT MORE THAN A 30 PER CENT INCREASE IN THE FACTORY FLOOR SPACE AVAILABLE IN OCTOBER FOR PLANE PRODUCTION (EXCLUSIVE OF ENGINES AND PROPELLERS) WILL BE NECESSARY TO MEET THE DEMANDS OF THE ARMY AND THE NAVY FOR NEW PLANES UNDER THE PROGRAM PROJECTED BY THE NATIONAL DEFENSE ADVISORY COMMITTEE TO JULY 1, 1942.

THAT PROGRAM CONTEMPLATES THE DELIVERY OF 19,000-ODD PLANES TO THE ARMY AIR CORPS AND 4,000 TO THE NAVY BY THAT DATE.

LARGE-SCALE PRODUCTION OF WARPLANES STILL AWAITS THE IRONING OUT OF CONTRACT DIFFICULTIES BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE MANUFACTURERS.

ON JUNE 30, 1939, THE FACTORIES PRODUCING AIRCRAFT, ENGINES AND PROPELLERS HAD A FLOOR AREA OF 9,370,000 SQUARE FEET. IN TWELVE MONTHS THAT WAS INCREASED TO 13,817,000 SQUARE FEET, AND BUILDINGS NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION OR CONTRACTED FOR WILL BOOST THE FIGURE TO 18,641,000 SQUARE FEET BY MID-OCTOBER.

A BOOST OF 87 PER CENT IN THE AIRPLANE FACTORY FLOOR SPACE--FROM 7,000,000 TO 13,120,000 SQUARE FEET--IS CONTEMPLATED IN THE FIFTEEN AND A HALF MONTHS; ONE OF 131 PER CENT IN ENGINE PLANTS--FROM 2,000,000 TO 4,632,000 SQUARE FEET--AND ONE OF 140 PER CENT IN PROPELLER PLANTS, FROM 370,000 TO 889,000 SQUARE FEET.

IN THE SIX MONTHS BETWEEN JAN.1, 1940, AND JUNE 30, SUPERVISORY AND SHOP EMPLOYES IN THE ENTIRE INDUSTRY INCREASED FROM 75,000 TO 121,000.

THE PLANT EXPANSION COST COVERING BUILDINGS, TOOLS AND OTHER EQUIPMENT HAS BEEN ABOUT $85,000,000.

ANOTHER SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENT IN RECENT MONTHS, THE INCREASED AMOUNT OF BUSINESS GOING TO SUB-CONTRACTORS OF THE INDUSTRY, PROBABLY WILL HAVE A PRONOUNCED EFFECT ON PRODUCTION. THE SUB-CONTRACTING OF PARTS SUCH AS LANDING GEARS, TAIL SURFACES AND ENGINE MOUNTS HAS JUMPED FROM 4 034 :3,5 OF THE GROSS DOLLAR OUTPUT A YEAR AGO TO 12 PER CENT AT PRESENT, AND SOME MANUFACTURERS EXPECT THE FIGURE TO JUMP TO 25 PER CENT IN ANOTHER YEAR.

THAT AUTOMATICALLY EXPANDS THE AMOUNT OF FLOOR SPACE AVAILABLE FOR FABRICATING THE LARGER PARTS OF THE PLANES.

MILAN AND TURIN BOMBED; AIR FLEET LASHES ENGLAND

German Trawlers Found Clearing North Sea of Mines for Transports—17 Parachutes Found—Dancing Banned in Germany—Dover Blasted for Base.

By the Associated Press.

Signs of a fast-approaching zero hour for Germany's threatened invasion of England mounted ominously today, even as Nazi bombers, attacking in great waves, spurred the four-day-old blitzkrieg to new heights of fury.

The Royal Air Force struck back by driving deep into Italy, bombing aircraft factories in Milan and Turin and raiding other cities, while fellow pilots thrust at Germany, reaching Potsdam on the outskirts of Berlin and attacking fourteen airdromes in the Reich, France, Belgium and Holland.

These danger signals indicating that Britain's greatest hour of trial was at hand were noted:

1. Six Nazi mine-sweeping trawlers were discovered by British destroyers somewhere in the North Sea, obviously engaged in clearing the waters for a possible crossing of troop transports.

2. Increasing numbers of German-marked parachutes were found in England's industrial Midlands—seventeen at an early count—and the Ministry of Home Security appealed to the public to report urgently any information about the landing of parachute troops, who might seek to paralyze the area's factories.

3. Public dancing again was barred in Germany, as it was during the blitzkrieg against Poland and during the offensive against Holland, Belgium and France.

4. German bombers concentrated in fierce, huge-scale attacks on the area of Dover—channel "gateway" for a possible land invasion.

Nazi Air Fleet Pounds Britain

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Diving and fighting German planes, 300 of them swarming over the southeast coast alone, renewed the relentless prelude to invasion of England in murky skies today, as Britain struck back at the axis Powers in engagements from the North Sea to Africa.

Masses of German planes dived with ear-splitting roars on balloon barrages and were engaged by twisting, diving British fighters and a terrific drumfire of anti-aircraft batteries.

One furious ninety-minute battle ended about noon after a great wave of eighty bombers, protected by a canopy of fast pursuit planes, lost themselves behind banks of clouds long enough to get inland where they dropped bombs.

Can't Distinguish Enemies.

Many of the explosives were declared to have fallen harmlessly on farmland.

Another battle among 150 planes was fought on the south coast, with British and German craft so closely mixed that it was impossible for ground observers to tell friend from foe.

Here a lightship was attacked and sunk.

At least one barrage balloon was shot down in a ball of fire on the southeast coast, and several were ripped away and sent crashing on the south coast. They had been replaced after yesterday's onslaught.

The din of battle, with its loud hollow bark of German airplane cannon, chatter of machine-guns, booming of anti-aircraft fire and roar of hundreds of motors came as the military correspondent of Reuters news agency declared, "All reports confirm that the present German tactics against Britain are similar to those preliminaries which were so successful against Poland."

In one district a large building was struck, causing a number of casualties, houses were damaged and a road was blocked by a bursting gas main. Incendiary bombs were dropped in several areas.

German bombers struck at Southampton again this afternoon, the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security announced tonight, damaging a train and injuring several persons.

Plant Bombed in Wales.

Latest reports said fifteen enemy planes were destroyed today by the R. A. F., which lost four fighters while defending Dover, Southampton, Hastings and various other points from attack.

At Hastings several persons were fatally injured, but the communique said enemy activity today was "much less pronounced."

A plant in Wales was struck tonight by many German incendiary bombs, but little damage was done. A nearby cottage was damaged slightly.

A few persons were hurt by flying glass in a northeast of Scotland town. Residents of a tenement house there were preparing to go to a shelter they had built in the back yard when a bomb fell on the building wrecking it.

It was disclosed that the Air Ministry now accepts the word of one pilot that a German plane has been shot down, without requiring other corroboration.

This source said that with the greater activity that has developed in the last few days fighter pilots are unable to watch what their comrades are doing.

The Air Ministry previously required corroboration from at least two independent witnesses of a sky fight before counting a German plane destroyed.

An air officer explaining the system of tallying enemy losses said that R. A. F. flyers upon landing walk across to the intelligence officer waiting to total up the squadron's score.

"The pilots give him the number of aircraft shot down which crash on land," he said. "Those are the ones confirmed.

"Then they tell him the number of planes shot down into the sea. Those are unconfirmed but listed as destroyed.

"Then they tell the number shot at and describe whether pieces came off the German plane or whether smoke came from it. Those are the ones listed as probably destroyed.

"Sometimes the pilot sees cooling fluid coming from Jerry's radiator, and if that happens he is pretty certain the plane is a loss, because our own experience is that we can't remain aloft for more than two or three minutes after that happens. The engine freezes up straight away."

Nazis Smash Through.

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Thundering through the aerial defenses of southern England, Nazi raiders smashed at the island kingdom in great waves today in spite of the fierce opposition of British planes and guns.

At 6 P. M. (11 A. M., Eastern standard time), said DNB, the official German news agency, the raiders still were going over in droves from German, Dutch and Belgian bases, and had started huge fires at Dover.

DNB declared that twenty-five British planes and five German planes had been destroyed in the intensive fighting over the channel and coastal area, and that British planes had fallen like flaming torches into the sea. Nine barrage balloons were also shot down, DNB said.

Later the agency said that an additional twenty-two British fighters had been shot down over Kent making a total of forty-two British planes destroyed. DNB added that five more German planes had been lost, a total of ten in the day's fighting.

Military sources, declaring that British planes have been swept from the air over the channel, said they expected that the British air force again would be unable to prevent the German airmen from carrying out their new tasks.

The High Command reported that 132 British planes had been destroyed in yesterday's general combats, but admitted that the British Navy still was to be encountered in the North Sea.

London Contradicts Nazi Claims.

[London put the number of German planes downed yesterday at seventy-eight, admitting the loss of only thirteen British fighters.]

With fog over the North Sea and heavy clouds over the channel said to be favoring German air operations, the Nazis were reticent concerning the objectives assigned for the new action today.

But the High Command's communique in general supported previous reports that the Germans yesterday hammered at airdromes and armament plants far behind coastal defenses, and did tremendous damage in the most successful raids yet carried out against England.

Many hangars, barracks, oil reservoirs and shops were declared to have been wrecked and burned in attacks on airports in Eastchurch and Detling in Kent, where the British base fighters to protect the south side of the Thames estuary, and at Andover and Oldham, which back up the defenses of the great southern naval base of Portsmouth.

Other airports were attacked at Farnsborough and Middlewallop.

Armament plants at Exeter and Plymouth on the southeast were declared to have been effectively bombarded, as well as port facilities at Walsend, Bournemouth and Plymouth on the south and Hartlepool on the east coast.

Invasion Believed Near.

Besides the 132 British planes shot down in these operations and in British attacks on German occupied territory, the Germans said they shot down twelve barrage balloons and lost but twenty-eight of their own planes.

These striking successes, as described by the High Command, increased the belief among observers that the long-threatened land, sea and air attack on Britain would not be long delayed.

This belief was heightened by German assertions that British planes have been "swept from the air" in the vicinity of Dover—the logical focal point for an attempted invasion—and that Nazi raiders are paying increasing attention to the British ground defenses. Gun emplacements, searchlights, air fields and highways in this area were attacked yesterday, it was said, in a gradual extension of mass raids strikingly similar to the aerial tactics which preceded the land invasion of Poland.

German commentators said that the assaults on England could no longer be regarded as individual raids but must be viewed as a general action developing in accordance with a well-laid plan.

BIG ITALIAN CITIES BOMBED BY BRITISH

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—The Caproni factory at Milan and the Fiat plant in Turin, two of Italy's most vital aircraft works, were seriously damaged by Royal Air Force bombers which flew 1,600 miles in a double crossing of the Alps, the Air Ministry said today.

The R. A. F. planes, after climbing more than three miles to avoid snow-capped peaks, smashed the factories and set them afire in attacks lasting until early hours today, the Ministry said in a special bulletin amplifying a previous communique.

One pilot saw a dull glare from the blazing Caproni works miles behind him, the statement said.

[Berlin reported that British planes over Potsdam had been driven off by anti-aircraft fire.]

Defenses Taken by Surprise.

The Ministry's supplementary announcement said Italian defenses apparently were taken completely by surprise and the anti-aircraft fire was scanty and ineffective.

One pilot in the three-quarter-hour attack on the Fiat plant at Turin scored several direct hits and the roof of the works was pierced in several places, the Ministry said.

Pilot Spots His Shots.

"He could see his incendiary bombs hitting the roof and, after a fierce blaze had broken out, there followed two large explosions," said the announcement.

Another pilot who made three separate runs over the works scored direct hits with incendiary bombs which started other fires and one of his heavy bombs struck the other end of the factory. A third and fourth pilot added to the fires, explosions and destruction, the Ministry said.

One pilot's six-minute record read: "First stick (group of bombs) observed east of south part of target. Fires started. Second stick on center of main building. Third stick center of north end of building. Fourth stick many fires started by incendiary. Weather very good."

Railroad sidings west of the factory also were hit, the railroad junction south of the city was traddled with bombs, and the railway lines were torn up by direct hits.

The Caproni works at Milan were badly damaged when the raiders droped a salvo of incendiary explosives in line right down the lengths of the buildings, the Ministry said. A series of large explosions was started.

The airdrome and seaplane base at the factory also were damaged by a great explosion and then fire.

As additional bombers arrived, adding systematically to the destruction, fires could be seen all over the target area, the ministry said.

The highway and railway bridge at Casant D'Adda also was hit directly by two bombs from 1,000 feet.

British bombers attacked the Junkers aircraft factories at Dessau and Bernburg, north of Leipzig, and munition factories at Lunen and Grevenbroidh last night, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

Fourteen airdromes in Germany, Belgium, Holland and France, were also bombed, the communique said.

Rome Says 22 Died.

ROME, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—British warplanes attacked northern Italy today, bombing Milan, Turin and other rich industrial cities, and killing twenty-two civilians and injuring more than fifty others, it was officially announced.

The planes, which came, it was stated, from the direction of Switzerland, also dropped lealfets over northern Italy urging the Italian people to "open your eyes because war with its terrors is now at your door."

Milan Is Main Target.

The heaviest attack apparently was launched on Milan, where thirty explosive and incendiary bombs were said to have landed in a residential section. The Milan death toll was put at twelve and the wounded at forty-four.

Also bombed were Alessandria and Tortona.

The Italian High Command said that the raiders failed to damage any military objectives or industrial establishments.

It added that Augusta, near Syracuse, was also raided. This town is in Sicily.

The British leaflets dropped on Turin said:

"Italians: To gain the liberty and independence of Italy your ancestors rose in arms against tyranny and chased the hated enemy Germans from Piedmont and Lombardy.

"Today, however, Italy is not a free and independent nation. In this war which you did not want, Italy is a vassal of Hitler. Why are you at war? Perhaps for a greater Italy? Not at all.

"You are at war to make Hitler stronger and thus able to exploit you Italians for his war."

The leaflets dropped on Milan said:

"Italians—who threw you into this war? Are you slaves to bend your backs to your hereditary enemy, Germany? Open well your eyes, because war with its terrors is now at the doors of your home."

British Planes Over Potsdam.

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—While German raiders hammered at Great Britain's defenses, Berlin received first hand evidence today that the British are striking back.

For the third time since the beginning of the war, air raid sirens in the German capital screamed an early morning alarm and residents scurried from their beds to the air raid shelters, and remained there for forty-seven minutes

Nazi spokesmen declared later that British planes reached a point twenty miles west of Berlin but were turned back by sharp anti-aircraft fire before they could approach any nearer to the capital.

It was stated emphatically that no bombs were dropped anywhere by the British planes, which were said to have penetrated to the region of Potsdam, a score of miles from the capital. No estimate was made of the number of enemy planes which flew over that area.

Although no firing was heard in downtown Berlin, residents of the suburbs said they had heard the sound of distant shooting.

Planes Pass Over Switzerland.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Unidentified foreign planes which flew over Switzerland early today roared "probably toward Italian industrial centers," an official Swiss communique stated, indicating that the planes may have been British.

The communique said that about thirty foreign planes crossed the western frontier of Switzerland over the Jura mountains, flew southward and then returned.

No bombs were dropped on Swiss territory but alarms were sounded in three regions over which planes flew during the night, sending thousands of Swiss people tumbling from their beds into the air raid shelters.

Roar Over Geneva.

The German-speaking capital of Berne, Italian-speaking Ticino and French-speaking western Switzerland were the areas over which the planes flew. In the west they roared over Geneva, Lausanne and Lucerne.

A communique said that according to first information there were three squadrons and a number of isolated planes.

The first alarm sounded in Berne shortly after 11 P. M., and the all-clear signal was given about midnight. No planes were heard then, but during a second alarm, between 1:15 A. M. and 2:20 A. M., beams of searchlights swept the skies over the capital and many planes were heard.

Raid Under Clouds.

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Pressing the pace set for the ultimate attempt to invade England, waves of Nazi planes from German, Dutch and Belgian bases renewed their attacks on her strategic centers today under cover of heavy clouds.

Military sources, declaring that British planes have been swept from the air over the channel, said they expected that the British air force again would be unable to prevent the German airmen from carrying out their new tasks.

The High Command reported that 132 British planes had been destroyed in yesterday's general combats, but admitted that the British Navy still was to be encountered in the North Sea.

British Fend Off Raid.

A SOUTH COAST TOWN, England, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—British fighting planes fended off a terrific attack along the coastline here today in a gigantic air battle which involved 150 planes.

Machine gun fire and the roar of cannons and anti-aircraft fire filled the air. From the shore four planes could be seen as they crashed into the sea.

Six big Nazi Junker 88's swooped down on a lightship in the channel, dropping two bombs each. British fighters dived on them from high above and the bombers moved away in the direction of the French coast.

Involved Mass of Wheeling.

The fight at times became such an involved mass of wheeling, diving planes that it was impossible to tell which were British and which were German.

Once we could see the splash of bombs in the sea off to the east. Several dropped on land.

Suddenly a fresh swarm of German raiders appeared and began blasting away at the barrage balloons. Some of the balloons were ripped through and through and fell. A shell from a Messerschmitt cannon hit the ground and exploded near where we were standing. An empty machine gun clip dropped at our feet, and fragments of anti-aircraft shells sprinkled down.

During the attack on the lightship the scream of a diving plane was heard. With a fearful noise it plunged at a balloon. The balloon went down in flames.

Every gun on the anti-aircraft front was hammering away. The ground shook with the thunderous bursts.

A short distance away another splashed. Patrol boats sped out to where it came down.

Near the close of the raid another balloon near us was shot down. But the plane that got it was ringed in anti-aircraft fire and the pilot seemed to be in trouble as he wheeled away to get out of range.

All through this fight Nazi planes were extending their activities to northeast England.

Southeast Coast of England, Thursday, Aug. 15—Wailing alarm sirens heard across the English Channel from the Nazi-held coast of France early today signaled vast British counter-attacks on Germany's Blitzkrieg bases.

Reports reaching here, backed by what could actually be seen and heard across the Channel, indicated that the Royal Air Force smashed its counter-blows along perhaps one hundred miles of the coast where Nazis are massed nearest to England.

Long after midnight and on toward dawn the scream of the sirens could be heard.

Giant Flashes Light Up Sky

Giant flashes that lit the sky told of the thundering explosions with which British bombers paid back in kind for the pounding of southeastern England.

The British attacks apparently ranged from Calais, a score of miles across the Channel from Dover, to the big port of Le Havre.

From an observation point at the southeastern tip of England the dull thud of bombings could be heard as an undertone to the siren scream.

Searchlights On Both Sides Of Channel

Searchlights pierced up into the darkness in long luminous fingers both on the French and English sides of the Channel that has become the No Man's Land of the Battle of Britain.

Somewhere between Calais and Le Havre glowed the light of a huge fire—like the half-risen sun.

An hour after the first sound of the attack flashes in the distant sky indicated that the bombing and the fire from enemy ground batteries was continuing unabated.

100 Flashes Seen In Hour

Other splashes of light that might have been flares or signals could be distinguished.

Overhead there was the drone of airplane motors. It was not immediately determined whether they signaled a hit-back raid by the Nazis or reinforcements for the British attackers.

Britain's own coastal guards were alert, but reported no signs of new German attack.

Nazi Airmen Renew Pre-Dawn Attacks On Northern England

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Aug. 15—Striking north of the bomb-pounded belt along the south coast, Nazi raiders swept over northwestern England and north and south Scotland today in attacks before dawn.

The swift new raids were characteristic of the feeler flights through the darkness that have preluded the mighty air assaults each of the last four days.

Yesterday's big blows were aimed at the vital south coast cities—Southampton, Dover and Hastings—while German vessels moved stealthily about the English Channel in what might be preparations for an attempt to ferry an invading army to British shores.

Bombers Attack In Waves

The German warplanes struck in waves, dropping bombs over the southeast and southern coast, in the southwest, the Midlands and even in Wales. But the Channel ports again were hardest hit.

At Dover, the Nazis blasted away at British barrage balloons, set up to protect the coast; at Southampton they poured down high-explosive bombs, at least one of which damaged a standing train; at Hastings several fatalities were reported.

Attack Plane Factories

The Royal Air Force, desperately fighting off the German attacks here at home, likewise reported new and damaging blows at aircraft factories in four Axis cities—at Dessau and Bernburg, in Germany; at Turin and Milan, in Italy—and the bombardment of German munitions plants at Lunen and Grevenbroich.

Struck by British bombers, too, were objectives in Germany's industrial Ruhr and fourteen airdromes in German and German-held territory.

The hundreds of Nazi dive bombers and fighters—300 of them in one thunderous flight that swept over the southeast coast alone—did not attack alone. German naval units, believed by British observers to be acting in a general effort to sweep the North Sea and English Channel clear of the British mine belt and thus to prepare the way for a sea-borne invasion, prowled English waters.

Break Up Flotilla

In one engagement in the North Sea, two British destroyers were reported to have broken up a German flotilla of six trawlers and three torpedo-carrying speedboats, sending one trawler and one speedboat to the bottom while the others fled under a smoke screen.

The Admiralty was careful not to disclose the location of this small but significant engagement, but neutral sources placed it somewhere in the North Sea.

This appeared to support the belief of many observers that, when the great attack comes, it will be sprung not along the southern and southeast coasts, the scenes of the greatest running air battles of history, but somewhere along Britain's northeast coast.

A landing there would be handy to Britain's industrial waist and would give the Nazis scope of a western offensive which, if completed, would cut the island defenses in two.

Yesterday was the fourth successive day of almost ceaseless air raids—raids which kept the gray skies full of clamor—and as before the south and southeast coasts were the Nazis' especial targets.

In a single ninety-minute battle, eighty German bombers broke through the coastal defenses, under the protective wings of a cloud of fighter planes, to drop bombs inland.

In Residential Areas

Other bombs dropped on residential areas near the railway lines. One was a "delayed action" type. A number of people were removed from their homes by police.

In all this furious assault and counter-assault British officials took a moment to announce that in the great battles of Monday and Tuesday 140 German planes probably had been destroyed or damaged, in addition to 140 already known to have been "definitely destroyed" in those engagements.

One of the hardest hit of all areas today was the Midlands, where swarms of raiders dropped ton upon ton of bombs, many of them striking homes. In this section alone, at least five persons were killed.

Could Have Touched Ships

On the south coast, the invading Nazis dived so low that one spectator remarked of a lightship subsequently sunk in this attack:

"The Germans could have leaned out of their machines and touched the mastheads."

It was agreed that the hour of the great test—the hour when a landing for German troops may be attempted—was close at hand.

The military correspondent of Reuters thus summed it up:

"All reports confirm that the present German tactics against Britain are similar to those preliminaries which were so successful against Poland."

Raids Termed Successful

The R. A. F.'s raids on German aircraft and munitions plants were described here as highly successful.

The great Junkers factories in Dessau and Bernburg, Germany, were reported hard hit.

The plant at Dessau, said an Air Ministry bulletin, was systematically pounded in relays for more than an hour, the attacking British using parachute flares to observe the results of their work.

Power House Destroyed

The main power house, it was added, was destroyed, while air-frame assembly sheds and a sheet-metal shop were severely damaged. An experimental shop was hit dead-center and blew up.

At Bernburg both explosive and incendiary bombs were poured down on the Junkers factory, where, said the Air Ministry, "air-frames for Junkers dive bombers and (airplane) troop transports are produced."

Part of a building on an adjoining airdrome was said to have been smashed "in a shower of debris."

In the German munitions plants at Lunen and Grevenbroich, it was said, a series of fires sprang up. At Grevenbroich a heavy explosion also was reported.

Parachutes Found in Britain

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Seventeen parachutes bearing German markings were found today in midland villages, as the Ministry of Home Security appealed to the public to report urgently any information they may have about parachute troops landing in England.

The Ministry said that police, the military and home guards were continuing a widespread search begun immediately after reports were received that parachutes had been found in two areas in England and one in Scotland last night and early today.

Earlier reports said that eleven German airmen, not parachute troops, had been captured in the midlands after they had bailed out of stricken planes and left telltale partchutes behind them. Seven were reported taken in one group and four in another.

Text of Ministry Statement.

The Ministry communique, which made no mention of such captures, follows:

"Reports have been received of a number of parachutes apparently dropped from aircraft having been found in two areas in England and one area in Scotland last night and early this morning.

"Widespread search was immediately instituted by police, the military and home guards and the search is continuing, but no parachutists have yet been found and no evidence that parachutists have landed.

"The search is continuing and any one who has any information which might be of assistance should communicate with the police."

Police and home guards stopped all traffic in the area where the parachutes were found.

A farmer who found several of them said that he could locate no trace of any men near them.

The midlands is England's great industrial area, and a few parachute troops might be able to conduct extensive sabotage there.

Rector Sounds 'Chute Alarm

London, Aug. 14 (AP)—One of the duties of the 69-year-old rector of a Midlands village is to sound the "parachute alarm."

When four parachutes were found in the parish during the night the aging rector was aroused and ran—in pajamas—to toll the church bell.

Sleepy villagers saw military trucks, carrying Home Guardsmen, speeding by to search for German parachutists.

NAZI SPEEDBOAT REPORTED SUNK

British Destroyers Report Hitting Three Warcraft.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Two British destroyers hit three German naval units in an engagement early today, the Admiralty announced, adding that "it is thought that one armed trawler and one E-boat (torpedo-carrying German speedboat) were sunk."

The Admiralty communique read:

"In the early hours of this morning two of our destroyers, H. M. S. Malcolm (Capt. T. E. Halsey Dorn) and H. M. S. Verity (Lieut.-Commander, R. H. Mills, R. N.) made contact with enemy light forces consisting of six armed trawlers and three E-boats. Our destroyers at once engaged the enemy.

"The enemy forces retired behind a smoke screen as soon as they were illuminated by the searchlights of our destroyers. Before they were able to escape, however, three of the enemy vessels were seen to be hit, and it is thought that one armed trawler and one E-boat were sunk. No damage or casualties were suffered by either of our destroyers."

The Admiralty also announced today the loss of the mine-sweeping trawler Elizabeth Angela with one fatal casualty by air attack.

Reuters, a British news agency, reported today from Stockholm the sinking of the 1,300-ton Swedish steamship Varia in an air attack in the English Channel. Eight of the crew are missing, the report said. Ten were saved.

A Berlin radio broadcast, heard today in London, quoted a Stockholm report that the 5,779-ton Swedish motorship Canton had been sunk off the Irish coast. The Canton, traded between San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Far East before the war.

The Ministry of Information paid tribute today to the survivors of the British transport Mahomed Ali El-Kebir, torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic on August 11 with the loss of 120 lives.

The troops, about to turn in, went about the task of abandoning ship "as if carrying out a peacetime drill," the ministry said, adding that seamen laughed and joked as they made ready to launch lifeboats in a heavy swell and that the last actually had been floated off the vessel's deck.

Turning to thirty men still left aboard, their petty officer was said to have dived into the sea, calling: "Come on, mates. There'll always be an England—let's swim for it." The account added "they didn't have to swim very far."

GERMANS TORPEDO THE TRANSYLVANIA

MORE THAN 30 LIVES LOST

300 Officers and Men Landed From 16,923-Ton Liner—Oil Slick Seen by Clipper

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 15 (AP)—The 16,923-ton armed merchant cruiser Transylvania—once a popular West Indies cruise ship running out of New York—has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine somewhere in the Atlantic.

The British Government had taken her over from the Cunard Anchor Line.

The sinking was disclosed in a brief Admiralty communiqué.

Between thirty and forty sailors were believed lost because lifeboats capsized in choppy seas. More than 300 officers and men were saved and landed at a west coast port.

Most of the rescue work was done by ships that picked up distress signals and dashed to the stricken liner. The liner kept afloat almost four hours.

The commander of the ship, Captain F. N. Miles, was among those saved. Many had remarkable escapes. The ship's cat also was brought ashore.

One seaman related that he was in a lifeboat that capsized, managed to get into another—which sank. He finally reached a steady third one.

Most of the seamen were from Glasgow and West Scotland.

The date of the sinking was not disclosed.

A Reuters, British news agency, dispatch from Stockholm today said that the Swedish steamer Mongolia, 2,111 tons, sank early today in Kiel Bay following an explosion. The crew was saved. The Mongolia formerly traded between Boston, New York and Europe.

The dispatch also reported the sinking of the 1,300-ton Swedish steamer Varia in an air attack in the English Channel.

Eight of the crew are missing, the report said. Ten were saved.

A Berlin radio broadcast, heard here today, quoted a Stockholm report that the Swedish ship Canton had been sunk off the Irish coast.

The Canton, 5,779 gross tons, traded between San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Far East before the war. She was a twin screw motorship owned in Goeteborg.

Detained In New York

The Transylvania was one of the four ships detained by Government order in New York harbor last August 29 for search by customs officers.

The others were the German liner Bremen, which later made a hazardous voyage to Germany through the British blockade, the French liner Normandie, and the British liner Aquitania. The Normandie still is docked at New York and the Aquitania, which served as a troopship during the World War, has been reported carrying troops again.

After being cleared August 30 by New York authorities, the Transylvania sailed for Londonderry, north Ireland. Then she dropped out of the news under the British Admiralty's secrecy.

The Transylvania was 552 feet long. She was built in 1925 at Glasgow, her home port.

Nazis Describe Wrecked Craft In the Channel

Returning Bombers Tell of Floating Plane and Balloon Debris Off Dover

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—Germany's mighty air force carried a tempest of fire and metal across the channel today into England's exposed southern flank for the fourth sucessive day of big aerial assault, and returning bombers described masses of floating wreckage of planes and balloons shot down off Dover—a possible sign of conditions ripe for invasion.

Biggest battles of the day were reported off this southeastern "hot" corner nearest the Continent, where Germans said British fighters persisted in making futile attempts to stop the torrents of German bombers, dive bombers and battle planes and lost twenty-two of their hurricanes and spitfires to the Germans' five.

This brought Great Britain's total of destroyed planes, according to German bookkeeping, to 405 for the five big days beginning last Thursday. This was at a cost of eighty-five German planes, the Germans reckoned.

Despite the desperate British opposition, the Germans said, their bombers shrieked down on their objectives, hitting airports and wharves with mine-like explosives which left towering fires in their wake.

20 Barrage Balloons Downed

Approximately a score of Britain's vaunted barrage balloons were sent flaming into the sea and to the ground in a tangle of twisted cables, the Germans declared, while small boats were engaged off shore in attempts to rescue luckless British pilots whose mounts were sent in streaking flame from the sky.

German bombers started their work in the early hours of the morning from many bases in Germany, Holland and Belgium, taking advantage of thick clouds over the channel, to slip over the British coast line for raids far inland.

But apparently the clouds hid swarms of British planes too, judging by subsequent German accounts of ensuing battles.

Berlin had its third air-raid warning of the war, and informed sources admitted British raiders had reached Potsdam, twenty miles west of the capital, before being turned back by anti-aircraft guns. The warning sent Berlin residents to their cellars for forty-seven minutes while the sound of distant firing was heard, but no bombs were reported dropped.

Destruction of British aircraft yesterday, which Germans totaled at 132, was accomplished in part by the bombing and firing of two score on the ground at British airports before they ever had a chance to get into the air, the Germans said. They pointed to this as indicating an approaching parallel to the attack that paralyzed Polish and French air fleets.

Tell of Tremendous Damage

German smashes at centers of British air resistance were reported in the high command's communique. It said many hangars, barracks, oil tanks and equipment were blasted and burned yesterday in bombardments of airfields at Eastchurch and Detling, where the British back up their Dover and Thames defenses; at Andover and Odiham, where planes to protect the big Portsmouth naval base are massed, and at Farnborough and Middle Wallop, in South England.

Besides, armament plants at Exeter and Plymouth, and wharves at Wallsend, Bournemouth and Plymouth on the south, and Hartlepool on the east were hit, the communique said.

Informed sources described the damage in these, "the most successful raids" yet against England, as "tremendous."

The high command also said a submarine chaser patrol had encountered a destroyer flotilla in the fog-shrouded North Sea and put it to flight after a "skirmish," while German submarines continued their cruises "unhampered." One submarine returned with a report of the sinking of 41,611 tons of shipping, including an auxiliary cruiser.

Germany's main interest was centered on the aerial assault, which, it was said, has brought almost the entire southern and southeastern shore—310 miles—and a belt sixty miles deep under fire.

How British Fended Off Raid

Correspondent Under Rain of Bombs Watches Squadrons Wheeling in Sky.

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE.

A SOUTH COAST TOWN, England, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—British fighting planes fended off a terrific attack along the coastline here today in a gigantic air battle which involved 150 planes.

Machine gun fire and the roar of cannons and anti-aircraft fire filled the air. From the shore four planes could be seen as they crashed into the sea.

Six big Nazi Junker 88's swooped down on a lightship in the channel, dropping two bombs each. British fighters dived on them from high above and the bombers moved away in the direction of the French coast.

The fight at times became such an involved mass of wheeling, diving planes that it was impossible to tell which were British and which were German.

Once we could see the splash of bombs in the sea off to the east. Several dropped on land.

Suddenly a fresh swarm of German raiders appeared and began blasting away at the barrage balloons. Some of the balloons were ripped through and through and fell. A shell from a Messerschmitt cannon hit the ground and exploded near where we were standing. An empty machine gun clip dropped at our feet, and fragments of anti-aircraft shells sprinkled down.

During the attack on the lightship the scream of a diving plane was heard. With a fearful noise it plunged at a balloon. The balloon went down in flames.

Every gun on the anti-aircraft front was hammering away. The ground shook with the thunderous bursts.

A short distance away another splashed. Patrol boats sped out to where it came down.

Near the close of the raid another balloon near us was shot down. But the plane that got it was ringed in anti-aircraft fire and the pilot seemed to be in trouble as he wheeled away to get out of range.

All through this fight Nazi planes were extending their activities to northeast England.

The crew members took to a lifeboat and were picked up by a British speedboat which raced out from shore.

Anti-aircraft fire accounted for at least three dive bombers which I saw crash.

[The man who took this story over the telephone in London could hear the explosions of anti-aircraft fire as Mr. Brunnelle spoke. "I can see anti-aircraft bursts right outside the telephone booth now," the latter told him.]

Just before the raid got under way, I saw two formations of twenty-seven British fighters patrolling the skies. As they slowly circled, a big cloud of German bombers escorted by fighters cut across the coast from France.

I saw the R. A. F. planes wheel back, zoom up in the air and then with a bursting roar of motors they began the attack.

Best estimates were that there were about 100 German planes in this bunch. When the British opened fire, the Nazis first formed a big circle. The British ringed around them on the outside and started to dive in and out of the formation.

Then quickly the single battle broke up into a series of dogfights.

Other planes could be heard on a higher level, out of sight, apparently making for inland targets while the big mass kept the defenders busy along the channel.

From then on it was a wild jamboree of fighting planes, and I could hear bombs exploding inland with earth-shaking rumbles between bursts of anti-aircraft fire, the chatter of machine guns and the din of cannon.

After the raid ended, I was talking to one of the men who went to the rescue of the lightship crew. He said no direct hits were scored on the ship, but bombs were "dropping all around her and opened her seams."

"The lightship went down by the stern and we had to lay by her and watch two poor blokes go down," he said.

Trains were slowed down by the raid. H. Taylor Henry, a fellow Associated Press correspondent, who came in just after the raid, said that his train reduced to half-speed and that incendiary bombs were dropped around it.

English Train Bombed

Southampton, England, Aug. 14 (AP)—A German air raider dropped a bomb ten feet in front of an express train in the suburbs of this heavily-raided port tonight, derailing the engine and baggage car and injuring three passengers.

Although the engine plunged into a crater, the crew was not hurt.

"I had slowed down when the raid started and was pulling to a stop because I heard a plane overhead," the engineer said.

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

Dover, England, Aug. 14—You're in the front line of the battle zone when the London-Dover train comes out of the last tunnel through the chalk hills of the coast.

I realized it today, riding on that train.

Daylight just had flooded the windows, after the tunnel's long gloom, and an incendiary bomb dropped barely a stone's throw from the right of way.

At least forty German planes were overhead. Apparently they just had passed high over the Royal Air Force's coastal patrol, then dived low to try to disrupt transportation between the coast and the heart of England.

More Bombs Crash

Swiftly, eight or ten more flame bombs crashed in a rough circle about the train.

One set fire to a field. Farmers quickly [illegible] the blaze. The others bury themselves and fizzle out.

When we pulled into Dover, the town was amazingly calm.

The big midday air raid was just over.

All the way from the station to the Shalimar Hotel, on the water front, my taxi driver kept up a play-by-play commentary on the attack.

"You just missed all the fun," he said. "More of them were over today than ever before. They got a few of our barrage balloons, but it was nothing to the hot time our fighters had waiting for them."

7th Balloon Downed

I reached the water front just as the seventh barrage balloon to be shot down came floating slowly to earth.

It had not burned and when it landed it bounced high, then settled slowly.

Tonight Dover was a peaceful Kentish town—almost. Until dusk, however, planes—both German scouts and British defenders—circled frequently, droning high in the sky. Anti-aircraft puffs chased the Germans.

Still Time To Skate

Townsfolk paraded on the water front. The music of a skating rink jangled, and the skaters went round and round. There were, however, unusual numbers of soldiers, sailors, marines and pilots in the crowds, most with rifles or pistols. Some soldiers skated at the rink with revolvers strapped to their hips.

The cliffs were dotted with souvenir hunters, picking up pieces of bombs. Several townspeople were hit by the fragments today.

while barrage balloons plunged in flames from the sky, their clashing cables falling almost at my feet; I saw a melee of perhaps 150 raiders and defenders surge through the clouds, and in my ears all day dinned the crash of anti-aircraft and the dull thud of bombs behind me—inland.

The biggest cloud of German raiders—I counted about a hundred plainly visible, with others dotting the sky up higher—roared across the coast this forenoon from France, defiantly breasting a circle of twenty-seven British fighters.

The British ringed them; then, one by one, dived on them. One vast, wild jamboree of twisting, flame-spitting planes developed.

Four planes, then another, then others, rocketed, burning, into the sea. We could not tell which side they belonged to.

In a crazy din of anti-aircraft, machine gun and cannon explosions, six big Junkers screamed at the lightship, dropping two bombs apiece.

They sent up geysers from the sea; others dropped on land.

A new swarm of raiders tore viciously at the barrage balloons moored from coastal barges. Some, in flames and shreds, came down—in a shower of spent machine-gun bullets, aerial cannon shells, anti-aircraft fragments and even an empty machine-gun clip.

As we watched the helpless lightship, a diving plane screamed at a balloon over our heads and the blimp-shaped bag came down a mass of fire, its cable clattering behind our shelter.

While other planes were getting inland and up and down the coast to other targets, a low-flying German bombed one sea front near us, killing a Home Guard soldier, wounding several civilians and wrecking three houses.

Station Machine-Gunned

In another town a Messerschmitt fighter circled a railway station with machine-gun bullets. Shelters saved the civilians there.

I talked to survivors of the lightship crew after the vessel, never directly hit, had foundered stern first with seams torn open from the bombs that dropped all around her.

"We had to lay to by her and watch two poor blokes drown," said one of the crew, picked up from his lifeboat by a British speedboat. "They machine-gunned us before we sank."

Invasion Of Britain From Northeast Seen

By Drew Middleton

Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

London, Aug. 14—Neutral military and naval circles incline to the belief that any Nazi invasion of Britain will strike somewhere on the northeastern coast, probably from Norway, while the R. A. F. is busy fighting German air raiders in the south.

These men believe the Germans are not likely to forfeit the element of surprise by invading Britain at the spots where the air activity has been greatest—that is, on the southern and southeastern coast.

Britons themselves cannot decide whether there is to be a war of air attrition or an invasion before winter.

See Local Air Edge

They feel, however, that the R. A. F. can establish local air superiority in either case and are reminding themselves that British communiques up to noon today claimed 205 German planes lost since Sunday, against fifty-two British planes.

There has been no lessening of preparations to receive German invaders, but some circles now advance the idea that Germany may be content with a winter-long aerial war aimed at weakening the R. A. F. and softening up the nation by hammering away at seaports and industrial centers.

These sources point out that the Germans postponed action on the western front from November 11, 1939, until May 10, 1940, and "did all right."

British Would Get Stronger

The apparent weakness of such a plan of delay is that unless Germany can effectively bomb munitions works and armament factories the British Army will be at least fifty per cent. stronger next spring.

However, the British will have the problem of keeping the greatest army ever massed in the island at fighting pitch, as well as fit and contented, though idle.

Aware of this problem, the Manchester Guardian has advocated not only varied entertainment for troops but lectures, language classes and schools.

Fascists Believed Trying To Create Break In British Pact

Athens Press Hits Back At "Slanders" Of Rome Newspapers

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Aug. 14—Premier John Metaxas conferred for hours tonight with his army chief of staff and members of his Cabinet, and foreign observers believed Greece's defenses are being readied should Italy climax with a military threat from Albania her press campaign against this pro-English country.

Although tomorrow is a national religious holiday, hundreds of Government officials made plans to work as usual—despite the lack of any mobilization order.

Athens Press Hits Back

The Government-controlled Athens press answered with hot words the attacks of Italian newspapers, using the terms "willful distortion of facts . . . slanderous campaign . . . evil manifestation."

Some Government officials privately drew a parallel between the Italian press campaign and that launched by German newspapers before the Nazi invasion of Poland, Norway, Belgium and Holland.

Germany and Italy apparently are not only demanding that this country break away from Great Britain—which has guaranteed to support Greek independence against attack—but German quarters said the Italian Minister has insisted as well that Greece enter directly into Italy's sphere of influence.

Unprecedented Meeting

Metaxas' night conferences with the chief of staff, General Papagos, and his Ministers were without precedent for him. They followed a crowded day in which he had received the German and Italian Ministers and talked for two hours with Government officials.

There were authoritative reports that hundreds of Albanians living in the Ioannina district have been arrested on charges of plotting against Greek rule. The Italian press has asserted that Ioannina is rightfully a part of Albania, now encompassed in the Fascist Empire.

ANTI-GREEK CAMPAIGN GAINS

Official News Agency Reports Acts of Violence in Greece Are Not Diminishing.

ROME, Aug 14 (A. P.).—Il Popolo di Roma hinted today that the Greek island of Corfu and the entire Adriatic coast might be claimed by Italy as a sequel to the murder of Daut Hoggia, the Albanian patriot alleged to have been slain by two Greeks.

"Italy restored to Albania that civilization which the entire Adriatic coast and the island of Corfu knew in past centuries through the activity of the Republic of Venice, of whose splendor traces still exist," the newspaper said.

"All this sector stretching from the Adriatic to the Black Sea enters the picture of the construction of a new Europe.

"It is evident that Albania must have justice, and natural that Italy should therefore unfasten the chains which have burdened the Albanian people for many years."

Anti-Greek Campaign Goes On.

Only yesterday Italian spokesmen accused Greece of having territorial designs on Albania, which Italy annexed after her Good Friday invasion in 1939.

The press campaign against Greece opened by the disclosure of Hoggia's death over the past week end was marked today by these additional developments:

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, reported in a dispatch from Tirana that "acts of violence against Albanians show no sign of diminishing" in Greece. Greece has denied any responsibility for Hoggia's death.

Looks to Yugoslavia, Too.

The newspaper Il Messaggero asserted that restoration of Albanian territorial integrity "must be satisfied in the shortest possible time."

Stefani's Tirana dispatch declared that a number of Albanians had been arrested in northern Greece and "dragged in chains" to prison.

It quoted the Tirana newspaper Tomori as saying that the time had come "to make Athens understand the game has gone on too long."

Il Popolo di Roma's reference to the entire Adriatic coast embraced Dalmatia in Yugoslavia, which Italy claimed had been promised her by the secret treaty of 1915 under which she became an ally of Great Britain and France in the world war.

Italian spokesmen yesterday indicated that Premier Mussolini would demand slices of both Greek and Yugoslav territory for Albania—and therefore for the Italian empire—in an eventual general settlement.

Nazi Envoy Active in Athens.

ATHENS, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—The German Minister again visited the Greek Premier, John Metaxas, today as Greek public feeling ran high over the apparent efforts of the Rome-Berlin Axis to force this country to renounce its guaranty of independence from Britain.

After the conference Gen. Metaxas met for two hours with leading Government officials to determine his course, although diplomatic spokesmen reported yesterday that the Axis "suggestions" had so far been rejected.

The German Minister was present yesterday when the Italian Charge d'Affaires met with the Premier and it is reported urged that Greece abandon her British guaranty and align herself with Axis Mediterranean policy.

BRITISH SHELL OWN COASTS IN SOMALILAND

Italian Offensive Reported Stopped Forty Miles West Of Berbera

Fleet Move Suggests Renewed Action Against Fascist Drive

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 14—British warships have turned their guns on the coast of their own protectorate of Somaliland to hold up Italians advancing there against the key port of Berbera, British bastion on the south shore of the Gulf of Aden.

Armored columns and troop concentrations were scattered by salvoes from light naval units offshore, British military headquarters reported, and the Fascist offensive was declared to have been stopped well before Bulhar, which is about forty miles west of Berbera.

Correspondent, Peering From Shelter, Witnesses Waves Of German Planes Engaged By British

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

A South Coast English Town, Aug. 14—War, as only a hundred and more German bombers can wage it, came back like an avalanche to Britain's new coastal defenses today.

I saw a lightship literally blown out of the water and sunk, her seams ripped open; I peered from a shelter

Arabian port across the gulf from Berbera, had left there, adding to the already "intense movement" in the gulf.

This news suggested an intensification of British fleet action against the Italians, whose drive against Berbera is to attempt to break British Empire communications through the Red Sea, coincident with an expected general assault on Egypt and the Suez Canal.

British ground forces reported other successes in the defense of Berbera, declaring that Italian forces had been thrown back at Jurgargan Pass, thirty-five miles south-southeast of Berbera. They also said they had defeated Fascist columns in skirmishes both in Italian Libya and in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Thirty-Five-Mile Drive

In the Libyan engagement it was declared that British troops had penetrated thirty-five miles into that Italian area, putting an Italian patrol to flight.

The Italians acknowledged today that "bitter fighting" was in progress in British Somaliland east of Adadleh, which is some sixty miles west of Berbera, but added: "Our maneuvers, though strongly opposed, continue."

Desert Bedouins Offer Services To Britain

Cairo, Aug. 14 (AP)—Desert Bedouin chiefs who fled from Italian rule in Libya have agreed to unite under the leadership of Sayed Idriss Elsenussi.

Thousands of young Bedouins are offering their services to the British to fight against the Italians in the western desert.

British military spokesmen said meanwhile that the situation in British Somaliland is "serious but by no means critical" after two days of very strong Italian attacks and British counter-attacks.

It is evident, these military men said, that Italy is throwing everything she can into the fighting in the hope of an early victory. Yesterday the British said, they had thrown back Italian attacks at Jugargan Pass, thirty-five miles south-southeast of Berbera.

Linked to Attack on Britain.

The Italian attacks were said to have been pressed with "great vigor," but there were few local advances.

Except for one point where they penetrated a British position and captured two guns, military spokesmen said, the line was "practically restored."

These spokesmen indicated that the Italian attacks were preceded by low-flying bombers and were supported by artillery, and that local withdrawals, if not already effected, could be expected.

They expressed the belief that the fierceness of the Italian offensive in Africa was linked with plans for the German invasion of Britain.

Fierce Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

In addition to the attack on Jugargan Pass, a small Italian column marching from Zeila was reported to have reached Mukhajwyah, 100 miles from Berbera.

The first Italian attack gained some ground when a British platoon was flanked and had to retire. The British then launched a series of counter-attacks, with fierce hand-to-hand fighting over broken ground, and recovered their position.

Rome Admits Hard Going.

ROME, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command declared today that the British forces in Somaliland were strongly resisting the Italian attacks in the vicinity of Adadleh, south of Berbera, and that bitter fighting is going on there.

The High Command asserted, however, that the Italian drive to reach Berbera was continuing.

The newspaper Il Picolo reported that Italian planes had been bombing British fortifications and bases in British Somaliland, and had set oil depots afire and machine-gunned truck columns.

Il Giornale d'Italia reported that the British fleet had left Aden, Arabian port across the gulf from Berbera.

Although unable to explain the fleet actions, the paper said that there was "intense movement in the Gulf of Aden."

Other sections of the Fascist press said today that Germany's object in beginning the air offensive against Britain was to wipe out the Royal Air Force so that the British will be powerless to prevent the Germans from landing troops on the island.

"The battle will continue until the British air fleet is destroyed," one correspondent wrote from a German air base. Then, when England has no more planes, the final blitzkrieg will be launched, he declared.

CAIRO, EGYPT, AUG. 14-(AP)-A BRITISH PATROL PENETRATED 35 MILES INTO ITALIAN LIBYA YESTERDAY, FOUGHT AN ITALIAN PATROL AND COMPELLED IT TO RETREAT, THE BRITISH COMMAND ANNOUNCED TODAY.

A SIMILAR BATTLE WAS REPORTED IN THE GALLABAT AREA OF THE ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN WHERE, AFTER A BRIEF FIGHT, "THE ENEMY MADE A HASTY WITHDRAWAL BEHIND HIS DEFENSES, LOSING ONE OFFICER AND 32 OTHER RANKS." BRITISH CASUALTIES WERE SIX, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE ITALIANS HAVE INVADED THE GALLABAT REGION FROM ETHIOPIA.

Fleet Joins Berbera Defense

British Ships Bombard Italian Columns on Coast of Somaliland.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—British light naval forces bombarded Italian troop concentrations along the Somaliland coast yesterday, the Admiralty announced in a communique today.

"An Italian concentration of troops and mechanized transport was dispersed by the bombardment, and it has been reported that this has held up the enemy advance toward Bulhar, between Zeila and Berbera," the communique said.

Bulhar is about forty miles west of Berbera, the capital and principal seaport of invaded British Somaliland.

Such tidbits as the hour for sailing of vessels, weather and other matter of possible military value are strictly taboo. These are but a fraction, however, of the changes that war makes in the life of the Bahamas.

At almost every gathering there is a program for raising funds. The Legislature has voted frequent contributions to the British war fund. A bomber was bought with funds from public subscription. Every piece of scrap metal on the islands is being sent to London for munitions manufacture.

perts, attached to Swiss legations as the military attaches of foreign Powers, and some of the Swiss, too, have revised their opinion of Poland's army.

First was the new realization of the power of Germany's war machine and its strength in the air.

Second was the way France cracked up along with Belgium, Holland and the Low Countries in thirty-eight days of warfare. Poland alone lasted four weeks.

Third are Poles themselves, even in internment.

On the night between the 19th and 20th of June alone some 28,000 troops crossed into Switzerland in the region of the Franches Montagnes in the Jura.

First to cross were about 12,000 French troops of various branches of the army. Some had their rifles, some didn't. Many had never even seen a German. Few had participated in active fighting. All came because the Germans cut off their retreat to the south.

Later came 15,000 Poles. They, too, had been cut off in their retreat, but they came across with all their arms and even most of their motorized equipment. They were disciplined. They had not only almost all seen Germans, but their units were all heavily carved up by casualties.

Fought to the End.

One Polish unit, about 2,000 strong, dashed up to the frontier with several batteries of 75s and 101s. A group of officers conferred briefly with the Swiss command and were told that they would have to surrender both arms and ammunition.

The whole unit turned around and dashed off again. The command

They gave it to the Germans and the Germans gave them the same back again. They couldn't get through. They came into Switzerland with all their guns and rifles but with not a shell, not a cartridge, and with many casualties.

Poles, in little groups of three and four, have been drifting into Switzerland ever since the armistice. Some have come from channels all the way through German occupied territory. They hide in farm houses or deserted towns during the day and travel by night. They escape from internment camps.

Behavior Wins Friends.

Since then the Poles' discipline, cleanliness, morale and comradeship have won them many friends. Some Swiss, including a Swiss visitor to internment camps quoted in the Baseler Nachrichten, found that the French brought along "some of the decaying smells of social and political disintegration." Those French were not peacetime soldiers.

The Poles, a proud lot, range in age between 17 and 22. Most of them were officers, farmers and metal workers before the war. They were the first to offer to help Swiss peasants in the field.

Their one great sorrow is the French defeat. Most of them would go on fighting if they knew where to fight and how to get there. Many have crossed half of Europe and have heard nothing from their families since last September.

They are almost all Catholics and hold special services each Sunday in the forests near their internment camps.

Originally many Polish units were placed in towns with French units. The French considered the war ended and only wanted to get back home; the Poles wanted to fight somewhere, anywhere, and the two nationalities had to be separated.

Both the Poles and the Swiss authorities would like to know where they go from here.

ITALIANS ASK FOR MONACO

Want Principality Annexed as Part of French Settlement

ROME, Aug. 14 (AP)—Italian annexation of the principality of Monaco and the famed resort of Monte Carlo was demanded today by an organization formed at Ventimiglia by former Italian residents of Nice.

A manifesto promised Italians in Monaco that they would be freed soon from the rule of the principality, which is dependent upon France.

Two Bombs Fall Near Il Duce's Milan Paper

Rome, Aug. 14 (Via Radio) (AP)—Two bombs dropped by the British in last night's raid on Milan fell near the building of Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia—but the paper was published as usual, the Rome radio said tonight.

The radio said work in the paper's editorial offices was not interrupted. The bombs blew a large hole in the street named Via Arnaldo Mussolini.

Pope Keeps Cardinals Near Him During Crisis.

Mother Gets Baby Back In Lawsuit After Air Raid

Passed Him Out Window; Woman Claimed Him

THE HAGUE, Aug. 14 (AP).—The case of a baby boy, claimed by two mothers after an air bombing of a maternity home in the Nazi conquest of Holland May 10, was decided by a Hague court today. The court ruled that the woman who now has the baby must give it up. She cried out that she "never, never" would yield.

The other woman, plaintiff in the case, said her baby was ten days old when the maternity home was bombed and that she took the child to a window and handed him to a pedestrian, who ran with the infant to an air-raid shelter. There, according to the plaintiff, the other woman took the child.

The court heard evidence that two babies were killed in the defendant's room at the maternity home but none in the room of the plaintiff. Blood tests and fingerprint tests were made on the surviving child, but these were not decisive.

The woman who sued for the baby was not in court, but both husbands were there.

Government To Tighten French Divorce Laws

Changes Being Drafted Which Are Designed To Cut Number Of Separations, Is Report

Grenoble, France, Aug. 14 (AP)—The Petain Government is backing plans to tighten French divorce laws, the Vichy correspondent of the newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois said today.

Lawyers and jurists are drafting changes, the newspaper said, designed to cut down the total of 20,000 divorces which heretofore has been a yearly average in France.

The changes will include a measure to force both parties to a separation to appear in court, revising a law under which legal separation for three years automatically constitutes grounds for divorce.

RED CROSS EXPERT SEES FRENCH PERIL

Allen Favors Sending Food to Occupied Zones, Especially to Prisoners of Nazis

VICHY, France, Aug. 14 (AP)—Richard Allen, European delegate of the American Red Cross, said tonight that the "situation throughout France now is worse than in Belgium after the World War and is growing still worse."

Coming here after a conference with the International Red Cross officials in Geneva, Switzerland, Mr. Allen said he strongly favored extension of Red Cross relief into the German-occupied zones, especially among the nearly 2,000,000 prisoners.

A census in occupied areas showed an immediate need of milk, sugar, fats and canned meat, he said, adding that France could provide sufficient wheat and meat if permitted access to her colonies.

He said the Red Cross should send medical equipment and supplies worth $350,000 now stored at Marseille for distribution in the prison camps. Since French negotiations with Germany designed to alleviate the plight of war prisoners have been without result, neutral observers believe a neutral organization must assume the responsibility.

Destruction in the occupied zones is less than first was estimated, Mr. Allen reported, with fewer than 100,000 homes destroyed and fewer than 500,000 homeless refugees. He believed everyone could be housed without constructing barracks.

Plans here call for the transportation of 1,200,000 refugees to their homes per month, but Mr. Allen doubted that pace could be maintained in view of existing conditions. Seven trainloads of Belgian refugees, for example, are stalled a few miles from Paris until Germany decides whether to permit their immediate repatriation.

Red Cross distribution now is confined to unoccupied zones. Condensed milk is given to invalids and babies only on a physician's prescription. Using that basis, Mr. Allen estimated he needed 150,000 cases of milk.

Says Unmobilized Men Were Taxed Too Heavily

New French Government Announces Part Of Sums Collected Will Be Paid Back

Vichy, France, Aug. 14 (AP)—The new French Government decided today that unmobilized men of military age had been taxed too heavily during the war and announced a part of the sums collected would be paid back through rebates on future taxes.

The action was taken by making retroactive a reduction in the original extraordinary war tax of fifteen per cent. levied on wages of this class of workers.

The Government had decided several days ago that the tax would be continued on a five per cent. basis.

Executioner Imported To Carry Out Sentence Of Death In New France

Vichy, France, Aug. 14 (AP)—The French Government, which recently condemned a man to death and then found it had no official executioner to carry out the sentence, remedied this oversight today.

Ready to Blow Up Oil.

BATAVIA, Dutch East Indies, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—All women, children and men who are not essential have been withdrawn from potential danger spots in Batavia's rich oil fields, it was disclosed today, because of preparations to blow up wells, refineries and other works in case of attack.

With the crisis mounting in the troubled Asiatic situation, Batavia's Army chief of staff informed the Volksraad (Legislature) today that the Government will not hesitate to destroy harbor works, oil fields and stocks in an emergency.

Even if the fully strengthened local garrison should be unable to retard invading forces, it was said, preparations now have been completed to destroy the equipment by a new secret system within a few minutes.

Asserting that the Constitution of the Grand Duchy had been abrogated as a result of the flight of Grand Duchess Charlotte and the Government, Simon was quoted by the German news service, Dienst aus Deutschland, as saying that the new situation obligates Luxemburg authorities to loyalty toward the new German Civil Administration.

The speech was on the occasion of installation of a new commissioner for the capital city. Simon stressed the German character of the inhabitants.

Kazys Skirpa Gives Up Berlin Headquarters To Soviet Embassy With Nazi Approbation

Berlin, Aug. 14 (AP)— Kazys Skirpa, Lithuanian Minister, tearfully surrendered his country's Berlin legation today to representatives of the Russian Embassy.

With the fifteen members of his legation staff who stubbornly declined for five days to let the Russians enter, he went out the front gate to join the growing army of Europeans in exile from their homelands.

Lithuania was the last of the three Baltic countries recently absorbed by Soviet Union to surrender its legation here. The Latvians and Estonians had handed over their keys without much to-do. Germany's official recognition of the Russian annexation made further resistance by Skirpa useless.

Leopold's Children Join Him In Laeken Castle 'Prison'

King Still Working To Repatriate 1,500,000 Belgians Wandering Through France As Refugees

[By the Associated Press]

Brussels (Via Berlin), Aug. 14—A prisoner of war in his own castle, King Leopold of Belgium has his children with him again—after weeks of separation amid war's tumult—but he still awaits the return of hundreds of thousands of his countrymen who fled to France during Germany's invasion of the Lowlands.

About 1,500,000 Belgians were wandering refugees in France when the armistice was signed. They have been returning only gradually to their homes.

Swiss Aid Asked

Even before the conclusion of the Battle of France, Leopold did what he could to speed repatriation of Belgian refugees. He asked the President of Switzerland June 13 to negotiate with French and German authorities for the return of Belgians across Swiss frontiers. Last month he won the Red Cross cooperation.

The King's three children, Princess Charlotte, 13; Crown Prince Baudouin, 11, and Prince Albert, 7, were detained for a while in France—apparently against the wishes of their father, who had given instructions to send them to Portugal. German military authorities intervened to speed the children's home-coming recently.

Mother Also At Castle

Also with the King now are his mother, the Dowager Queen Elizabeth, and his brother, Prince Charles. They are living in Laeken Castle, near here, the usual residence of the royal family.

A Belgian refugee who had an audience with the King said:

"The King's health now is very satisfactory. He was ailing for some time, but he is all right now. He is not downhearted, and is happy to have his mother with him."

As for Queen Mother Elizabeth, she has resumed her task of comforting the sick and wounded Belgian soldiers. She meets popular demonstrations of loyalty wherever she goes.

The shipping journal said none of the bombs struck the vessel, but opened her plates causing her to sink. The crew rowed thirty-two miles to safety in Malta.

The Wiiri had been trading between Hampton Roads, Mobile and Liverpool.

India As A Dominion Advocated In Commons

London, Aug. 14 (AP)—L. S. Amery, secretary for India, in another bid for India's whole-hearted war aid, told the House of Commons tonight that an "efficient" all-Indian Congress would do well to welcome the offer of eventual dominion status.

"Dominionship is not an inferior status," he said. "We in the British Commonwealth enjoy security, prosperity and friendship which is the result of free and equal association."

Cites Plight Of Free Nations

"Many independent nations," Amery said, "are not free to live their lives as they will. They are overrun or dismembered by more powerful neighbors."

Earlier Lord Strabolgi, Labor peer, urged in the House of Lords that Amery should "go quickly to the Indians with wide powers to get some agreement."

"If India's man power could be mobilized," he said, "we need have no fear of threats to the Straits Settlements and Burma, and in certain circumstances, great help could be sent to Indo-China.

"Armed India could drive the Italians out of the whole of Africa."

Eden Promises Victims' Aid in Defeating Nazis

Says Lands Hitler Crushed Will Help to Strike Death Blow When Time Comes

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP).—Anthony Eden, British War Secretary, promised solemnly tonight that Great Britain would yet strike Germany a death blow and that when she did, the nations defeated by Adolf Hitler would turn upon him "like ghosts arising from the dead."

In a broadcast, he asked: "When the time comes for us to strike, where will Hitler's fifth column be? Where will he find friends in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Austria?

"Like ghosts arising from the dead, with their arms and their hands, the nations that he has ravished for a season will turn upon him. Then we shall not be alone."

The real war for Britain, Eden said, will begin only "when we take the offensive and strike home at the enemy."

"That is the way wars are won, and that is the way we mean to do," Eden promised.

"There must be no war weariness or peace weariness this time," he added. "There must be no third war in our time or in our children's time."

The War Secretary said: "The second phase of the Battle of Britain appears to be opening. Now one day soon it may be the turn of the army at home. We make no boast, but we feel confident."

Eden urged his listeners, whenever they open an atlas, not to open it at a map of Europe but at a map of the world.

"The map of Europe is misleading, because it doesn't tell the whole truth," he said. "It merely tells a flattering tale to Germany. . . . All that can be seen of British power and British effort is comprised within two islands looking rather small and inconspicuous."

Reports Nazi Troops Ready

England May Modify Her Blockade Of Spain

Expected To Allow Restricted Amounts Of Raw Materials To Go Through

London, Aug. 14 (AP) — Britain's blockade of the European Continent probably will be modified to permit Spain to receive restricted imports of raw materials which the British navy is trying to keep from Germany and Italy, an informed British source said today.

This informant expressed belief that Spain and Portugal do not now consider the British blockade, extending from the Arctic to North Africa, "a great hardship."

It was asserted that Spain, in a note delivered in London early last week, "reserved her rights" with respect to the blockade, but the British source said this was not to be considered a protest.

Spain is known to be anxious to receive materials which the British are trying to exclude from the Axis nations and their occupied territories and the Spanish press has complained bitterly of interference with the normal supplies of oil and wheat.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—R. A. Butler, Foreign Under-Secretary, declined to reply today when he was asked in Commons whether Great Britain would prevent shipments of British produced oil from reaching Japan.

J. A. Mander, Liberal, asked if it was "proposed to continue to supply oil and other articles for war purposes to Japan in view of the refusal of such supplies to China by the closing of the Burma Road and whether the action of the United States in prohibiting the export of oil to Japan would be borne in mind."

Counting Plane Losses

[By the Associated Press]

The following dispatches state the British and German versions of what information is required by each Government before it lays formal claim to the destruction of an enemy airplane:

British

London, Aug. 14—The Royal Air Force has dropped its earlier rule that no enemy plane would be marked down as destroyed unless two British pilots saw it crash.

In its place is a rule that the attacking British pilot must be prepared to pledge his word that he has destroyed the enemy plane, and it will be listed to his credit provided he saw it crash or break up in the air. This pledge, it is declared, is now a point of honor for the corps.

It was said that in the sort of continuous dog-fight now going on over England it is impossible to follow the policy of corroboration.

German

Berlin, Aug. 14—Every German flier who shoots down an English plane must have the verification of two witnesses before he receives recognition for the victory, military sources said today in explaining how they count British losses.

This is a German air force principle, they said, adding:

"Every battle and pursuit squadron has been sternly instructed to report only such planes definitely shot down for which there have been two witnesses."

Such successes, it was said, are then reported in service messages via the Air Corps to the air fleet headquarters, then to the air force general staff for final check.

airdrome in Kent, where tw enemy dive-bombers were shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Royal Air Force fighters also engaged the enemy at several points and inflicted casualties. This afternoon scattered attacks were made in several districts in the southeast and southwest.

At Southampton high explosive bombs caused slight damage to a stationary train and injured several people.

At Hastings a house was demolished by high explosive bombs and a number of people were injured, several fatally.

R. A. F. fighters were constantly in action.

According to reports so far received fifteen enemy aircraft have been destroyed by R. A. F. fighters during the day. Four of our fighters are missing.

It is now known that twenty enemy aircraft have been destroyed in today's air fighting around our coasts. Of this number seventeen were shot down by our fighters and three by anti-aircraft. One of our pilots reported as missing is safe. The number of our pilots lost as a result of today's actions is therefore now three.

and early this morning. Widespread search was immediately instituted by police, the military and home guards and the search is continuing, but no parachutists have yet been found and no evidence that parachutists have landed. The search is continuing and any one who has any information which might be of assistance should communicate with the police.

CAIRO, Aug. 14 (AP).—The British communique said today:

Western Desert, Aug. 13.—A patrol encounter thirty-five miles inside Italian territory resulted in the withdrawal of an enemy patrol. Otherwise all was quiet in the Sudan. After a short engagement in the Gallabat area the enemy made a hasty withdrawal behind his defenses, losing one officer and thirty-two other ranks. Our casualties were six.

Somaliland, Aug. 13.—A quieter day. Enemy attacks on the Jugargan position were renewed but were, on the whole, half-hearted and met with very little success. A column including A. F. V. S. (armored fighting vehicles), which advanced along a coast road from Zeila, was engaged by our aircraft and gunfire from His Majesty's ships.

British light naval forces yesterday bombarded an Italian troop concentration near the British Somaliland coast. The target was indicated to the ships by Blenheim aircraft. The Italian concentration of troops and mechanized transport was dispersed by the bombardment, and it has been reported that this has held up the enemy advance toward Bulhar, between Zeila and Berbera.

The port of Berbera was again raided by enemy aircraft in the early hours of Monday, but no [illegible] were caused.

In the Channel and the Thames Estuary two patrol boats and two merchantmen totaling 15,000 tons were sunk.

Furthermore, fighting planes bombed airdromes at Eastchurch, Detling, Farnborough, Andover, Odiham and Middlewallop and destroyed numerous hangars, crew barracks, oil tanks, shops and a large number of planes on the ground.

During attacks in the Channel and on England numerous fierce air fights developed, in the course of which seventy-four enemy planes were destroyed.

In the course of the day British Bristol-Blenheim planes attempted to attack the Danish town of Aalborg. Pursuit planes and anti-aircraft guns forced the enemy to turn back, shooting down sixteen to twenty-three aggressors. Enemy bombings last night caused no noteworthy damage anywhere.

Yesterday's total losses for the enemy were 132 planes and twelve barrage balloons, of which eighty-nine planes were bagged in air fights and forty-three were destroyed on the ground or by anti-aircraft. Twenty-eight German planes are missing.

A submarine commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Salman reported sinking 41,611 tons of shipping, including a British auxiliary cruiser of 11,400 tons.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Italian communique said today:

Bitter fighting is still under way in British Somaliland east of Adadleh. Our maneuvers, although strongly opposed, continue.

At 1 a. m. this morning enemy planes coming from Switzerland carried out a raid on northern Italy, dropping bombs and leaflets.

At Milan about thirty explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped, all landing in an inhabited area. No military objectives were hit. The dead, all civilians, numbered twelve and the wounded forty-four.

At Turin about fifteen bombs were dropped, causing no damage to military or industrial establishments. One person was reported killed and eight wounded.

Alessandria and Tortona also were bombed. Nine were reported killed at Alessandria, including three fire fighters who ran to carry out their work. Several were reported wounded.

A bombardment of Augusta, near Syracuse, where four bombs were dropped, caused neither casualties nor damage.

An enemy torpedo plane was shot down by our navy anti-aircraft artillery. The crew, composed of an officer and a flyer, was captured.

WILL BUILD TANKS

Chrysler to Get Contract for 1000 Medium Type.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Negotiations with the Chrysler Corporation of Detroit for hundreds of army tanks were reported virtually complete today. Defense commission officials said that details of a contract probably would be announced tomorrow.

Construction of a $16,000,000 government-financed factory has been discussed, it was said by persons familiar with the negotiations. About a year would be required to build the plant and tool it for a daily production of about five tanks.

An initial order of 1,000 medium tanks of some twenty-five tons each was believed in prospect.

The British Government has been reported ready to spend $200,000,000 for 4,000 tanks of about the same size but there was no official comment at the commission on this report.

Communiques of Three Belligerent Nations

British

LONDON, Aug. 15 (Thursday) (AP).—An Air Ministry communique issued early today said:

Yesterday (Wednesday) evening enemy aircraft made further attacks on the southwest of England and on Wales. Bombs were dropped in a number of districts but little damage was done. A number of peresons were injured and one was killed.

An R. A. F. airdrome was attacked but the casualties were few, although some were fatal.

Reports of further air engagements show that six more enemy aircraft were destroyed by R. A. F. fighters and that one of our fighters was lost.

The total of enemy aircraft shot down over Britain and around our coasts yesterday is therefore twenty-six (fourteen bombers, three twin-engine fighter-bombers, and nine single-engined fighters).

Four of our pilots in all were lost.

An Air Ministry communique issued last night said:

Enemy activity has been much less pronounced today. An attack was made this morning on barrage balloons at Dover and a lightship was bombed. An unsuccessful attack was also made on an

An earlier Air Ministry communique said:

A large force of R. A. F. bombers made a successful attack on military objectives in northern Italy last night. Preliminary reports indicate heavy damage was done to aircraft factories at Milan and Turin. All our bombers returned safely except one, which made a forced landing on the sea near our coast, the crew being rescued.

Another Air Ministry communique on British raids said:

Last night, in addition to the raids on Italy, reported in an earlier communique today, strong forces of R. A. F. bombers attacked the Junkers aircraft factories at Dessau and Bernburg (north of Leipzig), munition factories at Lunen and Grevenbroich, various military objectives in the Ruhr and fourteen airdromes in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France. One of our aircraft is missing.

An Air Ministry communique reported on Nazi parachutists said:

Reports have been received of a number of parachutes apparently dropped from aircraft having been found in two areas in England and one area in Scotland last night

Palestine and Kenya, nothing to report.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—The German high command communique said today:

German flying units on Aug. 13 effectively bombarded port and quay facilities at Walsend, Hartlepool, Bournemouth and Plymouth, armament plants at Exeter and Plymouth as well as storage tanks at North Billingham.

An Admiralty communique said:

In the early hours of this morning two of our destroyers, H. M. S. Malcolm (Capt. T. E. Halsey Dorn) and H. M. S. Verity (Lieut. Comdr. R. H. Mills, R. N.) made contact with enemy light forces consisting of six armed trawlers and three E-boats (torpedo-carrying speedboats). Our destroyers at once engaged the enemy.

The enemy forces retired behind a smoke screen as soon as they were illuminated by the searchlights of our destroyers. Before they were able to escape, however, three of the enemy vessels were seen to be hit, and it is thought that one armed trawler and one E-boat were sunk. No damage or casualties were suffered by either

Senate Raises Soldiers' Pay To $30 a Month in Draft Bill

Knox Tells House Committee That Crisis Demands United States Organize a Huge Army by Conscription.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (A. P.).—Provision for an increase in army and Marine Corps base pay from $21 to $30 a month was written by the Senate today into the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

The Senate approved the increase proposal as set forth in an amendment by Senator Lee, Democrat, of Oklahoma, which specified that voluntary recruits and draftees taken into the army and Marine Corps should receive $21 a month for their first four months training. If their rating then was satisfactory, they would be advanced to $30 a month. The increased annual cost was estimated at approximately $70,000,000 this fiscal year.

Increases also would be granted to the next three higher classes of enlisted men, sixth grade pay being boosted from $30 to $36, fifth grade from $42 to $54 and fourth grade from $54 to $60. Third grade pay would remain at $72, second at $84 and first at $126.

Where the army now rewards fourth year enlisted men with a 5 per cent increase in their base pay, Senator Lee's amendment would boost this increase to 10 per cent. It also would provide more liberal retirement allowances for enlisted men.

Knox Testifies.

Secretary of the Navy Knox declared today that the United States, lacking a two-ocean navy, needs a huge army, and he urged that one be created by conscription.

Should England be defeated by Germany, he said, "we will be left without a friend in the world." He expressed the opinion that such a defeat in sixty days was possible.

Col. Knox appeared before the House Military Committee in support of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory service bill, on which the Senate undertook its fourth day of debate.

Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, urged his colleagues to reject the measure as "typical of totalitarian nations" and to substitute a program of voluntary enlistments "in accordance with American principles."

He said the country faced two emergencies—an immediate one of the next six months which he declared was not so serious as some persons believed, and a permanent one of hemisphere defense. The permanent emergency, he said, requires an army of only 750,000 men, reserves of 1,250,000 and a two-ocean navy.

"It seems to me utterly impossible to think that we could undertake the defense of Brazil or Argentina with our army," Senator Taft said. "The Monroe Doctrine must be enforced by the navy, and if it cannot be enforced by the navy, it cannot be enforced at all."

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, told the Senate he had never heard of a "more outrageous proposition" than an assertion before the House Military Committee yesterday that chiefly because of the time consumed in discussion of conscription legislation the army had had to delay from October 1 to January 1 its objective of 900,000 men under arms.

The assertion was made by Brig.-Gen. William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel.

"Everybody has known all the time that somebody was going to have to come forth with some excuse for not putting this conscription plan into operation at once," Senator Clark declared.

"Any one who knows anything about it knows that nothing this administration has done would indicate that they were going to be inept enough to have hundreds of thousands of mothers going down to the station to kiss their boys good-by a few weeks before the election."

At the White House, President Roosevelt and congressional leaders went over the legislative slate, consisting chiefly of defense bills. After the conference, Democratic Leader Barkley predicted the Senate would act on the Burke-Wadsworth measure some time next week. Others at the meeting were Speaker Bankhead and Democratic Leader Rayburn of the House.

At the Capitol, Senator Byrnes, Democrat, of South Carolina, said Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, had asked a Senate appropriations subcommittee to increase by $47,000,000 the funds which would go to the navy in a pending $4,963,000,000 appropriation bill. The increase would be used for armament for fighting planes and for aviation maintenance.

Knox Sees Grave Crisis.

No one in this country can tell the trend of the battle for Britain, he said, because information from belligerents comes through officially controlled communiques.

"This fight over England," Col. Knox said, "we're not getting the whole truth about it. We don't really know what the extent of British losses are."

Of United States preparedness, he testified that "before the collapse of France" he had declared that an army of 300,000 men and a two-ocean navy should be adequate protection. Today he revised this, explaining "that was before the collapse of France—what I may have said about a land force then does not apply."

"If we had a 3,000,000-ton navy," he continued, "we'd unquestionably control the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and we'd not be under the necessity of having a huge army. But we haven't got that navy and won't have it completed until 1946."

Representative Clason, Republican, of Massachusetts, asked whether there was danger of a war in the Far East in which the United States might become involved.

Col. Knox replied that in this "dangerous time" no one knows at what point "danger may arise," but "we must be strong enough to meet it whenever it comes."

Fears Friendship Move.

He said he did not anticipate the likelihood of early attack across the Atlantic.

"I think the greatest danger is not immediate," he declared. "After watching the Hitler-Nazi crowd, I'm pretty well convinced that if England falls, we would be in no immediate danger of attack but it would be worse than if we were."

There would be, he said, "a gesture of friendship" to "calm our fears in the hope that it would interrupt measures of preparedness we have taken."

"Any appeasement of a man like Hitler is playing into his hands," he added.

Urges Hemisphere Defense.

Col. Knox said the United States should follow a policy of "hemispherical defense" because the Panama Canal lies outside the continental United States.

"An enemy base in Mexico is just as dangerous as a base in Texas, or Brazil," he observed.

Representative Rutherford, Republican, of Pennsylvania, inquired whether Col. Knox knew the position of President Roosevelt on the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The Secretary of the Navy replied that he had the "same information as you have."

Representative May, Democrat, of Kentucky, and chairman of the committee, remarked that "I don't know what his position is and I suppose you're in the same boat."

Col. Knox smilingly nodded agreement.

He said the army needs conscription more than the navy which has relatively full quotas. The navy offers, he said, a "more attractive" service than the army.

During his preliminary discussion of conscription, he said that youth today was living an abnormal life and that one reason for "the failure of so many democracies" was a "softness of fiber caused because they did not have to make sacrifices."

In debate on the Burke-Wadsworth measure, Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, argued that the complexity of modern warfare made it necessary to train a larger army than ever before. Thus, he said, it is necessary to have peacetime conscription.

"It would be cruel and inhuman for the Government to induct into the army young men without training, and that is what we might have to do unless this training comes in advance," Senator McKellar asserted.

He testified that "even if we weren't confronted with imminent menace, the principle underlying this legislation is sound."

"Faced with a very grave crisis as we are—and it is impossible to exaggerate the gravity of that crisis," he declared, "we must supply trained men if we are going to use these instruments we are buying at such a great cost."

Meanwhile, ten Senators, thus far non-committal, were reported to hold the fate of opposition efforts to compel a substantial modification of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

The showdown will come on the compromise proposal of Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, to defer conscription until it has been proven that voluntary enlistments cannot produce the necessary army manpower by January 1.

At the opening of the fourth day of the draft bill debate, administration leaders disclosed that an informal canvass had shown that, with the exeception of the ten uncommitted legislators, the Senate was almost evenly divided on the Maloney proposal.

The leaders said there was a margin of two or three votes against the Maloney measure among those Senators whose views were known. They conceded that the result would be close in any event, and were not optimistic about reaching a vote before next week.

Once the Maloney proposal has been rejected or accepted, it was predicted that the conscription bill would win final Senate approval, inasmuch as the Maloney compromise provides that registration go forward pending the showing made by a further trial of voluntary enlistments.

Senator Barkley told reporters he expected Burke-Wadsworth bill opponents to reach their peak strength on that ballot. In debate to date anti-conscriptionists have argued that the army can get all the volunteers it needs, while proponents of the draft have maintained that the voluntary system was inadequate for the present emergency.

While the Senate disputed the draft the House opened consideration of Senate approved legislation empowering the President to call out the National Guard and the regular army reservists for a year's active training. Leaders hoped to complete action in two days.

Delay, however, materialized for another item related to the defense program—the proposed excess profits tax. Representative Doughton, Democrat, of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said today that because of technical difficulties in drafting the tax provisions the bill would not be ready for the House floor before Monday. He added, however, that he expected House approval by the end of next week.

Cudahy's $300 Bet Lost on Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP).—John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, paid off a bet today when he went to the White House to explain to President Roosevelt his recent remarks concerning conditions in Belgium. Some time ago, Mr. Cudahy bet Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, military aide to the President, $300 to $200 that Mr. Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term. Displaying his winnings today, Gen. Watson said with a broad smile: "Now I'd like to find some one to bet the $300 even money that the President will be re-elected."

Raid on Italy: Contempt or Planes to Spare?

By DEVON FRANCIS, Associated Press Aviation Editor

New York, Aug. 14—In the last twenty-four hours England has demonstrated a flexibility in the use of its air forces which may be a good deal more significant than the bare news dispatches indicate.

Germany has launched on the seat of the world's greatest empire the most punishing series of air attacks in the history of air warfare.

Double Performance Stressed.

Yet the Royal Air Force detached planes and pilots in numbers adequate to send aloft against waves of Nazi raiders.

Much emphasis has been placed in the four days of intensive aerial bombardments on the losses by each side. In evaluating them it must be borne in mind that the Germans are using warplanes and pilots in a "shock troop" attack once it was launched. In the invasion of the low countries, succeeded in keeping German bombers from British skies, neither have the Germans kept British airmen from flying over Germany—at night, almost at will.

The Germans have yet sprung no surprises. The air attack is developing on a familiar pattern. It is designed to gain air superiority, destroy lines of communication and munitions plants and wreak havoc with the British defense establishment both in the air and on land.

England's job is a serious one. It took a lesson from the book of Finland's experiences. It is now a matter of record that Russian planes, by destroying railroads, munitions concentrations and the like, did much to bring about the subjugation of the Finns.

In the nature of things assaulting troops will sustain greater losses than will the defenders—although claims by both sides are in sharp conflict.

The Germans already insist they have air superiority over the British. A dispatch from Berlin says that British planes have been "swept from the air" over the Channel, and that the British again would be unable to prevent German airmen from carrying out their new tasks.

Springing No Surprises.

That must be accepted with reservations. As much as three years ago a high-ranking officer of the United States Army Air Corps stated, "no power on earth" could stop a bombing attack once it was launched. In token of that, if the British have not

ROME,AUG 14--SQUADRONS OF LONG-RANGE BRITISH BOMBERS THUNDERED OVER THE ALPS AND DOWN ON THE GREAT INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF NORTHERN ITALY EARLY TODAY, KILLING 22 PERSONS, INJURING MORE THAN FIFTY AND STIRRING THE RAGE OF FASCISTS AT WHAT THEY CALLED "A BARBAROUS AND COWARDLY ATTACK."

THE ITALIANS SAID THE BRITISH BOMBERS CROSSED NEUTRAL SWITZERLAND AND SCATTERED EXPLOSIVES AND PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS AT RANDOM IN THE RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS OF MILAN, TURIN, TORTONA AND ALLESANDRIA. THE LEAFLETS TOLD ITALIANS TO WAKE UP TO THEIR USE AS VASSALS "BY YOUR HEREDITARY ENEMY, GERMANY," TO "MAKE HITLER STRONGER."

AUTHORITIES INSISTED THERE WAS NO MILITARY DAMAGE (BUT BRITISH ACCOUNTS SAID THE CAPRONI FACTORY IN MILAN AND THE FIAT PLANT IN TURIN, TWO OF ITALY'S PRINCIPAL PLANE WORKS, WERE "SMASHED" AND SET AFIRE; THAT THE BLAZE FROM THE CAPRONI PLANT COULD BE SEEN FOR MILES.)

THE HEAVIEST ATTACK WAS AT MILAN, WHERE A DOZEN PERSONS WERE KILLED AND 44 INJURED BY 30 EXPLOSIVE AND INCENDIARY BOMBS.

STILL ANOTHER BRITISH RAID WAS CARRIED OUT OVER AUGUSTA, NAVAL BASE IN SICILY. NAVAL ANTI-AIRCRAFT WAS SAID TO HAVE SHOT DOWN A BRITISH TORPEDO PLANE.

THE SURPRISE ATTACKS ON THE LARGER CITIES, FIRST SINCE EARLY IN THE WAR, BROUGHT HOME TO THE INHABITANTS THEIR DANGER EVEN FROM BRITAIN, WHICH MOST OF THEM HAD CONSIDERED HARMLESSLY FAR AWAY.

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, AUG.14-(AP)-WHILE MONEY AND GOODS FOR THE HUNGRY AND HOMELESS OF CONQUERED EUROPE REMAIN DAMMED UP IN THIS COUNTRY BY BRITISH BLOCKADE AND DISTRUST OF NAZI GERMANY, AMERICA'S INCREDIBLY COMPLEX RELIEF MACHINE OF MORE THAN 500 INDEPENDENT AGENCIES CONTINUES TO PILE UP DOLLARS AGAINST THE BLEAK FUTURE.

A SURVEY TODAY INDICATES THAT ONLY FOUR AMERICAN RELIEF ORGANIZATIONS ARE NOW ABLE TO SEND MONEY AND SUPPLIES INTO CONTINENTAL EUROPE.

THEY ARE:

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, WHICH RECENTLY SENT A $400,000 CARGO OF FOOD, CLOTHING AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES TO FRANCE. WHETHER ANOTHER SHIP CAN BE SENT, IS NOT KNOWN.

AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE, OF PHILADELPHIA, WHICH HAS BEEN SENDING FUNDS TO ITS REPRESENTATIVES IN TOULOUSE, FRANCE, FOR PURCHASE OF FOOD AND SUPPLIES.

QUEEN WILHELMINA FUND, INC., OF NEW YORK, SENDING MONEY UNDER U.S. TREASURY DEPARTMENT LICENSE INTO UNOCCUPIED PORTIONS OF FRANCE, AND INTO SWITZERLAND AND SPAIN FOR THE AID OF REFUGEES FROM THE NETHERLANDS

COMMISSION FOR POLISH RELIEF, NOW BUYING FOOD IN LITHUANIA AFTER HAVING BEEN DRIVEN FROM NORWAY, THEN FROM ITALY, BY THE FLUX OF WAR. HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT FOOD WAS THE VITAL NEED, AND THAT THE IMMEDIATE OBSTACLES WERE THE BRITISH BLOCKADE AND THE REPORTED RELUCTANCE OF THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT TO ALLOW ACCESS TO OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

THE FLOW OF RELIEF MONEY AND GOODS TO ENGLAND HAS BEEN UNBROKEN. ALLIED RELIEF FUND, CLEARINGHOUSE FOR ABOUT 30 ORGANIZATIONS, HAS COLLECTED $749,330, AND HAS SHIPPED TONS OF MEDICAL SUPPLIES AND CLOTHING. THERE ARE 84 ACTIVE BRITISH RELIEF AGENCIES IN THE UNITED STATES, AND BRITISH SHIPS CARRY THEIR CONTRIBUTIONS FREE OF CHARGE.

WHILE NON-BRITISH RELIEF GROUPS ARE FOLLOWING A POLICY OF WAITING, SOME OF THEIR LEADERS ARE ADVISING FORMATION OF A SINGLE NATIONAL COORDINATING AGENCY. HEADS OF FIVE LARGE NEW YORK GROUPS HAVE STATED THAT A CENTRAL DISBURSING ORGANIZATION COULD DEAL MORE EFFECTIVELY WITH PROBLEMS OF BLOCKADE AND CLOSED BORDERS AND WOULD SIMPLIFY THE PRESENT TANGLE.

THERE WERE 528 RECOGNIZED GROUPS ON AUG.1. OF THESE, 355 WERE REGISTERED WITH THE STATE DEPARTMENT, UNDER PROVISIONS OF THE NEUTRALITY ACT OF 1939, FOR SOLICITING FUNDS TO BE USED IN BELLIGERENT COUNTRIES.

ORGANIZATIONS TO AID CHILDREN AND OTHER REFUGEES NEED NOT REGISTER, BUT THE UNITED STATES COMMITTEE FOR THE CARE OF EUROPEAN CHILDREN, COORDINATING GROUP FOR CHILD REFUGEE EFFORTS, LISTS 172 COMMITTEES, COVERING ALL 48 STATES.

AMONG THE COMMITTEES REGISTERED IN WASHINGTON, 191 STATED THEIR AIM WAS TO SEND AID TO POLAND. FRANCE CAME NEXT WITH 131, ENGLAND, 84; GERMANY, 21; BELGIUM, 15; NORWAY, 8; NETHERLANDS, 7; ITALY, 4, AND LUXEMBOURG, 3.

THE MAJORITY ARE CONCENTRATED IN THE EASTERN STATES. NEW YORK CITY LED WITH 132, THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS HAS 41; CONNECTICUT, 27; PENNSYLVANIA, 23; NEW JERSEY, 17; AND THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, 14. CALIFORNIA HAS 19 COMMITTEES, THE PHILIPPINES, 4; AND PUERTO RICO, 1.

REGISTERED AGENCIES ARE REQUIRED TO REPORT MONTHLY TO THE STATE DEPARTMENT. FROM SEPT.1, 1939, THROUGH JUNE, 1940, THEY COLLECTED $8,384,095, AND SPENT $5,156,025. THE BALANCE OF $3,228,070, LESS OPERATING EXPENSES--WHICH ARE NOT KNOWN--REMAINS UNSPENT.

IN COMPARISON WITH THE RECORD OF THE 355 SMALLER GROUPS, THE AMERICAN RED CROSS HAS COLLECTED $20,143,230 IN THIS COUNTRY SINCE OUTBREAK OF WAR, AND HAS SPENT IN EUROPE $7,324,824, LARGELY FOR MEDICAL AID, SHELTER OF REFUGEES AND FOOD.

BRITISH CLAIM 144 OF 1,000 RAIDERS

LONDON AIRPORT AT CROYDON HIT; INDUSTRIAL TYNESIDE IS TARGET

Huge Dorniers Join in Mass Assaults Throughout England as Foe's Craft Range From Scotland to Southern Coast---British Report Ninety-one of Enemy Craft Shot Down.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—A thousand Nazi warplanes—perhaps even thousands—loosed upon Great Britain today the mightiest aerial offensive ever known, and tonight German bombs fell in south London at the Croydon Airdrome.

Germany reported as well that her planes had fought the British over London's Tilbury docks.

They struck in Scotland; they struck in vital munitions areas of northeast England; they smashed at the long southern coast all the way from the Thames estuary—leading to London—to Lands End, the far western frontier of these islands.

It was an attack of such incredible fury as to make the ceaseless assaults of three days seem but mere preliminaries.

Every indication was that the hour of the great test had come at last.

Anti-aircraft guns thundered at the planes which raided Croydon and British fighters swarmed to attack them as the war moved a step closer to the heart of the empire.

Mothers and fathers rushed into the streets of the London suburb and dragged their children to shelter as the thunder and roar of the planes and the exploding bombs came from the direction of the airdrome.

Smoke Rises From Field.

The chatter of machine guns could clearly be heard by persons crouching in the doorways of houses.

They cheered loudly when they saw the raiders suddenly make off toward the south with British fighters in swift pursuit, pouring their fire at the planes.

The Royal Air Force, defending this kingdom from such a blow as never was struck before, loosed every turreted gun in its fighter force and crippled airplanes fell steadily on English soil.

The Air Ministry announced tonight that ninety-one German planes were destroyed attacking Britain today, and that nineteen British fighters were lost.

[Thirty-six British planes had been destroyed in today's German air forays on Britain, DNB, the official German news agency, reported tonight. Thirty were shot down in battle and six destroyed on the ground, while only four German planes are missing, the agency said.]

The German strategy was simple: While German fighters took on the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols miles above the ground—from 12,000 to 15,000 feet up—the Nazi bombers snaked across the coast in close formation.

The objectives of this unprecedented raid were everything that Britain has and must have to keep on fighting: shipping, ports, munitions and industrial plants, and, above all, airports.

Known to have been bombed was the great Tyneside industrial and shipbuilding area on the east coast near Newcastle.

Not alone the coasts were hit, but the heart of the country as well. No one knew how long was the list of the civilian dead.

[The Germans specifically reported certain of their objectives. Bombed, they said, were the great Vickers Armstrong Armament Works at Hebburn; the port of Newcastle, Dover, other ports and shipping convoys in the Channel.]

One Associated Press correspondent on the southeast coast—only one of the areas of heavy action—counted six waves of eighteen heavy German bombers in less than three minutes.

Another Airport Bombed in East.

But eight Junkers dive bombers successfuly penetrated the defenses of an airport on the east coast, causing several Royal Air Force casualties when their bombs hit two buildings.

Several airdromes were unsuccessfully attacked in the southeast, the Air Ministry said.

[German reports said that Lympne, Hawkinge and Folkestone airports, all near Dover, were attacked and that British planes were shot down in fiery battles there.]

Earliest battles were off the southeast coast, where separate waves of eighty planes attacked, but while the R. A. F. was fighting them off, the Germans struck in a comparatively new sector for their big-style attacks, in the northeast.

Britain on Offensive.

While Great Britain struck ferociously with a midnight-to-dawn shower of bombs on 100 miles of German-held French coast, from Calais to Le Havre, after a night of comparative quiet in England, the Germans sent swarms of aircraft which engaged in mile-high battles over the southeast coast.

Anti-aircraft batteries were in action along the southeastern coast this afternoon. It was believed that enemy aircraft were attacking shipping.

Two battles were fought close to another southeast town, one with about eighty planes engaged inland, the other over the water, with about thirty taking part.

Press association reports from the northeast told of widespread enemy air activity.

About fifty German planes raided one northeastern town today, injuring two men and killing a boy about 8 years old. Four bombs were dropped. The boy was found dead in a wood near the town. A shell fragment or falling brickwork had hit him.

One raider machine-gunned workmen.

British planes finally drove the Nazis seaward. One German ship was believed to have been brought down.

Bombs Strike Homes.

High explosive bombs were reported dropped on another town in this area, one lot exploding in the working class district.

British fighting planes flashed in and out of the clouds engaging the raiders, which flew so high that they could barely be seen.

A town to the north and one to the south were also bombed.

A German bomber was seen moving as if crippled down the northeast coast from the north. A British fighting plane pursued it out of sight and shortly returned, doing a barrel roll as if to tell observers of a victory.

Bombs were reported dropped on nearby villages, where some casualties were feared.

A German bomber, piloted by a man who wore the Iron Cross and other medals, was brought down in northwest England last night by British fighters.

London, Friday, Aug. 16—Britons dug their dead and wounded early today out of the bomb ruins of the biggest air attack in history, executed by an armada of more than 1,000 German planes which struck eight miles from the heart of London and spread destruction from the Scottish border to Land's End.

Enemy planes came back after midnight over the Midlands and northeastern and southwestern England. Explosions were heard in the southwest and residents of one town there detected a continuous rumbling some thought might be naval gunfire.

Shot Down At One A Minute

In the last dusk-hazed fury of the fighting yesterday, planes were reported plunging in death dives at a rate of one a minute.

The British total claim for the day—144 German planes to 27 British—dwarfed previous reports on successive assaults since last Sunday. Yesterday's fierce air siege overshadowed all earlier mass raids.

What the British losses would amount to actually in dead and wounded, splintered homes and smashed buildings remained obscure despite communiques compiling reports from cities from the English Channel to the Irish Sea.

"Little Success At High Cost"

Listings of deaths were scattered and the Ministry of Home Security summed up the assault with the comment:

"Little success at a high cost."

London echoed with the wail of alarm sirens as the tide of Nazi bombardment ripped close about the sprawling city, heart of an embattled empire.

plane apparently was returning from a raid on Wales when the British attacked it.

Toll of Nazis Set at 31.

An Air Ministry communique today said that thirty-one German planes were destroyed yesterday.

British losses in yesterday's fighting were set at seven fighting planes, with two of the pilots saved.

An invading Heinkel plane was also brought down in open country several miles from an east of Scotland town. Two of the crew were killed and a third, suffering injuries, was sent to a hospital.

Cannon shells and machine gun bullets spattered the streets of a southwest coast town, and the planes shook the housetops with their roar.

The Press Association made a point of remarking: "August 15, the date on which Hitler was to make his triumphal march into London, is here. A few brief hours it will be gone, with Britain still the mistress of her own fate, of the seas and of the air around her coasts.

[At Berlin today the German High Command asserted that twenty-two British planes were shot down yesterday and six destroyed on the ground, and that twelve German planes were lost.]

No Bombings During Night.

Overnight a definite lull was noted in the raids on Britain. Yesterday's lessened attack was followed by a night in which German air activity fell off sharply and no bombings were reported.

Yesterday the Germans aimed their strongest blows at Southampton, Dover and Hastings—all south of England ports. Only 300 German planes took part, however, as compared with 500 on the previous day.

Hunt for Parachute Troops.

Prepared by Government and press for a German attempt at actual invasion, the British carried out a careful search for possible German parachute troops throughout last night in England and Scotland. There were no immediate reports that any were found, however.

The discovery of three-score German parachutes yesterday precipitated the hunt.

[An official spokesman at Berlin described the British report of finding German paraschutes "a midsummer night's dream."]

The question of parachutists was an overnight mystery. The Ministry of Home Security, in appealing to the public last night to help the authorities hunt for any, said that there was no evidence of such Nazi troopers having landed.

Hear Nazis Try the Bagpipes.

However, the authorities took no chances. There have been rumors that German troops in Norway have been rehearsing with bagpipes.

Troops in armored cars and afoot, policemen and Home Guardsmen scoured three districts of Scotland and England. In the heavily wooded midlands seventeen parachutes were found, two of them neatly folded. Another seventeen were found in southwest Scotland, five in west Scotland and a score more scattered elsewhere.

Some thought they might be a part of Adolf Hitler's war of nerves. Their discovery, however, failed to cause any panic in any of the districts where they were found.

Eleven German airmen were reported captured in the midlands, but no mention was made of this by the Government in its report on the finding of the parachutes.

Concentration in North Reported.

The Canadian press reported hearing in high quarters that the Germans were concentrating troops in Norway and along the coast of Holland for the attempt to invade Great Britain. Whether the Germans try to land from the north or south, however, any such effort seemed to hinge upon their first winning the mastery of the air, even if only temporarily.

Meanwhile, it was announced last night that a German submarine sank the 16,923-ton armed merchant cruiser Transylvania, once a West Indies cruise ship operating out of New York. The Admiralty said that the sinking occurred somewhere in the Atlantic.

Between thirty and forty sailors were believed lost, but more than 300 officers and men were landed at a West Coast port.

Nazis' Toll of Raids in Kent.

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.)—Nazi dive bombers, accompanied by fighting planes, launched today a new attack in the county of Kent, in England, the official German news agency, DNB, reported.

The agency quoted military men as saying that the Germans penetrated the British aerial defenses and engaged in numerous air fights without loss.

The new attacks came after a slump in overnight activity due, the High Command explained to unfavorable weather.

The Germans said that their attacks were particularly heavy in the coastal area of Dover, especially against the barrage balloons.

The speedy dive bombers broke through "an iron curtain" of anti-aircraft fire, DNB said, and quickly attacked their objectives. Early reports, said the agency, indicated that British fighting planes were shot down over Folkstone and Lympne.

Say R. A. F. Lost 28.

The destruction of twenty-eight British planes yesterday—twenty-two in the air and "at least six" on the ground—was reported in the daily communique, which conceded that twelve German aircraft were missing.

The High Command said that Nazi fliers bombed harbors, industrial centers, troop concentrations, airports, power plants and armament factories in south and central England and Wales, causing "extensive fires."

The sinking of the British auxiliary cruiser Transylvania by a German submarine was also reported.

German spokesmen emphasized that a lull in the bombing of Britain was due to the weather and represented no set-back in the Nazi Blitzkrieg schedule. Strategists, they explained, had made full allowance for a certain amount of bad weather.

Ridicule British Figures.

Military observers said today that the mass aerial attacks had gone on long enough to have established a more or less steady ratio of Nazi and British losses. These spokesmen, as well as the German High Command, said that the English over the course of a week had been losing about four planes to each German plane lost.

British claims that these proportions should be reversed made little impression here and whatever attention was given to the British reports was confined to ridicule.

Reports that German parachute troops have landed in England were met with shrugs of the shoulders in informed quarters, where it was said that the only plausible explanation for the presence of German parachutes in England was that German pilots had jumped after their planes had become incapacitated.

Dump Tons Of Explosives

Big, dark dive bombers screamed down within a few hundred feet of the ground to dump tons of explosives at the Croydon Airport in the suburbs, eight miles south of Charing Cross, mid-London.

Other raiders smashed at objectives down the Thames from London.

Joint Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security announcements said that although there one person was killed and many injured in homes and factories in the densely settled section around Croydon, little damage was done to the airport itself.

Hastings, Portland Attacked

Other reports of ruin and casualties came from Hastings on the southeast coast—landing place of the last successful invasion of England a thousand years ago—from the already hammered naval base at Portland, towns of the southwest and coastal cities of the northeast, and from industrial Rochester.

British military men kept silent about details of Britain's own "mystery weapon"—a plane trap said to have played an "efficient and formidable" role in blocking the Nazi attacks.

The British Press Association said the trap was Britain's "latest hush-hush defense weapon"—a strict military secret at least for the present.

One Nazi Bomber Caught In Trap

There were reports that at least one German bomber had been caught in the trap. However, the official British breakdown of the listing of enemy planes bagged showed:

Brought down by British fighter planes, 130.

By anti-aircraft, 11.

By infantry soldiers (apparently with rifle fire), 2.

By a Lewis (machine-gun) crew, 1.

The toll in the daybreak-to-dusk battles brought to 708 the number of German planes the British have reported shooting out of the sky since the start of mass raids last June 18.

Night Raids Over Southeast

Raids went on tonight over a wide area of the southeast, where during the day no less than 1,000 German planes had crossed the coast in one narrow section.

At least three of the twenty to thirty Stukas which attacked Croydon were reported shot down and the remainder were driven off by British fighter planes.

Debris was scattered over the airport for hundreds of yards and incendiary bombs started a series of fires.

Invasion Feared By People

There was no minimizing the fear that an invasion of troops was near at hand—householders and fishermen along the coast silently pulled in and hid their little boats lest they fall into other hands.

But the people kept calm and waited.

The German parachutist scare that had arisen earlier with the finding of German parachutes was denounced authoritatively as a "clumsy hoax."

They struck in Scotland; they struck in vital munitions areas of northeast England; they smashed at the long southern coast all the way from the Thames estuary—leading to London—to Land's End, the far eastern frontier of these islands.

It was an attack of such incredible fury as to make the ceaseless assaults of the last four days seem but mere preliminaries.

Every indication was that the hour of the great test had come at last.

Crippled Planes Fall Steadily

The Royal Air Force loosed every turreted gun in its fighter force and crippled airplanes fell steadily on English soil.

The German strategy was simple: While German fighters took on the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols miles above the ground—from 12,000 to 13,000 feet up—the Nazi bombers snaked across the coast in close formation.

The objectives of this unprecedented raid were everything that Britain has and must have to keep on fighting: shipping, ports, munitions and industrial plants, and, above all, airports.

Known to have been bombed was the great Tyneside industrial and shipbuilding area on the east coast near Newcastle.

Not alone the coasts were hit, but the heart of the country as well. None knew how long was the list of the civilian dead.

One Associated Press correspondent on the southeast coast—but one of the areas of heavy action—counted six waves of eighteen heavy German bombers in less than three minutes.

In the midst of this great attack the Air Ministry announced that British bombers had been at work in Germany, too.

Strong forces, it was said, attacked oil storage plants, refineries, railroads and power plants near Bordeaux and Cologne in Nazi-occupied northern France. Three oil storage and refining plants were declared to have been left in flames, and an unannounced number of airdromes in France likewise were hit. Four British planes were missing.

Greatest Attack Ever

But this foray into enemy country was all but forgotten by the R. A. F. in the heat of the struggle for Britain's life at home against a raid of such methodical might that never was seen in Poland, in France, in the Low Countries or anywhere else since the strongest air power of all time began its campaign in Europe.

For Nazi flyers punished England and Scotland with uncounted thousands of tons of bombs; they filled mile upon mile of the sky.

At one time alone—over a radius of only fifteen miles—approximately a thousand raiders swept acros the southeast coast.

This was aside from blows struck in many far-scattered areas in England and Scotland and these vast and many formations of destruction were made up of from thirty to one hundred planes each.

R. A. F. Attacks German Bases

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force rained bombs on more than 100 miles of the German-held coast across the English Channel today, presumably striking at airports and other points from which the Germans might be preparing to launch their long-threatened invasion of the British Isles.

The bombardment ranged from Calais to Le Havre in German-occupied France, a stretch of coast opposite the south of England, which at its nearest point, Calais, is only twenty-two miles across from Dover.

Wailing sirens in the attacked area could be heard plainly on the English coast from midnight until nearly dawn and brilliant flashes which lit the sky told the watchers on this side of bomb explosions.

The intensity of the attack was indicated by the fact that more than 100 bomb flashes were counted in one hour from one vantage point alone.

Royal Air Force bombers attacked last night oil depots, refining plants, railroads and power plants near Bordeaux and Cologne and airports in northern France, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

The communique said:

"Last night strong forces of R. A. F. aircraft atacked the oil reserves and refining plants in the enemy-occupied territory of Blaye, Pauillac and Ambes, on the Gironde estuary near Bordeaux.

"All three targets were left in flames. Other forces of bomber aircraft attacked the railway sidings and a power station at Cologne.

"Both yesterday and last night a number of attacks were made on enemy airdromes in northern France. Four of our aircraft are missing."

Nazis Warn Switzerland.

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—A portion of the Nazi press resumed its lectures to Switzerland today on "the responsibilities of neutrality."

The newspapers challenged Switzerland to defend her neutrality by [illegible] out British planes, which reported to have flown over territory yesterday on their bomb objectives in the north of Italy.

Swiss to Fire in Future.

BERNE, Aug. 15 A P.).—The Swiss High Command announced today that hereafter Swiss anti-aircraft batteries will fire on foreign warplanes violating Swiss territory.

Yesterday the Swiss reported that more than thirty foreign planes had flown over Switzerland and indicated that they were British planes on their way to bomb northern Italy.

Today's announcement came in the form of a warning to the public to go to air-raid shelters during alarms because of the danger of falling pieces of anti-aircraft shells.

Crowds Cheer Battle Over Croydon; Waves Of Planes Pound Coast

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Correspondent

Croydon, England, Aug. 15—Screaming down in a slanting dive from three miles away, twenty to thirty big black-crossed Nazi bombers poured tons of explosives onto Croydon Airport and its thick surrounding belt of homes and factories today from a point-blank range of only a few hundred feet.

They sowed death and reaped ruin, barely skimming their targets, then roaring back to the clouds amid a hail of anti-aircraft and British fighter-plane fire that took a reported toll of three attackers.

Houses were smashed to pulp. Explosions thundered in the factory district. Smoke clouds puffed up into the battle-streaked sky. Children fled from their play and grownups screamed encouragement to busy British pilots and gunners, who could not hear about the din.

War In Crowded London

The attack brought the war of ruin from the skies to Greater London. Croydon, a thickly settled suburb, is only eight miles from the city's heart at Charing Cross.

Hundreds of Croydon's 200,000 population saw the air fight from the streets and their homes. Bombs that plummeted among them took an undisclosed toll.

Bomb-strewn splinters damaged a bus passing the big airport; a perfume factory was hit and set afire, and even as smoke clouds billowed over the neighborhood, rescue crews worked feverishly am'l the wreckage to save those they could reach.

Two-thirds of the airport is well hemmed in by buildings, a park flanks the open side.

Bus Is Wrecked

The bus was wrecked. Its engine was ripped out, the driver's cabin was splintered and windows were smashed by the explosive, which dug a crater ten yards in diameter in the road.

One woman said she counted ten heavy bomb explosions. Another said: "They even machine-gunned us to the shelter in our back garden. How we got there God alone knows."

One big bomb narrowly missed the gas works near the airport and houses nearby were wrecked.

Auxiliary firemen sped through debris-littered streets—"A cool lot," one observer commented—putting out fires as methodically as if the thundering destruction about them was only "atmosphere" for make-believe raid practice.

Damage Less Than Feared

Damage to the airport itself—which in peacetime is not generally used for military purposes—was not believed to be as extensive as had been feared during the first fury of the attack.

Debris scattered the ground for several hundred yards in some places, however, to show that there were hits.

Incendiary bombs touched off several fires.

British defense planes were in the air within seconds after the raiders streaked down, as if launched from nowhere in the cloud-streaked sky.

At least three of the Nazi planes were seen shot down in the first several minutes of furious fighting.

Women Run For Children

One bomb ripped to pieces a shelter where four little boys had just fled, helping a crippled playmate along with them, from a game of hide and seek. They reached safety only by moments.

Another person in a shelter was pulled out of the wreckage apparently severely injured.

Dozens of residents in the hard-hit zone had no time to reach the public shelters. Some darted into cellars and others hurled themselves flat on the floor. Many were cut and bruised by glass and splinter showers.

Witnesses Tell Of Horror

One elderly man told me that an explosion alongside his home sent up a shower of earth that rattled ominously against the walls and: "It gave maw a fair old turn, it did.'

The woman who said she was machine-gunned told of dashing for the garden yard shelter with her 2-month-old baby in her arms.

She said she heard the bullets strike and the whistle of falling bombs.

Another witness said the raiders dropped "screaming bombs" as well as explosives and added:

"They scared me, all right. I felt weak in the knees until I heard the hum of our fighter motors. Then, by George, I walked right out in the yard—bomb splinters and all—and shouted like a schoolboy."

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

On the Southeastern English Coast (Dover), Aug. 15—Massed death, at least 500 big German bombers, accompanied by hundreds on hundreds of fighter planes, hurtled high across these chalk cliffs of England and into the heart of the Kingdom late today.

The gigantic armada of the upper air crossed the coast within a fifteen-mile radius of this port.

I saw them come, and I saw the guns and planes of England rip and blast one after another to pieces. But there were so many of them!

Six Crash In Flames

I saw six crash in flames, but the others kept on coming. At first they were in waves of thirty each, then they stepped up to fifty-four in each flight—three squadrons of eighteen Dornier bombers in each formation. In less than three minutes I counted more than one hundred bombers.

The spent fragments of shells and shrapnel showered like hailstones all around the balcony of the hotel from which I saw the raid as from a seat in a theater.

The thunder of motors from afar on both sides of me made it clear that great numbers of German planes still were roaring across the coasts elsewhere.

Then, this afternoon, I had my field glasses trained on a Messerschmitt fighter when an anti-aircraft shell struck the plane fairly amidships.

Bursts Into Flame

It bounded a hundred feet and broke in two, the parts falling, flaming, into the water. They sent up a geyser one hundred feet high.

Spent fragments of shrapnel and machine-gun bullets splattered the walls beside my window.

While German fighters engaged the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols from 12,000 to 15,000 feet in the sky, the bombers crossed the coast in close formation and screamed on inland.

I saw two of the barrage balloons which guard the coast come down in flames and smoke, but the current "Matilda," pride of the town, still rides high above the others. The Germans in four days have shot down Matilda No. 1, Matilda No. 2 and Matilda No. 3.

Wide Area Of Action

Reports from other parts of the coast indicated that this was not the only hot spot today; that waves of equal strength were going over from the Thames estuary to Land's End.

A town southwest of here saw British guns and fighters shoot down five out of thirty attackers in a forty-minute battle in which the sky seemed to be raining cannon shells, shrapnel and machine-gun bullets.

The British anti-aircraft gunners held their fire until the Nazis were in dead range; then let go with a terrific din.

Four Planes Fall In Sea

Four of the planes fell into the sea just off the town jetty, and fishermen sped out to rescue the survivors, despite the tumult overhead. Another bomber staggered down, stumbled across three houses and burst into flames.

When they dug into the debris they found one of the crew of four, burned to death, in a kneeling position.

Another, fleeing with a bullet in his head, was captured by two townsmen half a mile away.

London's Busiest Airport

Croydon Airdrome, London's busiest airport, lies in the populous south residential suburb of Croydon some eight miles, by direct route, from Charing Cross. The suburb, virtually absorbed by greater London, had a peace-time population of 200,000.

The airport was opened for civil traffic twenty years ago. Its main building cost more than $1,000,000, although it is now somewhat outmoded in comparison to modern American terminal structures. The field is rimmed with hangars, air equipment plants and other buildings.

Before the war there were 30,000 airplane departures, cross-Channel and inland, from Croydon yearly. Since the war it has been occupied entirely by military traffic.

WATCHER SEES BATTLE IN AIR

BURSTING SHELLS DOT SKY

'There Are the Pigs!' Is Air Raid Warden's Call to Townsmen.

ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF ENGLAND, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Germany sent uncounted hundreds of bombing and fighting planes over the British coast today, seeking out military objectives in the heart of the country. The armada which swarmed over southeastern England during the day was estimated at 500 planes and covered a strip approximately thirty miles wide, but reports indicated that other waves of almost equal strength were being thrown across the coast all the way from the Thames estuary to Lands End, in the west.

During a three-hour afternoon raid the Germans followed the same tactics by which some 150 heavy bombers had been maneuvered across the coast during the morning. While the German fighters engaged the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols in deadly dogfights 12,000 to 15,000 feet aloft, the bombers crossed the coast in close formation and flew inland.

Six Waves of Bombers.

From the balcony of my hotel, this correspondent counted six waves of eighteen heavy German bombers in less than three minutes.

This morning this writer saw three German planes shot down.

This afternoon, a direct hit from an ani-aircraft gun literally blasted a fourth Messerschmitt out of the sky. This correspondent had field glasses trained on him when a shell struck the plane fairly amidships.

The plane bounded almost 100 feet, broke in two, then plunged, flaming, into the sea. A column of water at least 100 yards high shot up.

This was just outside my window, so close that machine-gun bullets and spent fragments of jagged shrapnel were embedded in the walls outside. Two barrage balloons protecting the coast came down in flames.

A German plane threw a three-second burst of machine-gun bullets into one bag. The balloon fell in five flaming parts and crashed behind a headland, leaving a tall colum of heavy black smoke.

Matilda Riding High.

At this moment, the roar of motors can be heard high in the sky. They sound like heavy German bombers on their way home.

"Matilda," the favorite balloon of the townspeople, is riding high. Matildas I, II and III have been knocked down within the last four days.

As the second raid began with the drone of heavy Nazi bombers, one of the air raid wardens standing on a street corner called out:

"There are the pigs."

Immediately a whole defense battery cracked into action, throwing up a barrage of explosives from big guns to the fast shooting little Bofors. The sky was dotted with bursting shells.

Two Planes Seen to Fall.

The raiders apparently came in several flights because, west of this coast town this correspondent saw a score of them in a dog-fight with British planes.

They circled and dived and wheeled with a roar of engines and cannon and a rattle of machine guns. Behind the town, so high that the planes could barely be seen, another fight was going on.

Out of this battle a plane suddenly fell. A minute later a parachute was seen to billow out and drift slowly seaward.

Another plane went down into the sea to the West. Rescue boats darted out from the shore.

While the fight was going on, you could hear the loud crump-crump of bombs in back of the town. The lights in the hallways of the hotel on the sea front were suddenly extinguished.

Several watchers said they saw a second parachute float down in the west.

Earlier in the morning, German fighting planes tested the strength of British fighter patrols—then turned back across the channel.

Thirty minutes later a new wave, flying at about 10,000 feet, engaged a patrol of British hurricanes in a spectacular dogfight high over where the correspondent stood.

The Associated Press man saw three planes crash in the country behind him. One was a Messerschmitt 109. Three pilots bailed out and came floating down through the cloudless sky.

While this dogfight was raging, five waves of Nazi bombers began swarming across the coast, headed east, at intervals of two minutes.

Half an hour later one wave came back, but nothing was seen of the other four, which either suffered heavy casualties or took a different route home.

A Witness's Account

An Associated Press correspondent at a town southwest of here telephoned this account of a fight there:

"About thirty planes came over and bumped into a strong force of R. A. F. Spitfires and Hurricanes. The fiercest fight this town has seen thus far broke out when the two forces met.

"Planes were falling out of the sky. Some went down in flames.

"Cannon shells, shrapnel and machine-gun bullets spattered around us as the planer roared over the roofs. The battle lasted more than half an hour.

"The Germans lost at least five bombers in the battle—four in the sea, one on land. (These may have been some of the planes I saw falling to the west.)

"The first twelve bombers came in from the channel in a line astern, about 7,000 feet high in the hazy sky.

"British anti-aircraft gunners held their fire until the Nazi raiders were dead in range, and then let go. The din was tremendous. The Germans dived and twisted wildly to get out of range, but one of them was believed to have been hit and blown up in the air.

"The first wave made for an airport and the second for another. Many bombs were dropped but some of the raiders never reached their objective and fled to sea with their bombs still in their racks."

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Aug. 16—Several persons were killed last night when a Lockheed-Hudson (American-made) bomber flying over a southeast town collided with a balloon cable and crashed on a house.

London, Friday, Aug. 16 (AP). The Air Ministry news service said today that German planes were shot down at the rate of one a minute in the last mass raid of yesterday.

Two hundred German planes were used in this raid. A west-of-England Hurricane squadron destroyed not less than nineteen enemy planes, the Ministry said.

A Southwest Town in England, Aug. 15 (AP)—Twenty German planes were shot down in one fight over this city tonight when thirty Spitfire and Hurricane defense planes attacked 200 Messerschmitts and Dornier bombers.

German pilots who baled out of their stricken planes were brought into town from all directions.

An institution in the southwest was bombed and an unstated number of persons were trapped in the ruins. Several were reported missing. (Dartmoor prison is in the southwest of England.)

London, Aug. 15 (AP)—Several persons were killed and a number injured in northeast England by German bombers this afternoon.

Several passengers aboard a train were injured by bomb splinters as the train was brought to a standstill.

Two houses were demolished in one street, killing a woman and two children.

HOT WORDS ON FIFTH COLUMN JAR COMMONS

ITS MEMBERSHIP A SECRET

One Opponent Scornfully Told That His Pre-war Pacifism Brought On Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.)—A stormy debate was precipitated in the House of Commons today and one member asked the Speaker's protection against what he called Prime Minister Churchill's "gross and lying innuendo," in a discussion of the Governmen's secret anti-fifth column committee which has caused many rumors in Britain.

Refusing to discuss in detail the work of the mysterious committee set up under Lord Swinton to combat espionage and fifth columnists, Mr. Churchill warned that "the danger of invasion has by no means passed away," although the British are much stronger now than they were in May.

After the Prime Minister had declared that the danger of fifth columnist activity was being diminished "to its proper proportions" by the committee, Austin Hopkinson, Independent, declared that he could not understand "why so much mystery has been made about this."

Prime Minister's Retort.

Mr. Churchill replied sharply that if the member "had paid half the attention to the full and very respectable statement I have just made, as he did when he was accustomed to obstruct my efforts to get this country defended before the war, he would not have asked that question."

Retorting, the Prime Minister said: "So far from withdrawing, I will take the opportunity of sending the member a copy of one of his interventions in which he did his very utmost to discredit me. I was only looking at it last night."

Mr. Churchill again refused to go into detail on the work of the secret anti-espionage committee, which is headed by Lord Swinton.

"Matters of this kind are not fitted for public discussion, least of all in time of war," he said.

He declared, however, that "a very great improvement has been effected in dealing with the Fifth Column danger" by the committee about whose workings there is considerable mystery.

On July 30 Mr. Churchill said he approved a ban on newspaper mention of the Swinton committee without special permission.

A storm was precipitated in the House when the Prime Minister refused to answer questions relating to the scope or personnel of the committee.

James Maxton, Laborite, demanded to know who is "going to watch the watchers," and other members said there was wide apprehension throughout the country over selection of the Swinton committee members.

BULLETINS

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Aug. 16—Several persons were killed last night when a Lockheed-Hudson (American-made) bomber flying over a southeast town collided with a balloon cable and crashed on a house.

London, Friday, Aug. 16 (AP). The Air Ministry news service said today that German planes were shot down at the rate of one a minute in the last mass raid of yesterday.

Two hundred German planes were used in this raid. A west-of-England Hurricane squadron destroyed not less than nineteen enemy planes, the Ministry said.

A Southwest Town in England, Aug. 15 (AP)—Twenty German planes were shot down in one fight over this city tonight when thirty Spitfire and Hurricane defense planes attacked 200 Messerschmitts and Dornier bombers.

German pilots who baled out of their stricken planes were brought into town from all directions.

An institution in the southwest was bombed and an unstated number of persons were trapped in the ruins. Several were reported missing. (Dartmoor prison is in the southwest of England.)

London, Aug. 15 (AP)—Several persons were killed and a number injured in northeast England by German bombers this afternoon.

Several passengers aboard a train were injured by bomb splinters as the train was brought to a standstill.

Two houses were demolished in one street, killing a woman and two children.

HOT WORDS ON FIFTH COLUMN JAR COMMONS

ITS MEMBERSHIP A SECRET

One Opponent Scornfully Told That His Pre-war Pacifism Brought On Situation.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—A stormy debate was precipitated in the House of Commons today and one member asked the Speaker's protection against what he called Prime Minister Churchill's "gross and lying innuendo," in a discussion of the Governmen's secret anti-fifth column committee which has caused many rumors in Britain.

Refusing to discuss in detail the work of the mysterious committee set up under Lord Swinton to combat espionage and fifth columnists, Mr. Churchill warned that "the danger of invasion has by no means passed away," although the British are much stronger now than they were in May.

After the Prime Minister had declared that the danger of fifth columnist activity was being diminished "to its proper proportions" by the committee, Austin Hopkinson, Independent, declared that he could not understand "why so much mystery has been made about this."

Prime Minister's Retort.

Mr. Churchill replied sharply that if the member "had paid half the attention to the full and very respectable statement I have just made, as he did when he was accustomed to obstruct my efforts to get this country defended before the war, he would not have asked that question."

Retorting, the Prime Minister said: "So far from withdrawing, I will take the opportunity of sending the member a copy of one of his interventions in which he did his very utmost to discredit me. I was only looking at it last night."

Mr. Churchill again refused to go into detail on the work of the secret anti-espionage committee, which is headed by Lord Swinton.

"Matters of this kind are not fitted for public discussion, least of all in time of war," he said.

He declared, however, that "a very great improvement has been effected in dealing with the Fifth Column danger" by the committee about whose workings there is considerable mystery.

On July 30 Mr. Churchill said he approved a ban on newspaper mention of the Swinton committee without special permission.

A storm was precipitated in the House when the Prime Minister refused to answer questions relating to the scope or personnel of the committee.

James Maxton, Laborite, demanded to know who is going to watch the watchers," and other members said there was wide apprehension throughout the country over selection of the Swinton committee members.

NIGHT LEAD CHURCHILL (BUDGET)

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, AUG.15--FOR THE FIRST TIME IN WINSTON CHURCHILL'S AUTHORITARIAN WAR-TIME REGIME, ANGRY NAME-CALLING SWEPT COMMONS TODAY, WITH THE PRIME MINISTER TRADING ORAL PUNCHES WITH SHORT-TEMPERED MEMBERS.

DESPITE ITS BITTER TENOR, INFORMED POLITICIANS SAID THE QUARREL HAD NOT DIMMED CHURCHILL'S POPULAR LUSTER APPRECIABLY. IT WAS CUT SHORT BY A SPEAKER'S RULING AFTER ONE MEMBER, THE INDEPENDENT AUSTIN HOPKINSON, HAD CALLED THE PRIME MINISTER, BY INDIRECTION, A "LIAR."

IN HIS BRIEF STATEMENT CHURCHILL ASSERTED THE DANGER OF INVASION HAD NOT PASSED BUT "WE ARE MUCH STRONGER THAN WE WERE IN MAY." HE TERMED THE ACTIVITIES OF THE SWINTON COMMITTEE "NOT FITTED FOR PUBLIC DISCUSSION, LEAST OF ALL IN TIME OF WAR."

HE SAID HE ALWAYS HAD BELIEVED FIFTH COLUMN DANGERS WERE "EXAGGERATED" AND THAT HE NOW WAS SATISFIED THEY HAD BEEN REDUCED "TO PROPER PROPORTIONS."

AUG 15 1940

THEN THE STORM BROKE.

LABORITE JAMES MAXTON DEMANDED TO KNOW WHO WAS GOING TO "WATCH THE WATCHERS."

OTHER MEMBERS DECLARED THERE WAS WIDE APPREHENSION BECAUSE LORD SWINTON WAS SELECTED CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE TO COPE WITH FIFTH COLUMNISTS.

(LORD SWINTON WAS AIR SECRETARY FROM 1935 TO EARLY 1938, WHEN HE WAS OUSTED AMIDST BITTER CRITICISM OF HIS FAILURE TO REARM THE NATION ADEQUATELY.)

SAID HOPKINSON: "WE CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHY THERE IS SO MUCH MYSTERY ABOUT THIS..."

ANGRILY, THE PRIME MINISTER REPLIED: "IF HOPKINSON HAD PAID HALF THE ATTENTION TO THE FULL AND VERY RESPECTABLE STATEMENT I JUST HAVE MADE AS HE DID WHEN HE WAS ACCUSTOMED TO OBSTRUCT MY EFFORTS TO GET THIS COUNTRY DEFENDED BEFORE THE WAR, HE WOULDN'T HAVE ASKED THAT QUESTION."

CHURCHILL SNAPPED BACK THAT HE WOULD NOT WITHDRAW; INDEED, HE SAID HE WOULD SEND HOPKINSON A COPY OF A PREVIOUS INTERVENTION BY THAT MEMBER "IN WHICH HE DID HIS VERY UTMOST TO DISCREDIT ME."

BERLIN, AUG 15-(AP)-REPORTS THAT GERMAN PARACHUTE TROOPS HAVE LANDED IN ENGLAND WERE MET WITH SHRUGS OF THE SHOULDERS TODAY IN INFORMED SOURCES.

THESE SOURCES SAID THE ONLY PLAUSIBLE EXPLANATION FOR THE PRESENCE OF GERMAN PARACHUTES IN ENGLAND WAS THAT GERMAN PILOTS HAD JUMPED AFTER THEIR PLANES BECAME INCAPACITATED.

Nazis Reported Over London

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—German planes were reported over London tonight in a surge that carried them past the thickly netted defense of coast and vital docks, up the Thames estuary to the very center of Britain's power.

DNB, the official German news agency, reporting a great onslaught against all Britain's vital centers, as well as her coasts from northeast to southwest, said that the German planes reached London at 5 P. M. despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

DNB said there was no word as to whether London was bombed. (From London, however, came word that the Nazi raiders had attacked the famous airport of Croydon, only ten miles from Piccadilly.)

The Germany agency said that the bombers reached Tilbury, noted for its huge docks only thirteen miles east of London on the Thames, and calmly followed their course, dropping bombs with deadly accuracy on important objectives.

Intense fire was encountered at Sheerness, Chatham and Rochester, where navy yards and arsenals are situated, the agency said, and clouds of anti-aircraft fire were observed over London itself.

In other raids the huge rambling armament works of Vickers Armstrong at Hebburn and the port of Newcastle, in northeastern England, were reported targets of a rain of bombs.

DNB also reported the bombing of objectives in the Northumberland district, England's northernmost county; Aberdeen, in northeastern Scotland; Dover, the closest British port to France, and a convoy off Peterhead, just north of Newcastle. Huge Dornier flying boats were used, DNB said, without the loss of a single craft.

The news agency said that big fires and explosions were set off in the Northumberland raid.

In the attacks on Dover, the Germans reported smashing through curtains of anti-aircraft fire to make successful attacks on that port, only twenty-two miles across the channel from Calais, France, and vital air bases near by.

Say 20 British Fell.

The German radio announced that up to 8:15 twenty British planes had been downed, nine of them over central England and near Newcastle.

It said that one German squadron bombed the Driffield Airdrome in Yorkshire. Twelve British Spitfires were reported attacked, with numerous hits on the defenders against none on the raiders.

Several air bases and harbors in central England were among the objectives reported raided.

At Driffield, which is close to the coast in East Riding, hangars and barracks on the airfield were said to have been destroyed.

"The raids came very surprisingly and anti-aircraft defenses could do little against the attackers," the radio announcement said. "Before the British fighters could intervene the attack, with devastating effect, was over."

DNB also said German air raiders had threatened Bristol's airplane plants and also South Wales.

The new attacks came after a slump in overnight activity due, the High Command explained to unfavorable weather.

The Germans said that their attacks were particularly heavy in the coastal area of Dover, especially against the barrage balloons.

The speedy dive bombers broke through "an iron curtain" of anti-aircraft fire, DNB said, and quickly attacked their objectives. Early reports, said the agency, indicated that British fighting planes were shot down over Folkstone and Lympne.

The destruction of twenty-eight British planes yesterday—twenty-two in the air and "at least six" on the ground—was reported in the daily communique, which conceded that twelve German aircraft were missing.

The High Command said that Nazi fliers bombed harbors, industrial centers, troop concentrations, airports, power plants and armament factories in south and central England and Wales, causing "extensive fires."

The sinking of the British auxiliary cruiser Transylvania by a German submarine was also reported.

German spokesmen emphasized that a lull in the bombing of Britain was due to the weather and represented no set-back in the Nazi Blitzkrieg schedule. Strategists, they explained, had made full allowance for a certain amount of bad weather.

Ridicule British Figures.

Military observers said today that the mass aerial attacks had gone on long enough to have established a more or less steady ratio of Nazi and British losses. These spokesmen, as well as the German High Command, said that the English over the course of a week had been losing about four planes to each German plane lost.

British claims that these proportions should be reversed made little impression here and whatever attention was given to the British reports was confined to ridicule.

Reports that German parachute troops have landed in England were met with shrugs of the shoulders in informed quarters, where it was said that the only plausible explanation for the presence of German parachutes in England was that German pilots had jumped after their planes had become incapacitated.

SYNCHRONIZED RAIDS MADE ON WHOLE NATION

Nazis Claim 98 English Planes Shot Down, Plus 8 Wrecked On Ground

Airports, Arms Works And Plane Factories Bombed Particularly

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 15—Germany threw the weight of her aerial hosts directly at the heart of Britain's world empire late today as warplanes swirled over London—where the British admitted Croydon airport was bombed—and smashed hard at the broad Tilbury wharves which stretch down the Thames from the capital.

The attack, pressed home through a veritable hell of anti-aircra" fire amid wheeling British pursuit planes, was part of a synchronized onslaught upon all of Britain's vital centers and up and down her coasts from far northeast Scotland to extreme southwest England and Wales, said DNB.

Sees Methodical Attack.

DNB did not say definitely that London was bombed, but declared "the entire Thames Valley witnessed the methodical, irresistible German air attacks which threaten all military establishments with destruction."

It first listed thirty-six British planes destroyed as against four German but later increased the figures, respectively, to ninety-eight and twenty-nine. German flyers reported they shot down five balloons and put out of commission eight planes on the ground.

The raiders scattered their bombs amid the sprawling buildings of the big Vickers Armstrong armament works at Hebburn Wells; at Sheerness, Chatham and Rochester, locations of navy yards and arsenals; at the big eastern port of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and at the southeast "bridgeheads" of Dover and Folkestone, the agency said.

Plane Plants Attacked

The airplane plants of Bristol were threatened, and Wales, to the southwest, got its share, said DNB.

Airports were a particular object of attack. Those at Hawkinge and Lympne in the southeast shore area were scenes of particularly bitter battles with the British defenders.

At Hawkinge alone, eleven British planes were shot down by the Messerschmitts protecting the German bombing squadron, DNB said in claiming victory for the Germans.

Smash Hangars, Runways

Repeatedly, big German battle bombers swooped out of the clouds to dump deadly tons of high-explosive and incendiary bombs on the Hawkinge hangars, the agency related. At Lympne, it said, hangars and runways were smashed and the ground guns fell silent.

A German battle squadron caught the English by surprise at the Driffield airport north of Hull, DNB said, in a raid so swift that "anti-aircraft was not able to do much and before the British fighters could interfere the attack was over." It said the hangars and barracks were destroyed.

The German air fleet roared over London at 5 P. M., DNB declared, and anti-aircraft fire made a cloud over the city.

At Tilbury, a dozen miles down the Thames, which is a great mass of dockyards, warehouses, naval plants and armament and munitions works, the German agency said the Nazi airmen "calmly followed their course, dropping bombs with deadly accuracy on important objectives."

"Lively Air Battle"

It acknowledged that "at Tilbury there was a lively air battle."

In fact, so heavy was the British defense that DNB likened it to an "iron curtain" but said the Nazi airmen pierced it.

The attack on the Vickers plant at Hebburn Wells was executed this afternoon by thirty-five Dornier bombers, and heavy explosions were observed, the agency added.

A number of airports in the Northumberland district also suffered heavily, and even the north of Scotland was hit hard.

Airports in the Aberdeen and Moray Firth sections were bombarded, and a shipping convoy off Peterhead was attacked, said DNB, but it did not disclose the results.

Curbed By Bad Weather

The new destructive vigor of the attacks on Britain followed a day and night in which bad weather hampered the incessant raiding to some extent, said the German high command.

Nevertheless, it announced, troop concentrations at the big military camp of Aldershot were attacked, and port facilities and electrical plant and munitions works were "effectively bombed" in Cardiff, Weston, Portland, Worcester and Salisbury, the announcement said.

The German campaign is still on schedule, it declared, for advance plans had made full allowance for some bad weather.

Meanwhile, authorized German sources vigorously denied reports that German parachutists had landed in England. Such reports were declared to be "pure fantasy."

Anti-Air Fire Ineffective

DNB said the Germans attacking Scotland, apparently from Scandinavian bases, had no trouble because anti-aircraft fire was ineffective.

German commentators listed several reasons why they credited the German air force with the upper hand:

The short distance from bases to objectives permits fast, small planes to carry heavier bomb loads;

The only German industrial areas within effective reach of the British are the Ruhr and Bremen districts, so distant that warning is given, whereas England, in a cramped space, has not this leeway;

The German air bases are so deployed that advance detection of a raid on England is difficult.

Southampton Center

The German radio said the "center of gravity" of German penetration seemed to be Southampton, the great southern transatlantic port.

In that area, in the fifty-odd miles between Portsmouth and Portland alone, considerably more than one hundred German planes have penetrated to the north, the radio reported.

The British anti-aircraft artillery failed, the radio asserted, and the British fighter planes found themselves outnumbered because they had to be distributed over the entire country.

Thus, it said, the British are not strong enough in any one place to hinder or even hold up the German attacks, let alone to repulse them.

BRITISH RETIRE BEFORE ENEMY IN SOMALILAND

They Say Italians Are Using Two Full Divisions With Armored Vehicles.

THE ADVANCE MOVES RAPIDLY

Two Converging Columns Are Each Less Than 40 Miles From Berbera.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Telling the House of Commons, "I have some unsatisfactory news," Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today that a small British holding force had been driven back by greatly superior Italian forces from its position northeast of Hargeisa in British Somaliland.

"As operations are still in progress I cannot say an more," he said. "But I shall be dealing generally with the eastern situation in my statement next week."

The Italian forces amounted to two divisions, supported by armored vehicles and considerable artillery and forced the British from their positions at Jugaragen Pass, where they were protecting Berbera, the chief port and capital of the protectorate.

The Italians were said to be about twenty miles west of Bulhar, which is about forty miles west of Berbera, the seaport capital.

Another Italian column is advancing on Berbera from Hargeisa and Oadweina, to the south, and recently was reported to have been checked by the British at a pass thirty-five miles from the capital.

This column was estimated to contain between 9,000 and 10,000 men and the British were said to be heavily outnumbered.

British casualties, however, were described as not heavy and considerably less than those of the Italians.

Yesterday British naval forces, presumably operating from Aden, were reported bombarding the Italians pushing along the Zeila-Berbera coastal road. This was said to have checked the advance, which, however, seems to have been resumed rapidly.

Rome Reports Heavy Battle.

ROME, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Italian troops and the British forces in British Somaliland are locked in a battle that has been under way for four days, the Italian High Command announced today.

The battle is raging for the port of Berbera, which the British are defending against Italian assault.

Today's communique announced that the Italians had taken prisoners and captured arms.

BRITISH SAY CLAIMS ARE CONFIRMED

Italian Casualty List Cited to Verify Air Losses.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Information declared today that Italian casualty lists furnish striking confirmation of the conservative character of British claims of enemy air losses. Officials hastened to explain that the statement was not intended to answer an assertion last Tuesday by Col. Frank Knox, the American Secretary of the Navy, that "we are not getting the whole truth about this fight over England."

"In calculating enemy air losses the utmost care is taken to insure that no claim is made unless fully substantiated by incontrovertible evidence," the statement said. It added that this was equally true of figures arrived at in reporting both German and Italian losses.

"Thus, in July, 1940, the total of Italian aircraft claimed destroyed by the R. A. F. was seventy-six confirmed. Of these a number were destroyed on the ground—that is to say, without pilots.

"Italian casualty lists for July admit the loss of seventy-six pilots killed and missing, a number exceeding the total claimed by the R. A. F. Between June 11 and August 8 the R. A. F. claimed to have destroyed 156 aircraft, including many on the ground.

"Italian casualty lists issued to August 8, which probably did not include recent casualties, admitted the loss of 146 pilots killed and missing. British claims of German losses are made on the same basis and are equally conservative."

Churchill Admits Loss Of Pass To The Italians

London, Aug. 15 (AP)—Disclosing to the House of Commons that "I have some unsatisfactory news," Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today a "small British holding force" had been driven back by "greatly superior Italian forces" from its position northeast of Hargeisa, in British Somaliland.

"As operations are still in progress, I cannot say any more, but I shall be dealing generally with the Eastern situation in my statement next week," Churchill said.

Discussing the war at home, Churchill warned that "the danger of invasion has by no means passed away," although "we are very much stronger than we were in May."

He spoke on the operations of a secret anti-fifth-column committee.

Churchill is to give the House a general war review in a public session next Tuesday. The House then is to adjourn on Thursday until September 5.

Greek Cruiser Helle Is Sunk By Unidentified Submarine

One Man Is Killed and Twenty-nine Hurt—Telephones to Rome Silenced as Tension Between Nations Grows.

ATHENS, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The Greek light cruiser Helle, a 2,115-ton American-built vessel, has been torpedoed and sunk off Tinos Island harbor in the Ægean Sea by an unidentified submarine, the Greek Government announced today.

One petty officer was lost and twenty-nine members of the crew were injured.

The cruiser was at anchor in the harbor, about a hundred miles southeast of Athens, where she had gone to participate in a religious celebration.

Three Torpedoes Fired.

The official Greek version of the sinking said three torpedoes were fired without warning. One hit the cruiser and the others hit the quay, injuring some pilgrims and travelers.

The cruiser's nationality was plainly marked, an official announcement said, and a mistake in identity would have been virtually impossible.

The torpedoing occurred as Italian and Greek relations became increasingly tense because of the recent Italian press campaign charging that Greece was violating her neutrality by being too friendly with Great Britain.

Shortly after the sinking telephonic communication between this city and Rome was suspended.

All Ships Held in Port.

Tonight the Greek Government issued an order forbidding all Greek ships to leave port. The order was taken by foreign observers as an indication of the seriousness with which the Government views the situation.

Official quarters declined comment, but indicated that they saw in the attack on the Helle an effort to force Greece into some act which would change her stated position of neutrality.

That Greece is considering steps to counter any repetition of the attack on the cruiser was indicated in a two-hour conference between Premier Gen. John Metaxas and military and naval leaders.

No Periscope Seen.

Persons who saw the attack on the Helle said that they had observed no submarine or periscope in the harbor.

Naval experts began at once to collect fragments of the torpedoes which hit the quay and were to report the type and manufacture.

The island of Tinos is famous as a place of pilgrimage for the sick and infirm from all over Greece on August 15. Customarily as many as 40,000 pilgrims flock to the island on that day to pray before an icon in the village church and to wash in a fountain whose waters are popularly supposed to have curative powers.

The crew of the Helle, a 2,115-ton American-built vessel, attempted to run the ship aground, but fuel oil escaping on the water caught fire and forced abandonment of the ship, which quickly went down.

Immediately afterward strict censorship was applied to outgoing telephone calls.

[The Helle was built for China as the Hei Fung in 1912 at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company in Camden, N. J., and was purchased by Greece in 1914. Jane's fighting ships lists it as a minelayer, formerly a cruiser. It was armed with three 6-inch guns and two torpedo tubes and could carry 100 mines.]

One of the Italian charges in the strengthening press campaign has been that the British Mediterranean fleet was using the Greek Island harbor as a base.

Premier Metaxas's night conferences were interpreted by foreign observers as indicating that Greece is preparing her defenses should Italy back up newspaper threats with an attack from Albania.

Some officials feared a parallel between the Italian press campaign and that launched by German newspapers before the invasions of Poland, Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands.

[Italian newspapers continued to dwell on alleged Greek oppression of Albanian minorities. Fascist editor Virginio Gayda, in Il Giornale d'Italia, declared yesterday that the Greeks were vassals of England in a vast plot against Italian-annexed Albania, Italy and the whole "Balkan order."]

'Slander,' Says Athens Press.

Authoritative reports said hundreds of Albanians in the Ioannina district—which Italy claims is rightfully Albania's—have been arrested on charges of plotting against Greek rule.

Germans reported that Italian Minister Razzi told Mr. Metaxas yesterday that Italy demands Greek renunciation of all ties with Great Britain and Greek alignment under Italy's sphere of influence.

Minister Razzi's audience with the Premier followed reports that the Greek Government had rejected axis demands for abrogation of Greece's pact with Britain, which guaranteed support in the event that Greece is attacked.

Greek Plea to Russia.

ROME, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The radio broadcast today a report from Moscow that the Greek Minister to Russia had appealed to Premier-Foreign Commissar V. A. Molotov for Russian intercession at Sofia in Greece's crisis with Italy.

The Minister was said to have asked that Russian influence be used to prevent the Bulgarian Government from exploiting the present Greek-Italian tension to press claims for the cession by Greece of part of Thrace and an outlet to the Aegean Sea.

GREEK CRUISER TORPEDOED BY UNKNOWN SUB

All Other Ships Ordered In Port And Rome Cuts Communications

Two Projectiles Miss War Vessel And Hit Quay, Injuring Many

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Greece, Aug. 15—A mysterious submarine sent the 2,115-ton Greek cruiser Helle to the bottom of the Aegean Sea today within half a mile of a Greek island quay and tonight the Government, wary of a fatal snap in the tension with Italy, forbade all Greek ships to leave port.

Official sources indicated, without saying so openly, that they believed the attack was an effort to force Greece into some retaliatory a . The ships-in-port order reflected the Greek official desire to counter any repetition of the incident.

Steamer Not Heard From

Greek feeling was heightened by reports heard in shipping circles that the Greek steamer Appeti, bound from Lisbon to Piraeus, had not been heard from since she radioed three days ago that she had been stopped by an Italian warship and ordered into Palmero, Sicily.

Aboard were 400 passengers, many of them American citizens of Balkan origin taken into the Mediterranean by the Appeti which picked them up at Lisbon from a transatlantic liner.

An unstated number of civilians injured on the quay at Tinos Island when two of the submarine's torpedoes exploded against it were among 40,000 religious pilgrims, who had gone to pray beside the island's health-giving waters.

Naval protection was promised for the return of the pilgrims to the mainland, since many are crippled or infirm.

Telephonic communication to Italy was cut off after the Helle was sunk, and a strict censorship imposed on all calls abroad.

Police on Tinos Island cabled the Greek Government that a preliminary investigation failed to establish the identity of the submarine.

Premier John Metaxas, already making preparations regard by foreign observers here as designed to set up Greek defenses against a possible Italian attack from Italian Albania, summoned his military and naval chiefs into urgent conference.

These maneuvers reflected the increasing gravity of Greece's position, which for days had been precarious because of her reported rejection of German and Italian demands that she end her friendship with Britain.

That friendship has been based on a British pledge to support Greek independence and territory in case of attack.

The Helle, small as it was, was substantially half of this small pro-British kingdom's "first line" navy; it was one of Greece's two vessels which were above the destroyer category, the other being the 9,450-ton cruiser Averoff.

Cruiser At Anchor

The vessel went down as she lay at anchor about half a mile outside the quay at Tinos Island harbor, in the Cyclades group in the Aegean about 100 miles southeast of Athens. A Greek communique declared that three torpedoes were fired at the Helle, one landing amidship and the others exploding on the quay.

"The submarine," it said "never appeared on the surface."

One petty officer was killed, twenty-nine crewmen were injured and "several civilians on the quay were injured.

(Repercussions from the incident were not long in the making. The Rome radio reported from Moscow that Greece had asked the Soviet to prevent Bulgaria from taking advantage of the moment to press her claims against Greece for part of Thrace and an outlet to the Aegean).

No British Craft Near

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP).—An authoritative British source said today no British submarine was in the vicinity of Tinos, off which the Greek cruiser Helle was sunk today. This source added that Italian submarines were known to have been operating there.

46 GREEK SHIPS LOST SINCE START OF WAR

Consul Here Reveals 10 Sinkings Not Previously Made Public

Greek merchant shipping losses rose to forty-six vessels of 191,389 gross tons yesterday with the disclosure of ten previously unreported sinkings by a Greek official here who said developments in his homeland indicated "we will be fighting Italy," according to The Associated Press.

Captain Nicolas Kourbalis, Greek Consul of Mercantile Marine, made this comment when informed of his country's ordering Greek ships to remain in home ports. He had received no order halting Greek shipping in American waters.

He said about twenty vessels were in United States ports, including six at New York and six at Baltimore, Philadelphia and Norfolk.

He also disclosed that Greek ship losses had doubled since Italy entered the war June 10.

"Already two have been sunk in a mine field between Italy and Libya and two more were sunk by belligerent warships in Greek waters," Captain Kourbalis said.

Greece had a merchant fleet of 605 ships of 1,780,666 tons before the war, the ninth largest fleet in the world.

The newly reported losses, which sent the death toll of Greek sailors to 200 men, were the Adamantios, 4,277 tons; Ia, 4,860; Alexandros, 4,343; Galaxias, 4,393; Kalliopi, 4,965; Kyma, 3,994; Nilon, 5,134; Panagiotis Th. Coumantarious, 5,839; Faneromeni, 3,404, and Frangoula B. Goulandris, 6,701. Most of these ships traded between the Americas and Great Britain.

British Admit Italian Advance Near Berbera

Fascist Losses Reported Severe in Drive Against Defenders on Mountain

CAIRO, Aug. 15 (AP).—British defenders in Somaliland have been driven by the Italians from positions in a mountain pass defending Berbera, the capital and chief port the British acknowledged tonight.

Official reports said two Italian divisions (perhaps 25,000 men), bulwarked by planes, artillery and mechanized forces, had wrenched Jugaran Pass from "a small British holding force." The pass is about thirty-five miles south of Berbera, and the Italians advanced from Hargeisa.

Italian losses in the Jugargan fighting were severe, the British declared, and the battle is continuing at the new British positions.

The British communique declared that the Italians, reinforced by fresh effectives, launched a violent attack yesterday and, after several hours of fighting in which they suffered severe losses, compelled the British to retreat.

(In London British military authorities said the Italian advance along the Somali coast was more rapid "than had been expected." The Cairo communique did not say whether this column or another advancing from the south was engaged in yesterday's battle.)

The communique declared the Italians were using against Britain artillery and armored vehicles which had been concentrated for a drive into French Somaliland before the collapse of France.

Locked in Battle

ROME, Aug. 15 (AP).—Italian troops are locked with the British in Britisn Somaliland in a battle that has been under way for four days, the Italian high command announced today. The battle is raging for the port of Berbera. Today's communique announced that the Italians had taken prisoners and weapons.

FACES TRIAL FOR EFFORT TO SEIZE FRANCE

Georges Mandel Reported To Have Sought Help In North Africa

Le Temps Declares He Informed England Of His Succession

[By the Associated Press.]

Vichy, Aug. 15—An attempt by Georges Mandel, Minister of Interior in the Reynaud Cabinet, to seize power shortly after France's capitulation last June and continue the war from Africa was reported today in a Tangier (Africa) dispatch published in Le Temps.

Mandel now is facing trial before a military court on the charge of plotting against the security of the state.

The Tangier dispatch alleged that when he arrived at Casablanca from France with former Premier Edouard Daladier and other ex-Ministers aboard the steamer Massilia late in June he tried to convince military authorities in French Morocco that he had been placed at the head of a new Government whose purpose was to continue the war.

Cabled London

He is alleged to have said the French North African army was to support his Government.

After cabling to London an announcement of his arrival, Mandel, the dispatch said, went to the office of a French news agency and dictated an announcement that he had taken over the Government.

Le Temps stated this announcement was forwarded to France by the news agency, but the man who took it notified the manager of the agency and detectives were sent to "take charge" of Mandel.

Mandel was persuaded by them to return to his steamer, ostensibly as a safeguard against hos[illegible]nstrations ashore, but once he was aboard the vessel it cruised up and down the coast, holding him virtually a prisoner.

British Official Visit

The next day, Le Temps' article said, Lord Gort (former chief of the British Expeditionary Force) and Alfred Duff Cooper, Britain's Minister of Information, arrived from England and asked to see the French Premier.

Informed that Marshal Philippe Petain was somewhere in France, the British visitors declared (according to Le Temps):

"No, we want to see Premier Mandel."

They were told that Mandel had nothing to do with the Government; whereafter they returned to England.

The Massilia, on which some twenty-six ex-Ministers and Deputies left France for Africa, sailed for Casablanca June 20, after an armistice already had been asked. Military court proceedings against Mandel were begun late in July.

France's Plight Held Desperate

American Red Cross Chief Calls It Worse Than Belgium's in 1919.

VICHY, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The plight of France, in the words of Richard Allen, European delegate of the American Red Cross, "is now worse than that of Belgium after the world war, and is growing still worse."

The German occupied areas need milk, sugar, fats and canned meats immediately, he declared last night, adding that France could provide sufficient meat and wheat if given access to her colonies.

Mr. Allen came here after conferring with the International Red Cross authorities in Switzerland and said he strongly recommended the extension of Red Cross relief in the German occupied zones, especially to the nearly 2,000,000 prisoners of war.

He expressed the belief that the Red Cross should send the medical equipment and supplies worth $350,000, now stored at Marseilles, to the prison camps.

Levity Is Forbidden.

Meanwhile today a public warning against levity and failure to fall in with the spirit of discipline demanded by the Petain Government went out over the official radio to "certain big cities in the unoccupied zone."

The complaint was that there was too much "exuberance" and that private festivities were permitted.

Such happenings, the radio said, are painful to many citizens stricken by the horrors of war and the unfortunate situation of the country.

Meanwhile today the Government stepped in to regulate working hours in private industry as one of the major problems affecting the readjustment of France's social and economic life.

Departmental prefects received authority to fix maximum working hours for each industry and profession in accordance with conditions in each particular region.

While a national wartime tax of 40 per cent of the workers' overtime pay was removed, all overtime, which is not permitted to exceed seventy-five hours a year, will now be paid for at the same rate as ordinary hours and employers will be required to contribute 20 per cent of all overtime pay to a workers' benefit fund.

A national maximum of forty-eight ordinary work hours a week, or nine a day, was fixed by a decree published in the official journal.

Work Program Is Planned.

At the same time the Government announced it would go ahead at once with a nationwide program of electrifying the railways and repairing war damages, thus giving jobs to many thousands of unemployed. The Government will also make loans to private industry to get it back on its feet. Mixed committees of industrialists and Government experts are being formed to decide what loans shall be granted and to supervise the use of the funds.

It was announced that the German authorities are studying a proposal for the release of war prisoners urgently needed in occupied France for industrial and public service jobs. These prisoners would receive "leave from captivity" to return to their jobs, but would technically still be considered prisoners.

French Movies in for Purge.

GRENOBLE, France, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Le Petit Dauchinois reported from Vichy today that the French Government plans to "purge" French motion pictures and the radio, which it is said to deem largely responsible for "depraving the French spirit."

The newspaper's political editorial writer, Jean Fageat, wrote that Tino Rossi, a leading French screen star, "had more admirers than France's great patriots."

The Government was said to be planning to oust the men who became "dictators" of the French cinema. M. Fageat said that many film stars who fled Paris as the French line cracked will not be permitted to return to the French screen.

Seeks to Import Food.

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—French Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin said today that he was doing his utmost to obtain a British agreement to permit importation of food to France through the blockade and that the British decision is pending.

M. Baudouin said that Germany had given France assurances that food and other needed supplies sent from abroad into the unoccupied part of France would not be removed.

Accordingly, he said, he had made a new proposal to London for easing Britain's blockade of the European continent.

Nazis Disclaim Any Responsibility.

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The Nazi press today accused Swiss newspapers and other Swiss quarters of taking the attitude that Germany has a special obligation to forestall famine in Nazi-occupied France.

The German papers retorted that an armistice is not a peace treaty, that Germany herself is still engaged in a desperate war, and that Switzerland, furthermore, is meddling in something which is none of her business.

BERLIN ANSWERS KNOX

Sees No Overlap of German and U. S. Trade.

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Trade interests of the United States and Germany in no way overlap, authorized German spokesmen commented today, on a statement of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox that a British defeat would leave the United States without a friend in the world.

[Col. Knox made the statement yesterday before the House Military Affairs Committee in Washington to recommend adoption of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.]

Germany wants to trade with South America, the spokesman emphasized. He said that Germany resented a trade war and that such a move could only be conjured up by others.

Col. Knox's reference to the possibility of a British defeat in sixty days was noted with interest here, but there was no official comment, since no official text of his remarks was available.

"From Aug. 15 on Luxemburg no longer belongs to Belgian customs territory, in which it was included by the Versailles Treaty, which prohibited a German-Luxemburg customs union existent until then," the broadcast said.

Three-Cornered Fight For France Reported

Berlin Correspondent Of Geneva Paper Says Germans Are Watching Developments

Geneva, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Berlin correspondent of the Tribune de Geneve reported today that authoritative German sources are watching what it said was a three-cornered struggle for power in France.

The correspondent said the groups which are maneuvering for control under Chief of State Petain are led by Pierre Laval, Vice-Premier, interested in the civil government of reconstruction; Gen. Maxime Weygand and Gen. Charles Hunziger, one of the signers of the armistice terms, who are interested in a military form of government closer to dictatorship lines, and Jean Marchal, described as "successor to Jacques Doriot," editor of France au Travail in Paris.

Marchal, the correspondent wrote, has a strong Paris organization which is clamoring for a civil type of dictatorship.

R. A. F. DESTROYS OIL SUPPLIES IN FRANCE

Asserts Night Raid Across Channel Wrecked Valuable Blitzkrieg Deposits

Attacks Said To Have Turned German-Held Territory Into An Inferno

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 15—Destruction of invaluable supplies of oil for the Nazi engines of Blitzkrieg was reported today by the British Air Ministry, which said last night's blows at German-held France touched off an inferno of ruin.

Some returning pilots were reported seeing the glow of oil fires nearly 200 miles away.

The hardest bombings were reported in the Gironde river estuary section, at Blaye and at Ambes, where stored oil supplies, huge refineries and great tanks were ripped to pieces by direct hits.

"Most Important" Refineries

The supplies and refineries hit were described by the Air Ministry as "among the most important in France," and doubtless used by the Germans to bolster their own fuel resources.

Crews of bombers who attacked at Blaye for an hour said they spotted eighteen tanks and dive-bombed them all.

The first bombers on the scene plunged down to a height of only 300 feet before loosing their bombs. Later, apparently after ground defense batteries got into action, bombs were dumped from 10,000 feet—nearly two miles above the targets.

The British flyers said the smoke pall from the ruin beneath them finally became so thick they could hardly locate their objectives.

'ORDERS' FROM SKY

Nazis Drop Them in Effort to Scare English.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Authoritative spokesmen said tonight that German planes had dropped documents purporting to be "operational orders" in England and said they were part of a "clumsy effort" to undermine English morale.

The documents were dropped Tuesday night. One bag of them, it was stated, was found in a place and under circumstances which made it obvious that the Germans wanted them to fall into the hands of British military authorities.

The same quarters said the Germans also had dropped empty parachutes in the midlands as "a clumsy hoax" on the same night.

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Authorized German quarters vigorously denied today reports abroad that German parachutists had landed in England.

"There is absolutely nothing to these reports," they said. "They are pure phantasy. Parachutists haven't landed anywhere in England."

The denial also was carried by the official German wireless.

BRITISH NOW THINK FOE SHELLED COAST

Splinters Point to Use of Long-range Guns.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Evidence supporting reports that the southeastern British coast has been shelled by long-range artillery across the English Channel was disclosed in authoritative British quarters today.

It was said that examination of splinters found on the coast indicated that they were from a shell which arrived "with forward velocity from the direction of the sea."

This was added, however: "Nothing very definite is known at present; the pieces picked up were very small and have been examined by experts who still are working on them."

Associated Press dispatches from a southeast coast town on Monday said explosions which caused casualties and property damage had occurred when no German bombers were overhead and were believed to have come from shelling by a German "Big Bertha" gun on the French coast.

Nelson's Famous Flagship Undamaged By Nazi Fire

British Conduct Tour Of Victory To Prove False German Claims Of Attack

Portsmouth, England, Aug. 15 (AP)—A naval officer conducted reporters over Lord Nelson's famous flagship Victory here today to prove, despite German radio assertions, that the famous British sea lion's flag still fluttered at the mainmast and that the famous ship was undamaged by air raiders.

A German radio broadcast today said the flag and its staff had been sent crashing recently by a bomb which fell near the old ship, now "ashore" as a memorial to Nelson and his sea victories, and that British sailors viewed it as an ill omen.

"The ship has taken some buffeting in her time and she came through all right Monday," the naval officer said.

Gen. Sikorsky, accompanied by Lord Hamilton, as the King's representative, strode past the 6,000 men of the first Polish brigade as kilted Scottish pipers played the Polish national anthem.

Report Loss Of British Freighter In Atlantic

Owners Disclose Vessel Was Sunk With Death Toll Of Twelve

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)—Destruction of the British freighter Eclipside, 3,509 tons, in the Atlantic with a loss of twelve lives was disclosed today in a letter from her owners to the operators of the freighter Panamanian, which rescued twenty-one crew members.

Connell Grace Ltd., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, wrote Compania Transatlantica Americana, of New York, that the vessel was sunk July 17 by torpedo or mine. The letter praised the crew of the Panamanian for the rescue.

As the President Fillmore during the World War, the Panamanian fired the first American shot, a blast that sent a German U-boat to the bottom on April 19, 1917. She recently was reconditioned and put in service under the Panamanian flag.

Windsors Sail For Nassau; Secrecy Veils Ship And Route

Bahamas To Accord Honor To Duchess Never Before Extended To Wife Of Governor

[By the Associated Press]

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 15—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor ended a six-day stay here and sailed for the Bahamas yesterday. The secret sailing was announced today.

"The Duke and Duchess have left Bermuda; no other information is available," said a brief official statement. There was no indication when the Duke might reach Nassau, capital of the Caribbean winter playground the former British monarch will rule as Governor.

In a brief message to the people of Bermuda the Duke expressed the appreciation on behalf of himself and his American-born Duchess for the "charming hospitality" of this island resort.

The royal couple arrived last Thursday aboard the American ship Excalibur and spent their time shopping, golfing and being entertained at a round of parties at Government House, home of Bermuda's Governor-General where they stayed.

The dais on which the Governor's throne is placed is two steps high, beneath a canopy upon which rests a golden crown.

Special Distinction

As a special mark of distinction for her rank, colonial officials have erected a dais half way between the general floor level and the throne level. It is covered with heavy red cloth and bears a heavy chair upholstered in red leather. The small platform is for the Duchess alone.

Nassau took on a gala appearance today in anticipation of the arrival of the Duke and his American-born wife, but there was no official word as to when they would arrive here from Bermuda.

Bishop Cancels Trip

spend a week in Baltimore after a vacation trip to Boston and hastened homeward in the hope of reaching Nassau in time for the induction.

For the new royal Governor, the colony brought out its finest decorations—flags and pennants used when Nassau was dressed up three years ago during the coronation in London of George VI.

Britain Offers Air-Sea Bases For Over-Age U. S. Destroyers

Plan Reported In Congressional Quarters As Senator Lee Pushes Plea To Transfer Warships

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 15—Great Britain, seeking additional weapons to combat the Nazis, was reported today to be offering to lease certain naval base sites in the Western Hemisphere to the United States in return for fifty or more old destroyers.

These reports circulated in Congressional quarters as Senator Lee (Dem., Okla.) told the Senate that transfer of the vessels ought to be made in the interest of American defense.

Lee, who visited the White House during the day, argued that the transfer could be made without further Congressional action, a point said to have been involved in the latest British appeal for destroyers.

Usually reliable sources said they had been informed that the British proposal had been transmitted to the White House and was under study there.

They said it involved an offer by the British to lease for ninety-nine years sites in British possessions in the Western Hemisphere that would be suitable for United States naval and air bases to protect the Panama Canal and to guard this country against any invasion from the Atlantic. The British were pictured as reluctant, however, to give up sovereignty over any of their possessions.

Although there was no official comment on this proposal, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, told his press conference that the British had made repeated appeals for destroyers. He declined to comment when he was asked if Britain had offered to trade island possessions for warships.

The chief question involved appeared to be whether such a transfer of naval vessels could be accomplished without Congressional action—even if the Administration decided to take such a step. Lee contended it could and there were reports that the White House had received an opinion from the Attorney General to that effect.

The Oklahoma Senator told the Senate that all that was needed to pave the way for Great Britain to obtain the destroyers was for the chief of naval operations (Admiral Harold R. Stark) to certify that the vessels were not needed for American defenses.

He pointed out that both political parties had pledged aid to Great Britain, within the law, in their platforms and cited an opinion prepared by four attorneys—Charles G. Burlingham, Thomas D. Thacher, George Rublee and Dean Acheson—to support the claim that existing law did not bar the transfer.

Senator Schwellenbach (Dem., Wash.) immediately disputed this interpretation of the law, citing a 1917 statute against the sale of any naval vessel to a foreign power.

Vandenberg Reply

Senator Vandenberg (Rep., Mich.) observed that, aside from the legal question involved, it was his understanding that the navy did not want to turn loose any of its destroyers. He cited testimony by Lewis Compton, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee in June to the effect that he and Admiral Stark were opposed to sale of destroyers.

That, replied Lee, was Compton's personal opinion. He said he had been informed by the Navy Department that it had taken no official stand on the question.

Interrupting, Senator Tydings (Dem., Md.) said it appeared to him that halfway measures to aid Great Britain were not going to do much good—that the United States ought to make up its mind whether it was necessary for the preservation of this country to go into the war, or whether it ought to stay out of it entirely.

Why Not Whole Fleet?

"It seems to me," he told the Senate, "that if we are going to turn over fifty obsolete ships to Great Britain, it might be better to turn over the whole fleet."

"Understand," he added, "I am not advocating that."

Lee said he thought that if the United States escaped the war it would be because it had had time to prepare adequate defenses. For that reason, he said, everything possible ought to be done short of actual participation in the war to aid Great Britain in its fight.

"The battle for humanity is being fought now in England," he declared. "I believe in freedom and liberty. England is fighting for those principles now. We ought to aid her."

When Lee concluded his address, gallery spectators applauded and were mildly reprimanded by Senator Pepper (Dem., Fla.), an advocate, like Lee, of "aid short of war" to Britain.

Britain Hopes To Sell Women's Clothes In U. S.

Seeks To Dispose Of $1,000,000 Worth To Obtain Currency For Defense

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)—Great Britain hopes to sell $1,000,000 worth of women's coats and suits in this country in the coming months to get United States currency to spend for defense.

She is sending over the first big cooperative show of models by her outstanding manufacturers ever held outside England—a collection of 400 garments designed and made by forty-two manufacturing firms.

The trade exposition project has British Government backing, Irving L. Portenoy, a British manufacturer here in connection with the showing, said today.

CONSUL IS PROBLEM

State Department May Ask Recall of German.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The State Department was reported reliably today to be considering asking the German Government to recall one of its consular officials from this country because of his past activities in Brazil.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said that the case of Friedrich Reed, recently transferred from Brazil to New York, was under active consideration and he planned an early announcement in the matter.

In other quarters it was reported that the action probably would be a request that Reed leave this country in the interest of inter-American solidarity because of his activities in Brazil.

The State Department was asked by the Non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League to investigate Reed soon after he arrived in New York.

CLIPPER ARRIVES FIVE HOURS LATE

Part Of Time Spent In Looking For Possible Survivors Of Lost Vessel

Forced To Stop At Bermuda, Where 1,920 Pounds Of Mail Are Taken Off

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 15—Five hours behind schedule, the Yankee Clipper arrived at LaGuardia Field today with thirty-seven passengers from Lisbon, Horta and Bermuda, where strong head winds forced an unscheduled stop.

Part of the Clipper's flying time was spent, Capt. Robert Ford said, in a vain search for possible survivors of a vessel believed to have been torpedoed off the Santa Maria and San Miguel Islands. An oil slick was sighted.

British Take Mail

At Bermuda British authorities removed 1,920 pounds of mail, but put aboard 539 pounds taken off the Dixie Clipper earlier in the week.

Among the Clipper passengers were Mrs. Marie Pons, mother of Lily Pons, of the Metropolitan Opera; the singer's niece, Vivian Solal, 11, and Mrs. Jonkheer Jan Snouck Hurgonje, the former Eleanor Wharton Barker, of Germantown, Pa., and her 7-month-old daughter, Eleanor.

Mrs. Hurgronje, wife of the consul of the Netherlands Legation in Brussels, Belgium, told of her flight from Brussels during the German invasion last May. She said she traveled through many bombardments, but that the worst was at her home in Brussels. She said she would go to Germantown.

Mrs. Pons said she would remain in the United States for the duration of the war, at her daughter's estate near Norwalk, Conn. The war, she said, had forced her to leave her home at Avignon, France.

Soon after the Yankee Clipper arrived, the Dixie Clipper took off for Horta and Lisbon, with five passengers and 2,861 pounds of mail.

Among the departing passengers was Capt. Jacques Quellenec, of Paris, a member of the French Purchasing Commission and a cosmetics manufacturer. He said his business partner had been made a prisoner in France and that he was forced to return home to handle the business.

Reports British Bombers Take Big Toll In Germany

Boucherville, Quebec, Aug. 15 (AP)—The British flying boat Clare, bearing Capt. H. H. Balfour, British Under Secretary for Air, arrived late today from England on its second westward crossing in two weeks.

London reports said Captain Balfour was coming to Canada to confer on the empire's air-training program, which is centered in this Dominion.

"Just before I left London yesterday," Balfour said, "I had reports from our intelligence service in Germany showing the great toll our bombers have been taking in that country both as to material damage and the shattering of public morale."

Also aboard the Clare were W. W. Wakefield, British member of Parliament, and Captain Balfour's parliamentary private secretary, Sir Henry Tizard, chairman of the Aeronautical Research Committee of London, and his assistant, Capt. F. L. Pearce.

Sir Henry Tizard said he would make a visit to Washington on "important" matters, and would work with the Canadian National Research Council in devising more modern methods of production for the development of high-speed fighter planes.

Flying Boat Reaches New York

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)—The camouflaged British flying boat Clare arrived here tonight on its second westward transatlantic crossing resuming war-interrupted mail and passenger service between England and the United States.

NAZIS BOMB LONDON; FAILURE, SAY BRITISH

2 Greek Destroyers Attacked; Captains Blame Italian Planes

ATHENS, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—A high authority said here tonight the commanders of two Greek destroyers bombed by warplanes today had reported by radio to the Navy Ministry that the attacking planes were Italian.

The Government carefully refrained from any comment, insisting that the planes were of "unknown" nationality.

Nevertheless, the high authority said the officers of the two destroyers, the Vasilevs Georgios I and Vasipissa Olga, crafts of 1,350 tonnage, had carefully watched the planes through field glasses and reported "an absolute identification."

The Government was expected to continue to remain silent lest any statement imperil Greek neutrality at a time when the situation between Greece and Italy is growing hourly more critical.

The two destroyers were scheduled to arrive at Piraeus, the port of Athens, tonight.

Partial mobilization of Greek reservists has been set for August 20, it was officially announced tonight.

An official announcement said that category 15-D had been called to the colors, beginning next Tuesday. Military informants said this category embraces anti-aircraft gunners and observers.

The two destroyers, according to reports reaching Athens, escaped damage by zigzagging at full speed. They did not open fire on the planes.

It also was reported that a Greek merchantship identified as the Frin was bombed by "unknown" warplanes while lying in an unidentified Greek harbor.

The air attacks came amid mounting tension in the relations between Greece and Italy, following a bitter Italian press campaign against the little kingdom.

Diplomatic observers expressed belief that the secret attacks left Greece virtually with an undeclared war on her hands.

No Defensive Measure as Yet.

Officials, however, declared the Government had not yet taken any defensive military measures because it felt that the Power which was secretly attacking Greek ships was seeking just such provocation.

The destroyers were en route to Tinos Island to escort merchant ships returning thousands of pilgrims to their mainland homes.

Many of these pilgrims, who had gone to the island to observe the Feast of Our Lady yesterday and to bathe in the health-giving waters of a famous Greek shrine, were on the quay when the Greek cruiser Helle was torpedoed and sunk yesterday by an unidentified submarine.

The reported attack on the destroyers strengthened belief in diplomatic quarters that the neutral position of the Greek Government would be more difficult than ever to maintain, and that definite action was under way to force the Greeks to abandon neutrality.

If the attacks continue, it was pointed out, and if the attacking party can officially be identified, Greece would be forced to declare war or come to terms with the attacker.

The Government, alarmed by this situation and the growing strain on its relations with Italy, cautiously refrained from any act, gesture or word which might offend the axis Powers.

The Greek press unburdened itself—in limited fashion—by calling the torpedoing of the ship in Tinos Island harbor yesterday a "disgraceful and cowardly blow at Greece," but no speculation was permitted as to the possible identity of the submarine.

The death toll of the incident rose to five today.

All Greek ships were under orders to remain in port as the Government sought to protect the nations neutrality by eliminating the possibility of further incidents.

In New York, Greek Consul Mercantile Marine Capt. Nicholas Kourbalis said he had received no order halting Greek shipping in United States waters. He said developments in Greece indicated "we will be fighting Italy."

Italian troops are concentrating in Albania on the Greek border, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch broadcast from London and heard here by the National Broadcasting System.

The Government's investigation of the Helle's sinking continued in an effort to determine the nationality of the hidden submarine that fired the torpedoes, however, and Premier-General John Metaxas held further conferences with his army and navy chieftains.

Tension over relations with Italy mounted with the news that the Greek steamship Appeti had not been heard from for four days. The last message from the Appeti said she had been stopped by an Italian warship and ordered into Palermo, a Sicilian port.

The ship was bound from Lisbon to Piraeus with many American citizens of Balkan origin among her 400 passengers.

[At this point the Greek censor cut the connection in which this story was being telephoned to Budapest. The following matter was received earlier in the evening.]

The Greek government, however, ordered partial mobilization. A high authority declared definitely that the commanders of the destroyers, against which 17 bombs were directed without a hit, had identified the attacking planes as Italian. Witnesses told the same story.

In the mobilizing call for Aug. 20 was one category which military quarters said included anti-aircraft gunners and observers.

Identification of the attacking planes as Italian was "absolute," the high informant said, and the officers of the warships—the Vasilevs Georgios I and the Vasilissa Olga—had so wirelessed the Greek Navy Ministry.

Officials Silent

Nevertheless, the Government of this small pro-British kingdom—facing what some diplomatic observers interpreted as substantially an undeclared war—carefully refrained from comment, insisting that the bombers were of unknown nationality.

The destroyers were attacked en route to the island of Tinos in the Aegean Sea, where only yesterday the Greek cruiser Helle was mysteriously torpedoed by an unidentified submarine, the Greek Government said.

In Istanbul, the Turkish parliamentary deputy Husein Djahid Yaltchin declared "any attack against Greece will have the consequence of British assistance and Turkish intervention."

[In Turkey, Premier Rafik Saydam conferred with the Greek Minister and then held long conferences with army and navy leaders. While the Turkish press hinted strongly that any open Italian move against Greece might see Turkey involved, in fulfillment of the British-Turkey mutual assistance pact, Greece and Turkey also have a mutual assistance pact.]

One category of the men called up by the Greek government was that known as 15-D, which military quarters said included anti-aircraft gunners and observers, who were ordered to mobilize by Aug. 20.

Nevertheless, the government of this small pro-British kingdom—facing what some diplomatic observers interpreted as substantially an undeclared war—carefully refrained from comment, insisting that the bombers were of "unknown" nationality.

The destroyers were attacked en route to the Island of Tinos in the Aegean Sea, where only yesterday the Greek cruiser Helle was mysteriously torpedoed—by an "unidentified" submarine, said the Greek government. The government's investigation of the Helle's sinking continued in an effort to determine the nationality of the hidden submarine that fired the torpedoes, however, and Premier Gen. John Metaxas held further conferences with his army and navy chieftains.

There were signs that the government would maintain its policy of official silence, in the belief that the attacks were planned to force Greece to abandon her neutrality. The country has a guaranty of support from Great Britain if her independence is attacked.

Italians Apologize In Greek Bombing

ATHENS, Aug. 16 (AP).—The Italian naval attache was reported in reliable circles tonight to have apologized to Premier Metaxas for the aerial bombing directed at Greek destroyers today, declaring the Italian fliers had mistaken them for British ships.

Cruiser Sinking Called "Second Athenia" Case

Rome, Aug. 16 (AP)—Fascists declared angrily today that the torpedoing of the Greek cruiser Helle was "a second Athenia," perpetrated by the British navy to provoke a Greek-Italian explosion.

At the same time, they said, Italy would demand Greek reparations for the beheading, allegedly by two Greeks, of Daut Hoggia, Albanian "patriot," near the Greek border recently. This incident has been the cause celebre of recent Greek-Italian tension.

Persons who write with authority snapped back at suggestions that the Italians torpedoed the Helle off Tinos Island yesterday and said it was evident to them that the whole thing was a "new plot."

Silent On Bombings

Nothing was said immediately about the bombing of Greek warships today by planes declared in Athens to have been Italian.

By calling the case a "second Athenia," Fascists referred to German contentions that the British sank their own liner Athenia the night of last September 3 in the expectation that the tragedy would be blamed on the Germans.

Italy had another British air raid today, but authorities said only slight damage was done in two villages near the industrial city of Turin.

Two persons were killed and five hurt; a British plane was reported shot down.

The Italian high command announced another raid on the Malta air base, Halfar.

AUG 17 1940

Says British Sunk Helle.

ROME, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, today accused the British Admiralty of sinking the Greek light cruiser Helle yesterday and called it an attempt to precipitate a crisis between Italy and Greece.

Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia, denied British suggestions that an Italian submarine had torpedoed the Helle in Tinos Island harbor yesterday and declared it was evident this was "a new plot."

The sinking of the cruiser, he wrote, was "obviously a new blow struck by the British Admiralty which, in perfect agreement with the propaganda services, thought it could surely lay the responsibility on Italy, profiting from the present diplomatic phase of the Italian-Greek conflict with the obvious aim of provoking Greek reaction."

Other authoritative Italians also charged Britain with attempting to perpetuate a "second Athenia" case on the world in the sinking of the Helle.

No Submarine Near Tinos.

Announcing that no Italian submarine was in the vicinity of Tinos Island, Greece, when the Greek cruiser was sunk in that harbor yesterday, Italian authorities said none of their commanders had reported such an attack, and high Fascist leaders said Great Britain was responsible.

These spokesmen alleged that the British ordered the Greek warship sunk in order to stir up trouble between Greece and Italy, repeating the Athenia case.

Throughout the war the Italian press has supported German contentions that the British liner Athenia, torpedoed with a loss of 113 lives on the first day of the war was sunk by the British themselves to cast blame on the Germans.

Fascists said there was no connection between the sinking of the Helle and the decapitation of Daut Hoggia, a Albanian "patriot" near the Greek border, and that Italy would persist in her demands for "justice" for Albania and Albanians despite the newest British "maneuver."

Gayda wrote that "The problem of Italo-Greek-Albanian relations which shows itself acute after the assassination of Hoggia, "awaits its necessary satisfactory solution."

Italy, he declared, intends its limitation of the dispute and its course towards a solution "to be quite clear and separate from all criminal speculations of England which would like to profit from the present Greek complications after having largely created them."

Northern Cities Bombed.

ROME, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—British planes flying today across Switzerland bombed cities in northern Italy for the second time in three days. The authorities reported that one plane was shot down over Turin and that part of the crew of five were killed and the others captured.

Two persons were reported killed and five injured by bombs in rural districts as a result of today's raids, with only slight damage reported.

In Wednesday's raids on Milan, Turin, Tortona and Allesandria twenty-two persons were reported killed and more than fifty injured. The British in those operations dropped leaflets as well as bombs.

(Air raid alarms were sounded last night and early this morning in Basel and Bern, Switzerland, when foreign bombing planes flew over. The Swiss government ordered its minister in London to protest against violation of the Swiss frontier Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, when more than 30 foreign warplanes crossed Switzerland twice at a time when the British admittedly were bombing Italian industrial centers.)

At the same time the Italian high command announced its attack on British positions in British Somaliland "still is in full development."

Teh daily communique reported four killed and 12 wounded among Italians and natives during British aid raids on Massaua, Eritrea, and Colbocia.

AUG 17 1940

Turkey May Become Involved In Battle

Istanbul, Aug. 16—(AP)— Premier Ralik Saydam conferred with the Greek minister today and then held long conferences with army and navy leaders as Turkey took an increasingly serious view of the Italian-Greek situation.

The Turkish press hinted strongly that any open Italian move against Greece might see this country involved in fulfillment of the British-Turkish mutual assistance pact.

Diplomats recalled that Greece and Turkey signed a mutual assistance agreement in September, 1933.

Many newspapers bluntly asserted that Italy's accusations against Greece merely were a shield for an ambitious Italian program soon to be divulged.

Deputy Hussin Djahid Yaltchin, a widely read commentator, wrote that "any attack against Greece will have the consequences of British assistance and Turkish intervention."

ITALIAN ARMY MOVES CLOSER TO BERBERA

Armored Divisions Drive Deeper Into British Somaliland

Coast Of Gulf Of Aden South From Zeila In Fascist Hands

By LARRY ALLEN

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 16—Italian armored divisions drove their three-pronged attack deeper into British Somaliland today, advancing their lines within thirty-five miles of Berbera, the capital.

Fighting was furious in the mountain passes southeast and southwest of Berbera and along the coastline of the Gulf of Aden south from Zeila, which already is in Fascist hands, with Britain's native Somali troops inflicting heavy casualties.

Superior Numerically

British headquarters reported "nothing important" over other African war fronts. There were patrol encounters in Kenya, with slight Italian casualties.

The British and Italian air forces traded bombs from the Suez to Somaliland amid indications that British forces fighting on the southern shores of the Gulf of Aden might have to fall back, lacking reinforcements, on Berbera, their Somali capital and chief port.

The Italians bombed Alexandria anew overnight in an attempt to strike the British fleet concentration there, but failed to hit any warships.

Italian Positions Bombed

Official British announcements detailed air raids on Italian objectives from Libya to the coastal and inland roads of Somaliland, where the Italian mechanized columns are fighting their way toward Berbera.

Although the raids in British Somaliland were stated to have been "successful," British spokesmen said that the military situation there was "rather critical" and that the British, now defending heights around Berbera, may be forced to retire to the town itself.

These sources said the British were badly outnumbered, but declared that "there must be limits to reinforcements sent to Somaliland, limits imposed by the general strategic situation.")—

A naval communique said one person was killed and four injured last night in an air raid on the Alexandria area. A few planes dropped bombs, but material damage was negligible, the communique said.

AUG 17 1940

In the western desert there was calm, but reports indicated that Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was busy with his preparations for the expected drive on Egypt, giving his particular attention to the storage of huge water supplies.

French crews, operating with the R. A. F., scouted the Italians in the Jugargan Pass area, the communique said, and machine-gunned their lorries.

Destruction of a number of flying boats in a raid on Bomba, Italian Libya, was also reported.

Alexandria Raided.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Air raiders held Alexandria under alarm for two hours during the night. Anti-aircraft defenses were in action.

Several bombs fell into the sea, but none was reported to have fallen into the city itself.

Italians Slowed Up

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Aug. 16—British air and machine-gun attacks on Italian troop concentrations and communication lines in Somaliland have slowed up the Fascist advance on Berbera, capital of the protectorate, the British reported today.

AUG 17 1940

The Italians were said to be meeting stiffer resistance from British forces aided by native troops, and from constant bombing of columns attempting to advance from two directions.

One Italian column was using the coast road from Zeila to Berbera, and was aiming first at Burhar, forty miles west of Berbera. The other was driving from the south through Jurgaran Pass.

Today's British communique said Italian motor transports and troops were "successfully bombed and machine-gunned."

(The British military situation in Somaliland remains "rather critical" and the British defending the heights around Berbera may be forced to fall back on the town itself, authoritative sources in London disclosed today.

BRITISH MAY FALL BACK ON BERBERA

Somaliland Situation Is Called Critical.

LONDON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—The British military situation in Somaliland remains "rather critical and the British forces now defending the heights around the town may be forced to fall back on Berbera, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The British defenders of Berbera are badly outnumbered and are faced by two Italian divisions, but it is declared that "there must be limits to re-enforcements sent to Somaliland, limits imposed by the general strategic situation."

The battle for Berbera was understood to be still in progress, with Italian columns advancing on the city, seaport capital of the British possession, from the West along the coast and from the South through the Jugargan Pass region. Yesterday it was admitted that British units holding the latter position had been compelled to fall back and that Italian progress had been more rapid than had been expected.

Hungary Asks Two-Thirds of Transylvania

Rumanians Submit 'Severe' Demands to Government, but Agreement Is Doubted

TURNU SEVERINU, Rumania, Aug. 16 (AP).—Hungary, at a ten-minute conference here today, formally demanded of Rumania the return of approximately two-thirds of the "lost" Province of Transylvania, according to reliable reports.

The Rumanians, stunned by the "extremely severe" proposals, which they said King Carol II could not possibly approve, nevertheless returned to Bucharest to lay the plan before their government. The Hungarians retired to the river boat on which they had come to await return of the Rumanian delegation on Monday. Both Rumanians and Hungarians appeared pessimistic.

Strained Italian-Greek relations also deepened the feeling that adjustment of the dispute might have to wait until the end of the war. Some quarters felt developments between Italy and Greece might cause Germany to shelve the whole Transylvanian revision question for the time being.

RUMANIA GETS NEW HUNGARIAN PLAN

Transylvanian Demand Called Extremely Severe.

TURNU-SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Rumanian delegates to a conference on Hungary's claims to Transylvania returned to Bucharest tonight to report to King Carol on what was described here as an extremely severe Hungarian proposal.

Hungary's delegates earlier had submitted a completely new plan for settlement of the dispute for the rich province. Details were kept secret but the proposal was believed to be based on a Magyar minimum demand for three-fourths of Transylvania.

The conference then adjourned to permit the Rumanians to return to Bucharest to discuss the proposal with their Government.

The Rumanian proposals were stated to be cession of a narrow strip of border territory up to but not including Silistra, and Baric, a town about ten miles north of the Bulgarian frontier on the Black Sea.

[Rumania was understood to have insisted upon retaining Silistra, on the south side of the Danube, because its hilly location dominates the surrounding plain and would afford military protection for Bucharest, which is only forty miles away.]

That the Hungarians brought no statisticians or technical experts was regarded as an indication the present meeting will deal only with the general principles of the proposal or a Rumanian counter-proposal.

Bulgaria And Rumania To Start Dobruja Talks

Sofia, Saturday, Aug. 17 (AP)—Premier Bogdan Philoff announced early today that negotiations with Rumania over Bulgaria's claim to southern Dobruja will begin Monday.

The statement was made after a long Cabinet meeting which discussed a Rumanian memorandum received late last night. It was interpreted in some quarters to mean that Rumania will give up all of southern Dobruja including the cities of Silistrat on the Danube and Baltic on the Black Sea which Rumania had wanted to retain in any cession of the province.

Quarters close to the Government hinted that Russian intervention had caused Rumania's new attitude.

Bulgaria Won't Compromise

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP) Via Radio).—The Berlin radio quoted "informed quarters" in Sofia, Bulgaria, today as declaring that projected negotiations with Rumania over Dobrudja were "out of the question" unless Bulgaria's demands were met.

Bulgaria's minimum demands were represented as calling for cession of a forty-mile-wide strip of territory up to and including Silistra (Silistria), on the Danube, and Mangalia, on the Black Sea.

Swiss Lodge Protest.

BERNE, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—The Swiss Government today ordered its Minister in London to protest against violation of the Swiss frontier Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, when more than thirty foreign warplanes crossed Switzerland twice.

The planes first flew over Switzerland southward and then crossed the country again on a turn at a time when British planes admittedly were bombing industrial centers in northern Italy.

Last night and early today more foreign bombing planes took the same route, and air raid alarms were sounded in Basle and Berne. A first alarm in Berne was from 11:28 P. M. until 11:47 and a second from 1:19 A. M. until 2:01 A. M. Basle's alarm w[illegible] from 1:35 A. M. to 1:40.

The three established offices in the American Embassy.

French Leader Hits At British Blockade

VICHY, France. (AP) — Marcel Deat, French rightist political leader, today blamed the British blockade for France's inability to import wheat and other needed supplies and hinted the German occupation might become "increasingly severe" on the French people if the blockade is continued.

Deat criticized Frenchmen who express hope England will win the war, declaring that "it is to the evident and certain interest of France that England be defeated as rapidly as possible."

Deat wrote in an article in L'Oeuvre that if food importations cannot be resumed "through the use of our stocks of gold deposited on the other side of the Atlantic," the Winter will bring the menace of famine.

"Will it be then that the German occupation, harassed by the same troubles (the blockade), will take on an increasingly severe character?" Deat asked. He argued that the "immense riches" of the British empire should be used "for the peace and welfare of the world and be returned to the people collectively."

PARIS THEATRE BARS NEGROES AND JEWS

16 Entertainment Places Reopen Under German Surveillance

PARIS, Aug 13 (Delayed, via Berlin) (AP)—No longer does Josephine Baker, American singer and dancer, headline Paris cabaret revues. Many other American Negro entertainers, too, are jobless because Negroes and Jews have been banned from the French theatre and entertainment world.

New managers, impresarios and owners have come to the fore in the French theatre and night club world in the wake of regulations issued by German and French naval authorities.

Several new newspapers specializing in anti-Semitism have printed lists purporting to show that France's theatrical and motion picture industry was dominated by Jews. They have campaigned for a "purge" of the entertainment world and have mentioned several well-known stars as Jews.

In at least one case this identification was denied indignantly by a world-famous artist who said the report was inspired by a professional rival.

As a sign of the times, one theatre showing a modern comedy displayed in its advertisements: "Pure French by pure Frenchmen."

Marshal Simeon Budyenny, former chief of the Moscow military district, also was named a Vice Commissar. His successor to the Moscow post was not announced immediately.

CLIPPER RUNS INTO WAR CRISIS

Finds New Caledonia at Odds Over Petain.

BIG SHIP ARRIVES AT GOAL

Pacific Flyer Is Welcomed by Auckland Official.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Passengers aboard the California Clipper, which arrived here today on its around-the-Pacific cruise, found a crisis boiling in New Caledonia, a French Island possession, during their brief halt at Noumea, its capital.

The island council has announced that it will follow Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Committee in London, which is continuing to fight against Germany, but Gov. George Pelicier has refused to align himself with this stand.

Although he has not specifically declared allegiance to the Petain Government at Vichy, he is considered strongly pro-Petain.

New Caledonia is the world's third largest producer of nickel and an important exporter of chrome, both important for munitions making. Many residents feel that if the colony adheres to the Petain regime Japan will attempt to bring it under her influence.

The Clipper arrived here at 2:50 P. M. (12:20 A. M., New York time). Minister of Finance Nash welcomed the party.

The Clipper, completing the first passenger flight on the new route from San Francisco to the Antipodes, covered the 7,600 miles in 52 hours and 57 minutes flying time.

The Clipper was delayed for twenty-four hours at Canton Island, mid-Pacific base, to repair a hole punched in an aileron by the radio mast of the station launch during mooring operations Monday night.

Among those aboard the California Clipper was Ward Morehouse of The Sun. He, with other press representatives, left New York a week ago today, flying to California. They left aboard the clipper last Saturday, and flew to Honolulu.

From there the line of flight took them to Canton Island where they laid over an extra day because of the accident to the aileron, and then to Noumea, New Caledonia, and on to Auckland.

After a stay of several days in New Zealand, the party will fly to Australia, spend nearly a week there, and ten visit the Dutch East Indies, Singapore, and Hongkong. They will return to the United States by way of the Philippines, Wake and Midway islands.

JAPAN IS REPORTED SEEKING SIAM PACT

Chinese Fear Tokio Will Ask Plane Bases There.

HONGKONG, Aug. 16 (A. P.)—Chinese reports that Japan is seeking special rights in Thailand (Siam), including air, land and naval bases, were revived today by the proposed departure next week for Tokio of a Thailand military mission.

These reports said that among the things Japan sought were the use of Thailand's railways, a mutual assistance pact and close economic and military collaboration.

A Chinese spokesmn said that persistent Chinese inquiries had failed to elicit specific information from Thailand, but China was concerned because of the presence in Thailand of several million Chinese and because of Japan's expansion of influence southward.

Chinese inquiries originally were prompted by a Tokio spokesman's statement that the treaty of friendship reached on June 12 by Japan and Thailand basically was unlike agreements reached at the same time between Thailand and Britain and France.

Dinner to Welcome Windsors

Nassau Officials Will Honor New Governor —Rev. Jardine Wishes Duke Success.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—An exclusive dinner party on the night of their arrival will give the Duke and Duchess of Windsor their first taste of Bahaman hospitality.

A few hours after he takes an oath as Governor to "well and truly serve" his king-brother, the Duke is to escort his wife to the fashionable Emerald Beach Club—where they will be guests of the colony's highest ranking officials and their wives.

The Duke and Duchess sailed from Bermuda yesterday, but the name of the ship they boarded and the time of their arrival have been kept secret because of possible danger in the Atlantic Ocean from German raiders or submarines.

Others at the dinner will include members of the Executive Council, the Chief Justice, the Speaker of the Assembly and their ladies.

Sends Best Wishes to Duke.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—From the quietude of his virtual ecclesiastical exile, the English Episcopal clergyman who officiated at the marriage of former King Edward of England and the American divorcee, Wallis Warfield Simpson, today wished them every success in their new post as Governor and First Lady of the Bahamas.

But the sixty-two-year-old Rev. Robert A. Jardine, upon whom the doors of the Church of England once closed because he performed the ceremony three years ago in defiance of church tenets on divorce, believes the Duke and Duchess are destined for far greater services to the United Kingdom.

"The Duke should have been given the post of Viceroy of India," said Mr. Jardine. "There quite likely will be serious trouble in India as a result of the war, and Edward, in my belief, is best qualified for that post.

"But it may be that his post may be but a stepping stone for something eventually much better."

Flies to Welcome Duke.

Harold G. Christie, a member of the Governor's Council of the Bahamas, and president of the Bahamas Airways, left today on an Eastern Airlines plane for Miami. From there he will fly in his own plane to Nassau to attend the official reception to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

He announced that the Bahamas Airways had just purchased another plane for service between Nassau and the Outer Islands because, he said, more people are expected there during the winter social season than ever before.

Induction Ceremony For Duke Of Windsor Set Today At Nassau

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor will be sworn in as Governor General of the Bahama Islands tomorrow morning in a traditional ceremony.

Accompanied by his Duchess, the new Governor will first set foot on Bahaman soil about 9 A. M. The induction will take place immediately.

The Windsors came here from Bermuda, first stop on their voyage from Europe, on a vessel, the name of which was not disclosed because of wartime censorship.

A half-holiday was declared here in order that all citizens may turn out to honor the new Governor.

Nazi Rule Forever Decreed For Poland

So Says Governor General In Addressing Party Meeting In German-Held Krakow

Berlin, Aug. 16 (AP)—Hans Frank, German Governor General for occupied Poland, told a Nazi mass meeting today in Krakow that "we are in this land and as Germans we will never again leave it."

"The swastika will fly over this land forever," Frank said in his speech, which was carried by radio to 30,000 Nazi party members active in Poland.

Referring to a decision that that part of German-occupied Poland not formally annexed by the Reich, in the future no longer would be treated as an occupied area—that is, foreign territory—but as a part of Greater Germany, Frank said the Polish people again, as they did 700 years ago, are entered into the protectorship of the German nation.

Governor Says Swastika Will Fly Forever.

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Hans Frank, German Governor-General for occupied Poland, told a Nazi mass meeting today in Craekow that "we are in this land and as Germans will never again leave it."

"The Swastika will fly over this land forever," he said.

Referring to a decision that the "government-general"—that part of German-occupied Poland not formally annexed by the Reich—in the future would no longer be treated as an occupied area—that is, foreign territory—but as part of Greater Germany, Frank said the Polish people again, as they did 700 years ago, are entered into the protectorship of the German nation.

Whether this meant that this part of Poland now is raised to the status of a protectorate similar to Bohemia and Moravia was not made clear.

Italians Raid Halfar.

ROME, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—An Italian High Command communique announced today that direct hits had been scored and fires caused when an Italian formation raided Halfar, the airport at the British base of Malta. Stefani, the official Italian news agency, declared this was a counter-attack for Britain's raid on the naval base at Augusta, Sicily, two nights ago.

This was taken by foreign observers to mean that despite almost continuous Italian bombing of Malta since Italy's entrance into the war, the British raid on Augusta had been directed from the Maltese air field.

Communiques of Belligerents

British

LONDON, Aug. 17 (Saturday) (AP).—An early morning communique of the Air Ministry said:

On several occasions during yesterday (Friday) evening, waves of enemy aircraft crossed our coast, but most of them scattered over a wide area and dropped bombs at many points in country districts of Hertfordshire, Essex, Surrey, Hampshire and Oxfordshire.

Little damage was done. Some people were injured, but reports so far received indicate that the number of killed was small.

A deliberate attack was made on the residential town of Eastbourne, where damage was caused and several persons were fatally injured.

Casualties, including some deaths to service personnel, were caused at R. A. F. airdromes, at one of which considerable damage was done to buildings.

Although full reports are not yet available, the total of enemy aircraft now known to have been destroyed during yesterday (Friday) is seventy-one.

Eighteen of our fighters were lost, but the pilots of ten of them are safe.

Another Air Ministry communique said:

The German high command communique issued yesterday (Friday) admits the loss of only thirty-two aircraft in Thursday's air battle in the course of which 169 enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Although most of the fighting took place over the sea, it is now known that forty-nine enemy aircraft were brought down on land.

The German high command will find it difficult to explain how the wreckage of forty-nine of their aircraft came to be strewn over the British countryside if their total losses for the day were only thirty-two.

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique issued today said:

Royal Air Force bombers renewed their attack on Italy last night. The Fiat-aero engine factory at Turin and the Caproni aircraft works at Milan were bombed.

A blast furnace near Genoa was also hit. Another strong force of bomber aircraft attacked the oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Reisholz, munition factories at Lunen, Essen, Gladsach and Duesseldorf, and wharves at Emmerich, on the Dutch-German frontier.

The supply depots at Hamm and Soest and several airdromes in France, Holland and Germany were attacked.

The dock basin at Helder in Holland was attacked by aircraft of the coastal command last night. An aircraft of this command on the night patrol shot down an enemy seaplane.

Three of our aircraft are missing from all these operations.

Another Air Ministry communique said:

Enemy air activity was on a small scale until midday today, when a large force of bombers and fighters approached the southeast coast.

Some of these came inland but were intercepted and engaged by our fighters and turned back before reaching the outskirts of London. The remainder entered the Thames Estuary and dropped bombs at several points on either side of the estuary.

At Tilbury and Northfleet some damage was done and a number of people were injured; some were killed.

These aircraft were also heavily engaged by anti-aircraft guns and fighters. A number of them passed round the southeast of London, but no bombs were dropped in this area.

In the early afternoon an attack was made at several points on the south coast.

Bombs were dropped in the Isle of Wight, causing little damage, and an R. A. F. airdrome was attacked.

Later a large force of enemy aircraft again entered the Thames Estuary and some of these dropped bombs in the southwestern suburbs of London. A station was hit and shops and houses were damaged. Reports so far received indicate that a small number of people were injured, some fatally. During the evening enemy attacks were renewed at a number of points from which reports are not yet available.

Twelve of our fighters are reported lost, but the pilots of eight of these are safe.

CAIRO, Aug. 16 (AP).—The British Royal Air Force communique issued today said:

A highly successful raid was made on Bomba by the R. A. F. Thursday, inflicting damage on a number of float planes and flying boats in the harbor.

A petrol fire was started which ignited a flying boat jetty and also two flying boats. A flying boat petrol tanker exploded and continued to burn alongside the jetty. Two other flying boats in the harbor sank and a majority of the remainder were hit.

All our aircraft returned safely.

In Italian East Africa raids were made on Macaaca, Jijiga and the Dessye district. Hits were registered on hangars at Macaaca and on airdrome buildings at Dessye.

Our aircraft continued to harass Italian operations in British Somaliland. Motor transports and troops were successfully bombed and machine-gunned on the Bulhar-Zeila Road, also on the Bijo Fogo-Zeila Road and in the Tugarga area.

French crews operating with the Royal Air Force carried out valuable reconnaissance flights in the Adadleh, Qadweina and Hargeisa districts, during which lorries (trucks) were machine-gunned.

Air force and naval barracks at Massawa (Eritrea) were attacked by formations of bombers with considerable damage to buildings.

On Aug. 13 a formation of enemy bombers attempted to attack Wajir (in Kenya), but was driven off before reaching its objective. On the same day an enemy fighter was shot down in British Somaliland and the pilot captured.

A communique issued tonight said:

"Somaliland—Our forces continued to hold their reserve positions while enemy pressure is constantly renewed. The troops are reported to be standing up well to intense and prolonged bombardment.

"Kenya—A successful patrol encounter near Buna resulted in loss to the enemy of four killed and five prisoners while our casualties were nil.

"On other fronts there was nothing important."

ADEN, Aug. 16 (AP).—A British communique issued here today said:

A Royal Air Force bombing attack on Adadleh was believed to have considerably damaged a transport concentration.

A successful bombing attack was carried out on Jijiga airdrome, where several fires were started.

There was a heavy attack on buildings and airdrome at Dessye, Abyssinia (Ethiopia).

An enemy bomber was shot down into the sea in flames. All aircraft returned safely.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP).—The communique issued today by the German high command said:

The German air force continued its attacks on ports, armament works, landing fields and balloon barrages on Aug. 15 and during the night of Aug. 15-16.

Harbor facilities in Portland, Scarborough, Bridlington and Middlesbrough, airplane factories and motor works in Birmingham and Brough, near Hull, as well as hangars, barracks and numerous flying fields in south, southeast and central England, were heavily damaged.

Total losses of the enemy on Aug. 15 reached at least 143 planes, of which 106 were shot down in air battles, the rest destroyed on the ground or downed by anti-aircraft fire. Furthermore, twenty-one balloons were shot down. Thirty-two German planes did not return. However, the German rescue service saved nine Germans and one British flyer in the Channel.

A submarine sank two armed merchant vessels, totaling 14,000 tons.

Some mine sweepers shot down four out of ten attacking Spitfires.

Italian

In British Somaliland our offensive operations still are in full development.

An enemy plane was shot down in flames over Zeila (British Somaliland).

Two enemy air raids on Massawa (Eritrea) and a flying field at Colbolcia caused limited damage. There were four killed and twelve wounded among Italians and natives.

During air action by our planes against Majer (Kenya colony) two enemy planes on the ground were destroyed. English pursuit planes were shot down in combat.

Our bombing formations, escorted by pursuit planes, bombed Halfar airport in Malta, scoring direct hits on objectives and causing fires. Enemy pursuit planes, after having started to attack our formations, withdrew. An enemy plane was shot down. All our planes returned.

In North Africa our planes bombed the railroad between Fuca and Mersa Matruh (Egypt).

In the early hours of this morning a new air raid coming from Switzerland was carried out by the enemy on locations in northern Italy with the dropping of bombs, some of which, falling on the rural communes of Merate and Olginate, caused two deaths, injuries to five and slight material damage.

An enemy plane was hit by anti-aircraft batteries of Turin and fell near Ceresole d'Alba. Part of the crew of five men was killed and part captured.

BRITISH SHIP TORPEDOED OFF IRISH COAST

English Tanker And Two Greek Freighters Also Sent To Bottom

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 16—Mackay Radio reported today the British steamer Clan McPhee radioed she had been torpedoed at 12.37 P. M.

The ship gave its position as latitude 56.50 north and longitude 17.40 west, which would place it about 400 miles west of Ireland.

The ship is a freighter of 6,628 tons and is 430 feet long. It was built in 1911 for the Clan Line, and operated out of Glasgow.

British Tanker Sunk

Villa Franca Do Campo, The Azores, Aug. 16 (AP)—The 8,406-ton British tanker British Fame was torpedoed and sunk Monday 200 miles south of Sao Miguel Island, the Azores. Fifteen surviving sailors reached here yesterday.

Three sailors died in the explosion and thirty-five others in two lifeboats are still missing. The submarine took the captain prisoner.

Nine men drowned on the Thetis A. and one was killed on the Naftilos, the Register said.

U. S. Seeks British Plane, Naval Bases

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 16—Negotiations for the acquisition of naval and air bases from Great Britain were announced today by President Roosevelt simultaneously with the disclosure that American defense conversations were under way with Canada.

Linking both undertakings to defense of the American Hemisphere, Mr. Roosevelt promptly coupled his announcement with a caution to reporters against speculation that they might be tied up with Great Britain's request for old United States destroyers.

Swedish Steamer Attacked, Report

New York, Aps. 16—(AP)—The Swedish steamer Hedrun was reported torpedoed today off the Irish coast in a message picked up from England by Mackay radio.

An SSS message indicating an attack by a submarine said "Hedrun torpedoed." Mackay said the message came from the Portishead radio in the British Isles.

The ship gave its position as 57.10 north latitude, 16.37 west longitude, which would place it about 400 miles west of Londonderry, at the north tip of Ireland.

Built in 1920, the Hedrun is listed in Lloyd's Register as 2,325 tons, and 317 feet long. It last was reported in the South American trade.

(There had been reports in Congressional quarters that British and American officials might consider trading the warships for leases on air and naval bases on Britain's American possessions.)

Roosevelt's Statement

What Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference, in his voluntarily authorized quotation, was this:

"The United States Government is holding conversations with the Government of the British Empire with regard to the acquisition of naval and air bases by the United States for American Hemisphere defense, with special reference to the Panama Canal."

The Chief Executive turned immediately from that announcement to the Canadian discussions which he said were entirely separate. Again emphasizing the significance of the statement by making a formal statement, he declared:

"The United States Government is carrying on conversations with the Canadian Government looking toward defense of the American Hemisphere.

AUG 17 1940

President In Jovial Mood

The President, in a jovial mood, met the press in white shirt sleeves, bright plaid necktie and seersucker trousers.

Persistent questioning brought no details of either set of negotiations. The extent to which they may already have been synchronized with internal defense preparation and the Pan-American defense agreement recently reached at Havana was not elaborated.

The negotiations for bases to protect the Panama Canal were reported in one quarter to center on the Windward Islands in the southern entrance to the Caribbean Sea.

In this area are the British island of Barbados, strategically located in the southern mouth of the Caribbean, and British Trinidad, just off the coast of Venezuela.

Chief Unguarded Caribbean Passage

This is the chief unguarded passage into the Caribbean from the Atlantic, since United States naval bases at Guantanamo, Cuba, and Puerto Rico provide protection at the northern entrance.

Barbados is about 1,500 miles east of the Panama Canal and is about midway between French Martinique, where an American naval observer is to be sent, and the South American coast line.

Martinique and other French possessions in the Windward-Island group are subject to possible seizure by the United States or other American nations under the Act of Havana in event of threats to hemisphere security.

Canadian Negotiations

It was reported that the Canadian negotiations might involve Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, which jut out into the Atlantic northeast of New England. Also possibly involved was territory on the Pacific coast between the United States mainland and Alaska.

Reporters seeking information at the State and Treasury departments on whether reductions might be made in Britain's big war debt to the United States as payment for lease of naval and air bases could get no official comment. There were unofficial comments that such a move might be contemplated.

The President said the discussions with Britain and Canada were two separate things and that neither had any relation to the question of selling destroyers to the British.

Ship Discussion Refused

Asked whether he would discuss the question of selling destroyers to Britain as a separate and distinct proposition, the President declared he was not discussing destroyers.

He disclosed that the War Department had authorized two American generals to go to England at the request of the British as military observers and that they were now in the besieged country, together with an American naval mission, also acting as observers. One of the army observers is Gen. George Strong, assistant chief of staff in charge of the war-plans section.

Major General Delos C. Emmons, commander of the General Headquarters Air Force with headquarters at Langley Field, Va., was the other. It was announced previously that Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, assistant chief of naval operations, was sent over.

In Line With London

The President's insistence that the negotiations for naval and air bases not be linked with British proposals to acquire American destroyers was in line with assertions made by a Foreign Office spokesman in London.

(In Ottawa today Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King made a statement similar to that of President Roosevelt.)

Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative when asked whether Attorney General Robert H. Jackson had given him an opinion on the legality of the sale of destroyers.

A reporter asked whether he agreed with an opinion by four lawyers—Charles C. Burlingham, Thomas D. Thatcher, George Rublee and Dean Acheson—who held that "there is no insuperable legal barrier which stands in the way of their (destroyers) sale to the British in a manner compatible with the provisions of the Neutrality Act.

Mr. Roosevelt said he hadn't the faintest idea concerning this opinion, that he had seen it published but had not read it. He declined to say also whether he had made up his mind concerning the sale of destroyers.

Jackson had interrupted his vacation to return to the Justice Department today, where he held a breakfast conference with Solicitor General Francis Biddle, and N. A. Townsend, Assistant Solicitor General. It was reported the destroyer question was discussed, but none would comment.

This meeting, however, indicated that no formal opinion on the destroyer problem had been drafted.

Senator Lewis Schwellenbach (Dem., Wash.) immediately disputed such an interpretation of the law, however, citing a 1917 statute which, he said, banned the sale of any naval vessels to a foreign power.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau told a press conference that the British had made repeated appeals for destroyers. But he declined to comment when asked if Britain had offered to trade island possessions for warships.

After the reports were circulated, Senator Josh Lee (Dem., Okla.) told the Senate that transfer of the overage vessels ought to be made in the interest of this country's defenses.

After visiting the White House, Lee told reporters that there was no intention of seeking repeal of statutes in question. "The debate would be interminable," he said, "and Britain needs help now, not later."

Jackson Reported Studying Destroyer Sale To Britain

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Attorney General Jackson conferred today with legal advisers and navy chiefs, apparently studying from every angle the proposed transfer of fifty old destroyers to Great Britain.

Jackson interrupted his vacation to return to Washington and began the day with a breakfast conference with Francis Biddle, Solicitor General, his closest adviser in the Justice Department, and N. A. Townsend, Assistant Solicitor General, whose task is the preparation of legal opinions for the Attorney General.

Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, luncheon with Jackson and after attending a Cabinet meeting, the Attorney General talked again with Confirmed in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, in a statement similar to that made in Washington by President Roosevelt, said today that conversations are in progress between the United States and Canadian Governments looking toward defense of the American Hemisphere.

The Prime Minister said that because of the nature of the conversations he could not give any indication of their extent or elaborate on the President's announcement.

The question of consultation between the United States and Canada regarding defense matters was raised in the House of Commons in the recent session.

M. J. Coldwell, spokesman for the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, asked on July 31: "Are we entering into any consultations with the Government of the United States in connection with the preparation of a joint plan of defense for North America?"

The Prime Minister merely replied that if it were impossible to answer the question in an open session it would be equally impossible to reply in a secret session.

Meantime, Canada has taken steps to guard Canadian coasts and North American outposts against invasion.

Recently a new Atlantic army command was formed embracing Canada's maritime provinces and Newfoundland, where troops already are on duty.

Since the start of the war great coastal batteries have been in place and the navy has been on guard on the east coast.

Only yesterday Air Minister C. G. Power announced that Newfoundland's strategically placed land and sea plane bases be strengthened by expenditure of close to $1,000,000.

PREMIER KING AND PRESIDENT MEET TONIGHT

Canadian Prime Minister And Roosevelt Expected To Discuss Defense

[By the Associated Press]

Aboard Roosevelt Train En Route to Norwood, N. Y., Aug. 16—President Roosevelt followed up his announcement that the Canadian and United States governments were discussing "the defense of the American hemisphere" by disclosing tonight that Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada would dine with him tomorrow night at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

J. Pierpont Moffatt, United States Minister to Canada, also will be present.

White House officials made only the bare announcement of those two facts aboard the President's special train as it travelled toward upstate New York to give the Chief Executive a chance to inspect troops participating in peacetime war games.

May Discuss Air Bases

Presumably the President and Prime Minister will discuss specific methods of United States-Canadian cooperation on hemisphere defense, and possibly the question of American acquisition of naval and air bases on British possessions in the Americas.

It will be the first meeting between the Chief Executive and Mackenzie King since last spring, when the latter was Mr. Roosevelt's guest at Warm Springs, Ga.

The Prime Minister may attend military church service with the President Sunday morning.

Roosevelt Seeks Way To Help Finland

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today he was making inquiries to determine whether the $50,000,000 appropriated by Congress for the relief of war refugees might be used, in part, in Finland. The statement was made in reply to a press conference question.

He said there was no question of the United States sending soldiers to Europe, but that he was pretty sure Great Britain could hold out with "reasonable" assistance.

Asked how England could hold out against such mass attacks from the air as the Nazis have made in the last few days, Sir George said: "We're doing more damage to them than they are doing to us. England is prepared for air raids. They won't shake our morale; the people are determined to win."

He said he had not discussed with President Roosevelt the proposal that this country sell fifty destroyers to Britain but he expressed the personal opinion that such destroyers would be enormously valuable to his country to convoy ships.

London, Aug. 16-(AP)-American proposals for leasing air-bases on British West Indian Islands may be under discussion and will certainly be received "with interest and sympathy," a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

The spokesman emphasized that such proposals could not be linked with British proposals that Britain be permitted to purchase over-age American destroyers.

'CRITICAL FOR U. S.'

Gen. Marshall Comments on News From Europe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Marshall described as critical the situation facing the United States as a result of the climactic developments of the European war.

The Army Chief of Staff said at a press conference that he applied the term critical to the possibilities of the next month, in the Western Hemisphere.

Referring to the debate in Congress over compulsory military service, he asserted: "No one can say with certainty, the way things are going abroad, that we won't need the additional man power without delay.

"Time is the dominant factor, and time is fleeting."

SIR GEORGE PAISH VISITS ROOSEVELT

Says Britain Can Hold Out With America's Help.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Sir George Paish, British economist, told President Roosevelt today he was convinced that Great Britain could hold out against German attacks if the United States gave her "reasonable" assistance.

He told reporters after his talk with the President that he had come to this country to place his information at the disposal of the American people. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, head of Columbia University, had written both President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, asking them to see him.

GUARD MEASURE SOON TO BE LAW

Senate Expected to Agree Quickly to Changes.

HOUSE VOTES AYE, 342 TO 33

First 55,000 May Be Summoned on September 15.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Overwhelming House approval of the National Guard mobilization bill yesterday all but cleared the way meanwhile for the calling of an estimated 396,000 men to the colors for a year's active service.

The passage of the measure by a 342 to 33 vote late yesterday left progressive mobilization of the guard and reservists only two steps short of actuality—the Senate must first concur in some minor changes in the legislation it previously approved and then President Roosevelt must sign it into law.

The army meanwhile marked time, with plans ready to call up the first contingent of 55,000 guardsmen on September 15, and reports from war game areas where the militia is now training said the weeding out of physically unfit already was under way in the units to be summoned first.

House approval of the bill empowering the President to mobilize the National Guard came yesterday after a turbulent session which saw a series of modifying amendments decisively rejected. The major restriction defeated was a proposal to limit service of mobilized men to the continental United States, instead of permitting their use in the country's territories and possessions, and in the Western Hemisphere.

The final roll call found 215 Democrats, 124 Republicans, two Progressives and one Farmer-Laborite voting for passage, and five Democrats, twenty-seven Republicans and one American-Laborite against. The Senate vote last week was 71 to 7.

Leaders regarded House changes in the bill of such minor character that there would be no difficulty in obtaining Senate concurrence. With the Senate in recess for the week end, however, action was delayed.

Army officials said the men covered by the legislation were: 227,000 National Guardsmen, 116,000 reserve officers, 38,000 enlisted reserves, 3,700 retired officers and 12,000 retired enlisted men.

While the House disposed of the guard bill, the Senate yesterday continued to debate on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. After the session Senator Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska, said he was not willing to accept the amendment of Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, who proposes to defer the draft until January 1. Senator Burke said the country could not afford even that delay.

Senators Speed Action to Send Refugee Ships

Committee Approves Change in Neutrality Act for Aiding European Children

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP).—Unanimous approval by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee cleared the way for final action on an amendment to the neutrality act which would permit American ships to bring child refugees from European war zones.

The committee acted after making minor changes in legislation already approved by the House.

As reported to the Senate, the measure would permit American ships to enter combat zones and bring out children under sixteen years of age provided they had sponsors in the United States who would guarantee that they would not become public charges.

The House had imposed a requirement that the sponsor be liable for support of a refugee child on the same basis as his own children.

Senator Key Pittman, Democrat of Nevada, chairman of the committee, said he would ask unanimous consent to bring the bill before the Senate Monday, temporarily displacing the compulsory military training bill, in order to speed up final action.

LEHMAN SAYS WAR DEPENDS ON BRITAIN

Declares U. S. Cannot Hope To Avoid Conflict If England Loses

Urges All Weapons That Can Be Spared For Foe Of Germany

[By the Associated Press]

Stockbridge, Mass., Aug. 16—Governor Lehman asserted tonight England is "fighting our battle as well as her own" and if she is defeated the United States "cannot hope" to avoid war.

Speaking at an Allied relief fund benefit, New York's Chief Executive said that, in the event of Great Britain's fall, facilities of the victors for producing war materials "will be many times as great as our own."

Says Hitler Hates Democracy

"Can anyone reasonably believe that the dictator nations, hating and fearing democracy, will give us time for orderly preparation and rearmament," he asked. "Does anyone believe that if Great Britain is destroyed we can hope for long to keep the war from our shores?"

"Hitler hates democracy," the Governor declared, "he knows that so long as democracy exists in the Western Hemisphere dictatorship will have a powerful enemy which must be destroyed before he is safe.

Lehman, who fought for a Democratic platform plank assuring greatest possible aid for England at his party's recent national convention, said "we merely invite destruction of everything we hold dear by blinking the facts or by hiding our heads in the sand.

Urges Aid For Britain

"Leaving aside all motives based on sympathy or ideals and viewing the situation exclusively in our own interest, one fact seems undeniably clear: We should supply Great Britain with all possible weapons of war which we can spare without injuring our national defense."

He challenged the view that in such action "we are risking our own safety."

"Is this a risk which we can afford not to take," he queried. "If there is risk in action and hope, there is surely equal, if not greater risk in supineness and timidity. The fate of eight nations forcefully demonstrates that fact."

Other Speakers

Other speakers were Sir Louis Beale, attached to the British Embassy at Washington, who expressed thanks on behalf of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, for the benefit, and Dorothy Thompson, newspaper columnist.

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of the Library of Congress, presided. Governor and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, of Rhode Island, occupied official boxes. One hundred boxes were sold at $50 or more each.

An audience of more than 7,500 persons attended the program which was sponsored by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The orchestra played a selection under direction of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky.

An auction was conducted by Owen Johnson, novelist, and another orchestra played for dancing on the lawn. The program ended with a fireworks display.

To Report To Stimson On Nazis In Puerto Rico

Representative Thomas Also To Reveal Findings In Panama Canal Zone Monday

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Representative J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., N. J.) declared today he would report to Henry Stimson, Secretary of the Navy, Monday on "unmistakable Nazi activities in Puerto Rico."

Thomas, who has just returned from an inspection trip to Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone, said he would make public Monday his reports to the Secretary of War and the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Thomas said the Nazi activities in Puerto Rico were not engineered directly from Berlin, but through Generalissimo Franco, of Spain. Thomas characterized the situation on the American island a "serious menace" to hemisphere solidarity. Regarding conditions in the Panama Canal Zone Thomas said his findings were "of prime importance."

Sailors From Interned Ships Head For France

258 From Pasteur And St. Malo Pass Through New York On Way From Canada

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—Aboard a heavily guarded special train, 258 French sailors from the crews of the armed French merchant ships, the Pasteur and St. Malo, now interned in Canadian harbors, arrived today from Halifax to sail for home via Lisbon aboard the Greek steamer Nea Hellas.

The sailors were taken in guarded busses to Hoboken, N. J., to board the Greek steamer scheduled to sail later today.

Canadian officials said about fifty of the Pasteur crew and fifteen of the St. Malo crew elected to remain in Canada and serve Britain on the Pasteur.

Ford Will Build 4,000 Airplane Motors for U. S.

Accepts Order and Works Also on Own Plane After Rejecting British Contract

By DAVID WITTELS

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 16.—Henry Ford, who said several weeks ago that he could, under certain specified conditions, build 1,000 airplanes a day, is going to make 4,000 aviation engines for the United States government.

The motors are to be built on an order from the National Defense Council and will be of the air-cooled type now made by the Pratt & Whitney division of the United Aircraft Corporation.

Announcement of the undertaking was made at the Ford offices in Dearborn after Dr. George Jackson Mead, a technical adviser to the Defense Commission, had passed most of today in conference with Ford officials, who in turn were in telephone communication with Henry Ford, now vacationing in the Huron Mountains of northern Michigan.

Mr. Ford, whose engineers have been experimenting for several months on various types of foreign aviation engines, said the government order would not interfere with his plan to build his own liquid-cooled airplane motor. This latter is to be a twelve-cylinder, 1,500 horsepower unit, to power a plane for which Ford already has blueprints drawn.

Details of the production program for the air-cooled engine were not disclosed. However, a complete factory lay-out was prepared recently while a 9,000-unit order for Rolls-Royce motors was being considered, and presumably it can be utilized.

Throughout his negotiations with the Defense Commission Mr. Ford has insisted that although his Canadian factories are manufacturing war munitions for Canada and the big Ford plant at Dagenham, England, has been making airplane engines and other machinery of war for Great Britain, he would permit his United States plants to make war materials "for defensive purposes only."

It was this insistence that caused a breakdown of negotiations for the 9,000 Rolls-Royce Merlin-type motors. Part of that order was an allotment for Great Britain.

SKILLED-LABOR SHORTAGE HITS ARMS SPEEDUP

Frankford Arsenal Production Plans Hampered By Scarcity

Only 98 Men Are Picked From Long, Daily Lines. 3,000 Vacancies Exist

AUG 17 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Philadelphia, Aug. 16—A shortage of skilled workers tonight blocked Government efforts to speed production of essential military materials at the huge Frankford arsenal, one of six major army munitions factories.

Major Ulysses J. L. Peoples, Jr., arsenal adjutant and public relations officer, said that only ninety-eight men who are qualified for approximately 3,000 vacancies in various skilled-worker classifications have been found in a week-long search.

Other Arsenals Affected

The jobs were opened up through an order a week ago by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, placing army arsenals on a 24-hour-day production basis.

Other arsenals affected by the speed-up order are at Rock Island, Ill.; Watertown, Mass.; Springfield, Mass.; Dover, N. J., and Watervliet, N. Y.

Major Peoples said the Frankford arsenal, the products of which include artillery shells, has been stepped up from a five-day to a six-day week with time-and-a-half pay for overtime, but that hundreds of men still are needed for key jobs.

In addition to the ninety-eight skilled workers culled from long lines of applicants passing through the arsenal offices daily, approximately 300 unskilled employes have been hired.

Army spokesmen have said that a lack of highly-trained men for certain jobs forms a "bottleneck" because a large number of unskilled jobs pyramid on each skilled job.

Major Peoples said the arsenal would hire qualified workers from any part of the country. Total employment there now is more than 4,500.

New U. S. Powder Plant Will Cost $25,000,000

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—The War Department today signed a contract calling for the construction of a $25,000,000 smokeless gunpowder plant designed to produce 200,000 pounds daily.

The Hercules Powder Company will build the plant on a site near Radford, Va., and will operate it for the Government on a fixed fee basis. Construction, on a 2,500-acre tract, will start immediately under the terms of the contract, will require ten months to build and employ 5,000 men. The operating force, the War Department said, would consist of about 2,500 men.

The War Department also announced a $15,899,642 order to two manufacturers for 156 bombing and training planes. A $14,861,342 contract for fifty-six four-engined bombers was awarded to the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, of San Diego, Cal., while the Fairchild aircraft division of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, Hagerstown, Md., was given an order for one hundred training planes to cost $1,038,300. Dates of delivery of the planes were not announced.

This order was the third since Congress in June voted $400,000,000 for 4,200 more army aircraft.

Plans Increased Output Of Manganese For Steel

Freeport Sulphur Company Subsidiary Will Expand Cuban Plant To Aid War Industry Needs

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Cuban-American Manganese Corporation, controlled by the Freeport Sulphur Company, today announced plans for expanding the capacity of its plant at Cristo, Cuba, to meet United States war industry needs for manganese, essential in steelmaking.

L. M. Williams, Jr., president of Freeport Sulphur, said the capacity by January 1 would be stepped up to 130,000 tons of ore from 100,000 annually.

Until recently, he pointed out, the United States has imported most of its requirements from Russia, India, the African Gold Coast and Brazil. By the expansion of output from Cuba, Montana and other domestic sources, he said, the United States is moving toward independence from distant supplies.

Missouri Powder-Plant Explosion Kills Five

Company Turning Out T. N. T. For British Government Is Scene Of Blast

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 16 (AP)—A powder plant turning out over 1,000,000 pounds of T. N. T. monthly for the British Government was the scene of a mysterious explosion today which killed five workmen and destroyed a small unit.

Officials of the Atlas Powder plant, six miles east of Joplin, said the cause of the blast may never be known because the building where it occurred was destroyed and every man inside was killed. Estimates of the amount of powder lost ranged from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds.

Immediately after the explosion, the number of guards on duty at the plant was increased, county officers rushed to the scene and the Federal Bureau of Investigation area office at Kansas City was notified.

British Arms Orders In U. S. Plants Upped At 'Miraculous' Pace

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—A spokesman for the British Purchasing Commission said today that munitions orders placed in the United States were being "constantly accelerated" and that the "loss in shipments to England is infinitesimal."

To describe the speed of order acceleration, the spokesman said that whereas contracts of last October were placed at a rate averaging five a day, the average day now sees twenty-five to forty placed.

He said the machine tool industry is "performing miracles" in meeting the demands of the British Government.

After the ceremony, the men went by train to Bolling Field for training as technicians, mechanics, photographers and parachutists.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR JOB

Nelson Rockefeller to Aid Defense Council.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today appointed Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, son of John D. Rockefeller Jr., to the newly created position of co-ordinator of commercial and cultural relations among the American republics.

In his new position he will work for the Council of National Defense.

Mr. Early said that Mr. Rockefeller was resigning as director and officer of enterprises with which he had been associated in South America and that he had obtained a leave of absence from Rockefeller Center, Inc., in New York city in order to devote his full time to his new duties.

N. A. ROCKEFELLER GETS DEFENSE POST

To Be Coordinator Of Commercial And Cultural Relations Among Republics

Will Take Part In Drive By U. S. To Counteract Fascist Influence

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 16—Friends of Nelson Rockefeller said his appointment today by President Roosevelt as Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations among the American Republics would be a major step in an unprecedented drive by the United States to counteract Fascist influence in Latin America.

His job, they said, would be to tie together the efforts of all branches of the Federal Government which had any bearing on affairs in the Western Hemisphere.

They disclosed that his appointment followed completion of a report he made to President Roosevelt on the possibilities of such a coordinated effort.

Just $1-A-Year Man

The President's press secretary, Stephen Early, said in Washington that Rockefeller would work for the Council of National Defense and be "another $1-a-year man." Early said the appointee would receive no remuneration and would be paid only subsistence, transportation and other expenses.

Rockefeller has obtained a leave of absence from Rockefeller Center, Inc., Early said, and will resign as director and officer of enterprises with which he had been associated in South America. He will continue as head of the Museum of Modern Art.

Second son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., young Rockefeller, 32, has been interested in Latin America for a number of years. He has visited most, if not all, the countries below the Rio Grande and often has expressed the conviction that the greatest problem of inter-American relations is that of human understanding.

Went To Spanish School

He believes, for example, that businessmen who work in South America should adopt the Spanish language and customs. He went to Spanish school for weeks before he made his first trip, thus shaming scores of employes of the Creole Petroleum Company—a branch of the Rockefeller-founded Standard Oil—into doing likewise.

He also set the Creole company into cooperation with the Government of Venezuela in improving education, health and general social conditions.

He has sponsored shows of Latin-American art in New York's Museum of Modern Art, of which he is president. A Mexican exhibit is there now.

To Build Modern Hotel

He recently headed a group to build a modern hotel in Caracas. His friends said he considered this project a test tube to show the value of Latin America as a land of profitable North American investment. They predicted that if it succeeded, Rockefeller money would be poured into the building of other parts of the South American continent.

Rockefeller's connection with the Government in Latin American affairs began some weeks ago, when he was invited to work with the State Department in drafting a program to follow at the Havana conference. He has had a desk in the department since that time.

Philadelphia Prelate Announces He Feels Fine On His Birthday Anniversary

Philadelphia, Aug. 16 (AP)—Cardinal Dougherty, spiritual leader for 800,000 Catholics in the metropolitan see of Philadelphia, said on his seventy-fifth birthday today he would "very much prefer this country did not take the step of conscription.

"If it is necessary to defend this country," his Eminence said, "I believe the patriotism of the people will suffice."

The cardinal announced he was "feeling fine" and expressed pleasure over a check for $6,000 presented him for the establishment of the Knights of Columbus Cardinal Dougherty Golden Jubilee Purse, an endowment fund for a scholarship at the Seminary of St. Charles Borromeo, Overbrook, Pennsylvania.

'Texas Shorty' Burned As He Fights for R. A. F.

Brother Told American Flyer Is in British Hospital

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 16 (AP).—Arthur "Texas Shorty" Donahue, American flyer with the Royal Air Force, is recovering from burns suffered in an air fight over England Tuesday, the British Air Ministry has advised Donahue's brother here.

The brother, Robert F. Donahue, a radio station manager, was told that Arthur, a former Laredo, Tex., airfield instructor, was recuperating in the Charleton Hospital in Kent. The Ministry gave no details of the fight.

The flyer was credited with assisting his British flying mates in downing two Nazi planes over the French coast Aug. 5. He joined the air force soon after the fall of France.

Air Raid Alarm Heard in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 16 — (AP)—

The London broadcasting station GSV went off the air at 11:11 A.M. (EST) today, NBC reported, after NBC listeners heard air raid alarm sirens in the background of the program then being broadcast.

After several minutes of silence the London station came back on the air and continued its new broadcast.

AUG 17 1940

Broadcasts from London heard in New York shortly before 7:30 a. m., EST today indicated an air raid alarm was in progress in London but censorship prevented telegraphing any details.

Communication with the Associated Press London bureau continued without interruption, but the bureau said it was unable to reply to inquiries concerning the alarm which, apparently, was ended within a few minutes.

The National Broadcasting Co. reported its listeners here could hear the sound of air-raid warnings in the background as their London representative, John McVane, concluded his broadcast from the British capital.

The offer was accepted in a wire from John G. Winant, director of the labor office and former Governor of New Hampshire.

The economic and financial sections of the League secretariat now are established at Princeton University.

Britain Places First Order for Tanks in U. S.

Sum Spent on War Materials Here Totals 2½ Billion, Purchasing Agent Says

NEW YORK AUG 16 (1940)

Contracts for the purchase of a large number of tanks have been placed with American manufacturers by Great Britain, it was announced yesterday by the British Purchasing Commisison, 15 Broad Street. Although the amount involved and the number of tanks to be manufactured were not revealed, a spokesman for the commission said the contracts for the armored vehicles were the first awarded in America since the beginning of the war.

Saying that the purchase of war material in this country had been vastly accelerated since Germany began its "total war" against Great Britain, the spokesman revealed that contracts with American firms were being placed at the rate of twenty-five to forty a day in contrast to the average of five a day before Jan. 1. He said that his government was placing contracts as fast as American manufacturers were able to handle them.

With the amount of British funds spent in America for war materiels reaching the $2,500,000,000 mark, the spokesman indicated that the commission was already negotiating contracts for guns, ammunition, planes, tools and other implements of warfare that would go into effect after the expiration of the present contracts in 1941.

"Our government wouldn't be spending these billions unless it expected an extended war. It indicates that Britain is preparing to put on a blitzkrieg of her own in the not too distant future," he said.

The number of planes to reach the British Isles from the United States has increased to approximately 3,000, it was reported. A total of 11,000 have already been ordered. The weekly shipment of planes to Great Britain was said to be in the neighborhood of 200.

Asked if any difficulty had been incurred in getting the vast quantities of American armaments across the Atlantic, the spokesman said that the damage had been "infinitesimal."

He reported that a few small boats, principally for use in rescue work, had been purchased and that about $20,000,000 had been spent for high-speed marine engines. He said that a large number of ship hulls in England were waiting for engines, a number of which have been delivered already.

The commission is also buying large quantities of machine tools. That branch of American industry, it was said, had been "performing miracles" in doubling its capacity and making deliveries on schedule.

The only bottleneck in the industrial output was said to be in the production of engines. The production, however, is being speeded up to meet the demands of Great Britain, according to the spokesman.

Belgian Food Situation Is Called Critical

Observer, Arriving on the Excambion, Says Nation Has No More Wheat

NEW YORK AUG 16 (1940)

The food situation in Belgium is critical and unless the United States or Argentina sends supplies of wheat and other foodstuffs Belgians will face a famine next winter, it was said by William Hallam Tuck, a director of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation, who returned from Lisbon yesterday on the American Export liner Excambion. He was attached to the American Embassy in Belgium for two months and completed a food survey on which he will report to former President Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American Relief Commission.

Mr. Tuck was among the 178 passengers arriving on the Excambion, which also brought Simon I. Patino, Bolivian Ambassador to France and owner of vast tin mining interests in Bolivia. He was ill and gave no interview. He was listed on the ship's manifest as eighty years old.

Mr. Tuck said that Belgium had exhausted her supply of wheat on Aug. 1, and most Belgians would have no bread until the September harvest, which wheat yield would last only until Dec. 1. He defended John Cudahy, American Ambassador to Belgium, whose reported remarks in London about the Belgian food situation and other topics caused a protest. Mr. Cudahy, on his return to the United States this week, said that he had been misquoted in London.

"I don't think any man could have represented American interests in Belgium any better, more effectively pr courageously than did Ambassador Cudahy," Mr. Tuck said. "If there were any complaints officially about his statements to the London press, then undoubtedly he was misquoted, as he had the facts about the Belgium food shortage."

Mr. Tuck, who served on the Hoover relief committee in Belgium during the World War and last winter was the American representative of the Finnish Relief Fund, added: "The situation in Belgium will be critical to say the least, after December. They are looking to the United States for help."

He referred to Mr. Cudahy as a "crackerjack diplomat" who had worked night and day to relieve Americans in Belgium. He was hopeful that within thirty to sixty days an arrangement or "formula" might be made to enable Americans to send to Belgians food, including peas, rice and beans for soup kitchens, as well as wheat.

Asked whether he believed that food sent to Belgium would be seized by the German victors, he replied that it was "a delicate question." He added: "But I am hopeful that an arrangement can be effected without affecting the general blockade." Mr. Tuck has lived in Belgium since 1914.

VAST THAMES DOCK AREA AND SUBURBS ATTACKED; RAIDS CONTINUE ALL NIGHT

England Claims 71 Enemy Craft, Admitting Loss Of 18 On Sixth Day Of Blitzkrieg—Deliberate Raid On Residential City Charged

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Aug. 17—Great Britain officially charged early today that German bombers, part of a huge air fleet which raided London's suburbs and both sides of the Thames yesterday, made a "deliberate attack" on the residential town of Eastbourne and killed several persons.

The accusation was made by the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home defense in a communique which said that seventy-one German planes were destroyed against eighteen British fighters lost in the tremendous aerial fighting yesterday. Ten British pilots of downed planes are safe, however, the communique said.

Main Section Of London Untouched

The main section of the capital of the British Empire was not touched.

The British reported that the far-ranging German raiders, who kept up their forays over southern England and Wales last night and early today, dropped bombs "at many points in the country districts of Hertfordshire, Essex, Surrey, Hampshire and Oxfordshire. Little damage was done. . . Reports indicate . . . the number of killed was small.

First Formal British Charge

The Eastbourne charge was the first time the British have made such a formal allegation in this war. Earlier communiques, however, have told of civilian fatalities and the destruction of buildings, dwelling houses and churches by German raiders.

Eastbourne in peacetime is a famous holiday resort on the English Channel with a normal population of more than 57,000. Early last month it was classed as a defense zone after being considered for months as a "safe" area.

In the attack on the London area, bombs fell on the great docksides at Tillbury and on a British airdrome in the Isle of Wight.

Within 8 Miles Of Downtown

They fell, too, within eight miles of St. Paul's Cathedral in east-central London and upon the Thames estuary with its heavy shipping and industrial facilities.

There were casualties—an undisclosed list of dead and injured, and there was damaged residential property.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—From 4.30 to 9.19 P. M. not a line of information dealing with the London raid was allowed to be transmitted by the censor.]

150 Used In Each Attack

The Air Ministry reported that in air attacks all over Britain the Nazis used as many as 150 planes in individual raids and said the day's biggest success was that of a single British Hurricane squadron in shooting down eleven Junkers bombers.

As to yesterday's 30-plane German assault upon south London's Croydon airdrome, the Ministry remarked:

"Not a single one of the enemy formation which attacked Croydon yesterday returned to tell the tale."

The British defended this heart of the homeland with a savage efficiency; their own losses were put at only eighteen planes and it was said that the pilots of ten of these were safe.

Fighter planes were not alone in the struggle, the hoarse bellow of anti-aircraft guns filled the skies.

From the far-scattered wreckage bodies were being brought forth last night.

First Attack Is Turned Back

The first was split by the defending British and part of that wave was turned back before reaching the city's outskirts. The remaining bombers, racing above the Thames estuary, bombed it on both sides—hitting both the Tillbury docks and the North-fleet section across the estuary, the site of big cement works thirteen miles from London.

Here an undetermined number of dead was left.

The German column sped on then around the southeast of the city, but dropped no bombs, said the Air Ministry.

Two Dead Air-Raid Wardens

The first casualties found by an Associated Press correspondent in the southwestern area were two dead air-raid wardens. One had been struck by a bomb fragment; the other showed not a mark.

A factory had been burned to the ground; windows within the radius of a mile were smashed; two saloons were wrecked; train service in the section was dislocated, but a restoration did not require long.

The approach of the raiding bombers—an approach which because of censorship could not be told for five hours—was stealthy. They came at a high altitude, too high to be seen at first.

Avoid Heart Of Metropolis

The first wave—only part of which reached the city—had crossed the southeast coast several hundred strong. Those able to break through and reach the London outskirts appeared to be avoiding the heart of the metropolitan area. Gunfire was heard in the suburbs across the city toward the western edge, and the boom of heavier explosives came from distant regions.

After it was all over, British sources declared it had proven that Britain, with her 400-mile-an-hour fighter planes and her anti-aircraft—still controlled the English skies despite the week-long efforts of thousands upon thousands of German planes to win a mastery of the air.

Aside from the metropolitan area, the raiding Nazis sprayed Britain with explosives from Scotland to the south coast of England and from Wales on the west to the east coast.

Try To Break Britain From Air

They struck again and again at industrial areas, shipping, airdromes—at every point of British resistance in what seemed an obvious effort to break Britain from the air in a plan of strategy which if successful would avoid the great risk of trying an invasion across the English Channel.

So great, so widespread, so thunderous was this aerial invasion that none could say how many thousands of planes were at grips.

But aside from the mighty waves totaling more than 2500 that had beaten all day at the country, fresh flying columns were sent in later—"especially selected," according to Berlin's world broadcast, to prove that "no power on earth can prevent it (the German air force) from dropping bombs anywhere over England."

Sixth Day Of Mass Raids

It was the sixth successive day of mass raids over England—raids that every day had grown in ferocity—and by midafternoon it already had far outdone yesterday's attack, the biggest in history.

It was, as yesterday, an engagement so big as to be difficult to encompass: At one southeastern town alone, at one time, 400 German raiders were counted as they swept across the coastal frontier. The count was lost there; they came on and on after that.

London already had been once under fire; Stuka dive bombers poured explosives yesterday on the Croydon airdrome and in nearby industrial and residential areas.

Civilian Dead List Grows

The number of civilian dead was known only to be growing; there was no comprehensive count available and none in prospect.

The British meanwhile reported vast new bombing attacks of their own on military objectives in Italy, Germany and sections of Nazi-occupied France and Holland.

Today these isolated incidents illustrated a story that could not be told in its entirety:

In a west-coast town, a boarding school suddenly crumbled; a boy was dug out, dead; others were missing.

Across the country in the southeast, a householder taking the air in his suburban garden was smashed to death under a falling German bomber.

Several Killed In Shelter

In the midlands, anxious men and women hurried to a homemade shelter. It was not a good shelter: a single bomb tore it asunder and several—no one knew how many—died there.

In the same town, two elderly women would go to no shelter. A bomb fell on their house; one died; the other was so injured that she may not live.

In the working-class section of a southeastern town, bombs fell in a school playground and a single residence rocked violently and then settled in a mass of splinters. People—nobody knew how many—were trapped in that house—obscure and nameless victims.

There were so many battles that count was lost in the growing fury of the struggle, but these were among the many hard-hit areas: the great industrial midlands; the northwest, the southeast, the southwest, the north, the west.

Southeast Coast Bears Brunt

The southeast coast bore the brunt of today's attacks, but no part of Britain was immune from the wholesale assaults.

Early unofficial reports from the day's fighting said at least twelve German raiders—seven Junkers, dive-bombers and five fighters—were downed.

An official announcement said 169 German and 34 British planes were downed in yesterday's battles. Seventeen of the British pilots were saved.

The Germans made a mass, three-hour attack on one south coast town through a wall of exploding anti-aircraft shells, shooting down two barrage balloons there and two more at a nearby port at a cost of two Nazi planes downed in flames. The British lost one plane.

Bombs Destroy Two Buildings

Bombs dropped on a third town in the same area caused several casualties, set off huge fires and destroyed two buildings.

One flyer already was dead when he fell in a suburban garden. Another was taken to a hospital seriously injured. No bombs were dropped. Anti-aircraft guns set up a thundering fire.

At a west coast town several bombs were dropped on the grounds of a boarding school, damaging the buildings. One boy was dug out dead and others were missing or injured.

shot down yesterday, the Air and Home Security Ministries announced that of yesterday's bag of 169 German raiders 153 were brought down by British fighters, eleven by anti-aircraft, one by Lewis gun and two by infantry fire. Thirty-four British planes were lost.

(Although the communique did not say so, authoritative sources said one German plane was caught in Britain's mysterious new "plane trap" and destroyed, while another crashed from "causes unknown"—making the total 169.)

Raiders Fly Low

Returning to the attack today the Germans swept across the coast in wave upon wave, flying at 20,000 feet and barely visible from the ground.

The formations spread in all directions, with the greatest swarms flying over towns in various parts of the southeast.

A number of persons were killed early today in the Midlands, where numerous fires were quickly controlled. Many casualties were counted in one southwest town and in an area of the southeast.

British fighters challenged the invaders from all sides and anti-aircraft guns kept up a continual din that blended with the thunder of exploding German heavy explosive, incendiary and whistling bombs.

Shipping Attacked

Sixteen German bombers attacked shipping in the southeast area in a raid quickly broken up by fierce anti-aircraft fire and swarming British Spitfires.

The Air and Home Security communique said that last night's attacks, although not on a large scale, were spread over a wide area.

It was reported unofficially approximately a hundred casualties were caused at London's southern suburb of Croydon, lying only eight miles from the heart of the capital, when between twenty and thirty of the dreaded Stuka dive-bombers made a three-mile-dive attack upon the world-famed airdrome there.

"In the Croydon area a number of buildings were damaged, including a scent (perfume) factory, and fires were caused which were soon brought under control," while at the airdrome itself "no serious damage was done," the Government said.

Witnesses of the attack testified to its terror, but all reports indicated the populace was calm. With machine-like precision resulting from year-long rehearsals, steel-helmeted air-raid precaution squads, police and auxiliary fire service units converged on the scene immediately after the dive bombers raced away, with British fighters in pursuit.

Rescue workers with picks and shovels searched through the night for possible further victims in the ruins of one building hit by a dive bomber. Volunteers went to hospitals to offer their blood for transfusions.

There was a sudden swelling of voluntary contributions to a fund to buy more fighting planes for Britain.

Despite the terrifying whistling bombs, hundreds stood in the streets to watch the aerial dogfights. At least three German planes were brought down over and around Croydon and others were destroyed trying to get back to their bases.

Many persons had hair-breadth escapes. Passengers of a double-decker bus bound for London were caught in the raid and quickly dashed for cover. Then a bomb fell, hurtling huge lumps of concrete which smashed the upper deck of the bus.

One man was killed just as he was about to enter his raid shelter.

Scream Bombs Frightening

A woman said of the scream bombs: "They scared me, all right. I felt weak in the knees until I heard the hum of our fighter motors."

The raid brought an alarm to London, where the citizens generally took to cover, slowing the tempo of the metropolis for a short time as thousands were bound homeward for supper.

Pubs closed down, but restaurants continued to serve meals. Life quickly returned to a wartime norm, and by night the theater district was packed.

Other Sections Hit

Although the attack on Croydon seemed the most sensational, because of the use of the dread dive bombers and its proximity to London itself, other sections of the country bore their share of the assault, late reports showed.

Throughout the country Royal Air Force fighters were in the air for long periods during the day—"often landing just to rearm and refuel," the Air Ministry said. In one battle German planes were shot down at the rate of one a minute, the Air Ministry news service said.

Twenty Bagged In One Fight

Twenty German planes were shot down in one fight alone over a southwest English town when thirty spitfire and hurricane fighters engaged an attacking force of 200 Messerschmitt fighters and Dornier bombers.

An express train was struck by machine-gun fire from a German raider in a northeast town, several persons were killed and a number injured by bombers in another northeast town, and Wales, southwest England and other regions were attacked.

The British announced last night that on Wednesday night and early Thursday morning British bombers in an extensive attack on the channel coast of the German-held section of France destroyed large supplies of oil.

Oil supplies were set afire in several regions, the heaviest attacks being on the Gironde river estuary section. Some fires could be seen for 200 miles, it was said.

Continuous Groups Of Germans Strike

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 16—A mighty air armada—some military observers estimated it at 2,500 planes—lashed at England today in what appeared to be Adolf Hitler's supreme effort to crush this island empire.

In uncounted waves the bombing, machine-gunning Nazi warplanes roared across the coast all the way from the north to the south throughout the day—and still they came to unload their lethal loads in a thundering follow-up to yesterday's gigantic attack which struck at the very outskirts of London.

Four hundred planes, coming in six distinct waves at five-minute intervals, flew over one southeastern port alone. Reports from five other coastal points said they were coming over in equal numbers—probably more than doubling the 1,000-plane assault yesterday which, until then, had been the greatest aerial thrust of all time.

In northeast England an elderly woman died of shock when a bomb struck an air-raid shelter, injuring several persons inside when a wall was blown in.

(A London dispatch said three high-ranking American officers—Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, Maj. Gen. D. C. Emmons and Brig. Gen. George V. Strong—reported to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy today to act as observers of the attack on England. The three established offices in the American Embassy.)

Beginning before dawn, the Nazi raiders launched the sixth successive day of the greatest mass air siege of all time by raining bombs on the Midlands, industrial heart of England; the northwest, northeast, southeast, southwest and Wales.

Hospitals Reported Hit

Some casualties, including deaths, were admitted and the German bombs were said to have struck hospitals and a sanatorium during the night.

A German bomber was shot down by British fighters in the northeastern Humber area, it was announced officially.

One English Plane Is Shot Down in Turin—Two Civilians Are Killed and Five Hurt.

LONDON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—British bombers in renewed attacks over Italy, Germany, France and Holland last night scored hits on airplane factories, oil plants, munitions factories and wharves, the Air Ministry announced tonight. Three British planes were lost.

The communique said:

"Royal Air Force bombers renewed their attack on Italy last night. The Fiat aero-engine factory at Turin and the Caprone aircraft works at Milan were bombed.

"A blast furnace near Genoa was also hit. Another strong force of bomber aircraft attacked the oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Reisholz, munition factories at Lunen, Essen, Gladsach and Dusseldorf, and wharves at Emmerish on the Dutch-German frontier.

"The supply depots at Hamm and Soest and several airdromes in France, Holland and Germany were attacked.

Holland Also Attacked.

"The dock basin at Helder in Holland was attacked by aircraft of the coastal command last night.

"An aircraft of this command on the night patrol shot down an enemy seaplane.

"Three of our aircraft are missing from all these operations."

An Air Ministry bulletin, amplifying the communique, said the factories both at Milan and Turin were "accurately bombed again, causing fires and explosions," while observation had established that Tuesday's night raids had caused much damage.

One pilot who dropped bombs last night through the glass roof of the Fiat factory reported that "fires followed the explosions."

After the attack at Genoa, one pilot reported, "the blast furnace was much more blasted when we left."

NEW WAVE ARRIVES EVERY FIVE MINUTES

R. A. F. Takes Toll of Raiders in Severest Air Action—Attack Stretches From Cornwall to Scotland.

By H. TAYLOR HENRY

A TOWN IN SOUTHEASTERN ENGLAND, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—Clouds of German planes rocketed across the English coast today and military observers in this area estimated they were twice as numerous as in yesterday's 1,000-plane assault. Some put today's figure as high as 2,500.

For an hour an Associated Press correspondent counted 400 planes over this English port alone, and still they came.

The military observers based their calculations on unofficial reports that planes in equal numbers had roared across the coast at four or five other points.

The planes here were flying at 20,000 feet and came in six distinct waves at roughly five-minute intervals.

One squadron singled out this port, downing two barrage balloons, spraying small demolition bombs along the cliff and machine-gunning the cliff itself.

One balloon known as "King Lear" crashed wit hits long cable down on three small cottages at the base of the cliffs, setting fire to their roofs. Several small children were playing inside, but the fires were put out quickly and they were unharmed.

British Admire Daring.

The plane which bagged this balloon passed out to sea only 200 feet over land, spraying machine-gun bullets all over the cliff.

One piece of anti-aircraft shrapnel struck the asphalt a gare ten feet away.

One Messerschmitt fighter ran into a tremendous anti-aircraft barrage during a daring dive on the balloons. He was bounced about in the sky, but got through and back out over the sea.

"A cheeky blighter," commented one R. A. F. officer watching the fight. "He's a damned German, but he deserved to get away with it. It was one of the most daring dives I've ever seen.

Shortly afterward explosions were heard in the distance, then eighteen Nazi bombers were seen speeding away in the direction of France.

Fighting Plane Falls.

A mile off shore a Messerschmitt fighter broke from the protesting force around the bombers and fell into the sea. A British spitfire followed it down, circled about the widening oil patch it left, and flew away.

In a dogfight two machines were seen to dive out of a haze, one on the tail of the other, but both disappeared before observers could see the results of the encounter.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Aug. 17—The Air Ministry today disclosed that most of fighting in Thursday's big air battles took place over the sea but that the wreckage of forty-nine enemy planes was found "strewn over the British countryside."

The communique said, "the German high command will find it difficult to explain how the wreckage of forty-nine of their aircraft came to be strewn over the British countryside if their total losses for the day were only thirty-two."

Plane Trap May Be Fireworks Trick

What London describes as a new secret weapon, an airplane "trap" that has already snared one German bomber, and what Berlin dispatches describe as a "net shot into the air" which has proved "little more than a toy," is apparently an adaptation of an old fireworks device.

When pyrotechnists hang portraits, battle scenes and other pictorial effects in the sky, they make use of a net the size of the intended picture. The design is outlined in small parcels of Bengal powder, connected by fuses. The top edge of the net is supported by a row of small silk or paper parachutes.

The net thus prepared is shot into the air in a rocket. At the top of its flight it unfolds and the fuses are set off. The picture hangs in the air, descending slowly as the colored fire burns out.

It is surmised that the British are now using a net of strong but light steel cables, likewise suspended by parachutes, which is fired to the desired height to place it in the path of oncoming raiders. The net would be strong enough to foul the propeller or the ailerons of a plane.

RAIDERS LEAVE WRECKAGE AND DEATH BEHIND

Reporter Finds London Suburb Smashed By German Bombs

Bodies Lying In Streets. Debris From Buildings Litters Ground

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Correspondent

London, Aug. 16—I entered the bombed southwestern suburbs of London by motor car this evening, just after the mass German air raids, and the first sight I saw was two dead air-raid wardens, lying on the ground in their tin hats and blue overalls.

One had been hit by a fragment of steel; the other didn't have a mark on him.

I found a factory burned to the ground; windows within a mile's radius were smashed.

A Tangle Of Debris Is Left

Two pubs were a tangle of glass, bottles and bricks.

This evening train service to the bombed area is coming back to normal.

Two bombs dropped near a girls' school, but there were no casualties there.

Several persons were killed when a bomb hit the ticket office of a railway station in one of the southwestern suburbs. Outside one wrecked house a police constable stood guard. Inside were the bodies of his own stepdaughter and her 7-year-old daughter. It was his own home.

Rows Of Houses Smashed

Rows of houses near a children's recreation ground were damaged. A number of cars were burned up.

Stores and houses on both sides of one road were wrecked. The roof of a church was damaged.

Machine-gun bullets hit a score of houses, chipping the walls and dislodging roof tiles.

Church, Mission Hit

Another church was wrecked and a mission hall was cut in two.

A number of delayed-action bombs fell.

Two men at work in a garage were killed, but two girl clerks in the adjoining office escaped uninjured.

A woman, who hurried home from the grocery when the raiders came, arrived just in time to be killed by a bomb.

One man said: "As soon as the raid started I ran upstairs and got my wife, who is ill. I carried her to the passage. There was an explosion outside.

Door Blown Off

"The blast took me off my feet, and the locks of the doors that were shut were completely smashed. The scullery door was blown off and all the windows were blown out."

Two men were killed in a road where a bomb made a big crater.

In another place a 5-year-old girl in a shelter was wounded in the chest and leg by a bomb splinter which penetrated the back of the shelter.

A mother who threw herself over her child in the street escaped injury, but another who tried the same tactics was wounded by a bomb splinter.

One suburb alone was struck by thirty to forty bombs.

Girls in a factory near where a bomb burst rushed outside. They said machine-gun bullets spattered about them when they reached the street.

Fragments of bicycles and baby carriages littered one street.

Some parts of the bombed area were roped off and newspapermen and public barred.

Wants To Get In R. A. F.

One man pointing up a street said: "Go up and take a look there and you'll know why I hope I'm called up for the R. A. F. next week.

"They killed my nephew—a fine 19-year-old lad. He was just walking across the street to see a friend when a bomb hit the friend's house, killing the friend and wife, too."

Tonight gas and water works demolition squads worked on repairs and cleared debris.

London Policeman Finds Body Of Son In Debris

London, Aug. 16 (AP)—A war-reserve policeman found the body of his 13-year-old son tonight in the debris of an alleyway near his home in the southwestern suburbs of London, where Nazi airmen struck today.

Said the father:

"About half an hour after the raid I went down an alleyway and saw a heap of wreckage near a demolished house.

"I noticed an arm sticking out of a heap of debris and said to my companion: 'Look, there's someone under this wreckage.'

"When we got away the debris I saw that it was my son. It was obvious that he was making for home and that in another three seconds he would have reached the safety of our shelter."

The officer said that about eighty parachutes had been found but that their condition plainly indicated they were empty when they left the planes.

They lay, this officer said, "like poached eggs," with their harness lines—which would have been opened if they had been used for a genuine jump—still neatly folded in the center. Moreover, there were no footprints near those found in loose or soft ground.

England had a brief scare Wednesday when it was reported parachutists had landed. However, the German Government denied yesterday that any had been landed.

The senior officer investigating the parachutes said one German plane had flown low in the moonlight over a road in front of a truck and had deliberately dropped a canvas bag containing "secret documents" in the center of the road.

Experts Fear Greater Blows on Britain

By Associated Press.

Military experts saw the Nazis double-barreled raid on London yesterday—at Croydon airport, eight miles from Piccadilly Circus, and on London's Tilbury docks—as an ominous signal of far greater blows to come.

It was recalled that the bombing of Paris airports on June 3 signaled the opening of the full-blast offensive against France that ended a fortnight later in France's surrender. Paris itself capitulated on June 13.

Still another "storm warning" was seen in a Berlin radio broadcast saying that all French owners of sea-going craft of any size were requested to report immediately to French naval authorities—possibly for use in Hitler's threatened cross-channel invasion of England.

But the mass scale German attack, unprecedented in all history, was designed to prove that "no power on earth can stop the Nazi air force," declared German sources.

Violent air battles raged over the heart of London, while the thunder of cannon reverberated in the mighty city that reechoed with the incessant shrill of air-raid sirens.

Nazi squadrons broke through the British defense zone to the South, the Germans said, and burst into the iron ring of London with great blows at airports, arsenals, arms factories and industrial plants.

"Bomb hits, fires, bomb craters, destroyed houses, planes, tremendous detonations and high columns of fire show the work of the German bombers," declared DNB, in a proud running description.

"There is air alarm after air alarm, the howl of sirens and the thunder of cannon in London.

"Extensive fighting is in progress. The British are exerting every effort to halt the German attack. One recognizes clearly in the English defense that they know everything is at stake—their very existence.

"Tenaciously the English and Germans tie into one another until one plane or the other shoots off to destruction. A trail of smoke is the last badge of a heroism that was.

"Here and there billowing parachutes and the yellow puffs from anti-aircraft explosions float through the air.

"On earth, the direct hits, the bomb craters and the number of planes shot down appears to be immense.

"German scouts, observing from a great height, are giving reports on developments."

The industrial East End of London was one teeming object of attack, the Germans said.

This squalid Cockney section, a vast beehive of docks, sprawling warehouses, factories and arsenals, lay under a pall of smoke, the raiders reported.

East End Areas Bombed

Explosions plumed up from Barking and Purfleet, crowded East End industrial suburbs, said DNB. Both are on the north bank of the Thames, eight miles from Charing Cross. Purfleet has been the site of a powder magazine in the past; Barking is barely two and a half miles from the great Royal Albert docks. The royal arsenal at Woolwich is just across the river.

The raiders met a hot fight from British fighter planes over both the channel coast and over London, but a late report said two German fighter squadrons had "cleared the air" over London. Three squadrons of bombers, the report continued, flew on west of London and attacked other objectives there.

Authorized sources said the raiders' objectives were outlying "arsenals, warehouses and refrigerating plants" and asserted the center of London would be spared.

"The German Air Force will prove that no power on earth can prevent it from dropping bombs anywhere in England, even over London itself," said DNB.

Harbor Destruction

Subsequent accounts of the raid told of "great destruction to London's harbor zone" and said airports all around the city suffered heavily; that the Enfield powder plant in the outskirts was attacked and other armament and powder plants north of London bombed.

"Everywhere the eye looks it sees Hurricanes and Spitfires. And, in between, the sharp contours of the Messerschmidts, in chase. One sees in the air bulging parachutes and yellow puffs of anti-aircraft smoke."

Other planes, taking advantage of the fight over London, bombed the airports at Rochester and Maidstone, which were lightly defended, the agency reported.

Plane after plane was crashing, DNB said, and the total "must be enormous."

Later, the formation which penetrated west of London returned to report that it had started big fires in hangars and barracks of airfields there.

Running Account

As if it were reporting a classic horse race, DNB issued its account of this "special action" beginning with the hour—6.30 P. M.—that the raiders reached the English Channel.

"The first British interceptors are already sighted," the agency relayed. Then:

"The special German air force unit is over harbor installations in the Thames . . . chasers are already engaged in aerial combat . . . now and then a Spitfire or Hurrican fighter swoops down . . . the German pilots make unswervingly for their objectives. . . .

"Machine gunners in the German planes covering the flanks fire at the approaching enemy interceptors and keep them off. . . . British anti-aircraft fire is avoided. . . . The shells burst far behind the German machines. . . .

"Everywhere Smoke"

"Large fires have broken out on either side of the Thames. . . . Everywhere smoke is arising. . . . Hits and bomb craters are visible. . . . The wind is driving a black veil across the slums of the London East End. . . . The German planes have dropped their deadly loads with the utmost precision. . . ."

Before this "special action" began, wave after wave of German planes had thundered over England all day, smashing at industrial nerve centers of the midlands, at the Channel ports again, at airplane factories and armament works up and down and across the besieged kingdom.

The Austin Auto Works at Birmingham, which the Germans say is making plane motors, was bombed and fired, DNB said. Great fires also were reported started at the Blackburn Aircraft factory near Hull, where the British were said to be making dive bombers.

London, Aug. 17 (Saturday) (AP). — German warplanes attacked a wide area in Wales before dawn today, dropping a large number of bombs. Night raiders appeared to have shied away from air defenders over England and Scotland, however.

LONDON, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—An apparent German attempt to destroy British morale through fear of parachutists was disclosed today by a British officer investigating the discovery of parachutes and secret documents dropped by Nazi airmen in the Midlands and Scotland this week.

Challenges Axis Reports of 269 Sunk, 300 Damaged; Trade Fleet Increased

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP).—The Admiralty said today that Great Britain had lost only forty-seven naval units to date in the war, as against German and Italian assertions that 269 British battleships, battle cruisers, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines had been destroyed.

British, Allied and neutral merchant ship losses, up to Aug. 4, were 2,514,199 tons, as compared with German reports of 5,078,038 tons lost, it declared.

The Admiralty described as a "wild exaggeration" the German high command's communique of July 12, which said that more than three hundred ships "suffered such serious damage as to make them unserviceable in the future or unusable for months to come on account of necessary repairs."

British captures, new construction and transfers of ships to British registry, it said, have brought the empire's merchant fleet to a total tonnage beyond the 21,000,000 it had at the outbreak of the war. This included 18,500,000 of seagoing tonnage.

London, Saturday, Aug. 17 (AP). A casualty list issued by the Air Ministry today brought the total of Royal Air Force losses since the outbreak of war to just over 4,300, of which nearly half — 1,854 — are shown as "missing."

Both Sides Of Thames Wrecked And Set Afire, Berlin Asserts

Germans Claim Iron Ring Around London Was Broken By Raids On Airports, Arsenals, Factories

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 16—Authorized German sources proclaimed tonight that wave after wave of bombers had hurled lavish destruction on the London environs late today, lining both banks of the Thames with fires, bomb craters and the wreckage of industrial plants.

The British fought back with 3,000 or more planes and with every weapon at their command. Their fury was that of men who know their very existence is in the balance, DNB asserted, reporting that sixty-five British planes were shot down. Fifteen German craft are missing, it was said.

Describes Battles

Describing the battles over London, DNB said.

"Air battles of the greatest dimensions at present are under way in which the British are trying to ward off the massive advance of the German combat formation operating against London.

"The British are employing everything at their disposal for this purpose. Their stubborn resistance indicates they know that all is at stake."

(England is "employing her entire air force of 3,000 planes to stave off German bombers and fighters," a German broadcast, heard in New York by NBC, said.)

DNB quoted an observer:

"Like gnats over a swamp—so the fighters dance over the grey London fog.

Attack On Chatham

There also was a great attack on harbor and air facilities at Chatham, a ship repair yard on the lower Thames, DNB asserted. It described great conflagrations in docks, shipyards and coaling stations, barracks seen to collapse and damage to workshops.

On the sea, the Germans said their leveled-anti-aircraft artillery had driven British patrol boats away from the French Channel port of Cap Griz Nez, scoring several hits. A German submarine reported that it had sunk two armed British merchant ships totaling 14,000 tons.

The German radio reported last night that forty British and fifteen German planes were shot down yesterday in air battles over Kent and the British naval base at Portsmouth alone. Besides asserting that heavy damage had been inflicted on Kent airdromes and coastal barrage balloons, the Nazis said a British destroyer was reported sunk by air bombs at Portsmouth.

in this former automobile factory, which, DNB said, is now building motors and equipment for the British forces.

Other huge fires were said to have been started by many bombs loosed on the Blackburn aircraft factory near Hull where Britain's new dive bombers are being built.

Fires In Assembly Shops

Fires in both these plants were believed to have been in the assembly shops, DNB said.

A great attack on harbor and air facilities at Chatham, a ship repair depot on the lower Thames, also was described.

DNB said huge fires were started in the docks and shipyards and in the coaling stations near the harbor basin; that many workshops were seriously damaged, some barracks caused to collapse, and that after dropping bombs the German planes swooped low and destroyed anti-aircraft and searchlight positions. This operation, DNB said, would facilitate the laying of mines.

Patrol Ships Driven Off

British patrol vessels were driven away from the French coast at Cap Griz Nez, directly across from Dover, by German anti-aircraft artillery last night, DNB, official German news agency, said today.

nightly raids on western Germany, age," the communique said.

"Numerous British harbors were reported mined last night.

The high command communique said one submarine sank two armed British merchant ships totalling 14,000 tons.

German minesweepers were said to have shot down four of 10 Spitfires in one formation.

Germans stressed the significance of blows against Britain's air power on the ground—blows against warplanes and their airdromes—as they viewed the Nazi aerial offensive with mounting satisfaction.

They recalled such tactics paralyzed the Polish air force in the opening of the European war last September and said it was obvious the same method was being followed at present.

These sources emphasized the fact that, of the British planes reported destroyed yesterday [redacted] eight were put out of commission on the ground. They commented on the growing number of references to such destruction in high command communiques and pointed further to some of the principal objectives of yesterday's bombing raids:

German pilots supported this assertion by saying they were able to fly an increasing distance into England before encountering resistance and that all sections of Britain, including Scotland, now were within easy bombing range.

Berlin residents tomorrow and Sunday will have a chance to see three enemy planes which were shot down by Germans. British Bristol-Blenheim and Vickers-Wellington bombers and a French Breguet general-purpose plane will be displayed near the State Opera house on Unter den Linden in connection with a Red Cross collection drive.

NAZI WRITERS GIVE VERSIONS OF BOMBINGS

Two Flying Reporters Relate How Planes Attacked England

One "Proud" To Show British Germany Does Not Allow Jokes

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 16 (Via Radio)—A German flying reporter, who participated in today's attack on the London area said tonight in his story of the raid that he had "the proud feeling that hundreds, perhaps even thousands, of our comrades had attacked . . . to show the British that Germany does not allow one to joke with it."

(The authoritative British Press Association sardonically asked the German Government yesterday why it was that Hitler was not in London. August 15, the association said, was the day appointed for England's fall.)

The reporter's story in part:

". . . we had orders to attack British aircraft works west of London. Our planes carried more than 50,000 kilograms (more than 100,000 pounds) of high explosives up to a height of 4,000 meters (more than 12,000 feet).

Sees Railway Tracks

". . . we saw the typical triangle of railway tracks of a certain British town and below us there was a certain British airdrome which was especially noticeable by the motorcar racing track which encircled it.

". . . our bomb-aiming devices were adjusted. The red light glowed on the dash. Five seconds later our machine dived. It was a sudden jerk; for a moment one seemed to lose consciousness. I saw how we approached the earth, lying beneath us like a carpet, at terrific speed. The nose of the plane was aimed at a long row of assembly workshops.

". . . our bombs had been released and the machine was free. We looked back and saw hits. White smoke poured from the riddled roofs of the workshops. Fire and detonations were clearly noticeable . . . enemy chasers had come too late. We got rid of them."

Another Gives Account

Hans Hirsch, another flyer reporter who as a part of the regular armed forces flew over England and then returned to Nazi territory had this to say, in a dispatch datelined somewhere in North France:

"Five minutes ago I returned from a flight against the enemy. Rochester, an airfield southeast of London, was our goal.

"Under us like thick black sausages the first (British) balloon barrages appear. My fingers itch to be able to shoot one down but I have other tasks—perhaps on the way back.

"Canterbury is beneath us. Now the goal lies beneath us just as the pictures brought back by observers show it. The first bombs fell. Our 'eggs' curve downward and create a mighty cloud of smoke, gigantic flashes of flame. Pobjoy Air Motors Aircraft, Ltd.—they existed once, too!

British Fighters Appear

"The first Hurricanes (British fighters) appear. They begin shooting afar, from all barrels to make hits. It is like hell has broken loose and banged and crashed in the cockpit. Wood and glass splinters fly about among us.

"The first pilot is wounded in the thigh—cleanly through. Then our left motor fails. Then the radioman calls that he is wounded.

"That is too much at one time. The radioman pulls the machine gun around and gives a spurt over at the pursuit ship that is trying to pull over us. He falls flaming into the Channel. It didn't worry us much that we had to make an emergency landing on this side of the Channel.

Waves Of Bombers Roar Over Thames

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 16—"Numerous waves" of Germany's warplanes, resuming the war against England, flew over the Thames, the highroad to London, and in the direction of north central England today, DNB, official German news agency, said.

Already heavily damaged in this, the sixth successive day of a mighty air offensive aimed at every vital military and industrial objective in south and central England, were several British Channel ports, aircraft factories and armament works, the high command said.

Authorized German sources said today Nazi air raiders destroyed eleven airplanes and ten balloons during the course of today's fighting. The Germans admitted the loss of three planes.

But these were only the reports from early day raids in which mines also were sown in numerous British harbors Germans said.

Austin Plant Raided

DNB said a large number of bombs were dropped in early raids on the Austin Company plant in Birmingham, Britain's great Midlands industrial center.

"Large-scale conflagrations" were said to have broken ou

The agency said several hits were scored by the Germans, causing fires on the vessels.

Authoritative sources said anti-aircraft batteries of all calibers, as well as searchlights, are stationed along the entire coast occupied by the Germans as far south as Biarritz.

These batteries were established, it was explained, to defend ports and cities and to fight ships which might approach close to the shore.

British Losses Reported

Recapitulating the results of yesterday's heaviest raids of all times, the high command said at least 143 British planes were destroyed, 106 of them in air battles and 21 barrage balloons. Thirty-two German planes were acknowledged lost.

Portland Hit Again.

Returning to the attack during the night, German planes were reported to have inflicted new blows on harbor facilities on the great Portland naval base, on the southeast coast; Scarborough, Bridlington, Middlesborough and Hull, all on the northeast coast; factories and armament works in Birmingham, in the Midlands; and "numerous" flying fields in south, southeast and central England.

A German submarine was reported to have sunk two armed British merchant ships totalling 14,000 tons.

British planes, carrying out their failed to cause "noteworthy dam-

Airports at Driffield, north of Hull; at Hawkinge and Lympne, on the southeast coast; in the Northumberland district, in northern England, and even in the Aberdeen and Moray firth districts of Scotland.

No Reference to Croydon.

There was no direct reference to the attack on Croydon, DNB reporting only that German planes appeared over London.

Further lending to the Germans' confidence in their air arm was a report from semi-official sources published today claiming the destruction of 505 British planes in seven days, compared to 129 Nazi planes lost.

Though these figures conflicted slightly with the officially announced totals of 500 British and 127 German planes destroyed in the eight days since the mass attacks began last Thursday, both were enough to lead military observers to assert Britain's air force was being worn down to a point fast weakening the islands' defenses.

"Flying over the sea of houses called Lond," he wrote, "was a picture the like of which we had not seen since the general attacks on airdromes around Paris. Whereas usually our planes are forced to fly at a discreet height we now are able to fly so low that our bombs lands on the most exact target.

Berlin, Aug. 16 (AP)—Dienst aus Deutschland, authoritative German commentary, quoted a German high-command source tonight to the effect that only about 200 bombers were sent to England yesterday under protection of 320 Messerschmitt fighter and destroyer planes.

"This is not a large-scale attack, no matter what the effects on England may be," said Dienst aus Deutschland. "It is a strong armed reconnaissance force."

(An Associated Press Staff man at Dover counted that many bombers in several flights and British estimates generally said that at least 1,000, probably over 2,000 and possibly 3,000 German planes were engaged in the battle.)

ALL FRENCH BOATS MUST BE REPORTED

Every Seagoing Bottom Is Called For.

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch from Vichy today saying that all French owners of sea-going craft of any size or description were requested to report immediately to French naval authorities.

The broadcast also said that the French Admiralty had forbidden Frenchmen to take pleasure trips by steamer or sailing craft in the Mediterranean.

Nazis Defend French Coast

BERLIN, Saturday, Aug. 17 (AP)—German anti-aircraft artillery on the French coast facing England went into action a number of times last night and this morning to drive British planes away from German air bases, D. N. B., official German news agency, reported.

It said two British planes were shot down out of a squadron that approached oil tanks in Northwestern France and that the gunners also finally knocked down a British balloon that had apparently broken from its anchorage and drifted across the Channel.

Nazis Exhibit New Plane, Then Use It Over Britain

Improved 'Flying Pencil' Able to Hover and Bomb

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP) (via radio).—A new Dornier bomber was shown for the first time to a group of guests today, the German radio said, and then "employed in actions against England immediately afterwards."

The new plane was described as the DP215, "an improved design of the DP17, which sometimes is called the 'flying pencil.'"

The new plane, in its demonstrations, showed ability to rise in a steep ascent from the ground to its ceiling "in an amazingly short time," the radio said, and with "incredible speed" to swoop down until but a few yards from the ground when it "appeared suddenly to stand still in the air."

The radio said the pilot slowly steered the plane around the field until he shot it forward "like an arrow."

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—NBC quoted the German radio today as claiming that a German fighter plane had sunk a British cruiser off Portsmouth with a bomb.

Nazis Call Europe's Crops Average, Own Excellent

Harvest Forecast Sees Reich Well Supplied With Grain

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP).—Europe's 1940 crop prospects were described as "average good" today by German agricultural experts, who said the Reich's food situation was excellent, with record root crops (potatoes, beets, etc.) in the offing.

These experts said that the rationing system had greatly helped Germany to reduce cereal consumption, and declared there was absolutely no cause for worry since the Reich's grain supplies were still plentiful.

Figures were not available, it was said, because statistics on Germany's food supplies were regarded as a military secret.

The Germans declared that Britain would be to blame if her blockade caused grain shortages in countries formerly allied with her—France, Norway and the Low Countries, for instance.

These sources said that the Balkans would produce smaller grain surpluses than heretofore. Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Holland and Belgium will need imports of cereals as they always have. France, it was asserted, must look after her own needs; normally she is self-sufficing as far as grains are concerned.

4 Americans In Nazi Prison Expect Release Momentarily

Ambulance Drivers In Good Health And Treated Well At Camp, But Unhappy, Engineer Says

[By the Associated Press]

Elsterhorst Prison Camp, Germany, Aug. 16—Four homesick American ambulance drivers, prisoners of war along with 30,000 others in this vicinity, spoke hopefully today of seeing the Statue of Liberty soon.

Expecting their freedom momentarily (it has been held up frequently because of technicalities), the four Americans, quartered in a section reserved for French officers, while away the hours during which most of their fellow-prisoners work.

They are:

MARCUS CLARK, 35, Chicago motion-picture worker.

"All Well-Treated"

"We all are in good health here and are well-treated, although you can be a prisoner under the best circumstances possible and still be unhappy," said Raymond, sentiments echoed by the others.

"We feel more like transient guests," Raymond explained. "I just play dominoes, chess, backgammon and wash my clothes and eat and sleep."

While other soldiers and officers held in prison camps draw their regular pay—which is checked back to the vanquished nations they represent, the Americans receive no pay because the United States is not at war.

"If America should go to war, of course these American prisoners would start drawing pay," A German officer explained.

Issues Challenge

Raymond said he was doing all right. He displayed some prison currency, and asked:

"Wouldn't you like to shoot some craps?"

Reviewing events leading up to his capture, Raymond said he, as an American living in Paris and a member of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, agreed to help Anne Morgan's organization in evacuation of the Givet region.

He left Paris May 12, joined the Morgan unit two days later, and on the next morning took a load of civilians to Soissons. Returning, he said, "we ran into some Germans who were headed for Paris, hell-bent for leather.

"Reconnoitered A Little"

"We had heard some machine-gun fire ahead, and pulled to the side of the road. Some bicyclists told us some German parachutists had been surrounded and were being captured, so I reconnoitered a little and reconnoitered right into the German army."

He and Wherle were captured there, but Shipley wandered about between the opposing forces for two days before the Germans seized him.

Clark was taken in the Polish campaign.

Raymond said he and Wehrle were well-treated and "got our share of the available food."

At one time, he said, "the Germans gave some kind of order and we all roped and killed a cow and had a big tub of stew."

Frenchmen Reported Told to List Sea Craft

The broadcast said also the French Admiralty had forbidden Frenchmen to take pleasure trips by steamship or sailing craft in the Mediterranean.

LONDON, AUG. 16-(AP)-ADOLF HITLER'S GIANT AIR FORCE, HAMMERING AWAY WITH THE GREATEST OFFENSIVE IN AERIAL HISTORY, TODAY DEALT BLOW AFTER BLOW AT BRITAIN'S INDUSTRIES, AIRPORTS AND COMMUNICATIONS WITH TACTICS SHOWING A SINISTER SIMILARITY WITH THOSE EMPLOYED IN POLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE.

THIS, BRITONS SAY, IS HITLER'S EFFORT TO "SOFTEN UP" BRITISH RESISTANCE AND PAVE THE WAY FOR HIS THREATENED EFFORT FOR A GRAND ASSAULT TO "CRUSH ENGLAND." BUT THE BRITISH TELL YOU THIS ISN'T POLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE.

DEFIANT AND UNBOWED, BRITAIN'S AIR FORCE, UPON WHICH THIS ISLAND EMPIRE IS DEPENDING HEAVILY, IS BITTERLY DISPUTING ITS LAST FRONTIER---THE WINDSWEPT SKIES ABOVE--AGAINST THE WORLD'S MIGHTIEST AIR FORCE.

THIS GERMAN FORCE IN ONE WEEK OF MASS RAIDING HAS SENT BETWEEN 2,500 AND 3,000 RAIDERS ROARING ACROSS THE CHANNEL AND THE NORTH SEA TO BOMB BRITAIN.

IT MET RESISTANCE STIFFER THAN THAT IN THE "UNHOLY CIRCLE" OVER DUNKERQUE DURING THE RETREAT OF THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE WHEN THE BRITISH CLAIMED AIR SUPERIORITY.

BRITISH MILITARY SOURCES OPTIMISTICALLY [redacted] DECLARED THE NAZI OFFENSIVE LARGELY IS IN VAIN BECAUSE "THE GERMAN AIR FORCE ISN'T DOING WHAT IT SETS OUT TO DO; OUR FACTORIES STILL ARE TURNING OUT GUNS, TANKS AND AIRCRAFT [redacted] AND SHIPS ARE UNLOADING THEIR AIRCRAFT AT A THOUSAND DOCKS. IN A SCORE OF PORTS, YOU STILL CAN GET A GOOD DINNER, A TRAIN TO THE COUNTRY AND GO TO THE THEATER."

NEUTRAL MILITARY OBSERVERS ARE DIVIDED ON THE POSSIBLE DURATION OF THE CURRENT AIR SIEGE.

SCANNING BRITISH FIGURES ON GERMAN LOSSES, [redacted] SOME DECLARE THAT THAT THREE MORE DAYS OF CASUALTIES LIKE YESTERDAY'S 169 NAZI CRAFT DESTROYED WOULD FORCE THE GERMANS TO DESIST FOR AT LEAST A WEEK TO REFORM THEIR SQUADRONS AND NURSE MORALE BACK TO NORMAL.

THE MORE PESSIMISTIC SAY "THE GERMANS ARE JUST AS OBSTINATE AS THE BRITISH; THEY HAVE NEVER BEEN DETERRED BY HEAVY LOSSES BEFORE AND THERE IS NO REASON TO THINK THEY WILL NOW WHEN THE GREATEST PRIZE OF ALL LIES WITHIN REACH."

IT IS GENERALLY AGREED HERE THAT THE GERMANS ARE PAYING HEAVIEST FOR THEIR MASS AIR RAIDS, WHICH AS ONE PILOT SAID "LET YOU FIRE INTO THE THICK OF THEM AND LET YOU BE SURE OF BRINGING DOWN ONE OF THEM ANYWAY."

NEUTRAL AVIATION EXPERTS DECLARED GERMAN PREPARATIONS FOR A FULL SCALE INVASION UNDOUBTEDLY ARE CONTINUING BEYOND THE CURTAIN OF ATTACKING PLANES.

THERE HAVE BEEN UNCONFIRMED BUT PERSIST REPORTS OF TROOP AND SHIP CONCENTRATIONS IN NORWAY, BELOW A BLANKET OF FIGHTER AND PATROL PLANES WHICH NO BRITISH RECONNAISSANCE AIRCRAFT HAVE PIERCED.

WHEN THIS FORCE SWEEPS WESTWARD ACROSS THE NORTH SEA, WHERE BRITISH DESTROYERS SURPRISED GERMAN MINESWEEPERS TWO DAYS AGO, THE BURDEN OF DEFENSE WILL FALL ON THE NAVY. UNTIL THEN IT IS UP TO THE RAF TO STAVE OFF THE CURRENT SAVAGE ATTACKS WHICH MAY BE NOT ONLY AN ATTEMPT TO "SOFTEN" BRITAIN BUT TO MASK ACTIVITIES OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND NAVY.

undated Damage claims

NAZI GERMANY HURLED MORE THAN 2,500 PLANES AGAINST ENGLAND AND BOMBED LONDON ENVIRONS YESTERDAY (FRIDAY) (AUG 16) IN A GREAT AERIAL ASSAULT. HERE ARE THE CONFLICTING CLAIMS OF DAMAGE DONE.

BRITAIN SAID--TILBURY DOCKS EAST OF LONDON AND BOTH SIDES OF THAMES BOMBED TO WITHIN 8 MILES OF LONDON'S HEART; SOUTHWEST SUBURBS BOMBED TO WITHIN 8 MILES OF LONDON'S HEART; SOUTHWEST SUBURBS BOMBED ALSO WITH UNDISCLOSED NUMBER OF DEAD, FACTORIES, SALOONS AND HOUSES DESTROYED AND WINDOWS SHATTERED FOR MILES; "OVER 50 GERMAN PLANES AND 12 BRITISH SHOT DOWN" IN SKY BATTLE OVER LONDON.

GERMANY DECLARES--GREAT FIRES RAGING ALONG BOTH SIDES THAMES WITH POWDER MAGAZINES AT PURFLEET AND BARKING BOMBED, AS WELL AS ARSENALS, WAREHOUSES, DOCKS AND FACTORIES; "BOMB CRATERS AND WRECKAGE VISIBLE FROM AIR;" LONDON'S CENTER SPARED BUT SUBURBS IN EAST, WEST AND NORTH WERE RAIDED.

BERLIN, IN ALSO CLAIMING A MOUNTING TOLL OF THE DEFENDERS, SAID 40 BRITISH PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN TO 15 NAZIS IN FIGHTING OVER THE COUNTY OF KENT AND THE NAVAL BASE OF PORTSMOUTH. ONE BRITISH DESTROYER WAS SUNK BY NAZI BOMBS, TOO, NAZI SPOKESMEN SAID, AND "HARBOR FACILITIES IN PORTLAND, PORTSMOUTH, SCARBOROUGH BRIDLINGTON AND MIDDLESBROUGH, AIRPLANE FACTORIES AND MOTOR WORKS IN BIRMINGHAM AND BROUGH, NEAR HULL, AS WELL AS HANGARS, BARRACKS AND NUMEROUS AIRDROMES IN SOUTH, SOUTHEAST AND CENTRAL ENGLAND WERE HEAVILY DAMAGED."

BRITISH ADMITTED THAT THESE SECTIONS WERE RAIDED BUT GAVE SCANT DETAIL.

A NEW AND AWESOME POSSIBILITY--THAT GERMANY AFTER ALL MAY NOT ATTEMPT AN ACTUAL INVASION OF THE BRITISH ISLES BUT WILL TRY TO BRING THE BRITISH TO THEIR KNEES BY AIR ATTACKS ALONE--TODAY GREW OUT OF THE FURIOUS NAZI AIR ASSAULTS.

GENERAL DOUHET, AN ITALIAN EXPERT ON AIR WARFARE FROM WHOSE IDEAS THE GERMANS HAVE BORROWED LIBERALLY IN CONSTRUCTING THEIR WAR MACHINE, ADVOCATED THAT TYPE OF ATTACK AS LONG AGO AS 1922.

"ATTACK IN THE AIR, DEFEND ON LAND," WAS HIS THESIS.

ANY ATTEMPT TO FORECAST GERMAN STRATEGY IS, OF COURSE, SECOND-GUESSING, BUT IF THE GERMANS COULD INFLICT ENOUGH DAMAGE ON ENGLAND BY AIR NO INVASION WOULD BE NECESSARY.

THE PRIMARY PURPOSE OF WARFARE IS NOT TO TAKE AND HOLD GROUND BUT ONLY TO DESTROY AN ENEMY'S WILL TO RESIST.

DURING THE WAR OF 1914-18 GERMANY ITSELF SCARCELY FELT THE TREAD OF AN ENEMY SOLDIER'S BOOT, YET THE GERMAN WILL TO RESIST WAS BROKEN.

A FRONTAL ATTACK ON THE BRITISH ISLES BY SEA WOULD BE EXTREMELY HAZARDOUS FOR NAZI LEGIONS UNLESS BRITISH RESISTANCE ALREADY WAS APPROACHING THE VANISHING POINT. HITLER STILL WOULD HAVE TO RECKON WITH THE BRITISH FLEET, AND HE WOULD RUN THE RISK OF A SEVERE REVERSE.

IF, ON THE OTHER HAND, HE CAN DISSIPATE THE DEFENSIVE POWER OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE BY BOMBING ATTACKS OF EVER-INCREASING INTENSITY, HE CAN ASSAULT THE SOURCES OF BRITISH MILITARY STRENGTH--MUNITIONS PLANTS, TROOP CONCENTRATION POINTS, LINES OF COMMUNICATION AND THE LIKE--ALMOST AT HIS LEISURE.

THIS RELATIVELY NEW AND TERRIFYING WEAPON, THE SWIFT, HEAVY BOMBING PLANE, ACCOMPANIED BY SWARMS OF FIGHTING PLANES, IS NO MORE THAN AN ULTRA-MODERN VERSION OF A FIELD ARTILLEY GUN. IN MILITARY CIRCLES, IN FACT, IT IS KNOWN AS BOMBARDMENT EQUIPMENT.

LONG-RANGE BOMBARDMENT BY PLANE PROBABLY IS CREATING MORE HAVOC AND DESTRUCTION THAN EITHER SIDE CARES TO ADMIT. MOREOVER, IT INTERRUPTS PRODUCTION VITAL TO THE PROSECUTION OF THE WAR.

DURING THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR A LONE BOMBING PLANE ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS COMPLETELY PARALYZED ACTIVITY IN BARCELONA.

DISPATCHES FROM BOTH LONDON AND BERLIN ARE SIGNIFICANT: THE GERMAN STRATEGY IS TO DESTROY EVERYTHING BRITAIN MUST HAVE TO KEEP ON FIGHTING--SHIPPING, PORTS, MUNITIONS AND INDUSTRIAL PLANTS AND, ABOVE ALL, AIRPORTS. THE GERMANS SPECIFICALLY REPORTED ATTACKS ON THE GREAT VICKERS ARMSTRONG ARMAMENT WORKS, VARIOUS PORTS AND SHIPPING CONVOYS.

THE ATTACK ON CROYDON AIRDROME YESTERDAY UNQUESTIONABLY WAS A FORERUNNER OF GREATER ATTACKS ON BRITISH LANDING FIELDS, THOUGH DISPERSION OF BRITISH WARPLANES AT A LARGE NUMBER OF POINTS WILL MAKE THE GERMANS' JOB A TOUGH ONE.

IT WAS SURPRISING THAT THE ATTACK ON CROYDON, AS WELL AS THOSE ON THE LYMPNE, HAWKINGE AND FOLKESTONE AIRPORTS, WERE SO LONG DELAYED.

POSSIBLY HINDERING THE BRITISH AIR DFFENSE IS AN INADEQUATE NUMBER OF CANNON-EQUIPPED FIGHTING PLANES. ENEMY FIGHTERS CAN BE BROUGHT DOWN WITH MACHINE GUN BULLETS DIRECTED AT THE COCKPIT, BUT BOMBERS OFTEN REQUIRE AN EXPLOSIVE CHARGE.

A MAJORITY OF THE GERMAN PLANES LOST IN ACTION LIKELY ARE SMALL FIGHTING TYPES, REGARDED BY THE GERMAN AIR FORCE AS LOW-RANKING OFFICERS ARE REGARDED IN A GROUND ARMY--AS WHOLLY EXPENDABLE IF THE GAME IS WORTH THE CANDLE.

ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

(ADVANCE)..PHILADELPHIA, AUG. 16--FOR SEVERAL YEARS, NOW, CERTAIN MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN ENGINEERING FRATERNITY HAVE BEEN TALKING ABOUT MAKING "IRON" AIRPLANES, AND TODAY PLANES WITH A GOOD DEAL OF IRON IN THEM ACTUALLY ARE BEING FABRICATED.

IT IS NOT IRON, OF COURSE. IT IS STAINLESS STEEL, CONTAINING IRON, AND THE MATERIAL--ONE OF THE TOUGHEST OF THE WORLD'S ALLOYED METALS--PROMISES TO OPEN UP EVENTUALLY A COMPLETELY NEW FIELD OF AIR-PLANE FABRICATION.

WHAT THIS IS GOING TO MEAN IN TERMS OF ACCELERATED NATIONAL DEFENSE CAN BE GLEANED FROM THE FACT THAT IT TAKES ONE-FORTIETH OF THE TIME TO SPOT-WELD STAINLESS STEEL SHEETS AS IT TAKES TO RIVET OTHER METALS COMMONLY USED IN AIRCRAFT CONSTRUCTION.

A HALF DOZEN STAINLESS STEEL PLANES HAVE BEEN FABRICATED FOR PRIVATE USE BY FLEETWINGS, INC., AT BRISTOL, PA., BUT NOTHING APPROACHING LARGE-SCALE PRODUCTION, AND NOTHING OF A MILITARY CHARACTER, HAS BEEN ATTEMPTED IN THE STEEL PLANE FIELD BEFORE.

TEST WINGS FOR ONE TYPE OF U.S.ARMY AIR CORPS PLANE ARE BEING MANUFACTURED BY THE EDWARD G.BUDD COMPANY HERE, AND FLIGHT EXPERIMENTS ON THEM PROBABLY WILL BE CONCLUDED IN ANOTHER SIX MONTHS.

STAINLESS STEEL HAS BEEN KNOWN FOR MORE THAN 30 YEARS. IT IS USED FOR CUTLERY, KITCHEN SINKS AND STREAMLINED RAILWAY TRAINS. IT IS VIRTUALLY CORROSION PROOF. IT IS THE WORLD'S STRONGEST STRUCTU-RAL MATERIAL. IT HAS THE HIGHEST "IMPACT" VALUE. IT RESISTS WHAT METALLURGISTS KNOW AS "FATIGUE" UNDER CONSTANT STRAIN.

ITS CORROSION-RESISTING QUALITIES WERE DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT.

AN ENGLISH SCIENTIST WAS LOOKING FOR A STEEL WHICH WOULD RESIST THE EROSIVE EFFECT OF GUN POWDER IN RIFLE BARRELS. HE TRIED PORTIONS OF CHROMIUM AND NICKEL, BUT THE RESULTING METAL DID NOT SUIT THE PURPOSE.

WELL, HE SAID, THE STUFF MIGHT BE USED FOR CUTLERY. HE MADE SOME KNIVES. THE CONVENTIONAL METHOD OF TESTING KNIVES FOR CORROSIVE QUALITIES WAS TO CUT LEMONS WITH THEM. THE NEW STEEL, USED ON A LEMON, CAME AWAY WITHOUT A STAIN.

30.24-4391

I SAW AN ENGINEER BOOT A SHEET OF TAUGHTENED STAINLESS STEEL NO THICKER THAN A CALLING CARD WITHOUT PUTTING A MARK ON IT.

THE MAGIC OF STAINLESS STEEL LIES IN THE WAY IT IS FABRICATED. AND THEREIN, TOO, LIES THE POSSIBILITY OF MUCH MORE RAPID WARPLANE CONSTRUCTION.

OUTSTANDING AMONG THE TEDIOUS PROCESSES AFFECTING THE PACE OF THE NATION'S REARMAMENT PROGRAM IS THE RIVETING TOGETHER OF SHAPED METAL SHEETS. RIVETING, IN FACT, HAS BEEN CALLED ONE OF THE BOTTLENECKS OF THE PROGRAM. A LARGE ARMY OF SKILLED AND SEMI-SKILLED WORKMEN IS EMPLOYED IN THIS WORK.

WELDING IS BOTH FASTER AND SIMPLER, AND PROPONENTS OF IT INSIST IT MAKES A STRONGER STRUCTURE THAN RIVETING.

THE RAPID FABRICATION OF STAINLESS STEEL DEPENDS ON SPOT-WELDING BY WHAT IS KNOWN AS THE "SHOTWELD" PROCESS. A LOW-POWER ELECTRIC CURRENT IS SHOT THROUGH TWO PIECES OF STAINLESS, LIKE A MINIATURE BOLT OF LIGHTNING, TO MELT AND FUSE THEM AT THE POINT WHERE THEY ARE TO BE JOINED.

THE PROPER AMOUNT OF CURRENT MUST BE USED, AND THE FACTORY MUST KNOW THE WELD WILL HOLD UNDER STRESS. THAT IS WHERE THE MAGIC COMES IN. AS EACH WELD IS MADE A RECORDER MAKES AN IMPRINT ON A STRIP OF TAPE. IF THE WELD IS WEAK, THE RECORDER DRAWS A SHORT LINE. IF IT IS TOO STRONG, WITH A CONSEQUENT OVER-MELTING OF THE METAL, THE LINE IS LONG. IN EITHER EVENT A BELL RINGS AND THE WELDING MACHINE SHUTS OFF.

THE SPOT WELDING PROCESS IS NOT APPLICABLE AS YET TO ORDINARY STEEL OR TO METALS NOW COMMONLY USED IN AIRCRAFT CONSTRUCTION.

THE ACTUAL WIDE USE OF STAINLESS STEEL IN THE MANUFACTURE OF AIRCRAFT PROBABLY WILL TAKE SOME TIME TO DEVELOP. ALL OF AMERICA'S PLANE PLANTS ARE "TOOLED UP" FOR THE FABRICATION OF MACHINES OUT OF OTHER METALS, AND THEIR ENGINEERS FOR LONG YEARS HAVE THOUGHT IN TERMS OF SOFTER, THICKER SHEETS OF CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS.

BUT EVEN NOW STAINLESS STEEL IS WORKING ITS WAY INTO AIRCRAFT CONSTRUCTION. ONE WEST COAST PLANT USES IT FOR PART OF THE WING SPAR, THE LONGITUDINAL PIECE OF METAL WHICH MAKES THE WING STIFF AND CARRIES MUCH OF THE LOAD IN FLIGHT. STAINLESS STEEL IS EMPLOYED FOR THE PART IMMEDIATELY BEHIND THE ENGINES BECAUSE, EVEN RED HOT, IT RETAINS IT STRENGTH. IT IS USED FOR EXHAUST MANIFOLDS.

STAINLESS STEEL ALSO IS USED FOR ENGINE FIREWALLS, AND SOON WILL BE SHAPED FOR COWLINGS, THE BARREL-LIKE STRUCTURE SURROUNDING THE ENGINES.

THE LONG PERIOD ELAPSING BETWEEN THE DISCOVERY OF STAINLESS STEEL AND ITS USE IN AIRCRAFT WAS DUE TO THE LACK OF A METHOD OF MANUFACTURING EXTREMELY THIN SHEETS OF THE STUFF AND, IN TURN, WELDING IT TOGETHER. THE PRODUCTION OF STAINLESS STEEL RAILROAD TRAINS REALLY OPENED THE DOOR TO STAINLESS STEEL IN AIRPLANES.

PART OF THE CREDIT FOR WIDER EMPLOYMENT OF THE METAL GOES TO THE STEEL MAKERS OF THE NATION WHO CAN "COLD ROLL" IT TO A THINNESS OF 6/1000THS OF AN INCH. IT HAS A TENSILE STRENGTH OF 185,000 POUNDS TO THE SQUARE INCH.

(ADVANCE) PANAMA, R.P.-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)- THE WORLD'S STRANGEST NATIONAL ECONOMY IS ABSORBING WITH HARDLY A QUIVER THE SHOCK OF AN INTERNATIONAL UPSET THAT HAS BROUGHT BUSINESS CHAOS TO SOME OTHER SMALL NATIONS OF OUTWARDLY COMPARABLE SEMI-DEPENDENT STATUS.

THE PRACTICAL IMMUNITY OF THIS ISTHMIAN NATION FROM DISASTROUS EFFECTS OF THE WORLD TRADE UPHEAVAL STEMS IN SOME PART FROM A CIRCUMSTANCE THAT WOULD BE BAD IN ITSELF IF ORTHODOX NATIONAL ECONOMY APPLIED HERE--THE FACT THAT IT HAS FEW BASIC GOODS THAT ANYBODY SPECIALLY NEEDS.

THE COUNTRY IS GETTING ALONG QUITE NICELY, THANK YOU, WITH AN ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE THAT HAS BEEN RUNNING AS HIGH AS FIVE TO ONE AND SHOWS NO SIGN OF AN EARLY MATERIAL CHANGE.

WHETHER IT LIKES TO ADMIT IT OR NOT, THE REPUBLIC LIVES ON AND BY THE PANAMA CANAL. SINCE THE DAYS OF THE EARLY EXPLORERS, LONG BEFORE THE BIG DITCH BETWEEN THE OCEANS WAS ANYTHING MORE THAN A FANCIFUL PROJECT, PANAMA HAS LIVED BY LEVYING TRIBUTE ON PASSING TRAFFIC.

FOR MANY YEARS THE BIGGEST ITEM OF THAT TRIBUTE HAS BEEN PANAMA'S CUT FROM THE SALARIES OF THOSE WHO MAINTAIN THE ROUTE OF PASSAGE--MEN WHO WORK ON THE CANAL AND GUARD IT.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AS IT APPEARS IN DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE FIGURES ELSEWHERE IN THE WORLD MEANS LITTLE. IN 1939 EXPORTS WERE DOWN--TO $3,487,187 FROM $3,743,960 THE YEAR BEFORE--AND IMPORTS WERE UP FROM $17,951,454 TO $20,463,765. BUT NOBODY CARES MUCH. AS A MATTER OF FACT THE FIGURES ARE TAKEN AS AN INDICATION OF PROSPERITY SINCE THEY SHOW MORE PEOPLE, MOSTLY WITH SALARIES FROM OUTSIDE, WERE BUYING IMPORT GOODS FROM PANAMANIAN MERCHANTS.

NOBODY HAS UNDERTAKEN THE EXHAUSTIVE STUDY NECESSARY FOR A DEPENDABLE ESTIMATE OF THE PROPORTION OF CANAL ZONE AND MILITARY SALARIES THAT CROSSES THE ZONE LINE TO PANAMANIAN TILLS, BUT THE REPUBLIC CARVES OFF A SIZEABLE SLICE OF A MONTHLY PAYROLL THAT RUNS FAR OVER $5,000,000 A MONTH.

LAST DECEMBER THE CANAL ADMINISTRATION'S PAYROLL RAN $1,800,000 AND WITH SWIFT INCREASES IN FORCE IS ESTIMATED WELL OVER $2,000,000 NOW. PROGRESSIVE INCREASES IN ARMY AND NAVY FORCES MAKE PAYROLL FIGURES FROM THE DAY BEFORE YESTERDAY OBSOLETE. SINCE THE ACTUAL SIZE OF ARMED FORCES IS A CAREFULLY KEPT SECRET, ONLY GUESSES ARE TO BE HAD. THEY RUN AROUND $2,500,000 A MONTH. THOUSANDS OF EMPLOYES OF PRIVATE CONTRACTORS ON GOVERNMENT WORK BOOST THE TOTAL GREATLY.

A RELATIVELY SMALL PERCENTAGE OF THE PAY OF ARMY AND NAVY FORCES AND SKILLED IMPORTED WORKERS IN THE ZONE REACHES PANAMANIAN POCKETS. GENERALLY SPEAKING THEY LIVE IN THE ZONE AND BUY IN GOVERNMENT COMMISSARIES THERE.

BUT NATIVE LABOR, BOTH DOMESTIC AND THAT NOW BEING IMPORTED IN INCREASING FORCE FROM THE WEST INDIES, IS A DIFFERENT MATTER.

OF THAT FORCE SOME 90 PER CENT, PERHAPS MORE AS CONTRACTORS' EMPLOYMENT EXPANDS, LIVE IN THE REPUBLIC. NOT DEMANDING THE IMPORTED LUXURIES ON COMMISSARY SHELVES, THEY BUY LARGELY IN LOCAL MARKETS. GUESSES RUN TO 60 PER CENT OF THEIR SALARIES HELPING FILL PANAMA'S POCKETS.

THESE ARE THE BULK OF THE CANAL WORKERS, ASIDE FROM SOLDIERS AND SAILORS. THE CANAL AT LAST REPORT HAD ABOUT 5,500 EMPLOYES ON ITS "GOLD" ROLL OF SKILLED AND OFFICE WORKERS FROM THE STATES, AND AROUND 25,000 ON THE "SILVER" ROLL OF NATIVE LABOR. ARMY, NAVY, AND PRIVATE CONTRACTORS' NATIVE LABOR WERE OUTSIDE THAT FIGURE.

THE CANAL BROUGHT IN ABOUT $1,000,000 OF NEW UNITED STATES MONEY LAST YEAR IN PURCHASES OF LOCAL GOODS FOR ITS OWN USE AND FOR RESALE, BESIDES THE $430,000 ANNUAL PAYMENT FOR THE CANAL GRANT.

ERNESTO MENDEZ, SECRETARY OF LABOR, COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY, POINTS OUT, TOO, THAT EXPORT FIGURES ARE MISLEADING. DEPENDABLE FIGURES ARE LACKING, BUT A GREAT PART OF THE IMPORTS GO OUT OF THE COUNTRY AGAIN IN "INVISIBLE EXPORTS", BOUGHT BY TOURISTS AND OTHER TRAVELERS. BY MENDEZ' FIGURES SOME 200,000 PERSONS A YEAR PASS THROUGH HERE, AND FEW LEAVE WITHOUT SOME PURCHASE OF THE DUTY-FREE GOODS AVAILABLE AT LOW PRICES.

"FOR THAT REASON," THE SECRETARY SAID IN AN INTERVIEW, "OUR PRIME INTEREST IS IN MAINTAINING AND PROMOTING THE TRANSIT OF PEOPLE."

OUTSIDE THE BANANAS AND CACAO, THE MOST PROMISING CURRENT PROJECT IS IN RUBBER. THE GOODYEAR COMPANY SINCE 1934 HAS BEEN DEVELOPING AN EXPERIMENTAL TRACT ON THE CARIBBEAN SIDE, EAST OF CRISTOBAL. OFFICIALS COUNT ON WAR THREATS TO THE PRESENT MAJOR SOURCES OF SUPPLY TO HELP THAT PROJECT DEVELOP INTO A MAJOR INDUSTRY. PANAMA ONCE HAD A FAIRLY PROSPEROUS RUBBER INDUSTRY, BUT IT DIED OUT SOME 25 YEARS AGO, SQUEEZED BY COMPETITION FROM BIGGER PRODUCERS.

WINDSOR TAKES OATH OF OFFICE IN THE BAHAMAS

Duke Pledges Loyalty to Brother His Abdication Put on Throne.

HE AND DUCHESS ARE CHEERED

Ex-King Mops Brow During the Ceremonies at Nassau That Made Him Governor.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—The Duke of Windsor took the oath of office as Governor of the Bahama Islands today and promised his best efforts to help the colony reconcile its local interests with changed conditions imposed by the war.

The former King Edward and his American-born Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore, Md., were given a great ovation when they appeared briefly on a balcony immediately after the inauguration ceremony.

Stepping ashore at 9:15 A. M. from the camouflaged vessel which brought them here from Bermuda, the new Governor and first lady of the little islands walked through cheering crowds to the nearby legislative council chambers of this colonial capital.

Duke in Uniform.

The Duke wore the uniform of a major general, and the Duchess a pink dress under a royal blue wool redingote, with a tiny turban of pearly beads.

Seated on a dais, two steps above floor level, with his wife at his left and one step lower, the Duke mopped his brow repeatedly while he listened to three addresses of welcome and repeated two oaths pledging his loyalty to his brother, King George VI, who succeeded him on the British throne—the throne Edward left so he could wed "the woman I love."

It was stifling hot in the chamber, where only a few high officials and favored spectators could find seats.

Replying briefly to the welcomes, the Duke declared:

"I know that like all the other British colonies, you here in the Bahamas are confronted with the same problem of reconciling your local interests with the changed conditions which hostilities have imposed.

"At the present it will be my endeavor to lend you a helping hand in your effort to solve it."

He and the Duchess stepped on the balcony, the Nassau constabulary band played "God Save the King." The couple then was driven the twelve blocks to Government House, their new home. Crowds lined the way and cheers followed the progress of the automobile.

Wives of high officials curtisied to the Duke and bowed to the Duchess, following the precedent set when they landed at Bermuda after the first part of their journey from war-torn Europe.

Nassau put on its best dress for the occasion. Everywhere there were decorations of flags and banners. There were occasional pictures of the Duke and Duchess, and on one wharf was a banner bearing the inscription: "God Bless the House of Windsor."

A half-holiday freed workers and most of the population of Nassau lined the water front to watch the Duke and Duchess step ashore and receive a greeting from the few officials permitted on the dock.

The throng was augmented by many visitors, who occupied every available hotel room.

The Duke now has wide power over the 68,000 persons who inhabit the group of islands.

Tourist Rush to Nassau.

The Acadia of the Eastern Steamship Line sailed today for Nassau with 210 passengers, the heaviest booking on the ship since she began the service in June. On learning that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were arriving today, forty additional passengers made last-minute reservations.

R. U. Parker, general passenger manager of the line, said that under present arrangements with the Nassau Development Board, the Acadia's last trip was to be made on September 7 from New York, but in view of the increased interest in Nassau the vessel might remain in the New York-Nassau run indefinitely.

Windsor Takes Oath as Ruler Of the Bahamas

Thousands Cheer the Duke Before Elaborate Rites; Duchess Sits With Him

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 17 (AP).—Amid the most elaborate welcome ever accorded a Governor of the Bahama Islands, the Duke of Windsor pledged his efforts today to help the colony meet its war-time problems. Thousands turned out, in spite of tropical heat, to cheer the Duke and his American-born Duchess when they stepped off the camouflaged vessel that grought them from Bermuda. They landed at 9:15 a. m.

[It was learned that the Windsors arrived aboard the passenger steamship Lady Somers, the United Press said. The vessel was escorted from Bermuda by the British cruiser Dispatch, a 4,850-ton warship attached to the British West Indies squadron, it said.]

His first real smile of the day lighted the Duke's perspiring face when the persons jamming the Legislative Council chambers for the induction ceremony gave a cheer led by W. C. B. Johnson, the speaker of the Assembly.

There was a tremendous ovation as the Duke and Duchess appeared on a balcony of the Council to acknowledge the acclaim of those who waited in the square outside while the new Governor pledged his allegiance to the brother, King George VI, who succeeded him on the English throne.

Seated on a dais during the fifty-minute ceremony, the Duke frequently mopped his brow — his major general's uniform being unsuited for today's hot weather. The Duchess wore a pink dress under a royal blue wool redingote and a tiny turban of pearly beads and appeared cool as she calmly fanned herself. She was seated at the Duke's left, on a platform lower than the Governor's dais, but a step above floor level.

Three addresses of welcome were delivered by high officials, then the Duke made his brief reply, in which he expressed the hope that his pastern experience would make his task as Governor of 68,000 persons "not too formidable."

The festive atmosphere of the city did not penetrate the Council chambers, where their induction ceremonies were carried on with traditional pomp and dignity. White-wigged Chief Justice Oscar B. Daly, robed in red, administered the oaths. The duke used all of his names—Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David—in responding.

210 Off on Nassau Cruise

Increased interest in the Bahamas because of the presence there of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor was reflected yesterday when the Acadia, of the Eastern Steamship Line, sailed for Nassau with 210 passengers, the heaviest booking since the ship was placed on the run in June. Forty of the passengers made last-minute reservations late Friday night and yesterday morning.

R. U. Parker, general passenger manager of the line, said that under present arrangements with the Nassau Development Board the Acadia was to make its last trip from New York on Sept. 7. He said, however, that in view of the added interest the vessel might continue the run indefinitely.

WHEELER FOR DEAL TO GET NAVY BASES OF GREAT BRITAIN

Senator Would Cancel Part of War Debt as Payment—Holds This 'Sensible'

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Cancellation of part of Great Britain's war debt in exchange for leases on naval base sites in Britain's Western Hemisphere possessions was advocated today by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana.

Mr. Wheeler, who at times has been highly critical of Administration efforts to aid Great Britain, said it was his opinion that a deal making naval bases available to the United States in part payment on the war debts could not be regarded as an unneutral act, since it would involve only the strengthening of American defenses.

He told reporters, however, that he was "glad to see that the President is not considering trading American destroyers for these naval bases and thereby weakening our own defenses."

The President told his press conference yesterday that negotiations were under way with Great Britain for the acquisition of Western Hemisphere naval and air bases, but cautioned reporters not to speculate that a trade of destroyers was involved.

Despite this, some usually well-informed legislators continued to insist privately that a destroyer deal was "in the mill" and might be consummated in a few days by Executive action.

Meanwhile the National Defense Commission was reported to have undertaken a survey of widespread proportions, looking toward the location of defense industrial plants in all sections of the country. These plants, it was understood, would manufacture such critical defense items as airplane cannon powder and parts for tanks and planes.

The Senate marked time for the week-end on conscription legislation, scheduling resumption on debate Monday on the Burke-Wadsworth Compulsory Military Training Bill requiring the registration for possible service of all men from 21 through 30 years old.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee polished up a $5,008,000,000 supplemental defense appropriations bill for consideration by the full committee Monday and Senate action probably late in the week.

How the United States might obtain leases on naval bases in this hemisphere still remained a White House secret after the President's statement. He said that defense negotiations were under way with Canada and this led some legislators to speculate that destroyers might be turned over to that country.

Mr. Wheeler said he thought that cancellation of part of the war debts would be the most sensible way of obtaining bases which General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, has said would be "extremely useful" in guarding the Panama Canal and protecting against possible invasion from the Atlantic. Most-talked-of sites for such bases were at Trinidad and Newfoundland.

NAVY EXPERTS EYE TRINIDAD AS PLANE BASE

Newfoundland Also Singled Out as Desirable for American Use.

DESTROYER ISSUE IS GROWING

Roosevelt's Talk With Canada's Prime Minister Tonight to Be on Hemisphere Defense.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—The islands of Trinidad and Newfoundland were singled out today by defense experts as the two strategically most desirable spots for the United States to acquire naval and air bases through the negotiations now in progress with the British and Canadian Governments.

The question of what base locations would be the most advantageous to American security was one of the first to arise after President Roosevelt announced yesterday that he was negotiating for the acquisition of sites on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Coming at a time when the destroyers-for-Britain issue was to the fore, the announcement also caused conjecture as to what price the United States would pay for any bases acquired.

Two Possibilities Advanced.

Mr. Roosevelt was silent on this point, but elsewhere Congressmen and others advanced two possibilities:

1. That overage destroyers would be traded for bases, if negotiations are successful; or

2. That the purchase price would be deducted from Britain's world war debt, which, if liquidated, might remove some of the obstacles to Britain's obtaining credit here.

Of the Congressmen who commented on the disclosure of negotiations, a majority called acquisition of additional bases desirable. Senator Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia, while praising such a move, charged that it was a sugar coating to make the transfer of destroyers palatable.

Several legislators, however, viewed the idea coldly, or with hostility, Representative Routzohn, Republican, of Ohio, saying it would be "a stepping stone—like the guard mobilization bill. He (Mr. Roosevelt) can involve us in war without a declaration of war."

Seek Trinidad Base.

With the base deal negotiations under way, considerable interest attached to President Roosevelt's dinner engagement tonight with Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada at Ogdensburg, N. Y., in the army war games area. Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday that discussions with Canada pertained to hemisphere defense.

If any bases can be obtained, army and navy strategists said they would be particularly eager to secure fleet and air facilities at Trinidad on the country's southern flank in the Atlantic and at Newfoundland on the northern flank.

Trinidad—where Columbus discovered the South American mainland in 1498—was described as the most important location for a major base to guard the now vulnerable southern approaches to the Caribbean and Panama Canal. Britain has a small naval station there at present.

Brig.-Gen. George V. Strong, chief of the army war plans division who is now in London as a European war observer, said only recently that Trinidad "not only covers the southeastern approaches to the Caribbean but presents extraordinarily favorable features either in the defense of the Caribbean or as a base from which we may be attacked."

As for Newfoundland, Gen. Strong said that air and naval forces based here—whether American or enemy—could virtually prevent all traffic from the northern part of North America to Europe.

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, gave his indorsement yesterday to the negotiations for bases and told reporters that a critical situation faced the United States because of European war developments.

His reference, he explained, concerned "the possibilities of the next month in the Western Hemisphere."

Military circles regarded the subject of bases a complex one. Some officers considered it likely that discussions with Canada would explore the possible dangers of a future attack from Europe or Asia via the Hudson Bay, now undefended back door into the interior of the United States.

President Roosevelt, in disclosing the base negotiations, cautioned reporters against linking them with the question of permitting Britain to acquire American destroyers. Nevertheless, some Congressmen were inclined to connect the two.

Canadian Base Talks

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 17—The pledge of assistance President Roosevelt made two years ago to Canada may provide the background for discussions when the Chief Executive meets Prime Minister Mackenzie King at Ogdensburg, N. Y. tonight.

Speaking at Kingston, Ontario, on August 18, 1938, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"The peoples of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

Partnership Aim Seen

Informed officials said it was not unlikely that the President's objective in the present hemisphere defense discussions was to bring Canada into the partnership of the other nations of the New World.

Only Canada of all the major American countries was not represented at the recent Havana conference where a hemisphere protective program was adopted.

Twofold Purpose Seen

Some officials believed Mr. Roosevelt had a twofold purpose:

1. To give Canada assurance of American help in the event Britain is conquered and the Dominion is called on to resist a threat of German aggression.

2. To enlist Canada's help in getting for the United States such additional fleet and air bases as are considered necessary to bulwark the defense of North America.

Tahitians Are Clamoring For American Adoption

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17—All is not romance these days on beautiful Tahiti.

H. E. Pippin, Matson Steamship Line executive back from a South Seas excursion, says the islanders are clamoring for "adoption" by the United States.

"Since old France capitulated," he said, "Tahiti's market for copra, the only important export, has vanished. When we left they had only enough flour for a few days. French money was regarded as worthless and the inhabitants almost fought for an American dollar."

Listening Posts

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 17—The State Department disclosed today that it was establishing diplomatic listening posts at Horta, in the Azores Islands, an airway stop between Europe and the United States, and at Cayenne, French Guiana, in South America.

United States consulates will be established at the two points, the department reported.

Foster H. Kreis, of Minnesota, vice-consul at Funchal, Madeira, has been appointed vice-consul at Horta.

Adrian B. Colquitt, of Savannah, Ga., third secretary of the American Embassy and American vice-consul at Panama, has been assigned to serve as ivce-consul at Cayenne.

Other Consulates

The announcement followed by one week the department's disclosure that it was opening consulates at Dakar, French West Africa, and at St. Pierre-Miquelon, French possession off the coast of Canada.

French possessions in the Western Hemisphere have been regarded here as possible subjects for action under the Pan-American agreements recently made at Havana, Cuba. The Act of Havana provided for establishment of provisional administrations in foreign possessions in this hemisphere which were threatened by a non-American change in sovereignty.

NEW PANAMA LOCKS TO BE STARTED SOON

Preparation Almost Ended for $277,000,000 Channel for Use of Our Navy

DREDGES AT WORK NOW

Dry Land Excavation Bids to Be Asked in Week or Two—2,000 New Workers Hired

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—Bernard L. Burdick, chief of the Panama Canal's office here, disclosed today that preparations were almost complete for the gigantic task of digging a new $277,000,000 channel between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

"Already a fleet of dredges has been turned loose on the job of enlarging the Canal," Mr. Burdick said, "and within a week or two we'll advertise for competitive bids for beginning the dry land excavations.

"The dirt is going to fly again down on the Zone, just as it did in the good old days when the steam shovels chewed their way through the Cucaracha Slide."

The new locks—designed as a defense measure to reduce the Canal's vulnerability to bombing and sabotage—will constitute the waterway's third set, and will be restricted to United States Navy use alone. Engineers estimate that six years normally would be required to complete the locks, but they hope to do the job in less time.

Mr. Burdick said he already had hired 2,000 new workers and shipped them to the zone, "and we simply are swamped with applications for jobs from the unemployed."

He was having difficulty finding experienced office engineers and metal trades workers to go to the isthmus, he said, although he was "deluged" with applications from other types of workers he did not need.

The Panama Canal Administration, he disclosed, had sent a personnel expert to engineering colleges in search of graduates capable of helping design the three new sets of locks that will parallel the existing ones at Gatun, Pedro Miguel and Miraflores.

Another big job now occupying the Panama Canal office is the purchase of everything necessary for the operation, maintenance, and enlargement of the Isthmian waterway.. The items range from rubber bands and concrete mixers to hypodermic needles and a dive bomber.

WASHINGTON,AUG. 17-(AP)-THE PLEDGE OF ASSISTANCE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MADE JUST TWO YEARS AGO TO CANADA, OFFICIALS HERE BELIEVE, MAY PROVIDE THE BACKGROUND FOR DISCUSSIONS WHEN THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE MEETS PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING AT OGDENSBURG, N.Y. TONIGHT.

SPEAKING AT KINGSTON, ONTARIO, ON AUGUST 18, 1938, MR. ROOSEVELT DECLARED:

"THE PEOPLES OF THE UNITED STATES WILL NOT STAND IDLY BY IF DOMINATION OF CANADIAN SOIL IS THREATENED BY ANY OTHER EMPIRE."

HE ALSO SAID THAT IF THE HOPES FOR PEACE THEN ENTERTAINED PROVED FUTILE, "WE CAN ASSURE EACH OTHER THAT THIS HEMISPHERE AT LEAST SHALL REMAIN A STRONG CITADEL WHERE CIVILIZATION CAN FLOURISH UNIMPAIRED."

INTERPRETING TONIGHT'S MEETING IN THE LIGHT OF THAT SPEECH AND MR.ROOSEVELT'S ANNOUNCEMENT YESTERDAY THAT HEMISPHERE DEFENSE DISCUSSIONS WERE UNDER WAY WITH CANADA, INFORMED OFFICIALS SAID IT WAS NOT UNLIKELY THAT THE PRESIDENT'S OBJECTIVE WAS TO BRING CANADA INTO THE PARTNERSHIP OF THE OTHER NATIONS OF THE NEW WORLD IN FORGING AN IMPREGNIBLE HEMISPHERE DEFENSE.

IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT CANADA, ALONE OF ALL THE MAJOR COUNTRIES OF THE AMERICAS, WAS NOT REPRESENTED AT THE RECENT HAVANA CONFERENCE WHERE PRECAUTIONS FOR HEMISPHERE SECURITY WERE DISCUSSED AND A PROTECTIVE PROGRAM ADOPTED.

SOME OFFICIALS REGARDED TODAY'S MEETING AS THE FIRST STEP IN ASSURING CANADA THAT THE UNITED STATES MEANT TO FULFILL THE PLEDGE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MADE TWO YEARS AGO.

THEY SAID THEY BELIEVED MR.ROOSEVELT HAD A TWOFOLD PURPOSE:

1. TO GIVE CANADA ASSURANCE OF AMERICAN HELP IN THE EVENT BRITAIN IS CONQUERED AND THE DOMINION IS CALLED ON TO RESIST A THREAT

AUG 18 1938

2. TO ENLIST CANADA'S HELP IN GETTING FOR THE UNITED STATES SUCH ADDITIONAL FLEET AND AIR BASES AS ARE CONSIDERED NECESSARY TO BULWARK THE DEFENSE OF NORTH AMERICA.

OTTAWA, AUG. 17--(AP)--PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING CONFERRED WITH THE EARL OF ATHLONE, GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF CANADA, BEFORE LEAVING FOR WHAT WAS EXPECTED TO PROVE A MOMENTOUS CONVERSATION WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TONIGHT.

MACKENZIE KING VISITED THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL, IT WAS BELIEVED, TO INFORM HIM OF WHAT HE EXPECTED TO DISCUSS WITH THE PRESIDENT.

ACCOMPANYING THE PRIME MINISTER TO THE BORDER CITY OF OGDENSBURG, N.Y., WAS JAY PIERREPONT MOFFAT, UNITED STATES MINISTER TO CANADA; A PRIVATE SECRETARY AND CONFIDENTIAL MESSENGER.

AUG 18 1938

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN ENROUTE TO NORWOOD, N.Y., AUG.17-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CAME TO UPSTATE NEW YORK TODAY TO KEEP A MOMENTOUS RENDEZVOUS WITH PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING OF CANADA AND DISCUSS HEMISPHERIC DEFENSE PROBLEMS AND AMERICAN ACQUISITION OF NAVAL AND AIR BASES IN BRITISH POSSESSIONS ON THIS SIDE OF THE ATLANTIC.

THE PRESIDENT AND PRIME MINISTER ARRANGED TO DINE TOGETHER AT DUSK, BEHIND THE DRAWN CURTAINS OF A SPECIAL TRAIN PULLED UP ON A SIDING AT OGDENSBURG, N.Y.

AUG 18 1938

AN INSPECTION OF 90,000 TROOPS ENGAGED IN THE NATION'S BIGGEST PEACETIME WAR MANEUVERS HAD BEEN ANNOUNCED AS THE PURPOSE OF THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S TRIP, BUT THIS FADED TO SECONDARY IMPORTANCE WHEN WHITE HOUSE OFFICIALS ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT, AFTER MR.ROOSEVELT HAD LEFT WASHINGTON, THAT HE WOULD CONFER WITH MACKENZIE KING.

A PRELUDE TO TONIGHT'S MEETING WAS THE PRESIDENT'S PRESS CONFERENCE STATEMENT IN THE CAPITAL YESTERDAY THAT CONVERSATIONS WERE UNDER WAY WITH THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ON "THE DEFENSE OF THE AMERICAN HEMISPHERE" AND WITH THE BRITISH EMPIRE'S GOVERNMENT ON "ACQUISITION OF NAVAL AND AIR BASES BY THE UNITED STATES FOR AMERICAN HEMISPHERE DEFENSE, WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE PANAMA CANAL."

HE GAVE NO HINT WHETHER THESE CONVERSATIONS HAD REACHED THE POINT WHERE AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF PLANS OF ACTION WOULD BE IN ORDER.

BUT ON THE BASIS OF THE BUILD-UP PROVIDED IN WASHINGTON FOR IDEAS OF HEMISPHERIC DEFENSE AND NEW NAVAL AND AIR STRONGHOLDS, SOME MEMBERS OF THE PRESIDENTIAL PARTY REASONED THAT ACTUAL DECISIONS, AND PERHAPS A DEFINITE STATEMENT OF OBJECTIVES, MIGHT NOT BE TOO MUCH TO EXPECT FROM TONIGHT'S CONFERENCE.

LENDING SIGNIFICANCE TO THE MEETING WITH MACKENZIE KING WAS THE FACT THAT JAY PIERPONT MOFFATT, FOR YEARS AN ACE DIPLOMAT IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT, AND NOW MINISTER TO CANADA, WAS INVITED TO BE PRESENT.

IT WAS EXPECTED, TOO, THAT SECRETARY OF WAR HENRY L.STIMSON, WHO WAS SECRETARY OF STATE IN THE HOOVER ADMINISTRATION, ALSO WOULD SIT IN.

WHAT NEW DEFENSE STEPS THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE HAD IN MIND WERE HIS SECRET. BUT CONJECTURE CENTERED ON THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE UNITED STATES MIGHT BE NEGOTIATING TO STRENGTHEN HER OUTLYING DEFENSES - BY ESTABLISHING DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS ON BRITISH ISLANDS IN THE CARIBBEAN AND IN NEW FOUNDLAND AND THE CANADIAN MARITIME PROVINCES.

MR.ROOSEVELT'S DINNER WITH MACKENZIE KING WAS TO FOLLOW AN AFTERNOON DEVOTED TO VISITING ENCAMPMENTS OF THE FIRST ARMY AND THE NATIONAL GUARD, WHICH HAVE BEEN ENGAGED IN MOCK WAR AROUND OGDENSBURG FOR A FORTNIGHT.

THE PRESIDENT WAS SCHEDULED TO LEAVE HIS TRAIN AT NORWOOD, N.Y., AROUND NOON AND START HIS INSPECTION SWING BY MOTOR CAR, ACCOMPANIED BY STIMSON; STIMSON'S AIDE, COL.EUGENE REGNIER; CHAIRMAN MAY (D-KY.) OF THE HOUSE MILITARY COMMITTEE; BRIG.GEN.E.M.WATSON, PRESIDENTIAL SECRETARY AND MILITARY AIDE; CAPTAIN DANIEL J.CALLAGHAN, NAVAL AIDE; AND REAR-ADMIRAL ROSS T.MCINTIRE, WHITE HOUSE PHYSICIAN.

AFTER ATTENDING CHURCH SERVICES FOR THE TROOPS, MR.ROOSEVELT WILL BOARD HIS SPECIAL TRAIN AT OGDENSBURG SUNDAY, AND LEAVE FOR HYDE PARK, N.Y., TO SPEND A FEW DAYS AT HIS COUNTRY ESTATE.

PRESIDENT VISITS ARMY MANEUVERS

Canadian Prime Minister to Confer With Him.

NORWOOD, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt arrived today from Washington and, prior to a portentious meeting with Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada, began a motor tour of a rural area where 90,000 troops have been waging a mock war on the largest scale in America's peacetime history.

Mr. Roosevelt's special train pulled into Norwood at 1 P. M., and while he was inspecting the First Army the train was moved over to Ogdensburg, where the President and the Prime Minister were to dine together at dusk and discuss problems involving the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

It was to be a conference which might result in a definite understanding on application of the Monroe Doctrine to the Dominion and on implementation of Mr. Roosevelt's pledge at Kingston, Ont., two years ago that the United States would come to the aid of Canada if Canada were attacked.

Thus the historic meeting overshadows the troop inspection.

As the President stepped off his special train, all the airplanes of the First army wheeled overhead. He was met by Lieut.-Gen. Hugh Drum, the army's commander.

A battery of four guns set off a twenty-one-gun presidential salute as the train stopped. Through the acrid fumes from the shells Mr. Roosevelt walked down a ramp and entered an open car with presidential and American flags fluttering at the radiator grill.

The President and Secretary Stimson faced a heavy schedule, ending with an aerial display in which 125 observation, combat and bombing planes will fly in review.

Although there is an extreme shortage of tanks, planes and transports, the National Guard, adopting regular army training technic, is being extensively schooled during maneuvers to strike swift, hard blows.

Army movement by machines is undergoing extensive experimentation and is certain to be put to a greater test beginning Monday when the Blacks march up the St. Lawrence and the Blues conduct the defense.

In divisional battles this week, example after example was noted by umpires and observers of successful motorized activity.

Signal successes were reported after experimentation with the combat team plan, consisting of unified action by infantry, artillery, and any other supporting groups considered necessary.

Renews Promise Of Aid If Canada Is Attacked

Roosevelt Discusses Specific Hemisphere Defense Plan With Prime Minister Mackenzie King

[By the Associated Press]

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 17—The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Canada, isolated behind the drawn blinds of a private railway car, tonight talked over a specific course of United States-Canadian action for defense of the Western Hemisphere.

It was a conference which President Roosevelt had admitted in advance might result in stronger ties with the Dominion than ever before.

They Dine Alone

It coincided, furthermore, with a clear-cut indication from the Chief Executive of continued American adherence to a policy of coming to the aid of the Dominion against any attack from overseas.

W. L. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, motored here with Jay Pierrepont Moffatt, American Minister to Canada, and began his parley with Mr. Roosevelt within a stone's throw of the border.

They dined alone, and then the President's train was moved from Ogdensburg to the near-by village of Heuvelton.

Says Statement Stands

At a press conference preceding the conference with Mackenzie King, Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether the prospects of stronger ties with Canada meant that "we'll defend Canada."

He referred to a statement made two years ago to the day, that the United States would not stand idly by if the Dominion were threatened, and said his words still were good today.

That declaration was made originally, in the presence of the Prime Minister, at the dedication of an international bridge at Kingston.

The conference tonight was pitched on an informal plane, in contrast with customary diplomatic protocol. But it was in keeping with the fact that the participants have been close personal friends for years.

May Have Statement Today

There was to be no additional news on the meeting tonight, Mr. Roosevelt revealed, but he said he might have something to say about it tomorrow.

The Chief Executive dropped another significant phrase at the conclusion of an inspection of 91,000 troops engaged in mock war games in the area around Ogdensburg. Various military observers from Latin-American countries were introduced to him and he commented on the absence of Canadians.

They are part of the Americas just the same as the U. S. A., he declared.

Thus he gave weight to the belief that he and Mackenzie King would go into the ramifications of the Monroe Doctrine and the extent to which Canada might consider herself covered by it.

Mackenzie King came down from Ottawa to meet the President, who had disclosed in Washington that conversations had been in progress with the Canadian Government on hemispheric defense, and with Britain on the acquisition of naval and air bases in British territory in the western hemisphere.

To Attend Church

He crossed the St. Lawrence from Prescott, accompanied by Edouard Handy, a secretary; J. S. Nicol, a confidential messenger, and a chauffeur.

The Prime Minister was to spend the night on Mr. Roosevelt's special train and attend church services in the field tomorrow with the President and officers and men of the First Army.

The Chief Executive was interviewed in front of the Ogdensburg Free Academy after having spent the afternoon looking over eight divisions of the First Army troops.

He was informed that Wendell L. Willkie, in his address accepting the Republican Presidential nomination, had challenged him to a series of face-to-face debates on major campaign issues.

"How does that strike you?" he was asked.

Heard Nothing Of It

The President said he didn't know, that he had heard nothing about the challenge since he had spent five hours ... ing 84,000 men and 7,000 officers.

Jay Pierrepont Moffatt, American Minister to Canada, and Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, who directed foreign affairs as President Hoover's Secretary of State, also were on hand for tonight's conference.

Playing At War

First Army Review

[By the Associated Press]

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 17—America's First Army, impressed by the effectiveness of newly adopted combat teamwork in National Guard units, abandoned war training temporarily today to salute its commander in chief, President Roosevelt.

The Presidential itinerary called for a motor tour of the army's eight divisions—an encompassing headquarters of 90,000 troops scattered over a 1,300-square-mile "battlefield."

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, who was to accompany the President, also faced a heavy schedule, including a review of 125 observation, combat and bombing planes.

Returns Home Tomorrow

Lessons of the present European war, with its swift airplane and tank action, find a warm reception among officers here.

Despite an extreme shortage of tanks, planes and transports, the National Guard, adopting regular army training technic, is being extensively schooled to strike swift, hard blows.

Army movement by machines, followed by fighting under usual conditions, is undergoing extensive experimentation and is certain to be put to a greater test beginning Monday when the "blacks" march up the St. Lawrence and the "blues" attempt defense.

Success Of Mobility Shown

In divisional "battle," ending Saturday, example after example was noted by umpires and observers of successful "motorized" activity.

Informed officers believe use of such motive power has been more intelligent than in past war games. The motorized units were used in actual engagements, instead of being retired to the rear after delivery of their human cargoes.

Signal successes were reported with the "combat team" plan, consisting of unified action by infantry, artillery, and any other supporting groups considered necessary to solve, successfully, any given problem.

More Specialists

[By the Associated Press]

Camp Beauregard, La., Aug. 17—Under the army's mechanization program enlisted men can now look at military life as a "profession" holding promise of better pay and longer terms of enlistment and calling for a higher type of personnel.

The reason for this, an officer of mechanized cavalry pointed out, is that a larger percentage of specialists and non-commissioned officers are needed to manipulate and maintain the army's complicated machines.

Today as scout cars, motor-cycle platoons and anti-tank units of the Sixth Cavalry roared by en route to positions for Third Army maneuvers here, Capt. B. C. Bixel told of increasing demands upon personnel made by the introduction of machines into the cavalry.

60 P. C. More Specialists

"A mechanized unit," he said, "needs about sixty per cent. more 'graded or rated' enlisted personnel—non-commissioned officers or privates with specialist ratings—than a non-mechanized one. Specialists receive substantially higher pay than the privates. A radio technician, for example, gets $44 per month—more than twice the pay of a buck private.

Heat Aids Blue Forces

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in Western Washington Aug. 17—Heat and a utility company caused the fourth army's maneuvers to become so involved the umpires threatened to call the whole business off.

A bridge across the Nisqually river was to be destroyed (actually) by the retreating northern "red" army according to the blue prints of the war.

But it developed the bridge would be needed later for a utility construction job.

No one thought to tell the attacking One Hundred and Fifteenth cavalry vanguard of the southern "blue" army, so they went on across, scout cars and all.

Then the practical One Hundred and Fifteenth, sweltering in the heat, took off their blue denim coats, distinguishing mark between them and the "red" army, and went through the opposition like a bride through her budget.

When the "reds" and the umpires caught up with he invaders, the umpires ruled they should withdraw and start over.

Then the officers of the One Hundred and Fifteenth won their biggest victory—they talked the umpires into letting them hold the ground gained if the mechanized units recrossed the river legally.

PAN-AMERICANS IMPRESSED BY U.S. WAR GAME

Mexican, Speaking for South Republics, Surprised to See Such Efficiency in Soldiery

OGDENSBURG, Aug. 17 (AP).—Praise of equipment and training o fthe U. S. Army came tonight from a spokesman for military observers for Western Hemisphere republics attending First Army maneuvers here, simultaneously with a plea of New York's Governor for no delay in conscription.

At a dinner given by Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, First Army Commander, Col. Armando R. Pareyon, military attache to the Mexican Embassy at Washington, said he and South American observers are "greatly impressed" and "somewhat surprised" to "observe the degree of efficiency, training and organization."

PUBLIC AWAKENED.

He also cited "convincing evidence that the people of this country are united in their awareness of the necessity for military preparedness."

Gov. Lehman struck directly at Congressional advocates of a four-month postponement of conscription.

Asserting that if England is conquered by Germany "we cannot hope to keep the war from our shores for any substantial length of time," the Governor said the present emergency "is very real and possibly greater than at any time in the history of the nation."

The Governor voiced the plea for conscription, which he termed the only possibility of rapidly obtaining necessary manpower, at the conclusion of a day-long trip with President Roosevelt, who inspected the 90,000 men of the First Army.

Air Mechanics Trained In U. S. Reformatories

Gillette Finds Danger in Paroling Them

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP).—A training program for aviation mechanics has been started among inmates of Federal reformatories.

This was disclosed today by Justice Department sources after Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa, mentioned the training in discussion of defense plans.

It was emphasized, however, that the training was offered only as an experiment, and only to "young first offenders with good backgrounds and some mechanical ability."

One Justice Department official referred to fifteen youths chosen for the initial training at the Chillicothe, Ohio, reformatory as "what might be called accidental criminals." He said the program might be expanded to some other reformatories.

Senator Gillette said he had been informed that it was planned to parole some prisoners for industrial work when they had received satisfactory training. He added that it didn't strike him as "the clearest judgment in the world" to propose ... be paroled to work in aircraft factories and other defense plants.

"It would be the last in the world to object to these men being given industrial training," Senator Gillette told reporters, "but I doubt the wisdom, at a time like this, of putting men to work in defense industries who have succumbed once to weakness and who might be susceptible to foreign influences seeking to sabotage the defense program."

Mead Urges Sacrifices For Defense Program

Asks State Carpenters to Seek Unity in Labor Ranks

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP).—Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, called tonight for elimination of friction within the ranks of labor, saying it must be made clear to any who would use the present crisis to break down hard-won labor victories" that there would be "no blackout of labor gains."

Speaking before the thirty-fourth annual convention of the New York State Council of Carpenters, Senator Mead said there must be sacrifices from labor, capital and government in the national defense program.

A "healing in the rift of labor's ranks" would be a "mighty contribution" to the strength, prestige and effectiveness of organized labor in the nation, he said.

Thomas J. Lyons, president of the New York Federation of Labor, said that liberalization of the state's unemployment insurance set-up, to include more payments and a shorter waiting period for benefits to begin, would be sought by labor in the coming year.

The Rev. John P. Boland, chairman of the State Labor Board, issued a plea for a united and stronger labor movement.

Speed Up Draft, Marine Vets Ask

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Marine Corps League, with a resolution "viewing with alarm the dilatory attitude of Congress," was on record today as favoring enactment of a selective military draft law "with all possible dispatch." Approximately 3,500 members of the Marine Veterans' organization, in annual convention here, adopted the resolution last night.

Defense Call to Hospital Aids

BOSTON, Aug. 17 (AP).—Hospital officials from every state and Canada were summoned today by the American Hospital Association to meet next month to discuss plans for mobilizing 2,500,000 health workers behind the government's hemisphere defense program. Surgeons general of the United States Army, Navy and public health service will address a special general session of the convention Sept. 16 to 20, officials announced, to explain preparedness plans.

Aircraft Builder Hits Profit Curb

BALTIMORE, Aug. 17 (AP).—Glenn L. Martin, pioneer aircraft manufacturer, said today the new excess profits tax bill should be drafted to repeal, not suspend, the "Vinson-Trammell Act limiting aircraft profits."

Martin declared the aircraft industry was anxious to do its part in national defense, but asserted it "cannot perform its full share of national re-armament when subjected to special restrictions applicable only to it."

Breeds Camouflaged Homing Pigeons

ONTARIO, Cal., Aug. 17 (A. P.)—Capt. R. R. Delhauer, former director of homing pigeon activities in the United States Army, is en route to Washington to show army officials camouflaged pigeons he has bred. He will confer with the chief signal officer on their use in the defense program.

German Refugee Reaches Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17 (A. P.)—Dr. Frank Oppenheimer, seventy-six-year-old German sociologist, arrived from Japan today, two years after fleeing from Germany.

He is en route to Berkeley to serve on the faculty of the University of California. He said his books had been confiscated by the Nazis, but that he succeeded in smuggling his unfinished manuscripts out of Germany.

AWARDED SEVERANCE PAY

Newspaper Guild Wins $7,452 Judgment Against Havas

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) today was awarded a judgment for $7,452.53, representing pay due sixteen employes who were dismissed on June 23 by Havas, the semi-official French news agency.

A Havas spokesman explained that funds had been frozen since the French capitulation and said that the severance pay, provided for in a Guild contract, would be paid early nex week.

THROUGHOUT THE FALL OF 1939, THE WINTER AND THE SPRING, NAZI AIRMEN CRUISED OVER THE ENGLISH COUNTRYSIDE, FROM LAND'S END TO SCAPA FLOW, BUILDING UP THEIR "OBJECTIVE FOLDERS"--THE PICTURES AND MAPS WHICH TODAY ARE GUIDING THEM TO THEIR OBJECTIVES. UNSATISFACTORY TOUCH-AND-GO RAIDS WERE MADE BY BOTH SIDES.

NOW THE ISSUE IS CLEAR CUT: HOW LONG CAN THE GERMANS KEEP IT UP, AND HOW LONG CAN THE BRITISH TAKE IT?

THE DEFENDERS ARE AT A DISTINCT DISADVANTAGE IF THE MATERIAL DAMAGE FROM THE RAIDS IS AS HEAVY AS THE GERMANS CLAIM. ON A STEADY FLOW OF RUEL, AMMUNITION, AIRPLANES AND PILOTS DEPENDS THE ABILITY OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE TO MAINTAIN RESISTANCE AT ITS PEAK.

AND ON THE ROYAL AIR FORCE FALLS THE JOB OF PREVENTING DAMAGE TO THE THINGS WHICH ARE THE VERY HEART OF AIR DEFENSE.

GERMANY HAS TWO ADVANTAGES. IT HAS THE INITIATIVE IN THE ATTACK, A PRIZE IN ANY BATTLE, AND ITS OWN VITAL CENTERS OF MANUFACTURING, OF WARPLANE CONCENTRATIONS, AND OF FUEL AND ARMAMENT SUPPLIES ARE FAR MORE SCATTERED AND LESS VULNERABLE THAN THOSE OF THE BRITISH.

STRATEGY NO LONGER IS PART AND PARCEL OF THIS ATTACK AND THE DEFENSE AGAINST IT. IT IS A TOE-TO-TOE SLUGGING CONTEST, AND STAYING POWER ALONE WILL DETERMINE THE OUTCOME.

IT BECOMES INCREASINGLY APPARENT, AS GERMANY'S VIOLENT AIR OFFENSIVE AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN'S ISLAND CITADEL GROWS IN INTENSITY, THAT MORE THAN THE EXISTENCE OF ENGLAND AS AN INDEPENDENT POLITICAL ENTITY IS AT STAKE.

THE BATTLE IN ENGLISH SKIES IS JUST AS MUCH A LABORATORY-PURE TEST OF THE EFFICACY OF AIR POWER AS IT IS A TEST OF BRITISH STRENGTH TO RESIST THE BLITZKRIEG.

WHATEVER THE RESULT, THE REPERCUSSIONS WILL BE WORLD-WIDE.

A GERMANY WHICH BUILT UP ITS AIR POWER TO OFFSET BRITISH SEA POWER CAN ILL-AFFORD TO HAVE ITS OFFENSIVE--UNACCOMPANIED BY ANY CONCURRENT LAND AND SEA OPERATIONS--COME A CROPPER.

THE METICULOUS GERMANS USE A DIFFERENT SYSTEM OF PILOT TRAINING THAN THAT EMPLOYED BY THE BRITISH. BRITISH TRAINING IS MORE THOROUGH, BUT GERMAN AIR TACTICS CONTAIN MORE OF THE ELEMENT OF MATHEMATICAL PRECISION.

BRITISH PILOTS, LIKE AMERICANS, ARE PERMITTED A GREATER DEGREE OF INITIATIVE THAN ARE THE GERMANS, AND THEIR AIRMANSHIP DEPENDS LESS ON THE COMMANDS OF FLIGHT AND SQUADRON LEADERS. PARTLY TO THAT THE BRITISH ATTRIBUTE THEIR ONE-TO-FOUR CASUALTY ADVANTAGE WHICH, OF COURSE, IS DISPUTED BY BERLIN.

MEN WHO KNOW AIR FIGHTING GIVE THE BRITISH AN AMPLE CHANCE TO BEAT OFF THE ATTACKS, DESPITE THE DISADVANTAGES UNDER WHICH THEY LABOR. AT THE HEIGHT OF YESTERDAY'S ONSLAUGHT AN AMERICAN, A PARTISAN OF AIR POWER AND A SQUADRON LEADER IN THE WAR OF 1914-18, REMARKED:

"THE BRITISH GIVE UP? DON'T GAMBLE ANY MONEY ON IT. THE PARTY IS ONLY STARTING."

WAR IN THE AIR RACKS CITIZENS

Doctors Tells of Effects on British Population.

SHOCK WORSE THAN BOMBS

Ghost-like Figures Walk Streets and Scream at Planes.

By Associated Press.

Warfare such as that now raging in the skies over Britain produces a civilian shell shock more insidious than the actual death and destruction poured upon the earth from bombing planes.

Such is the conclusion of British medical leaders, writing in recent issues of the Lancet, a British medical journal, received at the New York Academy of Medicine.

Two British psychiatrists, a Harley street physician and a woman psychologist, agreed that the war of 1914-18 could not be compared with the present conflict, in its effect either upon civilian populations or upon active combatants.

Even before the present mass attacks upon England began, they noted such phenomena as these:

Ghostlike figures walking the streets and screaming at the sight of German planes . . . widespread, mentally induced palsy and insomnia . . . increasing apathy to the value of human life . . . diminishing reasoning power.

Many Neurotic Cases.

With the war so close at hand the psychiatrists, William Sargent and Eliot Slater, wrote that more and more neurotic cases were developing and described the patients as having "thin, fallen-in faces with pallid or sallow complexions."

They also reported complaints of "terrifying bad dreams, feelings of inner unrest, hysterical fits and tendencies to be startled at the least noise, particularly at the sound of airplanes."

Actual physical effects of air raids were listed by the psychologist, Mary Collins, as acceleration of the heart, rapid breathing, dryness of the mouth, shivering, quaking limbs and loss of voice.

In her article she said that men and women who were utter strangers before the war were playing cards and staging knitting bees and community song-fests, just to be near one another in a moment of danger.

Dr. Clifford Allen wrote of observing a strange show of interest in animals and an equally strange lack of interest in human life.

Moans Saved for Dog.

The picture of an injured man flashed on the screen of a motion picture theater evoked no response, he said, while that of a dog was greeted with audible moans from the audience.

Likewise, a radio broadcast to raise funds for a children's hospital brought only small contributions, while a similar broadcast for the benefit of a pet home met with generous response.

Dr. Allen said he noted, too, that while immorality had increased, so had religious sentiment. He said people were flocking to the churches.

(WX)-INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS (AMS BUDGET)

BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

ENGLAND'S FIGHT FOR LIFE TURNS THE CORNER INTO ITS THIRD MONTH WITH THE SKIES RAINING NAZI BOMBS UPON THE TIGHT LITTLE ISLE; BUT THE FACTORS WHICH WINSTON CHURCHILL DESCRIBED TWO MONTHS AGO AS FAVORING ENGLISH VICTORY ARE UNCHANGED EXCEPT IN ONE RESPECT.

THAT IS THE TIME ELEMENT.

WHEN CHURCHILL SPOKE TO PARLIAMENT JUNE 18 HE SAID: "I DO NOT SEE HOW ANY OF THESE FACTORS CAN OPERATE TO OUR DETRIMENT, ON BALANCE, BEFORE WINTER COMES."

WINTER WAS THEN MONTHS AWAY. IT IS ONLY WEEKS AWAY NOW SO FAR AS FLYING CONDITIONS OVER ENGLAND AND ENGLISH WATERS ARE CONCERNED, AND THAT IS UNDOUBTEDLY A HEARTENING THOUGHT TO THE BRITISH.

THE SINGLE, DOMINANT QUESTION RAISED BY CHURCHILL IN THAT TALK TO PARLIAMENT WAS "CAN WE BREAK HITLER'S AIR WEAPON?"

THE ANSWER IS BEING WRITTEN NOW IN ENGLISH SKIES. THE FULL POWER OF GERMAN AIR ATTACK HAS BEEN TURNED ON TO BREAK THE "INVINCIBLE RESOLVE" WHICH CHURCHILL PROCLAIMED TO THE WORLD ON JUNE 18. THE CRISIS MAY COME IN THIS FORTHCOMING WEEK. THE STRAIN BOTH ON THE MATERIAL RESOURCES AND THE MORALE OF THE CONTENDING AIR FORCES CAN ONLY BE CONJECTURED.

DESPITE CONFLICTING ERMAN AND BRITISH REPORTS OF ENEMY AIR LOSSES IN THE TERRIFIC STRUGGLE, WHICH MUST MASK A GRIM REALIZATION ON ONE SIDE OR THE OTHER THAT THE END IS ALREADY IN SIGHT, IT IS CLEAR THAT NEITHER GERMAN OR BRITISH FLYING WARRIORS CAN LONG ENDURE THE PACE. IT IS ALSO REASONABLY CERTAIN THAT BOTH SIDES ARE LOSING OR WEARING OUT PLANES IN ACTION FASTER THAN THEY CAN BE PRODUCED. BOTH ARE PROBABLY LOSING EITHER IN ACTION OR BY CONTINUED NERVE STRAIN MORE SKILLED PILOTS, BOMBERS AND GUNNERS THAN THEY CAN TRAIN IMMEDIATELY.

A TRUE PICTURE OF RELATIVE AIR LOSSES, BOTH IN MEN AND MACHINES, IS NOT TO BE SIFTED OUT OF RIVAL ACCOUNTS TINCTURED WITH PROPAGANDA ANY MORE THAN A REALISTIC ACCOUNTING OF BOMB DAMAGE TO EITHER MILITARY TARGETS OR POPULAR MORALE ON EITHER SIDE CAN BE DISCERNED.

OTHER FACTORS OF THE CHURCHILL "BALANCE" OF TWO MONTHS AGO REMAIN LITTLE CHANGED. BRITISH NAVAL POWER, THE ESSENCE OF EMPIRE, HAS BEEN LITTLE IMPAIRED IN TWO MONTHS. ENGLAND BEHIND HER SEA RAMPARTS SEEMS STILL SECURE FROM STARVATION, ALTHOUGH ADOLF HITLER HAS WARNED THE WORLD THAT SHE IS UNDER COMPLETE BLOCKADE. THE SPECTRE OF STARVATION STALKS INSTEAD IN ALL NAZI CONQUERED NATIONS ON THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT, TO VERIFY CHURCHILL'S TWO MONTH OLD PREDICTION THAT "WINTER WILL IMPOSE A STRAIN UPON THE NAZI REGIME, WITH HALF EUROPE STARVING UNDER ITS HEEL WHICH, FOR ALL THEIR RUTHLESSNESS, WILL RUN THEM VERY HARD."

DOES THAT ACCOUNT FOR THE NAZI AIR BLITZKRIEG OVER ENGLAND; FOR A NAZI INVASION WITH ALL ITS RISKS, IF IT COMES?

GERMANY WASHES HANDS OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR U. S. REFUGEE STEAMER

Nazis Warn Vessel Proceeds At Own Risk Through Mined Waters—Washington Replies That Belligerents Are Held Responsible

Germany warned the United States yesterday that the United States Army transport American Legion, loaded with almost 900 Americans from Europe's war zones, would proceed at her own risk through mine fields and submarine-patrolled waters near the British Isles.

The warning followed proclamation by the Reich that all of the British Isles is now under intensive, armed blockade by Germany.

The United States Government replied by stating emphatically that Germany and other belligerent nations would be held strictly accountable on prior assurances that no attack would be launched against the American Legion.

Refugee Ship Loaded With 900 Periled By Nazi Blockade Mines

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 17—The German Government washed its hands of responsibility tonight for the safety of the United States ship American Legion, carrying Americans home from Petsamo, Finland.

It said the United States Government had declined to heed a German warning to keep the American Legion out of British waters mined today under a new, formally proclaimed total blockade of the sea around Britain.

Conceivably, under the German's own announced terms for the blockade, the American Legion might be subject to a bombing attack as soon as she appeared in British waters.

A Definite Warning

The blockade communique said specifically that "airplanes will attack every ship" and that "every ship which sails in this area in the future exposes itself to the danger of destruction."

Before the blockade was proclaimed, however, the Government had said that as an army ship of a neutral the American Legion would not be molested by Germany.

An article by DNB, official German news agency, outlining the American Legion situation, was headed "indiscreet venture." This was the first expression of press reaction.

Strictly At Own Risk

If the ship, with nearly 900 American refugees from Europe aboard, pursues its outlined course—between the British island of Rona and Cape Wrath—it will do so at its own risk, Germany advised the United States orally through the United States Embassy here.

The American Legion sailed from Petsamo Friday night.

While not specifically mentioned, it was believed by authorities here that the ship would go without escort and without specific directions from Germany if it attempts to crash the gates of the mine blockade.

The announced course of the American Legion, a United States Army transport on the special refugee repatriation mission, will take it close off the northwest coast of Scotland.

May Change Course

The course from Petsamo, on Finland's Arctic shore, to Cape Wrath is about 1,700 miles, more than two days' steaming time.

This, it was pointed out, leaves time for the United States to reinstruct the master and advise the various Governments of a proposed new course.

If the American Legion continues the originally indicated course, she probably will move into dangerous waters by late Sunday night or early Monday.

Wide Area Mined

Dienst Aus Deutschland, authoritative commentary, meanwhile declared it was clear that "Germany not only is determined but also in a position to make this blockade effective.

"It is especially pointed out that the entire sea area around England is mined."

It recalled repeated mention in recent high-command communiques of widespread mining activity, especially by air, and said mines were being strewn thickly along the British west coast, especially St. George Channel, the North Channel and the Irish Sea.

"The mining," it added, "is not limited to harbor entrances, but is extended along entire channels of approach."

Course Is Questioned

The Lokal Anzeiger said the American Legion went north of Iceland in going to Petsamo and that the return through what it called British waters was "a peculiar course." The shortest route home would be just south of Iceland, it said.

Exchanges of oral communications between the German and American Governments began August 9, when the United States advised Germany that the ship, especially marked and illuminated by day and by night, would follow a pre-arranged course.

This course, the German announcement said, leads along the northern coast of Scotland.

It said the American Government expressed hope that the transport would not be molested and asked a promise of safe conduct.

Promise Unnecessary, Nazis Say

Although Germany answered that such a promise was unnecessary because German forces "naturally would not attack a neutral army ship," the communique said, the Government declared itself ready to inform responsible Nazi authorities of the American Legion's intended departure from Petsamo and her intended course.

Thronged with 897 passengers, among them Crown Princess Martha of Norway, invited to the United States by President Roosevelt, and stranded American citizens and diplomatic officials, the transport sailed late Friday night from the northern Finnish port.

U. S. Envoy Aboard

Americans aboard the 13,136-ton vessel included Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, United States Minister to Norway; Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, wife of the American Minister to Sweden, and her three children. Also aboard is Otto D. Tolischus, New York Times foreign correspondent.

"On August 14," the German communique continued, "the Reich Government informed the American Embassy in Berlin that responsible German authorities, after taking note of the intended course, pointed out that this course of the ship strongly touched the military area of operation around England and that exceptional dangers were connected with such a trip.

"Urgent Advice" Given

"Urgent advice, therefore, was given that the American Legion make the trip via a less dangerous route. This warning also was discussed with the American Embassy and the thick sowing of the sea region around England with mines was pointed out."

Following this, it said, the United States Embassy notified Germany August 16 that the transport was departing the same day by way of the original route, despite the German warning.

"The Foreign Office therewith advised the American Embassy August 16 that the ship, despite the warning, was entering into an area of operations with full knowledge of the dangers," the communique went on.

Reich Declines Responsibility

"The Reich Government, therefore, must decline responsibility if the ship should suffer any damage as a result. Responsibility must rest solely with the United States Government.

"Besides, the Reich Government pointed out the circumstance that final notification regarding the departure of the American Legion reached the Foreign Office only at noon on August 16, although August 15 was expressly designated to the American Embassy beforehand as the latest time for a report regarding the final course."

Germany underlined her formal proclamation of the sea and air blockade of Britain with the disclosure that newly-sown German mines already had sunk or damaged three big ships near the Isle of Man, in the Irish Sea.

Every Neutral In Danger

"Every neutral vessel sailing into this region in the future is running the risk of being destroyed," said an official statement.

Authorized sources explained this meant unlimited sea warfare by the Germany air force and navy all around England, with the exception of Irish territorial waters.

The blockade was announced on the only day of the week in which there were no great massed daylight raids or bitter aerial combats over England.

DNB, however, said Nazi raiders limited their forays today to early-morning attacks on ports along the British west coast and to scouting flights over the English Channel, North Sea and the British Interior.

Say British Slowed Up

The wireless said the paucity of air battles was because "the British fighters have slowed up."

The news of the ship sinkings was related by DNB, shortly after the blockade had been announced. Two of the ships sank, the agency said; the third moved away, listing badly. They were not identified.

The damage was done by mines laid "over a great radius" by the German Air Force last night, DNB explained. It said that where mines previously were laid principally in English harbors and river mouths, they now have been strewn in the steamer lanes of the open sea, all around England, including the Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.

Sub Success Claimed

Earlier, a single submarine was declared to have sunk 25,700 tons of British merchant shipping in a guarded convoy.

The blockade decision was communicated in notes to all neutrals except the United States and Argentina, which already have forbidden their ships to enter belligerent zones.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Imperial Germany declared unrestricted submarine warfare during the last war, effective February 1, 1917.]

Today's declaration warned the neutrals that the entire war zone is mined and that, furthermore, German airplanes henceforth will attack every ship.

All-Inclusive Warning

"Without exception," the announcement said, "the Reich Government in the future will decline every responsibility for damages caused to vessels of all kinds or persons in this region."

It stated also that German armed forces will "fully utilize" the strategic positions it controls from the Bay of Biscay to the North Cape—in addition to its "supremacy" in the sea-air region around England.

A preamble explained that the decision was the result of England's "illegal" sea warfare. It asserted Germany really was acting in the interest of all Europe, because England now was trying to starve, in addition to Germany, "European states like Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Sweden, Spain a d Portugal."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—This was a reference to the British blockade tactics which drastically restrict shipments of materials and foodstuffs to the Continent to prevent such shipments from aiding Germany.]

"Free Shipping" Denied

It also was argued that there really is no "free shipping" in European belligerent waters any more, because of British measures to take over or control neutral vessels.

"The Reich Government," the note to neutrals concluded, "must declare on its part: Sea warfare in the region around England has broken out in full fury."

By keeping their ships out of these waters, Germany said, the neutrals will contribute to the swift ending of the war. Germany's action, it declared, is a decisive step toward concluding the conflict and getting rid of "the responsible present British rulers."

Raids Spread To Wales

Today the Germans aimed their planes all the way across England to Wales and the British Channel and announced they had struck heavy blows at the harbors of Cardiff, Bristol and Newport.

DNB said a new and bigger type of bomber, a veritable flying battleship was being used. This is the DO-21? bomber, a two-motored craft which has heavier armament and carries more bombs than its predecessors.

Nevertheless, authorized sources said the present raids on England were "pin pricks" compared to what is coming.

Berlin Warns U. S. on Vessel

Says Germany Will Not Be Responsible for Refugee Ship American Legion.

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—The German radio said today it was officially stated that Germany is not responsible for the safety of the United States ship American Legion returning to America from Petsamo, northern Finland, with several hundred persons.

The radio said the United States ship was continuing on a course announced as within the danger zone about the British Isles, despite a warning by the German Government.

"It was officially stated Saturday that an exchange of notes has taken place between the United States and the Reich's Government regarding the sailing of the United States troop transport American Legion from Petsamo to New York," the radio said.

Advised to Change Course.

"The Reich's Government pointed out August 14 that the vessel's course considerably touched the area of military operations around Britain and gave urgent advice that the American Legion return home on a less dangerous route.

"Nevertheless, the American embassy in Berlin informed the Reich's Government August 16 that the American Legion was leaving Petsamo on the same day and was taking the course which had been laid down.

"The Foreign Office thereupon stated in an oral note dated August 16 that the 'vessel, despite warning, was entering the area of operations fully aware of the dangers. The Reich's Government must therefore decline responsibility if any disadvantages should arise for the ship therefrom. The responsibility must be borne by the United States Government alone.'"

Most Ships Are Barred.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—The United States neutrality law which Germany referred to in her announcement of the British blockade today forbids American ships, with some exceptions, to visit the ports or sail in the waters of nations declared by the President to be at war.

The law authorizes the President to define combat zones, areas of dangerous waters, into which American ships may not go. The European zone, as presently defined, closes to United States ships all waters around Europe except those touching Portugal and a part of northern Spain.

Exceptions Are Provided.

Exceptions are provided in the law for ships which enter a belligerent port or a combat area to bring out Americans and for ships carrying Red Cross supplies and personnel. Anther proposed exception, before Congress, would permit American ships to call at belligerent ports for refuge children if belligerent governments give them safe conduct guarantees.

Well informed officials saw no possibility that the German blockade would affect the homeward voyage of the American army transport American Legion, which sailed yesterday from Petsano, Finland, with 897 passengers, most of them American citizens who have been stranded in the Baltic and Scandinavian areas.

Heading for Brooklyn.

Officials said it was planned for the American Legion to proceed directly to Brooklyn and it had no intention of visiting any British port. The vessel whose passengers also include the Crown Princess Martha of Norway, was expected to take a northern route along the fringe of war-ridden waters.

Germany's blockade threat was concerned with the regions around England and it was not known here just how far these regions extended.

Scores of neutral ships trading in English waters under charter to American firms are expected to be affected. The United States Lines alone operates six ships under the Belgian flag between New York and England.

Nazis' Pledge Cited by U. S.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17 (AP).—The United States Government tonight refused to change the course of the homeward-bound Army transport American Legion, and announced it would hold Germany and other warring nations to prior assurances that they would not attack the vessel.

Pointing out that Germany was informed on Aug. 9 of the sailing date and course the ship would follow with its 897 passengers, the State Department insisted it could not accept Germany's attempt to modify its prior assurances, because no other safe course existed.

Admiral Harold Stark
Ordered reserve ship to sail.

The State Department's press officer said the German Government, in answering the Aug. 9 note, stated specifically and officially that, since the American Legion was a military vessel of the United States Government, it would, of course, be immune from molestation.

The decision to sail yesterday was made, it was said, upon the advice of Admiral Harold Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, and the General Staff of the United States Army.

The vessel arrived at Petsamo Aug. 5, well identified with American flags painted on decks, sides and stern. Floodlights play on these flags at night.

U. S. Firms May Suffer Under Nazis' Blockade

Scores of Chartered Ships Expected To Be Affected

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP).—The American neutrality law, which Germany referred to in her announcement today of a blockade of Great Britain, forbids American ships, with some exceptions, to visit the ports or sail in the waters of nations declared by the President to be at war.

The law authorizes the President to define combat zones, areas of dangerous water into which American ships may not go. The European zone, as at present defined, closes to United States ships all waters around Europe except those touching Portugal and a part of northern Spain.

Exceptions are provided in the law for ships which enter a belligerent port or a combat area to bring out Americans, and for ships carrying Red Cross supplies and personnel. Another proposed exception, now before Congress, would permit American ships to call at belligerent ports for refugee children if belligerent governments give them safe-conduct guarantees.

Scores of neutral ships trading in English waters under charter to American firms are expected to be affected. The United States lines alone operates six ships under the Belgian flag between New York and England.

Britain Blockaded

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 17—A "total blockade" of Britain, in aswer to Britain's "illegal" sea warfare was declared by the German Government today.

A long communique marshaled numerous instances of what it said were illegal acts by Britain on the seas.

"Germany is convinced that with announcement of a total blockade of the British Islands, she is taking another decisive step toward ending the war and removal of the responsible contemporary British rulers," the statement said.

German armed forces will "utilize fully" their strategic position from the Bay of Biscay to the North Cape of Norway, as well as their supremacy on the sea and in the air around England, it was emphasized.

United States Excepted

The German note was sent to all neutral countries, except Argentina and the United States, asking them to forbid their ships to sail into the German-English war zone. The United States and Argentina were excepted, it was explained, because they have already barred their ships from the war zone by neutrality legislation.

The communique warned that German warplanes henceforth will attack every ship entering the war zone. "Any neutral ship," it said, "which in future sails these regions (the belligerent zones) is exposed to the danger of destruction."

Official Statement

"Therefore," it continued, "the Reichs Government, in the future and without exception, declines responsibility for any damage inflicted upon ships or persons in these regions."

An official statement said Germany was acting "in the interest of all Europe, for since London has realized that Germany cannot be starved, it now seeks to extend the hunger-war also to other European states, such as Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Sweden, Spain and Portugal.

Blame Put On England

"The swift conquest of England, and thus the removal of the present English rulers, who now alone oppose peace, therefore, is the primary precept for all Europe, as well as for the remaining neutral states."

The German radio warned that "a naval war in the regions around England is raging at full force. The whole region is infested with mines. Airplanes are attacking every vessel. Every neutral vessel which is sailing there in the future is, therefore, running the risk of being destroyed. Without exception, the Reichs Government will in the future decline every responsibility for damages caused to vessels of all kinds or persons in this region."

Text Of Declaration

held air and naval bases in the Atlantic, filters out as a British holdup. Wholly apart from the destroyers with which Britain would naturally like to involve us, our possession of these bases is as much in her interest as in our own. Let's trade the destroyers for her World War debts—a legitimate transaction—and not for part of our navy—a bootlegged war.

all goods of German origin were contraband, including goods in neutral possession and which were exported from Germany in neutral ships.

Merchantmen Armed

"Illegal arming of British merchantmen for the purpose of using these vessels as an aggressive weapon against German submarines was the next measure, followed by misuse of neutral flags, et cetera.

"Laying of drifting mines, open and camouflaged use of merchantmen for war actions, using of fishing vessels as submarine traps (Prime Minister), Churchill's announcement in Parliament of May 9, 1940, that in Skagerrak all German merchantships would be sunk at daytime and all vessels, without regard to nationality, at night time are all on the same line.

"England has, firstly, seized by force merchantships of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France in order to replace at least partly her own gigantic tonnage losses. Since then England compels owners and crews of these vessels to work for her. Secondly, England tries with all the means at her disposal to enforce her control on all neutral shipping.

England arbitrarily intercepts also vessel of nations like Japan, the Soviet Union and Sweden, which are not at all partaking in the European war. Morevover, she now attempts at forcing upon neutral shipping the notorious "navicert system" (trade control by a certification system).

"She treats as prizes those ships without navicerts. By this means England tries to make serviceable for her own war aims all neutral merchant shipping.

"Therefore there can be no talk anymore today of free shipping. Developments, moreover, show that neutral shipping as far as it today still is running on England, is subject to all dangers of warlike actions and that it, in view of all these things, is being misused directly or indirectly for doing service for England.

"The unsuccessful British attempt to starve German women and children through a hunger blockade is answered by Germany with the complete blockade of the British isles here proclaimed."

German Announcement on Blockade

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 17—Following is the text of the German declartion announcing a "total blockade" of Britain:

Since the outbreak of war, England to an ever increasing extent has violated international rules of war conduct. It began by proclaiming foodstuffs as contraband, which is in contrast to the most primitive laws of humanity. Just as in the World War, German women and children were to be hit thereby.

Then followed a declaration that all goods of German origin were contraband, including goods in neutral possession and which were exported from Germany in neutral ships.

Illegal arming of British merchantmen for the purpose of using these vessels as an aggressive weapon against German submarines was the next measure, followed by misuse of neutral flags, etc.

Germany replied to this: First, by shifting her trade to the east and by considerably increasing her imports of foodstuffs and raw materials from European and Asiatic economic sectors, by securing for German economics enormous quantities of raw materials of all kinds in European countries freed from the enemy. Second, by sinking 5,000,000 gross register tons of merchant space by the German Navy and Air Force.

To this must be added 1,500,000 tons of cargo space which was rendered useless by heavy damages by air attacks. This makes, together, 6,500,000 tons.

"More and More Brutal"

Recognizing to an ever increasing extent the uselessnes of her naval warfare, which conflicts with all rules of international laws, England then took resort to methods which became more and more brutal.

Laying of drifting mines, open and camouflaged use of merchantmen for war actions, using of fishing vessels as submarine traps, Churchill's announcement in Parliament of May 9, 1940, that in the Skagerrak all German merchant ships would be sunk at day time and all vessels, without regard to nationality, at night time are all on the same line. The heaviest blow, however, was given by England to shipping of third States by the following measures:

England has, first, seized by force merchant ships of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France in order to replace at least partly her own gigantic tonnage losses. Since then England compels owners and crews of these vessels to work for her. Second, England tries with all the means at her disposal to enforce her control on all neutral shipping.

Thus England of late blockaded by mines, illegally and completely, the region between Greenland and England and certain regions around Southern England, forcing neutral shipping to enter British control harbors. England arbitrarily intercepts also vessels of nations like Japan, the Soviet Union and Sweden, which are not at all taking part in the European war.

Moreover, she now attempts forcing upon neutral shipping the notorious "navicert system." She treats as prizes those ships without navicerts. By this means England tries to make serviceable for her own war aims all neutral merchant shipping.

As regards the sea region around England, normal trade traffic is no longer going on there as a result of ever-increasing fighting actions of the air and naval forces of the two belligerents. Sea routes and actions, moreover, are nowadays prescribed to neutral shipping by mines, outpost vessels, air patrols, British coastal batteries, etc. Other neutral vessels are mostly forced to run in convoys of British warships.

Therefore there can be no talk any more today of free shipping. Developments, moreover, show that neutral shipping, as fas as it today still is running to England, is subject to all dangers of warlike actions and that it, in view of all these things, is being misused directly or indirectly for doing service for England.

England herself has thus, by her measures completely defying international law, made all waters around her isles a zone of military operations, a circumstance which would forbid any genuinely neutral ship from entering these waters.

A further deterrent for neutral ships and sailors should be the fact that under the constantly growing pressure of the German armed forces England of late has been quite openly overstepping even the last boundaries of decent warfare.

Thus Mr. Churchill announced a few days ago that unarmed German salvage planes, protected by the sign of the Red Cross, which were rescuing German and enemy airmen in distress at sea, would from now on be shot down by England.

This cynical incitement to murder, which is symptomatic of the desperate mood at present of the British rulers in view of imminent defeat, has been promptly followed by the British air force. During recent air fights two German Red Cross planes trying to rescue wounded British airmen were shot down by the British.

Germany has watched these developments with careful attention for months in the hope that common sense might, after all, deter the present British rulers from continuing this criminal course of warfare. This hope was in vain, however. England rejected the Fuehrer's latest appeal.

Will "Retaliate in Kind"

The Reich government, therefore, has now decided to retaliate in kind and to employ armed forces with the same ruthlessness against shipping around England.

On Sept. 26 the British Government through Mr. Chamberlain who then was Premier declared: Germany is a beleaguered fortress and it is therefore quite legal and humane to cut off the German people from all vitally important supplies. This means in other words: The present British rulers regard it as a matter of course and as quite legal, if they had their will, to expose German women and children to a death of starvation as in the World War.

The Fuehrer's policy, which gave German economic access to food imports from large parts of the world, and the securing of large raw material reserves, thanks to a unique series of victories of our armies, frustrated the British plans, however. The present rulers of England know this. They nevertheless do not dare to admit complete failure for their policy to their own people, but are proclaiming war to the last.

In view of this self-destructive British attitude the Reich Government establishes the fact that not Germany, but the British Isles, is the beleaguered fortress today.

The unsuccessful British attempt to starve German women and children, through a hunger blockade, is answered by Germany with the complete blockade of the British Isles, here proclaimed.

Germany is convinced that, with the announcement of the total blockade of the British Isles, a further decisive step has been taken toward termination of the war and removal of the guilty people at present in power in Britain. The supreme command of the German armed forces will make the utmost use of the favorable strategic situation offered by German domination of the Continental coasts from Biscay up to the North Cape.

"Acts in Europe's Interests"

Germany thus acts in the interests of the whole of Europe for, after it has been realized in London that starving out Germany is impossible, Britain tries to extend the hunger war to other European countries like Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Sweden, Spain and Portugal. Britain even tries to cut off from overseas supplies countries which have nothing whatever to do with the war like Japan, Soviet Russia, etc., under the pretext that Germany might possibly profit from such imports.

The rapid forcing of England to her knees, and the removal of the people at present in power in London, is consequently the foremost task for the sake of the whole of Europe and other neutral countries concerned. While some countries like the United States and Argentina long ago have declared the waters surrounding the British Isles a war zone and have forbidden their ships, airplanes and citizens to enter these dangerous zones, other countries have not yet taken the same step.

Germany, having repeatedly warned these States not to send their ships into the waters around the British Isles, has now again requested, in a note, these governments to forbid their ships from entering the Anglo-German war zones. It is in the interest of these States themselves to accede this German request as soon as possible.

The Reich Government wishes to emphasize the following fact: The naval war in the waters around the British Isles is in full progress.

The whole area has been mined. German planes attack every vessel. Any neutral ship which in the future enters these waters is liable to be destroyed.

Declines All Responsibility

The Reich Government in the future declines all responsibility without exception for damages suffered by ships or injuries to persons in these waters. By keeping their ships completely away from the British Isles neutrals on their part will help to avoid complications and end the war soon.

It will thus, moreover, be made more difficult for Mr. Churchill and other men like him to create in the future any new so-called Athenia case; in other words to let ships of a third State be sunk by British U-boats and then blame Germany for the sinking in the hope of inciting public opinion in the third State concerned sufficiently to drive it into a war against Germany.

Germany is convinced that she does a service of historic importance not only to Europe but also to all neutral countries in the world by finally removing the present system of British piracy.

Hitler Has Another Surprise For Britain, Lochner Asserts

Writer Says Germany All Set On Coast For Invasion And That Weather Won't Halt Attack

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

With the German Army on the French Coast, Aug. 17—What I saw in three days with German troops on this coast line opposite England indicates Adolf Hitler has another surprise ready.

On the surface there is little that meets the eye to suggest the imminence of an attempt to invade England. Although most people believe invasion of the island kingdom is Hitler's aim, and German newspapers make no secret of it, German camouflage in this coastal region is so clever an untrained observer would imagine nothing of the sort was afoot.

But I am familiar with German camouflage methods, and what I saw was more than enough to convince me that Hitler, if and when Der Tag comes, will once again surprise the world.

Can Pick His Own Time.

And it is all being done so methodically and with such precision that he can set the zero hour as he ch[illegible] irrespective of wind and weath[illegible] season.

In three days I motored up and down the coast between Ostend and Boulogne. Although I stood on high promontories commanding superb views of the Channel, including the chalk cliffs of Dover, I saw not one British convoy, nor any good-sized ship.

Just Motionless Funnels

Two German mine-sweepers and a fishing smack were all I could discern moving over the desolate waterway. There were plenty of motionless funnels showing above the waters of harbors I visited—all reminders of the battles for Ostend, Calais, Dunkerque—and plenty of stranded ships on beaches and reefs.

The air above the Channel, however, was full of activity; in fact, planes were roaring over our heads nearly all the time.

Spectators on the sidelines o[illegible] the [illegible] for Eng[illegible] watched [illegible] Messerschmitt pursuit planes rocketing to giddy heights and parting across the Channel, saw heavily armed combat craft roaring toward England, saw squadrons of Germany's heaviest bombers droning ominously westward with loads of death and destruction.

Back And Forth They Go

Such was the picture we saw day after day. Sometimes they passed in tiny groups of nine; then flights of eighteen and twenty-seven; sometimes great swarms of fifty or more. Disappearing in the fleecy clouds, they reappeared some time later like silvery fish crossing the deep blue sky—coming back for another load of bombs.

We could not see where the Germans dropped their bombs, and all we could hear was a series of heavy detonations interspersed with the thud-thud and boom-boom of British anti-aircraft batteries. After half an hour the Germans would return, sometimes in perfect formation, sometimes more irregularly.

Germans Take Offensive

Occasionally a mad chase would develop, with a British pursuit plane screaming after the bombers. There would be a quick, furious exchange of firing and then a sudden about-face by German fighters stabbing back at the Englishman.

In a few minutes it would be all over.

Our inspection of the coast line left no doubt that the Germans had fortified it heavily against a possible [illegible]

Britain Scoffs At Nazi Total Blockade Plans

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—Britain has taken note of Germany's new "total blockade," but wonders how the Nazis hope to put it into effect, said the British radio broadcast today.

"Her (Germany's) navy is hors de combat," the B. B. C. said. "Her attempt to blockade us from the air has failed, and her troops are as far away from this island as ever."

Nazis Say Worst Is Yet To Come

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 17—The German air force, disclosing the use of bigger and more heavily armed bombers against England, augmented its aerial invasion of that island today with intensified pre-dawn attacks.

New waves of bombers and fighters streaked out across the Channel. Germans said the air warfare yesterday cost the British eighty-nine planes at a loss of only thirty-one Nazi craft.

At the same time the British struck back with night raids. Damage to buildings and two deaths were admitted after a raid on central Germany.

British warplanes also dropped bombs in the Weimar area in northern Germany. There were no reports of losses of life there.

Along the French coast German anti-aircraft artillery went into action early this morning as British planes attempted to bomb oil depots in northwestern France. Two raiders were reported shot down.

Air Alarm At Munich

(A Swiss telegraph agency report broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation and heard in New York said an hour's air alarm was in effect early today at Munich and that heavy explosions were heard west of the city.)

The German radio reported Nazi air raids against England today "played havoc" with British anti-aircraft batteries, especially on the English south coast.

"British anti-aircraft artillery practically has been eliminated during the last few days of fighting. It did not score any hits today and merely hindered operations of British pursuit planes," the radio said.

Three big steamers struck mines and two sank near the Isle of Man this morning, DNB reported. The third was said to have been given a bad list.

Reviewing yesterday's operations, the high command asserted the British lost eighty-nine planes yesterday against thirty-one Nazi craft destroyed.

Germans disclosed meanwhile their big Do-215 bombers—sisterships of the Do-17 "flying pencil" which wrought havoc in Poland and Norway—now are being used against the British.

The official news agency, DNB, said the new bomber, a veritable flying battleship with a bigger bomb-carrying capacity and heavier armament, carries more potential destruction than anything yet seen in the air.

New Plane Very Fast

It was described as a two-motored ship, capable of reconnaissance as well as bombing operations, possessing greater speed and maneuverability and able to climb swiftly with only one motor should the other be disabled.

"No enemy can approach it without detection," DNB said. It added that this product of Germany's big Dornier works is covered on all sides with light and heavy machine guns.

"There'll be no stopping now," aviation circles said as Nazi warplanes struck again at anti-aircraft defenses, airdromes and plane factories vital to Britain's defense system.

Military commentators said weakening of the English air defenses already was apparent, although Germany had not yet loosed the full power of the vaunted air force which pulverized Poland, smashed resistance in the Low Countries and crushed France.

"Worst Yet To Come"

This is not a large scale attack, no matter what the effects on England may be," said the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland, hinting at worse to come. "It is a strong, armed reconnaissance."

Berlin was alive to the possibility of British reprisals, and the radio issued repeated warnings against infringement of stringent blackout regulations.

British censorship is keeping the world in ignorance of what is really going on in England, announcers declared.

REPORTER ON NAZI DIVE PLANE TELLS OF LONDON ATTACK

Says 100,000 Pounds of Explosives Dropped on Aircraft Plant.

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (A. P.—via radio)—A German flying reporter who participated in yesterday's attack on the London area said today in his story of the raid that he had "the proud feeling that hundreds, perhaps even thousands, of our comrades had attacked . . to show the British that Germany does not allow one to joke with it."

The reporter's story in part:

". . . We had orders to attack British aircraft works west of London. Our planes carried more than 50,000 kilograms (more than 100,000 pounds) of high explosives up to a height of 4,000 meters (more than 12,000 feet.)

". . . We saw the typical triangle of railway tracks of a certain British town and below us there was a certain British airdrome which was especially noticeable by the motor car racing track which encircled it.

Plane Starts Swift Dive.

"Our bomb-aiming devices were adjusted. The red light glowed on the dash. Five seconds later our machine dived. It was a sudden jerk; for a moment one seemed to lose consciousness. I saw how we approached the earth, lying beneath us like a carpet, at terrific speed. The nose of the airplane was aimed at a long row of assembly workshops.

". . . Our bombs had been released and the machine was free. We looked back and saw hits. White smoke poured from the riddled roofs of the workshops. Fire and detonations were clearly noticeable. . . . Enemy chasers had come too late. We got rid of them."

Hans Hirsch, another flyer-reporter who as a part of the regular armed forces flew over England and then returned to Nazi territory, had this to say, in a dispatch datelined somewhere in north France:

"Five minutes ago I returned from a flight against the enemy. Rochester, an airfield southeast of London, was our goal.

"Under us like thick black sausages the first (British) balloon barrages appear. My fingers itch to be able to shoot one down, but I have other tasks—perhaps on the way back.

Hurricanes Appear.

"Canterbury is beneath us. Now the goal lies just beneath us just as the pictures brought back by observers show it. The first bombs fell. Our 'eggs' curve downward and create a mighty cloud of smoke, gigantic flashes of flame. Pobjoy Air Motors Aircraft, Ltd.—they existed once, too!

"The first Hurricanes (British fighters) appear. They begin shooting afar, from all barrels to make hits. It is like hell has broken loose and banged and crashed in the cockpit. Wood and glass splinters fly about among us.

"The first pilot is wounded in the thigh—cleanly through. Then our left motor fails. Then the radioman calls that he is wounded.

"That is too much at one time. The radioman pulls the machine gun around and gives a spurt over at the pursuit ship that is trying to pull over us. He falls flaming into the channel. It didn't worry us much that we had to make an emergency landing on this side of the channel."

FUNNELS LASHED BY WATER

Tells How Hitler Is Fortifying French Coast for Attack.

BY LOUIS LOCHNER

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE FRENCH COAST OPPOSITE ENGLAND, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—(By telephone from Brussels).—The English Channel, once one of the world's busiest war lanes, presented a picture of desolation to a reporter for the Associated Press who spent three days with Germany's armed forces on the cliffs of Cap-Gris Nez and Calais and motored up and down the coast from Ostend to Boulogne.

Standing on high promontories commanding a good view of the channel, including the chalk cliffs of Dover, in the distance, he saw not one British convoy, not one larger vessel.

Two German mine sweepers, employed as first aid speedboats, and one fishing smack were all he saw moving along and through the channel. There were plenty of funnels sticking out of the water in various ports visited as so many reminders of the fights for possession of Ostend, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne and there were plenty of ships stranded in the harbors or on the reefs directly outside.

Plenty of Air Activity.

There was more than plenty of air activity.

Planes were roaring overhead virtually all the time while he watched from the sidelines.

Speedy Messerschmitt pursuiters climbing to giddy heights and darting across the Channel like so many swallows; heavier destroyers rushing over to the English side of the "pond," as German aviators call the twenty-two miles of water; the heaviest bombers audible by deep organ tones as they carried their destructive loads westward—such was the picture seen day after day.

Sometimes small formations of only nine planes, again groups of eighteen to twenty-seven, occasionally swarms of more than fifty, studded the skies, disappearing momentarily in the clouds and then reappearing as they set off for England.

French Coast Fortified.

All that could be heard was a series of heavy detonations interrupted by the thud and boom of British anti-aircraft guns. After about half an hour the German planes would return—sometimes in perfect formation and then again more irregularly. Occasionally there would be a mad chase as British machines blazed away at the German bombers streaking for home.

In one case there was rapid firing back and forth, followed by the about-face of some German chasers who pursued a lone Englishman. After a few moments it was all over.

On one such occasion a black smoke cloud rose from a promontory around the corner from the one used by the reporter.

"We got him that time," mumbled a young German lieutenant in charge of a powerful battery on our cliff.

Speaking of batteries, the Germans have fortified the French coast to a high degree.

Goethe House 'Bombed'

British Raid On Weimar A "Cultural Disgrace," Germans Say

Berlin, Aug. 17 (AP)—Germans declared today the British had bombed Weimar, the home of the famous poet Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, and described the attack as a "cultural disgrace."

They said British bombs fell on the front of the Goethe house, adjacent to Goethe Park, and on a Red Cross station. Damage was described as slight and apparently no lives were lost.

They said there were no military objectives within the environs of Weimar.

Bomber Crew Dons Mufti to Flee Nazis

Nazis Threaten Dutch As British Flyers Escape

Crew, Forced Down, Flees; Warn of Sabotage

AMSTERDAM, (via Berlin) Aug. 17 (AP).—The commander of the German Army in the Netherlands warned the Dutch today that henceforth the community where any act of sabotage was committed, as well as the community of the guilty one's birth, would have to "pay a high price."

Declaring sabotage had been continuing, Gen Friedrich Christiansen predicted possible death penalties for offenders against the German occupation and for persons concealing military enemies.

The warning was issued after a British heavy bomber made a forced landing north of Brandt today, and six British flyers escaped after changing into civilian clothing.

British Deny Report

Nazi District Leader Calls Territory German In Essence, In Making Prediction

Berlin, Aug. 17 (AP)—Alsace "will very rapidly retake its old natural place within the great German national community," Robert Wagner, Nazi district leader and chief of the Alsatian civil administration, declared in an interview published today in the weekly Das Reich.

Alsace, Wagner said, "in essence is German" and needs only to be stripped of "a varnish of mostly very superficial foreign culture."

French Jews, he reported, already have been ousted from public services.

British Mine Bay of Biscay

LONDON, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—For the first time in seven successive days, the daylight hours up to 5:30 P. M. passed without the shadow of massed German raiders over Britain.

With a lull apparent in the struggle for mastery of Britain's skies, the nation struck with new vigor to hold supremacy on the seas.

In the face of a German proclamation of total blockade of the British Isles, the Admiralty announced that Britain's own mines had made the English Channel and the Bay of Biscay dangerous for shipping. It warned that navigators should get routing instructions from British officers.

[The Bay of Biscay is being used by American freighters under neutrality act provisions allowing trade with Spain and Portugal.]

British Not Convinced.

Germany's declaration of a total blockade against Britain was described by the Ministry of Information tonight as apparently an attempt to divert British attention from German projects of invasion or from a move which she may contemplate in some other direction.

"Germany's accusation against Britain of having violated international rules of sea warfare comes singularly and inappropriately from Germany, who herself already has violated all those rules in unsuccessful attempts to blockade the British Isles," the ministry said.

Pointing out that Germany has sunk 736,162 tons of neutral shipping since the start of the war, it declared that this has not deterred neutral vessels from seeking the safety of British convoys. Therefore, it is most improbable that Germany's words of warning will succeed now where violent deeds have signally failed.

The official communique on new mine fields said:

"The Admiralty gives notice that the following areas are dangerous to shipping:

A. "The waters of the English Channel to the eastward of the line drawn from the Bishop's Rock Light, latitude 49 degrees 52 minutes north, longitude 6 degrees 27 west, to the Chaussee de Sein, latitude 48 degrees 3.4 north, longitude 5 degrees west approximately.

Ship Masters Should Ask Way.

"B. All waters in the Bay of Biscay lying to the eastward of the line drawn from the Chaussee de Sein, latitude 48 degrees 3.4 north, longitude 5 degrees 5 west, approximately to Le Socoa Light, latitude 43 degrees 23.7 north, longitude 1 degree 41.2 west.

"Masters of vessels bound to or from British ports in the English Channel should apply for routing instructions to the naval control service officer if in a British port or to the British consul if in a foreign port.

"Any vessels disregarding the terms of this notice will do so at their peril."

R. A. F. bombers last night made widespread successful attacks on new objectives in Germany, including the Messerschmitt aircraft plant at Augsburg and the Junkers assembly plant at Bernberg and the synthetic oil works at Leuna, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

Three British planes failed to return from the raids, which also struck at railroads in the Ruhr, the Zeiss military precision instrument plants at Jena and a German anti-aircraft ship in Stavanger Fjord, Norway.

The Air Ministry announced that Britain had been free of German air attacks in twelve hours since sunrise today, for the first time in seven days of mass Nazi assaults.

Anti-aircraft guns flared into action in a southeast England area tonight when a single German plane, apparently on a scouting mission, circled high over head.

Zeiss Optical Works Hit.

The communique said:

"Widespread attacks on new objectives in Germany were carried out successfully last night by a R. A. F. Bomber Squadron. These included the hydrogenation plant at Leuna, the benzine refinery at Bohlen, the Zeiss Works at Jena, the Messerschmitt factory at Augsburg and the aircraft stores at Kollez, north of Weimar.

"The junkers assembly plant at Bernburg and an air frame factory at Frankfurt were again attacked. Railways in the Ruhr and airplanes in Germany and in occupied territory were bombed.

"Three of our aircraft have not returned from these operations.

"A Hudson aircraft of the coastal command attacked and damaged an anti-aircraft ship in Stavanger Fjord.

"No enemy attacks were made in this country in the twelve hours from sunrise today."

Germany's bombers thundered over in new destructive raids during the moonlit pre-dawn, blasting a wide area of Wales. Later they roared through British defenses over an inland southeast English town and over two points on the south coast.

Compared to incessant raids on previous days by hundreds of German fighters and bombers in waves, there came only scattered planes, apparently for scouting.

Nazis May Be Resting.

Two theories were offered to explain the lull, that a rest was being given Nazi pilots and time for reformation of their broken squadrons, and that time was being taken to organize preparations for still heavier assaults.

Many Britons were left homeless by the first week of Nazi air siege which has hit heavily also at Britain's harbors, airports, factories and warehouses.

Even as funds were being collected for the relief of those made homeless in earlier bombardments, other homes were destroyed by delayed action bombs exploding this morning in a southwestern London suburb which the Nazis raided late yesterday.

While British pursuit planes fought new swarms of invading warplanes, the Air Ministry revealed that British bombers raiding Germany last night, had struck heavily at the Nazi air-fuel supply, wreaking very large damage on a great synthetic fuel plant at Leuna, near Leipzig, where gasoline is made from coal.

The Air Ministry said that a hundred bombs were dropped on the Leuna plant, which normally produces 400,000 metric tons of synthetic oil annually, and that they set off a chain of fires marking almost the entire area of the main plant.

Two bombers failed to find their mark, the statement said. One returned home with its bombs; the other loosed a salvo at a large Nazi anti-aircraft battery.

"These are samples of the extreme care the R. A. F. takes to identify its targets and thus avoid all danger of bombing non-military objectives," the Ministry explained.

Raiders Over Southeast.

The Ministry at the same time revised upward its figures of German planes destroyed, reporting that seventy-five Nazi raiders had been shot down during yesterday's very much smaller scale attacks and insisting that a new check of Thursday's air battles showed 180 invading aircraft "certainly destroyed." The previous figure for Thursday was 169.

Today's daylight raids began with dogfights over an inland town in the southeast, where British fighters shot down one Messerschmitt and captured its pilot.

A dozen persons visiting the scene of yesterday's bombardment narrowly escaped injury and others were sent scurrying to the air raid shelters by time bomb explosions. They had moved away from the site a bare minute before the bomb went off.

There were two more bomb explosions later in the day. One damaged several houses and the other exploded near a factory.

The Mayor of one bombed London suburb declared today: "The German raid yesterday has only aroused our fighting spirit—every one was wonderful."

He paid tribute in a statement to the suburban air raid shelters, saying that one bomb fell within three yards of one shelter and not one of the occupants even suffered shock. The high explosive didn't even strip the turf from the shelter.

Two women and a man were taken to hospital when two bombs struck in the main square of a Welsh town. Houses were damaged, the windows of three hotels were shattered, and a fire brigade turned out to keep in check a blaze in the center of the town.

Two whistling bombs crashed in the middle of another town, damaging property and causing several casualties. One woman said: "It is remarkable that some people weren't killed. One woman fell from her bedroom into the room below. She was not seriously injured."

German planes were also reported over southwest and southeast England during the night, while a single raider dropped nine bombs on a southwest coastal town. Searchlights failed to pick up that plane.

Residential District Hit.

The bombs fell in a residential district, the shattering explosions shaking the town out of its sleep, but while a number of houses were damaged there were no casualties.

In the past nine days of air fights over Britain, 131 British planes have been brought down, but forty-five pilots have been saved, according to official communiques. The Germans have lost 623 planes in that period. There has been no announcement as to how many Nazi airmen have been captured, but it is obvious that the German personnel losses are far greater because the attacking bombers require larger crews than the single-seater fighter planes used in defense.

The personnel required for a German attacking force probably averages three men to a plane, counting five for the large bombers and ranging down to one for the escort fighters. This would mean that the Germans have lost around 1,860 airmen, either killed or captured, in the past nine days.

A casualty list issued by the Air Ministry brought the total of Royal Air Force losses since the outbreak of the war to just over 4,300, of whom nearly half—1,854 flyers—are shown as missing.

BRITISH RAIDS ON FRANCE END LULL IN BLITZ

Nazis Fly Back To England after R. A. F. Dash Across Channel

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Aug. 18—German warbirds, as if aroused from their roost by British attacks on France, bombarded southwest England early today and roared over the midlands following a mysterious all-day "holiday" yesterday.

The Royal Air Force, capitalizing on this interim, visited the German positions on the French coast late last night and staged a brilliant fireworks show of their own.

Rumbling explosions reverberated across the Channel, and watchers on England's bomb-pocked shore saw the sheet-lightning of bomb bursts on the Continent, along with the flare of Nazi "flaming onion" anti-aircraft projectiles and the rapier thrusts of searchlights.

Nazis Return To Attack

The Germans, who had laid off Britain from dawn past dark yesterday, sent a few planes over late last night, and returned to the attack on an undisclosed scale today.

Bombs were dropped over a wide area in the Midlands, but first reports said damage was comparatively slight with no casualties.

Incendiary bombs fell near a railway line in one Midland county, three high-explosive bombs fell on a row of houses in one town and works were hit in two small villages.

Parachutes Spotted

In the suburbs of another town residents said they saw parachutes drifting to the ground in the light of searchlight beams.

There was no explanation why the Nazis sent over only scouting planes during the daylight yesterday after six consecutive days of heavy attack which continued up to dawn Saturday.

But the British navy and air force joined in counter-blows against their Axis enemies in both Africa and Europe.

Eleven Italian planes were shot down Saturday, the Admiralty said, when they attempted to combat bombardment of the Libyan coast by British planes and warships.

The Air Ministry reported Friday night raids by British bombers on German targets and enumerated assaults on important military targets.

Widespread Raids On Reich

"Widespread successful attacks," one communique said, included the Messerschmitt aircraft plant at Augsburg, the Junkers assembly plant at Bernberg, railroads in the Iuhr, the Zeiss military precision instrument plants at Jena and a German anti-aircraft ship in Stavanger Fjord, Norway.

An earlier Air Ministry report said "very large damage" also had been inflicted on the great synthetic fuel plant at Leuna, near Leipzig, where coal is transformed into gasoline.

A hundred bombs set off a chain of fires marking almost the entire area of the more than mile-long main plant which "normally produces 400,000 metric tons of synthetic oil annually," it said.

Britain Intensifies Blockade

In the face of Germany's proclamation of a total blockade of the British Isles, Britain intimated that her own blockade of Germany had been intensified.

The Admiralty warned that the English Channel and the Bay of Biscay—possible commerce lanes between Germany and the western Atlantic—were dangerous for navigation without routing instructions from British officers.

Nazi bombers thundered in destructive raids on Wales Friday and followed them up with three attacks in the south and southeast.

At least one German plane was shot down over Britain yesterday and its pilot captured before the mass assaults slacked off.

One death was caused and several civilians were injured in early Saturday morning raids over Wales.

Observers offered two theories for the halt in the massed air attacks.

One suggested that the German air command was calling time out to fill the gaps caused by the week's loss of 574 Nazi planes officially reported shot down. Another expressed belief that the Germans were using the lull to organize a still heavier air siege.

Duff Cooper's Dare To Hitler

Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, broadcast a dare to Adolf Hitler last night to carry out his threat to invade Britain.

"We are quite ready to receive him now, and we shall really be very disappointed if he does not turn up," Duff Cooper declared.

"This week end, we were told by German boasters and bullies, was to be a week end of terror in Great Britain," he continued.

"No Terror In Britain"

"I am speaking now toward the close of Saturday evening, the middle of the week end, which has hitherto been a singularly quiet and peaceful one.

"There is no terror in Great Britain today. Rather there is a sense of achievement, a spirit of confidence, a note of victory and longing only that they shall come again in greater numbers in order that we may continue to take a more fearful toll of them than we already have taken."

Bombs Don't Wake Sleepers in Dover, But Spectators Do

DOVER, England, Aug. 17 (AP).—The racket of exploding bombs in the R. A. F.'s royal tonight over the German-held French coast didn't disturb hotel guests.

But the exclamations of three watching American newspaper correspondents and two military attaches of the American Embassy in London did annoy the sleeping Britons.

The Americans were asked to leave the hotel balcony where they were watching the fireworks across the Dover strait.

LONDON, AUG. 17-(AP)-IN THE MASSIVE AIR BATTLES RAGING OVER BRITAIN THE ROYAL AIR FORCE HAS HAD ONE ADVANTAGE OVER THE NAZI LUFTWAFFE CONSIDERED HIGHLY IMPORTANT BY MILITARY EXPERTS. BRITAIN IS SAID TO BE LOSING ONLY SIX FLYERS TO EVERY 100 LOST BY THE GERMANS.

RAF PILOTS WHO BAIL OUT OF CRIPPLED PLANES LIVE TO FIGHT IN OTHER BATTLES, BUT GERMAN PILOTS WHO MAKE SAFE LANDINGS ARE LOST TO THE LUFTWAFFE "FOR THE DURATION." IT'S INTERNMENT FOR THEM IF THEY SURVIVE THEIR WOUNDS.

IN THE PAST NINE DAYS OF AIR FIGHTS OVER BRITAIN, ~~130~~ 131 BRITISH PLANES HAVE BEEN BROUGHT DOWN BUT 45 PILOTS HAVE BEEN SAVED, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUES. TEN PILOTS WERE REPORTED SAFE YESTERDAY, WHEN THE BRITISH ACKNOWLEDGED LOSS OF ~~18~~ 22 PLANES.

THE GERMANS HAVE LOST 540 PLANES IN THAT PERIOD. THERE HAS BEEN NO ANNOUNCEMENT AS TO HOW MANY NAZI AIRMEN HAVE BEEN CAPTURED, BUT IT IS OBVIOUS GERMAN PERSONNEL LOSSES ARE FAR GREATER BECAUSE THE ATTACKING BOMBERS REQUIRE LARGER CREWS THAN THE SINGLE-SEATER FIGHTER PLANES USED IN DEFENSE.

THE PERSONNEL REQUIRED FOR A GERMAN ATTACKING FORCE PROBABLY AVERAGES THREE MEN PER PLANE, COUNTING FIVE FOR THE LARGE BOMBERS AND RANGING DOWN TO ONE FOR THE ESCORT FIGHTERS.

THIS WOULD MEAN THE GERMANS HAVE LOST APPROXIMATELY 1,350 AIRMEN, EITHER KILLED OR CAPTURED, IN THE PAST NINE DAYS. THE BRITISH PERSONNEL LOSS FIGURES OUT TO ONLY ABOUT 6 PERCE[illegible]E NAZI TOTAL.

DOVER, ENGLAND, AUG. 17--(AP)--AFTER A DAY IN WHICH THE GERMAN AIR FORCE FAILED TO ATTACK ENGLAND THE RAF WAS BELIEVED TONIGHT TO HAVE DROPPED TONS OF BOMBS ON THE GERMAN-HELD FRENCH COAST ACROSS FROM DOVER.

THE SOUTH OF EXPLODING BOMBS COULD BE HEARD CLEARLY ON THE ENGLISH SIDE, A SCORE OF MILES FROM CALAIS.

PENCILS OF LIGHT FROM GERMAN SEARCHLIGHT BATTERIES SWEPT THE SKY AND "FLAMING ONIONS"--THE RAF'S NAME FOR FLARE LIKE ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS WHICH THE GERMANS FIRE--LIGHTED THE SKY LIKE A GRAND FIREWORKS DISPLAY.

LONDON, AUG. 17 (AP)--- HEAVY EXPLOSIONS OF BOMBS OR SHELLS WERE HEARD ALONG THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF ENGLAND ABOUT 8:45 P.M., (2:45 P.M., E.S.T.) TONIGHT. SHORTLY AFTERWARD RAF PLANES WERE HEARD OVER THE CHANNEL.

OBSERVERS THEORIZED THAT THE BRITISH HAD ATTACKED OBJECTIVES ON THE FRENCH COAST, INCLUDING SOME AT THE FRENCH PORT OF BOULOGNE.

Cooper Dares Germany To Try Invading Britain

Says 'We'll Be Disappointed' if Hitler Doesn't Turn Up

LONDON, Aug. 17 (AP).—Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, broadcast tonight a dare to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler to carry out his threat to invade Great Britain.

"We are quite ready to receive him now, and we shall really be very disappointed if he does not turn up," Cooper declared.

Broadcasting after a day which brought the first let-up in a week of mass Nazi air raids, Cooper went on:

"This week end, we were told by German boasters and bullies, was to be a week end of terror in Great Britain. I am speaking now towards the close of Saturday evening, the middle of the week end, which has hitherto been a singularly quiet and peaceful one.

"There is no terror in Great Britain today. Rather there is a sense of achievement, a spirit of confidence, a note of victory and longing only that they shall come again in greater numbers, in order that we may continue to take a more fearful toll of them than we already have taken."

British Report Eleven Italian Planes Bagged

London, Aug. 17 (AP)—An Admiralty communique tonight said "at least" eleven aircraft were shot down by R. A. F. fighters in an Italian attack on British warships in the Mediterranean today.

Text of the communique follows:

"With reference to the Admiralty communique issued earlier this evening regarding the bombardment of Bardia and Fort Capuzzo, information has now been received that at least eleven enemy aircraft were shot down over the fleet by the R. A. F. fighter escort."

The earlier communique said:

"The commander in chief in the Mediterranean reports that a British naval force under his command, consisting of battleships and cruisers, this morning bombarded Bardia and Fort Capuzzo in Libya and other military objectives in the vicinity.

British Damages Disclaimed

"Fleet arm aircraft were used for spotting during the bombardment and reported that many salvos hit the target. Following these bombardments, the fleet was subjected to heavy bombing attacks by Italian aircraft. These caused no damage or casualties to the fleet.

"At least two enemy bombers were seen to fall into the sea, shot down by the fighter escort provided by the Royal Air Force."

THE PAPER PRAISED THE FIGHTING SERVICES' "ARDENT DESIRE TO STRIKE," AND PUBLISHED FOUR LETTERS CALLING FOR A BRITISH OFFENSIVE BY LAND AND SEA.

TWO OF THESE ASKED THE NATION TO SUBSCRIBE FUNDS FOR BOMBERS AS WELL AS FIGHTERS IN ORDER TO CARRY OUT FURTHER ATTACKS SUCH AS THOSE LAUNCHED THIS WEEK AGAINST ITALY.

LONDON, AUG. 17-(AP)-A TOTAL OF 75 GERMAN PLANES WERE DESTROYED IN ATTACKS ON BRITAIN YESTERDAY AND 180 "CERTAINLY DESTROYED" IN THURSDAY'S ATTACKS, THE AIR MINISTRY ANNOUNCED TODAY.

LONDON, AUG. 17--(AP)--THE NAZI AIR INVASION OF BRITAIN HAS FEW TERRORS FOR REPORTERS WHO HAVE COVERED TORNADOES. SIMILARITIES BETWEEN THE TWO DEADLY FORMS OF DESTRUCTION ARE AMAZING. THERE IS THE SAME DREAD THRILL OF EXPECTANTCY WHEN THE CLOUD APPROACHES -- ALTHOUGH THERE'S NO FUNNEL SHAPE TO THE NAZI CLOUD.

ONE WONDERS WITH TREMORS WHETHER IT IS COMING HIS WAY, AND NOTES QUICKLY A PLACE OF SHELTER IF IT DOES.

THE ONRUSHING FLIGHT OF BOMBERS, LIKE THE TWISTER, FOLLOWS A RELATIVELY NARROW PATH. BOTH UNEXPECTEDLY DIP DEVASTATINGLY, THEN SKIP DISTANCES. BOTH ARE ACCOMPANIED BY ROARING, WHISTLING AND CRACKLING SOUNDS.

THERE'S A SIMILIARITY IN DESTRUCTION, TOO. MODERN BOMBERS ATTEMPT TO PLOUGH A FUROUGH ACROSS THE TARGET. PART OF THE FLOW OF PROJECTILES FALLS HARMLESSLY IN FIELDS AND STREAMS, PART ON RESIDENCES AND BUSINESS BLOCKS ALONG THE PATH TOWARD WHAT SOMEONE HAS SUPPOSED MAY BE A MILITARY TARGET.

HOWEVER, THE TORNADO WHILE IN CONTACT WITH THE GROUND RIPS A MORE CONSISTENT FURROW. BOMBS INEFFICIENTLY MISS MORE THAN THEY HIT, AND THE FURROW IS A RAGGED, DOTTED LINE. THE TECHNIQUE OF COVERAGE IS SIMILAR. THE OBSERVER, HAVING NOTED THE DIRECTION OF THE RAID, HURRIES TO A TELEPHONE TO TAKE THE REPORTS OF OTHER OBSERVERS STATIONED IN THE AFFECTED AREA, AND SENDS HELPERS AFOOT TO SEE AND REPORT.

THE BLITZ REPORTER, LIKE THE TORNADO REPORTER, FINDS IN ADDITION TO THE WRECKAGE OF BUILDINGS, BODIES AND SICKENING SORRY SIGHTS, QUEER FREAKS OF THE STORM: AS IN YESTERDAY'S CASE OF A HOUSE COMPLETELY WRECKED -- WITH THE MORNING'S MILK BOTTLE STANDING UNTOUCHED ON THE STEP; OR THE CASE OF THE DAIRYMAN, UNHURT AND WITH PAIL OF MILK UNSPILLED, THOUGH THE COW HE WAS MILKING AND COWS ON XXX BOTH SIDES OF HIM WERE KILLED.

THE CHIEF DIFFERENCE BETWEEN STORMS AND BOMBINGS TO A NEWSPAPERMAN IS THAT HE CAN TELL, WITHOUT RESTRICTIONS AND WITHOUT WAITING FOR HOURS, JUST WHAT HAPPENED IN A TORNADO. FOR NO ONE CARES WHETHER THE TORNADO FINDS OUT WHAT "HITS" IT HAS SCORED. NO SO AFTER AN AIR RAID; THE ENEMY MUST BE KEPT IN THE DARK.

THE MOST REMARKABLE SIDE OF THE AIR INVASIONOF ENGLAND IS THAT PUBLIC REACTION TO IT GREATLY RESEMBLES REACTION TO A STORM. ONE DOES FLEE FROM THUNDER, LIGHTNING OR WIND, AND ONE GOES BACK TO WORK WHEN THE STORM HAS XXX PASSED. ENGLISHMEN BEAR THE NAZI ATTACKS AS IF THEY WERE PART OF THE MALIGN NATURAL ELEMENTS TOWHICH THE ISLANDERS ARE ACCUSTOMED. THEY TAKE SHELTER WHILE THE STORM LASTS, AND THEN TURN IMMEDIATELY TO RECONSTRUCTION AND PREPARATIONS AGAINST THE NEXT BLOW.

NEW YORK, AUG. 17-(AP)-AN AIR RAID ALARM WAS SOUNDED IN THE GERMAN CITY OF MUNICH EARLY THIS MORNING, ACCORDING TO A SWISS TELEGRAPHIC NEWS AGENCY REPORT BROADCAST BY THE BRITISH BROADCASTING COMPANY AND PICKED UP HERE BY NBC.

NEW YORK, AUG. 17-(AP)-BRITISH WARPLANES HAVE DROPPED 40,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON "ENEMY TERRITORY" IN A PERIOD OF ONE MONTH, THE BRITISH BROADCASTING COMPANY REPORTED TODAY IN AN ANNOUNCEMENT HEARD HERE BY NBC.

LONDON, AUG. 17--BRITAIN'S BULWARKS AGAINST GERMAN BOMBERS NOW INCLUDE A WIDESPREAD SERIES OF OBSERVATION AND LISTENING POSTS AND AN INTRICATE AND DELICATELY BALANCED SYSTEM OF PLOTTING THE RAIDERS' POSITION.

SYNCHRONIZED WITH ALL THIS ARE THOUSANDS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS WHOSE ACCURACY IS IMPROVING STEADILY IN THE GREATEST AND GRIMMEST SCHOOL THAT EVER TRAINED A GUNNER--THE FIERCE AIR WAR OVER ENGLAND.

THE INCREASING VIRULENCE OF THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT IS LAID BY ARTILLERY OFFICERS TO "PRACTICE AND NOTHING ELSE." THEY POINT OUT THAT THE GERMAN HABIT OF SENDING PLANES IN BIG GROUPS HELPED THE NOVICE GUNNERS AND GAVE THE VETERANS A "FLOCK OF BIRDS" TO SHOOT AT.

THE GUNNERS THEMSELVES SEEM UNIFORMLY CHEERFUL, NOT ONLY OVER THE ACCURACY OF THEIR "ACK ACKS" BUT OVER THE FACT THAT THE NAZIS HAVE NOT YET MADE A RECORDED HIT ON ONE OF THEIR POSITIONS.

"WE WILL KEEP 'EM UP THERE," SAID ONE BATTERY COMMANDER, "AND THE RAF WILL KNOCK 'EM DOWN. BUT WE INTEND TO TAKE CARE OF OURSELVES IF THEY COME IN RANGE. THIS IS LOTS MORE FUN THAN DUCK SHOOTING."

THE "PASSIVE" GROUND DEFENSE AGAINST GERMAN AIRCRAFT IS TAKING NEW, INGENIOUS FORMS. STACKS OF STONES AND EVERY OTHER SORT OF OBSTRUCTION LIE ON FIELDS, AND OFTEN THESE SAME FIELDS ARE COVERED BY HEAVY GUNS FROM GUN PITS MILES AWAY.

BLOCKHOUSES, RIFLE PITS, PILLBOXES, BATTERIES OF GUNS FROM A CORDON AROUND THIS "TIGHT LITTLE ISLE." HERE, IF THE RAF AND THE ROYAL NAVY FAIL, IS BRITAIN'S REAL "THIN LINE OF HEROES," BRITAIN'S LAST DEFENSE.

THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS, SCORNED BY PILOTS IN THIS AND THE LAST WAR AS "ARCHIES" AND "OLD ACK ACK," HAVE HAD THEIR EFFECTIVENESS GREATLY INCREASED BY THE LONG MONTHS OF INACTIVITY LAST WINTER, WHEN THE GUNNERS SPENT COUNTLESS HOURS IN PRACTICE.

AS A RESULT, THE GERMAN AIR ONSLAUGHT X X PICKING UP IN THIRD PGH OF MIDDLETON'S ADVANCE FOR AMS OF TOMORROW, AUG. 18, SENT AUG. 10.

William Fiske 3d Fatally Hurt Fighting in R.A.F. Against Nazis

American Volunteer, Famed Bobsled Driver, Was Son of Investment Banker

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 17.--Pilot Officer William Mead Lindsley Fiske 3d, driver of the American bobsled teams which won the Olympic championships in 1928 and 1932, and son of William Mead Lindsley Fiske 2d, member of a New York banking firm, died today of injuries suffered in a fight with a German bomber yesterday. He was twenty-nine years old.

Mr. Fiske, who was serving in a fighter squadron, had been in several combats before yesterday and was reported to have destroyed several enemy aircraft.

His squadron yesterday engaged a mass formation of German bombers attacking the squadron airdrome. Later the following announcement was made: "After successful conclusion of the combat Fiske brought his craft back to the landing ground. He was found to be severely injured and died later in hospital."

Enlisted in August, '39

Mr. Fiske, who was known as Billy Fiske to devotees of winter sports throughout the world, enlisted in the Royal Air Force in August, 1939. He went into training last September, and after passing his final test with a high rating was assigned to a squadron of the R. A. F.

The terse cable in which his parents were informed yesterday of his death "in action in southeastern England" followed one which they had received from their son on Friday. In his cable, Mr. Fiske, whose enthusiasm for the Allied cause had prompted him to enlist, told his parents: "Don't believe everything you hear from Berlin. British reports if anything understate it. Everything fine."

Mr. Fiske's father, who is the head of the Paris branch of Dillon Read & Co., investment bankers, went to Spain from France with Mrs. Fiske on June 27 and arrived in the United States last week by ship. While abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Fiske were told on many occasions that their son had acquired a reputation as one of the most daring, skilled and respected members of the R. A. F.

His daring and skill in flight and combat were the natural outcome of the qualities he displayed as one of the world's outstanding exponents of the dangerous sport of bob-sledding.

In 1928, at St. Moritz, Switzerland, and again in 1932, at Lake Placid, N. Y., Mr. Fiske drove his American team to victory on the United States bobsled Satan. His teammates in both victories were Jay O'Brien, Eddie Eagan and "Tippy" Gray.

The success of the team in 1928 was considered remarkable, since at that time there was no standard bob run in this country, and the sport as it had been known in Europe for several years was practically unknown here aside from a short bob run at Lake Placid. At the time of his first Olympic victory, Mr. Fiske had never driven bob sleds in this country, but had followed the sport at the winter resorts in Switzerland and Germany.

Commenting on the tryouts scheduled for Lake Placid Olympic events in 1932, Harry Cross, sports writer of The New York Herald Tribune said: "The edge that the American drivers seem to have on their European competitors consisted of taking more chances in rounding dangerous curves."

Mr. Fiske's ability to ride the ruts in the straightaways was said to have been responsible for his team's victory over the stretch of four heats in 1932 on the Mount van Hoevenberg run at Lake Placid, the fastest in the world. In 1932 the American Olympic Committee, basing its decision on Mr. Fiske's showing in 1928 and his non-Olympic victories in Switzerland in the interval, picked him and his comrades as one of the American teams without tryouts.

In 1935, Mr. Fiske remained in Europe to test the new bob-sled run at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, with the approval of the American Olympic Committee instead of participating in the American try-outs at Lake Placid. On February 12, a fifteen-man bob-sled team, headed by Billy Fiske, was selected to represent the United States on the German run, which Mr. Fiske said was the sportiest and most dangerous in the world.

In January, 1936, however, it was announced that Mr. Fiske had decided not to compete in the race at Garmisch-Partenkirchen. It has been said that antipathy to Nazism influenced Mr. Fiske's decision not to compete in the Olympics in Germany. A Swiss team, headed by Pierre Musy, won the four-man bob-sled race that year.

In the same year and later, Mr. Fiske continued to break the speed records for the one-man or skeleton bobs on Cresta Run in St. Moritz, proving himself to be the fastest sledder who had ever covered the course in the fifty years since the race was instituted.

On January 30, 1936, he bulleted down the icy groove in 56.9 seconds, bettering by three seconds the Cresta record set by Jack Heaton, of New York. The next day he won the Knapp Cup competition on the 1,200-meter course. He followed up these spectacular victories by winning the Morgan Cup, his third trophy of the season, on Feb. 5. The climax of his victories was his winning of the Cresta Run Grand National title on Feb. 7.

Mr. Fiske was born in Chicago on June 4, 1911, the son of Mr. Fiske and Mrs. Beulah Rexford Fiske. After attending school in Chicago until he was twelve years old, Mr. Fiske went to France. He continued his education there and in England and was graduated from Cambridge University in 1931. He was only seventeen when he won his first Olympic victory at St. Moritz. Mr. Fiske was widely known as a skier as well as a bobsledder.

After his graduation from Cambridge, Mr. Fiske returned to the United States and settled in California. He was interested in establishing winter sports centers in various sections of the world where the climate and terrain were suitable. Mr. Fiske also interested himself in the production of motion pictures, serving for a time abroad as vice-president of the First Division Motion Picture Exchanges.

In 1937 Mr. Fiske went back to England to work in the London office of Dillon Read & Co. On September 8, 1938, he married the Countess of Warwick, the former Miss Rose Bingham. She is a granddaughter of the Earl of Rosslyn and daughter of the late Cecil Bingham of the Coldstream Guards.

Mr. and Mrs. Fiske met on the ski and bob sled runs of Switzerland, where they won a ski race together the year before their marriage. After Mr. Fiske's enlistment in the R. A. F. last August, Mrs. Fiske went to England to join her husband and do what she could for the Allied cause.

London Sees Blockade As Diversion Attempt

London, Aug. 17 (AP)—Germany's declaration of a "total blockade" against Britain was described by the Ministry of Information tonight as apparently an attempt "to divert British attention from German projects of invasion or from a move which she may contemplate in some other direction."

"Germany's accusation against Britain of having violated international rules of sea warfare comes singularly and inappropriately from Germany, who herself already has violated all those rules in unsuccessful attempts to blockade the British Isles," the Ministry said.

Pointing out that Germany has sunk 736,162 tons of neutral shipping since the start of the war, it declared "this, however, has not deterred neutral vessels from seeking the safety of British convoy. Therefore, it is most improbable that Germany's words of warning will succeed now where violent deeds have signally failed."

ITALY CLAIMS BATTLE WON IN SOMALILAND

Hundreds Of British Defenders Declared Slain, Many Prisoners

Greece Warned To Meet Rome's Demands Now Or Suffer Consequences

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 17—The battle for British Somaliland has been won, the Italian high command claimed tonight, as Fascist spokesmen warned pro-British Greece that she must now recognize Italian demands "or suffer the consequences."

The fighting in Somaliland—a British protectorate along the Gulf of Aden which adjoins the Fascist East African empire—was declared substantially over. A military communique announced that the defenders had been encircled, both its wings driven in, and had abandoned to a lost battlefield "hundreds" of Rhodesian and native Indian dead.

Many Prisoners Claimed

Many prisoners were taken, the communique added, as well as great stores of war materials and food, and British warships anchored in the port of Berbera, Somaliland, were "badly" damaged by aerial attack.

The main ground fighting, which had raged for five days, was at Jerato Pass, in the vicinity of Adadleh, some thirty-five miles from Berbera, the capital and chief port, and the high command reported Fascist troops were "inflexibly" continuing the march on that key town, to which it was said the defenders had retreated.

British Bombings Discounted

It was acknowledged that the British had bombed the Italian aviation camp at Bassa and it was said, too, that they had raided houses in Jijiga—"without any results."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The British already had said they would not send reinforcements to the Somaliland troops and had taken the position that Italian victories there were of small ultimate importance.]

Some time before the announcement of the high command, Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist editor, had declared the Somaliland phase of the developing desert war could be considered ended in Italy's favor.

Within a few days, he said, that primitive, half-waste, long a part of the British Empire, would fall into Italy's expanded territories.

Thus, he added, would Italian forces be put in better position for the expected attack upon British Aden, across the gulf near the mouth of the Red Sea, a vital area in British Empire communications.

Duce's Plans As To Greece

Italian plans as to Greece, which has a British guarantee of help if her independence is attacked, were disclosed by Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia.

"We have reason to believe," said that paper, "that the Rome Government proposes to clarify the attitude of Greece completely within the next few days.

"It is necessary that everything be brought to light. It then will be possible to judge whether those responsible in Athens intend to recognize the rights of Albania and Italy or suffer the consequences of a policy of complicity."

This was a reference to the loudly pressed Italian claims that a part of Greece rightfully belongs to Albania, itself now a part of the Italian Empire.

ITALIANS REPORT SOMALI VICTORY

ClaimBritishDefenseSystem Has Been Encircled.

ROME, Aug. 17 (A. P.)—The Italian High Command declared tonight that the British defense system in Somaliland has been encircled by the action of two wings of the advancing Italian forces.

Hundreds were reported dead, numerous prisoners were captured and vast quantities of materials, foodstuffs and arms of all kinds were taken, a High Command special bulletin said.

The air force was said to have co-operated with the land army, bombing and machine-gunning the British.

Warships and other vessels in the port of Berbera were said to have been badly damaged by bombing.

Among the hundreds of dead were said to be Rhodesians and Indians of the British force. Their bodies were strewn through the rocky mountain passes where the severest fighting took place.

The battle for British Somaliland now can be considered won, the authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, declared today.

Gayda wrote in the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia that within a few days the colony would cease to form a part of the British Empire and would be combined in the economic and military organization of Italian East Africa.

Lists Five Reasons.

He gave the following reasons why an Italian victory is important in British Somaliland:

1. Liberation of the entire front and the release of troops for service elsewhere.
2. Elimination of the possibility of a British attack in this sector.
3. Placing of the Italians in a more strategic position for a possible attack on Britain's Aden protectorate, across the Gulf of Aden, in Arabia.
4. An increase in Italy's economic resources, especially by making available 6,000,000 head of cattle.
5. Impress upon the Near Eastern peoples "the fateful decline of the British Empire" and the encouragement of rebellion against Britain, especially among the Arab populations.

The Italian High Command declared that bloody fighting in Somaliland had reached its culminating point in a general British retreat. It said British warships in the harbor had been subjected to a heavy attack in the Alexandria bombing yesterday.

Alexandria dispatches said a two-hour raid Thursday night resulted only in bombs falling in the sea, and a communique said one person was killed and four injured.

A British communique at Cairo said the R. A. F. was continuing to harass enemy troop movements in Somaliland and made no mention of withdrawal of British land forces.

Anti-Greek Agitation Kept Up.

The Ciamuria district along the Albanian border from Greece has been mentioned repeatedly since Italy launched her press campaign against the Greeks.

The anti-Greek agitation continued with a press report that a Greek official in Ciamuria had issued a circular in 1937 declaring that those who use any language other than Greek offended the Government.

This was described as a confession which proved that Ciamuria had remained Albanian and therefore merits a better destiny after so many years of suffering and injustices.

Say Turkish Attitude Changed.

With Turkey's attitude generally considered an important factor in the possibilities of Italian claims on Greece, a neutral friend of Britain, the official Stefani News Agency reported the Turkish public is out of sympathy with the ultra-Anglophile attitude of their newspapers.

Stefani asserted that no one in Turkey believes reports that an Italian submarine sank the Greek cruiser Helle, torpedoed Thursday by an unidentified submarine off Tinos Island in the same vicinity of the Ægean Sea where the destroyers were attacked yesterday.

The Italian Government withheld details of the Somaliland fighting from its communique, but issued what it alleged to be a transcription of a London radio broadcast of the British retreat.

A casualty list was published today showing 2,052 killed since Italy entered the war. In the second half of July forty-one men died of wounds from the fighting in France and ninety-five were killed in Africa.

Fascist Press Hints At Invading Greece

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 17—Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia indicated today that Italy would ask the Greek Government to define its position on Italian claims in behalf of Italian-annexed Albania within a few days.

"We have reason to believe the Rome Government proposes to clarify the attitude of Greece completely within the next few days," said the newspaper, which gave a more ominous turn to the recent propaganda campaign being waged against pro-British Greece.

Must Clear Things Up

"It is necessary that everything be brought to light. It will thus be possible to judge if those responsible in Athens intend to recognize the rights of Albania and Italy or suffer the consequences of a policy of complicity."

Heretofore the Italians have accused Greece of being a vassal of Britain, of aiding in her Mediterranean war against Italy and of conniving in plots along the Albanian frontier.

Accuses British Press

The newspaper said the British press was urging Greece to resist Italian demands.

Strongly hinting at possible invasion, it asked:

"Is it in the interest of the Greeks to repeat the experience of the Czecho-Slovaks, the Poles, Norwegians, Danes, Belgians and French?"

Italy kept up her anti-Greek agitation through the press today and official sources denied any knowledge of a reported air attack on two Greek destroyers.

They said that "nothing is known" of the Athens report that the destroyers had been bombed by Italian planes—a report which the Fascist press failed to publish.

Ciamuria Mentioned

The Ciamuria district along the Albanian border from Greece has been mentioned repeatedly since Italy launched her press campaign against the Greeks.

So far as could be learned, the Italian Government has not made any representations to Athens.

The anti-Greek agitation continued with a press report that a Greek official in Ciamuria had issued a circular in 1937 declaring those who use any language other than Greek offended the Government.

Athens Reports Apology.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 17 (A. P.).—Reliable sources say the Italian naval attache apologized to Premier-Gen. John Metaxas last night for the bombing attack yesterday of two Greek destroyers, asserting Italian aviators mistook them for British vessels.

Earlier the Greek Government had ordered partial mobilization, calling up for August 20 a group of reservists which military quarters said includes anti-aircraft gunners and observers.

The commanding officers of the two Greek destroyers—the Vasilevs Georgios I and Vasilissa Olga—were declared on high authority to have identified the attacking planes as Italian. Seventeen bombs dropped near the ships, although they were not hit.

The Greek Government officially refrained from comment, declaring the bombers were of unknown nationality.

The destroyers were attacked en route to the island of Tinos in the Aegean Sea, where the Greek cruiser Helle was torpedoed Thursday—by an unidentified submarine, the Government said.

Warships Reported Bombed

ROME, Aug. 17 (AP)—The Italian High Command announced today that warships and other vessels in the British Somaliland port of Berbera had been badly damaged by Italian bombs. It also was reported that British warships at Alexandria, Egypt, had been heavily bombed.

Says Australia Needs Troops

ROME, Aug. 17 (AP) (via radio).—The Rome radio asserted today that Australia, because of home defense needs, "was compelled" to cease shipments of troops to Egypt long before it filled a quota of 200,000. The radio said Australia had been forced to retain at home 80,000 troops intended for service in Africa.

French Airmen Fight Italians In Africa

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 17—French airmen operating with the Royal Air Force fought off an attempted Italian bombing raid on Berbera, capital and chief port of British Somaliland, R. A. F. headquarters reported today.

A communique announced the Frenchmen shot down one Italian bomber and put the others to flight, while British bombers meanwhile attacked the Italian-held port of Zeila and other military targets and troop concentrations.

Submarine Reported Hit

The R. A. F. also reported direct hits on an Italian submarine, a naval oil tank and jetties in bombing the harbor of Tobruk, Libya, and said resultant fires still burned "many hours later."

Native Somali troops form the backbone of the British defense at Berbera, and they are fighting against heavy odds and increasing pressure from armored Italian divisions.

It was to relieve the pressure on these troops that R. A. F. bombers attacked the Italian advance lines and rained tons of explosives on Zeila, the Italians' newly captured coastal base, and nearby islands on which troop concentrations or other military objectives were found.

Somalis still are holding their reserve positions despite artillery bombardments and attacks from the air, the British say.

On the Libyan front the Italians continued to shift troops in the area around Bardia, but there was no indication of an early drive against the British forces in Egypt.

Full reports are not yet available, but it is known that very heavy damage was done to the hydrogenation plant at Leuna, near Leipzig.

Subsequently the Air Ministry announced:

Widespread attacks on new objectives in Germany were carried out successfully last night by an R. A. F. bomber squadron. Fleet arm aircraft were used for spotting during the bombardment and reported that many salvos hit the target. Following these bombardments the fleet was subjected to heavy bombing attacks by Italian aircraft. These caused no damage or casualties to the fleet.

At least two enemy bombers were seen to fall into the sea, shot down by the fighter escort provided by the Royal Air Force.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 17 (AP)—The text of today's Italian High Command communiqué:

Yesterday's fierce day of bloody battle for the conquest of British Somaliland marked its culminating phase. The enemy is retreating all along the front.

We have bombarded violently for hours port works and warships anchored in Alexandria harbor. One plane failed to return from this action. Another failed to return from a scouting flight in the Red Sea.

A special Italian communiqué stated:

In British Somaliland the battle begun Aug. 11 against the main force of the enemy in Jerato Pass in the zone of Adadleh is won.

After five days of bitter fighting the English defense system and organized fortifications, constructed over a long period and fortified by two lines of barbed wire and numerous positions of artillery and machine guns in caverns, has fallen through encirclement from both sides.

Many arms of every kind, vast quantities of material and food and numerous prisoners were captured. Hundreds of dead belonging to Rhodesians and Indian mountain troops were counted.

In the battle, as usual, our aviation efficiently participated with direct cooperation by bombing with numerous small bombs, by machine-gunning enemy positions and by distant action badly damaging warships and steamships anchored in the port of Berbera.

The English meanwhile have, without any results, bombed the aviation camp at Assab and habitations in Jifiga.

This manoeuvre which approaches Berbera continues inflexibly for conquest of the second line of fortifications to which the enemy troops are fleeing, followed by our troops.

3 AMERICANS DECORATED

Ambulance Drivers Get the Croix de Guerre for Heroism

VICHY, France, Aug. 17 (AP)—Three American ambulance drivers today received from the French Government the Croix de Guerre with special citations for bravery in action. They are Charles Willen, New York; Thomas Esten, Paris, formerly of Boston, and Jack Calhoun, Paris.

Mr. Willen's citation said that when his ambulance was caught in heavy shell-fire while he was executing a special mission he left his stretcher-bearers to avoid useless sacrifice and went on alone to his destination.

Mr. Esten was cited because for three days and three nights, without rest, he helped carry wounded from the front lines to first-aid posts, frequently working as a stretcher bearer.

Mr. Calhoun carried on through heavy shell-fire, helping to evacuate wounded although his ambulance was struck repeatedly by shell splinters.

GLAD DER BLITZ IS ON AT LAST, FLYERS ASSERT

For "We Know Just Where We Are With Jerry Now," They Say

Spitfire Squadron Finds It's "Fun Turning Junkers Into Junk"

AUG 18 1940

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Correspondent

At An R. A. F. Fighter Station In Southeastern England, Aug. 18—Flyers of the Spitfire squadron stationed here are glad the Blitzkrieg has started at last.

"We know just where we are with Jerry now," they tell you. "Before, we were always wondering.

"And it's fun turning Junkers into junk."

Off At Seconds' Notice

Since the war began this squadron already has "turned into junk" some seventy German warplanes, and in the last few weeks has been in action several times daily.

It takes the air at a few seconds' notice.

Pilots get in contact with the enemy within a matter of minutes. They fling their swift planes into enemy formations outnumbering them heavily, and consider themselves lucky when the odds are only three to one.

"We can manage that," they say.

Spitfire Fighters' Routine

Here is the afternoon's work, when the enemy raiders came to drop bombs on the southwestern suburbs of London:

4.55 P. M.—"Duty-flight" pilots, already dressed for flying and wearing their mae wests (life belts), lounge in the sun near their planes.

5 P. M.—Pilots rush to their Spitfires as orders blare from loudspeakers. Mechanics rush to start the engines.

5.02 P. M.—The squadron is in the air and climbing at the rate of thousands of feet per minute.

5.21—Action! The fight with the enemy planes begins.

5.40—Ten Germans are down for certain and five others probably downed. The Spitfire squadron leader is knocking at a cottage door after making the first parachute jump of his life.

Return Of The Squadron

When the rest of the squadron returns the pilots tell the intelligence officer that they encountered forty German bombers flying in line in sections of three.

They waited until the last section was underneath them, "wondering if the formation ever was going to stop passing," then dived on the final three.

"Much higher there were more than one hundred escorting fighters, like a great black carpet," said one pilot, "but we managed to nip in first."

"All the insides seemed to fall out of the bomber I attacked," said another, a tall blond fellow whose Spitfire later was hit by five cannon shots from a Messerschmitt 109 and was landed only with most skillful piloting, "all shot up like a piece of lace."

Messerschmitt's "Boom-Boom"

He described the sound of a Messerschmitt's cannon as "just like a German band starting up — you know, boom-boom."

The squadron leader, coming home in an automobile three hours later, told his story.

"I was tootling along behind a Hinkel," he said, "when suddenly some of the instruments on the panel in front of me were shattered.

"I thought: 'Hullo, that can't be right.' Then I glanced at the mirror and saw him on my tail—far too close to be healthy. One of his shots had jammed my port aileron, but I managed to turn away steeply and take shelter in a cloud.

"Fortunately, he didn't follow me. I managed to tug the aileron free, but just then the engine froze and caught fire.

"I threw open the cockpit, let down the flap in the fuselage and sat back gently with my parachute. The plane left me.

"I never had bailed out before. It took me about one and a half minutes to get down.

"I nearly got carried onto a wood, but managed to sideslip, just scraped over the roof of a cottage and landed on the front doorstep.

"After disentangling the parachute over my head I knocked at the door. Nobody answered. I shouted and then walked in. The house was empty, so I went to the garage and tooted the motor horn. Then from the depths of the earth I heard a voice saying: 'Oo's there?'

It's An Exciting Life

"A man with a sporting gun was peering at me like a rabbit, from a hole in the ground. I'd forgotten there was an air alarm down below.

"I put up my hands, out of respect for the gun, and told him who I was. He said: 'Oh, no you're not. Your uniform is too pale for the R. A. F.' My uniform certainly was old and faded, but I produced my identity card. The family came out and made tea, forgetting all about the air-raid warning.

"It certainly is an exciting life."

AT AN R. A. F. FIGHTER STATION IN SOUTHEASTERN ENGLAND, Aug. 18 (AP).—A squadron leader of the Royal Air Force who jumped from his burning plane in a parachute after an air battle with Nazi planes this afternoon, returned to his station in an auomobile three hours later and told his story.

"I was tootling along behind a Heinkel," he said, "when suddenly some of the instruments on the panel in front of me were shattered.

R. A. F. Strikes At German Bases Third Time In 24 Hours, Retaliating For Sunday Assault On London Suburbs And Airports

[By the Associated Press]

AUG 19 1940

Bern, Switzerland, Monday, Aug. 19 — Air-raid alarms screamed warnings to the inhabitants of Bern and Basel about midnight (6 P. M., E.S.T.) and here in the Swiss capital anti-aircraft batteries fired on unseen trespassers.

The night masked the identity of the planes, but it was generally believed that as on three previous nights they were high-flying British bombers headed for northern Italian cities or objectives on the German side of Lake Constance.

Despite the frenzy of defending their island from the suddenly renewed, massive German attacks of Sunday, the British sent great waves of bombers over the Channel, and the port of Dover was lighted with the glare of echoing bomb blasts from Boulogne and Calais, a score of miles across the sea.

100,000 Claimed Involved

The Air Ministry declined to confirm a report by the British Press Association that the R. A. F. had bombed into confused turmoil a German army of five divisions—up to 100,000 men—on the French beaches, and the press association withdrew its story.

Nevertheless, reports were current in Dover that German infantry was massed on the French shore, and the sight and sound of battle tended to confirm these assertions.

In combating the German raids on England, the Air Ministry said at least 140 Nazi planes were destroyed Sunday, with only sixteen British losses.

Several Airdromes Hit

In the first German onslaught Sunday, the British Air Ministry acknowledged that "bombs were dropped on several Royal Air Force airdromes, where some service personnel were killed and others injured."

This apparently included Croydon, London's great airport, which the Germans said they had set afire for the second time in four days.

But in the second big sweep toward London, forty-two Nazi bombers were driven out to sea before they ever got to the objective, and at least three of this flight were shot down, the British declared.

Naval Base Sector Bombed

Eighteen German bombers and twelve fighters assaulted the area of Portsmouth—British south shore naval base—but six of them were destroyed and the others jettisoned their bombs and fled, the British asserted.

While these attacks were in progress, other waves of German fighters and bombers smashed at Channel towns, the east coast, the southwest and the Midlands.

650 Planes In Raid

It was estimated that 650 or more German planes participated in the raids, which continued into the night.

As many as one hundred bombers were reported in individual formations.

But the English were striking blow for blow with the Germans, and the skies over the Channel swarmed with a Sunday traffic jam of the enemies bound in opposite directions.

Fighter escorts of each force did screaming battle, while the bombers hurried on toward their objectives ashore. The R. A. F. raids on the Continent began Saturday night, and watchers on the English shore got a noisy fire-lit show.

Dogfights Rage

The Air Ministry information service, telling of raids over every corner of England, gave these details of some of the fighting:

"A squadron of Spitfires engaged German bombers which were about to attack their airdrome in Surrey. Within a short time they had destroyed eleven—six bombers and five fighters.

"About the same time, a Hurricane squadron was challenging an attack in the Hampshire area. They shot down six Junkers eighty-seven dive bombers and two Messerschmitt fighters.

Bag 5 In One Blast

"During air battles over Kent a squadron of Hurricanes on patrol sighted five Messerschmitt fighter bombers at 21,000 feet.

"'We climbed up and dived down on the enemy, shooting down the lot in a dogfight,' said one Hurricane pilot.

"A crack Spitfire squadron, approaching the century-mark of successes, engaged a number of lone fighters and bombers over Kent. While these fights were going on several large formations of bombers—at least eighty—appeared flying in line abreast in sections of three.

Success Again

"They looked, as a Spitfire pilot said, 'Like a huge rectangle.' They were supported by many enemy fighters circling above and in front of them. Before the Spitfire pilots landed, they had destroyed three Messerschmitt fighters, seriously damaged two Messerschmitts and two new Heinkel 113 fighters as well as five Dornier bombers.

"During two raids over the Hampshire area, two fighter squadrons had remarkable success. In the first raid shortly after 1 P. M., nine Hurricanes went up and shot down nine Nazi raiders—eight bombers and a fighter.

"An hour later, eleven Spitfires went up to intercept another mass raid. Again their own number of enemy bombers and fighters—ten Junkers 87's and one Messerschmitt 109—were destroyed."

R. A. F. Bombs Boulogne

The Air Ministry reported that seaplanes and shipping at Boulogne were "heavily and successfully attacked" and that oil plants, munitions factories, aircraft stores and railway targets in Germany were bombed, along with twenty-six airdromes in France, Holland and Belgium.

An Air Ministry news bulletin described Boulogne harbor as "fringed and criss-crossed by spreading flames."

Not A Loss Is Claim

Not a single British plane was lost in this assault, the Air Ministry said.

But the vigor of the fighting on England's own shore Sunday was signified by the disclosure that fourteen German planes crashed on just fourteen miles of British beach in one phase of the fighting.

An Air Ministry announcement that German planes were being chased from London across the North Sea and the English Channel and that "our fighters still are in action" indicated that operations may prove the heaviest so far in the Nazi air siege.

Raids In Wide Area

Scattered German raiders also dumped bombs on widely separated English areas. Some houses were wrecked in a residential district near a Midland town, but most bombs were said to have fallen on soft ground.

Fires broke out on the southeast coast before British fighters chased off a squadron of twenty-two German planes.

Sirens sounded the alarm in London shortly after noon—the third alarm in three days—and soon afterward the roar of motors high in the sky, the crunch-crunch of distant explosions, the splatter of firing and the shriek of diving fighters shattered the city's usual Sunday quiet.

People in the London area calmly took shelter or watched from roofs and gardens for a glimpse of the Nazis.

Soon empty cartridge cases, spent machine-gun bullets and shell fragments were rattling in the deserted streets and on the roofs of out-lying sections, and near South London the earth shook with the crash of falling bombs.

A Narrow Escape

One bomb, striking just back of a house, tore a crater twenty-five feet deep, but the occupants who were sheltered under a staircase escaped without a scratch.

An eyewitness in a southeastern area said he saw three groups of twelve bombers coming over, and "I could see one of the formations swoop down at its target.

"The other two made off in different directions, chased by Spitfires spurting machine-gun fire."

In addition to the bombs dropped in the South London area, raiders dumped their loads at many points, ranging from the south and southeast coasts to the outer defenses of London, and in the southwest and Wales.

Farms Machine-Gunned

One raider attacked a southeast coast section with incendiary bombs, and then machine-gunned farms in the vicinity.

A single bomb was reported have fallen on the northwest coa

Numerous fires were reported aft these bombings.

Nazi Coast Blasted By British Bombers In Answer To Blitz

AUG 19 1940

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Aug. 19—Britain, grasping grimly for the initiative in the greatest air war of all time, struck earth-shaking blows at German positions on the French coast today for the third time since Saturday night.

"The ground plan of our futu production activity is drawn on th assumption that our task will be world offensive when the momer comes," he asserted.

"Once the immediate peril of the next few days or weeks has passe we shall all of us together be abi to look forward to a steadily moun ing tally of armed might and strik ing power."

"Transformation"

Morrison said the equipment of Brit ish forces was not yet "fully satis factory," but added that the army ha sufficient weapons to "perform its im mediate task successfully even if th call should come tonight."

Three months ago, he explained Britain was in "great peril," but sinc then a "transformation" had take place.

Morrison said the Supply Ministry' annual turnover in raw material amounted to well over $800,000,000 an added:

"Within recent months the total ha begun to be swelled by very substan tial purchases of finished steel mad by the Ministry from America."

That steel, he said, is "one mor extremely important contribution which the United States is making t the British war effort.

R. A. F. Closely Checks Its Score Against Nazis

Intelligence Officers in Each Unit Guard Accuracy

AT AN R. A. F. FIGHTER STATION IN SOUTHEASTERN ENGLAND, Aug. 18 (AP).—Intelligence officers, many of them lawyers in civil life, are attached to each squadron of the Royal Air Force to take the tallies of their operations against the Nazi Luftwaffe and forward them to the Air Ministry, where the final totals are compiled.

Each pilot has to hand in a signed combat report, in which casualties are split into three categories: Destroyed, covering only planes which are seen to blow up, to be hopelessly afire or to crash on land or sea; probably destroyed, covering those seen to suffer severe damage with pieces breaking away or seen headed for a crash, although not actually seen hitting the ground, and damaged, covering those seen to have suffered severe damage from hits but which still are able to fly.

All pilots' reports are checked and counter-checked by the intelligence officers, doubtful claims are eliminated, and, the British say, there is no chance for two pilots to claim the same victim.

Actual evidence of the destruction of dozens of German planes is provided by combat films made with camera guns with which some fighters are equipped.

BRITISH DECLARE SPIES ALL 'LICKED'

Only Small Fry Have Eluded Fifth-Column Net, Officials Say

Investigators Explain The Manner Of Operation Of Saboteurs

AUG 19 1940

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 18—Only small fry have eluded Britain's fifth-column net, officials believe, confident that they have licked the peril of an inside enemy.

Although large, undisclosed numbers of fifth columnists are in prison, the authorities are not being lulled into false security. An army of undercover agents remains on constant guard against spies and saboteurs.

The tumultuous session of the House of Commons only last Wednesday was proof of the anxiety with which Britain has watched the silent struggle against Nazi agents and tipsters whose operations in Scandinavia, The Lowlands and France paved the way for quick German conquest.

The parliamentary name-calling was aroused by Prime Minister Winston Churchill's refusal to disclose details of secret investigations by a mysterious committee. Parliament just had to take his word for it.

Problem Was Dangerous

But the problem was a dangerous one as late as three months ago. All Prime Minister Churchill would say was that it has been reduced "to proper proportions." The whole story is likely to remain untold until after the war.

Here, however, are three examples of the diversified form that traitorous activity is reported to have taken:

Investigators found that confidential diplomatic reports on British official affairs, which are transmitted in a code known only to friendly nations, were reaching Berlin.

Two Men In Jail

At least two men, one of whom was connected with the embassy of a friendly power, now are in jail as a result of this plot.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Tyler Kent, former clerk of the United States Embassy in London, has been held on an undisclosed charge under the Official Secrets Act.]

A neat trick to direct raiding warplanes to a munitions factory was discovered by a vigilant Royal Air Force official.

Red-tile roofs put on a row of houses purchased during the first month of the war by a reputed Dutch concern were pleasing and innocent looking to civilian eyes.

But the R. A. F. officer discovered that they formed a mammoth red arrow pointing toward the munitions plant.

Knew Of Plane Signals

For a short time, officials knew, the Germans were aware of the signals used by British planes to identify themselves as they passed over the home coast.

Armed with them, enemy bombers might have been able to fly inland toward their targets without being molested by anti-aircraft fire or R. A. F. fighters.

Soon it was discovered that a small number of persons on the ground were signaling the British code to Nazi airmen with colored lights. The signalers now get their mail in jail.

Reputed "Peace Chain"

Among the elusive small fry are distributors of a letter which asks people to join a "peace chain."

"Revolt against Churchill and save Britain from destruction," these letters exhort. "If you want to stop the war, copy this without your name and mail it to six people."

Others try the same tactics by word of mouth, striking up small talk with strangers to sow Nazi propaganda seeds.

R. A. F. Thrice Raids France, Possibly To Rout Massing Nazis

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

Dover, England, Monday, Aug. 19—The rampant Royal Air Force, for the third time in twenty-four hours, smashed at the Nazi-occupied French ports on the English Channel last night and early today—possibly to scatter German troops massing for invasion of England.

AUG 19 1940

Reports were current in Dover that the Germans had concentrated large bodies of troops along the French coast, a region in which watchers in Dover could see bright flashes and hear heavy explosions.

The sight and sound of British attack could be seen all the way from Calais to Boulogne, twenty miles or more, although the R. A. F. seemed to be devoting its main attention to Boulogne—the spot from which Julius Cæsar invaded Britain in 55 B. C.

Dover Lighted From France

Five great flashes in the Boulogne vicinity were so brilliant that they illumiated the streets of Dover—a score of miles across the Channel—as if by floodlight.

Waves of British aircraft already had carried out a heavy daylight raid on the French coast, going over about noon yesterday.

The first dull thud of heavy explosions across the Channel could be heard only a few minutes after what seemed to be three waves of medium British bombers flew over the coast.

At the same time dogfights took place between British Spitfires and Hurricanes and German Messerschmitts, which came up to intercept the British. The air was immediately filled with the angry roar of diving and zooming planes.

Watched Through Field Glasses

At one time there was the typically heavy sound of German bombers crossing inland, while to the west what appeared to be a British bomber squadron was crossing outward.

Fighters engaged in a dogfight high in the air were leaving a crazy pattern of condensed vapor from their exhausts as they twisted and turned some four or five miles above us.

I saw the whole attack through field glasses. The Germans came over in their usual "v" formation, but went into single file in order as they dived at the airdrome.

Just as they got over the field the anti-aircraft guns set up a hot barrage, puffs from shells burst near some of the planes, and the air rocked with a thunderous symphony of cannon and anti-aircraft shells, machine-gun bursts and the throb of airplane engines.

Then the Messerschmitts started out to sea with three Hurricanes in swift pursuit.

Day's Second R. A. F. Raid

The British fight yesterday was their second of the day. During the morning raid the only thing heard was the throb of Hurricane and Spitfire patrols along the coast. Apparently no German planes came over.

The afternoon raids lasted about four hours.

Just before the Sunday raid ended six Messerschmitts dived against a balloon barrage, sending two of the silver sausages floating down in flames.

Although anti-aircraft batteries put up an almost solid barrage, the six Messerschmitts dived through and coasted to their bases on the French side of the Channel.

During the first part of the raid one Messerschmitt crashed inland. It was winged by a Hurricane.

One other German plane was believed downed. It was spouting smoke as it disappeared behind a headland.

Portsmouth Area Bombed

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP).—Eighteen German bombers, escorted by twelve fighters, bombed the Portsmouth area late this afternoon and witnesses said at least six of the raiders were shot down.

The Germans met terrific anti-aircraft fire, and when British fighters went up against them they jettisoned their bombs and fled. They were said to have caused little damage despite an attack on a balloon barrage in the region of the important British naval base.

Southeast Coast Attacked

A SOUTHEAST COAST TOWN, England, Aug. 18 (AP).—Sixteen Messerschmitt 109's, slipping silently out of the sun, dive-bombed an objective about three miles from here today.

British 'World Offensive' To Come, Morrison Says

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 18—In the midst of Nazi air raids, Britain is preparing her armed forces vigorously for an offensive, Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply, said in a speech today.

"The ground plan of our future production activity is drawn on the assumption that our task will be a world offensive when the moment comes," he asserted.

Mr. Morrison said the equipment of British forces was not yet "fully satisfactory," but added that the army had sufficient weapons to "perform its immediate task successfully, even if the call should come tonight."

Three months ago, he explained, Britain was in "great peril," but since then a "transformation" has taken place.

Daughter And Granddaughter In Dugout See House Smashed In London Area

London, Aug. 18 (AP)—When German raiders swept in on the London area today 92-year-old Mrs. Pearce stayed in the house, hoping for the best, while her daughter and granddaughter took refuge in the backyard dugout.

Neighbors said Mrs. Pearce was too fat and feeble to get into the shelter.

From the refuge the daughter and granddaughter saw a bomb smash the house. Mrs. Pearce was killed.

Latvian Ship Detained in Peru to Evade Soviets

CALLAO, Peru, Aug. 18 (AP).—Port authorities detained the 4,138-ton Latvian steamer Hercogs Jacobs today at the request of her Latvian-American owners as the vessel was about to sail for Puerto Chicama to take on a load of sugar for Vladivostok.

The owners, apparently anxious lest the ship fall into Soviet Russian hands, posted a bond of $15,000 and said they would send a representative here by plane immediately.

The Hercogs Jacobs arrived here from Bahia Blanca Aug. 9 with a cargo of Argentine wheat.

(The Hercogs Jacobs inaugurated the first regular Latvian steamship service to the United States in 1939, arriving in Baltimore on its maiden voyage May 30 of that year. Latvia recently was admitted to membership in the Soviet Union.)

"I Do" With A Crash

London, Aug. 18 (AP)—"I do," said the blushing bride as the bombs fell and the vicar of a church in southwest London stubbornly went on reading the marriege service during today's German raid.

"This is a good start," grinned the bridegroom.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 18 — Germany hurled countless bombers against London and its great Croydon airport today while other planes were reported concentrated in the Low Countries and France "impatiently waiting orders for a mass attack on England."

Wave on wave of German bombers streaked over the English Channel to loose explosive steel in the heart of the British Empire, its southern suburbs of Kenley, Biggin Hill and Sutton. Croydon was declared "again in flames."

BERLIN, AUG. 18-(AP VIA RADIO)-THE GERMAN RADIO REPORTED THAT "ONLY A FEW GERMAN SQUADRONS" WERE THROWN INTO THE AERIAL SIEGE OF BRITAIN TODAY BECAUSE OF UNFAVORABLE WEATHER.

TODAY'S ATTACKS, THE RADIO SAID, WERE DIRECTED AGAINST SOUTHEAST ENGLAND WITH ONE GROUP OF EIGHT PLANES FLYING OVER BRIGHTON, ON THE CHANNEL COAST, TOWARD KINGSTON AND A SECOND FLIGHT OF 10 PLANES GOING FROM FRANCE TOWARDS THE THAMES.

(THE BRITISH REPORTED MASSED GERMAN PLANES IN THREE WAVES SWEPT ACROSS THE COAST AND WERE THWARTED IN AN ATTEMPT TO BOMB LONDON ALTHOUGH THEY REACHED ITS ENVIRONS.)

ONLY EXPERIENCED GERMAN AIRMEN ARE ALLOWED TO FLY AGAINST ENGLAND, THE RADIO SAID, BECAUSE THE GERMANS WANT TO SAVE THEIR FORCE "FOR A SUITABLE MOMENT TO INFLUENCE THE COURSE OF THE WAR DECISIVELY."

"TRAINED GERMAN PILOTS WITH MACHINES READY TO START HAVE BEEN CONCENTRATED IN HOLLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE, WHERE GERMAN AIRMEN ARE IMPATIENTLY WAITING ORDERS FOR A MASS ATTACK ON ENGLAND," IT ADDED.

DESCRIBING NAZI AIR TACTICS, THE RADIO SAID GERMAN BOMBING SQUADRONS ARE PRECEDED BY CHASER FORMATIONS RESPONSIBLE FOR BLAZING A PATH FOR THE BOMBERS BEHIND. STRONG CHASER ESCORTS ACCOMPANY ALL BOMBING SQUADRONS, IT SAID, TO CUT BOMBER LOS TO A MINIMUM.

AUG 19 1940

Impatient For Action

"Trained German pilots with machines ready to start have been concentrated in Holland, Belgium and France where German airmen are impatiently waiting orders for a mass attack on England," said the official German radio.

In a special communique, the high command put at 182 the number of British planes destroyed today, counting 23 wrecked aground, and said that 34 German planes were missing.

This figure has been exceeded only by that for August 15 when the Germans said 143 British planes were destroyed.

One Squadron Claims 51

A destroyer plane squadron named for Horst Wessel, a Nazi party martyr before Adolf Hitler's rise to power, was credited with shooting down 51 of the 138 planes.

Today's was the second attack on the big Croydon airfield, eight miles from Charing Cross, heart of London. Dive bombers blasted at it last Thursday as a part of what was then the greatest aerial assault in history. Similar attacks came on Friday only to be followed by Saturday's unexplained lull.

Airports were especially targets of today's attacks, and it was said several were "destroyed" by bomb hits. Aside from suburban areas south of London, an airdrome near Maidstone, Kent, was attacked.

A Detailed Report

One German bombing unit made the following crisp report, which was relayed by DNB, officials news agency:

"The assignment was successfully carried out.

"Croydon again is burning.

"In Maidstone, hangars collapsed.

"At both places airplanes standing on the ground were destroyed.

"Enemy defense by pursuit planes was strong.

"Anti-aircraft fire was poorly directed.

"Pursuit planes accompanying us shot down several enemy planes.

"Three machines still are missing from our unit."

Naval Base Under Fire

Heavy air fighting occurred over the south coast naval base and port of Portsmouth, German military sources reported. Strong British units challenged the Germans and attempted to turn them back, it was said.

"Swarms of Messerschmitt fighters, however, broke through the defense and shot down a number of British pursuit planes," these informants added.

They said, "German bombers then roared through the breach and systematically attacked their objectives and destroyed several airports with bomb hits.

Destruction of airfields is part of the Blitzkrieg technique of immobilizing the opponent's air forces to give the Germans dominance in the air, which, in the case of England, would be necessary for any land invasion.

Weather A Factor

Bad weather was said to have held up the full fury of German attack until this afternoon. Even then the operations today were by "only a few German squadrons," the German radio said.

At one airfield in the London area DNB said thirteen planes were destroyed on the ground and eight at another before they had time to rise to the challenge.

It was the second attack on Croydon and the third on the British capital in four days. Last Thursday the Germans bombed the city's big airport and the sprawling Tilbury docks and followed this assault up with a rain of bombs on the southwestern London area Friday.

The region attacked today forms a rough triangle in the South London area with Croydon the nearest point toward London proper.

Kenley A Quiet Suburb

Kenley is in a comparatively sparsely inhabited area about three miles south of Croydon, just off the main highway from London to the port of Brighton on the Channel. The suburban trolley line from London ends at Purley, a mile above Kenley.

Sutton, picturesque suburban community with fences and thatched-roof cottages, is four miles west of Croydon and in the vicinity of the famous Epsom Downs race course.

In addition to the British planes destroyed, the Germans were reported to have sent seven barrage balloons crashing in flames.

While the squadrons were driving home the attack in the London area, other Nazi squadrons unloaded bombs on military objectives in Kent, southeast of London and in Hampshire, to the southwest.

At Eastleight, in Hampshire, the airdrome was heavily bombed.

Report No Resistance

"There was no enemy resistance when the German planes approached England," German informants said in giving a detailed account of the day's operations.

"On their way back our fighters engaged heavy fighters and it was observed with certainty that seven of the British craft were shot down."

The full force of the mass attacks did not develop until the afternoon when bad weather, which had held most of the German planes on the ground during the morning, cleared and then the Germans began taking off in droves.

During the night the Nazi air force and the R.A.F. swapped heavy blows. The Germans reported the British killed four civilians and wounded twenty-two in an attack on central Brussels. At Dortmund, Germany, "a number of civilian casualties were reported, including many dead."

Heavy Attack On Factories

The German high command said its bombers directed especially heavy attacks against factories at Filton three miles north of Bristol, where Britain's Bristol Blenheim bombers are manufactured; aircraft factories near Birmingham, in the Midlands; industrial plants at Reading, forty-five miles north of Portsmouth; harbor facilities at Swansea, in Wales; Avonmouth, five miles north of Bristol on the Severn, and Bournemouth, on the south English coast.

Other attacks were directed at British anti-aircraft and searchlight batteries and flying fields in central England.

Nazis Define Blockade Zone

BERLIN, Aug. 18 (AP).—Germany defined tonight the zone of the blockade of Britain as within a line drawn as follows:

From the Atlantic Ocean coast of France at 47 degrees, 30 minutes, north, and 2 degrees, 40 minutes west, to a point 45 degrees, north, and 5 degrees, west, to a point 45 degrees, north, and 20 degrees, west, to a point 58 degrees, north, and 20 degrees, west, to a point 62 degrees, north, and 3 degrees, east; from there, southward to the Belgian coast, and thence along the Belgian-French coast to the starting point.

War "All Over By September," Hitler's Troops Tell Lochner

Germans Massed Across Channel Await Signal For Invasion—Nazi Navy Trying Out New Weapon

AUG 19 1940

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Brussels, Aug. 18 (Via Airplane to Berlin)—In preparation for the German attempt to invade England, Adolf Hitler's navy is trying out a new weapon which officers insist will surprise the world when the moment comes to use it.

Tests of the new device are being conducted in a harbor which I visited during a three-day tour of the Belgian-French coast opposite England. The nature of the weapon and the exact location of the pre-invasion trials are, of course, withheld from publication.

But an atmosphere of supreme confidence prevails among the troops waiting in this area for the grand assault on England to begin. Ask any German officer or private along the coast between Ostend and Boulogne how much longer he expects to be on duty and he will tell you with conviction:

"Oh, by September it will all be over. By that time our troops will have conquered the British Isles and the English, like the French, will have begged for peace."

For the moment, the troops gathered in this area as reserves for the invasion are waiting patiently for the German air force to complete its task of routing and demolishing Britain's air defense.

That does not mean they are idle. There still are vast quantities of war booty, captured from the Belgians, French and retreating English, which must be sorted and prepared for shipment to Germany or put in repair for use elsewhere.

Preparing Booty For Use

All this is being done with a thoroughness characteristic of German methods. When I last visited the Western front in June, all this booty was standing around. Now one sees drivers and mechanics putting French tanks into battle condition, or army engineers tinkering with captured railway locomotives.

Trainloads of steel rails, copper ingots and other vital raw materials are rolling east to Germany.

On the other hand, I saw on highways truck after truck loaded with supplies coming from Germany. Evidently Hitler and his general staff intend to conduct the campaign against England as methodically and carefully as the other German campaigns in this amazing war.

Weird Weapons In Reserve

My three-day trip up and down this strategic coast now completely in German hands has impressed me forcefully with the confidence prevailing everywhere among army, navy and air force men that in the invasion of England is only a matter of time.

From such glimpses as I obtained of their preparations, made behind one of the most effective screens of camouflage ever devised by man, I can only say this confidence is understandable. Every eventuality apparently has been taken into account, and weapons of the weirdest character have been devised for this final phase—as the Germans regard it—of the conflict in Europe.

Germany HOPES TO BAR IRISH SHIPPING FROM ENGLAND

Warns All Other Ships In Zone "Will Be Attacked And Destroyed"

AUG 19 1940

U. S. Transport American Legion Believed Nearing Danger Area

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 18—The German radio began broadcasting the latitude and longitude of the newly proclaimed "total blockade" of Britain and it was disclosed that although Ireland falls within it the Reich has offered exemptions for Eire's shipping.

Otherwise, the radio warned, "every ship which ventures into it will be attacked and destroyed."

The United States troop transport American Legion, steaming homeward from northern Finland with about 900 refugees and other passengers from Scandinavia, was believed to be nearing the danger area. The German Government yesterday disclaimed any responsibility for the safety of the ship when it enters the danger zone.

No Report On American Legion

Authorized sources declined to comment further on the situation, letting last night's disavowal of responsibility stand. There was no information here as to whether the ship had been ordered to change its course.

In the attempt to isolate Britain within the blockade zone, nearly 1,000 miles square, Germany hoped to bring the "Battle of Britain" to a quick end. From now on there will be "no compromise," the press proclaimed. "England is now experiencing total war concentrated on the British Isles alone. England is in the role of a besieged and blockaded fortress."

Area In Warning To Neutrals

The area from which neutral shipping was warned to steer clear is bounded thus:

From Brest, on the tip of France's Brittany peninsula, 250 miles into the Bay of Biscay and then west along 45 degrees of longitude for some 800 miles into the Atlantic, then northward along 20 degrees latitude a thousand miles, then due east between the Faroe and Shetland islands to a point close to the Norwegian coast and then directly south to the Belgian coast and back along the coast of the Continent to Brest.

German spokesmen described their "total blockade" as an aerial and sea adaptation of the "iron ring" tactics which netted victory in Flanders, and indicated by exemption of Ireland from its effects that they hoped to shut off Irish shipping from England and thus complete the isolation of Britain from the west.

As To American Ships

Foreign Office spokesmen were asked by a special Sunday conference concerning the possibility of American merchant ships running afoul Germany's new blockade and replied: "The question of American ships operating to England, if permitted to do so by their own Government, has not arisen."

Lisbon, transatlantic clipper terminal, it was pointed out, is far removed from the German blockade zone.

In connection with Ireland's status, the spokesmen stressed the German blockade, announced yesterday, is restricted to "the British island and not the British Isles."

They said Germany had advised the Irish Free State (Eire) that "although Ireland falls within the geographical zone of the blockade this Government has arrangements."

For example, they pointed out, an arrangement might be made whereby Ireland would advise Germany daily about Irish ships and their harbors, whereupon Germany would advise her air and naval forces to permit entry or exist to Irish ports.

"We are ready to keep open certain approaches to Ireland for ships under the Irish flag and we are awaiting their suggestions," a Nazi official said.

World War Parallel Denied

Karl Ritter, divisional chief in the Foreign Ministry who took an active part in the German-Russian trade and non-aggression pact negotiations, said the statement that the blockade action was directed solely against England "should be clearly understood."

It is impossible, the Germans stressed, to draw parallels between the Nazi blockade and the unrestricted submarine warfare of the World War.

"Other weapons are playing a bigger role than the U-boat," they declared.

"Sink without warning is too general a statement for the present situation," was the way one official put it, without further explanation.

'An Attempt To 'Suck Up' Irish, British Assert

London, Aug. 18 (AP)—British sources scorned today as "merely another Nazi promise" Germany's suggested "arrangements" whereby Ireland's shipping could escape the new Nazi "total blockade" of Britain.

"It isn't worth the paper it's written on," commented one source. "An attempt to 'suck up' the Irish," another said.

AUG 19 1940

"It is obvious what would happen to an Irish ship if Germany was informed that it was sailing for a British port at a certain time," said a third Briton.

COMMISSARS WILL BE NAMED IN NEW PLAN

Workers' And Employers' Unions To Be Dissolved Under Decree

Committees To Have Power To Oust Directors And Fine Companies

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 18 (via Berlin)—The German wireless said today that police of Vichy, France, had conducted secret raids against numerous foreigners, the majority of whom soon were released.

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 18—All industrial and commercial activity in France virtually passed under Fascist-patterned government control today through a new law published in the official journal permitting appointment of commissars in each industry to regulate private initiative.

"Industrial democracy" is ended, at least temporarily, in France, the journal asserted.

Committees of control acting under authority of the Government will be empowered, in case it is deemed merited, to order such punishments as the ousting of directors of industry and the fining of any industry up to ten per cent. of its business turnover.

Unions To Be Dissolved

The law stated decrees would be forthcoming shortly, dissolving national workers' and employers' unions or considerations which heretofore have been the ruling powers in big industry.

The largest of these are the powerful labor organization, C. G. T. (Confederation Generale de Travail) and the C. G. P. (Confederation Generale de Patronale), the nation's foremost employers' union.

Furthermore, the law declares that, if the Government wishes, it may issue decrees dissolving big combines considered "incompatible" with the functioning of the new system.

The largest and best known combine in France is the Comite des Forges (steel combine), but neither this nor any other was named in the journal.

Operation Of System

Here is how the new system will operate:

The Ministry of Labor and Industrial Production will name a special high commissar in each industry. These commissars will be the key control men of the nation's entire planned industrial and commercial life.

Control committees called "committees of organization," made up of workers and employers, will be appointed for each branch of industry and commerce as a national body under close supervision of the commissars.

All vital matters in its particular branch of industry or commerce will be subjected to authority of this committee. Its power will extend even to such matters as shifting stocks and raw materials from one industrial concern to another to establish a proper balance, and dividing up business orders.

Must Submit Decisions

It can control prices, inflict punishments and handle any disputes arising between employers and workers. In all such matters, however, it must submit decisions to the commissar, which means the Government maintains real control.

Workers and employers will be permitted to propose names of committee members, but their appointment will be by the Government.

A printed prelude to the law indicates it is effective only in unoccupied territory, although in theory it may apply to the whole nation.

The prelude explained this "energetic" action and absolute State control was made necessary to prevent throwing hundreds of thousands of men out of work and at the same time to get industry and commerce into working order.

Reasons For Move

Stoppage of war industries, difficulties created through separation of the country into free and occupied zones and the halting of foreign commerce were given as the compelling reasons.

A complete, permanent system on a cooperative order, functioning on the basis of cooperation among employers, workers and the Government is under study, it was explained, but will take some time to be put into operation.

Meanwhile, the present temporary system was declared to be an urgent necessity.

Even this system, officials pointed out, will have the effect of breaking up big monopolies, creating a more balanced division of work between large and small industries and the stepping up of activity of industries whose output is the most urgent need of the moment.

NEGOTIATIONS IN PARIS

Japanese and French in Direct Parley on Indo-China

VICHY, France, Aug. 18 (AP)—A French Foreign Office spokesman disclosed tonight that France was negotiating directly with Japan over important problems in Indo-China, and that no settlement was in sight.

The spokesman said that France had taken the negotiations out of the hands of local authorities in France's Far Eastern colony because the two countries were now discussing "much more important affairs than the mere question of granting Japan the use of railroads and air bases in Indo-China."

The negotiations probably will last "for some time," it was announced.

Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin talked yesterday with United States Chargé D'Affaires Robert Murphy, who is interested in American angles of the Far Eastern situation; Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, the Chinese representative, and Japanese Ambassador Renzo Sawada.

Mr. Murphy will leave for the United States within a few days and will confer with officials of the State Department.

PREDICT BULGARIA WILL WIN DEMANDS

Informed Sources Expect Rumania To Give Up Dobruja

Hungarian Claims, However, May Bring About A Stalemate

[By the Associated Press]

Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Aug. 18—Informed sources predicted tonight that Bulgaria would win quick success but that Hungary would run into a stalemate in negotiations with Rumania over their territorial demands.

AUG 19 1940

Full scale evacuation of southern Dobruja—object of Bulgaria's demands—by civil and military authorities was reported already under way.

Some reports said, too, that the enshrined heart of Queen Marie, which was at Balcic, in Dobruja, already had been taken back into old Rumania.

To Confer Monday

Rumanian delegates, headed by Alexander Creteanu, will arrive in Craiova Monday morning to meet Bulgarian negotiators amid predictions by political observers that an agreement will be reached in which Rumania will cede all of southern Dobruja.

Chances for agreement with Hungary on disputed Transylvania were regarded as much slimmer. These negotiators also meet Monday after a week-end recess, during which the Rumanians reviewed the situation with their Government.

Hungary has demanded as much as two-thirds of Transylvania and Rumania has insisted she would not give up so much territory.

Italy Uses Picked Troops

CAIRO, Aug. 18 (AP)—Italy has thrown the pick of her troops from Ethiopia into the battle for British Somaliland and the Gulf of Aden, military sources here said today. The troops, supporting columns already converging upon Berbera, were said to be led by blackshirt regiments which had been stationed in Ethiopia.

Already heavily outnumbered, British defense forces were reported to be falling steadily back toward Berbera, fighting every inch of the way.

Meanwhile Britain's Mediterranean fleet was said to have handed Italy's projected offensive against Egypt a new setback, forcing the Italians to withdraw from their strongly-defended outpost at Fort Capuzzo and heavily damaging supply bases in yesterday's sudden bombardment of Bardia, British commanders reported today.

British battleships and cruisers, sweeping along the Libyan coast, gave Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's principal concentration center at Bardia an intense baptism of shellfire for twenty-five minutes Saturday morning, and scored direct hits on many military objectives, it was reported.

The Italians retaliated by sending squadrons of planes to give the British fleet one of its heaviest bombardments of the war.

During a half-hour attack Saturday forenoon, the Italians showered bombs at warships moving back toward the Egyptian coast, spraying huge columns of water around them. All of the bombs hit the sea, British reports said. R. A. F. fighters chased the Italian bombers and machine-gun fire sent at least two of them down in flames.

British Resist Stubbornly as Foe Also Takes Lafarok, Near Somaliland Capital

By The Associated Press

ROME, Aug. 18.—Two columns of Italian troops advancing on Berbera from the west have occupied Bulhar, forty miles from the capital and principal port of British Somaliland, and Lafarok, the Fascist high command reported today.

The communique also claimed the sinking of a 9,000-ton British oil tanker by an Italian submarine somewhere in the Atlantic, but gave no details.

The Italians acknowledged loss of one plane in a bombing raid on Berbera, and said yesterday's Brit-

Italian battle planes were said to have shot down seven—possibly nine—British planes which accompanied the attacking fleet and to have bombed inland objectives. Three Italian planes were admitted lost in yesterday's action.

Bombardment Of Bardia Viewed As English Reassurance To Greece

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 18—"There is no doubt that the next few days will disclose Germany's employment of even vaster forces and even more resolute methods" in the attack on Britain, the authoritative Fascist editor Virginio Gayda declared today.

Writing in the weekly Voce d'Italia, Gayda praised the newly-announced "total blockade" against Britain and noted that "the violent war of attrition which we have foretold has been developing for some days with a more pounding rhythm."

French Aid To British Charged

Gayda, whose utterances often foreshadow the decisions of Premier Mussolini, also took occasion to charge that the French were helping Britain's defense of British Somaliland, object of an Italian East African campaign.

He accused the Governor of French Somaliland of commanding French troops beside the British. Besides throwing up fortifications which the British are using, he said, the French left "a generous gift" of cannon, machine guns, munitions, pilots, planes and high officers" to the British colonials in British Somaliland after the German-Italian-French armistice was signed.

Viewed As Gesture To Greece

Meanwhile, foreign observers in Italy speculated that the British fleet's heavy bombardment of Italy's big Libyan base at Bardia might have been intended as a show of strength for the benefit of Greece, which faces possible territorial demands by Italy.

An Italian communique which described the bombardment yesterday covered action at sea, on land and in the air and reported:

1. British warships attacking Bardia fired "not less than 300" shells into the city and other inland positions, killing one soldier and wounding eleven others.
2. Italian battle planes shot down seven — possibly nine — British planes which accompanied the attacking fleet and bombed inland objectives. Three Italian planes were lost.
3. Two columns of Italian troops converged closer to the British key point of Berbera in British Somaliland. One column advancing along the coast from Zeila moved into Bulhar, forty miles from Berbera, and another occupied La Faruk. One Italian plane was lost bombing Berbera.
4. An Italian submarine sank a 9,000-ton British tanker "somewhere in the Atlantic," indicating that Italian naval units are actively aiding Germany in efforts to blockade England.

No Specific Demands Yet

Authorized Italian sources said that Italy still has not made specific territorial demands on Greece, which has refused to repudiate British guarantees of her independence, but it was intimated strongly that such demands would be soon.

The demands were expected to be made on behalf of Fascist-held Albania for the Ciamuria section of Greece adjoining Albania.

The Italian press kept up its campaign against Greece, and Stefani, official Italian news gency, distributed a long account of Greek "persecution" of the Albanian minority in the Ciamuria section.

One man was said in this account to have been beaten "just because he read Albanian newspapers."

ROOSEVELT AND PREMIER REVEAL UNPRECEDENTED MUTUAL SECURITY STEP

[By the Associated Press]

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 18—The United States and Canada linked their defenses tonight in an unprecedented step to preserve their safety against any threats from across the seas.

President Roosevelt and the Dominion's Prime Minister, W. L. MacKenzie King, concluded a lengthy, historic conference on continental defense with a joint announcement:

The Prime Minister and the President have discussed the mutual problems of defense in relation to the safety of Canada and the United States.

It has been agreed that a permanent joint board on defense shall be set up at once by the two countries.

This permanent joint board on defense shall commence immediate studies relating to sea, land and air problems including personnel and matériel.

It will consider in the broad sense the defense of the north half of the Western Hemisphere.

The permanent joint board on defense will consist of four or five members from each country, most of them from the services. It will meet shortly.

Marks Policy Departure

Whether the agreement, reached in a private railway car overlooking the St. Lawrence river boundary between the United States and Canada, was broad enough to contemplate a definite military and defensive alliance was not disclosed.

In any event, it marked a departure in American foreign policy by knitting together, more tightly than ever before in this nation's peacetime history, defensive bonds with a country at war.

A Presidential aide said he thought that it was apparent from the announcement itself that no Congressional action on the agreement was necessary.

The far-reaching implications of the agreement underscored deeply Mr. Roosevelt's declaration two years ago that the United States would not stand idly by if Canada were threatened with attack. He said yesterday that those remarks, made at the dedication of an international bridge at Kingston, Ontario, still were good.

May Acquire Bases

The reference in the formal statement to sea, land and air problems gave emphasis to speculation that the United States might acquire strategic bases on soil of the British Empire to help guard the approaches to North America.

And the mention of personnel and materjal opened up an even wider field of conjecture on whether the two countries, through the joint board, would develop strategy for using men and armed might under a unified command in case Europe's war seemed likely to spread across the Atlantic.

The Roosevelt-Mackenzie King statement gave members of the President's party a definite conviction, moreover, that the Administration firmly intends to blanket Canada under he protecting folds of the Monroe Doctrine.

my own ears, and felt them in my own body, I ask you, my fellow free Americans, to hear what I feel it my duty to say.

"America is in danger.

"It is my conviction, drawn from my own experience and from the information in the hands of our Government in Washington, that the United States is in as great peril today as was France a year ago. And I believe that unless we act now decisively to meet the threat we shall be too late.

Conviction Of Dictators

"The dictators are convinced that all democracies will always be too late. You remember Hitler's statement: 'Each country will imagine that it alone will escape. I shall not even need to destroy them one by one. Selfishness and lack of foresight will prevent each one fighting until it is too late.'

"Control of government by public opinion is the essence of democracy. And it has always been our belief that free speech and a free press and free education would enable us to form and express our opinions sufficiently swiftly, not only to permit but to compel our Government to act quickly and effectively.

"But the problems of world affairs have become so complex in this day of volcanic change that the average citizen has the greatest difficulty in understanding them and judging what is best for his country before it is too late.

Strategy Of Attack

"The dictators have developed a strategy of attack that is based on this difficulty. To prepare the way for military attack on a democracy they employ every possible variety of agent and propaganda to befuddle the public so that the democracy will not prepare in time.

"They succeeded in befuddling public opinion in France and England to such an extent that they were able to conquer France in a few days and are now striving to conquer an England which awakened late.

"They are not yet in a position to attack America by military means; but their campaign of befuddlement, their preparatory assault, is following the same lines in America that it followed in France.

"Do not imagine that the French citizen was less intelligent or cared less about his country than the American citizen. The honest French patriot did his best, but he just could not see through the smoke screens of bribery, propaganda, lies and threats which the dictators spread in his country. For every Frenchman who acted as the conscious agent of a foreign dictator, there were a thousand who, with good intentions and high patriotism, unwittingly played the dictators' game.

Playing Foreign Games

"How many Americans today are playing the dictators' game without knowing it?

"In France, as in the United States today, there were many honest pacifists. There were many because after 1918 every Frenchman became in one sense a pacifist. The French wanted no more war. And when the German propagandists told the French that they could buy peace with Germany by making one concession after another, the French believed them.

"The French, who were much stronger at the time than were the Germans, let the Germans reconstruct an army, a navy and an air force, let them reoccupy the Rhineland and the Saar, then Austria, then the Sudeten areas of Czecho-Slovakia, then the whole of Czecho-Slovakia. After that the Germans said that the price of peace was Danzig and Poland's outlet to the sea.

Lie As Weapon

By that time the French had learned that the lie, the solemn pledge given and broken, had become Germany's normal weapon in international affairs. Yet today there are Americans who argue that we should believe the dictators when they say that they have no intention of extending their conquests to the Western Hemisphere and certainly not to the United States. France believed. Where now is France?

"There are also Americans who argue that if Hitler should conquer Great Britain he would be content to stop there, and that the United States would be able to cooperate happily with the Hitler empire of Europe.

"To believe this is to misunderstand the entire nature of the Nazi system. It is not organized to develop an empire in peace. It is organized as a dynamic military machine. The ruthless hold of the Nazi leaders on the German people is based on the gearing of all energies for the sacrifices necessary to wage war. The continued sacrifices by the great mass of the people which the Nazi system demands cannot be obtained except by maintaining a super-charged war temperature.

Position Of Reich

"The German nation has been made a predatory army of assault. Its organization is military. Its military operations have enormous momentum. It cannot stop in its tracks. It can only be stopped.

"Were Germany to try to resume the Americas the same as the people of the United States.

The understanding on continental defense took on extra significance from the fact that England, the only European nation still holding out against the powerful German-Italian war machine, is being subjected to death dropped from the skies by waves of bombing planes and is preparing for an invasion.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mackenzie King, two old friends brought together again to consider the war's serious repercussions in North America, parted at this border town after long hours of discussing what they termed "mutual problems of defense in relation to the safety of Canada and the United States."

Mr. Roosevelt left for his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., by special train. Mackenzie King departed for his capital, Ottawa, by motor car.

The two had dined together last night, then sat up late in the President's railway car. They had additional opportunity to talk this morning before attending memorial services at nearby Lisbon for the World War dead of the Twenty-eighth Division of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Stimson Was Present

Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, who held the portfolio of Secretary of State in the Hoover administration, sat in on part of the conversations. So did Jay Pierrepont Moffatt, United States Minister to Canada, who came down from Ottawa with the Prime Minister and rode back with him.

It was a conference devoid of the usually diplomatic formalities, but it was nevertheless, a meeting which gave every appearance of leaving a permanent imprint on the history of North America.

The agreement lent itself readily to an interpretation that a mutual assistance pact might be in the making.

Since the days of George Washington, the United States traditionally has shied away from "entangling alliances" with any nation, even when peace prevailed. The setting up of a joint defense board with Canada, an active participant in the European conflict, thus represented a novel step in American foreign policy, particularly since it will be a permanent board.

Full Premeditation

That the step was taken with full premeditation was apparent from the fact that the Chief Executive had announced in Washington Friday that conversations had been in progress with Canada on hemisphere defense.

At the same time, he announced that conversations were going on with Britain over American acquisition of sites for air and naval bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere. The particular objective of this diplomatic intercourse, he said, was strengthening the defenses of the Panama Canal.

30.24-4421

30.24-4421

Both the President and Mackenzie King were silent, however, on this phase of continental defense.

Side by side, the two had sat in an open car at the memorial service this morning and heard Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania assert that the Twenty-eighth Division, which counted 2,874 dead in the World War, again might have to sacrifice its officers and men.

The division, participating with seven others in vast war maneuvers centering around Ogdensburg, was drawn up in a field near Lisbon, N. Y.

Mr. Roosevelt inspected the 91,000 troops engaged in the maneuvers yesterday. Secretary Stimson, who had come from Washington with the President, remained at Ogdensburg for the duration of the "war."

Ottawa, Aug. 18 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King returned to Ottawa this afternoon from his overnight defense conference with President Roosevelt at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and reported at once to the Earl of Athlone, governor general.

It was assumed the Prime Minister's call at Rideau Hall was to acquaint the governor general of the agreement reached with President Roosevelt to set up a permanent joint board on defense for the northern half of the Western Hemisphere.

Washington Tells Berlin It Expects the American Legion To Be Unscathed

Won't Alter Course At Reich's Behest

Germans Define Blockade Zone, Seek Pact to Let Ireland's Vessels Pass

Texts of United States and German statements—Page 25

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The United States informed Germany, in a formal note made public tonight, that it expected the Army transport American Legion, bound homeward with nearly nine hundred Americans from Petsamo, Finland, would not "suffer molestation by any action undertaken by the German armed forces."

Publication of the note followed the German government's public statement in Berlin yesterday that it would not be responsible for any harm that might befall the ship if it followed the course outlined by the United States.

The State Department said that Alexander W. Kirk, Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, had been instructed yesterday afternoon to deliver the American government's communication to the German Foreign Office.

[Authorized German quarters in Berlin disclosed that Germany was negotiating with the government of Ireland to enable imports to reach Ireland through the Nazis' "total blockade" of the British Isles, The United Press reported.]

"No Other Course Exists"

Standing pat on the decision that the transport should pass between the British island of North Rona and Cape Wrath, off the northern coast of Scotland, the note declared the question had been given "serious and protracted consideration" by the American government and that it had been determined that "no other practical course existed."

This declaration that the course was the only safe one stirred speculation as to whether waters farther north, through which the American Legion passed on her way to Petsamo, had been mined subsequently by the British.

AUG 19 1940

The German government said yesterday that the course upon which the American government was insisting was in the zone of military operations and that if the American Legion entered the region it could not be responsible.

Berlin Has No Comment

[The Associated Press reported from Berlin that authorized sources there declined yesterday to comment further on the American Legion situation, letting the German government's disavowal of responsibility stand.]

Officials of the United States Navy, which is operating the transport, declined to disclose its position, saying it was against Navy policy to make public the details of ship movements. In the absence of public word to the contrary it was assumed that the voyage had been uneventful thus far.

Meanwhile the German Embassy here announced that the Nazi government "has issued today a press communique which lays further stress upon the danger of mines threatening the vessel on its contemplated course." The Embassy's statement gave its version of the negotiations regarding the voyage.

The American note to Germany which the State Department published expressed this government's view "that the German government received sufficient advance notice . . . to take every precaution against attack on the vessel by the German combat forces."

It acknowledged that Germany had given no assurance of safe conduct for the ship, as it said "all the other belligerent governments" had done, but declared that the Nazis "explained that there was no occasion to give any such assurance . . . as it was out of the question that German forces should stop the vessel or take any other measures against her."

After relating in detail the negotiations between the United States and Germany concerning the transport's voyage, the note gave the following summary of the case:

"Stated briefly, the German government has on several occasions during the conversations about the voyage of the American Legion stated that the vessel in question—as a public vessel of the United States, actually being a transport of the United States Army— needed no safe conduct from the German government because safe conducts were reserved only for merchant vessels.

German Assurance Cited

"The German government having repeatedly made that statement and having stated also that they would notify their armed forces of the route on which it was informed the vessel would proceed, and of the date of her departure from Petsamo and of the description of the vessel, and having assured the government of the United States that it had actually notified its armed forces of the route, date of sailing and description of the American Legion, and in continuing reliance upon the original statements of the German government, the American Charge d'Affaires is instructed to inform the German government that under the circumstances above related the government of the United States expects that the vessel will not suffer molestation by any action undertaken by the German armed forces.

There was no mention in the note of any German contention that the American Legion might encounter mines in the Channel between North Rona and Cape Wrath. The German statement issued yesterday in Berlin said it had been pointed out in conferences with the American Embassy there that the coastal waters off England "were completely infested with mines."

The German argument for a change of course, according to the American note, was the danger from aerial operations.

The State Department has announced that the American Legion is filled to capacity with a total of 897 passengers, most of them Americans who were stranded in the Baltic and Scandinavian areas.

Among the passengers are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, American Minister to Norway; Mrs. Frederick Sterling, wife of the American Minister to Sweden, and Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her three children.

Reporters were advised at the State Department yesterday that the decision to sail was reached upon the recommendation of Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and the Army general staff.

U.S. and German Statements on Refugee Ship

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP).—The text of an announcement by the State Department and a statement by the German Embassy tonigh regarding the Army transport Ameri can Legion follows:

The American Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, Mr. Alexander W. Kirk, was instructed yesterday afternoon to deliver to the German Foreign Office a communication, the text of which follows:

"The government of the United States desires first to point out that the course on which it was proposed that the American Legion should sail from Petsamo to New York was indicated to the German government through the American Embassy at Berlin on Aug. 9, together with a statement of the distinguishing characteristics of the ship for her ready identification and a statement that she was scheduled to sail from Petsamo on Aug. 16, in sufficient time for the German government to notify the appropriate German authorities so as to assure the vessel against attack by the German fighting forces.

"The United States government was informed on Aug. 13 that the German Foreign Office had stated that the appropriate German authorities had been informed of the date of departure, course and description of the American Legion, the understanding being that the vessel would depart on Aug. 16 and, if she should depart at a later date, then the Foreign Office would again have to be notified three days before the actual departure, since otherwise it would not be possible to give informatory instructions to the appriate German authorites.

German Note Cited

The German Foreign Office called attention to its previous communications to the American Embassy on the subject of the American Legion, in which the Foreign Office had stated that instructions to the German combatant forces with respect to possible action against neutral ships were, in accordance with international rules, and the German prize law codes, limited to merchant ships. The Foreign Office had further stated that it was, therefore, out of the question that German forces should stop neutral vessels of war or take any other measures against them and that in view of those facts there was no occasion, in the opinion of the German government, to give any special assurances with regard to a neutral war vessel. The German government was, however, prepared to notify the German forces for their information in order to avoid confusion with enemy warships that an American war vessel (namely, the American Legion) would travel on a specified course at a specified time.

(1) Subsequently, and not until the late afternoon of Aug. 14, as reported to the American government that same day, the Foreign Office stated that the German air force had pointed out that the proposed course of the American Legion, passing between North Rona and Cape Wrath, would bring the vessel into the field of dangerous air operations, and that the German authorities, therefore, recommended a more northern route. Upon inquiry of the Foreign Office as to how much advance notice of the change of course of the vessel would be required by the Foreign Office in order that it might effect complete notification of all German combat units the vessel might encounter, the answer was made that if such notice were received by noon, Berlin time, Aug. 15 there would be time to effect proper notification and the vessel could leave Petsamo Aug. 16 as scheduled.

Further Conversations

"Under instructions of the United States government, on Aug. 14, the attention of the Foreign Office was invited to the assurances which it had given that the appropriate German authorities had been duly informed of the date of departure, course and description of the American Legion, and it was asked to stand by its original acceptance of the course of the American Legion. In reply, Dr. Ritter of the Foreign Office stated that if the American government insisted on the ship following the proposed course, then the German government had nothing to do but accept the decision, pointing out again the great danger involved. Dr. Ritter also stated that the Foreign Office had merely agreed to notify the appropriate German authorities for their information of the course and description of the vessel, and that it had never guaranteed the safe conduct of the vessel, for assurances of safe conduct could only be given in the cases of merchant vessels and not in the cases of naval vessels, in which category the American Legion falls."

"The United States government considers in that connection, that Dr. Ritter's statement was hardly in line with the previous communication of the Foreign Office, referred to above, when the Foreign Office stated that there was no occasion, in the opinion of the German government, to give any special assurances with regard to a neutral war vessel since it was out of the question that German forces should stop neutral vessels of war or take any other measures against them, and that the German forces would be notified in order to avoid confusion of the American Legion with enemy warships.

"Following the United States government's learning of Dr. Ritter's conversation, and of the American Charge d'Affaires' communication of the Foreign Office's note in confirmation of the conversation, the subject of the course to be followed by the American Legion had the serious and protracted consideration of the United States government. However, it was determined that no other practical course existed for the vessel to follow than that proposed, the vessel to sail on Aug. 16 as scheduled and already notified to all the belligerent governments. As instructed by his government, the American Charge d'Affaires informed the German Foreign Office on Aug. 15 accordingly, and stated that the government of the United States consequently reverted to its original communication to the German government on the subject and took note of the fact that the German government had brought the voyage of the vessel to the attention of its appropriate agencies.

Notice Called Sufficient

"The United States government is of the opinion, therefore, that the German government received sufficient advance notice of the sailing of the American Legion from Petsamo on the date scheduled and the course to be followed, to take every precaution against attack on the vessel by the German combat forces. The German government acknowledged the receipt of the notification prior to the vessel's departure and stated that the appropriate German authorities had been informed of the date of departure, course, and description of the vessel. The German government did not give assurance of safe conduct for the vessel but explained that there was no occasion to give any such assurance with regard to the vessel as it was out of the question that German forces should stop the vessel or take any other measures against her. All the other belligerent governments have given assurance of safe conduct for the vessel, for her sailing on the date scheduled and on the course indicated.

"The German government now points out that it did not receive final notification of the ship's departure from Petsamo on Aug. 16 until noon of that day, and that the American Embassy at Berlin had been informed that Aug. 15 was the latest date for such notification of the intended route. However, the stipulation of the German Foreign Office that it be notified by noon, Berlin time, Aug. 15, with respect to the vessel's course was in reply to the Embassy's inquiry as to how much advance notice of the change of course of the vessel would be required by the Foreign Office. Since no change was made in the course of the vessel, further advance notice became entirely unnecessary.

"Stated briefly, the German government has on several occasions during the conversations about the voyage of the American Legion stated that the vessel in question as a public vessel of the United States, actually being a transport of the United States Army, needed no safe conduct from the German government because safe conducts were reserved only for merchant vessels. The German government having repeatedly made that statement and having stated also that they would notify their armed forces of the route on which it was informed the vessel would proceed and of the date of her departure from Petsamo and of the description of the vessel, and having assured the government of the United States that it had actually notified its armed forces of the route, date of sailing and description of the American Legion, and in continuing reliance upon the original statements of the German government, the American Charge d'Affaires is instructed to inform the German government that under the circumstances above related the government of the United States expects that the vessel will not

Germany's Statement

The German Embassy's statement follows:

The German government has released the following information concerning the voyage of the United States Army transport American Legion from Petsamo, Finland, to the United States, and the negotiations had with the government of the United States in this matter:

1. The American Embassy at Berlin advised the German Foreign Office on June 14 that the government of the United States intends to send an American war vessel or Army transport to Petsamo in order to repatriate American citizens, and asked the German government for assurances for the safety of the vessel during the voyage.

2. On July 9 the American Embassy was advised that there was no occasion for specific assurances, inasmuch as German naval forces would not undertake warlike actions against neutral merchant vessels. It was added, however, that the German government was willing to inform the German military forces as to the voyage and course to be taken, in order to avoid any danger of mistaken identity.

3. In a note dated July 25 the American Embassy expressed the expectation that the United States Army transport American Legion could undertake its voyage to Petsamo via Iceland without molestation. The German reply of July 31 stated that the competent authorities had been informed of the voyage.

4. On Aug. 3 the American Embassy stated in writing that the United States Army transport American Legion would sail from Petsamo to New York on Aug. 16 with American citizens and nationals of other countries, adding that the vessel was carefully marked and would sail with full lights on a course which was described in detail and which would carry the ship through the waters between the Isle of Rona and Cape Wrath on the north coast of England. The American Embassy requested safe conduct for the vessel.

6. On Aug. 13 the American Embassy received a reply with reference to the German government's note of July 9, stating that there was no occasion for an assurance of safe conduct for an American Army transport, but adding that the German government was willing to inform the competent German authorities about the sailing of the vessel.

6. Immediately thereafter, by a note of Aug. 14, the American Embassy was advised that the German competent authorities considered the passage through the zone of military operations around England extremely dangerous. The German government coupled this statement with the urgent advice that the vessel take a different course.

7. On Aug. 16 at noon the German Foreign Office received a note of the American Embassy stating that the American Legion, notwithstanding the German government's advice, would follow the course previously stated, and would sail from Petsamo on Aug. 16.

(8) On the same evening a note was sent to the American Embassy, with the statement that the steamer American Legion would enter the zone of military operations around England against the urgent warning of the German government and in full knowledge of the danger involved. The German government further stated in that note that it declines any responsibility for damages which the vessel might suffer as the result of such a risky undertaking, and that the government of the United States would have to bear the sole responsibility. The American Embassy's particular attention was further called to the fact that the final notice concerning the sailing of the American Legion from Petsamo was not received until Aug. 16 at noon, although the American Embassy had been asked by the German government to send such notice in time and not later than Aug. 15.

(9) The German government has issued today a press communique which lays further stress upon the danger of mines threatening the vessel on its contemplated course.

BULLITT WARNS AGAINST HITLER ATTACK ON U. S.

AUG 19 1940

If Britain Is Defeated America Will Be Next, Ambassador Declares

Position Of Nation Today Is Like That Of France A Year Ago, He Avers

[By the Associated Press]

Philadelphia, Aug. 18—William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to France, declaring that Hitler will attack this nation if Great Britain is defeated, urged Americans tonight to telegraph their Congressmen demanding that World War destroyers be sent to England's aid.

"America is in danger," he asserted dramatically in a speech at Independence Square. "It is my conviction, drawn from my own experience and from the information in the hands of our Government in Washington, that the United States is in as great peril today as was France a year ago."

Speaks In Home City

Bullitt returned recently from Nazi-conquered France after narrowly escaping death in a German air raid on Paris. He chose his home city, Philadelphia, for his first public appraisal of the international situation during nearly four years as Ambassador to the French republic.

His address, sponsored by the American Philosophical Society, was made before a crowd of several thousand at the nation's historic "Cradle of Liberty."

Text Of Address

The text of the address follows:

"Fellow citizens of my country; men and women; Americans:

"There are times, rare and infrequent, when a man feels he has a right to ask his fellow citizens to hear him. Here tonight, in my own city, in this square where our republic was created, I feel I have that right.

"For nearly four years I have served as Ambassador of our republic to the French republic. That republic, like our own, followed the gleam of liberty, equality and fraternity for all men and all races. That republic, like our own, strove for peace.

"I have seen the French republic destroyed.

Cites His Experience

"As your emissary, as the representative of American democracy, I have witnessed the acts which destroyed the French democracy. I know of my own knowledge what blows were struck, what devices of intrigue and treachery and force were employed. I know who are the enemies of freedom because I have seen them at their work. I know how dangerous they are and by what means they are dangerous.

"Because I have seen these things and know them of my own knowledge, I know that dangers beset free institutions everywhere, and I know what those dangers are.

"The strategy of destruction by which the free nation of France was overthrown is the strategy of destruction by which the enemies of freedom hope to overthrow liberty in this, the greatest of the nations that freedom has created.

Plea His Duty

"Because I have seen these things with my own eyes, heard them with the ways of peace, the military discipline which is the very foundation of the Nazi hierarchy would crumble.

"In order to continue in power that hierarchy must continue to lead Germany on new predatory adventures. The Third Reich cannot change its objectives and methods without changing its entire organization and leadership.

"The Americans who believe that the Nazis will not have to be stopped but will stop of their own accord are indulging in the fatal vice of wishful thinking. They want to believe this. Therefore they believe it. There is no other basis than their wish for their conclusion that the Nazis suddenly will become peace-loving men.

Warns Of Complacency

"The men and women who tell you that the dictators will not attack the Western Hemisphere may be honest, wishful thinkers, or they may be agents of the dictators; but in either case, by lulling you into a false feeling of security and retarding your preparations for defense, they are keeping the way clear for an assault on America by the dictators. They are enemies, consciously or unconsciously, of our country and our liberties.

"In France there were high-placed and influential German agents who circulated in what was called society, and argued that, because Hitler had said he loved France, Germany would never so much wish to invade France as to attack the Maginot Line which was estimated to be such a tremendous obstacle.

"Today, we hear Americans of the same stripe arguing that the dictators will never so wish to invade the Americas as to cross the Atlantic which is regarded as such a tremendous obstacle.

"They ask us to ignore the fact that the Atlantic is an obstacle only so long as the European exits to the Atlantic are controlled by a nation which is genuinely friendly to us.

Lessons Of Past

"We can remember, however, that in the past when those exits have been in the hands of a power unfriendly to us the Atlantic has become a broad highway for the invasion of the Americas. By way of the Atlantic our own land was invaded twice: During our Revolution and the War of 1812—and that with sailing ships. By way of the Atlantic, Mexico was invaded during the Civil War.

"The truth is that the destruction of the British navy would be the turning of our Atlantic maginot line. Without the British navy, the Atlantic would give us no more protection than the Maginot Line gave France after the German troops had marched through Belgium.

"The soothing words, 'Maginot Line,' were the refrain of a lullaby of death for France. The soothing words, 'Atlantic Ocean,' are being used now by the propagandists of the dictators in the hope that they may become a lullaby of death for the United States.

Issue Of Conscription

"The French knew that they were outnumbered two to one by the Germans, and that all Germans—men, women and children—had been mobilized for war. They knew that Great Britain was unprepared for war and that little help could come to France from England. When they thought hard, therefore, they knew that every French man, woman and child ought to be working for the national defense.

"The French had, of course, universal military training for the army. Even the French priests were trained to fight, and they fought at the front like other good soldiers and would not have been respected if they had not.

He Scores Opposition

"But when the question arose of mobilizing the whole nation for national defense by compulsory national service, even as a temporary measure to save the liberties of France, the French found it more comfortable to listen to the voices, some sincere, some bought by the dictators, which told them that their individual liberties were sacred and must not be sacrificed for a moment even to save the liberties of the nation; that it was more important for the individual to work only forty hours a week than for his country to have enough airplanes; that the voluntary acceptance of national service as a temporary measure would be an imitation of the dictatorships.

"Thus, in the name of the preservation of individual liberty, the national liberty of France was condemned in advance to destruction.

"Recently, in this country, we have heard men and women arguing that we ourselves would be imitating the dictatorships if we should create through conscription an army adequate to defend our country. They, too, are playing the dictators' game.

"Then there are many in France, some honest, some agents of the dictators, who argued that since airplane design was changing rapidly France should have good models but should not manufacture planes in great quantity until after the outbreak of war. They were prominent and powerful. As a result, at one time French plane production was allowed to sink to thirty-seven a month while Germany was producing a thousand a month!

"Have we been wiser during the past years? Have we built the planes or trained the aviators to man them? Have we prepared the tanks or the men to drive them? Have we trained and equipped even infantry for our national defense? Are there not among us many who think and talk as did the Frenchmen who opposed adequate preparations?

Case Of Senator

"Recently I heard a senator who is as good an American as any of us state while he would favor conscription the moment we should be attacked, he would oppose conscription until after we should have been attacked.

"The ruined homes of France, the women and children starving on the roads, cry out to him, and to everyone of us that wars are won or lost by the preparations made or not made before they begin; that untrained soldiers are not opponents but merely victims for trained men with tanks and planes.

"The dictators, who are confident that all democracies will always be too late, count not only on their agents to befuddle American opinion, but also on honorable men like that senator.

"What stands today between the Americas and the unleashed dictatorships? The British fleet and the courage of the British people. How long will the British fleet be able to hold the exits from Europe to the Atlantic? I cannot answer that question, nor can any man.

Appeal By Pershing

"You have heard the appeal of General Pershing for aid to the British fleet. You have heard the appeal of Admiral Standley. You have heard the appeal of William Allen White and his associates.

"If you let these appeals go unanswered and the British fleet goes under, do you realize what that would mean to you, to all of the people of this country?

"Great Britain and Ireland, along with the whole continent of Europe, would be organized into one economic unit directed from Berlin; a unit which would be far stronger in productive capacity than the United States, which would have five times our capacity to produce warships; a unit whose trade would be controlled by one trading trust directed from Berlin.

"No country of North or South America would be able to trade with Europe except on such terms as might be pleasing to the dictators. Those conditions for many of the countries of South America would be the acceptance of a greater or less measure of Nazi control.

Cutting Of Markets

"For us, since we would not accept Nazi control, they would mean the cutting off of our markets for cotton, tobacco and other export products. That would be so fatal to the economy of certain sections of our country that we should face the gravest economic crisis in our history; a crisis which it would be the task of Nazi and Communist agents to exploit.

"In the Pacific would be the Japanese navy, cooperating with the dictators, which would be able to cut us off from our supplies of rubber and tin and would compel us to leave a large part of our fleet in the Pacific to defend Hawaii and the West Coast.

"In the Atlantic would be combined fleets of the dictators which would be so close to our own fleet in strength that they would be able to cut us off from all commerce, not only with Europe but also with Africa, and would endanger even our communications with the southern portion of this hemisphere.

Danger From South

"Are you sure that under those circumstances the powerful Nazi and Communist movements which already exist in various countries of South America would not be able to seize power and would not invite the European dictators to organize air forces on their territories, and that those air forces would not move northward with dive bombers to the Panama Canal and then move against this country?

"Are you sure that our existing fleet and air force would be able to defend even the northern route to the United States by way of Greenland, Newfoundland and Canada?

"It is as clear as anything on this earth that the United States will not go to war, but it is equally clear that war is coming toward the Americas.

"The agents of the dictators are already here preparing the way for their armies. They are preparing the way in the same manner in which they prepared the way in France.

Work Of Communists

"In France much of the most terrible and traitorous work was done by the Fascists and Communists working together.

"Many honest French Democrats and Liberals had been snared by Communist propaganda and argued that, because the Communists called themselves a political party and pretended at the time to be in favor of democracy, it would be undemocratic to deny to the Communists the rights of any other political party.

"The honest French patriots and Democrats who protected the Communists did not discover until too late that the Communists were acting as spies and agents of the dictators, that the Communist party was merely camouflaged as a political party and was in reality a conspiracy to commit patricide at the direction of a foreign dictator.

"They discovered too late that the Communists were traitors who were claiming the protection of the state which they intended to destroy only in order the better to prepare for its destruction.

Agents Of Invasion

"When the German invasion began to sweep into Belgium and France, there were Communist and Nazi agents of Germany in each town and village who produced panic among the civilian populations by spreading fantastic tales of murdering by the German troops of men, women and children.

"By this means 10,000,000 civilians were harried in fear from their homes and clogged all the roads, so that the French, British and Belgian armies could not maneuver, so that transport of supplies became almost impossible, and a magnificient fighting force became a clotted mass of men and material, a perfect target for bombing and machine-gunning from the air.

'At the most critical moment of the fighting in Belgium, other German agents, this time Communist railway men, stopped all traffic on the Belgian railways so that there was no transport by train for the French, British and Belgian armies.

"Throughout France, especially in Paris, there were hundreds of Communists and Nazi agents of the dictators with extremely short-wave portable radio transmitting sets in their hiding places. They kept the Germans fully informed of the movements of the French army and of the intentions of the French Government. Since they could change their hiding places daily, the French were never able to track down more than one-tenth of these spies.

Traitorous Refugees

"The French had been more hospitable than are even we Americans to refugees from Germany. More than one-half the spies captured doing actual military spy work against the French army were refugees from Germany.

"Do you believe that there are no Nazi and Communist agents of this sort in America?

"On the tenth day of last May the people of France were as confident as are the people of the United States today that their country could not be conquered. Three days later, on the thirteenth day of May, the Germans had smashed through the center of the French army and France was doomed.

"The way had been prepared by spies, agents and propagandists, but it was the strength of the German army and the skill of its leaders that enabled Germany to strike the fatal blow.

Surprise Of Blow

"The blow was struck just where the French did not expect it. The attack was made by a new method that the French had never imagined. Waves of bombing planes preceded waves of tanks with perfect coordination maintained by radio. The tanks cut through the French lines, then wheeled and lopped off piece after piece of the French army.

"The French soldier fought as courageously and magnificiently as any soldier has ever fought. Division after division, cut off from supplies of all sorts, fought on until there were no more shells for the cannons or cartridges for the guns, then charged with the bayonet. The courage of the French was magnificient, but of no avail against the tanks and planes of the Germans. And, make no mistake the German infantrymen were a brave as the French.

"The entire western world had been lulled by stories of the inferiority of German equipment. I have seen, myself, hundreds of thousands of German soldiers with all their motorized and mechanized equipment. I have never seen one piece of that equipment broken down.

Power Of Germany

"The German military machine today is without question the most powerful that has ever been created. It has been used with consummate skill. And you may be sure that, if the Nazis have an opportunity to turn it against us, it will be as strong or stronger than it is today and will be used in the most unexpected manner.

"In cannot tell you where and when the attack will come, any more than the French general staff could have told you that the German attack would be made at Sedan on the thirteenth of May; but I am certain that if Great Britain is defeated, the attack will come, and that all the strength of this nation will be needed—mobilized, organized, equipped and ready—if we are to parry it and save the independence of our country.

"Why are we sleeping, Americans? When are we going to wake up? When are we going to tell our Government that we want to defend our homes and our children and our liberties, whatever the cost in money or blood?

"When are we going to give the lie to those who say that the people of the United States no longer care about their liberties, that they look on the United States just as a trough into which to get their snouts, and not as the greatest adventure in human freedom that this earth has known?

Demand For Action

"When are we going to let the world know that in spite of all the efforts of all the propagandists who call their propaganda "debunking," and try to teach us to fear even truth, we still know that when anyone tries to debunk the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount he prepares for himself hell in this world and in the next?

"When are we going to let legislators in Washington know that we don't want any more politicians who are afraid of the next election and scared to ask us to make the sacrifices that we know are necessary to preserve our liberties and our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution?

"When are we going to tell them that we want to know what are our duties, not what are our privileges?

"When are we going to say to them that we don't want to hear any longer about what we can get from our country, but we do want to hear what we can give to our country?

"When are we going to stand before God and say that we know a human being is worthy of freedom only when he serves the ideal in which he believes?

"Join In Fight"

"Do we want to see Hitler in Independence Hall making fun of the Liberty Bell? No!

"Then here, in this square, where Washington walked with Jefferson, where our independence was declared, where our Constitution was framed, I ask you and all other Americans who hear my voice tonight to join in the fight to keep our country free.

"Write and telegraph to your Senators and Representatives. Write to your newspapers. Demand the privilege of being called into the service of the nation. Tell them that we want conscription. Tell them that we back up General Pershing.

"If you belong to great patriotic organizations, make them act. If you want to make your will felt but do not know how to make it felt, write to me and I shall try personally to put you in touch with the men and women who know how you can help most effectively in your own home town and villages.

Need For Defenses

"Our defense against the enemies who are already within our country has still to be organized. Nearly all our defense against the enemies that are still outside our country has still to be organized. If we won't act, our Government can't. It is up to us.

"The fighting line of the war for the enslavement of the human spirit is nearing our shores. For every American 'there is no discharge in that war.' An American is a free man or he is nothing. Our fate and the fate of our children depends on what each one of us does—now."

Duke Goes To Church; Duchess Stays Away

Wallis Worn By Walk In Excessive Temperature—Described As Under Weather

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, the Bahamas' new Governor, attended morning prayer at the 180-year-old Christ Church Cathedral today, but the Duchess—described as "literally under the weather"—stayed away.

The Windsors arrived yesterday in Nassau's worst heat wave of the year, coming annually just before the rainy season, and the former Wallis Warfield was worn by the heat-baked walk from the pier to the council chamber and the long inauguration ceremony in the excessive temperature of the small room yesterday.

The sermon, based on Christ's temptation by the devil, was delivered by the Rev. Cyril Marsden, substituting for the Cathedral dean, the Rev. E. C. Streatfield, who is in New York at the bedside of his wife.

Breckinridge Tells Americas To Get Into War

Ex-Counsel for Lindbergh Would Imitate Canada's 'Unstinted' English Aid

OTTAWA, Aug. 18 (AP).—Col. Henry S. Breckinridge, Assistant Secretary of War under President Wilson before the World War and former personal counsel to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, declared tonight that all the nations of the western world should follow Canada's example and give to Great Britain "unstinted aid" in her war with Germany.

It was the second time Col. Breckinridge had publicly expressed views opposite to those of Col. Lindbergh. In a speech advertised as an "answer" to an assertion by the famed flyer that "we must stop this trend" toward involvement in the European war, the attorney, in a Boston speech on June 16, denounced those who would try to "lull the American people into a false sense of security."

In an address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting System, Col. Breckinridge declared tonight:

"My hope for my country is that the United States will draw its sword for freedom and humanity."

Craft Apparently One Operated By Line Under Belgian Flag

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 18—Mackay Radio intercepted an S O S shortly after 5 P. M. today from a ship which reported it had been torpedoed about 300 miles west of Ireland.

Mackay said the ship identified herself with the call letters ONVF and was apparently one of the ships formerly owned by the United States Lines and sold to a Belgian company.

Mackay first received a call from station GCK, a powerful British transmitter at Valencia, Ireland, which reported hearing the distress signal and asked Mackay to listen for it.

"Now In Boats," Says Message

Shortly afterward, Mackay operators said they picked up this message:

"ONVF, position 55.28 north, 15.10 west. Torpedoed. Now in boats waiting to be lowered."

The position given is in the vicinity where four other ships have been torpedoed in the last month.

Two of the ships operated by the United States Lines under the Belgian flag are known to be in that part of the Atlantic.

Should Be Near Ireland

The Ville de Hasselt, formerly the 8,862-ton American Trader left New York August 11 for Liverpool and should be nearing the Irish Coast. The Ville de Gand, formerly the 7,590-ton American Importer, was scheduled to sail from Liverpool for New York August 16 or 17.

These vessels were among eight sold last February to the Societe Maritime Anversoise, Antwerp, Belgium, and since operated by the United States Lines under charter from the Belgium firm.

Two of the eight, the former President Harding and the former American Merchant, have been sunk.

Communiques of Belligerents

British

LONDON, Aug. 19 (Monday) (AP).—The Air Ministry issued the following communique early this morning:

Further reports of yesterday's—Sunday's—air attacks show that the enemy lost at least 115 aircraft and, having regard to the numbers employed, this represents the heaviest defeat he has yet suffered at the hands of our fighters and ground defenses.

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique issued tonight said:

In the raids upon this country at midday today bombs were dropped in the outer fringe of the South London area, in Kent and in other parts of southeastern and southern England.

Information so far available shows that some civilian casualties were caused in the neighborhood of Croydon.

Elsewhere the number of casualties was small and damage to property was slight.

This evening large formations of enemy aircraft again crossed the southeast coast, near Dover and North Foreland.

These formations attempted to penetrate the London defenses along both sides of the Thames Estuary, but were broken up by our attacking fighters and driven back over Kent and Sussex.

The available information is incomplete, but it appears that very little damage was done and few casualties were caused in this evening's raids.

Reports received up to 8 p. m. show that at least eighty-six enemy aircraft have been destroyed in today's battle. Seventy-three of these were shot down by our fighters, twelve by anti-aircraft fire and one by a searchlight crew.

Sixteen of our fighters have been lost in combat, but the pilots of eight of these are safe.

An Air Ministry communique issued earlier said:

Reports so far received show that thirty-six German aircraft have been brought down over this country during today's air raids.

Reports received up to 6 p. m. show that thirty-six enemy aircraft were destroyed by our fighters during raids on southeast England at midday today.

Bombs were dropped on several Royal Air Force airdromes, where some service personnel were killed and others injured.

Five British fighters are missing, the pilot of one being safe.

Another Air Ministry communique said:

Shortly after midday today a large number of enemy aircraft in three successive waves crossed the southeast coast and attempted to penetrate the defenses of the London area.

They were at once engaged by our fighters and anti-aircraft guns.

After little over an hour's fighting the enemy had been driven off and were in retreat across the North Sea and the English Channel.

Although it is known that some bombs were dropped in Kent and the neighborhood of South London, further details are not yet available.

Other raids have been made in the Hampshire area.

Our fighters have engaged the enemy and are still in action.

Another Air Ministry communique said:

Seaplanes and shipping in Boulogne Harbor were heavily and successfully attacked by battle aircraft of the coastal command last night.

Oil plants, munition factories, aircraft stores and railway targets in Germany were bombed and attacks were made on twenty-six airdromes in northwest France, Holland and Belgium.

All our aircraft returned.

During last night enemy aircraft dropped bombs in several districts of England and Wales, causing some damage to buildings and dwelling houses. The number of casualties was small.

Early this morning a fighter of the R. A. F. engaged one of the enemy bombers and shot it down into the sea off the east coast.

CAIRO, Aug. 18 (AP).—A communique issued by the British command here today said:

Our fighters who were escorting the fleet while the battleships bombarded Bardia and Fort Capuzzo first encountered an Italian flying boat, shadowing our naval force, which was shot down in flames.

Shortly afterwards the fleet was attacked by a formation of S 79's (Italian bombers) which our fighters intercepted and dispersed. Two enemy planes were shot down into the sea.

Then a larger force of S 79s attacked the fleet. Two were sent down in flames and a third was chased by a fighter until in the end it broke up in the air. Aircraft of the fleet air arm accounted for another S 79 which crashed into the sea in flames, and another was believed to have been destroyed. A further engagement by our fighters with the enemy resulted in another enemy bomber being shot down and one more that was not confirmed.

Finally another S79 was forced to land in the western desert and the plane was captured and its entire crew taken prisoner.

We suffered no aircraft losses. One pilot was slightly wounded but was able to bring his aircraft safely to its base.

While on patrol off the Kamaran Islands in the Red Sea our aircraft sighted an enemy bomber S81, which was shot down in flames.

One enemy aircraft which raided Alexandria the night of Aug. 16 was compelled by our defense forces to land intact in the western desert, and its crew was captured.

Various raids, the object of which was to harass enemy troop movements in Somaliland, were carried out. Yesterday direct hits were registered on buildings in Hargeisa (Italian-held town in British Somaliland) and one of our aircraft was compelled to land at sea, but the crew was saved.

PRETORIA, South Africa, Aug. 18 (AP).—British defense headquarters issued the following communique today:

There has been no activity by our ground forces. Normal air reconnaissance was carried out.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 18 (AP).—The German high command issued the following special communique tonight:

In the course of armed reconnaissance in the area around London and the County of Hampshire, German air units again scored great success. German flyers effectively attacked war-important objectives, especially several airports in the immediate vicinity of London, and destroyed numerous planes on the ground.

German pursuit and destroyer planes handed the R. A. F. additional telling blows in air fighting which developed. A great number of planes were shot down in the air. Up to now the number of enemy planes destroyed today is 138.

Of these twenty-three were destroyed on the ground. The destroyer squadron Horst Wessel, under leadership of the commander, Lieut. Col. Huth, especially distinguished itself. The squadron shot down fifty-one planes today. So far thirty-four of our planes have not returned.

An earlier German high command communique said:

A submarine reports the sinking of 32,300 registered tons of enemy shipping.

The Air Force continued by day, and especially the night of Aug. 17, reconnaissance and attack flights over England.

In broad areas of south and central England flying fields, anti-aircraft and searchlight positions were attacked, motor works at Filton, airplane factories near Birmingham, industrial plants in Reading and harbor facilities at Swansea, Avonmouth and Bournemouth were bombed successfully.

The same night planes flew over west and central Germany. At various places, for instance Dortmund, residential sections were bombed and a number of civilians killed or wounded.

Also an attack on central Brussels cost the lives of civilians. Here four were killed and twenty-two wounded, women and children among others.

During the night pursuit planes shot down one British machine and German anti-aircraft four others. One German plane is missing.

The number of British planes lost Aug. 16 now has risen from eighty-nine to ninety-two.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Italian high command communique issued today said:

In British Somaliland, in a continuing advance, one of our columns from Zeila occupied Bulhar. Another column arrived within a short distance of Lafaruk.

In North Africa enemy naval forces fired not less than 300 rounds of heavy and medium caliber shells against Bardia (Libya) and against the interior, causing one death and eleven wounded among the troops.

Our bombers went immediately to the attack, entering into battle furthermore against an enemy air formation brought to help the enemy ships.

Seven enemy planes of the Gloster Gladiator type were shot down, plus probably two others. Three of our planes are missing.

One of our submarines sank an English tanker of about 9,000 tons in the Atlantic.

CAIRO, EGYPT, AUG. 18-(AP)-A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE ON THE SOMALILAND FIGHTING TONIGHT SAID:

YESTERDAY THE ENEMY AGAIN RENEWED HIS DETERMINED ATTACKS WITH PICKED ITALIAN TROOPS SUPPORTED BY ARTILLERY, TANKS AND AIRCRAFT.

BRITISH FORCES CONTINUE TO FIGHT WITH THE UTMOST GALLANTRY, INFLICTING IMPORTANT LOSSES ON THE ENEMY AND CONTESTING EVERY YARD OF ITS WITHDRAWAL TOWARD BERBERA.

ELSEWHERE, NOTHING TO REPORT.

AUG 19 1940

BY DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--THE ANTI AIRCRAFT BARRAGE AND TEAMWORK BETWEEN GROUND GUNNERS AND FIGHTER PILOTS HAS CHANGED GERMANY'S AIR RAID TACTICS FROM MASS FORMATIONS TO FORAYS BY STRINGS OF DIVE BOMBERS.

SCORNED BY PILOTS IN THE LAST WAR AND IN THIS AS "ARCHIES" AND "OLD ACK ACK", ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS HAVE HAD THEIR EFFECTIVENESS GREATLY INCREASED BY LONG MONTHS OF INACTIVITY LAST WINTER WHEN THE GUNNERS SPENT COUNTLESS HOURS IN PRACTICE.

AS A RESULT THE GERMAN AIR ONSLAUGHT HAS BEEN MET BY AN INCREASINGLY EFFECTIVE "CHANNELING" OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WHICH ARTILLERY OFFICERS SAY PUSHES THE BOMBERS AWAY FROM THE TARGETS AND DESTROYS AN "INCREASINGLY HIGH PERCENTAGE OF RAIDERS.

THE PROBLEM OF DISTINGUISHING FRIENDLY PLANES FROM GERMAN RAIDERS, WHICH APPEARED GRAVE AT THE START OF THE WAR, HAS BEEN SURMOUNTED BY CEASELESS SCHOOLING IN SHAPES AND FLYING METHODS OF THE GERMAN LUFTWAFFE.

EVERY GUNNER, SEARCHLIGHT BATTERYMAN AND OBSERVATION OFFICER HAS A CARD SHOWING THE SIZE AND SHAPE OF ALL GERMAN AIRCRAFT AT DIFFERENT HEIGHTS AND UNDER VARYING CONDITIONS.

TO ACCUSTOM GUN AND LIGHT OPERATORS TO THE APPEARANCE OF GERMAN PLANES AT NIGHT, THEATERS HAVE BEEN RIGGED UP WITH SCREENS ON WHICH DIM SILHOUETTES OF VARIOUS GERMAN PLANES ARE PROJECTED.

BRITISH PLANES ALSO FLASH SECRET RECOGNITION SIGNALS TO GROUND TROOPS.

AUG 19 1940

AN UNSPOKEN AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE FIGHTERS AND GUNNERS GIVE THE FORMER COMMAND OF THE SITUATION WHEN THEY ATTACK A GERMAN FORMATION. IF THE FIGHTERS CHASE A PLANE OUT OF FORMATION, EVERY GUN IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD IS TRAINED ON IT.

GERMAN TACTICS IN DAY RAIDING HAS BEEN TO FLY IN CLOSE-PACKED FORMATION AT THE FAIRLY LOW ALTITUDES OF 9,000 OR 8,000 FEET TOWARD THE TARGET AND THEN TO STRING OUT. JUNKERS PLANES SLOPE TOWARD THE TARGET AND USUALLY START TO DIVE FROM A HEIGHT OF ABOUT

4,500 TO 5,000 FEET.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT PERFORMS A DUAL ROLE AGAINST THEM. FIRST THE BIG GUNS TRY TO KEEP THE APPROACHING SQUADRON AS HIGH AS POSSIBLE. THEN LIGHT ORDNANCE TRIES TO BLOW EACH PLANE OUT OF THE SKY AT TWO BRIEF, VULNERABLE MOMENTS--THE START OF THE DIVE AND WHEN THE PILOT PULLS HIS CRAFT OUT OF THE DIVE.

BRITAIN'S 3.7 GUN IS THE BACKBONE OF HER ANTI-AIRCRAFT. IT HAS A CEILING OF 40,000 FEET--OR BETTER THAN SEVEN AND A HALF MILES--BUT IT IS MOST EFFECTIVE IN RANGES OF 20,000 TO 35,000 FEET.

ITS SHELL, COMPLETE WITH NOSE AND CARTRIDGE CASE, IS 42 1/2 INCHES TALL, WEIGHS 27 TO 28 POUNDS AND COSTS ABOUT $21 EACH.

THE 4.5 GUN, WHICH IS NOT SO MOBILE AND HAS A SLOWER RATE OF FIRE THAN THE 3.7'S TWELVE A MINUTE, HAS AN EVEN LONGER RANGE AND EVEN GREATER DESTRUCTIVE POWER ON EXPLOSION.

SHELLS FOR BOTH GUNS HAVE A TIME FUSE SET TO EXPLODE AT THE HEIGHT OF THE RAIDING AIRCRAFT. THEIR EXPLOSIVE POWER IS SUCH THAT A PLANE WITHIN 20 YARDS OF THE BURST, IF NOT HIT BY SHELL FRAGMENTS, WILL BE SHAKEN BY THE CONCUSSION.

BOFORS GUNS, ORIGINALLY MADE IN SWEDEN AND NOW PRODUCED IN ENGLAND, ARE THE CHIEF RELIANCE AGAINST DIVE-BOMBERS, SECONDED BY THE FIRE OF MACHINE-GUN BATTERIES.

THE BOFORS HAVE A RATE FIRE OF 20 ROUNDS A MINUTE AND CAN HURL A TWO-POUND SHELL--FIRED IN CLIPS OF FOUR--TO A HEIGHT OF 3,000 FEET. UNLIKE THE LARGER MISSILES, THESE SHELLS EXPLODE ON CONTACT.

THE BREN MACHINE-GUN, ORIGINATED IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND NOW MANUFACTURED BY THE BRITISH, ALSO HAS BEEN USED AGAINST DIVE-BOMBERS--

AUG 19 1940

WITH NOTABLE SUCCESS, THE ARMY SAYS.

HEAVY MACHINE-GUNS ALSO ARE USED, PRINCIPALLY ON DEFENSE TRAWLERS AND NAVAL VESSELS.

THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT'S EFFECTIVENESS AGAINST CLOUDS OF HIGH-FLYING HEAVY BOMBERS--SUCH AS EVERYONE EXPECTED LAST SEPTEMBER AND NO ONE HAS YET SEEN OVER ENGLAND--REMAINS TO BE SEEN, BUT ARTILLERY OFFICERS PROUDLY DECLARE THE 3.7S AND 4.5S "FIRE FAST ENOUGH AND HIGH ENOUGH TO DISPERSE ANY FORMATION AND KEEP IT FROM EFFECTIVE BOMBING OF ITS TARGET."

ARMS PLANTS CHIEF R. A. F. TARGETS; ROME CALLS BERBERA LITTLE DUNKIRK

Germany's Biggest Aluminum Factory Hit as Well as Zeppelin Works on Swiss Border---Milan and Turin Plants Attacked Again From Air--- English Embark Troops in Gulf of Aden.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The Air Ministry announced tonight that British planes last night had bombed Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin, aluminum and chemical works in Germany, Boulogne Harbor and airdromes at Freiburg and Hamsheim, Germany.

[Today's Italian communique acknowledged British raids on Milan, Turin and Cuneo in the northern industrial district.]

The communique follows:

"Our bombers last night again bombed Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin. Other aircraft attacked the aluminum works at Bad Rheinfelden and the chemical works at Waldshut near the German-Swiss frontier. Buildings were wrecked by direct hits and left in flames.

"Airdromes at Freiburg and Hamshem, near Mulhouse, were heavily damaged.

"Aircraft of the costal command pressed home another successful attack on Boulogne harbor in the face of intense searchlight activity and heavy anti-aircraft fire.

"All of our aircraft returned."

Air Alarms Sounded in Switzerland.

BASLE, Switzerland, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—British night raiders, who caused air raid warnings all over Switzerland during the night, scored hits on one of Germany's largest aluminum factories just across the Rhine from the Swiss town of Rheinfelden.

The bombers dropped red flares over the Rhine area about midnight, then dived low to drop their missiles despite heavy fire from German anti-aircraft batteries.

From the Swiss side of the river observers saw wooden sheds around the aluminum factories catch fire and noted hits on new buildings of one of the factories, which have been working day and night since the start of the war.

Although there was no official estimate of the number of raiders engaged, their objectives appeared widespread. Others bombers, one of which dropped a few bombs on a Swiss railroad line on the southern shore of Lake Constance, attacked the German industrial district on the northern side of the lake.

The fact that air raid warnings were sounded three times during the night at Geneva and Lausanne indicated still more bombers also struck at northern Italy.

Nazi Arms Plants Bombed.

BERNE, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Reports from Romanshorn today said bombing planes struck at German armaments plants along Lake Constance, including the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen, during the night.

Romanshorn is on the southern or Swiss shore of the lake directly opposite Friedrichshafen.

The reports came simultaneously with a Swiss High Command announcement that unidentified planes had dropped bombs on the railroad on the Swiss side of the lake during the night.

The communique said there were no casualties and the railway line was not cut but that telephone and telegraph lines were broken.

The communique said that, from the direction of the flight and formation of some of the invading planes, "it was again a clear, intentional violation of the neutral air zone."

Switzerland last week instructed her Minister to London to protest violation of Swiss territory by British planes in a raid on industrial cities in northern Italy.

The bombs dropped during the night, the communique said, fell between the villages of Diessenhoffen and Schlatt in the Canton of Thurgau, near the lake.

Air raid alarms sounded twice in Geneva, Lausanne, Basle, Zurich and Berne, indicating the planes, like the invaders on three nights last week, had crossed Switzerland twice en route to and from the German lake ports and possibly northern Italy.

In Berne, the capital, anti-aircraft guns went into action.

Italians Reveal Raids.

ROME, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command reported today British air raids on the important northern Italian industrial cities of Milan and Turin, as well as Cuneo, but said that there were no victims and insignificant damage.

British bombers showered leaflets on northern Italy today telling the Italians they were shedding their blood "that Germany, Italy's hereditary enemy, may become greater."

"Hitler, not England, points a sword at your heart," the leaflets said. "The responsibility for the victims of the air raids falls on Hitler and his Italian satellites. Do you intend to shed your blood that Germany, Italy's hereditary enemy, may become greater?"

They said the peace between England and Italy had "been broken treacherously" and "now British bombers have brought the war to your very doorstep."

Several Killed in Brussels.

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—DNB, the official German news agency, said today that a British bomb attack on Brussels last night had resulted in the death of a number of civilians, including women and children.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Great Britain abandoned her Somaliland protectorate today to Italy, conceding defeat in the first phase of the far-flung war in Africa.

As at Dunkirk, when they were forced to flee from Flanders, the British said that they stuck to the fight as long as possible to make the Italians pay the highest price for their victory.

Then they made a successful withdrawal by ship, removing much of their materiel with them and destroyed what was left behind.

The withdrawal from Somaliland—British since 1884—gave the Italians unchallenged possession of an East African wedge extending from Eritrea on the north toe border of Britain's Kenya Colony on the south—the whole of the Horn of Africa.

AUG 20 1940

What Italian Trops Have Now.

Italy has won a strip of coast covering part of the Red Sea at the back door of the Suez Canal, the narrow Rab El Mandeb Strait between French Somaliland and Britain's Aden protectorate, the Gulf of Aden and the Indian Ocean.

Success of the Italian drive on Somaliland, regarded by British observers as a possible prelude to an attack on Egypt, also secures the rear of Italy's East African forces which might attempt a co-ordinated squeeze on Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan with Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army in Libya, on the west.

Withdrawal was decided on, the British announcement said, as an alterativne to re-enforcing the Somaliland garrison with reserves who were needed elsewhere.

"All guns except two lost in the early stages of the action have been embarked," it said. "A great part of the materiel stores has also been evacuated and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away."

The withdrawal apparently was effected from Berbera, capital and chief port of Somaliland, toward which Italian forces had been driving for two weeks.

Major Drive Is Expected.

British land, sea and air forces continue fighting the Fascist legions on two other African fronts—on the Ethiopian-British Kenya border, where Italian columns have driven some thirty- miles into British, territory, and the Egyptian-Libyan border, where activity thus far has been confined to air bombings, small raids by both sides and heavy British naval bombardment of Italian bases.

The British, however, expect a major Italian drive on this front soon, aimed at the all-important Suez Canal.

Somaliland was the fourth front from which the British were shoved clear back to their ships in the last five months. First was in Norway, then Flanders and France.

This latest reversal, however, was blamed squarely on the collapse of France.

New Situation Created.

"The original allied dispositions in Somaliland," the British communique said, "were based upon a scheme of close Franco-British cooperation. Under this scheme the French forces at Jibuti (French Somaliland to the north) were to hold the right flank, the pivot of the whole position.

"With the sudden secession of the French Government from participation in further hostilities, a new and grave situation was created. More than half of the available Allied force have been neutralized and it became immediately necessary to decide on the most effective measures for dealing with the emergency."

Finding it more advisable to hold re-enforcements where they could be "more important to our immediate war effort" than in Somaliland and spurning the easy course of "immediate and unresisting evacuation."

The British said they chose a third alternative which "has now been successfully completed, with conspicuous skill and bravery against greatly superior strength."

This, they said, was to fight to the last despite the certain outcome and inflict "losses on the enemy in men and materiel which will be difficult for him to replace."

Invasion 15 Days Old.

The British protectorate of Somaliland is a territory of 68,000 square miles with a population of about 344,700. It is entirely nomadic except on the coast, where considerable towns sprang up during the British occupation.

The Italian invasion of British Somaliland began fifteen days ago.

One column, led by the Duke of Aosta, Viceroy of Ethiopia, marched across the border and took Hargeisa and Oadweina, southwest and south of Berbera, its objective.

Another column went into the northeastern tip of British Somaliland and captured the port of Zeila, which was not defended.

The Duke's column advanced across mountainous country, while troops driving down the coast from Zeila were harried by bombardments from British war vessels in the Gulf of Aden.

Berbera Embarkation Reported.

ROME, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—British troops are hastily taking to their ships at Berbera, authoritative Italians said today, picturing a "little Dunkirk"—like the tragic British withdrawal from Flanders—at the chief capital and port of British Somaliland.

The second British defense line outside the port has been broken. Three Fascist columns are pressing upon fiercely fighting native troops who are protecting the evacuation, and Italian planes are constantly hammering at ships attempting to take the British off, it was said.

The attacking Fascist troops are mainly Italians, with "perhaps a few African" soldiers, it was said, while the defenders are 7,000 "thoroughly trained Indian and Rhodesian native soldiery accustomed to warfare in that climate."

Zeila, the port to the west, has been in Italian hands since the first of the Italian offensive.

Today's communique said an Italian column had captured La Faruk and pressed on beyond it.

It said the troops were in pursuit of the British, whose retreat was made additionally difficult by the fact their ships in the harbor of Berbera were being hammered constantly by Italian bombing planes.

30.24-4429

Airport in [illegible] Bombed.

The High Command claimed "effective" bombardment of the airport of Sidi Barrani, Egypt, and of encampments and armored cars southeast of Sollum.

All of the Italian planes taking part were said to have returned to their bases. One British plane was reported shot down by Italian fighters at Berbera.

A communique issued yesterday said one column, moving down the coast from Zeila, had occupied Bulhar, forty miles from Berbera.

At the same time the High Command disclosed that British warships heavily bombarded the Libyan port of Bardia and inland positions. Though "not less than 300 rounds" were fired, the Italians said, casualties consisted only of one soldier killed and eleven wounded, while in accompanying air battles seven and possibly nine British planes were downed to three Italians.

Seen As Show of Strength.

Foreign observers in Rome saw the British naval action as a possible show of strength for the benefit of Greece, which has a British guaranty of aid in event of attack and whose relations with Italy have become extremely tense in recent weeks. Authorized Fascists said Italy had not yet made any territorial demands on Greece but intimated such demands would be made soon—presumably on behalf of Italian-annexed Albania for the Ciamuria section of Greece which borders on Albania.

Charges against France were aired in yesterday's issue of the weekly La Voce d'Italia by authoritative Editor Virginio Gayda, who accused the French of aiding the British in Somaliland with troops, planes, pilots, munitions and guns.

Gayda also predicted Germany "in the next few days" would employ "even vaster forces and even more resolute methods" in the attack on Britain.

R. A. F. Bombs Italian Troops.

CAIRO, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—British airmen fighting to arrest the Italian drive on Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, have inflicted "considerable damage" on motorized columns and infantry, while others have heavily damaged the military air base at Addis Ababa, capital of Italian Ethiopia, the Royal Air Force announced today.

"THOROUGHLY TRAINED" INDIAN AND RHODESIAN MOUNTAIN SOLDIERS WERE DESCRIBED, HOWEVER, AS FIGHTING A FIERCE REARGUARD ACTION TO PROTECT THE WITHDRAWAL.

(CAIRO DISPATCHES AND COMMUNIQUES SAID NUMEROUS BOMBING RAIDS WERE BEING MADE IN SOMALILAND TO BREAK UP MOTORIZED ITALIAN CONVOYS AND TROOP COLUMNS. THE BRITISH FORCE WAS DESCRIBED AS FIGHTING "MANIFICIENTLY" AND INFLICTING HEAVY LOSSES.)

A BRITISH RAID ON ADDIS ABABA, CAPITAL OF ETHIOPIA, WAS ADMITTED BY THE ITALIAN HIGH COMMAND TO HAVE CAUSED TWO DEATHS AND FIVE WOUNDED, AND DAMAGED SOME "OLD EQUIPMENT" IN TWO HANGARS.

R. A. F. Airdromes Raided

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security announced tonight that German raiders had attacked Royal Air Force airdromes in sporadic raids today, causing "a number of casualties."

A high-flying German bomber attacked a southeast coastal town tonight, causing casualties, some fatal.

The Government announcement said at least two enemy bombers were shot down. It asserted also that reports from yesterday's raids now showed a total of 144 German bombers were brought down.

The Air Ministry announced also that British fighter planes during the last seven days had shot down 513 German planes.

The Air Ministry announcement said:

"During the last seven days of air fighting, fighter command pilots have shot down 513 Nazi raiders, of which 377 were bombers or fighter bombers, or 73 per cent of the enemy's losses.

"Twenty-two British fighters were lost yesterday, but twelve of the pilots are safe. This figure of twelve marks an addition of two to this afternoon's communique."

[The seven-day total of this announcement refers to German planes shot down in combat and does not include those downed by anti-aircraft fire or other causes. A tabulation of fighters in the British communique gives a total of 567 German planes downed August 12 to 18, inclusive.]

All Britain Now Defense Area.

All of Britain was made a defense area as the nation, already fighting in history's greatest air battle, was set for a life-or-death struggle to defend its soil.

With the Germans apparently nearing the zero hour for their attempt to smash Britain into submission by direct invasion, the order to make the isles a defense area—subject at a moment's notice to drastic edicts by closely cooperating civil and military authorities—was issued as a precautionary measure by the Ministry of Home Security.

Regional commissioners for England, Wales and Scotland will have authority, it said, "subject to control and direction of the Ministry of Home Security, to issue directions or orders required for the purposes of defense within their respective areas."

No Restrictions As Yet.

Although there were no immediate restrictions on Britions, the new order authorized "any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landing by air or sea to be introduced without delay in any part of the country in which they are required."

Until now, only a twenty-mile strip of the eastern and southern coasts from the Scottish border to Portland had been a defense area.

Again today, bomber traffic over the English Channel was two-way.

One German bomber was said to have been shot down this morning in the southwest.

A house was demolished and two persons were trapped in the wreckage in a southeast coast town when a lone German raiding plane made the first foray of the day on Britain.

Delayed Action Bombs Burst.

German planes were reported over an inland town in southeastern England this afternoon.

At a town in southeast England delayed action bombs, dropped during the early morning hours, exploded several hours later today. Ten houses were damaged and a bus garage burned.

Delayed-action bombs dropped in the Midlands by German raiders on Saturday and yesterday exploded during the night but caused no damage.

But up to late afternoon there had been only sporadic raids.

Nevertheless, the British, warned that the week to come may decide the balance of air power, manned their anti-aircraft defenses constantly.

Report on Yesterday's Raids.

The Air Ministry announced today that, "in general," German air raids last night caused "little damage."

Great Britain, having claimed destruction of approximately four German planes to each British plane during last week's six successive days of raids, made the ratio better than nine to one in fighting off yesterday's attacks, which struck at the outer edge of South London, at Croydon airdrome, at Kent, Sussex, the Portsmouth naval base, Hampshire and Surrey, the east coast, the Midlands, and the south and southeast coast.

The Air Ministry reported 141 Nazis planes destroyed against a loss of only twenty-two British—a total second only to last Thursday's peak of 180 and one which, considering that an estimated 650 German planes were employed, "represents the heaviest defeat he (the enemy) has yet suffered at the hands of our fighters and ground defenses," said the Air Ministry.

Total Blockade Discounted.

An authoritative British source, commenting on Germany's total blockade, said that the Nazis already had used every kind of weapon against all shipping in the vicinity of the British Isles.

The character of the German attacks showed that their object was "intimidation," this informant said, adding that supplies still streaming into Britain proved they had been unsuccessful.

Meanwhile a contingent of Newfoundland artillerymen arrived at a British port today. It was the fifth unit from New foundland to reach England.

BRITISH AIR OFFENSIVE LAUNCHED FULL FORCE ON ENEMY BASES IN FRANCE

Fury Of R. A. F. Attack On Boulogne Lights Sky Over Channel

Axis Arms Plants Raided, Nazi Planes Return To Battle Over England

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Aug. 20—Britain flung the full force of her air offensive against Germany and the Nazi-held French coast last night and today in the fiercest bombings of three nights of successive raids.

While the Royal Air Force launched squadron after squadron across the explosion-lighted English Channel, the drone of scattered Nazi planes was heard over almost every quarter of this embattled island, but no concentrated attacks were reported.

Third Successive Pounding

Bomb bursts, huge fires and the flash of anti-aircraft explosions seen clearly in southeastern England showed the intensity of the Royal Air Force's third successive overnight pounding of the near-by coast of France.

Three waves of British planes smashed at Boulogne, big Nazi base and center of a wide coastal stretch over which the British flyers ranged.

Observers said the new blows were the hardest the British have yet struck along the coast.

They followed Sunday night raids on Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin and on German armaments plants near the Swiss border.

The Air Ministry's communique regarding these raids said:

"Our bombers last night again bombed Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin. Other aircraft attacked the aluminum works at Bad Rheinfelden and the chemical works at Waldshut near the German-Swiss frontier. Buildings were wrecked by direct hits and left in flames.

"Airdromes at Freiburg and Hamsheim, near Mulhouse, were heavily damaged.

"Aircraft of the coastal command pressed home another successful attack on Boulogne harbor in the face of intense searchlight activity, and heavy anti-aircraft fire.

"—All of our aircraft returned."

Summary Of Nazi Losses

Summarizing the last seven days of the air battle over England last night, the Air Ministry said British fighter planes had shot down 513 Nazi raiders, including 377 bombers or fighter-bombers.

This included only German planes downed in combat. With those destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, a tabulation of figures in British communiques shows a total of 567 destroyed German planes was claimed between August 12 and 18.

R. A. F. Raid On Boulogne Described By Eyewitness

By WILLIAM H. McGAFFIN
Associated Press Correspondent

A Southeast Coast Town of England, Tuesday, Aug. 20—Royal Air Force bombers lashed the big German military base at Boulogne, France, in three violent attacks last night and early today, putting on a regular Fourth of July fireworks display for cheering watchers on the English shore.

At the same time German raiders were sighted over every corner of England.

The Boulogne bombardment still was in progress as I left my coastal vantage point to telephone this story to London.

Flashes Across Channel

There were repeated brilliant flashes onthe opposite side of the English Channel, about twenty-two miles distant. They obviously were made by demolition bombs of the heaviest sort.

Following one such flash, a huge fire flared up, lasting for so long that observers in England were sure an ammunition dump must have been destroyed.

The British raids were apparently the strongest yet directed at the French coast in three successive nights of ever-heavier attack.

French Shore Illuminated

From the seafront of this harbor town (apparently Dover), the French shore seemed to be lit by repeated sheets of "heat lightning."

Anti-aircraft shells and tracer bullets stabbed up into the clouded heavens like Roman candles.

The attack seemed to extend along several miles of coast on both sides of Boulogne.

Revolving Lights Visible

So high was the visibility that I could see not only the rays of the German searchlights but also the glowing faces of the lights as they revolved, trying to pin the R. A. F. planes to the sky for ground gunners.

For several seconds the beams criss-crossed the sky in a moving pattern before the anti-aircraft batteries opened up. When they did it looked like a Fourth of July display.

Nazi Radio Stations Silenced

Indicating the likelihood of even farther - ranging R. A. F. raids, the Hamburg and Bremen radio stations went off the air abruptly at 11.15 P. M., and at 1 A. M. all German radio stations shut down.

First reports of the German raids on England listed death of three civilians and injury of a number of others in East Anglia when a bomb demolished the corner of a smithy.

Another German raider jettisoned his bombs in a southeast region when he apparently was intercepted by British fighters. Most of the bombs appeared to fall in open country.

Bomber Downed Over Beach

In a south coast town, a tri-motored raider dropped its load of four bombs harmlessly on a beach in a daring dive attack which evaded an anti-aircraft barrage. Then two British Spitfires shot the bomber down.

A high-flying plane over northwest England started fires with three incendiary bombs, but they were soon extinguished.

Fire risk from incendiaries was declared to be reduced now that much of Britain's grain had been cut.

Waves of raiders attacked a northeast district of England late in the night, causing at least one fatality and several other casualties when their bombs fell on a residential area.

Sporadic Raids During Day

During the day sporadic raids on Royal Air Force airdromes admittedly caused a number of casualties. Four Nazi bombers were reported shot down, but up to evening there had been only sporadic attacks.

Last night, however, after an absence of several hours, enemy bombers and fighter planes returned to the battle over Britain.

Daring Nazi Twice Loser

A SOUTH COAST TOWN IN ENGLAND, Aug. 19 (AP).—A trimotored German bomber dropped its load of four bombs harmlessly on a beach tonight in a daring dive attack, which evaded an anti-aircraft barrage. Then two British Spitfires shot the bomber down.

NAZI AVIATORS SCOUTING ALONG BRITISH COAST

Report 2 R. A. F. Planes Shot Down Close to Thames Estuary.

INVASION IS CALLED NEARER

German Troops Are Reported to Be Massing at French Channel Ports.

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Nazi air scouts were reported ranging the British coasts today as Germany multiplied signs that she was getting ready to try a decisive blow against Great Britain.

Two British planes were shot down near Ramsgate, at the mouth of the Thames estuary, and a third was seen falling in flames to the sea, DNB, the official German news agency, reported.

But the air fighting apparently was minor, as the German flyers carried out what was described as armed reconnaissance to check up on the effect of their air siege and presumably to search for new targets.

Unable to Engage Planes.

German reconnoitering planes, accompanied by fighters, were able to take photographs at low altitude over southern England with little hindrance, DNB declared.

British Spitfires tried to form a barrier to the German planes, it said, but only in a few instances were able to engage them in battle.

Meanwhile, with an implication that Germany may be about to attempt the landing of men to hold vital land objectives in Britain, authorized spokesmen here declared: "Just give us three days of good weather."

This was interpreted as an intimation that the German military is convinced the air war rapidly is achieving its purpose of "softening up" the British and that the crucial week may be at hand.

Troops Reported at Ports.

German troops were reported at French channel ports, impatiently waiting for the Air Force to do its work.

Thousands of German aviators were said to be held in reserve in scores of airports in France, Belgium and Holland to launch a supreme air wave at the Britis.

Describing the blows dealt by th Air Force, which Germans believed is rapidly paving the way for a Nazi peace over London by September, the German High Command said that 147 British planes were shot down in battles yesterday.

Declaring many airports had been attacked in Britain's southeast corner, in an apparent effort to destroy the British air force, the High Command said twenty-three British planes were destroyed on the ground before they could rise to fight.

Airports Are Main Targets.

Germany acknowledged loss of thirty-six planes.

Airports near London, to the south and east of there, and near Liverpool had been bombed, as well as armament works in Norwich and Essex, and ports at Havenmouth, at Bournemouth and Weymouth on the south and at Milfordhaven in Wales. Fuel stores were attacked last night east of London, the High Command said.

Thirty-three of Britain's defense balloons were declared shot down and a 4,000-ton merchant vessel reported sunk.

As a result of the success of these blows, DNB asserted, the German Air Force had been given orders to maintain a constant patrol of Britain's airplane plants, ports and airports.

Scouts Planes in Action.

Reconnaisance craft were sent over Britain again today, but these flights were described as minor operations.

Two British planes were shot down around Ramsgate, near the mouth of the Thames estuary, and a third was observed falling in flames to the sea, according to the DNB official German news agency.

Small fights developed over southern England, it said, when German observation planes, accompanied by pursuit craft, were intercepted by British fighters.

Britain's own raids against Germany were declared by the High Command to be ineffective.

A special communique said "telling blows" had been dealt the British Air Force yesterday in a series of raids in which German planes were reported to have staged a virtual parade across the English Channel, bombing the great Croydon airdrome near London and leaving portions of the city's southern suburbs in flames.

Wave upon wave of German bombers were said to have rained explosives on air fields in the London suburbs of Kenley, Biggin Hill and Sutton and on another airdrome at Maidstone, Kent.

The semi-official commentary Dienst aus Deutschland said sixty-five barrage balloons were destroyed in the week ending Saturday.

The same source said vessels totaling 170,000 tons had been destroyed in the same period in the war on British shipping.

German submarines, it was said, accounted for well over 100,000 tons of this total—the weekly goal which the navy set for itself months ago.

Nazi commentators said imposition of a total blockade of England, formally announced on Saturday, had placed Great Britain in the position in which her leaders hoped to place Germany at the beginning of the conflict.

"The waters all about England, which she previously regarded as her protection, have now become a real battle zone where death and destruction menace every one," said the semi-official Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz.

Submarines, torpedo speedboats and warplanes were said to be cooperating in an intensified effort to isolate England and prevent all ships from touching her shores.

Special Proposal to Ireland.

Official quarters disclosed that while Ireland lies within the blockaded zone, proposals have been made to the Dublin Government to exempt its shipping.

A spokesman said Ireland, for example, might advise Germany daily about Irish ships and their movement; and Germany would instruct her air and naval forces to permit them safe passage.

[In Dublin, officials said the Government would consider the German proposals today.]

The German radio broadcast warnings to neutral shipping to keep clear of the blockaded zone, which was specifically defined in terms of latitude and longitude.

MASS ATTACK MAY DEVELOP DURING WEEK

Warning To England On Treatment Of Parachutists Sounded

Reports Persist Of Mobilization Of A Great Army On Beaches

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 19—Germany's air fleets took a semi-holiday in the air war against England today, sending over the English Channel only minor forces of scouts to check results of more than a week of mass assaults and, apparently, to spot fresh targets.

What the Germans called "armed reconnaissance" today was a far cry from the raids by hundreds of planes which began August 8. But it came amid indications that Germany is preparing her armed might for the blow which the Nazis hope will knock out England and end the war.

May Come This Week, Indication

There were indications that the huge assault might come this week.

Just as he had warned during the invasion of the Lowlands and France, Adolf Hitler informed Great Britain, through Swiss diplomatic channels, that the British must treat his parachute troops according to international law or he would visit reprisals upon British aviators in German prison camps.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Parachute troops played an important role in the western European fighting and Britain has organized thousands of civilians in home defense corps to meet that threat.]

Another intimation that a great attempt against England is in the wind was this expression by authoritative spokesmen:

"Just give us three days of good weather."

Repeated reports have told of German forces massed at French Channel ports, impatiently waiting for the air force to "soften up" the British.

Summary Of Sunday Battle

The Reich summarized yesterday's successes as 147 British planes destroyed and 33 balloons shot down from the British balloon barrage. German losses were put at 36.

The Hitler warning on parachute troops asserted it would violate international law for civilians to kill these forces, but said they might be captured and held for the army.

Germany said English forces need not wear regular British uniforms to be classed among the regular army troops but they must have some identification marks, such as arm bands.

The high command pronounced British night raids against Germany ineffective.

The zone, in general terms, describes a huge circle around the British Isles, beginning at a point on the French coast south of Brest, extending almost 1,000 miles into the Atlantic and cutting the Norwegian coast north of Bergen.

NAZIS IN WARNING ON PARACHUTISTS

Reprisals Against British Captives Threatened.

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The German Government notified Britain today through the Swiss foreign office that Naxi parachutists must be treated according to international law or direct reprisals will be taken against English air force captives.

The German note pointed out that the parachutists' uniforms are clearly discernible as military and that these troops wear insignia denoting their military rank on their left sleeves.

Under this outer clothing, it was explained, the parachutists wear the same uniforms as other members of the air force.

Elaborating on the German note, authorized sources said it would be considered a violation of international law for civilians to kill parachutists. These sources agreed that civilians might take parachute troops prisoner pending the arrival of military or police officials, but said that under no circumstances could they maltreat or kill them.

A similar warning on the treatment to be accorded parachute troops was issued by Germany during the invasion of the Lowlands and France.

Week Ends in Jail Now In Fashion in Reich

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (A. P. via radio).—Germans sentenced to prison terms up to a fortnight may serve them henceforth on the installment plan on week ends, the Minister of Justice decreed today.

The German wireless said the decree allowed convicted persons to go to jail at 3 P. M. Saturday and remain until 6 A. M. Mondays until their terms are over. Thus they can work as usual during the week.

BISHOPS MAY BACK HITLER

Pastoral Letter Planned To Appeal For Support Of Führer

Berlin, Aug. 19 (A.P. Via Radio)—The German radio said today that the drafting of a pastoral letter appealing to German Catholics to cooperate with Hitler's fight for the existence of the German people is on the agenda of the Greater German Roman Catholic Bishops' Conference.

Forty-five out of forty-eight German bishops attended the opening meeting today.

Civilians Die In Brussels Raid

Berlin, Aug. 19 (AP)—DNB said today a British bomb attack on Brussels last night resulted in the death of a number of civilians, including women and children.

Berlin's Four Million Hide As Raid Alarm Sounds

Residents Pass Nearly Two Hours in Bomb Shelters

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (Tuesday) (AP).—More than 4,000,000 Berlin residents passed 1 hour and 40 minutes in air raid shelters early today after an air raid alarm was sounded in the German capital at 12:42 a. m. Some citizens said they heard distant anti-aircraft artillery firing west of the city.

The alarm was Berlin's fourth of the war. The last previous warning came shortly after midnight last Wednesday morning and lasted 47 minutes. The city was not bombed, and later it was reported that British planes were turned back at Potsdam, about twelve miles east.

NAZI FOOD SUPPLY IS REPORTED GOOD

Said To Be Much Better Than French Were Led To Believe

HENRY CASSIDY

Germans Also Drinking And Smoking Though Latter Is Luxury

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 19—There are a lot of surprises and changes in a trip to Berlin for one who watched the war from the other side of the lines.

I came here after spending four years in Paris and many of the war months on the French and British fronts.

Life here I found different from the picture that had been painted on the other side: The Germans are eating, drinking and smoking; they have gasoline and oil.

The way the war is being prosecuted behind the German lines also varies from the Allied system. The blackout, propaganda and rationing, for example, are all different.

Blame Exaggeration

French exaggeration of the internal situation in Germany and underestimation of the strength of the German system, are considered here to have played an important part in the downfall of France.

Coming into Berlin, the first striking thing is the animation in the streets. Trains, street cars, busses and taxis are all running, in contrast to the emptiness of the Paris streets since just before the fall of the capital.

There, press and radio had reported Germany suffering from a severe shortage of gasoline and oil. Here, I even found tubes of gasoline for lighters on cigar store counters.

Taxies Are Restricted

Taxis and private automobiles are restricted to "non-frivolous" uses, but there are enough for serious purposes. Planes fly constantly and commercial air lines still run to friendly capitals.

I found it more difficult to obtain a meal here, because of the more complicated rationing system, but once its mysteries were solved, sufficient food could be found.

In France, ration cards for bread, sugar and coal applied only to household purchases in bulk. The only restrictions on eating in restaurants were those making Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays meatless days.

Here, there are only two meatless days, Tuesday and Fridays, but ration tickets must be presented in restaurants for meat, bread, butter, rice and cheese. Real coffee and chocolate cannot be had, and sugar is served sparsely.

Paris Level Dropping

When I left Paris the food level there was descending gradually to the German state, with coffee and sugar notably growing scarce.

Beer and wine flows freely here, as it does in France, and one surprise is that Scotch whisky is still to be had easily.

Both France and Germany have their wartime "luxury" cigarettes.

War propaganda here is more extensive than it was in France.

Communiques and news broadcasts are heard over radios in every big Berlin restaurant during meals. The French never let the war interfere with their eating.

Vaudeville Put On

The Winter Garten stages nineteen acts of vaudeville, with many American-style jugglers, acrobats, singers and dancers—and closes its show with the German army news reel. Imagine the Folies Bergeres ending that way!

French posters were aimed almost entirely at promoting subscriptions to armament bonds. Here they warn especially against spies, and picture England crushed by a clenched fist.

By night one blackout is much like another, just as one black cat looks like another. Here, however, blue-green street lights are used, and white-painted street corners saves many a toe from stumbling.

All in all, the Germans so far seem to be getting along all right—and better than their enemies supposed.

R. A. F. Bombs Zeppelin Plant, Hits Swiss Soil

Missiles Go Astray in Raids on Aircraft and Aluminum Factories Along Border

BASEL, Switzerland, Aug. 19 (AP).—British bombers attacked German armament plants along Lake Constance in pre-dawn raids today, including the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen and a big aluminum factory across the Rhine from the Swiss town of Rheinfelden. The raiders lit the scene with flares, then swooped low to drop their explosives in the face of heavy German anti-aircraft fire.

Observers on the Swiss side of the Rhine noted fires and direct hits on the aluminum works, which have been humming night and day producing metal for Nazi airplane parts.

Other R. A. F. squadrons blasted the German industrial district on the north side of Lake Constance, inadvertently dropping a few bombs along the Swiss shore. A Swiss High Command communique said there were no casualties on Swiss soil, but telephone and telegraph lines were broken.

Air-raid warnings sounded three times during the night at Geneva and Lausanne, indicating that still other waves of bombers had crossed Switzerland to northern Italy. (The Italian High Command acknowledged that R. A. F. raiders attacked Milan, Turin and Cuneo in north Italy's industrial region.)

The Swiss High Command called the flight "again a clear, intentional violation of the neutral air zone."

ALSACE IS OPENED TO 300 REFUGEES

Swiss And Nations In Small Groups Return To Fields And Factories

Jews Still Are Barred And Thousands Remain Quartered In Basil

[By the Associated Press]

Basil, Switzerland, Aug. 19—Germany opened the Alsace frontier for two hours this afternoon to admit 300 Swiss and Alsatians returning to fields and factory jobs in Alsace.

Thousands of Alsatians, however, remain in Switzerland where they fled before the German invasion. The Swiss who returned had established peace-time farms.

Disease Slows Return

Typhoid, smallpox and infectious cattle diseases have been reported severe in the occupied territory, hence the small number of returning refugees.

It was the first time since the German occupation that the frontier was opened, even for one-way traffic. Farmers drove cattle and horses ahead of them. They were allowed to take in as much foreign currency as they possessed, but only three German marks.

Jews were not admitted. Thousands of Alsatian Jews are quartered here.

Factories On Three Shifts

Alsatian arms factories are operating on day and night shifts, but many other factories have shut down, due to lack of raw material or a German decree requiring an eighty-per-cent. increase in wages.

Unemployed Alsatians are given regular meals at German army canteens in exchange for three days' work each week in labor gangs clearing up war damages. Those regularly employed in such gangs receive one mark a day (or a little over 40 cents).

GREECE HELD TO BE ASSURED OF TURKISH AID

Pledge Of Support In Case Of Any Italian Moves Reported

Tension Between Athens And Rome Said To Be Steadily Diminishing

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Greece, Aug. 19—Turkey was reported in informed quarters to have promised Greece today to come to her aid in the event this country is threatened by Italy.

This report was made after the Turkish Minister to Greece called on Premier General John Metaxas.

However, officials remained silent on the significance of the minister's visit.

Italian Press Bitter

A bitter press campaign against pro-British Greece has been under way in Italy since an Albanian patriot, Daut Hoggia, was decapitated near the Albanian-Greek border over a week ago.

Authoritative Italians have insisted Greece has territorial designs on Italian-ruled Albania, and some circles have said Premier Mussolini would demand slices of Greece and Yugoslavia for Albania in a general settlement.

QUICK ACTION BY BOARD AIM OF ROOSEVELT

President Hopes For First Meeting Within A Week's Time

Selection Of Personnel Expected To Be Made By Thursday

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, Aug. 19—Following up the linking of United States and Canadian defenses by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Canada tonight created the new positions of naval and military attaches at Washington.

Capt. Victor G. Brodeur, Pacific coast commander of the Royal Canadian Navy, was appointed naval attache, and Col. H. F. G. Letson, of Vancouver, military attache.

Angus Macdonald, Navy Minister, said the action was not to be interpreted as having resulted from the week-end conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

He added, however, that the naval attache position "is a newly created post and the importance of it in view of recent developments can be stressed by the fact that Captain Brodeur is the second senior officer of the Royal Canadian Navy."

Colonel Letson's appointment as military attache was announced by J. L. Ralston, Defense Minister, without comment.

Hint At Joint Naval Base

The feeling here is that in the selection of the four or five Canadian members of the defense board upon which the Prime Minister and Mr. Roosevelt decided, Canada will be guided by what the United States does.

Navy Minister Macdonald mentioned at a press conference today that Commodore H. E. Reid, naval commander of the Canadian Atlantic coast, was visiting Newfoundland with a party led by C. G. Power, Air Minister. This gave rise to speculation that the harbor situation in Newfoundland would be canvassed for possible establishment there of a joint naval base.

Asked whether some disused United States destroyers might be turned over to the Canadian navy, Macdonald would say only that the Canadian navy had enough personnel to man several more destroyers if they were available.

Tokyo Predicts Grave Results From Accord

Tokyo, Tuesday, Aug. 20 (AP)—Japanese newspapers predicted today that the United States defense agreement with Canada would ultimately cause grave disturbances in the Far East. Political commentators asserted that it was a step closer to active American participation in the European war.

The newspaper Asahi speculated on consequences of the defense agreement if the British Government should be transferred to Canada.

Yomiuri, another paper, said "there is no doubt that disturbed conditions in the Pacific would be increased by the possibility that America might formally enter the conflict."

Defense Board Action Speeded By Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP)—The first meeting of a permanent United States-Canadian board of defense was projected for early next week as President Roosevelt began today the selection of its American members.

By telephone from his home here, Mr. Roosevelt asked State, War and Navy Department officials in Washington to recommend four or five persons, drawn chiefly from the armed forces, to serve on the board with an equal number of Canadians.

There was nothing to indicate whether he would call on the army and navy high command for the personnel, or rely on subordinate officers. But he hoped to complete his choice by Thursday in preparation for the board's initial meeting at a place not yet designated.

Meanwhile, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, left his Beacon (N. Y.) home for a Canadian resort for a two-week vacation. Treasury officials declined to name the place, but asserted the trip had no financial or political significance.

London Hails the News.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Morning newspapers prominently displayed today news of the decision to establish a joint American-Canadian defense board and the Times editorially termed the action "of far-reaching import."

It is not surprising, the Times said at the same time, that the United States is anxious to establish naval and air bases to protect the Panama Canal.

The Times said the suggestion the United States might be given the use of areas suitable for this purpose in the West Indies has "been received sympathetically in this country."

German Comment.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—An Exchange Telegraph Agency dispatch today quoted the German radio station at Bremen as describing the United States-Canadian defense board agreement as "nothing less than the incorporation of Canada into the political system of the United States."

Balkan Dispute Near Stalemate

Rumania Said to Have Refused to Cede Part of Transylvania to Hungary.

TURNU SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Rumania told Hungary at a formal conference today that a Magyar proposal for return of about two-thirds of the disputed border province of Transylvania to Hungary could not even be considered, authoritative quarters reported.

Instead, it was said, Rumanian representatives presented a counter-proposal for a transfer of populations and offered to cede sufficient frontier territory to facilitate the transfer.

Hungary has consistently refused to consider such a plan, and it appeared this noon that efforts to settle the long-standing territorial dispute between the two countries by negotiation would end in a stalemate.

Rumanian Government circles said their own plan had the full backing of Germany, which had been pressing for a speedy settlement.

It thus appeared that the question would be thrown back to Berlin.

A communique issued forty minutes after the delegations reassembled said only that the Rumanians had "explained their position" and that the Hungarians would reply this afternoon.

Meanwhile the Rumanian-Bulgarian conference over Bulgaria's claim to South Dobruja convened at nearby Craiova with every indication of a speedy settlement satisfactory to Bulgaria. It was reliably stated that the only question to be considered concerns the size of the indemnity to be paid and that all of South Dobruja is to be turned back, including Balcic and Silistra.

TURNU-SEVERIN, RUMANIA, AUG. 20-(TUESDAY)-(AP)-DEADLOCKED ON THE DISPUTE OVER TRANSYLVANIA, CHIEFS OF THE RUMANIAN AND HUNGARIAN DELEGATIONS LEFT FOR THEIR HOME CAPITALS EARLY TODAY TO CONSULT WITH THEIR GOVERNMENTS IN AN EFFORT TO PREVENT THE COLLAPSE OF NEGOTIATIONS.

SPOKESMEN FOR BOTH DELEGATIONS SAID THERE REMAINED THE FAINT HOPE OF AGREEMENT, BUT THAT THE POSITIONS OF THE TWO GOVERNMENT ARE STILL POLES APART ON VITAL ISSUES BEING CONSIDERED.

THE DECISION FOR THE DELEGATIONS TO REMAIN HERE WHILE THEIR LEADERS RETURN TO THEIR CAPITALS WAS REACHED AT A SESSION WHICH LASTED FROM LAST NIGHT UNTIL THE EARLY HOURS OF THE MORNING.

MEANWHILE AT NEARBY CRAIOVA, RUMANIAN AND BULGARIAN DELEGATIONS WERE UNDERSTOOD TO BE IN AGREEMENT ON ALL BUT A FEW MINOR POINTS OF THE BULGARIAN DEMAND FOR ALL OF SOUTHERN DOBRUJA.

RUMANIAN NEGOTIATORS, REJECTING HUNGARY'S DEMANDS FOR NEARLY TWO-THIRDS OF THE AGRICULTURALLY RICH PROVINCE, OFFERED COUNTER PROPOSALS WHICH THE HUNGARIANS APPARENTLY REGARDED AS FAR FROM SATISTACTORY.

IN NEGOTIATIONS WITH BULGARIA AT CRAIOVA, HOWEVER, THERE APPEARED EVERY INDICATION THAT AN AGREEMENT WILL BE SPEEDILY CONCLUDED BY WHICH RUMANIA WILL ACCEDE TO VIRTUALLY ALL BULGARIAN DEMANDS AND YIELD A GOOD SECTION OF THE SOUTHERN DOBRUJA.

THE HUNGARIANS PROMISED A REPLY TO THE RUMANIAN PROPOSALS THIS AFTERNOON, BUT THE DRAFTING OF THEIR ANSWER TOOK SO LONG THE SECOND MEETING HAD TO BE POSTPONED.

LONDON PAPERS SCORE CENSOR

Criticize Delay in Reports to U. S. and Canada.

DISPATCHES HELD UP 9 HOURS

Editorials State That German Lies Were Able to Gain Attention.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The censor's nine-hour delay of descriptions of Friday's air battles in the London area from transmission to the United States and Canada drew editorial protests today from the Times and the Daily Telegraph.

The papers asserted that what they called "lying" German accounts should not be allowed to gain the main attention in the press across the Atlantic for lack of news from Britain.

The Daily Telegraph used the caption "The Lie Must Not Win Again" and termed the delay in releasing the news for transmission a "grave error."

"There should be no such delay in organizing a counter-offensive to the blitzkrieg of lies," it added.

The Times said "lies should not have the field to themselves even for an hour." It complained that American correspondents were prevented from cabling their stories "until a ridiculously late hour."

News Before 'All Clear.'

News of yesterday's raids went North America even before the "clear" signal was sounded.

The Daily Telegraph said "the Associated Press . . . filed its first dispatch on Friday at 12:23 P. M. Six others on attempted raids, all giving the facts and showing how German raiders were driven back, were filed later.

"None of these was released until 9:22 P. M., nine minutes after the official account was issued to the press . . . some time after the last editions of American evening newspapers had gone to press."

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said that Associated Press dispatches on the Friday raid "are a fair account of events, containing no information that in any way could aid the enemy." It was not the Ministry of Information who were to blame. The trouble lay in the absurd system of co-ordinations between the Ministry, the service departments, and the Ministry of Home Security. Administrative anarchy!"

Home Guards Shoot Nazi Bomber Down

CHURCHILL SPEAKS ON WAR TOMORROW

He May Discuss U. S. Talks on Naval Bases.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill will make his first full public review of British foreign relations since he assumed office on May 11 in a statement on the progress of the war to the House of Commons tomorrow.

Informed quarters considered it likely that he would mention the talks between Washington and London regarding acquisition by the United States of naval and air bases in British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

They also believed he would refer to former President Hoover's suggestion that food be allowed to pass through British blockade to German-occupied countries on the Continent.

These spokesmen said that if any such request was made officially to the British Government the answer would be "no," based on the contention Germany must accept full responsibility for feeding populations under her control.

The Manchester Guardian called on Mr. Churchill to "consider" an appeal to India and to British representatives there "to make a supreme effort to remove the obstacles that thwart co-operation." It also urged a statement of Britain's peace aims, declaring "it is time that the peoples of Europe should have some knowledge of the intentions of the British Government."

The statement added that an American company, formed for the purpose, would increase its reserve stocks from 150,000 tons, as agreed upon June 29 to 330,000 tons "for shipment so far as may be possible before December, 1941, at a price F. O. B. of 17 to 18½ cents a pound."

The British pilot was about to land a comparatively slow-moving Anson trainer plane when the German bomber machine-gunned him.

Spectators watched the two planes maneuver in a moonlit sky, then collide and crash interlocked.

Whether the ramming was intentional, "we will never know," the Air Ministry said.

Duke Sees His Job in Bahamas

Doubts British Government Expects Him to Be Good-will Envoy to Americas.

NASSAU, Aug 19 (A. P.).—The Duke of Windsor believes the British Government sent him here to administer Bahamian affairs and not to act as a good-will ambassador to the Americas. He said so in reply to a question when he and the Duchess received American newspaper men for the first time since his inauguration as Governor of the Bahamas on Saturday.

"I very much doubt the British Government had in mind that my present duties would extend beyond the Bahamas at this time," the former King commented.

The Windsors arrived in the middle of the heat wave that always precedes the rainy season here, and the Duchess was so worn after the trying induction ceremonies that she was unable to accompany Edward to services at the 180-year-old Christ Church Cathedral yesterday.

They met about thirty reporters or photographers in the formal gardens of Government House in the late afternoon, however, and chatted for an hour.

Political talk was avoided for the most part.

Both the Duke and Duchess expressed regret that they did not come through New York on their way here, but said they were looking forward to a visit to the United States.

The trip hasn't been planned yet, but when the couple visits New York, the Duke said, he and his ranch near Calgary, Canada.

"That's the only property I own in the world now, you know," the Duke said.

Langtry, Tex., Would Aid Kin of Lily Langtry

Bids British Actress's Daughter Accept Haven From Nazis

LANGTRY, Tex., Aug. 19 (AP).—This southwest Texas ranch town offered today a haven from German bombs to the duaghter and granddaughter of Lily Langtry, English stage beauty for whom it was named.

Postmaster Harold Dodd cabled Lady Ivan Malcolm, daughter of the famous actress of the 90s: "Langtry's 200 citizens would be godparents to you and Lady Mary Bartless of London."

The cable was sent to Port Alloch, Kilmartin, Argyllshire, England.

Mr. Dodd recalled that "our Judge Roy Bean, who was the law west of the Pecos, named the town in honor of your beautiful mother," adding that "he would have wanted us to offer refuge to the daughter of the actress he so admired."

Judge Bean, who dealt frontier justice during the 1880's and '90s, never saw the Jersey Lily, but he was born on the Island of Jersey. He corresponded with her, however, and plastered her pictures on the walls of his combination saloon and courtroom.

When Lily Langtry came to America in 1905, she stopped her transcontinental train for a ten-minute visit at Langtry but Judge Bean had died two years before. She was met by a delegation wearing white shirts for the occasion.

Arriving here from Brazil aboard the American Republic Line's steamship Donald McKay, he said South African and American diamonds cutters could not meet the demand in the United States alone.

He said many refugees from Belgium and Holland converted their possessions into diamonds when they fled, but that many lost their stones when searched by border guards.

Germany Will Transfer Consul Probe Target

Welles Advised Dr. Friedrich Reed Will Be Shifted Because Of Investigation

Washington, Aug. 19 (AP)—Germany has advised the United States that Dr. Friedrich Reed, one of its consuls in New York, was being transferred from this country as a result of the State Department's investigation of his activities.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, announced today that he had been advised of the proposed transfer by the German Embassy.

Reed recently came to this country from Brazil where his activities had proved objectionable to authorities. As a result, the State Department was asked by the non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League to investigate him. It was understood that Reed would become consul general at Kobe, Japan.

Uninformed Danger From Mines

New York, Aug. 19 (AP)—Passengers aboard the United States refugee steamer American Legion are unaware of Germany's warning that the ship is proceeding through dangerous, newly mined waters at its own risk, Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, informed the Associated Press this afternoon in a wireless message from the ship.

Responding to an inquiry made Saturday, when Germany issued the warning, Mrs. Harriman's message read:

"Your message first intimation of newly mined area. No one aboard informed."

The ship left Petsamo, Finland, last Friday, and is now entering the neighborhood of British waters which the Germans said are perilous.

AMERICAN LEGION IN NAZI MINE AREA

But Welles Says Transport Is Taking Safest Course.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The United States Army transport American Legion bearing American refugees and others from Europe was said today by Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State, to be taking the safest course that could be determined by the Navy and War departments.

Mr. Welles said he had had no direct word today from the ship, which was presumed to be in or near the area north of Scotland—an area which the German Government declared was dangerous.

The navy, Mr. Welles said, is in constant communication with naval attaches on the other side of the Atlantic regarding the repatriation voyage which has led the German Government to disclaim all responsibility should the transport enter mine-strewn waters.

In reply to notice from Germany that the ship was taking a dangerous course the United States has informed Berlin that it expects the vessel "will not suffer molestation."

Mr. Welles, asked at his press conference why it was necessary for the American Legion to travel so far south on its way from Petsamo, Finland, said he could not discuss technical questions. But, he declared, the course was charted by army and navy authorities after fullest consideration of all factors and it was decided that it was taking the safest course that could be found.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 19--(AP)-UNOFFICIAL CALCULATIONS TONIGHT PLACED THE REFUGEE SHIP AMERICAN LEGION IN OR NEAR BRITISH WATERS WHERE GERMANY EXPRESSED CONCERN OVER "MINES WE CANNOT CONTROL." DR. WILHELM TANNENBURG OF THE GERMAN EMBASSY HERE SUMMONED A PRESS CONFERENCE TO EXPRESS ASSURANCE "THAT GERMAN MILITARY AUTHORITIES WILL NOT IN ANY WAY--EVEN UNINTENTIONALLY--THREATEN THE AMERICAN LEGION" BUT TO RENEW A WARNING "ABOUT THE DANGER OF MINES." ABOARD THE ARMY TRANSPORT, THE 897 PASSENGERS, MOSTLY AMERICANS, APPARENTLY WERE IGNORANT OF THE SITUATION. REPLYING TO AN INQUIRY SENT SATURDAY, WHEN THE ORIGINAL WARNING WAS ISSUED IN BERLIN, MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN, MINISTER TO NORWAY, WIRELESSED THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FROM THE SHIP:

30.24-4435

"YOUR MESSAGE FIRST INTIMATION OF NEWLY-MINED AREA. NO ONE ABOARD INFORMED."

NAVY OFFICIALS DECLINED TO DISCUSS THE SITUATION ABOARD THE VESSEL OR EVEN TO REPORT ITS POSITION. UNOFFICIALLY, HOWEVER, IT WAS CALCULATED THAT IF THE SHIP IS TRAVELLING AT NORMAL SPEED AND THE WEATHER IS FAVORABLE, IT SHOULD BE APPROACHING OR ALREADY WITHIN THE "DANGER ZONE." IT LEFT PETSAMO, FINLAND, FRIDAY NIGHT.

NAVY RECORDS DISCLOSED, MEANWHILE, THAT IN DECLINING TO ALTER THE SHIP'S COURSE THE GOVERNMENT WAS ACTING IN LINE WITH A PREVIOUS BRITISH WARNING THAT SHIPPING SHOULD SKIRT SCOTLAND CLOSELY TO AVOID MINES BETWEEN THE ORKNEY ISLANDS AND ICELAND.

ROUTINE BULLETINS OF THE HYDROGRAPHIC OFFICE DISCLOSED THAT ON JULY 22, THREE DAYS BEFORE THE AMERICAN LEGION SAILED FROM NEW YORK FOR PETSAMO, THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED THAT THE WATERS BETWEEN THE ORKNEYS AND ICELAND WERE DANGEROUS "OWING TO MINES."

THE BRITISH ANNOUNCEMENT, AS REPORTED BY HYDROGRAPHIC OFFICE, GAVE THESE INSTRUCTIONS TO SHIPPING GENERALLY:

"ALL VESSELS WISHING TO PROCEED TO EUROPEAN PORTS FROM THE ATLANTIC BY WATERS BETWEEN THE SHETLANDS AND THE COAST OF GREENLAND SHOULD APPROACH THE NORTH SEA SOUTH OF THE LATITUDE OF NORTH RONA, AND PASS BETWEEN NORTH RONA AND CAPE WRATH, AND THENCE BY DIRECT ROUTE THROUGH PENTLAND FIRTH TO KIRKWALL FOR FURTHER ROUTING INSTRUCTIONS. X X X

"VESSELS WISHING TO PASS INTO THE ATLANTIC FROM FINNISH AND RUSSIAN ARCTIC PORTS SHOULD PROCEED TO KIRKWALL FOR ROUTING INSTRUCTIONS, KEEPING TO WESTWARD OF LONGITUDE 1°30" WEST, WHEN (CQ) SOUTH OF LATITUDE 70° NORTH.

"VESSELS DISOBEYING THESE TRAFFIC INSTRUCTIONS DO SO AT THEIR PERIL."

(KIRKWALL IS IN THE ORKNEY ISLANDS OFF THE NORTHERN COAST OF SCOTLAND.)

WHETHER THE AMERICAN LEGION COMPLIED WITH THESE INSTRUCTIONS ON THE VOYAGE TO PETSAMO OR PURSUED A SPECIAL COURSE TO WHICH THE BRITISH AGREED HAS NOT BEEN DISCLOSED OFFICIALLY.

A STATEMENT BY THE GERMAN EMBASSY YESTERDAY SAID THAT THIS GOVERNMENT HAD INDICATED THE OUT-BOUND VOYAGE WAS BY WAY OF ICELAND. RELIABLE AMERICAN CIRCLES ALSO REPORTED THAT THE TRANSPORT TOOK AN OUTWARD COURSE FARTHER NORTH.

ONE EXPLANATION MIGHT BE THAT MINING OPERATIONS NEAR ICELAND WERE INCOMPLETE AT THE TIME.

SUMNER WELLES, ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE, REITERATED AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY THAT THE VESSEL'S PRESENT COURSE WAS THE SAFEST. HE DID NOT DISCUSS THE REASONS FOR THIS CONCLUSION BUT SAID IT HAD BEEN REACHED AFTER PROTRACTED CONSIDERATION BY ARMY AND NAVY AUTHORITIES.

AUG 20 1940

DR. TANNENBERG DISAGREED, HOWEVER, CONTENDING THAT A COURSE NORTH OR SOUTH OF ICELAND WOULD BE SAFER.

BOSTON, AUG 19-(AP)-A 19-YEAR-OLD PORTSMOUTH, N.H., YOUT TRAINING FOR EVENTUAL COMMAND OF A SHIP IN THE MERCHANT MARINE WAS DISCLOSED TONIGHT TO BE ABOARD THE REFUGEE SHIP AMERICAN LEGION.

THREE MASSACHUSETTS FAMILIES SAID THEY BELIEVED RELATIVES WERE ON THE SHIP.

E.CURTIS MATTHEWS, JR.,M OF PORTSMOUTH, SAID HIS SON, JOHN H. ONE OF FOUR CADETS TRAINING IN A FOUR-YEAR MARITIME COMMISSION COURSE FOR MERCHANT MARINE RATINGS, WAS MAKING HIS THIRD TRIP ABORAD THE AMERICAN LEGION.

JOSEPH AND PAUL BERLO, GARDNER, MASS., SAID ANOTHER PASSENGER ABOARD THE TRANSPORT WAS THEIR BROTHER, THE REV. CHRISTOPHER BERLO, ABOUT 32, A PASSIONIST MISSIONARY WHO HAD BEEN STATIONED NEAR VIENNA.

ANOTHER PASSENGER WAS SAID TO BE ERIC POKKI, A FINNISH SOLDIER WHO FOUGHT IN THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN. A COUSIN, HARVEY POKKI, LIVES AT TEMPLETON, MASS.

WILLIAM PEDERS, A NATIVE OF GARDNER, MASS., WHO HAS OPERATED A PHOTOGRAPHIC STOP AT BERGEN, NORWAY, WAS IDENTIFIED BY HIS BROTHER, FRED PEDERSEN (CQ) AT GARDNER, AS STILL ANOTHER PASSENGER.

FRED SAID WILLIAM HAD DROPPED THE LAST TWO LETTERS OF THE FAMILY NAME.

SENATE APPROVES CHILDREN'S SHIPS

Germans Must Assure Safe Passage for Them.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—The Senate approved unanimously today legislation to permit American ships to remove child refugees from war zones.

The bill already passed the House and now goes back to that body for action on minor Senate amendments.

As passed by the Senate the bill would permit unarmed and unconvoyed American vessels to transport from war zones children under 16 years old provided safe conduct was promised by belligerents. Heretofore, American vessels have been barred by United States law from visiting war zones.

Every child brought to this country would be required to be sponsored by some American person or corporation so that he would not become a public charge.

There was little discussion of the measure beyond a routine explanation by Senator Green, Democrat, of Rhode Island, and a statement by Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, that the foreign relations committee was completely and enthusiastically unanimous in its approval.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, however, commented:

"I do not believe that safe conduct as guaranteed by Adolf Hitler is worth anything. The nation or the man who relies on Mr. Hitler's word for anything indeed has sweetbreads for brains."

Terming Hitler a man who imagines himself a werewolf, Mr. Ashurst asserted that the German Fuehrer would send the refugee children to be devoured by the monsters of the deep, if he could thereby advance himself or his views one inch.

Accord Links Canada To Pan American Plan

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 19—The new defensive arrangement between the United States and Canada may point the way for a system of mutual assistance pacts throughout the Western Hemisphere.

The twenty-one American nations laid the basis for such a system among themselves at the recent Havana conference of foreign ministers and the joint defense board to be set up by the United States and Canada is expected in informed quarters to establish the form of agreements to be sought.

Linked With Canada

The Havana conference adopted a reciprocal assistance agreement under which, in event of threats to the security of any of the American nations or the hemisphere as a whole, the various countries would consult on the actual form of aid to be given.

This envisaged a series of bilateral or multilateral military agreements.

Authority Questioned

Canada, however, did not participate in the Havana conference. The agreement reached by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King to set up a joint board thus was tantamount to linking Canada directly with the continental defense plan of the Pan-American group.

Some persons questioned the President's authority to make a binding agreement without Senate approval, but indorsers took the view that the agreement did not constitute a formal treaty.

Welles Backs Move

Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, expressed the personal opinion that Senate ratification was not required and that the President was acting entirely within his province as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy and the executive officer in charge of foreign relations.

Welles also asserted to his pres conference that the other American republics were being constantly and fully informed on all matters relating to hemisphere defense.

The joint defense board was expected to act only in an advisory capacity.

Senators Approve

Members of Congress expressed general approval of the defense agreement.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said the President and Mackenzie King were to be congratulated on their foresight.

"This agreement," he told reporters, "is the natural evolution of proposals to defend the Western Hemisphere against totalitarian ideals and invasions."

Senator Edward R. Burke (Dem., Neb.), coauthor of the pending compulsory military service bill, said he was "heartily in favor" of the defense agreement.

Holt Fears Involvement

"I think we should have a perfect and complete understanding with Canada for the defense of North America," he said.

Senator Rush D. Holt (Dem., W. Va.), often critical of the Administration's foreign policies, contended that any defense agreement between the United States and Canada should include an understanding that the Canadians "shouldn't be allowed to involve us in war" by moving the seat of the British Government and the British royal family there.

Committee Okays 2-Ocean Navy Bill

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 19—The Senate Appropriations Committee approved today a $5,008,169,277 appropriation bill providing funds for the beginning of construction on a "two-ocean" navy and for equipping an army of 1,200,000 men.

The committee acted while on the Senate floor there began another week of sharp debate on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. Differences between Senate and House drafts of legislation authorizing mobilization of the National Guard delayed final Congressional action on that measure.

The Appropriations Committee increased by $45,017,320 the direct appropriations and contract authority previously approved by the House in the $5,008,000,000 supplemental defense measure. Of this amount, $34,507,320 was in cash outlays, including an item of $7,000,000 for armor equipment and ammunition for new aircraft. An additional $15,000,000 in contract authority was made available for plane armament.

Included in the increases was $1,985,000 for additional facilities at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Communiques of Belligerents

British

LONDON, Aug. 19 (AP).—A War Office communique:

The original Allied dispositions in Somaliland were based upon a operation. Under this scheme the operation. Under this cheme the French forces at Djibouti were to hold the right flank, the pivot of the whole position.

With the sudden secession of the French government from participation in further hostilities, a new and grave situation was created. More than half of the available Allied force had been neutralized and it became immediately necessary to decide upon the most effective measures for dealing with the emergency.

Various alternatives were open to us. We could reinforce the British Somaliland in sufficient strength to insure its safety, but to do so would have involved employing important reserves and thereby weakening reserves in other theaters of war, more important to our immediate war effort than Somaliland. The time was also a serious consideration. This plan was, therefore, reluctantly abandoned.

"Another alternative was immediate and unresisting evacuation. This meant giving up British territory without fighting and thereby losing the opportunity of inflicting losses on the enemy in men and material which will be difficult for him to replace.

A third course was to remain with our small force, using it to inflict the maximum losses on the enemy until withdrawal became inevitable.

This third course was chosen, and the evacuation of Somaliland has now been successfully completed.

"Our force has been withdrawn. All guns except two which were lost in the earlier stages of the action have been embarked. A great part of the material stores and equipment has also been evacuated, and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away.

The British, Rhodesian, Indian, African and Somali troops, working in closest co-operation with the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force, have carried out the role assigned to them with conspicuous skill and bravery against greatly superior strength.

Enemy losses, particularly among the Black Shirt units, have been heavy and out of all proportion to our own.

An Air Ministry communique:

Our bombers last night again bombed Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin. Other aircraft attacked the aluminum works at Bad Rheinfelden and the chemical works at Waldshut near the German-Swiss frontier. Buildings were wrecked by direct hits and left in flames. Airdromes at Freiburg and Hamsheim, near Mulhouse, were heavily damaged.

Aircraft of the coastal command pressed home another successful attack on Boulogne Harbor in the face of intense searchlight activity, and heavy anti-aircraft fire.

All of our aircraft returned.

Another Air Ministry communique:

Reports have now been received of the destruction of three more German bombers yesterday, bringing the total up to 144. Two of these were shot down by Blenheim aircraft of the coastal command. The third was destroyed by the sergeant pilot of an unarmed Anson aircraft of training command. Whether he intentionally rammed the raider will never be known. The two aircraft collided and fell to the ground interlocked.

Today's enemy activities over this country have been on a minor scale. Only intermittent attacks have been attempted by aircraft operating in small numbers. Damage by bombs was done to houses in a town in Essex and to a village in Norfolk. A dock in South Wales was attacked, but the damage was confined to an oil tank, which was set on fire. Several R. A. F. airdromes were also attacked. There were a number of casualties.

Reports so far confirm that four enemy bombers have been shot down by our fighters.

An earlier Air Ministry communique:

Full reports of yesterday's air fighting establish that, in all, 141 enemy aircraft were destroyed. One hundred twenty-six of these were shot down by our fighters, thirteen by anti-aircraft fire and two by searchlight crews. Twenty-two of our fighters were lost, but the pilots of ten of them are safe.

Another Air Ministry communique:

During the last seven days of fighting fighter command pilots have shot down 513 Nazi raiders, of which 377 were bombers or fighter bombers, or 73 per cent of the enemy's losses.

Twenty-two British fighters were lost yesterday, but twelve of the pilots are safe. This figure of twelve marks an addition of two to t's afternoon's communique.

Another Air Ministry communique:

Later information confirms that, in general, little damage was done in the raid on this country yesterday evening. A number of high explosive bombs, however, which fell on a town in southeast England, damaged some houses and caused a small number of casualties, some being fatal.

During last night enemy air activity was not on a large scale, but bombs were dropped at a number of points in England and South Wales. Little damage was done and few people sustained injuries.

A Home Security Ministry communique:

The Ministry of Home Security has made an order bringing the whole of Great Britain within the scope of the defense regulation No. 16-A.

The effect of this is to give the regional commissioners in England, Scotland and Wales authority, subject to the control and direction of the Minister of Home Security, to issue any directions or orders required for the purposes of defense within their respective areas.

The commissioners will act in close co-operation with the military authorities.

The new order is a precautionary measure. It places no fresh restrictions on public freedom, but it does enable any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landing by air or sea to be introduced without delay in any part of the country in which they are required.

The directions which have already been issued under previous defense areas orders are not affected by the new order. These directions relate to the control of movement, curfew, access to beaches, etc., in specified districts.

CAIRO, Aug. 19 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

Royal Air Force bombers raided the Addis Ababa military airdrome. Direct hits were registered on four hangars. A petrol fire was started as the result of the bombing. All our aircraft returned safely.

Numerous bombing raids and reconnaissance flights were made in Somaliland with the object of breaking up convoys of motorized vehicles and harassing troops advancing on Berbera. Considerable damage was done to enemy formations.

One of our aircraft was shot down by enemy fighters, one member of the crew making a parachute descent.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (AP).—A high command communique:

The air force, as already partly reported in a special announcement Aug. 18, had new big successes. German air units effectively attacked vital war objectives in southern and central England, such as industrial plants, railways and anti-aircraft positions, and, above all, airports around London and in the counties of Kent and Hampshire.

Bombarding ship targets in the Channel, we succeeded in sinking a 4,000-ton merchant vessel and damaging another seriously.

Fierce air fights developed at several points, in the course of which our destroyer and pursuit planes inflicted severe losses on the enemy.

In the course of last night, fighting planes bombed large gasoline stores east of London, armament plants in Norwich and Essex, port facilities at Milford-Haven, Havenmouth, Bournemouth and Weymouth, as well as several airports in south England and near Liverpool.

Big fires and heavy explosions were observed at all points which were attacked. Several ships were hit in ports.

British planes last night dropped bombs in western and southern Germany, causing immaterial damage.

Our opponents' losses yesterday amounted to 147 planes. One hundred and twenty-four were bagged in air fights, twenty-three destroyed on the ground or shot down by anti-aircraft fire. In addition, thirty-three barrier balloons were destroyed.

Thirty-six German airplanes are missing.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 19 (AP).—A high command communique:

In British Somaliland, Italian troops have broken the second British defense line and captured Lafaruk. Leaving it behind, they are pursuing the enemy, who are retreating to their ships. These ships are being constantly hammered by our bombers. One British plane was shot down by our fighters.

In North Africa the Italian air force effectively bombed the airport of Sidi Barrani, as well as encampments and armored cars southeast of Sollum. All our planes returned safely.

An enemy raid on Kassala caused neither victims nor material damage. Another raid on Addis Ababa caused two deaths and five wounded. Bombs struck two hangars containing some old equipment.

The enemy carried out raids on Milan. Three bombs hit a private dwelling house and other bombs fell on the open fields. Other bombs on Cuneo and Turin caused some insignificant damage. There were no victims.

The usual leaflets also were dropped.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS BEGAN PUBLISHING STORIES ABOUT IT. NOW THEY ARE "TO CLAIM IT FOR THE ENGLISH IS NOT TO COMMIT THE INSOLENT STUPIDITY OF CLAIMING THAT THE ENGLISH ARE BRAVER THAN OTHER NATIONS," THE TIMES SAID IN AN EDITORIAL EXPRESSING THE BELIEF IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO MAKE THE GERMANS UNDERSTAND JUST WHAT "DAS ENGLISCHE PHLEGMA" MEANS UNTIL THE NAZIS ARE BEATEN.

I SAW PLENTY OF THIS SANGFROID DURING VISITS TO THE SUBURBAN FRINGES OF LONDON SUNDAY, WHEN HITLER'S BOMBING PLANES TRIED TO PENETRATE THE METROPOLITAN AIR DEFENSES.

IN A COMMUNITY WHERE THE RAIDERS BOMBED A RAILWAY TICKET OFFICE AND A ROW OF HOUSES LAST FRIDAY PEOPLE HAD CLEARED AWAY THE DEBRIS FROM THEIR HOUSES, PATCHED UP WINDOWS WITH LINOLEUM OR BOARDS AND HAD RETURNED CALMLY TO THE ROUTINE OF THEIR LIVES.

IN FRONT OF ONE HOUSE WHICH HAD BEEN HALF DEMOLISHED A MAN WAS TAKING UP A COLLECTION FROM SIGHTSEERS FOR THE BENEFIT OF AIR RAID VICTIMS. JUST TO BE SURE HE WAS ON THE LEVEL A POLICEMAN DEMANDED HIS CREDENTIALS. THE MAN SHOWED HIS PAPERS AND WAS ALLOWED TO CONTINUE.

DRIVING THROUGH THE COUNTRYSIDE OVER WHICH WARPLANES [illegible]EEN STREAKING IN ONE OF THE GREATEST AERIAL BATTLES OF THE [illegible]HE PEOPLE I SAW ACTED NO MORE EXCITED THAN IF IT WERE PEACETIME.

LATER A LONE FIGHTER WHICH APPARENTLY HAD BEEN DELAYED BY A DOGFIGHT CAME TEARING ALONG TO REJOIN THE SQUADRON. A GROUP OF RECRUITS DRILLING ALONG THE ROAD RAISED A CHEER.

SUN-TANNED YOUNGSTERS CYCLED ALONG THE ROAD UNMINDFUL OF THE WAR AND GIVING THE SKY ONLY AN OCCASIONAL GLANCE. COUPLES ON TANDEM BICYCLES PEDALED BY VIGOROUSLY, CARRYING HAMPERS OF FOOD FOR A PICNIC OUTING IN A NEARBY PARK.

I HALTED FOR A CHAT AT THE HOME OF SOME FRIENDS IN ANOTHER COMMUNITY NEAR AN AIRDROME WHICH HAD BEEN BOMBED LAST WEEK. MOST OF THE CONVERSATION WAS ABOUT CHICKEN RAISING--WHICH THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE HAD TAKEN UP, ABOUT THE GARDEN WHICH HAD PRODUCED NINE VEGETABLES FOR THE SUNDAY DINNER, AND ABOUT THE LATEST MUSICAL COMEDY AND THE HOT WEATHER.

IT WAS MENTIONED INCIDENTALLY THAT TWO DAYS BEFORE A SPLINTER FROM AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELL HAD FALLEN ON THE ROOF OF THE HOUSE, HITTING THE CHIMNEY POT.

BACK IN LONDON THERE WAS THE USUAL SUNDAY CALM ABOUT TOWN, WHICH AN AIR RAID WARNING AT DINNER TIME FAILED TO UPSET.

EMERGING FROM AN UNDERGROUND STATION LATER IN THE EVENING I FOUND ANOTHER WARNING ON. AS RAILWAY ATTENDANTS SHUT GATES IN THE TUBES PASSENGERS WALKED ALONG WITHOUT INCREASING THEIR PACE AS THOUGH SHUTTING THE GATES WERE AN EVERY DAY EVENT.

SUBURBAN ELECTRIC TRAINS CONTINUED TO OPERATE DURING THE RAID AND MINE PULLED OUT EXACTLY ON SCHEDULE.

BUT BRITISH ROUTED

ZEPPELINS (600) (MINNEAPOLIS NOTE)

BY GEORGE W.TURNER

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK,AUG 19-(AP)-GERMAN RAIDS FROM THE AIR ON LONDON ARE NO NEW EXPERIENCE. DURING THE WORLD WAR THE KAISER'S AIRMEN STRAFED THE METROPOLIS AND OTHER PARTS OF ENGLAND, CAUSING CONSIDERABLE LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY DAMAGE.

FROM 1914 TO 1918, GIANT DIRIGIBLES--THE ZEPPELINS--AND NEWLY DEVISED FIGHTING PLANES OF VARIOUS DESCRIPTIONS, DROPPED NEARLY 9,000 BOMBS, KILLING ABOUT 1,600 PERSONS AND INJURING 4,000.

MOST OF THE CASUALTIES WERE AMONG CIVILIANS. THERE WERE 643 AIRCRAFT ENGAGED IN THE RAIDS, A SMALL NUMBER COMPARED WITH GOERING'S ARMADA OF TODAY.

THE AIR INDUSTRY WAS IN ITS INFANCY THEN; IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THAT AIR MACHINES WERE USED IN A MAJOR WAR. AT FIRST, DEATH RAINING FROM THE SKIES WAS A TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE, BUT AS THE YEARS ROLLED JOHN BULL TOOK IT AS A MATTER OF COURSE.

THEN, AS NOW, THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND GAVE ADVANCE NOTICE OF THEIR INTENTIONS. PROPHECIES CONCERNING THE DESTRUCTION TO BE INFLICTED BY THE ZEPPELINS WERE PARTICULARLY DIRE, CALCULATED TO SPREAD FEAR IN ENEMY COUNTRIES.

BUT, AS IT TURNED OUT, THE GREAT DIRIGIBLES CONSTRUCTED BY COUNT ZEPPELIN, DID NOT MEASURE UP TO EXPECTATIONS AND THE BRITISH EVENTUALLY ROUTED THEM.

EFFECTIVE DEFENSE MEASURES ON LAND WERE DEVISED; SEARCHLIGHTS AT NIGHT PIERCES THE SKIES OVER LONDON AND INTREPID BRITISH AIRMEN FOUGHT SPECTACULAR BATTLES, BRINGING MANY OF THE MONSTERS TO EARTH IN FLAMES.

30.24 - 4441

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK--FIRST ADD AIR RAIDS ENGLAND BY GERMANY NOT NEW BY TURNER X X X IN FLAMES.

ON SOME OCCASIONS, AT NIGHT, SPECTATORS STOOD IN THE STREETS OF LONDON WATCHING, WITH AWE, THE PROGRESS OF THE CONFLICT.

COUNT FERDINAND ZEPPELIN, WHO, INCIDENTALLY, SERVED AS A VOLUNTEER IN THE UNION ARMY IN THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR AND MADE HIS FIRST BALLOON ASCENT IN THIS COUNTRY, HAD GREAT FAITH IN THE AIRSHIPS BEARING HIS NAME.

TO POPULARIZE THEM, THE GERMAN CROWN PRINCE MADE A TRIP IN THE LZ-3. IT WAS TAKEN OVER BY THE KAISER'S ARMY AND RENAMED THE Z-1. BASES TO HOUSE THESE WARSHIPS OF THE AIR WERE SECRETLY CONSTRUCTED AT HELIGOLAND AND FRIEDRICHSHAVEN.

DISASTER FOLLOWED DISASTER BEFORE A SERVICEABLE "ZEP", FOR WAR PURPOSES, WAS PRODUCED IN 1913. ONE OF THEM, THE LZ-4, WAS DESTROYED IN A THUNDERSTORM AND THE GERMAN PEOPLE RAISED A GREAT SUM, BY POPULAR SUBSCRIPTION, TO REPLACE IT.

WHEN THE WORLD WAR BROKE OUT, GERMANY HAD THIRTY ZEPPELINS READY FOR SERVICE AND CLAIMED ONE COULD BE PRODUCED EVERY THREE WEEKS.

THERE WAS SOME APPREHENSION IN ALLIED COUNTRIES AS TO THE DAMAGE THEY MIGHT DO, ESPECIALLY AS THE GERMANS BOASTED OF THEIR INTENDED INVASIONS OF ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

THERE WERE EARLY RECONNAISSANCES OVER THE NORTH SEA AND THEN FLIGHTS WERE MADE OVER ENGLAND. THERE WERE 23 "ZEP" RAIDS IN 1915. TEN PRODUCED NO CASUALTIES BUT 177 PERSONS WERE KILLED IN THE OTHERS A RAID OVER LONDON ON OCT. 13 WAS THE MOST SERIOUS, CAUSING 56 DEATHS.

ONE OF THE GREAT INDIVIDUAL EXPLOITS OF THE WAR OCCURRED IN JUNE, 1915, WHEN SUB-LIEUTENANT R.A.J.WARNEFORD, OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE, ENGAGED A ZEPPELIN, THE LZ-37, SINGLE-HANDED BETWEEN GHENT AND BRUSSELS AND DESTROYED IT IN A FURIOUS BATTLE. FOR THIS FEAT HE WAS AWARDED THE VICTORIA CROSS.

LATER, IN 1916, ANOTHER BRITISH FLIER, LIEUT.W.L.ROBINSON, ATTACKED A ZEPPELIN ALONE OVER MIDDLESEX AND BROUGHT IT TO EARTH, A FLAMING MASS.

DURING 1915, FOURTEEN ZEPPELINSIWERE EITHER LOST OR DAMAGED BEYOND REPAIR. ONE DISAPPEARED IN A VIOLENT STORM AND NEVER WAS HEARD FROM AGAIN. MEANWHILE, THE GERMANS HAD CONSTANTLY MADE IMPROVEMENTS TO MAKE THEM LESS VULNERABLE AND FASTER.

COMMANDER MATHAY, OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, WAS THE MOST PROMINENT OF THE ZEPPELIN COMMANDERS. HE MADE A NUMBER OF RAIDS OVER THE ENGLISH NORTHERN COUNTRIES.

ON MAY 31, 1915 HE FLEW OVER LONDON, DROPPING BOMBS WHICH STARTED 41 FIRES. IN 1916 HE LED FOURTEEN DIRIGIBLES OVER LONDON BUT THEY WERE SCATTERED BY FIRE FROM LAND BATTERIES AND ATTACKS BY BRITISH FLIERS.

IN THE CLOSING YEARS OF THE WAR, ZEPPELIN ATTACKS BECAME RARER AS GERMANY DEVELOPED POWERFUL FIGHTING PLANES.

IN JUNE AND JULY OF 1917, GERMAN WAR PLANES CAUSED SERIOUS DAMAGE ON LONDON. THE GENERAL POST OFFICE WAS SET ON FIRE, MANY BUILDINGS WERE BURNED OR DAMAGED AND THERE WAS HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

AFTER THE WAR, THE REMAINING ZEPPELINS WERE DISMANTLED UNDER THE TERMS OF THE TREATY OF VERSAILLES OR DELIVERED TO THE ALLIES AS WAR INDEMNITY.

(ADVANCE)-SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--SEVERAL HUNDRED YOUNG AMERICANS, EAGER FOR A CRACK AT HITLER, ARE FINISHING OFF THEIR MILITARY TRAINING HERE AGAINST THE DAY WHEN THEY MAY BE CALLED UPON TO HELP BLOCK A GERMAN INVASION.

THEY ARE VOLUNTEERS WHO WENT ACROSS THE BORDER TO JOIN THE SECOND CANADIAN DIVISION WHICH ARRIVED A FEW DAYS AGO AND WENT INTO CAMP IN THIS HEADQUARTERS TOWN.

SOME OF THEM ARE OLD HANDS AT THIS SORT OF THING, HAVE SERVED A STRETCH WITH THE U.S. ARMY OR NAVY, KNOW AS MUCH ABOUT MACHINE GUNS AND BATTLE TACTICS AS THEIR INSTRUCTORS.

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE, THEY ARE HERE BECAUSE THEY LOVE A GOOD FIGHT.

THERE ARE OTHERS, PROFESSED IDEALISTS, WHO TOSSED UP JOBS RANGING FROM BOTANIST TO CARNIVAL BARKER, FROM TEXAS RANGER TO AMBULANCE DRIVER, FROM SODA JERKER TO STENOGRAPHER, TO COME AND "FIGHT FOR DEMOCRACY."

THEN THERE ARE THOSE WHO CAME BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T HAVE A JOB.

I HAVE JUST SPENT A DAY WITH THEM.

A "FIGHTER FOR DEMOCRACY" IS THOMAS J.FIGLIOLA, AMERICAN OF ITALIAN EXTRACTION, WHO WAS EMPLOYED IN THE MISSOURI BOTANICAL GARDENS AT ST.LOUIS BEFORE HE ENLISTED. FIGLIOLA (WHO LIVED AT 2208 ARSNEL STREET) EXPLAINS THAT HE WAS BROUGHT IN ITALY, SAW FASCISM COME IN.

"THEY GIVE YOU CASTOR OIL THERE IF YOU DON'T TURN FASCIST. I DON'T WANT THAT TO HAPPEN IN AMERICA."

SANDY A.GOODWIN, SAYS HE MANAGED THE GOLDEN DOOR CAFE IN CLEVELAND.

EVERYTHING WOULD BE PERFECT WITH PREMATURELY GRAY SANDY IF ONLY IRENE, "THAT'S THE WIFE," AND "THE TWO KIDS" COULD BE HERE. (THEY LIVE AT 3322 WEST 88TH STREET, CLEVELAND.) BUCKINGHAM PALACE, OFTEN MISTAKEN FOR A POSTOFFICE AT FIRST SIGHT, MADE A GREAT IMPRESSION ON HIM.

ALFRED MCNALLY, (2620 WADSWORTH) SAGINAW, MICH., IS STRUCK BY THE "PEACEFUL ATMOSPHERE" HE HAS ENCOUNTERED. FORMERLY A RAILWAY BRAKEMAN, HE DECLARES, "I USED TO BE IN GREATER DANGER ON A CERTAIN MILE DOWNGRADE ON MY RUN THROUGH OHIO."

GOODWIN AGREES. "WHEN I LEFT I TOLD IRENE, 'WELL, YOU'LL BE TAKEN CARE OF FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE.' I DIDN'T THINK I WOULD EVER GET BACK. BUT I'VE CHANGED MY MIND NOW."

AND WHAT DID IRENE SAY? "GO AHEAD, HONEY, IF YOU THINK IT'S THE THING TO DO. AND IF THEY COME OVER HERE I'LL GET A GUN AND FIGHT, TOO."

GOODWIN SAYS HE'S PAID $99 A MONTH, SEVENTY NINE OF WHICH IS SENT DIRECT TO HIS FAMILY. SINGLE MEN GET ABOUT $1.30 A DAY.

HOMESICKNESS HAS HIT MOST OF THE BOYS, BUT ONLY ONE HAD IT BAD ENOUGH TO "WISH TO HELL I WAS BACK THERE AGAIN."

SOME OF THE CANADIANS OBSERVED DISCREETLY OUT OF EARSHOT OF THEIR YANKEE BROTHERS IN ARMS THAT "THESE AMERICANS ARE GIVING US A HELL OF A TIME. THEY ARE SUPREME INDIVIDUALISTS, WON'T TAKE DISCIPLINE, THEN WHEN WE CALL THEM UP ON THE CARPET, THEY'RE CONTRITE. WHAT YOU GOING TO DO?"

ONE AMERICAN WHO ADMITTED HE HAD BEEN IN THE GUARDHOUSE "ABOUT AS MUCH AS ANYONE," REPLIED, "YOU KNOW HOW IT IS WHEN YOU GET DRINKING. I DON'T SEEM TO GET ANY PLEASURE OUT OF ANYTHING ELSE. I GO TO A MOVIE AND COME OUT WITH A DISSATISFIED FEELING."

ROY RUSSELL, FORMER ELECTRIC WELDER, (CASS HOTEL) PONTIAC, MICH., IS SORRY THE MEN HAD TO LEAVE THEIR KILTS BEHIND IN CANADA. SO IS GEORGE W.CAMPBELL, WHO WAS A SECRETARY IN THE PUBLIC WELFARE DEPARTMENT OF CINCINNATI, (431 COLLINS STREET.)

"YOU SHOULDA SEEN US IN THEM THINGS!"

THE ONLY PLAID ON THEIR UNIFORMS NOW IS THE PATCH ON THEIR KHAKI BERETS. THE REST OF THEIR OUTFIT CONSISTS OF KHAKI BATTLE DRESS--A TUNIC AND BAGGY TROUSERS CAUGHT AT THE ANKLE BY A SHORT CANVAS PUTTEE.

ONCE EVERY TWO WEEKS THE MEN ARE ENTERTAINED BY A SHOW PUT ON BY TALENT FROM THE RANKS. THERE'S ALWAYS A HOT SWING BAND AND PLENTY OF VAUDEVILLE LAUGH SKITS WITH PRETTY GIRLS WARBLING IN BETWEEN.

THAT'S ALL RIGHT BUT THAT'S NOT WHAT THESE YANKEES CAME TO ENGLAND FOR. BEFORE THE GERMAN AIR ATTACKS BECAME MORE FREQUENT THEY WERE FED UP WITH THE TRANQUILLITY OF THEIR CAMP. THEY WANT TO INVADE THE CONTINENT INSTEAD OF "WAITING FOR IT TO COME TO US." EACH MAN HAS HIS OWN PET PLAN FOR ACCOMPLISHING THIS PROJECT. THEY DON'T, HOWEVER, EXPECT TO FIND A FIELD MARSHAL'S BATON IN EVERY KNAPSACK.

Penn Traffic 30.24-4443

NEW YORK, AUG. 19--ON A BASIS OF MATHEMATICAL PROBABILITY ADVANCED BY THE BRITISH THEMSELVES, IT IS POSSIBLE--BUT RATHER UNLIKELY--THAT IN 12 DAYS OF BOMBING THE CITADEL OF ENGLAND, GERMAN AIRMEN HAVE TAKEN A TOLL OF FROM 46,000 TO 57,000 CASUALTIES ON THE GROUND.

CENSORSHIP CONTINUES TO VEIL THE DEGREE OF THE PUNISHMENT METED OUT BY THE BOMBERS OF EITHER ENGLAND OR GERMANY IN TERMS OF MATERIAL DAMAGE OR OF CASUALTIES.

IT PROBABLY IS SAFE TO ASSUME THAT THE WOUNDED AND KILLED NUMBER MANY MORE THAN THE BELLIGERENTS CARE TO ADMIT.

THE PROBABILITY CURVE PRESENTED HERE IS SUBJECT TO A LARGE NUMBER OF QUALIFYING FACTORS, AND THE TOTALS ARE PURELY THEORETICAL.

THIS IS THE WAY IT WORKS OUT:

BRITISH AIR RAID PRECUATION BOOKS GENERALLY CIRCULATED AMONG CIVILIANS BEFORE THE WAR WARNED THAT FROM 16 TO 20 PERSONS WERE LIKELY TO BE STRUCK FOR EVERY TON OF BOMBS DROPPED ON TARGETS IN POPULATED AREAS.

THE NUMBER OF PLANES--BOTH BOMBERS AND PROTECTIVE FIGHTERS--EMPLOYED BY GERMANY IN THE INTENSIVE BOMBING OPERATIONS WHICH STARTED AUG. 8 IS SUBJECT TO DISPUTE, BUT AN ARBITRARY AVERAGE OF 600 A DAY WOULD APPEAR TO BE CONSERVATIVE IN LIGHT OF THE ERRATIC CHARACTER OF THE ATTACK.

THE RATIO OF FIGHTERS TO BOMBERS HAS BEEN ROUGHLY 3 TO 2, PRODUCING A FIGURE OF 2,880 BOMBERS FOR THE 12 DAYS. EACH OF THE SWIFT, MEDIUM-SIZE BOMBERS MAY BE ASSUMED TO CARRY A TON OF EXPLOSIVES.

IF EACH PLANE'S BOMB LOAD INFLICTED THE NUMBER OF CASUALTIES ANTICIPATED IN THE AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS MANUALS, FROM 46,080 TO 57,600 PERSONS WOULD HAVE BEEN WOUNDED OR KILLED.

ONE REASON THE FIGURES ARE SUBJECT TO QUALIFICATION IS THAT THE BRITISH INSIST DIRECT HITS ON OBJECTIVES HAVE BEEN AT A PREMIUM. ANOTHER IS THAT, CAUGHT IN INTENSIVE DEFENSE FIRE FROM BRITISH FIGHTING PLANES, RAIDERS FREQUENTLY HAVE DUMPED THEIR BOMB LOADS SHORT OF THEIR OBJECTIVES AND FLED.

STILL ANOTHER IS THE FACT THAT MANY OF THE BOMBERS HAVE CARRIED INCENDIARY BOMBS, TO START FIRES, RATHER THAN THE IMMEDIATELY DESTRUCTIVE DEMOLITION OR GENERAL-PURPOSE TYPE.

ONE BRITISH AUTHORITY, AMONG DOZENS WHO URGED PREPAREDNESS ON THE PUBLIC BEFORE THE WAR, SAID AN ENEMY INTENT ON DELIVERING A "KNOCKOUT BLOW" MIGHT DROP ENOUGH BOMBS TO KILL FROM 50,000 TO 100,000 PERSONS "IN A FEW HOURS."

British Offer Bases To Us, Ask Navy Aid

By HUGH WAGNON

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—Great Britain announced today an "agreement in principle" for United States lease of British island territory from Newfoundland to the Caribbean Sea for construction of air and naval bases to shield the North American Continent.

While declaring that Britain sought no advantage for herself from the offer, Prime Minister Winston Churchill appealed at the same time for "timely reinforcement" of Britain's Navy from the United States—an unspoken but clear reference to her need for filling gaps in her fleet.

He alluded, presumably, to the discussion about the sale to Britain of 50 over-age United States destroyers.

Proud and confident, Churchill thundered for all to hear that the intermingling of British and American interests is a thing "inexorable."

"No one can stop it!" he cried. "Like the Mississippi, it keeps rolling along!

"Let it roll! Let it roll on in full flood, irresistible, to broader lands and better days."

Unprecedented Offer.

Tumult from the House of Commons' steep and crowded benches almost smothered the Prime Minister's last words—just after he had disclosed the unprecedented British offer of the leases, for 99 years, at the conclusion of a long and uncompromising report on the war.

Later, Lord Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, told the House of Lords that "we have agreed in principle" on the question of the leases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Where the bases will be located was not disclosed, but Lord Halifax said the discussions concerned Atlantic islands—presumably Bermuda, various West Indian points and Newfoundland.

The Prime Minister gave "thanks to our friends over there" that Britain has been able to ferry across the Atlantic "an immense mass of munitions of all kinds: cannon, rifles, machineguns, cartridges and shells; all safely landed without the loss of a gun or a round."

Brimful of expressions of confidence in Britain's final triumph, Churchill again and again spoke of "when" — not if — Britain reaches the top of the hill.

British Air Power Grows.

He jeered at Germany's blockade, told the House Britain's air power was overhauling Germany's, declared that Britain was growing less and less vulnerable to invasion, that her capacity for war was rising and that, some day, there would be peace again in a Europe freed from Nazi domination.

It was one of his best oratorical performances—calm and polished yet bursting with exuberance.

Churchill told the House that Britain decided some months ago that her interests and those of the United States both required that the United States have facilities for naval and air defense of the Western Hemisphere.

"We have therefore decided, spontaneously and without being asked or offered any inducement," he said, "to inform the Government of the United States that we should be glad to place such defense facilities at their disposal by leasing suitable sites in our transatlantic possessions for their greater security against unmeasured dangers of the future.

"President Roosevelt has made it clear that he would like to discuss with us and with the Dominion of Canada and with Newfoundland, the development of American naval and air facilities in Newfoundland and the West Indies.

"Undoubtedly, this process means these two great organizations of English-speaking democracies will have to be somewhat mixed together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage.

"For my own part, looking out upon the future, I do not view the process with any misgivings."

"No one can stop it. Like the Mississippi, it just keeps rolling along. Let it roll! Let it roll on full flood, inexorable, irresistible, to broader lands and better days!"

This was his peroration and it brought a rising tide of excitement which finally broke in a flood of cheers.

The Prime Minister flatly turned thumbs down on former President Hoover's proposal that Britain allow food through her blockade to help relieve famine in Nazi-mastered areas of Europe.

Churchill said that some foods can be turned into war materials—fats into explosives, potatoes into motor fuel, milk into aircraft plastics—and declared that if Germany uses what she has of such foodstuffs "to bomb our women and children . . . we may be sure that any imported food would go the same way."

Food With Freedom.

"Let Hitler bear his responsibilities to the full," Churchill added.

"Meanwhile, we can arrange in advance for the speedy entry of food into any part of the enslaved area, when this part has been wholly cleared of German forces and has genuinely regained its freedom."

Churchill found the scales of almost a year of heavy fighting heavier on the side of Britain, announcing to cheers that Britain's production of warplanes now "largely exceeds" that of Germany.

"We have rearmed and rebuilt our armies in a degree which would have been deemed impossible a few months ago . . .

"More than 2,000,000 determined men have rifles and bayonets in their hands tonight, and three-quarters of them are in regular military formations . . .

"Our navy is far stronger than at the beginning of the war . . .

"The seas and oceans are open. The U-boats are contained. The magnetic mine is mastered.

"The merchant tonnage under the British flag . . . is larger than when we began.

"We have, in addition, under our control 7,000,000 tons of shipping from the captive countries.

"Our stocks of foods of all kinds are many times as great as in the days of peace.

"Why do I say all this? Not, assuredly to boast; not to give the slightest countenance to complacency. The dangers we face are still enormous."

He paid tribute to "the splendid—nay, astounding" increase in the output and repair of Britain's fighting planes under Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production.

Churchill opened his report with a military analysis picturing this was merely as a continuation of the last despite "very great differences in its character."

The last war, he said, was a struggle of "prodigious slaughter;" this one, a "conflict of strategy, of organization, of technical operators, science, mechanics and morale."

Only two weeks short of a full year of war, he noted, British killed, wounded and missing, including civilians, are about 92,000 and many of these are prisoners.

On July 3 it was announced in Berlin that German casualties in 10 months of the war were 38,593 killed, 142,960 wounded and 24,168 missing—a total of 206,081.

Prime Minister Turns Down Hoover's Program for Feeding Europe.

FOR BLOCKADE OF CONQUERED

War Report Says Plane Output Exceeds Foe's—British Losses Are Put at 92,000.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The war leadership of Great Britain told Parliament and nation today that agreement in principle had been reached between the British and United States governments on the leasing to the latter of air and naval bases in Britain's Western Hemisphere possessions from Newfoundland to the Caribbean.

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax made the statement regarding the tentative agreement in the House of Lords, after Prime Minister Winston Churchill had disclosed to the House of Commons a British offer of ninety-nine-year leases for the bases.

Lord Halifax spoke in answer to a question, and said that the bases concerned involved Newfoundland, Atlantic islands (perhaps a reference to Bermuda) and West Indian points. He thus indicated that negotiations between Britain and the United States are further advanced than Mr. Churchill had let it be known.

"We have agreed in principle," said the Foreign Secretary, "and I am satisfied that no great difficulty will arise in the discussion of details."

Detailed negotiations, however, have not yet begun, he added.

Asks for Timely Re-enforcement.

In his eighth war statement, one filled with cold confidence, Mr. Churchill declared that Great Britain was not asking for any advantage in return.

However, he did appeal for "timely re-enforcement" of Britain's navy from the United States—a reference to some fifty over-age American destroyers which Britain wants to buy.

In that part of his speech dealing with the bases in America, Mr. Churchill said:

"Some months ago we came to the conclusion that the interests of the United States and of the British Empire both required that the United States should have facilities for the naval and air defense of the Western Hemisphere against the attack of a Nazi Power which might have acquired temporary but lengthy control of a large part of western Europe and its resources.

No Inducement Offered.

"We have therefore decided, spontaneously and without being asked or offered any inducement, to inform the Government of the United States that we should be glad to place such defense facilities at their disposal by leasing suitable sites in our trans-Atlantic possessions for their greater security against the unmeasured dangers of the future.

"The principle of association of interests for common purposes between Great Britain and the United States had developed even before the war in the various agreements reached about certain small islands in the Pacific Ocean which have become important as air fueling points. In all this line of thought we found ourselves in very close harmony.

"Presently we learned that anxiety was also felt in the United States about the air and naval defense of their Atlantic seaboard, and President Roosevelt has made it clear that he would like to discuss with us and with the Dominion of Canada and with Newfoundland the development of American naval and air facilities in Newfoundland and in the West Indies.

No Charge of Sovereignty.

"There is, of course, no question of any transference of sovereignty or of any action being taken against the wishes of the various colonies concerned, but for our part his Majesty's Government is entirely willing to accord defense facilities to the United States on a ninety-nine-years' leasehold basis, and we feel sure that our interests no less than theirs and the interests of the colonies themselves and of Canada and Newfoundland will be served thereby.

"Undoubtedly this process means that these two great organizations of the English-speaking democracies, the British Empire and the United States, will have to be somewhat mixed up together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage.

"For my own part, looking out upon the future, I do not view the process with any misgivings.

"No one can stop it. Like the Mississippi, it just keeps rolling along. Let it roll. Let it roll on full flood, inexorable, irresistible, to broaden lands and better days."

A similar statement was made in the House of Lords by Viscount Caldecote, Dominions Secretary.

Calls for Blockade.

Earlier in his speech, Mr. Churchill called for a strict blockade of the axis and the nations Germany has conquered and expressed regret that Britain could not pass food for France, Belgium and Holland, as former President Hoover had urged.

Expressing confidence in the outcome of the war, Mr. Churchill declared that Britain's "new production" of airplanes now exceeds that of Germany and that the navy had mastered the magnetic mine.

Churchill Opens Review.

When Mr. Churchill began his review of the war, among his listeners in the diplomatic gallery were the United States Ambassador, Joseph P. Kennedy, and the envoy from Russia, Ivan Maisky.

Calling the war "only a continuation of the last," despite great differences in its character, he said that the earlier conflict of millions of men against masses of steel had been replaced by a combat of strategy, organization of technical apparatus, science, mechanics and morale.

British casualties in the first year of the world war amounted to 365,000, he said, adding:

"In this war, I am thankful to say, British killed, wounded, prisoners and missing, including civilians, are about 92,000, but of these a large proportion are alive as prisoners of war."

Consequences More Deadly.

Nevertheless, Mr. Churchill said:

"Consequences to the belligerents have been even more deadly. We have seen great countries with powerful armies dashed out of coherent existence in a few weeks.

"Although up to the present the loss of life has been mercifully diminished, the decisions reached in the course of the struggle are even more profound upon the fate of nations than anything which has happened since barbaric times."

The Prime Minister declared that "we must prepare for the campaign of 1941 and 1942."

Loud cheers greeted his announcement that Great Britain will maintain "a strict blockade of Germany, Italy, France and every other country that has fallen into the hands of Germany."

"We must refuse to allow food to be passed through the blockade," he declared.

Two or Three Years Nothing.

The new style war, he said, seems to be "well suited to the genius and the resource of the British nation and empire" and "once we get properly equipped and properly started, a war of this kind will be more favorable to us than the somber mass slaughters of the Somme."

Command of the sea and the friendship of the United States, he added, "enables us to draw resources from the whole world."

Two or three years are nothing in the history of a nation, he said, "and when we have the honor to be the sole champion of the liberties of all Europe, we must not grudge these years or weary as we toil and struggle through them."

"The road to victory may not be so long as we expect, but we have no right to count upon this," he said. "Be it long or short, rough or smooth, we mean to reach our journey's end."

Mr. Churchill laughed at the Nazi blockade of Great Britain.

"I remember the Kaiser doing that in the last war," he observed.

Allowing food to reach the Nazis would "prolong the agony of all Europe," he said, expressing regret that "we must refuse requests that food should pass the blockade such as Mr. Hoover's plan for relieving France, Belgium and Holland."

Germany found vast stores of food in each country overrun, he said, "and if all this food is not available now, it can only be because it has been removed to feed the people of Germany."

"The only agencies which could create famine in any part of Europe during the coming winter would be German exactions or German failure to distribute the supplies they command," he added.

Then he made his appeal "to our friends across the ocean," expressing "hope" that they "will send that timely re-enforcement to bridge the gap between the peace flotillas of 1939 and the war flotillas of 1941."

Yet, brimming with buoyant confidence, he declared: "We are sure of ourselves and of our cause. . . .

"We have mastered the magnetic mine. The navy is far stronger than at the beginning of the war.

"Let Herr Hitler bear his responsibilities to the full and let the peoples of Europe who groan beneath his yoke aid in every way the coming of the day when it will be broken."

Britain, he declared, can arrange to get food into "any part of the enslaved area when this part has been wholly cleared of German forces and has genuinely regained its freedom."

Britain Holds Out Food.

"We shall do our best," he said, "to encourage the building up of reserves of food all over the world so that there will always be held before the eyes of the peoples of Europe, including—I say it deliberately—the German and Austrian peoples, the certainty that the shattering of Nazi power will bring them all immediate food, freedom and peace."

As solid grounds for his confidence, Mr. Churchill said the Germans still had "far more" planes than Britain, "but our new production" is greatly faster.

Although "American production is only just beginning to flow in," British "bomber and fighter strength, despite the battle, is larger than ever."

He anticipated still greater Nazi air warfare with confidence in Britain's ability to meet it.

Arms Ferried Over Ocean.

"We hope and believe that we shall be able to continue the air struggle indefinitely and as long as the enemy pleases and the longer it continues the more rapid will be our approach, first toward parity and then toward that superiority in the air upon which in a large measure the decision of the war depends," he continued.

Meanwhile, Lord Caldecote told the House of Lords that Britain had lost since, August 8, ninety-four pilots and 153 fighter planes as against German's losses of 699 bombers and fighters.

Immense masses of munitions ferried across the Atlantic from the United States, Mr. Churchill said, include "cannon, rifles, machine-guns, cartridges and shells, all safely landed without the loss of a gun or a round."

Merchant tonnage under the British flag, he added, "is larger than when we began."

"The whole British Army is at home. More than two million determined men have rifles and bayonets in their hands, and three-quarters of them are in regular military formations."

Big Food Stocks Reported.

British food stocks of all kinds are many times as great as in the days of peace, Mr. Churchill declared:

"As in Nelson's day, the maxim holds: 'Our first line of defense is the enemy's ports.'"

And, he said, "we have never had armies like this in our island in time of war."

"The whole island bristles against invaders from the sea or from the air," he declared.

Lauding Britain's airmen, he said that "never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

British bombing squadrons, he said, were inflicting "shattering blows on the whole technical and warmaking structure of the Nazi power."

"Even if the Nazi legions stood triumphant on the Black Sea or, indeed, upon the Caspian, even if Hitler was at the gates of India," he said, "it would benefit him nothing if at the same time the entire economic and scientific apparatus of German war power lay shattered and pulverized at home."

Calls Reserves Overflowing.

Noting Hitler's preparations for invasion of France and the Low Countries, Mr. Churchill said, "it is quite plain Hitler could not admit defeat in his air attack on Britain without most serious injury."

Mr. Churchill claimed for Britain "overflowing reserves of every type of aircraft and an ever mounting stream of production" because of "the astounding increase" in output and repair under Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production.

Turning to Italy's drive in Africa, Mr. Churchill said that the French defection had been deeply damaging in the defense of British Somaliland, now in Italian hands.

France might have fought on, he said.

"If we had been put in the terrible position of France, now happily impossible, it would have been the duty of all war leaders to fight on here to the end: it would have also been their duty to provide as far as possible for the naval security of Canada and our Dominions and to make sure that they had the means to carry on the struggle beyond the oceans," he asserted.

"That France lies prostrate at this moment is the crime not of a great and noble nation, but of what are called the men of Vichy."

Pledging that "our old comradeship with France is not at an end," he added that "the day will come as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow," when again there will be "a France restored in a liberated Europe to its full freedom and ancient fame."

Besides Frenchmen still fighting with Britain, he said, Czechs, Poles, Norwegians, Dutch and Belgians also "are still in the field, recognized by Great Britain and the United States as the sole representative authorities and lawful governments of their respective States."

Still Toiling Uphill.

Mr. Churchill declined to discuss Britain's peace aims further than to say:

"I do not think it would be wise at this moment while the battle rages and the war is still perhaps only in its earlier stages, to embark upon elaborate speculation about the future shape which should be given to Europe or the new securities which must be arranged to spare mankind the miseries of a third world war.

"Before we can undertake the task of rebuilding we have not only to be convinced ourselves but to convince all other countries that the Nazi tyranny is going to be finally broken.

"The right to guide the course of world history is the noblest prize of victory. We are still toiling up the hill. We have not yet reached the crestline. We cannot survey the landscape or even imagine what its condition will be when that longed-for morning comes."

Discounting the loss of Somaliland, he said that "it had been decided some time before the beginning of the war not to defend the protectorate of Somaliland" and the British troops were withdrawn "virtually intact for action elsewhere."

Two British Warplanes Roar Over Berlin Suburbs During Night.

BOULOGNE ATTACKED AGAIN

Two Nazi Transports Bombed in Norwegian Port—Paris Airdrome Attacked.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force carried the war to Germany and German-occupied France with a torrent of bombs today, raiding Boulogne for the third time in forty-eight hours after having bombed the Villacoublay airdrome on the outskirts of Paris.

The bombing of two German transports at Haugesund, one of the nearest Norwegian ports to Great Britain, was also reported by the Admiralty today as widespread Nazi raids ended another lull in Germany's air siege and British flyers answered blow for blow.

[At Berlin today, authorized spokesmen said that two British warplanes had penetrated to the outskirts of the German capital. One dropped flares over large industrial plants, but it was denied that either craft unloaded bombs, and hours later it was asserted that one of the raiders was shot down near Bremen.]

Haugesund is on a stretch of Norwegian coast between Bergen and Stavanger, which might serve as a base for a sea-borne Nazi invasion against which Great Britain is making constant preparations.

Two direct hits on one of the 3,000-ton transports were scored by Skua—British dive bomber—aircraft, the Admiralty said, and other bombers raided oil tanks north of Haugesund.

Kiel Base Is Bombed.

R. A. F. bombers last night also attacked the German naval base at Kiel and thirty airdromes in Germany and in enemy-occupied territory while in daylight raids yesterday an airdrome at Flushing and an anti-aircraft position near Amsterdam were bombed, the Air Ministry announced tonight. Three British planes did not return from these raids, the Air Ministry said.

The German-held airdrome at St. Omer in northern France was cloaked in flames when British Blenheim bombers made a surprise attack last night, starting many fires and causing several explosions, the Air Ministry announced.

An Air Ministry communique also told of attacks on an oil refinery at Hanover, the power station at Zschornewitz, north of Leipzig, and a number of key points on the Nazis' line of communications in the Ruhr and northwest Germany.

"Oil tanks at Ambes, near Bordeaux, were also successfully attacked," the communique said.

Hundreds of Raiders Strike at England; R. A. F. in Turn Carries War Into Germany

Germans Stab at Inland Points, Then Turn and Roar Away—British Report Four Enemy Warplanes Shot Down.

ON ENGLAND'S SOUTHEAST COAST, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Three waves of German planes attacked inland points in a bombing foray against southeastern England today and then roared back toward France.

It was impossible to count the raiding German planes as most of them were flying above the clouds, but there must have been hundreds.

Two planes of the last wave, while returning toward France, left the formation and dived at barrage balloons but were forced back by anti-aircraft fire.

There was a continuous rumble inland as the bombs fell.

German dive bombers also attacked an airport in the southeast of England in two flights of from eight to ten planes each, swooping down on their objective in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

For two hours there was a continuous roar of anti-aircraft barrage fire. Machine-gun bursts and the zooming of British fighters as they attacked.

There was no indication that either of the raiders had been struck by the heavy shelling.

Tegel is the site of large industrial plants.

Later today authorized Nazi spokesmen reported that a British Bristol-Blenheim bomber was shot down at Oldenburg, near Bremen, and they identified this as the plane which had dropped the flares over Tegel.

Detecting devices followed the raider across the country after it was driven away from the capital by anti-aircraft fire, it was asserted.

Other authorities said today at least six persons had been killed and twenty-five injured in the ruins of four houses destroyed by British bombers in a raid last night on "the residential section of a major town in the Ruhr."

A whole row of houses was declared destroyed in another town of 30,000, with many persons seriously injured.

The result of the battle was not known up to mid-afternoon.

Four Raiders Are Downed.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The Air Ministry announced that reports up to 5 P. M. showed that four raiding German planes had been shot down today, one off a Suffolk coast town this morning.

The communique read:

"During this morning enemy activities over this country were comparatively slight. Bombs were dropped in two towns, one in Essex and the other in South Wales. In both places houses were hit and some persons were injured.

"A small number of these casualties were fatal.

"Bombs were also dropped on a South Wales port, the damage done being small.

"This afternoon the enemy approached the southeast coast in stronger force and an East Anglian town was attacked, but no casualties so far have been reported and the damage was confined to broken windows.

"The main objective of the afternoon attack appears to have been an airdrome on the south coast, but the enemy showed no desire to press home the attack and very few of his aircraft succeeded in penetrating our defenses. No damage was done."

Fireworks Over North England.

A firework display—but no bombs—fell in one northeast of England district during the night. Observers said that the Nazi flyers used exploding flares which burst into five or six different lights until "the whole countryside was illuminated."

An Air Ministry spokesman said that these were similar to the flares the British use to light up target areas in Germany.

Elsewhere, however, the German night raiders used high explosive, screamer, flare and incendiary bombs, especially in the north. Several houses were demolished and a school and theater damaged in one midlands town where from fifteen to twenty bombs fell.

Three high explosive bombs landed simultaneously in a straight line in a northeast of England town, demolishing the rear part of a laundry and razing two large houses. Damage was caused over a square mile in which many had to abandon their homes. There were few casualties in this town, however, one of these, a man, was killed by bomb fragments while watching the raid from his door.

A single raider over a southeast of England town dropped six bombs, one in the playground of the village school, another on a farm and the rest on arable land belonging to the local Home Guard commander, who said that there was no damage whatever.

Last night the Germans raided East Anglia, killing three civilians and injuring a number of others; a south coast beach, where one raider was shot down after dropping four bombs, and a northwest of England region, where fires were started by incendiary bombs. Planes also were heard over Wales.

The sinking of the 2,850-ton Swedish steamship Hedrun was disclosed today when survivors were brought to a west coast of England port. Eight persons were believed lost. Survivors said that the ship was torpedoed without warning in the Atlantic.

Nazis Tell of Airport Raids.

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—DNB, the official German news agency, announced today that German planes had again successfully bombed the Eastchurch and Southend airports and others in Kent, southeast of London.

Authorized German spokesmen said that air battles were being fought today over southeastern England.

Strong units of British fighters were said to have challenged the German attacking forces in the neighborhood of Dover.

At various points along the south coast, anti-aircraft guns opened fire. The Nazi spokesmen said that, besides the airports, munitions depots and other military objectives were raided.

German fighters accompanying the bombers have already brought down "a number of (British) planes," DNB said, adding that losses on the German side were not yet known.

Earlier today the German High Command indicated a lull in the Nazi aerial operations against England—perhaps because of unfavorable weather—and official spokesmen placed increasing emphasis on the importance of the blockade being tightened around the island.

[London reported ideal flying weather and a bright harvest moon last night.]

Only reconnaissance planes were dispatched over England, flying for the most part at a great altitude, it was said.

A few carried small bombs, however, authorized spokesmen added, and DNB reported that several groups of these planes flew over central and southern England attacking military objectives.

The High Command mentioned particularly armament plants, gasoline tanks, railways, ports, airdromes and troop concentrations in the counties of Suffolk, Norfolk and Oxford.

Several airdromes were bombed with visible success, DNB said, and large oil tanks at Stanlow, on the Manchester Ship Canal, were set afire. A rail terminal also was reported bombed, disrupting traffic on two railway lines.

Japanese vessels from entering British ports, an official spokesman said today, but so for has arrived at no decision.

This spokesman said that the Tokio Government, acting through the German embassy, had requested protection for Japanese vessels against bombing, but was understood to have been told that this would be difficult to guarantee because of poor visibility on occasion.

BRITISH BOMB NAZI AIRFIELD CLOSE TO PARIS

Raiders Strike From Norway To France In Fight To Halt Blitzkrieg

Smash Anew At Channel Ports, Kiel Bases And Ruhr Valley

London, Aug. 20—British bombers struck at German-held airdromes and quays from Norway to southern France today in an effort to smash Nazi springboards for any attempted invasion of these islands, and carried out attacks on the outskirts of Paris itself.

Here at home, seven German planes were declared shot down in the day's assaults upon Britain—assaults described by the Air Ministry as "comparatively slight"—and an unstated number of Englishmen died under the invaders' bombs.

Raided were two towns in Essex, one in South Wales and one in the Anglian region. A South Wales port was reported to have suffered only small damage .Several persons were killed by bombs which hit a row of houses in a southwest town. Men on a bathing beach were machine-gunned, but no damage was reported.

152 Declared Lost Sunday

After a final recheck, the Air Ministry revised upward to 152 the total number of German raiders destroyed in Sunday's fightihg.

During the day the Government proudly told Parliament that from August 8 up to last night the defenders of Britain destroyed 699 German bombers and fighters and lost only 153 of their own fighters.

Minor attacks continued into the night with two Nazi raiders shot down. One fell near a northeast coast village. Its four-man crew was captured. The other was struck by anti-aircraft fire in southwestern England.

Port Machinery Set Up

In preparation for the showdown across the Channel—if it is to come—the Government took further steps to insure the independent functioning of local defense areas in the event they were isolated.

Emergency administrative machinery to direct traffic in forty ports, without the necessity of authority from London, were set up.

It was the long-range British overnight bombers that carried the war to Germany. These, said the Air Ministry, were the scope and results of their offensive:

Bombs dropped in bursts on the hangars and across the landing ground of the military airdrome at Villacoublay, just outside Paris; other French areas bombed as far south as Orleans.

Direct hits on one of two 3,000-ton German transports in the harbor at Haugesund, Norway.

the naval dockyard, the main basin and underground stores of oil.

New raids on the already battered French port of Boulogne; on the airdrome at St. Omer, in northern France; on oil tanks near Bordeaux; on Hanover oil refineries; on the industrial Ruhr and in northwest Germany.

Lose 3 Planes

In these far-ranging actions three British planes were acknowledged to have been lost.

In the St. Omer bombing, the communique said, "the leader of the formation straddled the airdrome with his bombs. There was a big explosion on the ground, followed by several small ones. Fierce fires broke out. Further salvos of incendiary bombs increased the fires until most of the air field was cloaked in flame.

"The Blenheims took the enemy completely by surprise. They found a flare path lighted in readiness for returning Nazi aircraft.

One Signaled To Land

"One Blenheim pilot, mistaken for a German, was signaled to come in and land. He replied with a load of bombs.

"The flare path and tarmac (apron) in front of a line of hangars as revealed by the flashes of bombs were hit repeatedly.

"A Blenheim which could not find its primary target was approaching Cap Gris Nez on the return journey when a concentration of German searchlights opened up on him. He dived and dropped all his bombs on them. The lights went out and fires started on the headland."

The British bombers attacked Boulogne in three waves, the bursting bombs, the German searchlights and the fires started on the ground providing a brilliant aerial display that was visible from the English coast, some twenty-odd miles away.

Observers thought that at least one ammunition dump must have been destroyed.

British Planes Over Berlin Suburbs.

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—A British plane penetrated to a point nine miles north of Berlin early today, dropping flares which lighted up the surrounding countryside and causing an air raid alarm which drove residents of the capital to underground shelters for an hour and forty minutes.

A second British raider was reported to have reached the western outskirts of the city, only to be driven off by a heavy barrage of anti-aircraft fire.

No bombs were dropped by either plane, Nazi spokesmen insisted.

It was the fourth time that Berlin air raid sirens had sounded an actual warning since the war began last September. Sounds of cannonading were audible in the city.

The point where the flares were dropped was in the vicinity of the suburb of Tegel, north of Berlin. Spokesmen said that anti-aircraft fire forced the plane which had dropped the flares to turn back.

The Air Ministry, in telling of the St. Omer raid, said:

"Blenheim aircraft of the coastal command caused many fires last Monday night when they raided the airdrome at St. Omer in north France.

"The leader of the formation straddled the airdrome with his bombs. There was a big explosion on the ground, followed by several small ones. Fierce fires broke out. Further salvoes of incendiary bombs increased the fires until most of the air field was cloaked in flame.

Berlin, Aug. 20—German planes returned in force today to the assaults on Great Britain after a brief lull and "successfully bombed" airports and military objectives in southeast England.

DNB reported the Nazis had dropped bombs on the Eastchurch and Southend airports and others in Kent, southeast of London, as well as raiding munitions depots and other military objectives.

Armed Reconnaissance Flights

German fighter planes protecting the bombers have brought down a number of British planes, DNB added.

For the most part, the news agency reported, today's flights were only armed reconnaissance—fighting off what planes came up to keep the Nazis from examining British defenses and the results of earlier raids.

Only scattered air fighting was reported except for one short, sharp dogfight over Dover, where bombers crossed the English coast for attacks on airdromes in Kent.

Berlin's Air-Raid Alarm

Germans in Berlin were talking today about their fourth air-raid alarm which sent them rushing to shelter shortly after midnight for nearly two hours. British planes penetrated to within nine miles of Berlin, but dropped no bombs in that area.

One of the two British bombers making the foray against the Nazi capital was shot down at Oldenburg, near Bremen, it was reported by authorized sources.

Casualties In Raids On Reich

Other British bombers flew over Germany last night. The Germans said that one attacked the residential section of a major town in the industrially important Ruhr Valley district, destroying four private houses with bombs, killing at least six persons and wounding twenty-five.

The Nazis also said many persons were seriously injured in a west German town of 30,000 inhabitants by several explosive bombs dropped by the British. An entire row of houses was destroyed, the radio declared.

More German successes on the seas were reported by the high command. It announced that one German submarine had sunk 41,000 tons of shipping, and that a 4,559-ton British merchantman, the Ampleforth, and another steamer of 6,680 tons had been sunk by other U-boats.

British Admit Coast Is Shelled

Say London May Be Next Target of Big Gun, but Scoff at Value of Cross-channel Fire.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—British military spokesmen acknowledged today that at least one big German gun in France has bombarded the southeast coast of England.

The possibility exists, they admitted, that the Germans may shell London from across the channel. But they declared that such a bombardment would have only a nuisance value.

There has been only very little shelling of the south coast, they said, and no great damage has resulted.

They reported the cross-channel bombardment possibly came from a four-inch gun.

Return Fire Called Silly.

It may be possible to make a gun with a range of 100 miles, but such a gun would be woefully inaccurate, these spokesmen said.

London is about ninety miles on a direct line from Calais, the nearest French point to the English shore.

British spokesmen declared it would be much better, from the viewpoint of the enemy, to use bombers instead of long-range guns.

One informant expressed the personal belief that it would also be silly for the British to attempt shelling the French coast with guns from this side of the channel. He would not say, however, whether Great Britain had fixed guns with sufficient range.

Declaring that the shelling of Paris in the last war had little moral effect after the first few rounds, this spokesman added:

"These long-range guns will not produce a military result. The effect of their fire can be observed only from air lanes, which would face hostile fighters themselves."

Reports that shells as well as bombs were falling in the southeast of England began just a week ago, shortly after the Germans started a mass aerial attack on the south coast. The authorities investigated, but said that there was "no confirmation at all."

Unconfirmed reports in Switzerland said that the Germans had guns at Calais and Dunkirk capable of firing forty miles—more than enough to fire across the channel.

Part Of Attiki's Cargo Seized

The Greek passenger steamer Attiki, reported last week to have been stopped by Italian warships off Sicily, arrived today at Piræus.

The ship's officers reported the Italians took the ship to Palermo, Sicily, and seized 2,100 tons of steel and many barrels of glycerin.

There was no mention of any interference with passengers, reported by Greek shipping circles last week to include a number of Americans of Balkan origin traveling east from Lisbon.

Fascist Agency Accuses Greek Authorities Of Hired Terrorism In Border Region

[By the Associated Press]

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 20—Usually well-informed circles said tonight that Italy is massing troops in Albania on the Greek border with at least one armored division among them.

A check of official circles in Athens brought only this answer: "Reports abroad cannot either be confirmed or denied."

Greece Issues Week's Third Call To Arms

Athens, Greece, Aug. 20 (AP)—Several thousand men of new Greek military classes were called to arms today in the third strengthening of the army within a week.

There was no immediate explanation of the new defense order.

Premier General John Metaxas called on King George II late tonight, but the subject of the audience was not disclosed.

Neither was there Government confirmation of reports in informed Athens circles last night that Turkey

Hired Terrorism Laid To Greek Authorities

Rome, Aug. 20 (AP)—The official Italian news agency Stefani accused Greek authorities tonight of hiring assassins to terrorize Albanians in the Greek region of Ciamuria, and declared the Albanians were awaiting Italian "action to ban the criminals."

These "barbarisms," Stefani said, were intended to be passed off as the "spontaneous reaction of the local Greek population against Musselman Albanians and an outburst of ancient hates."

Greek Authorities Named

"The truth is that the band was paid by the Greek authorities Janina, Slorina and Prevesa," Stefani said, and its command entrusted to the "savage bandit" Kocodiro Silijates, whom the agency described as a "specialist in assassination and burning."

"His mere name makes the unfortunate inhabitants of Albanian villages shake with horror" as they await "our beginning of action to ban the criminals," Stefani declared.

Greece Looks To Britain, Turkey And Metaxas Line

[By the Associated Press]

Greece, whose armed strength is the little dot at the bottom of the Balkan question mark, trusts her defense to the Metaxas Line, a north frontier mountain defense system along the border of Italian-held Albania, and to hopes of military support by Britain and Turkey if she is attacked.

Even so, the one-time rival of ancient Rome is hemmed in by the greater military power of modern Rome. Fascist troops in Albania are within striking distance from the northwest. Italy has naval and bomber bases across the Ionian Sea to the west and in the Dodecanese Islands to the east.

Albania The Sore Spot

Tension between Italy and Greece, with Albania as a sore spot between the two, has heightened within the last few days.

Greece, nominally an independent kingdom under George II but guided by the strong-man Premier General John Metaxas, has been in the uneasy seat since Premier Mussolini took over Albania in April, 1939.

Almost immediately she began building the Metaxas Line and strengthening the Greek army, recently estimated variously from 100,000 men upward. German press sources have estimated Greece might be able to muster an army of 600,000. One old cruiser, four modern destroyers completed and others being built, seventeen older destroyers and torpedo boats and six submarines comprise her known naval strength. She is believed to have an air force of about 125 planes.

Row Over British Guarantees

Part of the dispute between Greece and Italy has hinged upon Great Britain's guarantee of Greece's independence, made shortly after Italian troops first moved into Albania and repeated more recently.

Italian diplomatic representatives have pressed Premier Metaxas to repudiate that guarantee and side with the Axis. The Italians said flatly that Greece must be prepared to enter Italy's sphere of influence.

There was no public reply to that from Metaxas, but he began at once a series of late-into-the-night conferences with his Cabinet and his military advisers.

As recently as yesterday informed sources in Athens reported that Turkey had promised, too, to come to the aid of Greece if she is attacked.

Bulgar Agreement Near

CRAIOVA, Rumania, Aug. 20 (AP).—Efforts to prevent bloodshed, such as that which marked the recent transfer of Bessarabia to Russia, occupied the attention of Bulgarian and Rumanian delegations meeting here tonight to arrange the cession of southern Dobrudja to Bulgaria.

A tentative agreement for the return of the whole district to Bulgaria is reported to have been reached. Remaining to be settled are such questions as indemnities for public utilities (including the American-financed telephone system in southern Dobrudja) and population transfers.

In the Hungarian-Rumanian negotiations at Turnu-Severin, Rumania, over the Hungarian claims to Transylvania, which was lost to Rumania in the World War, spokesmen held out only faint hope for an agreement.

ITALIAN TROOPS TAKE BERBERA AS BRITISH FLEE

DRIVE ON EGYPT SEEN TOO

Hitler and Mussolini Exchange Notes of Congratulation on African Victory.

ROME, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Premier Mussolini's African legions triumphantly completed the occupation of British Somaliland today with the taking over of Berbera, its capital, and prepared for an aerial attempt to conquer Aden, English-held eastern hinge of the gateway to the Red Sea, and thus to imperil the British lifeline.

The capture of Somaliland—the first colony so lost by the British Empire since the American revolution—was declared by the Italians to have given them these five important gains:

1. It wrested from the British an area opening upon the Red Sea's outlet on the Empire's route to India, and will add 68,000 square miles to the Fascists' own empire in Africa.

2. It deprives the British of a base and provides the Italians with a new base for assaults of their own, Aden being but 215 miles by air from the captured Somaliland capital of Berbera.

3. It frees thousands of Italian and native troops for offensives on other African fronts—in British Kenya, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Egypt.

4. It impresses the middle-eastern world, said the Italians, with the decline of Britain's power.

New Outlet for Ethiopia.

5. It provides Italian Ethiopia with new outlets to the sea, since the Italians plan to build roads from Harar, in Ethiopia, through the conquered Somaliland to the coast.

It also was disclosed that the Italians have gained the use of Jibuti, in French Somaliland, and its railroad to Addis Ababa, in Ethiopia.

The Italians said the British troops defeated in the Somaliland numbered about 17,500 and that, presumably, only white troops were evacuated, since the famous native camel corps and other African troops had surrendered.

Premier Mussolini exchanged felicitations with Fuhrer Adolf Hitler.

In a message to his commander in Libya, Mussolini obliquely suggested that the long-awaited assault upon Egypt would not be long in coming.

The occupation of Berbera, fall of which the British announced yesterday, was reported in today's Italian High Command communique.

The offensive which began on August 5 was pushed to victory in only fourteen days, although most of the advance was across parched, treeless wastes, without any protection against desert heat ranging from 122 to 140 degrees Fahrenheit.

Submarine Reported Lost.

The High Command also reported that a submarine of unknown nationality struck an Italian mine near the Dodecanese Islands in the eastern Mediterranean. A large patch of oil on the sea led to the belief that the vessel had sunk.

In a surprise attack on British positions at Gallabat, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the Italians said, they took prisoners and captured large quantities of munitions.

British air raids were reported on Neghelli, Ogadiscio, Bardia, Genale and Derna in Libya. Bombs were said to have struck a hospital in Derna, killing one patient and wounding twenty-two.

Italian bomber formations accompanied by fighting planes bombed the British naval base of Malta today, the Italian radio reported.

The radio said military objectives there were "successfully attacked."

The Berbera victory announcement stated that Hitler wired Mussolini:

"Receive, Duce, and with you your army, my hearty congratulations and those of the whole German people for the great victory in East Africa."

Mussolini replied:

"Fuehrer, I thank you in the name of my troops and myself for the congratulations you sent me on the victory over the English in East Africa. With comradely greetings."

Applauds Work of Troops.

As commander of Italy's armed forces, Il Duce sent the following message to the Duke of Aosta, commander of the Italian forces in the African campaign:

"With the occupation of Berbera, the conquest of Somaliland is completed. Receive, Highness, together with my applause, that of the Italian people, who have followed the phases of the hard battle with absolute certainty of victory.

"Communicate my praise to Gen. Nasi, to the commanders of the troops, officers, non-commissioned officers, national and native troops.

"Every one has given superb proof of courage and tenacity worthy of the soldiers of Fascist Italy.

"After a necessary rest, you will direct the persevering and ardent will of our troops, which are holding the empire and extending its borders, toward new aims."

Called Empty Victory.

CAIRO, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The Italian occupation of British Somaliland was minimized by British spokesmen today as an empty victory for Premier Mussolini and in no way endangering Great Britain's control over the Red Sea or the Gulf of Aden.

Although the evacuation of the port of Berbera left the Italians in command of the whole Somaliland coast, these spokesmen said the city would prove valueless to the enemy and would provide no new base for attacks against British territory. On the contrary, it was said, the British withdrawal will have the effect of darwing the Italians further into the open for a showdown fight.

The Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force, apparently, were regarded as insurance that the Italians would gain nothing by their victory which, the British said, was won at heavy cost.

The navy, it was said, would prevent any Italian ships from reaching the occupied territory, while the R. A. F. would keep Italian troops in the area under a harassing fire.

The center of action was expected to shift to the Libyan frontier, whence, it was believed, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani may now attempt a drive across Egypt toward the Suez Canal.

Rome Claims English Have Lost 68,000 Square Miles To Fascist Africa

Rome, Aug. 20—Premier Mussolini's African legions triumphantly completed the occupation of British Somaliland today and prepared for an aerial attempt to conquer Aden, English-held eastern hinge of the gateway to the Red Sea, and thus to imperil the British lifeline.

Also Gain Jibuti

It also was disclosed that the Italians have gained the use of Jibuti, in French Somaliland, and its railroad to Addis Ababa, in Ethiopia.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Italian rejoicing was generally poohpoohed by the British. British headquarters in Cairo, Egypt, described it as "an empty victory."]

The Italians said the British troops defeated in the Somaliland numbered about 17,500 and that, presumably, only white troops were evacuated, since the famous native camel corps and other African troops had surrendered.

Tells Hitler About It

Premier Mussolini exchanged felicitations with Führer Adolf Hitler.

In a message to his commander in Libya, Mussolini obliquely suggested that the long-awaited assault upon Egypt would not be long in coming.

The Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, denied British statements that the defenders of Berbera were outnumbered.

He said the British forces totaled 25,000, including the regular garrison of 14,000 plus Rhodesian and Indian troops.

The Italian radio reported that Italian bomber formations accompanied by fighting planes bombed the British naval base of Malta today. Military objectives there were "successfully attacked," the radio said.

British Report Forces And Equipment In Aden

Cairo, Aug. 20 (AP)—A British high command communique said tonight that "the whole of the British force which was evacuated from Berbera now has reached Aden with the bulk of its equipment and material."

The "small portion" of material left behind was destroyed before departure, the announcement added.

DEFENSE DUTY OF REPUBLICS, MARSHAL SAYS

Picture Of "France Of Tomorrow" Given By Chief Of State

Swiss Model Of Democracy, With "Disciplined Freedom" His Aim

Pershing And France

Vichy, France, Aug. 20 (AP)—Marshal Philippe Petain, Chief of State, disclosed today that Gen. John J. Pershing had sent a message expressing the wish that he could be at the side of his old French comrade-in-arms during these critical days.

"Were it not for his age (Pershing will be 80 in September), he would be here," said the Marshal, himself now 84.

"I was very moved and profoundly grateful for his wish to help in saving France and the youth of France."

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 20—The new France views with sympathy the American trend toward armed preparedness, Marshal Philippe Petain, Chief of State, said today, and "will remain firmly attached to the ideals she professes in common with the great American democracies."

Receiving American correspondents at a press conference, Petain confidently predicted his defeated country would recover from its present trials. The will to recover exists, he said, and added grimly: "If in any sense it does not, I will create it."

The France Of Tomorrow

"The France of tomorrow," he asserted, "will be at once very new and very ancient.

"She will become again what she never should have ceased to be—an essentially agricultural nation. Like the giant in the fable, she will regain all her strength through renewed contact with the earth.

"She will restore those old traditions of craftsmanship which in the past made her fortune and glory. It goes without saying that she will remain a land of arts, of high culture, of disinterested research.

Retains Democratic Ideals

"She will cultivate the virtues which make strong peoples; she will know how to temper with vigorous discipline an individualism which at times became excessive; she will honor anew those great truths of Christian morality which formerly were the solid basis of our civilization.

"She will remain firmly attached to the ideals she professes in common with the great American democracies: ideals founded on respect for the human individual, on the cult of family, community and country, on love of justice and humanity."

Lauds American Defense Moves

Petain declared America was doing well to prepare herself against any possible invasion. It is not only the right of American nations to prepare themselves materially and morally, he said, but their duty.

Petain observed that there has been some criticism of France for not fighting on from her colonies after defeat on the Continent.

"But what would you have had us do?" he asked. "Our army in Africa was very weak. We had nothing but the debris of an army left on the Continent. What could we do?"

With "Cord Around Her Neck"

He described France in her present position as a country "with a strangling cord around her neck," but there was no bitterness in his speech. All his talk was in the vein of facing the circumstances and making the best of them.

It is his ambition, he said, to preserve in France a kind of democracy with discipline, and pointed to Switzerland as an example of a country where "disciplined freedom exists."

"There," he said, "you have liberty and at the same time discipline."

"Yes," he added, "we will remain a democracy, but not a democracy where everyone may do anything he wishes."

New Education In France

Asked whether the reeducation of the people might not require a generation, he replied:

"You might say that's true, but we are going to tackle the problem in France from both ends. We are going to educate both the youths and the older people. With youth we can use persuasion. The older people are inclined to be more hard-headed. With them, we will resort to discipline, perhaps in some cases rigorous discipline."

No Resentment At England

Of England he said:

"I do not wish to criticize England. I cannot accuse her. Any nation has the right to defend itself. I feel France was left alone to fight out the war on her own soil too soon, but I do not wish now to engage in resentment."

Resents Idea Of France As "Nation Of Peasants"

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP Via Radio)—Vigorous objections to the idea of making France "a nation of peasants" have been voiced by Rene Belin, French Minister of Industry and Production, the German wireless said today in a dispatch from Vichy.

Belin, in an interview with the newspaper Figaro, is quoted as saying that France can continue to play its part in Europe only by preserving its industries.

Peasantry And Independence

"A nation of peasants is always in an inferior position," Belin said, according to the wireless report. "The independence of a country can only be guaranteed by a certain degree of industrialization."

He also declared that France, which used to buy seventy-five per cent. of her farm machinery from the United States, now could produce it herself.

The German radio adds this commentary: "This interview . . . thus turns against the tendency prevailing in France to tell the French people that they are a peasant people and that they can play a decisive role in Europe only as peasants."

ANTI-NAZIS CAUGHT IN FRANCE TAKEN TO GERMAN JAILS

Hundreds Had Fled From Hitler—Belgian Fascist Chief Is Set Free.

CHANCY, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Hundreds of German anti-Nazis who fled their homeland when Adolf Hitler came into power are being rounded up by his agents in conquered France and taken back to Nazi jails, reports from across the border disclosed today.

Armed with long lists of names, Nazi officials were said to be making the rounds of civilian internment camps in the unoccupied zone in France in a widespread search for fugitive German nationals.

Neutral observers told of seeing large groups of forlorn prisoners herded into trucks under guard of heavily armed Germans in civilian clothes and being driven off to Germany via the occupied zone.

Several hundred German nationals were said to have been taken from the Gurs camp in the Pyrennes in this fashion within the last week. Many of these fought for the Loyalist army during the Spanish civil war as members of the international brigade and later sought refuge in France, where they were interned.

Some enlisted in the French Foreign Legion at the outbreak of the present war, but were sent back to internment camps last March when the French Army was cleared of all German nationals as a protection against fifth-columnists. Tattered French uniforms still were worn by these men as they started their journey back to Germany.

Others being sent back to the Reich include intellectuals who in one way or another participated in anti-Nazi organizations.

Various Nazi extremists of many nationalities taken into custody by the French at the beginning of the war already have been released from internment camps in the unoccupied zone on orders from Germany, it was added. Among these was the Belgian Rexist chief, Leon Degrelle, also free were 1,600 Belgian soldiers who had been disarmed by the French when they demonstrated in favor of King Leopold.

RUMORS HEARD OF QUICK NAVY AID TO CANADA

Washington Speculates on Question of Transfer of Old Destroyers.

DESTROYERS MAY BE INVOLVED

Newspapers in Japan Profess Alarm Over American Defense Accord.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The possibility that some form of American naval aid may be granted to Canada soon was discussed in diplomatic quarters today after the decision of the two Governments to establish a joint defense board to consider the defense of the north half of the Western Hemisphere.

It was noted in these quarters that the joint communique issued by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King after their talks in New York State yesterday said this board would commence immediate studies relating to sea, land and air problems, including personnel and material.

This led to unofficial speculation that the conversation may have touched on the question of transferring some world war American destroyers to Canada to be used to patrol Canadian waters. This would be apart from British efforts to acquire fifty or more of these destroyers.

Government officials here declined to discuss the negotiations with Canada or those with Great Britain for acquisition of naval and air bases in this hemisphere, pointing out that President Roosevelt himself was directing them.

There were indications, however, that naval strategy figured prominently in the President's conversation with the Canadian Prime Minister.

The urgency which they attached to their plans was indicated also by the announcement that it was hoped to have the board set up by Thursday.

The theory that some of the over-age American destroyers might be turned over to Canada appeared to gain some support by the statement of Canadian Navy Minister Angus MacDonald last night that Canada could supply personnel for more naval ships than she now possesses.

Alarm in Japan.

TOKIO, Aug. 20 (A. P. via. radio).—Japanese newspapers professed alarm today over the new defense accord of the United States with Canada, declaring that ultimately it would cause grave disturbances in the Orient, Domei (the Japanese news agency) reported in a broadcast.

One influential paper, Hochi, predicted that the Canadian agreement was the forerunner of a similar American pact with Australia and said it "obliges Japan to be extremely watchful in view of its possible effect on the peace of the Pacific region."

Other papers urged early establishment of Japan's "new order in East Asia" (her program for domination over China, southeastern Asia and the East Indies) as an offset to future collaboration between the United States and the British Dominions.

The newspaper Yomiuri said the Canadian pact was "proof that the United States no longer doubts that Britain will be defeated and, therefore, is taking measures to meet the consequences" of that defeat.

"The United States," Yomiuri continued, "intends to take over the remaining influence of Britain in the world and thereby increase her own power in regions west of her (in the Orient) as well as in the East. Japan must balance this by establishing her new order in East Asia. . . .

"There is no doubt that disturbed conditions in the Pacific would be increased by the possibility that the United States might enter the (European) conflict formally."

Petain Says America Is Wise In Arming

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 20—Chief of State Petain declared today that he sympathized and agreed with the decision of the American people to arm themselves against eventualities.

"A nation must be able to defend itself against invasion and must have means to do so," he said in reply to a question.

Any nation, Petain said, has not only the right but the duty to prepare itself.

Must Study Dangers

"It must study possible dangers," he asserted. "It must then decide what moral preparations are necessary to ward off that danger.

"Technical men must be responsible for material needs."

The marshal also said:

"I do not wish to criticize England. I cannot accuse her. Any nation has the right to defend itself. I feel France was left alone to fight out the war on her own too soon, but I do not wish now to engage in resentment."

He declared the French Republic still exists. Asked whether France was going toward a totalitarian dictatorship, he cited Switzerland as the example to be followed here.

"There," he said, "you have liberty and at the same time discipline."

"Yes," he added, "we will remain a democracy, but not a democracy where everyone may do anything he wishes."

Discipline For Elders

Asked whether the reeducation of the people might not require a generation, he replied:

"You might say that's true, but we are going to tackle the problem in France from both ends. We are going to educate both the youths and the older people. With youth we can use persuasion. The older people are inclined to be more hard-headed. With them, we will resort to discipline, perhaps in some cases rigorous discipline."

50 U.S. Destroyers Reported Fit To Start for Britain in a Week

Navy Official Says at Least This Many of 123 Over-Age Craft Are Ready in East; Guns and Torpedo Tubes of Same Size as British

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Fifty United States destroyers could be made ready to leave the east coast for England within one week should Congress accede to Prime Minister Winston Churchill's plea for ships, a Naval authority said today. More than 100 of the 123 over-age destroyers owned by the United States have been recommissioned, and the rest are to be returned to service soon.

The destroyers, which had been lying idle under protective coatings of grease and red lead, were reconditioned for neutrality patrol, escort duty and other limited service after the outbreak of war in Europe.

At least fifty would be fit to proceed to England promptly. They would need only to take on fuel, supplies and ammunition. Those engaged in active duty naturally have crews aboard, but British sailors might be sent here to take delivery.

All the destroyers have four-inch guns and twenty-one-inch torpedo tubes, both of the same size as those used by the British, but the Navy would not say whether British ammunition was of the same caliber as that used by the American vessels.

It was surmised, however, that the British would not want the destroyers unless they were prepared to put them into service at once by using British ammunition, obtaining surplus ammunition from the United States or replacing the guns and torpedo tubes quickly.

All the vessels are above the sixteen-year over-age limit. They were authorized during the World War naval expansion and were completed by 1922. The majority of them were laid up at the Philadelphia Navy Yard and some at San Diego, Calif.

The Navy, in accord with its policy of secrecy on ship movements, would not give the exact locations of the vessels, but it was presumed that most of them were on the east coast, attached to the neutrality patrol.

PROFIT LIMIT BLAMED FOR ARMING DELAY

Admiral Says Progress Has Stopped in Procuring Ship Materials.

4200 PLANES HELD UP

Draft of Men 18 to 65 Approved Tentatively by House Body—Marshall Testifies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Tax uncertainties, a profit limitation and competitive buying, including that of the British, were reported officially today to have stopped progress on the navy's procurement of materials for ship building.

The report came from Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong who made it to the Senate Appropriations Committee during testimony on a $5,008,000,000 supplemental defense bill which the committee approved yesterday.

Marshall on Manpower.

Gen. George C. Marshall says that the United States will be limited "for some time to come" to an army of 1,200,000 men, although a larger force would be "essential to prevent hostile infiltration in this hemisphere."

"We cannot tell what final strength will be required," the army chief of staff told the Senate committee, which made the testimony public. "If danger threatens this hemisphere, we may require 3,000,000 men, 4,000,000 or more because our obligations are scattered in so many directions."

"We will not," the General testified, "have complete equipment for some time to come. Further, we cannot at present expand beyond a force of 1,200,000 without destroying our present organizations.

"However, the 1,200,000 with an adequate air force and with the navy able to assist, is a reasonable minimum to discourage any one from attempting to come into the Northern Hemisphere or the Caribbean area."

In another sphere of defense activity, the House Military committee, meanwhile, gave its tentative approval to the registration for military service of men from 18 through 64, inclusive.

...ne committee has been work... on a draft bill while the Senate ... bated another version reported r... cently by its military co...mittee. The Senate version calls for registration of men from 21 through 30.

The committee's action did not mean necessarily that the bill which it will report out in a few days will call for 18 through 64 registration but that was considered likely on the basis of today's action.

Arnold Tells of Planes Held Up.

The Senate Military Committee recommended that President Roosevelt be granted emergency authority to make temporary promotions of regular army officers, a power previously limited to time of war.

The Chief Executive was said already to have such authority for the National Guard and reserves.

The appropriation committee report contained testimony from Major-Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, and other officers as well as from Admiral Furlong.

Gen. Arnold said that consideration similar to those Admiral Furlong described had held up contracts for 4,200 airplanes, although "it looks now as if we are over the hump and will be able to complete our negotiation for those planes we have under way right at this moment."

"Some of the contractors," Gen. Arnold said, "just through patriotism and in spite of the fact they do not have any orders have put in raw materials and started the manufacture of jigs and dies, just hoping that this thing will be straightened out; but right at the present time we have the money, and we have the desire to place orders for these 4,200-odd airplanes and we have not been able to place them."

Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, testified that his department had on hand funds for 1,478 aircraft for which "we have not yet been able to contract."

He blamed the profit limitation and "the lack of definite legal provisions under which contractors can depreciate their necessary plant expansion."

Might Lift Restrictions.

Admiral Furlong urged that to remedy the navy's supply situation the Senators do what they could to expedite House committee action on pending excess profits tax legislation.

That legislation would lift restrictions on profits to be made from the navy orders and would also permit defense plant construction costs to be deducted from taxable profits over a period of five years.

Some committeemen took a different tack, however, the committee's report on the testimony disclosed. Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, said that he thought perhaps "we should use a little force" to make manufacturers furnish needed materials. Senator Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, expressed himself as favoring authority for the President to take over plants when defense materials could not be obtained otherwise.

In the defense of his testimony, Admiral Furlong referred to the United States Steel Corporation. That company, he said, was going to invest $4,000,000 where it previously had a steel plant in order to turn out more steel, which the navy needs. But because of present long-term amortization provisions, he said, they decided not to do so, at least at this time.

In the case of the Goss Printing Press Company of Chicago, he said, the company bid on 144 anti-aircraft guns for equipping twenty-eight destroyers, but withdrew because five or six subcontractors had declined to participate.

"The reason is," he said, "that there is much more business in the country that they can take on without being subjected to the Vinson-Trammell act provisions."

The $10,000,000 order, he added, was being held up pending the passage of the new tax legislation in the House Ways and Means Committee.

He declined to name the subcontractors on the $10,000,000 gun order for the record, but did identify them as a Philadelphia bearing company, a gear works in Philadelphia, a Milwaukee manufacturer of gun mount weldments and a South Bend, Ind., bearing company.

Referring again to the United States Steel plant production, Admiral Furlong said the company now had a capacity of 27,000 tons a year for a special kind of rolled plates and armor plates, whereas 68,000 tons were required for the navy's program.

Other companies, he said, made other types of steel which could not be used for the same purpose.

He mentioned the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, "Midvale" and "Homestead" as plants in which the Government was placing facilities for forged armor.

Navy Business 'Unattractive.'

The Admiral, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ordnance, was quoted as saying, "I thought possibly this committee would be interested in knowing the facts and that progress has stopped on the procurement of materials that go into ships."

"The navy had no trouble whatever," he continued, "until business picked up and the army, having increased appropriations, began to buy guns without the operation of the Vinson-Trammell act (limiting profits). This and the foreign nations' and other government departments' buying without the operation of the Vinson-Trammel act has caused business from the navy to be unattractive."

Asked whether companies were diverting their capacities to other purposes, Admiral Furlong replied:

"They are being used for other purposes. For instance, there's a long list of requests from the British Purchasing Commission, and naturally they will go ahead and do the work that will not bind them by profit limitations."

REFUGEE SHIP SUNK; CHILDREN ON BOARD

7 Deaths Reported on Unnamed Vessel Bound for Jamaica When Torpedo Hit Her

IRISH STEAMER UNDER FIRE

Reports Machine-Gunning by Nazi Planes—8 Perish as Swedish Craft Goes Down

DUBLIN, Aug. 20 (AP)—The torpedo sinking of a 5,000-ton British steamer bound to the Americas with British war refugees, some of them en route to the United States, was disclosed today.

Seven persons were killed, survivors said, when two torpedoes struck their ship when it was two days out from a British port. The survivors were landed Sunday night at a port of Northwestern Ireland by a Yugoslav steamer. The name of the British ship was not disclosed. Her destination had been Jamaica.

Survivors said the first torpedo explosion blew away the stern of the ship, which sank in less than thirty minutes. Three lifeboats were launched.

Fourteen members of the crew—including a stewardess who a fortnight ago was on another ship sunk by a U-boat—and other survivors were taken to England.

Before being picked up, they had weathered the buffeting of mountainous seas for forty-eight hours in an open boat.

The steamship Rose Marie, which arrived at Waterford, County Munster, today reported that she had been machine-gunned by three German planes off the Irish coast near Tuskar lighthouse.

John Knopp, the helmsman, was brought ashore with two bullet wounds.

The Rose Marie was reported to be an Irish vessel, flying the Irish [Eire] pennant, but under British registry.

The captain said no bombs were dropped over the Rose Marie, but that the Nazi planes overtook the ship in a silent glide and raked her from stern to bow with machine-gun fire.

Helmsman Knopp was at the wheel. He was taken to a hospital with wounds in the neck and arm.

Nazi Plane Crashes In Ireland Near Route Of Clare From U.S.

Mystery 'Q' Aircraft Reported To Have Fallen Only 50 Miles From Overseas Landing Base

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 20—The London Daily Mail said tonight that a German plane crashed in Ireland today an hour or two before the arrival of the British flying boat Clare from New York at Foynes, Ireland, only fifty miles from the scene of the crash.

The newspaper called the German plane a "mystery 'Q' plane."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—This name apparently comes from the Q boats used by the British in the World War to trap German submarines. They would appear as innocent small boats until the submarine came close and then they would open fire.]

Four American pilots were reported aboard the Clare.

The German plane crashed near Cloghane, County Kerry. Its crew of six—two seriously injured—was interned.

Villagers said the Germans had an air map with a red line drawn between Cloghane and Foynes. They expressed the opinion the Nazi plane had set out to intercept the Clare.

A decision was not expected immediately.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Three Americans in Line of Nazi Machine-gun Fire.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Word was received at the United States embassy today that three Americans narrowly escaped injury Sunday when low-flying German bombers loosed machine-gun fire over a home in Sussex. They were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Treglown and Harvey Klemmer, shipping adviser to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Mrs. Treglown was in her garden when the bombers came hedge-hopping over the estate at an altitude of hardly fifty feet. She dove into a clump of bushes and escaped injury, although machine-gun bullets lodged in the trunk of a tree over her head.

Mr. Treglown and Mr. Klemmer rushed out to rescue her, and the last of the bombers let go a burst which ripped up the lawn at their feet and peppered the sides of the house of Mr. Treglown's father, who is chairman of the British Ingersoll-Rand Company.

British Lift Ban On Air Raid News

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—A change in the censorship rules announced today will permit news services to cable reports when an air raid is in progress and sirens have been sounded.

Prior to a conference yesterday correspondents were unable to cable such news abroad although it was being published in British papers.

Editorial protests were leveled against the censorship yesterday because it held up for nine hours descriptions of Friday's air battles in the London area from transmission to the United States and Canada.

NAZIS SAY U-BOAT SANK 41,000 TONS

British Report Fewer Losses for Week of August 12.

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that Nazi submarines were continuing successful raids on British merchant vessels and reported that one had sunk 41,000 tons of shipping.

The communique also announced the sinking of the 4,559-ton armed British merchantman Ampleforth and of another steamship of 6,680 tons.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Nine British ships of 32,257 tons were lost during the week ending August 12, it was authoritatively stated today.

In addition, the report said, one 942-ton Allied ship and two neutral vessels, totaling 6,708 tons, were lost, making the week's total twelve ships, with aggregate tonnage of 39,907.

This was only slightly more than half of the acknowledged losses of 75,124 tons for the week ending August 5, which showed thirteen British ships, totaling 60,058 tons; a 1,298-ton Allied ship and five neutral vessels, with a total tonnage of 13,768 sunk.

No additional German shipping losses were reported.

Red Air Force Vs. German?

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—Fear of Russia's air power eventually may compel Adolf Hitler to limit his aerial attacks on Britain, Prime Minister Winston Churchill suggested today in his war report to the House of Commons.

Speaking of the air battle for Britain, the Prime Minister said Hitler would continue the air onslaught "as long as he has the strength and as long as any preoccupations he may have in respect of the Russian air force allow him to do so."

This reference apparently was extemporaneous because it was not in the manuscript of Churchill's address distributed in advance to the press.

American Flyer Buried With Honors in England

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack were draped over the coffin of the first American killed fighting with the Royal Air Force when Pilot Officer William Mead Lindsley Fiske of New York was buried today at Boxgrove, Sussex, with full military honors.

One wreath was sent by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft Production.

Fiske, 29 years old, leader of American Olympic bobsled teams, died on Saturday of injuries received in Friday's air fighting over England.

HORE-BELISHA SEES U.S.-BRITISH UNION

Envisions Merger Such as Was Urged on France.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Leslie Hore-Belisha, former Secretary for War, raised in Commons tonight the possibility of an eventual union between the United States and the British Empire.

Speaking after Prime Minister Churchill had referred to a trend toward British-American co-operation as "rolling along like the Mississippi," Mr. Hore-Belisha declared:

"If that trend should lead to the same kind of consummation as we hoped for in the case of France, namely, an eventual common citizenship—all the evils of this war will have been worth while.

"What the Prime Minister said regarding our relations with the United States atones for many diplomatic omissions."

Planes Bomb Gibraltar

Missiles Fall Near Arsenal and Ship; Second Attack Driven Off

LA LINEA, Spain, Aug. 20 (AP).—The British fortress of Gilbarter was raided today by several planes which dropped bombs near the arsenal and the warship Resolution.

In a second attempted raid a single plane flew over the Rock but fled toward the sea under anti-aircraft fire.

5 Hits On Gibraltar

Algeciras, Spain, Wednesday, Aug. 21 (AP)—Enemy planes scored five direct hits or the center of Gibraltar, Britain's great rock fortress, starting a big fire early today in the fourth raid in twenty-four hours.

British anti-aircraft batteries for the first time brought down a plane as warships joined in the shooting.

The objective struck by the raiders was not immediately determined, but flames and smoke could be observed rising from the center of the rock long after the raiders had fled.

Death Penalty Revived in Norway

TRONDHEIM, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The death penalty, abolished in Norway sixty-five years ago, returned to this German-occupied country today with the execution of Carlos Santi, thirty-five-year-old Norwegian citizen of Italian parentage.

Santi was condemned to death by a German military court which convicted him of having murdered a German air force soldier during a quarrel in Santi's house.

Norway to Register Absentees' Property

OSLO, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—German officials here ordered today the registration of all enemy property in Norway—meaning all property belonging to Norwegians now in Great Britain, France, Holland, Belgium or their colonies.

British Laud 'Our Fat Friends' The Balloons

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 20 — Britain's "fat friends," variously known also as "floating elephants" or "old floppies," or just plain barrage balloons, have won a pat on their broad backs from military experts.

Once dismissed with a laugh by many observers, the great, cable-tethered sausages now are credited with causing Nazi bombers to miss countless targets and with aiding R. A. F. fighters and ground gunners in bagging more than 500 German planes in the past week.

Point To Attacks

R. A. F. officials point to the persistent attacks by German pilots on the big balloons in answering questions as to whether they are effective.

"They are not doing that just for the fun of it," one air expert pointed out.

"They risk expensive Messerschmitt fighters to bring down a bag of rubberized cloth that can be patched up in a jiffy—unless it burns—and put right up in the air in a few hours.

"As a matter of fact the balloons with their trailing cables proved well worth their salt in the past week in [illegible]ng their assigned job—namely, protecting vulnerable points from dive bombers and in making raiders fly at the heights we want them to fly.

Have Less Sky To Watch

"The latter means that we have just that much less sky to watch. We can have our guns trained and our fighters patrolling at certain levels, thanks to our fat friends, the balloons."

The balloons have done a little direct damage, too. Several German planes—and some British—have tangled with their dangling cables and crashed.

Late last night, for example, an R. A. F. plane crashed in the London area after striking a barrage balloon cable. The pilot descended safely by parachute. A bakery set on fire by the plane was badly damaged.

Slow Up Ships

Barrage balloons were said to have done "fairly well" when hoisted from convoyed ships, but at the same time they have disadvantages at sea. They not only mark a convoy for German airmen but slow up the ships with their drag.

Nazi airmen have shot down lots of the balloons, which are strung along the coast, but ground crews quickly get out their big needles and paste for the patching job when there is no fire.

TURKEY REPORTED ASSURING GREECE

Ankara Believes Aid Will Be Swift in Event of War.

ANKARA, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The impression that Turkey will aid Greece unhesitatingly if she is attacked by Italy persisted among foreign observers here today, although Government spokesmen denied that any such assurance had been formally communicated to Greece.

The spokesmen said that the Turkish Charge d'Affaires at Athens had called on Premier John Metaxas yesterday, but only to express his government's condolences over the sinking of the Greek cruiser Helle last Thursday by a submarine of unidentified nationality.

Turkey and Greece are bound by a mutual assistance pact.

Relations between Italy and Greece have been strained since the killing of an Albanian minority leader, Daut Hoggia, some weeks ago.

Government spokesmen here expressed confidence that the Graeco-Italian difficulties soon would be settled amicably.

ATHENS, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Informed spokesmen said today that a two- member Greek trade commission would leave for Berlin on Friday to iron out the details of a recently signed Graeco-German trade agreement.

APOLOGIZE TO SWISS

British Regret Passage of R. A. F. Bombing Planes.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The British Government has expressed its deepest regrets to the Swiss Minister in London for violation of Swiss territory by British bombing planes en route to Germany and Italy, it was announced here today.

A British note apologized for air violations which caused air raid alarms in various parts of Switzerland Sunday night and yesterday morning and three nights last week.

The note did not specifically mention the bombs dropped on the Swiss side of Lake Constance on Sunday night-Monday morning, which cut telephone and telegraph lines when the British attacked German armaments plants along the lake.

The Swiss Minister, however, was informed that Royal Air Force pilots had been instructed to stay out of Swiss territory in flights to and from north Italian industrial centers and south German objectives.

TALKS DEADLOCKED ON TRANSYLVANIA

Rumanians and Hungarians Seek New Orders.

TURNU-SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Rumanian and Hungarian leaders, deadlocked in their dispute over Transylvania, headed home today to consult with their respective governments in an effort to prevent collapse of negotiations for a compromise settlement.

Spokesmen said that the negotiators, who conferred here until the early hours of the morning, were far from an agreement, but held out a faint hope that an understanding might yet be reached.

Hungary has demanded two-thirds of the province she lost to Rumania after the world war be returned to her.

Prospects that the talks would be resumed shortly, however, were seen in the fact that most of the delegates remained here, only the leaders departing for their home capitals.

At nearby Craiova, meanwhile, Rumanian and Hungarian delegations were reported in agreement on all but minor points of Bulgarian demands for Southern Dobruja. A final decision on how much Bulgaria will pay for improvements made in the border area since it was taken over by Rumania since 1913 appeared to be the chief obstacle to full settlement.

Legion Of Honor Purge Reported Due In France

Berlin, Aug. 20 ((AP) Via Radio)—France has decided to "purge" the rolls of its swollen Legion of Honor which contains the names of many foreigners, including Americans, the German radio announced tonight in a dispatch from Vichy.

It quoted French radio officials as declaring:

"There are writers without readers, journalists without fame, actors without a public and heroes without glory on the legion list. If the institution is to be respected it must be thoroughly purged."

Red Cross to Distribute Canned Milk to Parisians

French Agencies Will Do Job; 220,000 Belgians Return

PARIS (via Berlin), Aug. 17 (delayed) (AP).—The American Red Cross announced today that it will distribute canned milk in Paris through two French agencies.

Payne Chatfield Taylor, European delegate of the Red Cross, will leave Paris soon for Berlin and Geneva to consult with authorities in the United States by telephone for the first time since the German occupation.

The Belgian Public Health Ministry has announced that nearly 220,000 Belgian refugees in France have been repatriated in special trains, in addition to others who have gone home by automobile and bicycle. Most of them were in the part of France unoccupied by German forces.

All Belgians should be repatriated by the end of October, officials said. About 45,000 refugees from Luxemburg have been sent home from northern France, and 15,000 others in the south of France are gradually being returned.

Scouts Report Soviet Fortifies Bering Island

Coast Guard Commander, After Alaskan Cruise, Denies Air Base Is Built On Big Diomede

Alameda, Cal., Aug. 20 (AP)—Reports that the U. S. S. R. has fortified Big Diomede Island, in the Bering Sea off Alaska, were discredited today by Commander Harold G. Bradbury, of the Coast Guard cutter Shoshone, just back from a patrol cruise of Alaskan waters.

"So far as I was able to see, there is no fortification whatsoever to rumors that Big Diomede is being fortified as an air and naval base by tthe Russians," Commander Bradbury said.

Big Diomede, Russian-owned, lies just a few miles west of the American-owned Little Diomede Island.

Brought Over By Liner Samaria, Which Reaches Port Two Days Late

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—The two-day overdue British liner Samaria reached New York harbor late today, bringing among its 680 passengers 138 British children slated for wartime adoption in American homes.

The children were the first group brought across the Atlantic under the sponsorship of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children.

It was learned the Cunard White Star liner had been delayed by fog and had stopped at Halifax before proceeding here. The children will be taken to the Children's Home of the Gould Foundation tomorrow. There they will undergo a rest period and medical examinations before being sent to their foster homes.

President Says Roy Howard Rejected Defense Help Bid

Asked Him To Go To South America On Fifth-Column Mission—Reasons For Refusal Given

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 20—President Roosevelt disclosed today that several months ago he asked Roy Howard, editor of the New York World-Telegram, to investigate fifth-column activities in Latin America and that Howard had declined.

During a press conference the President identified Howard as the private individual he had in mind when he said in his third-term acceptance address that, with one exception, the persons he had asked to help in the defense program had agreed to do so.

The President said he had asked Howard to go to South America by plane, on a forty-day trip, and meet editors and Government officials he knew when he represented the United Press there. Mr. Roosevelt said he asked Howard to talk to them confidentially, on behalf of the United States, and find out what their own personal opinions were on fifth-column activities.

But he said it was not true that he had asked Howard to set up a propaganda bureau in Latin America.

The President did not disclose why Howard had not accepted the assignment.

Howard's Side Given

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—G. B. Parker, editor-in-chief of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, today issued the following statement in connection with President Roosevelt's assertion that Roy Howard, chairman of the newspaper chain, had turned down an offer to help on the defense program:

"Mr. Howard is in the Far East for the Scripps-Howard newspapers. His trip will include Australia, China, Japan, the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines, and he plans to write for our papers his impressions of the critical Oriental situation.

"He could not be reached today but a check with his office gives what seems to me to be an adequate statement on the matter referred to in the Hyde Park Presidential conference Tuesday.

"In a letter to President Roosevelt dated last June 5 Mr. Howard said:

" 'While I fully appreciate the difficulty of any man appraising accurately his own competency, it is less difficult for one to judge his own incompetency.

" 'It has been twenty years since I spent any time in South America, other than a brief round trip by air. During those years I have lost contacts with the politics and the personalities of the continent. Statesmen and journalists with whom I formerly had contact have passed from the picture. As I speak neither Spanish nor Portugese, the establishment of new contacts would be a slow process.

" 'It would be erroneous to believe that my personal affairs played any part in my decision. No personal considerations ever have or ever will interfere with my rendering to you, or anyone in your position, any public service for which I am qualified. I am sure you must know that.

" 'So long as American democracy continues I believe that our press will have a function that is at the same time an obligaton. I believe that without attaching too much importance to my position in American journalism there is a modicum of reason for my belief that in such times as these I may be in a better position to render some service through a medium with which I have had forty years' experience, than through one with which I am wholly unfamiliar.' "

Jan Masaryk Asserts Continuance Of British Blockade Is Essential

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of the Czecho-Slovak Government-in-exile, declared today that the British blockade should be sternly carried out against Germany despite the suffering of Europe's conquered peoples.

"It is not easy for me to say this," declared the 54-year-old Foreign Minister, speaking as an unofficial visitor in the United States.

"My own people are among those who may suffer. But to discontinue the blockade at this point would certainly be difficult to explain to the British, who are standing with their backs to the wall, fighting for the survival of civilization."

Masaryk, Czecho-Slovakian Minister to London for fifteen years before he resigned in protest against the Munich pact in 1938, said he believed no famine problem could arise in the conquered states if food stocks found there at the time of occupation were restored by the Nazis.

Device To Direct Torpedoes To Their Goal Offered To U. S.

Inventor Says German Government Made $200,000 Proposal, But Was Refused

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 20—Charles Courtney, master locksmith, today lifted a cardboard cover, exposed what looked like the inside of a radio and announced it was a device by which torpedoes could be directed through air and water—drawn to their goals by the human electricity of the victims.

The device could also be used, he said, to protect arsenals and the like from saboteurs and to flash warnings of attempted coastal invasions. It was perfected by him and Louis Junco, a Cuban engineer, over a four-and-one-half-year period and, said Courtney, it brought them an offer of $200,000 from the German Government only last Wednesday.

"But we will not sell," he asserted, "all we want to do is give this to the United States Government."

A former United States marine, Courtney is a collector of ancient and medieval locks and keys and once nearly lost his life as a diver attempting to salvage a British cruiser on the bottom of the North Sea. Last December, he told police, he had been attacked by three men and robbed of secret plans for "German magnetic mines" left in his shop by a customer.

In the presence of three army representatives and one from the navy, Courtney demonstrated his machine.

"You could put this unit in a torpedo, aim it at a ship carrying human beings, and it would keep after that ship no matter how it zig-zagged," Courtney claimed. "The humans would generate electricity, which would activate and steer the torpedo irresistibly to the ship. It's almost human."

"Suppose the ship that discharged one of your torpedoes has more humans on it than the enemy ship—wouldn't the torpedo turn around and blast the ship from which it was sent?" asked one observer.

"Yes," admitted Courtney, "but that would have to be worked out. That's a detail. After all, the basic principle is here. It's 'controlled induction.' "

His aerial torpedo, Courtney claimed, could also follow—by sound—a plane indefinitely so long as the motor was running and it carried a human being.

"But if the motor was shut off?"—asked a spectator.

"Then the torpedo would fall," Courtney replied, "but, of course, these are all details which will have to be worked out in laboratory."

Nazis Take Passports Of Captured Americans

Ambulance Drivers Warn That Credentials May Be Used By Spies To Enter Country

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Germany is taking United States passports away from all Americans captured in military operations, a group of returning ambulance drivers said today, adding, "Don't think they won't use our passports to get spies in here."

Spokesman for the group of drivers who were taken prisoner in France and who arrived home on the Portuguese ship Quanza was Arthur Stratton, of Clinton, Mass.

Most of the drivers were captured June 23 at Mont Repos, France. The Germans treated them fairly well billeting them with captured French officers, but took their passports. The men were released July 14.

Also in the group were William T. Ripley, 27, of Montclair, N. J., and Paul Brooks Willis, of Albuquerque, N. M. All were members of the General Pershing ambulance unit of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

Canadian Parliament Will Not Be Recalled

Special Session Not Needed In Setting Up Joint U. S.-Dominion Defense Board

Ottawa, Aug. 20 (AP)—The setting up of a joint defense board by the Canadian and American governments involves nothing which necessitates a special early reconvening of Parliament, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King stated tonight.

Unless something turns up, he said, Parliament will not meet before November 5, the date to which it adjourned two weeks ago.

That board, the Prime Minister emphasized, was fundamentally and essentially for the study of common defense-problems. He said it involved no commitments at present and it would merely study the merits and demerits of various defense proposals of mutual concern to the two governments and probably make some recommendations. Action on those recommendations would then depend on the governments at Washington and Ottawa.

U. S. SURPLUS ARMS REACH ENGLAND

600,000 Rifles and 500 Guns Pierce Blockade.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill gave the first official word today of the safe arrival in England of surplus American Army munitions valued at $37,000,000 which the administration released nearly three months ago.

Over shipping routes kept secret, world war artillery, rifles, machine guns and ammunition have been moving to England since they were turned over to the British Government when the Allied armies were defeated in France.

The munitions included 600,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, more than 500 world war 75-millimeter field guns, a large number of machine guns and an undisclosed amount of ammunition.

The British Government negotiated for the purchase when the British forces in France were evacuated after losing the bulk of their equipment and England appeared to be in desperate need of weapons of all kinds to repel a threatened invasion.

The shipments were handled by the United States Steel Export Company under an arrangement whereby the company took title to the ordnance from the War Department to avoid a direct sale by this Government to Great Britain.

Although they were considered largely obsolete by modern standards, the weapons were described officially as usable.

Diamond Cutting Firm To Set Up in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The Commerce Department disclosed today a message from Russel M. Brooks, American Consul at Johannesburg, South Africa, saying that one of the largest diamond-cutting concerns in South Africa was organizing an American subsidiary to take over business formerly done in Antwerp, Amsterdam and London.

The report called the transfer "an important step in the general trend to make this country the world's diamond center."

Indian Prince Gives £100,000 for Planes

The Indian Prince of Hyderabad, reputedly the wealthiest person in the world, contributed £100,000 today to England to purchase fifty American fighting planes, according to a British broadcast heard here by NBC.

WELLES APPROVES BULLITT'S SPEECH

Acting Secretary Says Envoy Acted Commendably.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today that it was highly desirable for an Ambassador such as William C. Bullitt to tell publicly of the dangers he foresaw for the United States on the basis of what he had seen in warring Europe. Mr. Bullitt, Ambassador to France, said on Sunday in a speech at Philadelphia that the United States was in danger of attack from Germany and he advocated the sale of destroyers to Great Britain.

The speech aroused a storm in the Senate, where Senator Clark, Democrat, of Florida, and others called it "very little short of treason." Mr. Bullitt was accused in senatorial speeches of seeking to promote a dictatorship and of urging American to enter the war.

Mr. Welles, asked for comment on the Bullitt speech at his press conference, said that this country clearly was going through a critical and grave period and that when an Ambassador who had been a witness to many events abroad during the last few years wished to tell his own people of his feeling of danger, it seemed to him (Welles) that it was highly desirable that he do so. Copies of the speech were distributed through State Department channels.

HEAT BOTHERS DUKE

Windsors Seek House Close to Seashore in Nassau.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Oppressed by the heat of midsummer Nassau, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were reported today seeking a temporary home away from official Government House and close to the seashore.

One place mentioned in reports of their house-hunting was Shangri-La, palatial winter residence of Alexis Wenner-Gren, Swedish industrialist, where Greta Garbo was a guest last season. The estate is near the west end of Hog Island, across the harbor from Nassau proper and not far from Paradise Beach.

Government House, built 139 years ago on a hill in the heart of Nassau, is surrounded by cool, formal gardens, but the dense residential areas surrounding keep the coolest breezes away. A wing provides an executive office for Edward, the new Governor.

Plans for ferrying the fighting ships across the water, Col. Brooks explained, already have been carefully drawn.

"The planes," he said, "will be flown in groups from a well prepared base in Canada to a station in the British Isles. Naturally the planes will be transported as safely as possible, although that will take them a little further than the direct route, which is 1,985 miles.

"Each ship will have a pilot, co-pilot and radio operator. The lead ship will have more instruments and a celestial navigator."

Base pay offered is $500 for the pilot, $400 for co-pilot and $300 for radio operator.

According to Col. Brooks, the jobs are on a civilian basis but with salaries to be exempt from all British taxation. Two trans-Atlantic trips a month would be guaranteed and the crews would be flown back to the United States.

The ferrying job in England, at a base wage of $150 a week, is for flying ships from the factory to the field or from field to field in what is described as daylight and safety.

Col. Brooks is known to every veteran flyer in the Southwest. In 1937 he purchased airplanes and obtained pilots to organize the Honduras Air Force, which he headed in action against a group of revolutionists, who rose against President Tiburcio Carias.

Will Ferry Planes to England

Col. Brooks Offers American Flyers $500 to Take Aircraft From Canada.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—An offer of $500 per trip to all takers to ferry planes across the turbulent North Atlantic to England had the Oklahoma flying fraternity buzzing today.

Arriving unheralded, Col. William C. Brooks, flying soldier of fortune, outlined this proposition and two alternatives, according to aviators he interviewed. For the pilots he could not reach during his stay, he left interview blanks and posters.

The supplemental offers were: 1—Ferrying jobs in England and, 2—Commissions in the Canadian Royal Air Force with assurances that those enlisting would serve only as instructors and see no foreign service.

These offers bolstered reports current since the war began that England eventually would seek to ferry American-made ships across the ocean, taking a chance on losing only a few through crashes or a Canadian interment camp in northern Ontario.

Fifth columnists, at least one of them a woman, were believed by Canadian authorities to have aided in the escape.

The prisoner, brought here from England, crawled to freedom through a three-foot high tunnel built directly under one of the guard rooms and braced efficiently by timber which police said was stolen piece by piece from workmen building additions to the camp barracks.

So carefully was the tunnel made that authorities believe a general escape may have been planned.

Perhaps most amazing of all was the discovery of a radio transmitting set concealed in the ceiling of the barracks over his bed, over which the prisoner apparently planned his escape with outside help. The tunnel extended fifty yards from an ice house in which the prisoner worked.

Police said that they were hunting for a car in which a woman driver was seen heading toward Toronto with a man who kept his face covered from passersby. The car previously had been seen parked in the vicinity of the camp for some hours.

Day's Communiques of War Powers

British

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Three more enemy aircraft (in addition to those reported earlier) have been shot down today by our fighters, one of them by a Polish squadron of the Royal Air Force.

It is now established that eight more enemy aircraft were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire during the air fighting on Sunday, and that an enemy flying boat was shot down by anti-aircraft fire off the northeast coast shortly before midnight last night.

An Air Ministry and Home Security Ministry communique:

During this morning enemy activities over this country were comparatively slight. Bombs were dropped in two towns, one in Essex and the other in South Wales. In both places houses were hit and some persons were injured. A small number of these casualities were fatal. Bombs were also dropped on a South Wales port, the damage done being small.

This afternoon the enemy approached the southeast coast in stronger force and an East Anglian town was attacked, but no casualties so far have been reported and the damage was confined to broken windows.

The main objective of the afternoon attacks appears to have been an airdrome on the south coast, but the enemy showed no desire to press home the attack and very few of his aircraft succeeded in penetrating our defenses. No damage was done.

Reports received up to 5 p. m. show that three enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters, bringing the total for the day to four.

An Admiralty communique:

Skua aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm yesterday located and attacked two enemy transports of about 300 tons in Haugesund, Norway. Two direct hits with bombs were obtained on one of the transports.

Other Skua aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm carried out an attack on oil tanks north of Haugesund.

All aircraft returned safely.

An Air Ministry communique:

Blenheim aircraft of the Coastal Command caused many fires last night when they raided the airdrome at St. Omer in North France. The leader of the formation straddled the airdrome with his bombs. There was a big explosion on the ground, followed by several small ones. Fierce fires broek out. Further salvos of incendiary bombs increased the fires until most of the air field was cloaked in flame.

The Blenheims took the enemy completely by surprise. They found a flare path lighted in readiness for returning Nazi aircraft. One Blenheim pilot, mistaken for a German, was signaled to come in a nd land. He replied with a lead of bombs. The flare path and tarmac apron) in front of a line of hangars as revealed by the flashes of bombs were hit repeatedly.

A Blenheim which could not find its primary target was approaching Cap Gris Nez on the return journey when a concentration of German searchlights opened up on him. He dived and dropped all his bombs on them. The lights went out and fires started on the headland.

An Air Ministry communique:

Yesterday our bombers carried out daylight reconnaissances over Holland and over the North Sea. An anti-aircraft position near Amsterdam and the airdrome at Flushing were bombed. One of our aircraft did not return.

During the night, thirty enemy airdromes in Germany and enemy-occupied territory were attacked. Other aircraft bombed the naval base at Kiel, an oil refinery at Hanover, the power station at Zschornewitz, north of Leipzig, and a number of key points on the enemy's line of communic tions in the Ruhr and northwest Germany.

Oil tanks at Ambes, near Bordeaux, were also successfully attacked. Two of our aircraft were lost in the operation.

An Air Ministry communique:

During the night enemy aircraft operated for the most part singly but over widespread areas of England and South Wales and also over a few districts in Scotland. Damage was done to houses and other property in some towns in northeastern England and the Midland and in a town in southwestern England. The majority of the bombs, however, fell in rural areas, causing very little damage. A number of casualties were caused, some of which were fatal.

Reports received of yesterday's operations confirm that another enemy aircraft was destroyed by our fighters, making the total five for the day. Three of our fighters were lost, but the pilots of two are safe.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 20 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

During the night of Aug. 18-19, our bombers attacked Derna, western Libya port. A salvo of bombs was observed to fall near a harbor jetty and shipping. Bombs were dropped on a camp and petrol dump at Bir El Gobbi air base and the El Gubbi Satellite airdrome also was attacked.

Yesterday three enemy aircraft approached to within thirty-five miles of Malta, but made off when our fighters went up. Later, another small force was reported, but it also turned away when our fighters took off.

Aircraft of the R. A. F. successfully covered the evacuation from British Somaliland.

BERLIN, Aug. 20 (AP).—A high command communique:

Our submarines reported new successes. One U-boat sank the 5,576-ton (British) armed merchantman Ampleforth. Another downed a 6-800-ton enemy steamer. A third, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Cohauss, who already had reported as a partial result the sinking of 32,300 tons of shipping, now reports a total of 41,000 tons sunk.

During armed reconnaissances our air force effectively bombarded armament plants, gasoline tanks, railways, ports, airdromes and troop concentrations, especially in the Counties of Suffolk, Norfolk and Oxford.

At night our attacks were directed at airports in southern England as well as against port facilities and big oil tanks along the British and southwestern coast.

Enemy planes last night dropped bombs on residential sections and open fields at various places. Several civilians were killed or injured and several houses destroyed.

Thanks to the activity of our air protection service as well as local security operations, the damage caused at several places was quickly repaired.

Five enemy planes were shot down by pursuit planes and anti-aircraft. Two of our own planes are missing.

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—A high command communique:

The last resistance of the enemy rearguard was broken yesterday afternoon, Aug. 19, and our troops occupied Berbera, the capital of British Somaliland. Before fleeing to their ships, the British set fire to a part of the city.

One entire camel corps, well armed and well equiped, gave itself up at our command at Hargeisa, surrendering and turning over its arms.

At Galabet, one of our battalions attacked by surprise and routed enemy formations, capturing munitions, animals and prisoners.

In Northern Africa the enemy bombed a hospital at Berna, causing one death and injuries to twenty-two among the patients.

A submarine of unknown nationality ran into one of our minefields in the Dodacanese Islands; a wide patch of oil at the place of the explosion led to the belief the vessel sank.

Text of Prime Minister Churchill's Speech on War's Progress and U. S. Defense Plans

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's speech today to the House of Commons follows:

Almost a year has passed since the war began. It is natural for us, therefore, to pause on our journey at this milestone and survey the dark, wide field. It is also useful to compare the first year of this second war against German aggression with its forerunner a quarter of a century ago.

Although this war is, in fact, only a continuation of the last, very great differences in its character are apparent. In the last war millions of men fought by hurling enormous masses of steel at one another. Men and shells was the cry and prodigious slaughter was the consequence.

In this war nothing of this kind has yet appeared. It is a conflict of strategy, of organization, of technical operators, science, mechanics and morale.

Year's Casualties Contrasted

The British casualties in the first twelve months of the great war amounted to 365,000. In this war British killed, wounded, prisoners and missing, including civilians, are about 92,000, but of these a large proportion are alive as prisoners of war. Throughout all Europe for one man killed or wounded in this first year perhaps five were killed or wounded in 1914-15.

The slaughter is but a fraction, but the consequences to the belligerents have been even more deadly. We have seen great countries with powerful armies dashed out of coherent existence in a few weeks. We have seen the French Republic and the renowned French Army beaten into complete and total submission with less than the casualties which they suffered in any one of half a dozen of the battles of 1914-18.

The entire body—it might almost seem at times the soul—of France has succumbed to physical effects incomparably less terrible than those which were sustained with fortitude and undaunted will-power twenty-five years ago.

Although up to the present the loss of life has been mercifully diminished the decisions reached in the course of the struggle are even more profound upon the fate of nations than anything which has ever happened since barbaric times.

Moves are made upon scientific and strategic boards, advantages are gained by mechanical means as the result of which scores of millions of men become incapable of further resistance, or judge themselves incapable of further resistance, and a fearful game of chess proceeds from check to mate by which the unhappy players seem to be inexorably bound.

Entire Populations Involved

There is another and far more obvious difference from 1914. The whole of the warring nations are involved—not only soldiers, but the entire population; men, women and children.

The fronts are everywhere. The trenches are dug in the towns and the streets. Every village is fortified. Every road is barred. The front line runs through the factories. The workmen are soldiers, with different weapons but the same courage.

There seems to be every reason to believe that this new kind of war is well suited to the genius and resources of the British Nation and Empire, and that once we get properly equipped and properly started a war of this kind will be more favorable to us than the somber mass slaughters of the Somme and Passchendaele.

If it is a case of whole nations fighting and suffering together, that ought to suit us, too, because we are the most united of all the nations, because we entered the war upon the national will and with our eyes open, because we have been nursed in freedom and individual responsibility and are the products, not of totalitarian uniformity, but of tolerance and variety.

If all these qualities are turned, as they are being turned, to the arts of war, we may be able to show the enemy quite a lot of things they have not thought of yet.

British Science Leads

Since the Germans drove out the Jews and lowered their technical standards, our science is definitely ahead of theirs.

Our geographical position, the command of the sea and the friendship of the United States, enables us to draw resources from the whole world and to manufacture weapons of war of every kind, but especially of the superfine kinds, on a scale hitherto practiced only by Nazi Germany.

Hitler is now sprawled over Europe. Our offensive springs are being slowly compressed, and we must resolutely and methodically prepare ourselves for the campaigns of 1941 and 194

Two or three years are not a long time, even in our short precarious lives. They are nothing in the history of nations. And when we are doing the finest thing in the world, and have the honor to be the sole champion of the liberty of all Europe, we must not grudge these years, or weary as we toil and struggle through them.

It does not follow that our energies in future years will be exclusively confined to defending ourselves and our possessions. Many opportunities may lie open to amphibious power, and we must be ready to take advantage of them.

Deeds, Not Words, Will Tell

One of the ways to bring this war to a speedy end is to convince the enemy, not by words but by deeds, that we have both the will and the means not only to go on indefinitely but to strike heavy and unexpected blows.

The road to victory may not be so long as we expect. But we have no right to count upon this. Be it long or short, rough or smooth, we mean to reach our journey's end.

It is our intention to maintain and enforce a strict blockade not only of Germany but of Italy, France and all other countries that have fallen into the German power.

I read in the papers that Herr Hitler has also proclaimed a strict blockade of the British islands. No one can complain of that. I remember the Kaiser doing it in the last war.

What, indeed, would be a matter of general complaint would be if we were to prolong the agony of all Europe by allowing food to go in to nourish the Nazis and aid their war effort, or to allow food to go in to the subjugated peoples which would certainly be pillaged off them by their Nazi conquerors.

There have been many proposals, founded on the highest motives, that food should be allowed to pass the blockade for the relief of these populations. I regret that we must refuse these requests.

Nazis' New Economy

The Nazis are boasting that they have created a new unified economy in Europe. They have repeatedly stated that they possess ample reserves of food and that they can feed their captive peoples.

In a German broadcast of June 27 it was said that while Mr. Hoover's plan for relieving France, Belgium and Holland deserved commendation, the German forces had already taken the necessary steps. We know that in Norway, when the German troops went in, there were food supplies to last for a year. We know that Poland, though not a rich country, usually produced sufficient food for her people.

Moreover, the other countries which Herr Hitler has invaded all held considerable stock when the Germans entered and are themselves very substantial food producers.

If all this food is not available now it can only be because it has been removed to feed the people of Germany and to give them increased rations there during the last few months. At this season of the year, and for some months to come, there is the least chance of scarcity, as the harvest has just been gathered in.

Foods Make War Materials

There is another aspect. Many of the most valuable foods are essential to the manufacture of vital war materials. Fats are used to make explosives, potatoes to make the alcohol for motor spirit. The plastic materials now so largely used for aircraft construction are made of milk.

If the Germans use these commodities to help them bomb our women and children, rather than to feed the populations who produce them, we may be sure that any imported food would go the same way, directly or indirectly, or be employed to relieve the enemy of the responsibilities he has assumed.

Let Hitler bear his responsibilities to the full, and let the peoples of Europe who groan beneath his yoke aid in every way the coming of the day when it will be broken. Meanwhile we can arrange in advance for the speedy entry of food into any part of the enslaved area, when this part has been wholly cleared of German forces and has genuinely regained its freedom.

We shall do our best to encourage the building up of reserves of food all over the world, so that there will always be held out before the eyes of the peoples of Europe, including—I say it deliberately—the German Austrian peoples, the certainty that the shattering of the Nazi power will bring to them all immediate food, freedom and peace.

Cataract of Disaster

Rather more than a quarter of a year has passed since the new government came into power in this country. What a cataract of disaster has poured out upon us since then!

The trustful Dutch overwhelmed, their beloved and respected sovereign driven into exile, the peaceful city of Rotterdam the scene of a massacre as hideous as anything in the Thirty Years War, Belgium invaded and beaten down, our own fine expeditionary force, which King Leopold called to his rescue, cut off and almost captured, escaping, as it seemed, only by a miracle and with the loss of all its equipment; our ally France out, Italy in against us.

All France in the power of the enemy, all its arsenals and vast masses of military material converted to the enemy's use; a puppet government set up at Vichy which may at any moment be forced to become our foe; the whole western seaboard of Europe, from the North Cape to the Spanish frontier, in German hands; all the ports, all the airfields upon this immense front employed against us as potential springboards of invasion; the German air power, numerically so far outstripping ours, has been brought so close to our island that what we used to dread has come to pass, and the hostile bombers not only reach our shores in a few minutes and from many directions, but can be escorted by their fighters.

If we had been confronted at the beginning of May with such a prospect, it would have seemed incredible that at this point of a period of horror and disaster we should stand erect, sure of ourselves, masters of our fate and with the conviction of final victory burning unquenchable in our hearts.

Britain Stronger Than Ever

Few would have believed we could survive; none would have believed that we should today not only feel stronger, but should actually be stronger, than we have ever been before.

Let us see what has happened on the other side of the scales: The British nation and the British Empire, finding themselves alone, stood undismayed against disaster. No one flinched or wavered; nay, some who formerly thought of peace now think only of war. Our people are united and resolved as they have never been before. Death and ruin have become small things compared with the shame of defeat or failure in duty.

We cannot tell what lies ahead. It may be that even greater ordeals lie before us. We will face whatever is coming to us. We are sure of ourselves and of our cause. Here, then, is the supreme fact.

Meanwhile we have not only fortified our hearts but our island. We have rearmed and rebuilt our armies in a degree which would have been deemed impossible a few months ago. We have ferried across the Atlantic, thanks to our friends over there, an immense mass of munitions of all kinds—cannon, rifles, machine guns, cartridges and shells—all safely landed without the loss of a gun or a round. The output of our own factories, working as they have never worked before, has poured forth.

2,000,000 Men Armed

The whole British Army is at home. More than 2,000,000 determined men have rifles and bayonets in their hands tonight, and three-quarters of them are in regular military formations. We have never had armies like this in our island in time of war. The whole island bristles against invaders from the sea or from the air.

As I explained to the House in the middle of June, the stronger our army at home the larger must be the invading expedition; and the larger the invading expedition the less difficult will be the task of the navy in detecting its assembly and in intercepting and destroying it on passage, and the greater would be the difficulty of feeding and supplying the invaders if ever they landed in the teeth of continuous naval and air attack upon their communications.

As in Nelson's day, the maxim holds—our first line of defense is the enemy's ports. Now air reconnaissance and photography have brought to an old principle a new and potent aid.

Our navy is far stronger than at the beginning of the war. The great flow of new construction set on foot at the outbreak is now beginning to come in. We hope our friends across the ocean will send us a timely reinforcement to bridge the gap between the peace flotillas of 1939 and the war flotillas of 1941.

Situation on the Seas

The seas and oceans are open. The U-boats are contained. The magnetic mine is mastered.

The merchant tonnage under the British flag after a year of unlimited U-boat war, after eight months of intensive mining attack, is larger than when we began. We have, in addition, under our control, 4,000,000 tons of shipping from the captive countries, which has taken refuge here or in the harbors of the empire.

Our stocks of food of all kinds are many times as great as in the days of peace.

Why do I say all this? Not, assuredly, to boast; not to give the slightest countenance to complacency. The dangers we face are still enormous. But so are our advantages and resources.

I recount them because the people have a right to know that there are solid grounds for the confidence we feel, and that we have good reason to believe ourselves capable, as I said in a very dark hour two months ago, of continuing the war, if necessary alone, if necessary for years.

I say it because the fact that the British Empire stands invincible and that nazidom can still be resisted will kindle again the spark of hope in the breasts of hundreds of millions of downtrodden or despairing men and women throughout Europe and far beyond its bounds, and that from these sparks there will presently come a cleansing and devouring flame.

The Present Great Battle

The great air battle which has been in progress over this island for the last few weeks has recently attained a high intensity. It is too soon to attempt to assign limits either to the scale or duration of the great air battle. We must certainly expect that greater efforts will be made by the enemy than any he has so far put forth. Hostile air fields are still being developed in France and the low countries and the movement of squadrons and material for attacking us is still proceeding.

It is quite plain that Herr Hitler could not admit defeat in his air attack on Great Britain without most serious injury. If, after all these boastings and blood-curdling threats and lurid accounts trumpeted round the world of the damage he has inflicted, of the vast numbers of our air force he has shot down, so he says, with so little loss to himself; after tales of panic-stricken British couched in their holes, cursing the plutocratic government which has led them to such a plight—his whole air onslaught were forced tamely to peter out, the Fuehrer's reputation for veracity of statement might be seriously impugned.

We may be sure, therefore, that he will continue as long as he has the strength and as long as any preoccupations he may have in respect of the Russian air force allow him to do so.

Fighting Favors British

On the other hand, the conditions and course of the fighting have so far been favorable to us.

I told the House two months ago that whereas in France our fighter aircraft were wont to inflict a loss of two or three to one upon the Germans, and in the fighting at Dunkirk, which was a kind of no man's land, of about three or four to one, we expected that in an attack on this island we should achieve a larger ratio. This has certainly come true.

It must also be remembered that all the enemy machines and pilots which are shot down over our island or the seas which surround it are either destroyed or captured, whereas a considerable proportion of our machines and also of our pilots are saved, and soon again come into action.

A vast and admirable system of salvage directed by the Ministry of Aircraft Production ensures the speediest return to the fighting line of damaged machines and the most provident and speedy use of all the spare parts and material.

At the same time the splendid—nay, astounding—increase in the output and repair of British aircraft and engines, which Lord Beaverbrook has achieved by a genius of organization and drive which looks like magic, has given us overflowing reserves of every type of aircraft and an ever-mounting stream of production, both in quantity and quality.

Nazi Output Far Exceeded

The enemy is, of course, far more numerous than we are. But our new production already largely exceeds his, and the American production is only just beginning to flow in. Our bomber and fighter strength after all this fighting is larger than it has ever been.

We hope and believe that we shall be able to continue the struggle indefinitely and as long as the enemy pleases; and the longer it continues the more rapid will be our approach, first toward that parity and then into that superiority in the air upon which, in a large measure, the decision of the war depends.

The gratitude of every home in our island, in our empire, and indeed throughout the world, except in the abodes of the guilty, goes out to the British airmen who, undaunted by odds, unwearied in their constant challenge and mortal danger, are turning the tide of world war by their prowess and by their devotion. Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few.

All hearts go out to the fighter pilots whose brilliant actions we see with our own eyes day after day; but we must never forget that all the time, night after night, month after month, our bomber squadrons travel far into Germany, find their targets in the darkness by the highest navigational skill, aim their attacks—often under the heaviest fire, often with heavy loss—with deliberate, careful discrimination, and inflict shattering blows upon the whole of the technical and war-making structure of the Nazi power.

On no part of the Royal Air Force does the weight of the war fall more heavily than on the daylight bombers, who will play an invaluable part in the case of invasion and whose unflinching zeal it has been necessary in the meanwhile, on numerous occasions, to restrain.

We are able to verify the results of bombing military targets in Germany, not only by reports which reach us through many sources, but also by photograph.

Air the Way to Victory

I have no hesitation in saying that this process of bombing the military industries and communications of Germany, and the air bases and storage depots from which we are attacked—and which will continue upon an ever-increasing scale until the end of the war and may in another year attain dimensions hitherto undreamed of—affords one, at least, of the surest, if not the shortest, of all the roads to victory.

Even if the Nazi legions stood triumphant on the Black Sea, or indeed upon the Caspian; even if Hitler was at the gates of India, it would profit him nothing if at the same time the entire economic and scientific apparatus of German war power lay shattered and pulverized at home.

The fact that the invasion of this island upon a large scale has become a far more difficult operation with every week that has passed since we saved our army at Dunkirk, and our very great preponderance of sea power, enable us to turn our eyes and to turn our strength toward the Mediterranean and against that other enemy who, without the slightest provocation, coldly and deliberately, for greed and gain, stabbed France in the back in the moment of her agony and is now marching against us in Africa.

The defection of France has, of course, been deeply damaging to our position in what is called, somewhat oddly, the Middle East. In the defense of Somaliland, for instance, we had counted upon strong French forces attacking the Italians from Jibuti. We had counted also upon the use of the French naval and air bases in the Mediterranean, and particularly upon the North African shore.

French Could Have Fought On

We had counted upon the French Fleet. Even though Metropolitan France was temporarily overrun there was no reason why the French Navy, substantial parts of the French Army, and the French Empire overseas should not have continued the struggle at our side.

Shielded by overwhelming seapower, possessed of invaluable strategic bases and of ample funds, France might have remained one of the great combatants in the struggle. By so doing, France would have preserved the continuity of her life and the French Empire might have advanced with the British Empire to the rescue of the independence and integrity of the French motherland.

In our own case, if we had been put in the terrible position of France—now happily impossible, although of course it would have been the duty of all war leaders to fight on here to the end—it would also have been their duty, as I indicated in my speech of June 4, to provide as far as possible for the naval security of Canada and our Dominions, and to make sure they had the means to carry on the struggle from beyond the oceans.

Most of the other countries that have been overrun by Germany for the time being have perservered valiantly and faithfully. The Czechs, the Poles, the Norwegians, the Dutch, the Belgians are still in the field, sword in hand, recognized by Great Britain and the United States as the sole representative authorities and lawful governments of their respective States.

Crime of "Men of Vichy"

That France alone should lie prostrate at this moment is the crime, not of a great and noble nation, but of what are called the men of Vichy.

We have profound sympathy with the French people. Our old comradeship with France is not dead. In General de Gaulle and his gallant band that comradeship takes an effective form. These free Frenchmen have been condemned to death by Vichy, but the day will come, as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow, when their names will be held in honor and graven in stone in the streets and villages of a France restored in a liberated Europe into its full freedom and ancient fame.

But this conviction which I feel of the future cannot affect the immediate problems which confront us in the Mediterranean and in Africa.

It had been decided some time before the beginning of the war to defend the protectorate of Somaliland. That policy was changed when the French gave in, and when our small forces there—a few battalions, a few guns—were attacked by all the Italian troops—nearly two divisions—which had formerly faced the French at Jibuti. It was right to withdraw our troops virtually intact for action elsewhere.

Far larger operations no doubt impend in the Middle East theatre and I shall certainly not attempt to discuss or prophesy about their probable course. We have large armies and many means of reinforcing them. We have the complete sea command of the Eastern Mediterranean. We intend to do our best to give a good account of ourselves and to discharge faithfully and resolutely all our obligations and duties.

Promises to Allies

A good many people have written to me to ask me to make on this occasion a fuller statement of our war aims and of the kind of peace we wish to make than is contained in the very considerable declaration which was made early in the Autumn.

Since then we have made common cause with Norway, Holland and Belgium. We have recognized the Czech government of Dr. Benes, and we have told General de Gaulle that our success will carry with it the restoration of France.

I do not think it would be wise at this moment, while the battle rages and the war is still in its earlier stage, to embark upon elaborate speculation about the future shape which should be given to Europe or the new securities which must be arranged to spare mankind the miseries of a third world war.

The ground is not new. It has been frequently traversed and explored and many ideas are held in common by all good men and all free men. But before we can undertake the task of rebuilding we have not only to be convinced ourselves but convince all other countries that the Nazi tyranny is going to be finally broken.

The right to guide the course of world history is the noblest prize of victory. We are still toiling up the hill. We have not yet breasted the crest line. We cannot survey the landscape or even imagine what its condition will be in that longed-for hour.

The task which lies before us immediately is at once more simple and more stern. I hope, indeed, I pray, that we shall not be found unworthy of our victory if after toil and tribulation it is granted to us. For the rest we have to gain the victory.

There is, however, one direction in which we can see a little more clearly ahead. We have to think not only for ourselves but for the lasting security of the cause and principles for which we are fighting.

Air Bases for United States

Some months ago we came to the conclusion that the interests of the United States and of the British Empire both required that the United States should have facilities for the naval and air defense of the Western Hemisphere against the attack of a Nazi power which might have acquired temporary but lengthy control of a large part of Western Europe and its resources.

We have therefore decided, spontaneously and without being asked or offered any inducement, to inform the Government of the United States that we should be glad to place such defense facilities at their disposal by leasing suitable sites in our transatlantic possessions for their greater security against the unmeasured dangers of the future.

The principle of association of interests for common purposes between Great Britain and the United States had developed even before the war in the various agreements reached about certain small islands in the Pacific Ocean which have become important as air-fueling points. In all this line of thought we found ourselves in very close harmony.

Presently we learned that anxiety was also felt in the United States about the air and naval defense of their Atlantic seaboard, and President Roosevelt has made it clear that he would like to discuss with us and with the Dominion of Canada and with Newfoundland the development of American naval and air facilities in Newfoundland and in the West Indies.

No Transfer of Sovereignty

There is of course no question of any transference of sovereignty or of any action being taken against the wishes of the various colonies concerned, but for our part His Majesty's Government is entirely willing to accord defense facilities to the United States on a ninety-nine-year lease-hold basis, and we feel sure that our interests no less than theirs and the interests of the colonies themselves and of Canada and Newfoundland will be served thereby.

Undoubtedly this process means that these two great organizations of the English-speaking democracies, the British Empire and the United States, will have to be somewhat mixed up together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage.

For my own part, looking out upon the future, I do not view the process with any misgivings. No one can stop it. Like the Mississippi, it just keeps rolling along. Let it roll. Let it roll on in full flood, inexorable, irresistible, to broader lands and better days.

LONDON, AUG.20-(AP)-A GROUP OF CONSERVATIVE MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT INTRODUCED A MOTION TONIGHT ASKING THE GOVERNMENT TO REDUCE THE 99-YEAR PERIOD FOR WHICH BRITAIN IS READY TO LEASE SOME OF ITS WESTERN HEMISPHERE TERRITORY TO THE UNITED STATES FOR DEFENSE BASES.

A SHORTER PERIOD OF FROM 15 TO 21 YEARS WAS SUGGESTED AS BEING "OF SUFFICIENT DURATION TO PROTECT THE UNITED STATES AGAINST NAZI AGGRESSION AND TO ALLOW A REASONABLE PERIOD AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF WAR FOR THE READJUSTMENT TO PRE-WAR CONDITIONS."

LONDON, AUG. 20-(AP)-GERMANY HAS FOOD ENOUGH TO FEED HER VANQUISHED, HUGH DALTON, MINISTER OF ECONOMIC WARFARE, TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY.

HE SAID THE REICH HAD ABOUT 7,000,000 TONS OF BREAD GRAINS IN GERMANY ITSELF, AND SOME 2,000,000 TONS IN OCCUPIED TERRITORIES. HOWEVER, HE ADDED, THE GERMANS HAVE SET UP A VIRTUAL ONE-WAY TRAFFIC FOR THE REMOVAL OF GOODS FROM UN-OCCUPIED TO OCCUPIED FRANCE.

DALTON SAID STEPS WERE BEING TAKEN TO INFORM NEUTRALS OF THIS SITUATION.

LONDON, AUG.20-(AP)-THE SECOND CONTINGENT OF AIRMEN FROM SOUTHERN RHODESIA TO REACH ENGLAND SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF WAR HAS ARRIVED SAFELY, IT WAS STATED OFFICIALLY TODAY. THE NUMBER WAS UNDISCLOSED.

BERLIN, AUG.20--BERLIN RESIDENTS SOUGHT REFUGE IN UNDERGROUND SHELTERS EARLY TODAY AS SHRIEKING SIRENS WARNED THAT ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE APPROACHING THE CAPITAL FOR THE FOURTH TIME SINCE THE START OF THE WAR.

FAINT SOUNDS OF CANNONADING WERE HEARD FAR TO THE WEST BUT ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES AROUND THE CITY ITSELF REMAINED SILENT AND THE ALARM WAS LIFTED AFTER AN HOUR AND 40 MINUTES WITHOUT INCIDENT.

AUTHORIZED SPOKESMEN SAID LATER BRITISH PLANES HAD APPROACHED BERLIN BUT HAD NOT REACHED THE CAPITAL.

THE HIGH COMMAND, MEANWHILE, INDICATED A LULL IN THE NAZI AERIAL OPERATIONS AGAINST ENGLAND--PERHAPS BECAUSE OF UNFAVORABLE WEATHER--AND OFFICIAL QUARTERS PLACED INCREASING EMPHASIS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF THE BLOCKADE BEING TIGHTENED AROUND THE ISLAND.

(REPORTS FROM LONDON DESCRIBED FLYING CONDITIONS LAST NIGHT AS IDEAL AND SAID BRITISH BOMBERS HAD HEAVILY ATTACKED GERMAN BASES ALONG THE FRENCH COAST, NOTABLY AT BOULOGNE, BUT ONLY A FEW SCATTERED NAZI BOMBERS APPEARED OVER ENGLAND.)

GERMAN MILITARY OBSERVERS CONFIDENTLY PREDICTED THE BLOCKADE WOULD BE "A COMPLETE SUCCESS." IT NEED NOT NECESSARILY START WITH SPECTACULAR ACHIEVEMENTS, THESE OBSERVERS SAID, BUT THEY EXPRESSED CONVICTION IT WOULD PROVE A NOOSE INEXORABLY TIGHTENING TO CHOKE OFF ENGLAND'S SUPPLIES OF FOOD AND WAR MATERIALS.

THE BORSEN ZEITUNG, DECLARING ENGLAND MUST IMPORT FOUR-FIFTHS OF THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE, SAID "THE ISLAND FACES EXTRAORDINARY DANGER."

"IT ISN'T EVEN NECESSARY TO SINK EVERY SHIP," THE NEWSPAPER ASSERTED. "IT IS MORE IMPORTANT THAT THE SUPPLY DISTRIBUTION MACHINERY OF THE ISLAND BE DISLOCATED."

VARIOUS POSSIBLE MEASURES WHICH THE ENGLISH MIGHT TAKE TO BREAK THE BLOCKADE WERE DISCUSSED BY GERMAN COMMENTATORS AND DISMISSED ONE BY ONE.

IT WAS CONCEDED THE BRITISH NAVY MIGHT BE ABLE TO LIMIT EFFECTIVELY THE OPERATIONS OF GERMAN MINE LAYING SHIPS, BUT THEY WERE GIVEN LITTLE CHANCE OF PREVENTING THE LAYING OF MINES BY THE NAZI AIR FORCE.

THE GERMANS ARGUED THAT IF THE BRITISH STRENGTHENED THEIR CONVOYS FOR PROTECTION AGAINST SUBMARINES THE LARGE SHIP CONCENTRATIONS WOULD ONLY BE BETTER TARGETS FOR NAZI WARPLANES. ON THE OTHER HAND IT WAS HELD, MERCHANT SHIPS WOULD BE MORE EASILY PICKED OFF BY SUBMARINES IF THE BRITISH SCATTERED THEM TO THWART AERIAL ATTACK.

BRITISH ATTEMPTS TO DIVERT ALL THE ISLAND'S SEA BORNE COMMERCE TO WESTERN OR NORTHERN PORTS WOULD NOT SOLVE THE BLOCKADE PROBLEM BECAUSE THESE PORTS ARE INADEQUATE TO HANDLE THE ENTIRE FLOW OF NECESSARY TRAFFIC, GERMANS MAINTAINED.

ENGLAND'S MOST DISTANT HARBORS ARE NOT ONLY WITHIN EASY REACH OF GERMAN BOMBERS, COMMENTATORS SAID, BUT ARE SO FAR REMOVED FROM THE HEART OF INDUSTRIAL BRITAIN THAT THEIR USE WOULD OVERTAX THE CAPACITIES OF RAILWAY TRANSPORTATION.

REPORTS ON YESTERDAY'S AERIAL ACTIVITIES SAID THE OPERATIONS OF THE NAZI AIR FORCE OVER ENGLAND WERE LARGELY CONFINED TO RECONNAISSANCE.

ONLY TWO BRITISH PLANES WERE LISTED AS SHOT DOWN DURING THE DAY. A THIRD WAS REPORTED DAMAGED, BUT WAS NOT OFFICIALLY RECORDED AS DESTROYED.

BERLIN, AUG 20-(AP)-THE OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY DNB IN A DISPATCH FROM BRUSSELS SAID TONIGHT A STATEMENT OF THE NATIONAL BANK OF BELGIUM ANNOUNCED ONLY 155,189 BELGIAN GOLD FRANCS REMAIN OF 21,700,000,000 IN THE STATE'S POSSESSION BEFORE THE GERMAN INVASION.

VICHY,FRANCE,AUG.20-(AP)-THE FRENCH PRESS PRINTED DISPATCHES ON AMBASSADOR WILLIAM C.BULLITT'S PHILADELPHIA SPEECH WITHOUT ENTERING INTO DETAIL.

AN EXAMPLE OF THE BREVITY OF EDITORIAL COMMENT APPEARING ON THE SPEECH, IN WHICH BULLITT ADVOCATED GIVING AMERICAN AID TO THE BRITISH FLEET, WAS THAT PRINTED IN L'AVENIR OF CLERMONT-FERRAND:

"THE FACT THAT IT IS NECESSARY TO RESORT TO SUCH PUBLIC SPEECHES SHOWS THAT AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION IS NOT YET ENTIRELY IN ACCORD ON THE SUBJECT OF RENDERING MASSIVE AID TO ENGLAND, WHICH WOULD IMPLY AT LEAST PARTIALLY A RENUNCIATION OF IMMEDIATE DIRECT DEFENSE OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC ITSELF."

ROME,AUG 20-(AP)-THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT NOTIFIED ALL NEUTRALS TONIGHT THAT THEIR SHIPS SAILING WITH 30 MILES OF ENEMY (BRITAIN'S) COASTS DID SO "AT THEIR RISK AND DANGER."

WASHINGTON,AUG.20-(AP)-THE SENATE HEARD AN ACCUSATION TODAY THAT A SINGLE "STUBBORN" MAN, "EITHER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OR SOMEONE IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT," HAD REFUSED TO CHANGE THE COURSE OF THE REFUGEE SHIP AMERICAN LEGION AND THEREBY HAD RISKED A PRO-VOCATIVE INCIDENT THAT MIGHT HAVE "PRECIPITATED THIS COUNTRY INTO WAR IN A WEEK."

THE ACCUSER, SENATOR BONE (D-WASH), SPOKE WHILE THE ARMY TRANSPORT BEARING 897 PASSENGERS HEADED FOR NEW YORK, APPARENTLY SAFELY BEYOND THE WATERS OFF SCOTLAND WHICH GERMANY HAD WARNED WERE MINE-INFESTED AND HIGHLY DANGEROUS.

"SOMEONE IS RISKING THE LIVES OF 900 HUMAN BEINGS ABOARD THAT VESSEL," BONE TOLD THE SENATE, "IF THAT VESSEL IS BLOWN SKYWARD THE CHARGE WILL BE MADE THAT SHE WAS TORPEDOED BY A GERMAN SUBMARINE."

HE SUGGESTED THAT CONGRESS INVESTIGATE WHY THE STATE DEPARTMENT OR OTHER OFFICIALS INSISTED THAT THE VESSEL, WHICH LEFT PETSAMO, FINLAND, FRIDAY NIGHT, HAD PERSISTED IN A COURSE THROUGH THE MINED AREA IN THE FACE OF THE GERMAN WARNING.

SENATOR PEPPER (D-FLA) INTERRUPTED BONE TO SAY THAT THE LATTER'S REMARKS WOULD "GIVE AID AND COMFORT" TO NATIONS THAT MIGHT WANT TO SINK THE SHIP.

BONE REPLIED THAT HE WAS TIRED OF HEARING AIDING-THE-ENEMY ARGUMENTS AND ADDED THAT THE "SENATOR FROM FLORIDA WANTS TO GO TO WAR AND HAS SAID SO."

"THE SENATOR TELLS A FALSEHOOD WHEN HE MAKES THAT STATEMENT," PEPPER REPLIED HEATEDLY.

BOTH SENATORS LATER APOLOGIZED FOR THEIR REMARKS.

REP.ROGERS (R-MASS) COMMENTED TO REPORTERS THAT IN REFUSING TO CHANGE THE VESSEL'S ROUTE, THE ADMINISTRATION SHOWED THAT IT PREFERRED THAT THE SHIP BE "BLOWN UP BY THE GERMANS RATHER THAN THE BRITISH."

"THE ONLY POSSIBLE REASON FOR NOT CHANGING HER COURSE," SHE SAID, "IS THAT THE BRITISH HAD MINED THE WATERS NEAR ICELAND WHILE THERE WERE GERMAN MINE FIELDS NEARER GREAT BRITAIN."

IF THE SHIP IS BLOWN UP, SHE ADDED, "THE TRAGEDY WILL NEVER BE EXCUSED, AND THE ADMINISTRATION WILL BE HELD STRICTLY ACCOUNTABLE."

NAVY OFFICIALS DECLINED TO COMMENT ON THE SHIP'S WHEREABOUTS, BUT AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT IT WAS SAID THAT IN THE ABSENCE OF ANY NEWS TO THE CONTRARY, THE VESSEL WAS ASSUMED TO BE SAFE.

ON THE BASIS OF UNOFFICIAL CALCULATIONS, THE SHIP WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE PASSED THROUGH THE "DANGER ZONE" DURING THE NIGHT AND MORNING.

A GERMAN EMBASSY SPOKESMAN, ASSERTING HE HAD NO OFFICIAL INFOR-MATION, EXPRESSED "HOPE" THAT THE VESSEL WAS SAFELY THROUGH THE AREA DESCRIBED BY THE EMBASSY AS INFESTED WITH UNCONTROLLED MINES THAT CONSTITUTED A "GRAVE DANGER."

NAVY OFFICIALS INDICATED A STATEMENT MIGHT BE ISSUED LATER WHEN THE SHIP WAS KNOWN TO BE WELL OUT OF DANGER. SHE IS BOUND FOR NEW YORK

AMID THE TENSION OVER THE AMERICAN LEGION'S COURSE, SUMNER WELLES, ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE, DISCLOSED THAT CONVERSATIONS HAD BEEN UNDER WAY WITH GREAT BRITAIN REGARDING THE POSSIBLE EVACUATION OF BRITISH CHILDREN TO THE UNITED STATES IN AMERICAN SHIPS.

HE WOULD NOT SAY WHETHER THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAD ANY IMMEDIATE PLANS FOR SENDING SHIPS SHOULD LEGISLATION MODIFYING THE NEUTRALITY ACT BECOME LAW. SUCH LEGISLATION AWAITS ONLY HOUSE ACTION ON MINOR SENATE AMENDMENTS BEFORE GOING TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

THE SEVERITY OF GERMANY'S WARNING IN THE CASE OF THE AMERICAN LEGION MADE IT DOUBTFUL THAT BERLIN WOULD GUARANTEE SAFE CONDUCT FOR ANY AMERICAN VESSELS TO ENTER THE COMBAT ZONE TO EMBARK BRITISH REFUGEE CHILDREN.

BERLIN, AUG. 20-(AP VIA RADIO)--THE GERMAN WIRELESS SAID TONIGHT THAT "AMERICAN QUARTERS" HAD OFFERED THE "ARGUMENT" OF A FOOD SHORTAGE AS THE EXPLANATION OF THE HOMEWARD COURSE TAKEN BY THE UNITED STATES REFUGEE SHIP AMERICAN LEGION, AND THAT THIS HAD RAISED THE QUESTION IN BERLIN:

"WHY, THEN, WAS A COURSE THROUGH THE (MILITARY) OPERATION ZONE CHOSEN WHICH WAS BY SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES LONGER THAN THE COURSE FOLLOWED ON THE OUTBOUND TRIP?"

THIS AND OTHER ASSERTIONS WERE INCLUDED, THE RADIO INDICATED, IN A NOTE PRESENTED TO THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY. THE BROADCAST CONTENDED:

THAT THE BERLIN FOREIGN OFFICE "POINTED OUT" TO THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY IN BERLIN THAT THE VESSEL WAS "EXPOSING ITSELF TO THE DANGERS CONNECTED WITH TAKING THIS COURSE, PARTICULARLY THE DANGER OF MINES."

THAT THE FOREIGN OFFICE "ADVISED X X X A LESS DANGEROUS COURSE," AND IN ANY CASE STATED THAT "NOTIFICATION OF THE FINAL COURSE MUST BE GIVEN TO BERLIN BY AUG. 15, NOON, BY THE LATEST."

THAT BERLIN WAS NOT NOTIFIED "BEFORE AUGUST 16 THAT THE ORIGINALLY-CHOSEN COURSE THROUGH THE OPERATION AREA WOULD BE FOLLOWED."

"AMERICAN QUARTERS," IT WAS ADDED, "DECLARE THAT A SHORTAGE OF FOOD ABOARD THE TRANSPORTER (THE AMERICAN LEGION) CAUSED UNITED STATES AUTHORITIES NOT TO TAKE THE GERMAN ADVICE TO TAKE THE HOME JOURNEY ON THE SAME COURSE AS TO PETSAMO."

NEW YORK, AUG. 20-(AP)-CAPT.HAROLD H.BALFOUR, BRITISH UNDER-SECRETARY OF STATE FOR AIR, BRANDED TODAY AS "COMPLETE LIES" GERMAN CLAIMS OF THE NUMBER OF DEFENSIVE AIRCRAFT DOWNED IN RAIDS ON ENGLAND AND DECLARED THAT DAMAGE TO BRITISH INDUSTRIAL PLANTS SO FAR HAD BEEN "OF A MINOR CHARACTER."

"THE ROYAL AIR FORCE HAS GOT ITS TAIL WELL UP," HE SAID IN AN INTERVIEW AS HE DISEMBARKED FROM A PLANE FROM MONTREAL.

"WE ARE INFLICTING CASUALTIES ON THE GERMAN AIR FORCE IN SUCH PROPORTION TO THE NUMBER OF PLANES THEY SEND OVER THAT PERSONALLY I DON'T BELIEVE THAT ANY AIR FORCE CAC CONTINUE TO SUSTAIN THEM AND STILL MAINTAIN ITS MORALE AND ABILITY TO ATTACK."

AIR PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND, HE SAID, WAS REGARDED AS "INCREASING AND SATISFACTORY."

BALFOUR ARRIVED AT MONTREAL ON THE BRITISH FLYING BOAT CLARE LAST THURSDAY AND CAME TO THIS COUNTRY TO DISCUSS WITH LORD LOTHIAN, BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES, TRANSATLANTIC PLANE PLANS. HE SAID HE ALREADY HAD DIUCUSSED GENERAL AIR TRAINING PLANS WITH CANADIAN AUTHORITIES AND WOULD RETURN SOON TO ENGLAND BY AIR.

The War Today - Dewitt MacKenzie.

ENGLAND'S CLAIM THAT THE ITALIAN OCCUPATION OF BRITISH SOMALILAND IS LACKING IN STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE MUST HOLD GOOD IN A BROAD SENSE SO LONG AS KING GEORGE'S NAVY CONTINUES TO CONTROL THE RED SEA AND ITS APPROACH THROUGH THE GULF OF ADEN, THEREBY SAFEGUARDING THE ARTERIAL SUEZ CANAL.

POSSESSION OF INHOSPITABLE SOMALILAND, WITH ITS FIERCE WARRIOR TRIBES, MAY PROVE A MIXED BLESSING TO SIGNOR MUSSOLINI. HOWEVER, THE BRITISH CHARACTERIZATION OF HIS VERY CONSIDERABLE ACHIEVEMENT AS "AN EMPTY VICTORY" STRIKES ME AS BEING RATHER OVERDRAWN AND SAVORING A BIT OF THE FOX AND THE HIGH-HANGING GRAPES.

THIS BRITISH DEFEAT MAY EASILY HAVE AN ADVERSE INFLUENCE ON ENGLAND'S PRESTIGE IN THE NEAR EAST--AND THAT IS IMPORTANT. POSSESSION OF SOMALILAND ALSO CONSOLIDATES ITALY'S POSITION IN EAST AFRICA, GIVES ADDED PROTECTION TO ALL ITS TERRITORIES IN THAT REGION, AND BRINGS IT A STEP NEARER ITS AMBITION TO SEAL THE SOUTHERN END OF THE RED SEA, THUS SEVERING BRITAIN'S VITAL CONNECTION WITH THE FAR EAST.

WHILE WE ARE DEALING WITH OPERATIONS AFFECTING THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN I WANT TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO THE STRAINED RELATIONS BETWEEN ITALY AND GREECE. THERE'S ENOUGH HIGH EXPLOSIVE IN THIS SITUATION TO BLOW A VERY CONSIDERABLE HOLE IN THE HITLERIAN BLITZKRIEG AGAINST ENGLAND IF MUCH MORE HEAT IS APPLIED.

GREEK BELIEF THAT MUSSOLINI IS PREPARING TO DEMAND TERRITORIAL CONCESSIONS HAS CREATED A POSITION WHICH COULD EASILY DEVELOP INTO WAR IN THE BALKANS. THAT IS ONE OF THE THINGS WHICH HERR HITLER WANTS LEAST OF ALL TO HAPPEN AT THIS CRUCIAL JUNCTURE, AND ONE OF THE THINGS WHICH WOULD PLEASE JOHN BULL NO END, ESPECIALLY RIGHT NOW WHILE HE FINDS THE GOING TOUGH.

30,24-4463

BECAUSE OF THIS PECULIAR STATE OF AFFAIRS, IN WHICH ONE MEMBER OF THE AXIS PARTNERSHIP SEEMS TO BE PULLING AGAINST THE OTHER, IT IS GIVEN TO WONDER WHETHER SIGNOR MUSSOLINI IS HAVING A LITTLE ADVENTURE ON HIS OWN AT THE EXPENSE OF HIS ALLY. IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE THAT HITLER WOULD ACQUIESCE IN ANYTHING WHICH WOULD JEOPARDIZE HIS INTERESTS JUST AS HE IS GETTING READY FOR THE KILL IN ENGLAND.

ASTUTE GENERAL ("LITTLEJOHN") METAXAS, THE GREEK TOTALITARIAN CHIEF, HAS BEEN SITTING MIGHTY TIGHT AND SAYING NOTHING, FOR HIS SWORN PROTECTOR, ENGLAND, IS IN TOO MUCH DANGER FROM THE BLITZKRIEG TO GIVE HIM SUPPORT RIGHT NOW. THE ITALIAN SUCCESS IN BRITISH SOMALILAND WILL TEND TO MAKE HIM EVEN MORE CAUTIOUS IN CHALLENGING ITALY.

IT'S A FAIR BET, HOWEVER, THAT SHOULD DER FUHRER FAIL IN HIS EFFORT TO CRUSH ENGLAND, AND HIMSELF RECEIVE A SETBACK, THE HARDHITTING METAXAS WOULD BE INCLINED TO TELL IL DUCE RIGHT WHERE TO GO--AND THEN THE FIREWORKS WOULD START. WHAT WITH RUMANIA BEING BESET BY BOTH BULGARIA AND HUNGARY FOR TERRITORIAL CONCESSIONS, AND BULGARIA EAGER FOR ACCESS TO THE AEGEAN SEA ACROSS GREEK SOIL, THE BALKANS ARE ALL SET FOR AN UPHEAVAL. METAXAS, WHILE NOT TALKING, IS PREPARING FOR POSSIBLE WAR, AS AN OLD SOLDIER MIGHT BE EXPECTED TO DO.

THE ITALO-GREEK IMBROGLIO IS STILL IN THE STAGE OF UNDERGROUND RUMBLING. THE THING STARTED WITH ITALIAN CHARGES THAT THE GREEKS WERE PROVIDING THE BRITISH WITH NAVAL BASES. THE FASCIST PRESS PUT LOOSE A BARRAGE AGAINST GREECE.

LAST WEEK THERE WAS AN AERIAL ATTACK ON TWO GREEK DESTROYERS, AND ITALY REPORTEDLY APOLOGIZED FOR THIS. THE GREEK CRUISER HELLE WAS SUNK IN HOME WATERS BY A SUBMARINE OF "UNKNOWN" NATIONALITY. AND THE GREEKS THOUGHT THEY SAW A GREAT WHITE LIGHT WHEN AN ITALIAN SPOKESMAN INDICATED THAT MUSSOLINI WOULD DEMAND SLICES OF BOTH GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA ON BEHALF OF HIS ANNEXED TERRITORY OF ALBANIA IN AN EVENTUAL GENERAL SETTLEMENT. THE NEXT DAY THE NEWSPAPER IL POPOLO DI ROMA SAID THAT THE ITALIAN CLAIMS INCLUDED THE GREEK ISLAND OF CORFU AND THE DALMATIAN COAST, ONE OF YUGOSLAVIA'S MOST PRIZED POSSESSIONS.

GREECE LONG HAS FEARED THAT MUSSOLINI WOULD PICK OFF PART OF HER TERRITORY, AND THIS ANXIETY HAS GREATLY INCREASED SINCE IL DUCE ANNEXED ALBANIA AND TURNED THAT LITTLE COUNTRY INTO AN ARMED CAMP RIGHT UP AGAINST THE BORDERS OF BOTH GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA.

TURKEY ALSO HAS LIVED IN CONSTANT EXPECTATION THAT ITALY MIGHT REACH FOR PART OF ASIA MINOR, AS I HAD EMPHASIZED TO ME WHEN I VISITED THE BALKANS AT THE END OF 1938. BECAUSE OF THIS POSITION GREECE AND TURKEY HAVE A COMMON BOND IN CASE OF EVENTUALITIES.

NEW YORK, AUG. 20--(AP)--THE OCCUPATION OF BERBERA, CHIEF PORT OF BRITISH SOMALILAND, BY THE ITALIANS IS POSSIBLY A STRATEGIC MOVE ON THE PART OF THE BRITISH FORCES TO SHIFT THEIR BASE OF OFFENSIVE TO THE SEA.

THE GEOGRAPHY SURROUNDING THAT SULTRY OUTPOST OF A BLEAK AFRICAN DESERT COLONY IS SUCH THAT THE BRITISH COULD CARRY ON THEIR WARFARE WITH FAR MORE EFFECTIVENESS FROM THEIR BATTLE FLEET THAN THEY COULD IN TRYING TO DEFEND ON LAND THIS SMALL TOWN WHICH WAS ORIGINALLY BUILT BY THE EGYPTIANS.

THE BRITISH HAVE BEEN SPEEDING ACROSS THE GULF OF ADEN, FROM THE NAVAL CONCENTRATION THERE GUARDING THE MOUTH OF THE SUEZ, A DETACHMENT OF GUNCRAFT WHICH SHOULD BE ABLE TO RAZE BERBERA.

BERBERA IS A TOWN OF NORMALLY ABOUT 20,000 PEOPLE, EXCEPT DURING THE DRY SEASON, WHEN IT IS SWELLED BY TRADERS SWARMING IN FROM THE INTERIOR WITH THEIR STOCKS OF OSTRICH FEATHERS, SHEEP AND GOATS, LION SKINS, SALT AND RESIN. DURING THIS SEASON, DUE BOTH TO THE DESERT DEPRESSION AND THE DRYING PRODUCTS IN THE MARKET, THE TOWN IS SUFFUSED WITH A STENCH AND TORRID HEAT WHICH THE BRITISH GOVERNOR GENERAL ONCE DESCRIBED AS A CLIMATE THAT "CAN BE TOLERATED IF NECESSARY."

NEW YORK--FIRST ADD BARRON'S SOMALILAND XXX NECESSARY."

ABOUT 10 MILES BACK OF BERBERA, RUNNING ALMOST IN A SEMI-CIRCLE AROUND THE TOWN, IS A RANGE OF HILLS, MOSTLY OF A TOUGH VOLCANIC FORMATION, THROUGH WHICH CARAVANS MUST PASS TO THE DESERT BY WAY OF NARROW CANYONS. IF THE BRITISH SHOULD START BOMBARDING FROM THE SEA, THE ITALIANS WOULD BE HARD PRESSED IF THEY TRIED TO RETREAT QUICKLY THROUGH THE HILL PASSES BACK INTO THE DESERT. BERBERA MUST ALSO DEPEND UPON ITS WATER SUPPLY FROM THESE HILLS.

BRITISH SOMALILAND, LIKE FRENCH SOMALILAND, IS MOSTLY DESERT, COMPOSED OF MILES OF FLAT SAND, THORNY BUSH, PESTIFEROUS FLIES AND POISONOUS INSECTS. THE ONLY CONTINUALLY PRODUCTIVE VEGETATION IS AROUND THE OASIS HAVENS ON THE CARAVAN ROUTES. BEFORE THE JIBUTI-ADDIS ABABA RAILROAD WAS BUILT, THE MAIN LINE OF TRAVEL INTO ETHIOPIA WAS ON THE CARAVAN ROUTE THAT RAN FROM BERBERA DOWN THROUGH HARAR AND JIJIGA INTO EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE'S FORMER CAPITAL. DURING THE ITALIAN-ETHIOPIAN WAR THIS ANCIENT CARAVEN ROUTE WAS REVIVED AS A MAJOR LINE OF TRAVEL AND ACROSS IT WAS CARRIED MOST OF THE SUPPLIES SENT TO THE NEGUS' TROOPS.

BRITISH SOMALILAND HAS NEVER BEEN FINANCIALLY PRODUCTIVE, ABOUT THE ONLY ONES WHO WON FINANCIAL REWARDS BEING THE HINDU TRADERS WHO CONTROL MOST OF THE MINOR COAST COMMERCE. ABOUT THE ONLY IMPORTS ARE COTTON SHEETINGS WHICH THE NATIVES USE FOR THE LONG SHAWLS THEY DRAPE ABOUT THEMSELVES AS PROTECTION AGAINST THE DESERT SUN. MOST OF THIS SHEETING USED TO BE IMPORTED FROM THE UNITED STATES, BUT IN THE PAST TEN YEARS IT HAS COME FROM HINDU AND JAPANESE MERCHANTS.

THIS ISN'T THE FIRST TIME THE BRITISH HAVE WITHDRAWN IN SOMALILAND. IN 1910 THEY WITHDREW FROM THE INTERIOR TO A FEW COAST STATIONS WHEN THE "MAD MULLAH," A NATIVE LEADER, WENT ON THE WAR PATH. AGAIN, DURING THE WORLD WAR THEY WITHDREW TO THE COAST SEVERAL TIMES WHEN THE NATIVES WERE INCITED TO REVOLT.

NAZIS USE AIR TORPEDOES IN NEW RAIDS ON BRITAIN; WORKERS' HOMES RUINED

Many Civilians Buried In Wreckage Of Houses In Southeastern Town—R. A. F. Keeps Up Attacks On Enemy Bases Across Channel

Dublin, Aug. 21—The British collier Prestatyn Rose arrived here today sixteen hours after being engaged in a combat with three German bombing planes in the Irish Sea.

The crew said more than fifty bombs were dropped. None took effect, but the 1,151-ton ship was damaged by machine-gun fire.

The attack occurred off Tuskar Rock at the entrance to the Irish Sea. Three aerial torpedoes were launched at the ship, crewmen said—one of which passed directly underneath her.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 21 — Aerial torpedoes — propeller-stemmed cylinders of destruction—were loosed by Nazi bombers tonight in attacks which smashed houses by the row and buried uncounted victims in the ruins.

The torpedoes were hurled, along with shriek bombs, at one southeast town after a day of ceaseless hit-and-run attacks by lone Nazi raiders while the Royal Air Force kept up its steady counter-punching at German bases.

Whole Row Of Cottages Smashed

A whole row of eight little workers' cottages was smashed into a tangle of debris where the torpedoes were launched horizontally. Numerous other residences were wrecked.

One old woman just put to bed by her son was in a house ripped to splinters by the explosion. The son alone crawled from the wreckage.

Not one brick was left upon another where the adjoining house had stood.

Dig Into Ruins For Injured

Late into the night, firemen and rescue squads dug into the ruins for bodies. Beneath other homes voices were heard faintly and rescuers believed they might find some still alive who had sought shelter in basements and were trapped.

"I saw a bomber sweep down from the clouds," one witness related. "It had its engines shut off and as it dived I saw a huge black bomb shaped like a torpedo leave the plane. As the torpedo dropped, the plane seemed to shoot up into the air as though after releasing a heavy load."

Explosion Shakes Whole Town

The witness said the explosion "shook the whole town." Its crater was more than thirty feet long.

Customarily, aerial torpedoes are launched at sea from planes diving close to their targets.

Another raider splattered a southwestern town with six bombs which killed one man in a garden, smashed a row of stores and wrecked an empty school air-raid shelter.

Solitary Nazi raiders appeared here and there along the southeast coast; over the industrial Midlands, over Wales and northeast England.

The Air and Home Security Ministries said inhabitants of one town were machine-gunned.

Late in the day the British declared that the new Nazi campaign had failed in its apparent aim of avoiding losses by not using big concentrations of raiding planes.

15 Nazis Reported Bagged

Up to that time, it was said unofficially, fifteen German planes had been shot down during the day. Officially, thirteen were claimed for certain.

An American-built plane used by the R. A. F. coastal command was said to have won a running fight with seven enemy fighter planes today after it had dive-bombed two enemy ships in the North Sea.

The Hudson was hit by machine-gun fire and cannon shells and two members of the crew were wounded. One enemy plane was downed.

Skims Surface Of Sea

"The pilot skimmed sea-surface during most of the fight, maneuvering his aircraft so that all its guns were brought into action in turn as Messerschmitts assailed him," the Air Ministry said.

Just how successful had been the characteristic British counterattack with long-range R. A. F. bombers was not disclosed.

In an evening communique the Air Ministry said merely that in daylight raids "airdromes in enemy-occupied territory" had been attacked—in obvious pursuit of the now-established British strategy to blow up or constantly harry every sort of German-held base that might be helpful when and if the invasion by troops is begun.

Attack Two Destroyers

It was disclosed, too, that British coastal command aircraft had bombed two German destroyers in the North Sea yesterday, damaging one and themselves suffering no loss.

The greatest damage wrought by the Nazi raiders in day-long attacks on Britain was in the Midlands, where bombs smashed a heavily-populated residential and shopping area. One person was killed.

Some Britons, taking comfort from the fact that the Nazis were now arriving on a "sneak-in" tactic rather than in bold waves as formerly, declared it meant that the British now had the offensive in the air war.

They mentioned the growing scope of British counterattacks as proof.

Says British Will Attack

Tonight, Sir Archibald Sinclair, British Air Minister, declared in a broadcast that Britain will throw all her resources into an offensive "in the months to come" in order to "cleanse the continent of Europe of the stain and horror of gangster rule."

He said the people of Britain had a right to be encouraged by British Air Force activities, but he warned them they must not think that the danger "of invasion or of massed attacks from the air is past."

The move to "sally forth from our fortress" in an offensive, he said, would require a stepped-up war effort.

"We have every good reason for abundant gratitude to our friends in America for their moral sympathy and material support," he aded, "but it is on ourselves that we must rely."

Notwithstanding the "heavy casualties inflicted on the German air force," he went on, "only a small fraction of their heavy bomber force has yet been engaged."

To Keep Free Press

To a people burdened by increasing war restrictions Sir Archibald gave this message as authorized by Prime Minister Churchill:

"It is the intention of his Majesty's Government to preserve in all essentials a free Parliament and a free press, that all those emergency measures which restrict the liberty of the subject shall disappear with the passing of the emergency."

Sir Archibald said that a tabulation tonight showed that since August 8 Britain lost both in home defense and "in our extensive operations over Germany 194 aircraft against the Germans' 709."

Britain, he said, was "now the main and sole obstacle to the achievement of Hitler's aims and those of his Sancho Panza, Mussolini; we are the target of their concentrated attack."

30.24-4467

30.24-4467

"Only a handful of R. A. F. airmen," he added, "stand between Hitler and domination of the world."

U. S. Officers Unfamiliar With Land-Air Torpedoes

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—Officers in both the army and navy ordnance bureaus said tonight that they were totally unfamiliar with aerial torpedoes for land bombing such as Nazi planes were reported to have loosed over England.

Rear-Admiral William R. Furlong, naval ordnance chief, said that if the missiles were correctly described, "this is certainly a new weapon."

Navy planes lay torpedoes which propel themselves through water, similar to those launched by warships, but Admiral Furlong explained that if they were dropped over land they would fall vertically to the ground. It had been suggested that the German planes were jettisoning their cargo of torpedoes before heading home.

Plane And Engine Plants In Midland Area Bombed

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP)—Airports and motor factories in middle England and harbors on the east coast were bombed today in what German sources called an interval of "armed reconnaissance."

Fires and explosions were observed in the bombed factories after the raid, German reports said, and at one of the airports five British planes on the ground were destroyed.

Unfavorable weather prevented mass daylight raids, DNB said. In widespread raids last night, however, great damage was reported inflicted on airdromes, harbors and industrial plants in southern and middle England.

In a raid on Great Yarmouth a British warship was bombed, the high command said, and off the north coast of Ireland a 12,000-ton merchantman was sunk, while in the more distant reaches of the North Atlantic three other merchant ships were hit.

Bomb Attacks At Sea

The German wireless said that successful bombing attacks on an unstated number of British merchantmen far off the Irish north coast had been reported for the first time in an army bulletin.

It was added that they were freighters carrying food from the United States on a scheduled course north of Ireland and through the north channel and the Irish Sea.

The attacks, said the wireless, occurred more than one hundred miles off Tory Island, which itself is ten miles northwest of the Irish mainland, and the fact that they were possible "shows clearly the extraordinary strategic advantage possessed by Germany."

GERMANS SHIFT AERIAL TACTICS TO HALT LOSSES

Single Raiders Sent Over England on Hit-run Assignments.

BUT 15 ARE SHOT DOWN

R. A. F. Reports Striking Back at Enemy—Two Destroyers Are Bombed at Sea.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—German planes stabbed at Great Britain today in hit-and-run raids over England and Wales and were answered by British bombs falling on Nazi airdromes across the Channel. Airdromes also were the Germans' favorite targets.

The ceaseless Nazi aerial invasion brought a change in tactics—darting attacks by individual planes, where only a few days ago they had come in roaring hundreds.

Solitary raiders appeared here and there along that "Corner of Hell," the southeast coast over the industrial midlands, over Wales and over northeast England.

There were civilian dead and many civilian wounded, but as always, their number was not stated. The Air and Home Security Ministries said inhabitants of one town were machine-gunned.

15 Nazi Planes Downed.

Late in the day the British declared that the new Nazi campaign had failed in its apparent aim of avoiding losses by not using big concentrations of raiding planes.

Up to that time, it was said unofficially, fifteen German planes had been shot down during the day. Officially seven were claimed for certain.

Just how successful had been the characteristic British counter-attack with long-rangeR. A .F. bombers was not disclosed.

In an evening communique the Air Ministry said merely that in daylight raids airdromes in enemy-occupied territory had been attacked—in obvious pursuit of the British strategy harrying every German-held base that might be helpful if the invasion by troops is begun.

It was disclosed, too, that British coastal command aircraft had bombed two German destroyers in the North Sea yesterday, damaging one and themselves suffering no loss.

Three Flyers Captured.

German sources said that airports and motor works in Middle England and ports on the east coast were bombed today.

Fires and explosions were observed in the motor plants, these sources said. The Germans claimed to have destroyed five British planes on the ground.

One Dornier fell in flames at a southeast village and its crew of three landed by parachute three miles away. Two of the flyers gave themselves up to farm workers. The third was captured by a farmer's wife and her fourteen-year-old son, who carried his father's home guard rifle.

The greatest damage was reported from the highly industrialized Midland counties.

Children were among the dead and injured there. Rescue squads searched the wreckage of four houses, almost completely destroyed, for further victims. Half a dozen other buildings were damaged.

Some children playing in a public park ran for an air-raid shelter at the gates when the alarm sounded. Waiting under cover, they made so much noise with their singing that they failed to hear the all-clear signal when the raid was over.

Berlin Reports Wide Damage.

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The German High Command reported today widespread damage done to airdromes, harbors and industries in southern and middle England in a series of night raids, but sent only scattered planes to make armed reconnaissance and photographic flights across the channel in daylight operations today. The number of day flights was small because of the unfavorable weather, said DNB, the official news agency.

The airports of Manby, near Grimsby, and Leamington, near Birmingham, were bombed today, German sources said.

The High Command's communique on earlier activities said that air attacks had been made at Cambridge, Eastchurch, the site of an airdrome near the Thames estuary; Manston, the location of an important airport, and Deal.

Blows were also struck, the High Command said, at the harbor and rail terminal of Lowestoft and on warehouses and switches at Exeter.

The High Command said a warship off Great Yarmouth, and the harbor facilities of that port were bombed.

At Chelmsford, a factory center, the Germans said, big explosions were heard. The harbor and wharves of Faversham, Burryport and Pembroke were also attacked and some small ships sunk.

Off the north coast of Ireland, the communique added, a 12,000-ton merchant ship was sunk by direct hits.

A munition factory in Suffolk and a rail center at Southwold were also attacked, the communique said.

First Lieut. Anton Schuster, 22 years old, reported to headquarters today that he shot down four Hurricanes in two minutes in a fight over Dover on Sunday.

Single dive bombers able to sneak in behind the clouds and come screaming down stood almost as good a chance of hitting military objectives, some observers pointed out, as large formations harried from the moment they crossed the coast.

Wales Also Is Attacked.

Although the Germans concentrated on the southeast coast, numbers of single raiders were reported over the Midlands, the Welsh coastal areas and northeast England.

Five bombs were dropped on South Wales towns. The damage and the number of casualties caused were not learned. Several planes took part in these raids.

The greatest damage was reported from the highly industrialized Midland counties.

Flamed Like a Volcano.

LA LINEA, Spain, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Rock of Gibraltar flamed like a volcano early today after raiding warplanes had dropped bombs on the fortress guarding the western gate of the Mediterranean.

In the pre-dawn darkness the flames could be seen spreading down from the top of the Rock—where long-range batteries had apparently been hit—toward the town where alarms were sounded to summon residents to shelter.

Two bombs had apparently set fire to ammunition dumps near the batteries.

From here and from Algeciras, Spain, across the bay from Gibraltar, the fire could be clearly seen racing down the Rock.

Germans Shift Tactics in Air

Send Single Raiders to Attack Britain After Losses in Massed Bombings.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Germany's air force made scattered solo raids on England today, striking its heaviest blows in the southeast, where one coast resort was bombed twice in the early afternoon.

German sources said that airports and motor works in Middle England and ports on the east coast were bombed today.

Fires and explosions were observed in the motor plants, these sources said. The Germans claimed to have destroyed five British planes on the ground.

Almost constant patrols of Spitfires and Hurricanes were kept in the air as reports indicated a change in German tactics from mass raids to scattered hit-and-run attacks by individual bombers.

Single Raiders Hard to Reach.

British experts declared that the Germans might have decided on a change of tactics to avoid the heavy losses suffered during massed raids, with large formations of planes.

The British admitted that it was difficult to reach the individual German planes before they had dropped their bombs. They said that masses of planes, on the other hand, made perfect targets for both anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes.

SPANIARDS SAY ROCK LOOKED LIKE VOLCANO

British Report Flames Soon Extinguished—R. A. F. Flyers Strike Savagely at Vital German Centers.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Britain's great fortress of Gibraltar was raided twice today by enemy planes. Bombs started a small fire which was quickly brought under control, a communique said.

"During the night enemy aircraft bombed Gibraltar twice," the communique declared. "In the first raid bombs dropped in the sea, but an aircraft was brought down in the sea off Europa Point.

"In the second raid bombs dropped on the Rock, causing a small fire, which was quickly brought under control. There was slight damage and no casualties."

[The official Italian wireless said that the population of Gibraltar spent the entire night in air raid shalters and that some of the bombs hit the battleship Resolution.]

Bombs have been dropped on Gibraltar four times since the start of the war a year ago. The last raid was July 26. The plane shot down today by anti-aircraft was the first of the war.

The top of the Rock looked like a volcano belching fire.

The raid began soon after midnight. Searchlights on land and on warships failed to pick out the raiders and anti-aircraft guns fired at random.

British Strike at Germany.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—British bombers attacked vital German war centers anew last night and early today.

All German radio stations faded out shortly before midnight, the usual sign of the appearance of British bombing planes. The stations are shut down so that they may not assist British pilots in directing their flights.

Air Force by the R. A. F. victories over the German massed attacking methods.

The Air Minister, Sir Archibald Sinclair, told the House of Commons last night that R. A. F. attacks were again being made, and that still deeper thrusts into Germany were forthcoming.

"As the nights grow longer," he said, "so will the arm of our bomber squadrons lengthen and we shall strike even deeper into the enemy's vitals. Our arm is reaching out tonight."

The Germans had lost 701 aircraft and 1,500 airmen since August 8, he added.

Deeper Thrusts Are Forecast.

The growing radius of British bombing attacks on Germany and German-occupied territory, coupled with diminishing Nazi aerial activity, was hailed in London as an indication that the initiative has been taken away from the German

UNCONDITIONAL BLOCKADE IS ROME DECREE

Fascist Move In Mediterranean Patterned On Nazi Stricture

Greece Cancels Army Leaves As Threat Of War Is Intensified

[By the Associated Press]

La Linea, Spain, Aug. 21—The British fortress of Gibraltar was twice bombed today, in attacks apparently intended to underline, explosively, Italy's "total, unconditional" blockade of all the vast British African areas, and the Mediterranean was alive with the threat of a broadened war.

From here, flames could be seen racing down the crest of the great rock—the site of long-range anti-aircraft batteries—toward the town of Gibraltar itself.

British Discount Loss

But the British command there declared the fire was brought quickly under control and that the damage was only "slight." One of the attacking planes was reported brought down. -DASH-

Actual and threatened warfare saw these other developments, as reported in dispatches from the Mediterranean area:

Italy's declaration that her blockade —similar to that which Germany proclaimed about the British Isles —was intended to bring a "total interruption" of all commerce between England and all her colonies and protectorates in the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden.

Greece's cancellation of all army leaves, while the officially inspired Italian press continued to attack that little pro-British kingdom. "We will not be caught by surprise," said a responsible Greek spokesman, "if Greece should be invaded."

Italian troops were reported massing on Greece's western frontier. Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist journalist spokesman, asserted Italy and Albania were ready to defend Italian Albania against "the Greco-British plan of offense."

Claim 7 British Planes

Without giving the time or place, Stefani (Italian) announced that seven British planes had been shot down in an air and naval battle in the Mediterranean. British warships were declared to have been bombed with "considerable" effect. Bombardments of the British air base on the Mediterranean island of Malta were reported to have fired buildings and smashed runways.

The British themselves reported from Cairo that their flyers had bombed airdromes and railway facilities in Italian-held African territory, including Ethiopia.

Egypt Declares Desire To Stay Out Of War

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 21 (A. P.)—Egypt clung tonight to her determination to keep out of war with Italy unless directly attacked or invaded.

After a four-hour debate on war policies in the Chamber of Deputies, Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha told the press that Egypt "harbors no ill will against anybody," but added that she will "declare war if her territory or her army is the object of an attack."

The Premier told the deputies "nothing has developed to change the Government's policy" of watchful neutrality unless Egypt is directly invaded and attacked.

The Premier's answer brought an immediate demand for a debate on war policy and there was cheering from the public galleries. The Government deputies demanded that the proceedings become secret, and the public was excluded.

Italian Troops Shifted

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani shifted concentrations of Italian troops around the Bardia base, thirty miles from the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, again threatening the long-awaited drive into Egypt.

Recent movements observed by British patrols were believed intended to refill big gaps ripped in supply bases and communications lines by the British naval shelling of August 17 and to reinforce and reform Italian lines before undertaking the assault.

Graziani was believed to be concentrating on maintenance of contact with Bardia once the forward movement starts, to assure adequate supplies of water, food, oil and munitions for advance of troops, tanks and armored cars.

The British, sticking to their "active defense" policy, have made no move to advance into Libya.

The R. A. F. heavily bombed enemy bases in Ethiopia. French flyers in British service made reconnaissance flights over British Somaliland.

Italians Claim Blockade On All British Africa

Rome, Aug. 21 (A. P., Via Radio)—The Rome radio said today the blockade against England encompasses not only British possessions in the Mediterranean, Red Sea and Gulf of Aden but also the coasts of British colonies in South Africa.

The radio said the entire coast from Somaliland on the northeast down to the border of Portuguese Angola on the west, was in the blockaded zone.

The restricted area, it said, also takes in Portuguese East Africa and the coast of the Union of South Africa, including the mandate territory of former German Southwest Africa.

EGYPT DEBATES DECLARING WAR

Row in Chamber Brings On Showdown on Policy.

CAIRO, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Egypt appeared tonight headed for a showdown in the Chamber of Deputies on her war stand amid demands from some sources that the country immediately enter the conflict on Britain's side in the face of a threatened Italian invasion from Libya.

Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha told the Deputies that nothing has developed to change the Government's policy of watchful neutrality unless Egypt is directly invaded and attacked.

The Premier's answer brought an immediate demand for a debate on war policy and there was cheering from the public galleries. The Government Deputies demanded that the proceedings become secret, and the public was excluded.

CABINET HEADS THRESH BRITISH BASE LEGALITY

Stimson, Welles and Knox Confer With Jackson on Island Leases.

RESULTS ARE NOT DISCLOSED

Marshall and Stark Are Present; All Silent on Question of Destroyers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Government's ranking legal, military and foreign policy officials conferred today on legal questions involved in acquisition by the United States of offshore naval and air bases.

Negotiations with the British for such bases have been reported in London to be advanced to the stage of agreement in principle.

Attorney-General Jackson said after today's meeting at the Justice Department: "We have discussed the legal questions involved in the proposal and procedure for American acquisition of offshore naval and air bases along the Atlantic."

Mr. Jackson did not amplify that remark and none of the other conferees would say whether a British Government request for United States destroyers also was taken up at the meeting.

President Roosevelt has said that the question of destroyers was not involved in the air and naval base situation. Prior to today's conference there had been much speculation that the question of letting the British have the fighting ships would be discussed.

Meeting with Attorney-General Jackson, at the Justice Department, were Secretaries Knox and Stimson, Sumner Welles Acting Secretary of State; Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Green Hackworth, legal adviser to the State Department.

One informed official said that at least three major problems were scheduled for discussion, but he refused to elaborate beyond saying that the outright sale of destroyers was not among them.

Before arrangements for the conference became known, a naval authority privately expressed the opinion that fifty of the over-age United States destroyers could be made ready to leave Eastern ports for England within a week, should any sale or transfer be authorized.

No Comment on Naval Bases.

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—An official spokesman declined to comment today on Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address on Tuesday in which he announced that Great Britain intended to lease naval bases in the West Indies and Newfoundland to the United States.

Privately, however, informed quarters said officials view the attitude of England with amusement, observing that Great Britain engaged in war to prevent Germany from getting British colonies or mandates and now was ready to offer valuable possessions in the Western Hemisphere to the United States.

Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the black-shirted SS, or Elite Guard, suggested that the defeat of Great Britain might raise the issue of United States incorporation of Canada.

Viewing the prospects for Britain darkly, the paper said "the United States possibly will think over whether it would not be more advisable in the long run to incorporate another 'united' State rather than advance good money after bad for the cause of a headless empire."

The reference to another State was taken as meaning Canada since this has often been discussed as a possibility in German circles.

Lease Interests Japan.

TOKIO, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Office asserted today there was apparent justification for many Japanese activities in the Far East in the principle underlying the new Canadian-United States defense plans.

The spokesman, Yakichiro Suma, said:

"If the United States undertakes a defense of Canada under this principle, it would seem many of the actions of Japan regarding adjacent territories in the Far East would be justified."

The news of negotiations among the United States, Canada and Great Britain regarding leasing of bases by the United States in British Western Hemisphere possessions attracted wide attention here but the Foreign Office declined to comment.

Canadians Preparing.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland Aug. 21 (A. P.).—A conference of high ranking Canadian defense officials and local authorities, presumably concerned with port and other facilities for forces of the United States in the event it accepts the British offer of a Newfoundland defense base, was held here today.

C. G. Power, Canada's Associate Defense Minister, and other army, navy and air officials participated.

PACIFIC ISLE PACT CITED AS METHOD OF LEASING BASES

U. S. and Britain Agreed to Joint Jurisdiction for Fifty Years.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—British Foreign Office sources confirmed today reports that the United States had leased the islands of Canton and Enderbury in the southern Pacific from Great Britain as air bases. The lease, these sources said, is for fifty years, with a provision that it can be extended indefinitely.

These sources said there was no question of price or considerations in the arrangement. Great Britain and the United States had decided on joint control before the war, following a dispute over ownership in 1938.

Foreign Office sources said the subject was raised to illustrate the statement of Prime Minister Churchill yesterday that the principle of association of interests for common purposes between Great Britain and the United States had developed before the war. Various agreements had been reached about certain small islands in the Pacific Ocean which had become important as air refueling points.

It was on April 6, 1939, that the United States and Great Britain agreed on a system of joint control and administration of both islands, the formula to apply for fifty years and thereafter indefinitely unless modified or terminated.

Each government was to be represented by an administrative official and the islands were to be available for communications and for use as airports for international aviation—but civil companies only—incorporated in the United States or any part of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The United States was permitted to build and operate an airport on Canton Island, and Pan American Airlines took advantage of this in laying out its clipper route to New Zealand, over which the first plane flew last week. This air field, by agreement, was available for the use of British aircraft and civil aviation companies on equal terms. The agreement was reached after it was recognized that the islands had great value as air bases.

Canton Island is an atoll on which the only inhabitants at the present time are Pan American employees at the air port. Enderbury Island was discovered by a whaler, John Briscoe, and named for his employer, Samuel Enderbury.

LONDON IS SAID TO BE SEEKING U. S. ALLIANCE

Some Circles See Canadian Defense Talks as Step Toward Union.

OPINION ON POLICY DIVIDED

British Majority Held to Prefer America as a Source of War Supplies.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Unofficial but well informed sources indicated today that the British Government is seeking a military alliance with the United States.

Canadian-American discussions on mutual defense are considered in these quarters to be the opening wedge in a British effort to obtain a full military accord between the United States and Britain.

As envisaged now, such an alliance would embrace the defense of Canada and other British possessions in the Western Hemisphere and, perhaps even more important, "would form the bases for common diplomacy in the Far East at the conclusion of the European conflict," as one informant put it.

"The plain truth of the matter," said a neutral diplomat, "is that neither Great Britain nor the United States has a powerful friend left anywhere else in the world. It behooves them to get together and make the best of the sorry situation."

Official sources were reluctant to discuss the talks between President Roosevelt and Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, which resulted in a decision to establish a joint defense board, but satisfaction was evident.

There were reports here that the conversations progressed to the hypothetical naval defense of Canada and the United States in the event that the British fleet were lost and of aerial defense, not only on the seaboard, but from United States bases on the Pacific, such as Sitka and northern Alaska.

British Divided on Worth.

"It is a logical progression from these talks to a military alliance with Great Britain," said one reliable person.

"I think we may regard the present Canadian-American talks as similar to those which, in the early nineteen hundreds, preceded creation of the entente cordiale between France and his Majesty's Government."

Official British reluctance to comment may be explained by the presence of public opinion in England that a non-belligerent United States is more valuable to Britain than an America at war. In the latter event, these persons reason, the United States would have to use most of her planes and munitions for strengthening her own Panama and Atlantic defenses, instead of letting Britain use them.

This group probably is far more powerful than the smaller and more vocal body, including a sprinkling of American expatriates, who are calling for immediate American intervention against Germany.

Indeed, there are evidences that the activities of the second group are embarrassing the British Government in its efforts to obtain war supplies from the United States. These activities, it is feared, are arousing isolationist sentiment in America by what one member of Parliament describes as short-sighted and arrogant tactics.

British Foreign Office sources pointed today to the islands of Canton and Enderbury in the southern Pacific to illustrate the statement of Prime Minister Churchill yesterday that the principle of association of interests for common purposes between Great Britain and the United States had developed before the war. Various agreements had been reached about certain small islands in the Pacific Ocean which had become important as air refueling points.

Canton and Enderbury Islands are members of the Phoenix Group in the Central Pacific, about half way between Hawaii and Australia. It was on April 6, 1939, that the United States and Great Britain agreed on a system of joint control and administration of both islands, the formula to apply for fifty years and thereafter indefinitely unless modified or terminated.

Each government was to be represented by an administrative official and the islands were to be available for communications and for use as airports for international aviation—but civil companies only—incorporated in the United States or any part of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

LONDON CABINET CHANGE FORECAST

Replacements Held Likely After Brief Recess.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Well-informed political spokesmen predicted today that there would be a British Cabinet change shortly after the fortnight's adjournment of Parliament starting tomorrow.

The retirement of Neville Chamberlain, Lord President of the Council, and the replacement of the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, are being mentioned. Herbert Morrison, the Minister of Supply, and Alfred Duff-Cooper, the Minister of Information, were also cited as likely to leave the Government.

Mr. Duff-Cooper was under fire in the Commons today. Some members declared that "the British case is going by default in Spain, and the Germans are much more active in their propaganda."

Mr. Chamberlain's health has been poor since his undergoing an operation for an intestinal obstruction on July 29, and this is regarded in some quarters as clearing the way for his retirement without involving the question of Prime Minister Churchill's loyalty to his former chief.

Cassandra, the London Daily Mirror columnist, declared in an attack on Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax that the final responsibility for part of the horrible slaughter at Dunkirk cannot be shifted from Mr. Chamberlain's shoulders.

Chamberlain's Dismissal From Cabinet Predicted

Halifax, Cooper, Morrison and Wood May Also Go

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—A new sifting of the British Cabinet that would eliminate Neville Chamberlain and others under increasing fire for the last year's "cataract of disasters" was predicted in well informed political quarters tonight on the eve of a two-weeks' adjournment of Parliament.

These are the men upon whom there is speculation:

Chamberlain, now Lord President of the Council, because he was wrong about appeasement and is accused increasingly of failure to prepare adequately while he was Prime Minister for the total war which burst upon Europe this spring;

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, because Great Britain virtually is isolated diplomatically, except for the United States, and is making no observable progress toward rapprochement with Soviet Russia;

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood, criticized for making a timid war budget when Britons were demanding that every resource be utilized;

Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, under criticism for weak propaganda activity in Spain;

Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply. Today, in the House of Commons, the sale of Iranian oil to Japan by a British company was under fire.

Bombs Ships, Fells One of Escort in Running Fight

LONDON, Aug. 22 (Thursday) (AP).—An American-built plane used by the Royal Air Force coastal command won a running fight with seven enemy fighter planes yesterday after it had dive-bombed two enemy ships in the North Sea, the Air Ministry revealed in a statement today.

A ministry communique describing the fight said: "A Hudson aircraft of the R. A. F. coastal command after making a dive-bombing attack on two enemy ships in the North Sea yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon encountered seven enemy fighters which were escorting the ships.

"A running fight ensued in which one enemy fighter was shot down into the sea.

"Our aircraft, though damaged landed safely."

An air raid interrupted a police court session in southwest England. The magistrates continued the hearings in vacant cells of the jail.

London police were ordered to abandon their customary high helmets and wear war-time tin helmets. Heretofore when air raid sirens screamed they changed into tin hats.

ROME PREDICTS ITALO-GREEK 'CLASH' SOON

Radio Reports Press Campaign Indicates Showdown Is Approaching

Athens Accused Of Acting As "Provoking Agent" For Great Britain

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 21 (Via Radio)—A "clash" between Italy and Greece in the near future was predicted tonight by the Italian wireless while the Fascist press campaign against that little pro-British kingdom reached a new crescendo of violence.

The wireless cited the "sharp tone" of that very campaign as indicating a showdown was approaching and remarked that this was the presumption in political quarters.

Fear Village Burning

The newspapers published assertions that Greeks were planning to burn Albanian villages in the Greek region of Ciamuria—a region now declared by Italy to be rightfully part of Fascist-held Albania—and that armed bands were ready, "especially in the event of complications," to massacre the inhabitants.

Greece was accused of acting as a "more or less voluntary provoking agent on behalf of Britain."

Quoting Virginio Gayda, one of Italy's main journalistic spokesmen, the wireless said that a final solution would concern not alone the province of Ciamuria "but also parts of the region of Janina."

ATHENS CANCELS ALL LEAVES

Mussolini's Forces Reported Massed Along Border as Tension Grows

ROME, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Italian wireless said today that it was assumed in political quarters that the sharp tone of the Italian press toward Greece presaged a "clash" between the two countries soon.

Earlier Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, said that Italy and Albania were ready to defend Albania against "the Greco-British plan of offense," and accused Greece of a double maneuver designed to stifle nationalist sentiment among Albanian residents in Greece.

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, Gayda charged the British were creating tension in the Balkans, and asserted that British reports of anti-Italian uprisings in Albania were part of a scheme to "create an alibi for Greece's policy of imperialistic advance into the territory of independent Albania."

"There is no doubt that Italy and Albania are obliged to calculate upon this Greco-British offensive plan," Gayda wrote. "It is necessary to answer it with the firmness of a responsible policy which seeks no adventures, but is ready to defend the national rights of Albania."

Athens Cancels Army Leaves.

ATHENS, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Greek Army canceled all leaves of officers and men today and a responsible spokesman said: "We will not be caught by surprise if Greece should be invaded."

Only yesterday, in a third move to strengthen the army within a week, the Government called to arms several thousand men of a number of military classes. These precautions have been taken amid growing tension between Greece and Italy, precipitated by Italian charges that Greece was responsible for the assassination of Daut Hoggia, an Albanian. Greece has denied any responsibility.

Official spokesmen maintained silence, however, on reports that Italian troops were massing along the Albanian frontier.

Government spokesmen took cognizance of Italian press attacks on Greece, including charges that bands of Greeks had invaded Albania and burned ten villages. An official communique denied an Albanian newspaper report, reprinted in Italy, that Greek authorities were planning an attack on Albania.

"No armed bands," it added, "have ever been formed in Greece for any purpose whatsoever."

Italians Reported Massing.

BELGRADE, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Italian troops were reported massing along the western frontier of Greece today as the Greek Government, belabored by the Fascist press for its alleged mistreatment of Albanian minorities, strengthened its defenses by calling more reserves to the colors.

Gen. John Metaxas, the Premier of Greece, conferred at length last night with King George II, but no explanation of the sudden increase in the nation's armed forces was given, and official spokesmen declined to comment on the reports of Italian troop concentrations.

"Reports from abroad can neither be confirmed nor denied," a spokesman said.

Armored Division Cited.

Usually well-informed persons here, however, said that they had information that Italy was massing in Albania, opposite the Greek border, considerable numbers of troops, including at least one armored division.

The Fascist press has been hinting strongly that Italy would make territorial demands on Greece for the Ciamuria frontier region, on the ground that it is rightfully a part of Albania, which Italy annexed in 1939 after her Good Friday invasion.

Italian diplomatic representatives have also been pressing Greece to repudiate Great Britain's guaranty of her independence, and have said flatly that Greece must be prepared to enter Italy's sphere of influence.

Greek Congo Seized.

It was announced, meanwhile, that the Greek passenger steamship Attiki, reported last week to have been stopped by Italian warships off Sicily, had arrived yesterday in Piraeus, the port of Athens.

The ship's officers said that the Italians had taken the vessel to Palermo, Sicily, and had seized 2,100 tons of steel and many barrels of glycerine from the cargo.

This action followed reports of the stopping of other Greek vessels by the Italians, which have aroused resentment in Greece.

Feeling was stirred up last week also by the torpedoing of the Greek light cruiser Helle by an unidentified submarine within sight of a Greek island base.

SAY ITALY IS SHORT ON WAR SUPPLIES

London Experts Report Her Oil Stores Won't Last.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Authoritative London spokesmen said today that Italy's oil supplies might become acutely short after twelve months of war and that shortages were already apparent in the Italian stocks of raw materials.

These informants, basing their opinion on the "latest information," expressed the belief that Italy has planned only to meet the needs of a short war. They said that the Italian wheat harvest was estimated at 1,000,000 tons below the 8,000,000 hoped for this year.

There are indications also, they asserted, that Italy is so short of fats that she is competing with her ally, Germany, for purchase of oils and seeds in the Balkans.

Meanwhile today Eduard Outrata, Czech arms industrialist and Finance Minister of the provisional Czech Government established here, asserted that Great Britain's munitions production had made amazing strides and was approaching the point where it would be decisive.

He said that British industry was turning out better Bren machine-guns than his own arsenals did before the Nazis seized them. The Bren guns were first produced under Mr. Outrata.

Sir John Anderson, the British Minister of Home Defense, assured a luncheon meeting that full equipment has been issued for every authorized establishment in the Home defense system. Certain shortages exist, he said, but they do not affect the efficiency of the service.

Mediterranean Fight Reported

Rome Says Italian Flyers Battled British Warships and Airplanes.

ROME, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Stefani, Italian news agency, today reported a furious air and naval battle in the Mediterranean, in which seven British planes were said to have been shot down. Date of the battle was not given.

The news agency's correspondent said that an Italian air squadron had attacked an English naval unit, composed of large warships and protected by lighter ships, against heavy anti-aircraft fire, and the guns of a squadron of British Gloster Gladiator planes.

The correspondent declared the effect of the bombing attack appeared considerable. The Italians took up the fight against the Gladiators, he said, and shot down seven in a furious battle. Two other British planes were believed damaged and possibly destroyed.

Stefani also reported that Italian planes on patrol duty over the Egyptian desert had attacked a railway line near Mersa Matruh, disorganizing service. A British military camp far behind the Egyptian frontier was reported attacked by the same Italian squadron.

New Raids on Malta.

The Italian High Command today reported new bombardments of British air bases on the Mediterranean island of Malta, and new British air raids of secondary importance on Italian positions in Ethiopia.

Meanwhile today an Italian warning to neutral shipping not to enter waters within thirty miles of British coasts was described by the Fascist authorities as meaning a total, unconditional blockade of British Mediterranean territories.

The Italian action followed by three days Germany's announcement of a total blockade of Great Britain herself.

Italy notified the neutral Powers in a note last night that she declined all responsibility for consequences to any ship ignoring her warning of peril in British waters. She called particular attention to maritime stretches along the coasts of British colonies and protectorates in the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden.

Stefani said that any neutral ships which ventured into these waters would do so at their own risk and peril, and added:

"The consequence of today's measure is total interruption of all traffic between neutral countries and the colonies still in England's possession in all of that sphere which the Italian Government considers in the zone of operations.

"English colonial ports are thus closed to traffic completely and are prevented from receiving supplies from neutral countries by means of neutral shipping."

Stefani said it should be emphasized that the establishment of the blockade would "contribute to a speedy conclusion of the war by depriving Great Britain of necessary supplies."

Cites Example of Great U. S.

The agency expressed confidence that neutrals would heed the warning to keep out of the blockade zone.

"They can have no interest in exposing their ships and citizens to destruction solely for the sake of supplying the British and in this way prolonging the conflict," it said.

The agency called attention to the action of the United States Government in barring American shipping from the Mediterranean and the Red Sea under the neutrality act. Hope was expressed that this "may serve as an example in the interests of every one."

British Flyers Active.

CAIRO, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force today reported numerous raids on Italian-held African territory, including Ethiopia, where hangars and a railway station at Diredawa were bombed.

Mogadisciu Bombed.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The South African air force bombed Mogadisciu, most important port in Italian Somaliland, as well as Italian airdromes in southern Ethiopia yesterday, a British communique here today said.

Mogadisciu would be the probable base of Italian operations by air and sea craft against British Aden in Arabia.

"Much valuable information was obtained," the communique stated, "and direct hits were secured on buildings and aircraft."

Refugee Ship Past Danger Zone

American Legion Now 400 Miles Off Britain —King Haakon May Be Aboard.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The State Department said today that the refugee ship American Legion was about 400 miles west of the British coast line and thus well out of the area which Germany had described as highly dangerous.

In so informing his press conference Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said that he assumed the position announced was based on a mid-day report from the ship, an army transport bringing refugees from Petsamo, Finland.

This was the first official announcement on the progress of the American Legion since she set sail on Friday with 897 passengers and headed toward the zone off the north coast of Scotland, which Germany had called dangerous because of mines.

No Notice of Mines.

Mr. Welles also said, in reply to a question, that Germany had given no official notice of any kind that it had laid any mines in this area. Under international law such notice is required of mine-laying activities as soon as military exigencies permit.

The German embassy had termed mines the chief danger to the American Legion and had indicated that German airplanes might have laid mines in this zone in connection with the total blockade of Great Britain announced in Berlin on Saturday.

State Department officials said that Great Britain had given notice of the laying of mines between the Shetland Islands and Iceland and between Iceland and Greenland—a factor which apparently influenced American Army and Navy authorities in charting the Legion's course southward from Petsamo near the Scottish coast.

Haakon and Olaf May Be Aboard.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported from Oslo today that Crown Prince Olaf intends to board the United States Army transport American Legion, now en route to the United States with American refugees from Petsamo, Finland, as soon as the ship reaches the vicinity of England.

The paper also declared that King Haakon and members of the former Norwegian Government may likewise board the vessel.

Nazis Hand Note to U. S.

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The German Government has handed over to the United States embassy a note in which, according to authorized German spokesmen, "certain misunderstandings and inaccuracies" in the American note regarding the army transport American Legion "are clarified."

The note was handed over at 6 P. M. yesterday, it was stated.

Authorized German spokesmen said that they observed with some amusement that the United States Government was determined to send the American Legion, bringing American refugees from Petsamo, far northern Finland, on its originally-scheduled course near the British Isles because of lack of food.

Although this was the reason given after Germany's warning that she would not be responsible for harm befalling the ship, the ship was traveling some 300 miles further than it did on its trip to Petsamo, the Germans said.

The German radio said last night the Berlin Foreign Office had pointed out to the United States embassy that the ship was exposing itself to the dangers of mines and advised a less dangerous course.

Authoritative spokesmen in Berlin said that Germany now, as previously, was determined to refrain from bothering any vessel of the American military forces and moreover had gone to great pains to give the German Navy the American Legion's exact position on its trip to Petsamo.

These spokesmen observed, however, that the ship now was beyond the danger zone and further discussion was academic.

DNB, official German news agency, said the facts about the American Legion had been distorted by the American press in order to reproach the German Government.

The agency said the note from the United States Government to the Berlin Foreign Office on August 18 treated the matter in an entirely wrong light. The German Foreign Office, according to DNB, submitted its own contention in a note to the embassy yesterday.

British Ship at Canal Zone.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 20 (A. P.).—The British liner Rangitiki, carrying 170 British children from the war zone, arrived here today and will leave tomorrow for New Zealand.

Refugees' Ship Reported Out Of Danger Zone

Barkley Hears the American Legion Is 900 Miles Off Britain, Minimizes Peril

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP).—Speaking for the State Department, Democratic leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, told the Senate late today that the government's refugee transport, American Legion, had selected the "safest possible course" through European war zones in returning a group of refugees to this country.

Senator Barkley said that the State Department informed him today that the refugee ship was "some 900 miles west of the English coast and now out of danger."

At the same time, the Administration spokesman disputed statements made on the Senate floor that the route through mine and submarine zones off England risked involving the United States in war through possible disaster to the refugee ship.

[The Stockholm newspaper "Dagens Nyheter" reported from Oslo that Crown Prince Olav intended to board the American Legion as soon as the ship reaches the vicinity of England. The paper declared also that King Haakon and members of the former Norwegian government might board the vessel.]

Yesterday Senator Homer I. Bone, Democrat, of Washington, protested that the "stubbornness of one man" had risked the lives of 900 persons aboard the ship and possible involvement in war. The Senator said this man was either the President or some other high official.

Says Safest Route Was Picked

Senator Barkley said he had obtained the "facts" from the State Department and had learned that the route selected was deemed the safest by experts from the War, State and Navy Departments.

"Determination of the route was left to the Navy Department, although the boat was under operation and control of the War Department," Barkley explained.

Just before Senator Barkley's statement, Senator Robert R. Reynolds, Democrat, of North Carolina, told the Senate that sinking of the American Legion could have forced this country into the "European war within 24 hours."

Senator Rush D. Holt, Democrat of West Virginia, sarcastically suggested that the State Department have the refugee ship "circle England twice more" to be certain of danger.

Another development was a statement from Chairman Sol Bloom, Democrat, of New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, indicating he had not given up hope that Germany would grant safe conduct for ships which may carry child refugees from war zones.

Commenting on an assertion today by D. N. B., German news agency, that the Reich was unable to guarantee safe conduct, Representative Bloom said:

"I really don't believe that could be taken officially because we haven't asked them for anything yet. When they find out what we are asking the reply might be different. In asking 'safe conduct' for these vessels we will merely request their guaranty that their warships and planes will not molest these craft."

Reich Refuses Guaranties for Refugee Ships

Nazis Say Vessels Bearing Children Would Run Into Danger in Mined Waters

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (AP).—Germany is unable to guarantee safe conduct for vessels carrying children out of war zones, the official news agency, D. N. B., said tonight in commenting on United States proposals to amend the neutrality law to permit American ships to carry British children westward.

D. N. B. added that the United States move "isn't practical because it assumes all warring nations would guarantee the security of such vessels." The agency said Germany was unable to give such assurance in view of the fact that the seas about England are infested by mines.

Germany has declared a total blockade of the British Isles and recently urged that the troopship American Legion, bearing refugees from Petsamo, Finland, to the United States, avoid the northern coast of Scotland because of the unsafe waters. The ship's course was not changed, but is now believed out of danger.

[The United States yesterday completed Congressional action on legislation to permit the use of American vessels to transport refugee children from the European war zone when guaranteed safe passage by belligerents. The bill went to the White House.]

There can be no question of the "humanitarian impulses" which prompted the measure, D. N. B. said, "but it is without realistic significance." The agency said the American neutrality law was enacted to forestall incidents which could disturb relations between the United States and Germany. It declared that the intent of the law would be defeated if a dangerous exception were made which might lead to the very sort of incident the law sought to avoid.

"Germany cannot do anything which would place the children of any warring nation into additional danger," D. N. B. said. The agency insisted the mines are in the sea and that the Reich cannot assume the responsibility of saying that any particular ships could avoid them.

BULGARIAN BORDER OF 1912 RESTORED

Rumania to Cede Provinces of Durostor and Caliacra—Two Important Cities Included

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 21—Reuters [British] News Agency reported from Bucharest today that Rumania had agreed definitely to cede Southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, returning the frontier to that of 1912.

Rumania cedes to Bulgaria the provinces of Durostor and Caliacra, the provinces to be occupied within three hours after the agreement is signed formally, Reuters said.

Bulgarian troops already are near the Dobruja frontier, ready to occupy the new territory.

Bulgaria will get a strip of land slightly more than forty miles wide, including the cities of Silistra and Balcik, which Rumania had insisted on retaining. The new frontier would run approximately from Silistra, on the Danube, to south of Mangalia, on the Black Sea.

Rumanian-Bulgarian talks at Craiova were resumed today in an atmosphere of marked friendliness. The negotiators expected to require ten days to solve the technical problems involved in the return of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, on which a tentative agreement was reported.

Rumanians Are Recalled

TURNU SEVERIN, Rumania, Thursday, Aug. 22 (AP)—Rumanian military experts and statisticians conferring with Hungarian delegates on the Transylvania problem were called back to Bucharest last night, giving rise to reports that a new compromise plan had been worked out to save the conference from collapse.

Nazi Pressure For Action On Hungarian Demands Seen

Negotiations To Be Resumed In Bucharest On Cession

[By the Associated Press]

Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Thursday, Aug. 22—Rumanian military experts and statisticians conferring with Hungarian delegates on the Transylvania problem were called back to Bucharest last night, giving rise to reports that a new compromise plan has been worked out to save the conference from collapse.

This belief was strengthened by the disclosure that Helmuth Lanx, attache of the German Foreign Office, has been sent to Turnu-Severin as official observer, reflecting Nazi impatience with delays in coming to agreement over the disputed territory.

The Rumanian delegates, called back to Bucharest after their leader conferred with King Carol, were expected to return tomorrow night to resume their discussions with the Hungarians, who have demanded as much as two-thirds of Transylvania.

The Rumanians so far have held out for a transfer by population with only a token ceding of a small strip of territory.

Meanwhile, at near-by Craiova, Rumanian and Bulgarian negotiators are speeding toward quick agreement on the final details of the transfer of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, which lost the province in the Balkan wars.

The transfer of the Rumanian population from the district is under way and observers reported the last technicalities of the transfer of the territory should be ironed out within ten days.

A Reuters (British) dispatch reported that the conferees already have agreed to cede southern Dobruja, giving Bulgaria the provinces of Durastor and Caliacra, effective three hours after the pact is signed formally. The new frontier would extend from the Danube at Silistra—which Bulgaria would get—to south of Mangalia on the Black Sea.

Britain Called Unfair to China In Commons

Sale of Oil to Japan While Closing Burma Road Is Attacked by 2 Members

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—The sale of British oil to Japan and the closing of the Burma road, over which war supplies were sent to the Chinese government at Chungking, were assailed in the House of Commons today by Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, as "grossly unfair."

R. A. Butler, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that it was not the government's policy to "interfere" with the commercial activities of Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., which sold a million barrels of oil to Japan in April with government approval.

Noel Baker, Laborite, demanded to know if it was "not most desirable that the government should avoid the charge of having, in effect, put an oil sanction on the victim of aggression while continuing to supply a most important war requirement to Japan?"

Butler said he would present the question to the Minister of Petroleum.

British Force Leaves Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21 (AP).—Britain's military flag in China was lowered to the next to last notch today as a mixed force of Seaforth Highlanders and the East Surrey Regiment boarded the steamship Taksang for duty elsewhere, probably Hongkong or Singapore. The rest of the British force here plan to leave Aug. 26.

Honors were rendered the departing soldiers by the United States Marines, who supplied the band which led them from the International Settlement's racecourse to the foot of Garden Bridge, leading to Japanese-occupied Hongkew. Regular sentries there saluted, but otherwise the Japanese accorded no honors to the soldiers.

Expected Back Friday

The Rumanian delegates, called back to Bucharest after their leader conferred with King Carol, were expected to return Friday night to resume their discussions with the Hungarians, who have demanded as much as two-thirds of Transylvania.

The Rumanians so far have held out for a transfer of population with only a token ceding of a small strip of territory.

Meanwhile, at near-by Craigova, Rumanian and Bulgarian negotiators are speeding toward quick agreement on the final details of the transfer of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, which lost the province in the Balkan wars.

Population Now On Move

Transfer of Rumanian population from the district is under way and observers reported the last technicalities of the transfer of the territory should be ironed out within ten days.

A Reuters (British) dispatch reported that the conferees already have agreed to cede southern Dobruja, giving Bulgaria the provinces of Durastor and Caliacra, effective three hours after the pact is signed formally. The new frontier would extend from the Danube at Silistra—which Bulgaria would get—to south of Mangalia on the Black Sea.

JAPANESE IN ENGLAND

Embassy at London Denies They Are Being Removed.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The Japanese embassy spokesman said today that there was no organized removal of Japanese citizens from England.

The authoritative British Press Association issued and then canceled today a story quoting the embassy spokesman as having said that German propaganda had made the Tokio Government unnecessarily anxious about the safety of Japanese in England and that he had advised Tokio that there was no need to remove them. The reason for the cancellation of the story was not disclosed.

NAZI FUGITIVE MAY CROSS U. S. BORDER

Canadians Think Prisoner Got Outside Help.

SOMEWHERE IN ONTARIO, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The police investigated today the possibility that a twenty-eight-year-old German naval lieutenant who escaped from a northern Ontario interment camp on Monday now is in Toronto or headed for the United States border.

Home guards and mounted police continued, however, an intensive search of the area around the camp, indicating belief there was still a chance the fugitive, Werner Koche, might be hiding in that vicinity.

Reports that the officer had been seen in dense bush country were denied officially. A wooded area was surrounded yesterday, but the authorities said that another case was involved.

The police said they believed that workmen who had been discharged from the camp for conversing with the prisoners in German might have aided Koche's escape. Without outside help, it was said, it would have been impossible for him to obtain timber to line the tunnel through which he fled and which apparently was constructed to facilitate a large-scale break.

A crude radio receiving set and an uncompleted transmitter, found in the camp, were constructed by the prisoner in part from odds and ends of wire and metal ripped out of a barracks building, the police declared, but they expressed belief that some of the equipment had been smuggled into the camp.

Life In Canadian Prison Camps Offers Fine Foods And Chess

Menus Prepared By Experts From Transatlantic Liners And Professors Teach Languages

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in Eastern Canada, Aug. 21—This prisoners camp, similar to the one from which a young Nazi naval officer, Lieut. Werner Koche, recently escaped, houses hundreds of German civilians rounded up in the British Isles and dominions.

Civilian and military camps dot Canada's isolated regions as ships from England ferry thousands more across the Atlantic for safe keeping.

Another Escape Noted

Besides Koche authorities said another unidentified civilian prisoner had escaped from a northwestern Ontario camp.

Altogether 8,000 prisoners are now in Canadian camps, and officials have ordered redoubled guard duties.

Languages Are Taught

Former chefs on German transatlantic liners make up the menus for their fellow-prisoners in this camp. Most of the vegetables come from fields worked by the men.

German professors give lessons in Spanish, English, French, shorthand, stenography, engineering and mathematics. A few of the prisoners are studying Chinese and Arabic.

Roll call is at 6.30 A. M. and lights are out at 10 P. M.

Prisoners who work in the fields receive 20 cents a day. Camp canteens sell cigarettes and soda water.

Chess Is Favorite

Chess is the favorite game in recreation rooms where lectures are given.

Those disobeying camp rules are penalized by non-smoking edicts or withholding their mail.

Most of the prisoners speak good English, and one has a broad Scottish accent. For thirty-eight years he ran a hotel in Scotland but failed to take out naturalization papers.

Ottawa, Aug. 21 (AP)—The three-day national registration of Canada's human resources closed tonight and officials believed some 8,000,000 men and women over the age of 16 registered.

More than 200,000 volunteers aided in the tabulation which was marked by a few incidents. A bridge near Drummondville, Quebec, leading to a schoolhouse booth was blown up, and thefts of registration identification cards were reported in Montreal.

Authorization for an armored Canadian brigade of 200 tanks and other mechanized units was announced today by J. L. Ralston, Defense Minister. The brigade will consist of four battalions of the Canadian active service force. While equipment is not complete, the minister said there was definite prospect of "fairly rapid" production of a new type of tank suitable both for training and active service.

FINLAND STRIVING TO APPEASE RUSSIA

Treads Cautious Path In Making Friends With Victor

Watches Bolshevization Of Three Baltic Nations With Concern

[By the Associated Press]

Helsinki, Aug. 21—Little Finland is treading a cautious path in dealings with her great war-victorious neighbor, Soviet Russia, seeking by every means to gain a friendly relationship.

The recent declaration by Russia's Premier-Foreign Minister Molotoff that relations with Finland depend on Finland herself fell upon receptive ears.

For Finland watched with a concern the Bolshevization of the Baltic nations—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—which last fall conceded garrisons to the Red army and finally lost their national status.

Have Increased Trade

Thus far the fruits of Finland's careful diplomacy since the war with Russia have been increased trade—of vast importance since Scandinavia now is cut off almost entirely from the west—and at least agreement in principle by Russia to respect neutrality of the Aland Islands.

In return Finland has made concessions including demilitarization of the Alands—guardians of the entrance to Bothnian Bay; granting of transit rights across southern Finland to the Soviet base at Hango, and acceptance in at least one instance of a border rearrangement costing a few hundred acres of farmland.

To Provide Tugs And Barges

Under the trade agreement Finland is to provide Russia with thirty-eight tugboats and twenty barges over a two-year period as well as turbines, pumps and other machinery, butter and other dairy products and 34,000 tons of iron pyrites.

Russia is selling Finland 70,000 tons of wheat and rye, 80,000 tons of gasoline, 21,000 tons of oil and some manganese.

Maximum trade estimates are $7,500,000 each way—a possible annual total of $15,000,000.

Negotiations toward a final border continue.

The recent concession brought Russia one kilometer (about five-eighths of a mile) farther into Finland at a point north of Viipuri. The territory was of minor importance, but the transfer required fifty Finnish families, who had returned to homes they left last fall, to move again.

Demonstrations Halted

Minor political differences at home have brought some tension. At least three demonstrations in the capital by youth groups of 200 to 300, identified as Communists, were halted by police last month.

Officials declare, however, that extreme Leftist elements are in a decided minority.

One important current issue is the disposition of industrial machinery in areas won by Russia, including Viipuri, some of whch was destroyed during the war and some of which the Russians declare the Finns wrongfully took away with them.

Agree To Replace Machines

After weeks of discussion, the Finns are said to be agreeable to return or replace the machinery and the Russians willing to pay some compensation.

For Finland, to be sure, there can be no relaxation of tension so long as war is general in Europe and so long as the full intentions of Russia and Germany are still a matter of speculation.

However, the Finns stress the fact that all negotiations are with Finland as a sovereign state, that Finland is able to present her own views and wishes and that at least she is gaining some share in the give-and-take discussions—even if it seems to be the smaller share.

Petain Regime Fears Axis Will Widen Its Rule

Extension of Occupation Held Likely Because of British Bombing Raids

CHANCY, Switzerland, Aug. 21 (AP).—Great Britain's long-range bombing flights against industrial cities of northern Italy and southern German war industries are increasing the Petain government's fears that Germany and Italy will extend their occupation over a wider area of France, border reports said today.

Already the Germans have established airplane bases at the western slope of the Vosges and Jura Mountains in an effort to intercept bombers. French now are fearful that British flights across the area still unoccupied by German soldiers will lead the Italians to demand air bases at Marseilles and in the Rhone Valley and the Germans to extend their control to provide air bases south of the Loire River.

Some sources in the area governed from Vichy were said to believe that if Britain resisted until winter, all the rest of continental France would be placed under occupation.

The Petain government's troubles are mounting because of the division of France into two zones. Informed sources say the government's daily expenditures are greater than during French belligerency.

While in the north local authorities work in daily contact with the Germans, who are anxious to keep the administration running smoothly, in the south the Petain government is struggling with increasingly serious transportation and supply difficulties.

[The German radio reported in a dispatch from Vichy last night that all railroad connections between the two zones have been closed temporarily and transportation of Belgian and French refugees to their homes has been held up.]

Reports from the occupied zone indicate conditions there are being eased by increasingly better transportation and orders to troops to distribute available stocks carefully.

Transportation troubles cause unusual complications in southern France. Butter and sugar are plentiful in Nice, but almost impossible to get in Toulouse. There are lots of matches and few cigarettes in the Pyrenees, but plenty of cigarettes and no matches in Auvergne.

In Limoges women can buy magnificent fur coats and delicate perfumes, but no lingerie. There is a plentiful supply of fifty-year-old cognac and even Scotch whisky in Toulouse, but no soap.

France Retires 152 Generals

Prioux, Who Covered Retreat to Dunkirk, Is Listed—Believed a Prisoner Still.

VICHY, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—The retirement from active service of 152 French generals, in accordance with the terms of the Franco-German armistice, providing for a quick demobilization of the army, was announced today.

Those retiring include Major-Gen. Georges Blanchard, who was in command of the Allied forces in the Battle of Flanders, and Gen. Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux, whose rear guard fight covered the withdrawal of the British and French troops from Dunkirk.

The retirement was made possible by a recent lowering of the age limits.

Gen. Prioux was reported last cut off with a part of his army by the Germans when Dunkirk finally was abandoned and he is believed to be still a prisoner of the Germans.

Goering Out-Goerings Goering With Eagles, Crosses And Gold

New Uniform Sports Cloud-Gray Cape And Tunic. Heavy Ivory Baton Encrusted With Insignia

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP)—Hermann Wilhelm Goering has done the impossible—he's outstripped himself in his new Reichsmarshal uniform.

A new picture of the plump Hermann shows him in a cloud-gray cape and tunic with gold trimmings, as opposed to the usual bluish air uniform.

His cap carries the gold flying eagle of the air force on the peak. The chin strap is gold. Around the entire band of the hat is a gold-stitched laurel wreath.

His new baton is made of ivory ornamented at one end with a bas-relief of the air force's spread eagle, at the other with the German fighting cross as it appears on tanks and airplanes. The shank of the baton is decorated with alternate gold spread eagles, iron crosses and fighting crosses.

The heavy baton is carried only on extraordinary state occasions. For everyday wear Goering, long known for his colorful uniforms, will carry a lighter ivory wand about as long as a riding crop with a gold-knobbed hilt and a colored, tasseled cord.

German Flyer Boasts Of Bagging 4 British Planes In 2 Minutes

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 21—Twenty-two-year-old First Lieutenant Anton Schuster reported to headquarters today that he shot down four British Hurricanes in two minutes in a fight over Dover Sunday.

"We came down out of the sun close to eight Hurricanes in chain formation," the young pilot was quoted as saying. "Behind them was a covering guard of four machines. The Britons had not seen us yet. They were higher now and had the better position, but we attacked.

Repeats Maneuver

"I went for a Hurricane. She was about a hundred feet in front of me. The Britisher burst under my cannon and machine-gun fire. Burning, it hurtled down. Now a second ship in the covering guard was before my [illegible] the same maneuver I repeated. The Hurricane exploded.

"The other Englanders nonchalantly spiraled higher with no knowledge that Messerschmitts were on their necks. I went after a third Hurricane, which exploded under brief fire. The others still did not notice anything. So I took a fourth machine, but I must have got too close.

"The Britisher exploded so close under my nose that bits of wreckage struck my machine and oil from the Hurricane smeared my cabin so badly I could not see and had to turn away after the two minutes of combat."

French Liberty Tree Falls to 'Sieg Heils'

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (AP).—France's "Tree of Liberty" in the Alsatian town of Zabern, planted in 1918 when France regained Alsace, was chopped down today amid cries of "Sieg Heil" to Adolf Hitler and the roll of drums.

Nazi leader Wilde told the group of Hitler Youth and other participating Nazi organizations: "This tree was planted as a symbol of freedom—freedom as understood by the French. For Germany this tree is a symbol of slavery and oppression. Now the tree must fall and the roots be torn out, because everything foreign must be torn out of the homeland."

NAZIS EMBARRASS EIRE

Request for Ship Data Puts Nation in Tough Spot.

DUBLIN, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Caught between two fires, the Government of Eire (Southern Ireland) found embarrassment today in a German request for notification of Irish ship movements to prevent leakage in the Nazi-proclaimed total blockade of Britain.

A source close to the Government declared:

"We are in a peculiar position. If we notify Germany of the movement of our ships, we tacitly tell them at the same time that all other ships moving in our waters are definitely not ours.

"Great Britain then could well accuse us of indirectly informing Axis Powers that shipping other than what we reported were not neutral vessels.

NAZIS GIBE AT LONDON

Somaliland and Churchill's Talk Are Ridiculed.

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (A. P.).—Germans gibed at Britain today for the loss of Somaliland to Italy, and characterized Prime Minister Churchill's latest war accounting to Parliament as the balance sheet of a bankrupt firm.

The German press and radio applauded the Italian conquest of British Somaliland, completed with occupation of Berbera, the capital.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Volkischer Beobachter, emphasized it was "the first time in centuries that England has lost a colony."

Mr. Churchill's reference to the successful withdrawal of British forces from Somaliland in his report to the House of Commons yesterday drew scornful comment.

The German radio declared the Prime Minister's explanation that defense of the territory was made difficult by lack of military aid from French Somaliland was a display of "poor sportsmanship toward a defeated ally."

The authorities classified the couple as "doubtful visitors" and retained them at LaGuardia field for two hours while the Prince telephoned State Department officials in Washington.

Finally the prince and Princess were allowed to go to a hotel, with their status still in doubt. Immigration officials indicated they might be asked to report to Ellis Island tomorrow for a hearing.

Princess Mathylda is the daughter of American-born Baroness Matilda Bornemisza, who was also on the Clipper. Before her marriage she was Matilda Price, of Philadelphia and Ellerslie Hall, Del.

Bermuda News Awaited

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Colonial Secretary announced today, after a two-day session of the House of Assembly, that "a very important" government announcement requiring a special edition of the government newspaper would be issued soon.

Jamaica Nationalists Upset

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 21 (AP).—A spokesman for the Nationalist party today described as a possible obstacle to the attainment of British West Indian autonomy the projected British ninety-nine-year lease of West Indian naval bases to the United States. Each With A Knapsack

From all strata of British society, they had one possession in common: a knapsack containing small belongings. Most of the girls had dolls.

They talked about air raids they'd been through, and bombs they'd seen fall, and Donald Miller, a 6-year-old in kilts, said, "I'm glad to be here, but I miss my daddy."

One hundred thirty-eight of the children were brought through efforts of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children, and were met down the bay by Marshall Field, head of the committee.

He had made three trips to the Battery and waited three days for the arrival of the ship, which left Liverpool August 9 and traversed the Atlantic, convoyed until last Monday by a British battleship and three destroyers.

Eighty-four were from homes of workmen in the Hoover Co., Ltd., plant at Perivale, England, a London suburb, traveling to homes of employes of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Company, of North Canton, Ohio. Fifty were brought under sponsorship of the Boston Transcript.

He had seen a bomb fall 200 yards away from him, killing five persons.

Peter Saundy, 13, on his way to Canton with his two brothers, Barry, 9, and Robert, 8, said, "The people in dad's firm sometimes shout, 'Are we downhearted? No!'"

Communiques of Three Belligerent Powers

British

LONDON, Aug. 22 (Thursday) (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Enemy activity over this country was continued last evening. The same tactics were adopted as during the earlier part of the day, aircraft singly or in small numbers making indiscriminate attacks in various parts of the country, with some definite attempts to attack R. A. F. airdromes. Few of enemy aircraft ventured far beyond the coast.

Only slight damage is reported from any of the airdromes attacked, though some casualties were caused. Damage was done to property in a Yorkshire town and in a residential district on the south coast, both of which suffered a number of casualties, some of them fatal.

Our fighters have shot down six more enemy bombers, making thirteen for the day.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—An Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

Enemy activities over this country today have consisted of a series of attacks by aircraft operating singly or in small numbers. There have been many such attacks, few of which were delivered far inland. In some cases it was evident that the enemy's objective was R. A. F. airdromes, but though some damage was done to the living quarters of one of these, such attacks proved otherwise abortive.

Towns in the south and east of England and in the Midlands were bombed, damage being done to houses in several places. The number of casualties was small though some were fatal. In one residential area a short attack was made on the inhabitants by machine-gun fire.

Reports received up to 5:30 p. m. show that four more enemy aircraft have been destroyed by our air fighters, making a total of seven today. Two enemy aircraft which bombed a town in Lincolnshire were both shot down, their bombs having caused little damage and no casualties.

Two of our fighter aircraft were lost during yesterday's operations, but the pilot of one of them is safe.

An Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

Yesterday evening enemy aircraft attacked a town in southwest England. Some bombs fell in a public park and others damaged houses near a railway station. A number of persons were injured, some of them fatally. There was negligible enemy air activity over this country during the night.

An Air Ministry communique:

Owing to adverse weather conditions no bombing operations were carried out over Germany last night.

Daylight attacks were carried out yesterday and today on airdromes in enemy-occupied territory. Attacks were also made yesterday by aircraft of the coastal command on two enemy destroyers in the North Sea, one of which was damaged. We suffered no losses in these operations.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 21 (AP).—A British communique:

During the night enemy aircraft bombed Gibraltar twice. In the first raid, bombs dropped in the sea, but an aircraft was brought down in the sea off Europa Point. In the second raid bombs dropped on the Rock, causing a small fire which was quickly brought under control. There was slight damage and no casualties.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 21 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

Squadrons of the South African air force on Aug. 19 made simultaneous offensive reconnaissance flights on Italian airdromes in Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, bombs falling near the wireless station of Mega while buildings were damaged at Neghelli. The Caproni aircraft grounds at Yavello were hit, and three direct hits were made on a storehouse at Afmadu.

Yesterday our bombers attacked hangars and the railway station at Diredawa. All bombs fell in the target area. There was a direct hit on a hangar. One of our aircraft failed to return.

An attack was made on the Dessie airdrome, bombs hitting buildings in the compound. At Kassala our bombers carried out a low level attack, railway buildings and the track being hit.

French pilots operating with the R. A. F. made extensive reconnaissance flights over British Somaliland. Places visited included Berbera, Odweina, Hargeisa and Zeila.

Yesterday ten enemy bombers escorted by twenty fighters raided Malta. Our fighters went up and dispersed the enemy.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Aug. 21 (AP).—A British communique:

Yesterday, aircraft of the South African air force carried out extensive raids on all known airdromes in southern Abyssinia and Italian Somaliland, including Yavello, Neghelli, Mega, Afmadu, Jelib, Margherita, Kismayu and Mogadiscio. Much valuable information was obtained and direct hits were secured on buildings and aircraft. No enemy fighters were seen and there was little ground opposition. The weather at Mogadiscio was difficult, but the machines got through and all returned safely. Among the targets was a wireless station at Mega.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (AP).—The German high command communique:

In the course of armed reconnaissance flights yesterday the air force attacked military objectives in middle and south England. At Aldeburgh, in Suffolk, a munitions factory was bombed. The railroad center at Southwold and the harbor facilities at Great Yarmouth were also effectively bombed, as well as a warship off Great Yarmouth.

At Cambridge and Eastchurch, as well as Manston and Deal, our planes attacked airports with bombs and machine guns. Some heavy blows were struck at the harbor and rail terminal of Lowestoft and at warehouses and switches in Exeter.

In the factory center at Chelmsford big explosions were heard. The harbor and wharves at Faversham, Burryport and Pembroke were heavily damaged by bomb attacks. Some smaller ships in port sank, and oil tanks burst into flames.

In the North Atlantic, far from the north and west Irish coast, three additional merchant ships suffered heavy bomb hits.

Scattered air fights occurred. Some British planes flew to France and Holland.

Enemy planes did not fly over Germany proper on Aug. 20.

The enemy lost ten planes yesterday, including six in air fights, four by anti-aircraft fire. Three of our planes did not return.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

Inhabitants of former British Somaliland are hastening to show submission, Askaris of the camel corps and Hilalos bands presenting themselves to lay down their arms and ask enlistment in our formations.

Three Blenheim planes damaged by our air attacks were found at Berbera. A fourth was found burned at the Bareris River. A fifth was found on the beach.

The enemy carried out numerous air raids on various secondary localities in Ethiopia. One woman was killed and five persons were injured; damage was insignificant. Two patients in a small hospital near Mega were wounded. In another hospital at Jelib one person was killed and five wounded. At Diredawa our pursuit planes shot down an English Blenheim plane in flames.

Our bombing formations attacked and hit successfully air bases at Malta. All our planes returned, despite violent enemy reaction. Enemy pursuit planes encountered by ours were put to flight. One plane probably was shot down.

LONDON,AUG 21-(AP)-BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCES CITED THE BRITISH-AMERICAN AGREEMENT OF 1938 FOR JOINT CONTROL OF CANTON AND ENDERBURY ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN AS AN ILLUSTRATION OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S STATEMENT YESTERDAY THAT THE "ASSOCIATION OF INTERESTS FOR COMMON PURPOSES" BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES HAD DEVELOPED BEFORE THE WAR.

THE OFFICIALS OFFERED THE STATEMENT AS A RESULT OF REPORTED JAPANESE CONCERN OVER RUMORS THAT BRITAIN IS OFFERING TO LEASE DEFENSE BASES IN THE PACIFIC.

IT WAS SAID AUTHORITATIVELY THAT THE REPORTS MAY HAVE ARISEN FROM A MISUNDERSTANDING OF A PORTION OF CHURCHILL'S SPEECH YESTERDAY.

THE ISLANDS WERE PLACED UNDER JOINT CONTROL FOR USE OF BRITISH AND AMERICAN CIVIL AVIATION COMPANIES AUG.11, 1938, AND ON APRIL 15 LAST YEAR, GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES AGREED TO EXTEND THE ARRANGEMENT FOR 50 YEARS, WITH THE POSSIBILITY OF CONTINUING IT INDEFINITELY.

NO NEW LEASE FOR DEFENSE PURPOSES IS INVOLVED, THESE SOURCES SAID.

LONDON,AUG.21-(AP)-THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, EVIDENCING SATISFACTION AT THE CANADIAN-AMERICAN DISCUSSIONS ON MUTUAL DEFENSE, WAS REPORTED BY UNOFFICIAL BUT WELL-INFORMED SOURCES TODAY TO BE SEEKING A MILITARY ALLIANCE WITH THE UNITED STATES.

SUCH AN ALLIANCE, IT WAS SAID, WOULD EMBRACE THE DEFENSE OF CANADA AND OTHER BRITISH POSSESSIONS IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

ALSO, AND PERHAPS MORE IMPORTANT, ONE SOURCE INDICATED, THE ALLIANCE "WOULD FORM THE BASIS FOR COMMON DIPLOMACY IN THE FAR EAST AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT."

THE UNOFFICIAL CIRCLES COMMENTING ON SUCH AN ALLIANCE ENVISAGED THE CANADIAN-AMERICAN DISCUSSIONS ON MUTUAL DEFENSE AS THE OPENING WEDGE IN A BRITISH EFFORT TO OBTAIN A FULL MILITARY ACCORD BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN.

OFFICIAL SOURCES WERE RELUCTANT TO COMMENT ON THE TALKS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA WHICH RESULTED IN A DECISION TO ESTABLISH A JOINT DEFENSE BOARD BUT THEIR SATISFACTION WAS EVIDENT.

HOWEVER, ONE RELIABLE PERSON SAID:

"IT IS A LOGICAL PROGRESSION FROM THESE TALKS TO A MILITARY ALLIANCE WITH GREAT BRITAIN. I THINK WE MAY REGARD THE PRESENT CANADIAN-AMERICAN TALKS AS SIMILAR TO THOSE WHICH, IN THE EARLY NINETEEN HUNDREDS, PRECEDED CREATION OF THE ENTENTE CORDIALE BETWEEN FRANCE AND HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT."

ONE EXPLANATION OF OFFICIAL BRITISH RELUCTANCE TO COMMENT IS THE PRESENCE OF PUBLIC OPINION IN ENGLAND THAT A NON-BELLIGERENT UNITED STATES IS MORE VALUABLE TO BRITAIN THAN AN AMERICA AT WAR WHICH WOULD BE FORCED TO USE MOST OF HER PLANES AND MUNITIONS FOR HER OWN DEFENSE INSTEAD OF LETTING BRITAIN HAVE THEM.

THE UNOFFICIAL TALK OF A MILITARY ALLIANCE CAME ONE DAY AFTER PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL STIRRED CHEERS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS BY POINTING TO THE CLOSE TIES BETWEEN THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND THE UNITED STATES.

IN THAT CONNECTION, BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCES CITED A BRITISH-AMERICAN AGREEMENT FOR THE JOINT CONTROL OF CANTON AND ENDERBURY ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN AS AN ILLUSTRATION OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S STATEMENT THAT THE "ASSOCIATION OF INTERESTS FOR COMMON PURPOSES" BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES HAD DEVELOPED BEFORE THE WAR.

ON AUG.11, 1938, THE ISLANDS WERE PLACED UNDER JOINT CONTROL FOR USE OF BRITISH AND AMERICAN CIVIL AVIATION COMPANIES. ON APRIL 15, 1939, GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES AGREED TO EXTEND THE ARRANGEMENT FOR 50 YEARS, WITH THE POSSIBILITY OF CONTINUING IT INDEFINITELY.

THE FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCES SAID NO LEASE FOR DEFENSE PURPOSES IS INVOLVED. THEY CITED THE CASE OF THE ISLANDS TO MEET REPORTED JAPANESE CONCERN OVER RUMORS THAT BRITAIN IS OFFERING TO LEASE DEFENSE BASES IN THE PACIFIC.

BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES DECIDED ON JOINT CONTROL AFTER A DISPUTE IN 1938 OVER OWNERSHIP.

LONDON,AUG.21-(AP)-LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR ARCHIBALD P.WAVELL, COMMANDER OF THE BRITISH MIDDLE EASTERN FORCES, DECLARED TODAY IN A BROADCAST FROM CAIRO THAT WHEN ADOLF HITLER FOUND HIS WAY TO INVASION OF BRITAIN BLOCKED "AS SURELY AS DID NAPOLEON, HE TOO MAY TURN EAST IN SEARCH OF EASIER SUCCESS."

"WE'VE HAD A LONG PERIOD OF WATCHING AND WAITING OUT HERE," HE ADDED, "AND SOME OF YOU HAVE GROWN WEARY OF IT. BUT I CAN ASSURE YOU THAT THE IMPORTANCE OF OUR POSITION IS FULLY REALIZED AND WE SHALL VERY SOON HAVE OUR FULL SHARE OF EQUIPMENT, WHICH NOW IS BEING PRODUCED IN GREAT QUANTITIES.

"WE ARE AT THE CRISIS MF THE WAR--PERHAPS AT THE TURNING POINT FOR VICTORY. WE STOOD ALONE IN 1805 AND WON FREEDOM BACK FOR EUROPE; WE SHALL DO THE SAME AGAIN NOW."

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-SIR ARCHIBALD SINCLAIR, BRITISH AIR MINISTER, DECLARED IN A BROADCAST TONIGHT THAT BRITAIN WILL THROW ALL HER RESOURSES INTO AN OFFENSIVE "IN THE MONTHS TO COME" IN ORDER

"CLEANSE THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE OF THE STAIN AND HORROR OF GANGSTER RULE."

HE SAID THE PEOPLE OF BRITAIN HAD A RIGHT TO BE ENCOURAGED BY BRITISH AIR FORCE ACTIVITIES, BUT HE WARNED THEM THEY MUST NOT THINK THAT THE DANGER "OF INVASION OR OF MASSED ATTACKS FROM THE AIR IS PAST."

LONDON--FIRST ADD SINCLAIR SPEECH X X X IS PAST."

THE MOVE TO "SALLY FORTH FROM OUR FORTRESS" IN AN OFFENSIVE, HE SAID, WOULD REQUIRE A STEPPED-UP WAR EFFORT.

"WE HAVE EVERY GOOD REASON FOR ABUNDANT GRATITUDE TO OUR FRIENDS IN AMERICA FOR THEIR MORAL SYMPATHY AND MATERIAL SUPPORT," HE ADDED, "BUT IT IS ON OURSELVES THAT WE MUST RELY."

NOTWITHSTANDING THE "HEAVY CASUALTIES INFLICTED ON THE GERMAN AIR FORCE," HE WENT ON, "ONLY A SMALL FRACTION OF THEIR HEAVY BOMBER FORCE HAS YET BEEN ENGAGED."

TO A PEOPLE BURDENED BY INCREASING WAR RESTRICTIONS SIR ARCHIBALD GAVE THIS MESSAGE AS AUTHORIZED BY PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL:

"IT IS THE INTENTION OF HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT TO PRESERVE IN ALL ESSENTIALS A FREE PARLIAMENT AND A FREE PRESS, THAT ALL THOSE EMERGENCY MEASURES WHICH RESTRICT THE LIBERTY OF THE SUBJECT SHALL DISAPPEAR WITH THE PASSING OF THE EMERGENCY."

SIR ARCHIBALD SAID THAT A TABULATION TONIGHT SHOWED THAT SINCE AUG.8 BRITAIN LOST BOTH IN HOME DEFENSE AND "IN OUR EXTENSIVE OPERATIONS OVER GERMANY 194 AIRCRAFT AGAINST THE GERMANS' 709."

BRITAIN, HE SAID, WAS "NOW THE MAIN AND SOLE OBSTACLE TO THE ACHIEVEMENT OF HITLER'S AIMS AND THOSE OF HIS SANCHO PANZA, MUSSOLINI; WE ARE THE TARGET OF THEIR CONCENTRATED ATTACK."

"ONLY A HANDFUL" OF RAF AIRMEN, HE ADDED, "STAND BETWEEN HITLER AND DOMINATION OF THE WORLD."

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-EDUARD OUTRATA, CZECH ARMS INDUSTRIALIST AND FINANCE MINISTER OF THE PROVISIONAL CZECH GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHED HERE, ASSERTED TODAY THAT BRITAIN'S MUNITIONS PRODUCTION HAS MADE "AMAZING STRIDES" AND WAS APPROACHING THE POINT WHERE IT WOULD BE DECISIVE.

HE SAID BRITISH INDUSTRY WAS TURNING OUT BETTER BREN MACHINE-GUNS THAN HIS OWN ARSENALS DID BEFORE THE NAZIS SEIZED THEM. THE BREN GUNS FIRST WERE PRODUCED UNDER OUTRATA.

LONDON, AUG. 21-(AP)-A GERMAN NOTE CONCERNING THE TREATMENT OF PARACHUTE TROOPS WHICH MAY BE LANDED IN GREAT BRITAIN HAS BEEN TRANSMITTED THROUGH THE SWISS GOVERNMENT TO THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-R.A.BUTLER, UNDER-SECRETARY FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS, TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY THE POLISH GOVERNMENT IN EXILE REGARDS "THE VIOLATION BY THE SOVIET UNION OF THE SOVIET-POLISH NON-AGGRESSION PACT AS PLACING THEM IN A STATE OF WAR WITH THE SOVIET UNION SINCE LAST SEPTEMBER."

HE MADE THIS STATEMENT AFTER TELLING COMMONS THERE WAS "THE CLOSEST COLLABORATION" BETWEEN THE BRITISH AND POLISH GOVERNMENTS "ON ALL MATTERS CONCERNING THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR, INCLUDING QUESTIONS OF FOREIGN POLICY."

WILLIAM GALLACHER, COMMUNIST MEMBER, SUGGESTED THAT BRITISH SUPPORT "OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT SO-CALLED" WAS HAMPERING BRITISH EFFORTS TO IMPROVE RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA. BUTLER REPLIED THAT HE BELIEVED GALLACHER "HAD BETTER LEAVE RELATIONS BETWEEN THIS COUNTRY AND THE SOVIET UNION TO HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT."

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-SIR JOHN ANDERSON, MINISTER OF HOME DEFENSE, ASSURED A LUNCHEON MEETING TODAY THAT FULL EQUIPMENT HAS BEEN ISSUED FOR EVERY AUTHOZIED ESTABLISHMENT IN THE HOME DEFENSE SYSTEM.

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-A BRITISH BOMBER SQUADRON LEADER TOLD NEWSPAPER MEN TODAY THE GERMAN RUHR WAS "BRISTLING WITH TARGETS" WHICH WERE "BEATEN UP" BY THE BRITISH, LEFT FOR A FEW DAYS AND THEN RE-ATTACKED. THE LEADER, P.R.BEARE, SAID THE ATTACKS ON THAT NAZI INDUSTRIAL AREA GAVE BRITISH PILOTS THE "GREATEST SATISFACTION."

LONDON, AUG 21-(AP)-THE AIR AND HOME SECURITY MINISTRIES SAID IN A COMMUNIQUE TONIGHT THAT THE INHABITANTS OF ONE ENGLISH TOWN WERE MACHINE-GUNNED TODAY IN ONE OF A SERIES OF ATTACKS BY GERMAN AIRCRAFT OPERATING SINGLY OR IN SMALL NUMBERS IN WIDESPREAD ATTACKS.

THE LIVING QUARTERS OF ONE ROYAL AIR FORCE AIRDROME WERE DAMAGED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, BY THE RAIDS WHICH OBVIOUSLY CHOSE AIR-FIELDS AS THEIR FAVORITE TARGET. A FEW CASUALTIES WERE REPORTED, INCLUDING SOME FATALITIES.

SEVEN GERMAN PLANES WERE OFFICIALLY REPORTED SHOT DOWN.

LONDON, AUG. 21-(AP)-LONDON POLICE WERE ORDERED TODAY TO ABANDON THEIR CUSTOMARY HIGH HELMETS AND WEAR WAR-TIME TIN HELMETS. HERETOFORE WHEN AIR RAID SIRENS SCREAMED THEY CHANGED INTO TIN HATS.

BERN - - (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) - - SWITZERLAND'S WHIRLWIND "IDEA MAN," WHOSE FAVORITE OCCUPATION IS KEEPING HIS COUNTRYMEN IN AN UPROAR AND MAKING THEM LIKE IT, HAS TOSSED ANOTHER STICK OF DYNAMITE INTO NORMALLY PLACID SWISS POLITICS.

THINGS WERE NICE AND QUIET IN SWITZERLAND BEFORE GOTTLIEB DUTTWEILER SOLD OUT HIS COFFEE PLANTATION IN BRAZIL IN 1920 AND CAME ROARING BACK TO THE LAND OF HIS BRITH.

SINCE THEN, AS ONE BERNESE BURGHER PUT IT, IT'S BEEN "POPPING WITH DUTTWEILERISMS."

FIRST THERE WAS THE "MIGROS" IDEA-A HARDHITTING COMBINATION OF THE CHAIN-STORE, MASS PURCHASE IDEA WHICH SWEPT SWITZERLAND SO QUICKLY INDEPENDENT OPERATORS AND OTHER CHAIN SYSTEMS ARE STILL WONDERING WHAT HIT THEM.

"MIGROS" MADE DUTTWEILER A SWISS MILLIONAIRE AND THE BUDGETING HOUSEWIFE'S FRIEND ALTHOUGH MANY SWISS HUSBANDS WERE CONVINCED THAT THE MIGROS STORES, SCATTERED EVERYWHERE THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, WERE DOING SOMETHING AWFUL TO SWISS ECONOMY. SO FAR BOTH ECONOMY AND MIGROS HAVE SURVIVED.

THEN THERE WAS THE HOTEL PLAN IDEA. HOTELS ALMOST OUTNUMBER YODELS IN THE SWISS ALPS, SO THE BATTLE THAT ENSUED SHOOK THE LAND LIKE NO YODEL HAD EVER DONE.

(SPECIAL NEWS SERVICE ADVANCE OF PMS OF WEDNESDAY,AUG 21)

(ADVANCE)-BERN-FIRST ADD NORMAN HYMANS XXX HAS EVER DONE.

PRIOR TO THE DEPRESSION THE SWISS HOTEL KEEPERS HAD MERELY DEPENDED ON SWISS SCENERY TO BRING THEM CUSTOMERS. DEPRESSION KEPT FOREIGNERS HOME. DUTTWEILER'S IDEA WAS TO PRACTICALLY DRAG THEM TO SWITZERLAND WITH ALL-INCLUSIVE RATES FOR EVERYTHING FAR UNDER USUAL RATES.

HE WANTED TO MAKE ALL SWITZERLAND ONE HUGE TOURIST AGENCY WITH RAILROADS, HOTELS, SKI INSTRUCTORS, RESTAURANTS, BUS COMPANIES, MOUNTAIN GUIDES ALL TAKING CUTS IN EXCHANGE FOR FLOODS OF CUSTOMERS.

"JUST MASS PRODUCTION AND COOPERATION APPLIED TO THE TOURIST BUSINESS" SAID DUTTWEILER. THE BIG HOTELS AND OTHER BIG TOURIST ORGANIZATIONS SAID "NO." DUTTWEILER ROUNDED UP A FEW ALLIES AND SET OFF ON HIS OWN.

"TOURISTS STREAMED IN BY THOUSANDS, BY TENS OF THOUSANDS", SAID THE "IDEA MAN." "THERE WAS NOTHING IN THE BIG HOTELS BUT DUST AND BILL COLLECTORS UNTIL THEY JOINED UP TOO."

FRESH FROM THE HOTEL BATTLE AND ALREADY A FIGURE OF NATIONAL PROMINENCE DUTTWEILER WAS ELECTED BY HIS PROUD ZURICH FELLOWTOWNSMEN TO THE NATIONAL COUNCIL (SWISS LOWER HOUSE) WITH SEVEN OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS OWN NEW PARTY, IN 1935.

CONSERVATIVE COUNCILMEN USUALLY SQUELCHED DUTTWEILER'S IDEAS, BUT HE KEPT AT IT. BY 1940 THE DUTTWEILER GROUP HAD 20 COUNCILMEN IN ITS FOLD AND IS STILL GROWING FAST.

ONE IDEA PASSED WAS TO SINK 210 TONS OF WHEAT IN WATERPROOF TINS TO THE BOTTOM OF AN ALPINE LAKE AS A STORAGE EXPERIMENT TO SAVE STORAGE SPACE AND BUILD UP SWISS FOOD RESERVES. LAKE BOTTOMS PROVED GOOD WAREHOUSES, BUT THE WATERPROOF CONTAINERS COST A LOT.

NOW DUTTWEILER HAS POPPED UP AS THE MAIN SPONSOR OF THE "GOTTHARD LEAGUE" WHICH MAY PLAY A TREMENDOUS PART IN THE SWISS EFFORT TO READJUST THEIR LITTLE CONFEDERATION INTO THE NEW TOTALITARIAN CONTINENT FOLLOWING THE AXIS VICTORY.

THE LEAGUE IS NATIONAL, BUT SO FAR HAS SHOWN NO SIGNS OF FASCISM OR NATIONAL SOCIALISM. IT SAYS IT OFFERS "A NEW METHOD OF ACTION AND OF THOUGHT" AND EXPECTS TO DEVELOP "NEW MEN" CAPABLE OF INSPIRING "NEW CONFIDENCE."

DUTTWEILER HIMSELF LOOKS LIKE AND ACTS LIKE A MOVIE HIGH-PRESSURE BUSINESS MAN. HE ALWAYS HAS TWO OR THREE SECRETARIES AT HIS ELBOW. HE TALKS RAPIDLY AND WASTES LITTLE TIME IN CONFERENCES.

HE WAS BORN AUG.15, 1888 IN ZURICH, SON OF THE FIRST MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE ZURICH COOPERATIVE SOCIETY FROM WHICH, HE SAYS, HE GETS MANY OF HIS "MODERN" IDEAS.

HE VISITED THE U.S. BRIEFLY IN 1918 AND AGAIN IN 1920, AND SAYS HE DOESN'T LIKE HIS NICKNAME OF "THE AMERICAN."

"WE THINK OF AMERICANS AS A BIT WILD" HE EXPLAINED, "AND WE SWISS ARE VERY CONSERVATIVE."

SAILORS OF ALL NATIONS VARY LANGOROUS LIVES ON THE MORIBUND BOATS WITH TRIPS TO THE NOW-MONOTONOUS SHORE AND EVEN DISAPPEAR INLAND IN UNCOUNTED NUMBERS.

THE FIRST MARINE WAR REFUGEES WERE THE GIANT LINERS. THEY WOULD HAVE MADE FINE PRIZES. SOME SNEAKED OUT AFTER A TIME, BUT THREE BIG ONES REMAIN--THE DUTCH NEW AMSTERDAM, THE FRENCH NORMANDIE, AND THE BRITISH QUEEN ELIZABETH.

LATER CAME THE FREIGHTERS. THE NUCLEUS OF THIS GROUP IS A DOZEN-ODD DANISH SHIPS, IN SANCTUARY WHILE THEIR OWNERS ARGUE WITH THE BRITISH ABOUT WHETHER THEY ARE SUBJECT TO SEIZURE BECAUSE OF GERMANY'S INVASION OF DENMARK.

SWEDISH AND NORWEGIAN SHIPS GO IN AND OUT FAIRLY NORMALLY, ALONG WITH NUMEROUS SECRETLY-ROUTED DUTCH FREIGHTERS, LESS TEMPTING PREY THAN THEIR COMPATRIOT NEW AMSTERDAM SEVERAL ITALIAN BOATS, BELLIGER-ENTS, ARE TIED UP AT PIERS.

THE ABNORMAL SITUATION IS SURROUNDED BY CONSONANT MYSTERY AND CONFUSION. SEVERAL DAYS' SEARCH FAILED TO PRODUCE A SINGLE AUTHORITY WHO KNEW JUST HOW MANY LAID-UP FOREIGN SHIPS THERE WERE OR HOW MANY MEN THERE WERE ON THEM.

THAT IS BECAUSE JURISDICTION OVER HARBOR FACTIVITIES IS DIVIDED AMONG SO MANY AGENCIES. CUSTOMS MEN KEEP A DAILY RECORD OF THE NUMBER OF SHIPS, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, IN PORT -- USUALLY 150 TO 200 --BUT HAVE NO OFFICIAL WAY OF KNOWING WHICH ARE INACTIVE.

OFFICIALS INSPECT THE SHIPS EVERY DAY, AND HAVE CALLED ON SOME AS MANY AS 22 TIMES WITH CREW PASSPORTS AND CLEARANCE PAPERS, IN EXPECT-ATION OF THEIR SAILING, YET THEY STAY. THE COAST GUARD MAKES A DAILY SURVEY, BUT IS CONCERNED MAINLY WITH SHIPS AT ANCHOR.

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS ARE CONCERNED MAINLY WITH THE "MALA FIDE" SAILORS ON THE IDLE BOATS -- MEN WHO MADE THE VOYAGE HERE TO JUMP SHIP. THE LINES ARE LIABLE TO A $5,000 FINE IF ANY OF THE MEN DISAPPEAR.

BONA FIDE SAILORS, WHO SPEND MOST OF THEIR TIME ON BOARD KEEPING THE SHIPS IN SHAPE AND WRITING LETTERS HOME, CAN GO ASHORE FREELY. IN NORMAL TIMES, THEY HAD TO SAIL FROM THE PORT IN 60 DAYS, BUT IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS ARE WAIVING THIS DEADLINE IN VIEW OF THE IMPOSS-IBILITY, IN MANY CASES, OF A MAN'S LEAVING.

NEW YORK FIRST ADD HILL'S STRANDED SHIPS.

X X X MAN'S LEAVING.

A SAILOR IN THIS POSITION CAN SIGN OFF THE SHIP -- THE CAPTAIN CAN'T HOLD HIM PRISONER -- AND DISAPPEAR AMONG THE OTHER 130,000,000 PEOPLE IN THE COUNTRY -- AND SHIPOWNERS ACKNOWLEDGE THAT MANY ARE DOING THIS.

THE IDLE SHIPS ARE SUPPORTED BY MONEY RECEIVED BY THEIR CAPTAINS DIRECT FROM ABROAD OR THROUGH THEIR AGENTS IN THIS COUNTRY. AGENTS SAY THAT A SHIPPING LINE CONCEIVABLY MIGHT GO BROKE SUPPORTING ITS REFUGEE SHIPS IN THIS COUNTRY WAITING FOR THE ONLY APPARENT SOLUTION OF THE IMPASSE -- THE END OF THE WAR.

DM

THE TENSION BETWEEN ITALY AND GREECE HAS INCREASED SINCE YOUR ATTENTION WAS CALLED TO THE DANGER OF THAT SITUATION IN THIS COLUMN YESTERDAY.

MUSSOLINI IS REPORTED TO HAVE MASSED TROOPS IN HIS ALBANIAN TERRITORY ALONG THE GREEK FRONTIER--FROM ATHENS THIS MORNING COMES WORD THAT ALL ARMY LEAVES HAVE BEEN CANCELLED, AND AN OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN SAYS:

"WE WILL NOT BE CAUGHT BY SURPRISE IF GREECE SHOULD BE INVADED."

THIS NEW ITALO-GREEK IMBROGLIO DOESN'T REPRESENT AN ISOLATED SITUATION TO MY MIND. I BELIEVE IT MAY EASILY SIGNAL FURTHER BIG SCALE ITALIAN EFFORTS AGAINST THE BRITISH IN AFRICA--QUITE LIKELY EGYPT IF PLANS DON'T GO ASTRAY.

SEIZURE OF GREEK NAVAL BASES TO DEPRIVE ENGLAND OF THEIR POSSIBLE USE IN MAINTAINING CONTROL OF THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN WOULD BE A LOGICAL PRELIMINARY TO MUSSOLINI'S THREATENED ASSAULT ON THE LAND OF THE PHARAOHS. IN THIS CONNECTION YOU PROBABLY NOTED THE STATEMENT BY BRITISH PREMIER CHURCHILL DURING HIS SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS YESTERDAY THAT:

"FAR LARGER OPERATIONS NO DOUBT IMPEND IN THE MIDDLE EAST THEATRE AND I SHALL CERTAINLY NOT ATTEMPT TO DISCUSS OR PROPHESY ABOUT THEIR PROBABLY COURSE."

MR.CHURCHILL DIDN'T INDICATE JUST WHAT HE MEANT, BUT I ASSUME HE HAD IN MIND EGYPT, WHICH PROVIDES ENGLAND WITH HER CHIEF SOURCE OF STRENGTH FOR DOMINATION OF THE MEDITERRANEAN. THE EXPRESSION "MIDDLE EAST" IS USED BY BRITISH OFFICIALDOM TO DESIGNATE EITHER THE COUNTRIES OF SOUTHERN ASIA LYING BETWEEN CONSTANTINOPLE AND CHINA, OR EGYPT. AND IT'S SAFE TO SAY HE WAS TALKING ABOUT THE LATTER.

SHOULD GREECE BE FORCED TO FACE INVASION ALONE THERE PROBABLY ISN'T MUCH SHE COULD DO AGAINST THE WEIGHT OF MUSSOLINI'S MECHANIZED FORCES IN ALBANIA. HOWEVER, BRITAIN HAS GUARANTEED GREEK TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY AND ALTHOUGH ENGLAND IS UP TO HER NECK IN THE HITLERIAN BLITZKRIEG SHE MIGHT BE EXPECTED TO BRING VERY CONSIDERABLE NAVAL SUPPORT TO THE AID OF HER WARD.

ALSO WE MUST FIGURE THAT TURKEY LIKELY WOULD SIDE WITH GREECE UNLESS RUSSIA SHOULD FORCE THE TURKS TO KEEP QUIET. THE SOVIET POSITION REMAINS A MYSTERY AS REGARDS ANY ATTEMPT BY MUSSOLINI TO EXTEND HIS INFLUENCE BY INVASION OF THE BALKANS OVER WHICH MOSCOW HAS THROWN A PROTECTING ARM. IT IS WITHIN THE REALM OF POSSIBILITY THAT THE MUSCOVITES MIGHT SIDE WITH GREECE AND ENGLAND, ALONG WITH TURKEY.

I TOLD YOU YESTERDAY THAT THERE WAS A BOND BETWEEN TURKEY AND GREECE IN EVENT OF WAR. SUBSEQUENTLY A DISPATCH FROM ANKARA SAID THE IMPRESSION EXISTED AMONG FOREIGN OBSERVERS THAT THE TURKS WOULD AID GREECE UNHESITATINGLY IF SHE WERE ATTACKED.

THE TURKISH POSITION IS HIGHLY IMPORTANT IN THIS SITUATION. THE TURKS ARE THE LEADERS IN THE BALKAN ENTENTE (TURKEY, GREECE, YUGOSLAVIA AND RUMANIA), AND WIELD GREAT INFLUENCE AMONG THEIR NEIGHBORS. MOREOVER, THEY HAVE A POWERFUL ARMY AND ARE FAMOUS FIGHTERS. AS LONG AGO AS JUNE THEY HAD 600,000 MEN UNDER ARMS, WITH MORE IN THE OFFING.

BECAUSE OF PRESSURE FROM RUSSIA THE TURKS HAVE FOUND IT WISE TO SIT TIGHT THUS FAR DURING THE WAR BETWEEN THE AXIS AND THE ALLIES. HOWEVER, TURKEY HAS AN ALLIANCE WITH THE BRITISH AND UNLESS HER HEART HAS CHANGED IN RECENT MONTHS SHE IS WITH ENGLAND IN SPIRIT, AND MIGHT EASILY BE MATERIALLY.

30.24-4481

AS HE DID FEW OTHERS. WHEN I WAS IN ANKARA IN 1938 A DIPLOMATIC FRIEND REPEATED A REMARK BY THE TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER ARAS WHICH WELL SUMMED UP ATATURK'S POLICY:

"BRITAIN MAY HAVE LOST A BATTLE OR TWO BUT SHE NEVER LOST A VITAL WAR. WE STAY WITH HER."

THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION THAT THIS POLICY HAS CHANGED SINCE THE DEATH OF ATATURK IN '38, ALTHOUGH TURKEY HASN'T FELT ABLE TO THROW HER MILITARY SUPPORT TO ENGLAND THUS FAR.

ATATURK WAS FAR MORE SUSPICIOUS OF MUSSOLINI'S INTENTIONS THAN OF ANY OTHER CHIEF OF STATE. IL DUCE LONG HAS BEEN CREDITED BY THE TURKS WITH WANTING TO EXPAND INTO ASIA MINOR. CONSIDERABLE BACKGROUND FOR THIS WAS PROVIDED BY THE WAR BETWEEN ITALY AND TURKEY IN 1911-12 DURING WHICH THE TURKS LOST TRIPOLITANIA (NOW INCORPORATED IN ITALIAN LYBIA) AND THE ITALIANS TOOK OVER THE DODECANESE ISLAND UP AGAINST THE TURKISH COAST. MUSSOLINI HAS FORTIFIED THE LARGEST OF THESE ISLANDS AND TURNED THEM INTO POWERFUL MILITARY AND NAVAL BASES.

YOU SEE, THEREFORE, WHY THE TURKS HAVE NO LOVE FOR ITALY AND WHY THERE IS A BOND NOT ONLY BETWEEN TURKEY AND BRITAIN BUT BETWEEN TURKEY AND GREECE.

IT'S IMPORTANT TO NOTE HERE THAT TURKISH SUPPORT FOR GREECE MIGHT EASILY TAKE THE FORM OF SUPPORT FOR BRITAIN AGAINST ITALY IN THE NEAR EAST. THIS WOULD PERMIT OF EMPLOYMENT OF THE BIG TURKISH ARMY IN DEFENSE OF EGYPT.

NEW YORK, AUG 21-(AP)-WEIRD FLAMES SEEN ON BRITAIN'S ROCK OF GIBRALTAR AFTER AN AIR-ATTACK BEFORE DAWN TODAY HAVE RAISED THE QUESTION WHETHER THE ITALIAN -- OR GERMAN -- AIRFORCE IS USING A NEW WEAPON TO OVERCOME THE EXTRAORDINARY BOMB-PROOF STRENGTH OF THE ROCK.

OBSERVERS IN LA LINEA AND ALGECIRAS, ON SPANISH TERRITORY CLOSE TO GIBRALTAR, SAID THE ROCK "FLAMED LIKE A VOLCANO" AFTER THE ATTACK, AND THAT THEY SAW FIRE FLOWING LIKE A STREAM OF LAVA DOWN THE SLOPE.

AN ORDINARY HIGH-EXPLOSIVE BOMB MIGHT CHIP OFF A FEW FRAGMENTS OF THE ROCK, BUT UNLESS IT SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON SOME APERTURE IN THE CLIFF IT WOULD DO LITTLE DAMAGE. SINCE MOST OF GIBRALTAR'S VITAL POINTS ARE SHIELDED BY TONS OF ROCK, ITALIAN OR GERMAN CHEMISTS MAY HAVE DEVELOPED A SPECIAL INCENDIARY BOMB DESIGNED TO SPILL A FLOOD OF FLAMES OVER A FAIRLY LARGE AREA.

OIL OR GASOLINE, NO DOUBT, WOULD BE TOO VOLATILE; AND THE ORDINARY THERMITE BOMB -- WHILE PRODUCING AN EXTREMELY HIGH TEMPERATURE WHERE IT STRIKES -- MIGHT NOT BE VERY EFFECTIVE ON A SMOOTH, ROCKY SLOPE.

BUT THE RIGHT KIND OF INCENDIARY FLUID MIGHT SEEK OUT CHINKS IN THE ARMOR OF GIBRALTAR IN MUCH THE SAME WAY THAT MEDIEVAL WARFARE'S BOILING OIL SOUGHT OUT CHINKS IN THE ARMOR OF MAILED KNIGHTS STORMING A CASTLE.

IN OTHER WORDS, THE MYSTERIOUS STREAM OF FIRE FLOWING DOWN GIBRALTAR'S SLOPE MAY HAVE BEEN AN ATTEMPT TO ".'9(3 OUT" DEFENDERS WHO ARE TOO FIRMLY ENTRENCHED TO BE BOMBED OUT WITH HIGH-EXPLOSIVES.

LARGE FIRES OFTEN ARE CAUSED WHEN AN AMMUNITION DUMP IS HIT, -- BUT IT IS WELL KNOWN THAT BRITAIN'S AMMUNITION IS STORED WELL UNDER-GROUND AT GIBRALTAR. IT IS NOT LIKELY THAT IT WOULD BE LYI

IN OTHER WORDS, THE MYSTERIOUS STREAM OF FIRE FLOWING DOWN GIBRALTAR'S SLOPE MAY HAVE BEEN AN ATTEMPT TO "MSOKE OUT"

GIBRALTAR'S SLOPE MAY HAVE BEEN AN ATTEMPT TO "SMOKE OUT" DEFENDERS WHO ARE TOO FIRMLY ENTRENCHED TO BE BOMBED OUT WITH HIGH-EXPLOSIVES.

LARGE FIRES OFTEN ARE CAUSED WHEN AN AMMUNITION DUMP IS HIT, -- BUT IT IS WELL KNOWN THAT BRITAIN'S AMMUNITION IS STORED WELL UNDER-GROUND AT GIBRALTAR. IT IS NOT LIKELY THAT IT WOULD BE LYING AROUND ON THE SURFACE WHERE TODAY'S MYSTERIOUS FLAMES WERE SEEN.

ONE CHEMICAL WARFARE EXPERT HERE SUGGESTED THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS MAY BE EXPERIMENTING WITH WHITE-PHOSPHORUS.

A LARGE QUANTITY OF THIS SUBSTANCE DROPPED ON ROCK WOULD IMMEDIATELY FORM A POOL OF FLAME, AND FIERY STREAMS OF IT WOULD FLOW INTO ANY CREVICE PERVIOUS TO WATER.

IT WOULD NOT BE NECESSARY, OF COURSE, FOR THE FLAMING LIQUID ACTUALLY TO PENETRATE A GUN TURRET OR EMBRASURE TO BE EFFECTIVE. IF IT COLLECTED ON LEDGES AND PARAPETS, OR RAN PAST IN A SHEET OF FLAME, THE TERRIFIC HEAT MIGHT BE ENOUGH TO DRIVE OUT CREWS AND DAMAGE EQUIPMENT.

A LARGE-SCALE RAID OF THIS KIND -- TODAY'S RAID APPARENTLY INVOLVED ONLY A SINGLE PLANE --- MIGHT CONCEIVABLY TURN THE WHOLE SURFACE OF THE ROCKY FORTRESS INTO A BLAZING INFERNO.

Nazis Bomb London In First Night Raid

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE.

London, Aug. 23 (Friday) (AP).—This city of nearly 9,000,000 inhabitants, heart of an empire, was raided by German planes in the early morning darkness today—London's first night raid of the war.

For three-quarters of an hour the population — those who prefer watching the fire-works to huddling in air-raid shelters—heard the intermittent rumble of exploding bombs and the defensive thundering of anti-aircraft guns and watched the weird play of lights and bursting shells against the sky.

The all clear was sounded at 4 A. M. (11 P. M., New York time).

One or Two Dead.

Although there was no precise count of casualties so soon after the Germans swept in, it was learned that one or two of those wounded had died.

Most of the bombs appeared to have fallen on the western outskirts of the city, but there were explosions which seemed to come from London's populous and fashionable West End.

Millions of Londoners tumbled out of their beds to rush either to air-raid shelters or to rooftops to watch the play of lights across the night sky.

They Discount It.

They did not, however, class the raid as the "real thing." they called it a hit-and-run affair. While an actual count was not yet available, observers said the raiders came over London in a "fairly large" number.

The renewed aerial assault came only a few hours after the Nazis had opened their first large-scale shelling of England's southeast coast defenses from batteries planted on the far side of the English Channel for 30 miles from Calais to Boulogne.

Caught in Beams.

Godfrey Anderson, a member of the Associated Press staff who lives in West London, called his office and reported:

"The searchlights have just caught a plane in its beams and are trailing it across the London area."

Another Associated Press man, Henry Jackson, saw enemy raiders flying over the city, and the dull red flashes of anti-aircraft fire splitting the darkness.

"The crash of guns followed as dozens of searchlights stabbed the sky," Jackson said.

"The beams swept around and converged on one spot to pick out one of the raiders like a silver bird."

A few minutes later anti-aircraft gunfire could be heard by people in the heart of London. At that time many of the residents in the central section had crowded into air-raid shelters.

A "scream" bomb fell in the country west of London, but no explosion was heard.

Later three bombs fell with loud explosions.

Shelled Swiftly.

As for activities over London, Jackson said that one plane caught in the beams of anti-aircraft searchlights was almost immediately ringed with "angry bursts of red flame" from anti-aircraft shells.

"Two other planes roared near by," he telephoned. "The guns flashed a continued roar while the sirens sounded. From every side long white streaks of light traced the sky."

The invading planes, Jackson said, were silhouetted dimly against the clear sky. They could be seen without the aid of searchlights.

"The planes split up," Jackson said. "One went southeast and the others east. Anti-aircraft fire followed them for a few minutes later and in a little while London was quiet again. All that could be heard was a train chuffing near by."

It was London's first night raid. The great Croydon Airdrome, eight miles from Charing Cross, heart of London, was raided in last Sunday's twilight.

NAZI WARPLANES HIT CITY FOR FIRST TIME AT NIGHT; DOVER AREA BOMBARDED

Rifles Planted Along 30 Miles Of French Coast Hurl Explosives Across Channel—Buildings Damaged, Ground Shaken

AUG 23 1940

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Aug. 23—German raiders early today struck within the city limits of London in a quick follow-up of the newest Nazi show of power—cross-Channel shelling which battered the Dover coastal section.

Explosions were heard in the fashionable West End, mingled with the rapid bark of anti-aircraft guns. Bombs also were believed to have fallen in the suburbs.

The scream of air-raid-alarm sirens sent residents hurrying to cover. Others ran into the streets or to rooftops to watch the attack.

Anti-Aircraft Fire From Outskirts

The sound of the anti-aircraft firing seemed to come from the outskirts. Scream bombs fell along with other explosives, but their exact targets were not immediately identified. At least two people were killed.

The swing back to air attack came after the Battle of Britain took a new turn—long-range shelling of England's southeast coast defenses in two bombardments by Nazi batteries planted along thirty miles of French coast from Calais to Boulogne.

Dover Bears Brunt Of Shelling

Dover bore the brunt of the shelling, but explosives hurled across the Channel splattered other sections of the coast also.

The British struck back with dive bombers aimed at silencing the guns and smashing their carefully prepared emplacements. They succeeded in curbing them for half an hour, but they started up again later.

Official quarters said the British counter-blows were with bombers only and that there had been no artillery duel across the water.

Take Uncounted Toll Of Lives

Homes were smashed at Dover and the big shells took an uncounted toll of lives. Residents were seen as late as midnight hurrying from the shelled zone to overnight safety elsewhere.

Big formations of British bombers loosed their swift counter-assault all along the French coast from Calais, just across from Dover, the apparent target of the big guns, to Boulogne, aiming their bomb loads at the gun flashes.

Britons Term It Waste Of Time

Authoritative persons in London declared that the Nazi attack with land guns was "a waste of time," contending that it had no worth-while military object.

More damage could be done by bombs, they said, adding that a shell fired from a distance equivalent to the cross-Channel range of twenty-odd miles had only four per cent. of a bomb's bursting power.

There was no immediate word as to the extent of damage.

Observers said they were being pumped from guns of at least 12 to 14 inches.

There were casualties—none knew just how many. Several buildings were hit, including a church and its vicarage, from which the rector was brought forth on a stretcher.

The shell which wrecked the church smashed through a stained-glass window beside an altar. Windows were shattered by the explosion. Pews were splintered and great holes were torn in pillars.

A piece of shell casing nine inches long was picked up on the steps to the pulpit.

As late as midnight some residents were seen carrying bedclothing from homes in the shell-pounded area to shelter overnight elsewhere.

Bursts of white light sprang up in the sky over the French coast and streams of tracer shells were seen rising from German anti-aircraft batteries.

Channel Coast Shaken

Explosions shook the Channel coast; shells could be heard overhead, as across the Channel gun flashes stabbed the darkness.

It was a resumption of heavy shelling which earlier in the day had raked the Channel, attacking a mile-long convoy of vital British shipping, and it was officially declared that not a vessel was hit.

The second artillery attack was loosed at about the same time that Nazi bombers returned in force for the first outbreak of large-scale aerial warfare in three days. Seven raiders had been reported shot down by nightfall with the loss of two British fighter planes.

A single raiding party estimated at fifty planes crossed the southeast coast in the early dusk and the main body was declared turned back by hot anti-aircraft fire. The same coast was crossed in at least two other areas tonight and at one point dive bombers loosed incendiary bombs.

At least one hundred shells were fired at the convoy. No ships were hit and in a German dive-bomber attack that followed one of the Stukas was shot down.

1,000 Downed Since June 18

The Stuka was an important bag, for it brought to 1,000 the British figure of the number of German planes destroyed for certain since the intensified air war on and about the British Isles was loosed June 18. This mark was passed late in the day.

The guns bellowed in groups of four and their positions were plainly betrayed by the flashes that rose from their cordite charges.

The Channel waters leaped with the force of exploding shells, and the ground trembled on the British side. High in the sky, a German plane was busy apparently acting as range-finder. The convoy crept in as close as it could to the high, white cliffs of the British shore, only twenty-two miles from the French coast at one point, between Calais and Dover.

Free From Mass Raids

At the height of the action, two British warships threw a smoke screen about the convoy—a screen that apparently saved it. British air fighters roared in overhead.

Earlier yesterday German bombers made attacks, which were declared unsuccessful, on a convoy off the northeastern coast, and this and all other signs indicated that large-scale shipping had been resumed by the British.

Single German planes, and little groups of two and three, dropped bombs in Scotland, on the southeast English coast in Wales. Only minor damage was reported.

Scattered Raids on England.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—While the British today chalked up the 1,000th Nazi plane shot down since the intensive phase of the air war on Britain was begun, scattered raids ashore by crews flying singly or in twos and threes continued today, but the Air Ministry said that they were "very few and on a small scale."

Sporadic raids were resumed early today when a single plane dropped nine whistling bombs on a southeast of England coast town, while many more exploded in the sea. Although five fell on houses and in backyards, little damage was done, and no casualties resulted.

Nazi planes were also reported in the vicinity of a Welsh town.

U. S. Built Machine Is Victor.

The 999th Nazi plane shot down since Hitler loosed his daily raids on England on June 18 was accounted for last night by an American-built Hudson dive-bomber off Denmark. Single-handed, this machine attacked seven German fighting planes and brought down one of them, escaping with her own landing gear and fuselage riddled.

The 1,000th plane was shot down in the battle which developed as a result of the Nazi attack on a mile-long convoy of ships in the English Channel today.

From midnight till dawn only two raids were noted. A soldier was killed when three or four bombs were scattered on a Scottish hillside. Some houses were wrecked.

Gas and water mains in a southeast town of England were damaged and a railway line farther inland was blocked for a short time.

Torpedo Wrecks Homes.

The usual nightly forays continued last night, however, and were notable for the dropping of an aerial torpedo on a row of houses in a southeast of England coast town. The torpedo exploded with a blast that shook the whole town.

Designed to be launched horizontally in water as a weapon against ships, the torpedo was apparently jettisoned from a plane which could find no more suitable target and had to return home without it to conserve fuel.

It fell into a row of eight workers' cottages and made shambles of them, burying many and causing an unannounced number of casualties. It made a crater more than thirty feet wide.

The British reported that they shot down thirteen German planes yesterday and lost only one of their own.

Say Blitz Is Shot Up.

Meanwhile today, as their Government strove to keep the public on the alert for mass raids on a greater scale than ever before, many Britons jubilantly declared that the Royal Air Force had shot the "blitz" out of blitzkrieg.

The Air Minister, Sir Archibald Sinclair, warned against complacency, however, in a broadcast to the nation. He said it would be a mistake "to think that the danger of invasion or of massed attacks from the air is past" and he remarked that the Germans have so far utilized "only a small fraction of their heavy bomber force."

The London Daily Mirror captioned one of these pictures, "Hitler's Junk-ers Yard," with the "junk" in capitals.

"It is possible," the London News Chronicle warned, however, "that Goering is using this lull to plan some form of attack—perhaps on a still larger scale—which may break over us in the next few hours, or days."

tant military objectives in Germany.

Silencing of German radio stations indicated they left only a few hours after the Air Ministry announced that oil refineries, airdromes and rail communications in Germany and Nazi-held territory had been hit heavily by English bombers.

Refineries at Magdeburg and Hanover were attacked; explosions and fires were reported caused at airdromes at Caen and Abbeville, in France, and other airdromes were bombed near Hanover and on the island of Texel.

Railway Centers Hit

Railway centers were hit in the industrial German Ruhr and Rhineland. Bombs fell on a tunnel between Heinburg and Verben, northwest of Hanover, just as a supply train entered, it was declared.

Ice formed on the raiders' planes, it was said, and in at least one case a pilot's instruments were frozen. One flyer reported the snow had entered the cockpit and formed a two-inch thick layer over the side panels of his craft.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—German long-range guns opened a new and heavy bombardment from across the English Channel tonight and explosions shook the channel coast. Shells could be heard overhead, and some were reported to have dropped near land.

The artillery attack from across the channel was loosed at about the same time that Nazi bombers returned in force for the first outbreak of large-scale aerial warfare in three days.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The big German guns which long had lain silent and concealed on the Nazi-held French coastline went into action against English Channel shipping today in the most spectacular attempt yet made to support the aerial and submarine counter-blockade of Britain.

For an hour and twenty minutes they thundered—all the way along the thirty-odd-mile stretch from Calais and Boulogne—throwing tons of shells twenty miles at a mile long British convoy making its way up the channel with the supplies that must come every day and at any hazard to this kingdom.

At least 100 shells were fired. But so far as shore observers could see not a ship was scratched; and in a German dive-bomber attack that followed one of the stukas was shot down.

Tonight the Admiralty and Air Ministry declared officially in a joint communique that neither the convoy nor the naval escort suffered a single hit.

The guns thundered in groups of four and their positions were plainly betrayed by the flashes that rose from their cordite charges.

At the height of the action, two British warships threw a smoke screen about the convoy—a screen that apparently saved it. British air fighters roared in overhead.

Over these islands generally air attacks during the day were isolated and small—the third successive day of freedom from mass assaults.

Bombers made attacks, which were declared unsuccessful, on a convoy off the northeast coast, and this and all other signs indicated that large-scale shipping had been resumed by the British. In the Northeast coast raid Spitfire fighters pursued the attackers out to sea.

Ships Escape Fire At 20 Mile Range

Pictorial Map on Page 3

By William J. Humphreys
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

A Southeast Coast Town, England, Aug. 22—Big guns concealed on the French shore shelled a mile-long British convoy in the English Channel today, but after eighty minutes the ships passed through Dover Straits without apparent casualty.

Observers estimated at least one hundred shells were fired at a twenty-mile range. At times the German batteries were sending one over every minute.

The bombardment diminished after the convoy passed over.

Then German dive bombers suddenly roared out of the east and began a new attack on the ships. British guns brought one of them down. The convoy apparently escaped damage.

Batteries Of Four Fire

The German guns fired in batteries of four, and guns along the French coast all the way from Calais to Boulogne appeared to be taking part.

Every time they fired their positions were betrayed to observers, who noted the blotches of bright flame from their cordite charges.

(The firing could be heard over the telephone in the London office as Humphreys dictated his story.)

Most of the shells, aimed at the group of small merchant ships and its escort of war vessels, fell into the sea.

A few seconds after the flashes were seen, the shells burst near the ships. The German gunners changed the range and the shells fell closer to the convoy. But subsequent shells dropped between the ships and the English shore.

The explosions shook the ground on this side of the Channel.

Crowds Watch From Shore

Crowds began gathering on the shore to watch.

Shortly after it started, two British warships laid a smoke screen to keep the Germans from spotting their targets and noting where their shells fell.

It was believed that the gunners were getting firing range from a Nazi plane flying high in the skies.

The convoy sailed close to the towering English cliffs.

While the warships weaved in and out in the smoke screen, British air fighters appeared overhead.

After a while police cleared the water front of all save soldiers, sailors and newspapermen.

Another Convoy Bombed.

ON THE ENGLISH NORTHEAST COAST, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Fishermen reported that three German planes attacked a British convoy off the northeast coast today, dropping several bombs but without apparent success. Spitfire fighter planes pursued the attackers out to sea.

Attacked in Irish Sea.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—An unsuccessful German aerial torpedo attack on a steamship in the Irish Sea was reported by its crew today. They said a German plane launched two torpedoes.

R. A. F. Drops Bombs in Reich Near Bismarck's Mausoleum

Nazis Report British Raid on North Germany, While London Counts 1000 Enemy Planes Shot Down Since June.

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—DNB, the official German news agency, said today that British planes had dropped bombs 200 yards from the Bismarck Mausoleum near Friedrichsruh.

Meanwhile the German High Command said that fifteen airports and numerous industrial plants, as well as port and rail facilities in England were attacked by German planes yesterday.

The communique also stated that bomb hits were observed on industrial plants at Skegness, Great Yarmouth, Coventry and Bournemouth, as well as on the port facilities of Bridlington. It also claimed that German flyers bombed a ship in the yards at Southampton, and another in a convoy off the east coast of England.

It said that an airplane factory southeast of London and an armament factory near Brighton were bombed.

North Germany Raided.

The communique acknowledged that British airmen had raided north Germany, but insisted that they caused only minor damage. The British lost seven planes yesterday, the High Command declared, while the Germans lost six.

German air activity over Great Britain up to noon today was limited to the customary armed reconnaissance flights, informed persons said.

Meanwhile today observers here declared that the aerial torpedoes reported dropped in England last night were probably large bombs, possibly of 1,000 kilograms (2,205 pounds).

The 1,000-kilogram bomb, it was said, resembles a torpedo in many respects. It has fins on the tail and a barrel-shaped fan behind the fins to steady its descent. Some are as much as ten or twelve feet long. When pitched from planes they pursue a forward course, squirming and wriggling until the combination of gravity and forward speed causes the air to take hold of the fins and force a curved course downward.

Bombs of 1,000 kilograms, carried by huge bombers of all nations, are used only on special missions of heaviest destruction. They will tear out a space in moist ground two stories deep and from 60 to 100 yards wide.

Practice Shooting, Say Nazis.

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—German big Bertnas, their long snouts pointing ominously at Britain across the English Channel, were unlimbered in thunderous, hours-long "practice shooting" along the French coast today, German sources said, for the purpose of "finding their range."

"First this shooting was on practice targets," it was reported here, without it being said what the targets subsequently turned out to be.

Nazi military informants meanwhile declared the mining of British waters had assumed "threatening proportions," with the Bristol Channel lifeline for supplies from the United States on the British west coast commanding major attention from Nazi mine sowers. Minesweepers have been observed for days, the German informants declared, attempting to clean out mines laid by German planes. The sweepers were said also to be employed now as pilot boats for merchantmen.

Nazis Say Guns Are in Place to Cover Channel

'Practice Shelling' Said to Prove Long-Range Fire Can Sweep Wide Area

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—German long-range shelling across the English Channel is ready for full-force bombardment that will put the entire Channel in German control, authoritative Nazi sources said tonight.

The well informed Berlin commentary "Dienst aus Deutschland" said today's "range-finding and practice shelling" indicated that battery positions have been completed along the Nazi-held coast of France.

"Germany now has a weapon to control the Channel," the Nazi organ said, adding that its "force soon can make itself felt."

Range of the big guns, however, was kept secret. (German military sources have been quoted previously as saying they have guns capable of shelling London—ninety miles from the French coastline emplacements.)

Nazi military informants declared today that the mining of British waters had assumed "threatening proportions." The Bristol Channel lifeline for supplies from the United States on the British west coast was commanding major attention from Nazi mine sowers, it was said.

British mine sweepers have been observed for days, the German informants declared, attempting to clean out mines laid by German planes. The sweepers were said also to be employed now as pilot boats for merchantmen.

"The mining of the Bristol Channel, together with extensive destruction of port facilities in most of its harbors by our air force, means a perilous blow to Great Britain's supplies of raw materials and foodstuffs," they said.

Relaxing her aerial siege, Germany kept most of her military air power grounded during the day, again abstaining from mass bombing attacks such as last week's, but she reported a toll from "the usual armed reconnaissance."

The German high command said that fifteen air ports and numerous industrial plants, as well as port and rail facilities, were attacked yesterday by German planes. The communique said bomb hits were observed on industrial plants at Skegness, Great Yarmouth, Witney, Coventry and Bournemouth, as well as on the port facilities of Bridlington. It added that German flyers bombed a ship in the yards at Southampton and another in a convoy on the east coast of England. It said an airplane factory southeast of London and an armament factory near Brighton were bombed.

The communique acknowledged that British airmen had raided north Germany, but insisted they caused only minor damage. The British lost seven planes yesterday, the high command said, while the Germans lost six.

NAZIS WARN U. S. REFUGEE SHIPS

Bar Safe-conduct for Those Evacuating Children.

COMMENT ON CONGRESS BILL

Say Youngsters Will Be Safer Under Air Raids in England.

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Authoritative Nazi spokesmen declared today that Germany's total blockade of Great Britain would make it impossible for the Reich to give assurance of safe conduct of any American ships which may try to remove children from England.

Supporting a similar statement issued earlier by DNB, the official German news agency, they said that Germany understands the humanitarian impulse underlying the proposal to amend the United States neutrality law so that British children might be brought across the Atlantic. But these spokesmen declared that mines form an essential part of the blockade of Great Britain, and that mines which have been laid cannot be moved. Therefore, they argued, the children would conceivably be exposed to greater danger on an ocean crossing than if they were kept at home.

As for the United States Army transport American Legion, which sailed through a part of the blockade zone on her way from Petsamo, Finland, to New York, Nazi spokesmen expressed relief at reports indicating that this vessel was probably out of the danger zone.

Call It Fool's Luck.

But far from regarding this as any potential argument for the possibility of other American vessels getting through the blockade waters safely, they asserted that the American Legion had fortunately had "fool's luck."

At the same time German military observers claimed the extension of the blockade far to the west and north of Ireland. In substantiation of this claim they cited the sinking by Nazi bombing planes of a 12,000-ton merchantman west of Ireland yesterday and serious damage inflicted on three other ships still farther out in the North Atlantic.

They said that these attacks should convince neutral navigators that the blockade is on in earnest—and indicated, too, that Nazi bombers must have covered the seas through which the American Legion sailed.

Why Course Wasn't Changed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The reason this Government refused to change the course of the army transport American Legion despite a German warning was told by President Roosevelt today to Senator Bone, Democrat, of Washington, who charged in the Senate this week that war had been risked in the matter because of stubbornness.

Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State, also was present when the President received Senator Bone in the living quarters of the White House.

Stephen Early, the President's press secretary, described the situation to reporters as a case of one nation having said certain waters were mined and another having said certain other waters were mined.

The number of refugee Americans brought home by the transport from Petsamo, Finland, was nearly double the number which had been expected originally, Mr. Early said, and no food for the additional ones was to be had in Petsamo. The route taken was probably the most direct one, the secretary said.

He reiterated that the decision regarding the route that was followed was reached on the recommendation of the army and navy High Command.

Nazi Organ Appears On Potato-vine Paper

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's fortnightly magazine Vierjahresplan (Four Year Plan) appears currently on paper made from potato vines.

Germans hail the development as a noteworthy industrial achievement and predict that potato vine cellulose will soon be used for the manufacture of yarns and a great variety of fabrics.

Nazis Seek Trade Pact With New Soviet States

Expert Sent To Moscow To Negotiate Accord On Lithuania, Latvia And Estonia

Berlin, Aug. 22 (AP Via Radio)—A German Foreign Office trade expert, Karl Schnurre, will go to Moscow shortly to arrange for inclusion of Nazi trade pacts with recently Sovietized Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia within the frameworks of the German-Russian agreement, the German radio announced today.

The radio said Moscow already has accepted the idea "in principle."

The mission also will take up the future status of Memel, German-annexed port, which heretofore was at Lithuania's disposal as a free harbor.

Indian Play In Berlin

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 22—Even though Germany is at war, the show must go on—and strangely enough the show is an American Indian play.

In a natural amphitheater, seating 8,000 persons, make-believe Indian braves shoot pointless arrows and war-whoop in German.

Scenes are from the works of Karl May. Feuds between Comanches and Apaches and the white man's greed for gold and fur form the sociological background.

Evil Is Protected

Winnetou's "Silver Rifle" and Old Shatterhand's "Bear Killer" protect the good and punish the evil. Love, comedy and tragedy are injected, and Sam Hawkens finally deals out wild-west justice to Santer, the renegade white.

Some excerpts from Hawken' gags may give an indication of what tickles the wartime funnybone.

When Trapper Sam is tied to the stake, about to be provided with a funeral pyre, he observes: "And it is such a nice day—to be burned in public."

Rolls 'Em In Aisles

It almost rolls 'em into the aisles when Sam adds that "being burned to death results in such bodily injury that one seldom survives it."

A dramatic critic might be inclined to find fault with such inconsistencies as a windmill in the background, and army rifles making up the shortage of muskets.

But the audience apparently is consoled by the thought that the play's the thing, although some of the Indians ride like German cavalrymen and, after smoking the pipe of peace, shake hands German style.

Blockade 'Hostile Act,' French Warn British

English Assailed For "Dictatorship Of Famine" In Cutting Off Supplies To Former Ally

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 22—Britain's blockade of Europe was branded tonight by the Foreign Minister of her former ally as "an inhuman dictatorship of famine."

Paul Baudouin, Foreign Minister in the Government of Marshal Petain, declared in a speech that Winston Churchill had committed "an act of hostility" against France by his statement Tuesday that no food would be permitted to pass the British naval barrier to Nazi-conquered countries.

"The French Government will not bow before this decision," said Baudouin. "It must do everything in its power to save this country from hunger."

Baudouin did not say directly what France planned to do but he did assert: "Whether they wish it or not—whether they understand it or not—the nations of this whole continent are going to be united on a growing solidarity."

Churchill, he added, has taken Britain out of this sphere of "solidarity."

Howard E. Kershner, European director of the American Friends Service Committee, announced later, after consultation with French officials, that "certain" measures would be taken to increase the aid to French refugees.

In Reply To British Charge

Referring to British remarks that the empire's defeat in the Somaliland to Italian forces was due in part to the defection of the French, Baudouin disclosed for the first time that the French Syrian armies totaled only 60,000 men during the period while France remained in the war.

In French Jibouti—nearby British Somaliland—the French had only 5,000 men, he said, adding:

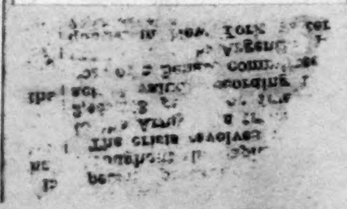
"If the British Premier must justify himself for the grave Somaliland reverse, whom can he make believe that 5,000 men in Jibouti could have stopped an enemy?"

"Did Not Merit Victory"

As to the French defeat at home, Baudouin declared:

"We were defeated because we did not merit victory."

He accused Churchill of inviting the world to a pitiless battle, predicting "It is only misery that will triumph."



FRANCE ASSAILS BRITISH BLOCKADE

Foreign Minister Calls It Act of Hostility.

VICHY, France, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Britain's refusal to lift the blockade against France was termed an act of hostility tonight in a speech by Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin.

This, the Foreign Minister declared in answer to Prime Minister Churchill's Tuesday address, is "perhaps even more painful than the Mers-el-Kebir attack."

He referred to the assault of the British fleet on French warships at France's North African base early in July, as a result of which the Petain Government broke off diplomatic relations with England.

"The French Government will not bow before this decision," the Foreign Minister said. "It must do everything in its power to save this country from hunger."

NAZIS IN FRANCE DETAIN AMERICANS

Latter Virtually Unable to Leave Occupied Area.

VICHY, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—For the past week, Americans have found it practically impossible to get a permit to leave the German-occupied section of France, according to reports reaching Vichy today.

It is understood, however, that diplomats can get through, and the American Charge d' Affaires, Robert D. Murphy, and the military attache, Col. Horace H. Fuller, left Vichy by automobile today for Paris on their way to the United States.

With Ambassador William C. Bullitt already in the United States, the embassy at Vichy is now left in the care of the First Secretary, H. Freeman Matthews. Major Robert A. Schow remains as military attache, and Commander Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter is staying as naval attache.

The staff of embassy officers and clerks in Paris is to be reduced shortly with a number departing on leaves or for new assignments. The First Secretary, Maynard Barnes, remains in charge looking after the affairs of several hundred Americans.

Col. Fuller, who is definitely transferred from France, and Mr. Murphy, who is on leave, expected to proceed from Paris to Lisbon.

FRENCH ARMY LOST 7 GENERALS KILLED

Vichy Praises Heroic Acts of 4 Others in War.

VICHY, France, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The heroic conduct of eleven French generals, seven of whom were killed in the war with Germany, was set forth today in the first official account of what has become of France's high ranking officers. It said the errors of some commanders were offset by the bravery of other generals, more of whom were killed or wounded at their posts than during the world war.

The seven who were killed or mortally wounded in action, most of them identified only by their last names, were:

Janssenn, who fell June 2 at the head of what remained of his division after holding up the Germans for several days before Dunkerque.

Dame, who died in captivity after fighting in Belgium and north France.

The courageous conduct of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, former Governor of Metz, who held back superior German armored divisions until he was captured with the last of his soldiers, was cited.

Gen. Moulin was listed as having disappeared with part of his troops after organizing tank trap units.

Gens. Corbe and Trolley de Prevaux were mentioned for fighting their way back to the French lines after being surrounded with their troops.

It was announced that Gens. Vergez and Audet have been named to command French troops in Morocco and Tunisia respectively. Vergez replaces Gen. Auguste Nogues, who retired from command because of his age. No mention was made of any change in Gen. Nogues's position as Resident General or Civil Governor.

ZAY FACES TRIAL BY COURT-MARTIAL

Ex-French Cabinet Officer Arrested as Deserter.

VICHY, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The French press reported today that the former Minister of Education, Jean Zay, was held at Clermont-Ferrand on a charge of desertion from the army and would be court-martialed.

M. Zay was one of twenty-six former Cabinet Ministers and Deputies who went to North Africa late in June shortly before the signing of the Franco-German armistice. Marseilles dispatches several days ago reported his arrival there under police escort from Rabat, in French Morocco.

A Clermont-Ferrand dispatch today said that he was arrested at Rabat on order of the military authorities. He was an army officer during the war, and it is alleged that he went to Africa without leave while the army was still mobilized.

STANDARD SHOE IN FRANCE SOON

Nationalized Footgear Goes on Sale Before Sept. 1.

VICHY, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The first supply of the French National shoe will go on sale at the end of this month.

It will be a standard shoe, manufactured in eight styles, and will be the only one permitted on the market. The purpose is to cut down manufacturing costs, reduce retail prices and speed up production.

A huge supply of shoes and civilian clothes are urgently needed for soldiers being demobilized by the millions.

The Government has bought up almost all the civilian clothes available in the unoccupied part of France, and has ordered that a large stock of cloth previously intended for uniforms be made into peacetime garb. Thus, it is hoped to give each demobilized soldier one complete outfit at the Government's expense.

French Set Wheat Price

Government Acts to Prevent Speculation on Crops

VICHY, Aug. 22 (AP).—The French government fixed the price for wheat from the 1940 crop today at 214 francs a quintal. (At pre-armistice rates of exchange, this would be $1 to $1.32 a bushel. There are no dealings in the franc now.) The price applies to all of France not under Nazi occupation.

The government set an additional charge of two francs a quintal a month for storage and other expenses, and agreed to advance funds necessary for these expenses to farmers during 1940 and 1941.

This move was one in a series designed to prevent speculation in sorely needed products this winter when an acute shortage of many materials is expected.

FRANCO'S SON-IN-LAW HELD

French and Germans Help to Return Him to Spain

CHANCY, Switzerland, Aug. 22 (AP)—Diplomatic sources reported tonight that Rivas Cherif, son-in-law and chief aide of Manuel Azaña, former President of Republican Spain, had been handed over to Spanish Nationalist police through the cooperation of German and French authorities.

The French revealed Señor Cherif's hideaway to Spanish authorities, it was said, and the Spanish police, with German authorization, took him to Spain.

ROME REPORTS VICTORIES OVER BRITAIN'S NAVY

Says Torpedo Boat Sank Submarine and Planes Damaged Cruisers.

FOE'S DESTROYER TORPEDOED

R. A. F. Bombs Oil Tanks in Libya—Egypt Ready to Fight if Invasion Comes.

ROME, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The sinking of a British submarine in the eastern Mediterranean, torpedoing of a British destroyer and air attacks on a squadron of British cruisers in which two were reported damaged were announced by the Italian High Command today.

Air raiders who bombed Gibraltar early yesterday were identified as Italian in today's communique. It said one of the attacking planes was lost.

The sinking of the British submarine was credited to an Italian torpedo boat, while an Italian submarine was said to have topredoed the British destroyer. The communique did not say whether the destroyer was sunk.

Ethiopian Town Bombed.

ADEN, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The British Royal Air Force has heavily bombed Dessie, in Ethiopia, scoring direct hits on an airdrome, it was announced tonight. No R. A. F. planes were lost.

Heavy bombing attacks were also carried out on hangars and the railway station at Diredawa, where direct hits were observed. The British said they encountered some opposition from Italian fighter planes, and one British ship was shot down.

They also reported that a French crew carried out an important reconnaissance flight into Italian territory.

R. A. F. Bombs African Bases.

CAIRO, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—British warplanes have scored hits on the port and airdrome at Mogadiscio, capital of Italian Somaliland, and on buildings at the nearby town of Merca, the Royal Air Force announced today. It also reported hits on the Italian naval oil tanks and a jetty at Tobruk, Italian coastal base in Libya near the Egyptian frontier.

South African and Rhodesian squadrons made the Somaliland raids.

Meanwhile War Minister Keissy Pasha disclosed today that an Egyptian Mobile division already has taken up strategic positions to resist any invasion, presumably from Libya in the West, where large Italian troop concentrations have been reported.

"We will not attack," he said, "but if we are attacked we will fight alongside our ally, Britain, for the protection of our country."

His statement reflected Egypt's determination to keep out of war unless she should be invaded or attacked—a decision which leaves her entry into the conflict or her continued neutrality squarely up to Italy.

The Government headed by Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha last night weathered a torrent of demands for entering the war alongside the British.

Warning to British.

The British, meanwhile, were warned by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of Britain's middle eastern forces, who said Hitler, finding his way to invasion of Britain blocked, may, like Napoleon, "turn east in search of easier success."

"We've had a long period of watching and waiting out here," he said in a broadcast yesterday to Britain, "and some of you have grown weary of it. But I can assure you that the importance of our position is fully realized."

Egypt's Premier, after a five-hour debate on Egyptian war policy in the crowded Chamber of Deputies, declared that Egypt harbors no ill feeling toward any nation and only direct attack could swerve her from determination to avoid war.

Sought Immediate Entry.

The Premier's statement was given after Ahmed Maher Pasha, president of the chamber, and other political leaders had demanded immediate entry into the war to protect the country's territorial integrity in the face of continued massing of Italian troops at Bardia, Libya, some thirty miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Egypt's attitude, first adopted by the previous Government of Aly Maher Pasha, now appears definitely fixed: To keep out of war unless she is attacked directly, meanwhile giving the British full use of naval and military bases and communications systems with which to wage war on Italy, in accordance with her defensive treaty with Britain.

Ahmed Maher Pasha, citing recent Italian bombings of Alexandria and several Egyptian towns, had been waging a campaign for several weeks urging that actual participation at the side of Britain would mean a speedier end to the war.

Raid Alarm at Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Alexandria underwent a thirty-five minute air raid alarm today.

Low-flying planes were seen in the distance and explosions were heard, but details were lacking.

Cairo Reports Daily Attack By Flyers On Marshal Graziani's Bases

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 22—Neutral but invasion-conscious Egypt shifted a mobile division today to Italy's Libyan frontier, where British airmen reported striking Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's western desert offensive preparations another heavy blow by bombing and firing Italian supply bases, airdromes and aircraft.

The Government had made it clear Egypt will not strike first, despite demands of some influential political leaders for immediate entrance into the war on Britain's side.

Waiting For Attack

"We will not attack," said Keissy Pasha, War Minister, "but if we are attacked we will fight alongside our ally, Britain, for the protection of our country."

The British were delighted by the "continual headache" they said their flyers were giving Marshal Graziani by their almost daily attacks on his Libyan bases which force him to keep shifting his troops and supply depots.

Naval oil tanks were set blazing at Tobruk, principal sea base some seventy miles west of the Egyptian frontier, a communique said, while a seaplane jetty was smashed at near-by Bomba. Three planes were reported badly damaged at the desert base of Eltmimi, and landing fields at Tobruk and El Aden were pitted.

Report Navy Active

The British reported last Saturday that their naval guns had torn up many of Graziani's supply depots around near-by Bardia in a twenty-five-minute surprise bombardment.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Italian high command declared two British cruisers "hit repeatedly" by bombs in an air attack on a British formation in the eastern Mediterranean. A torpedo boat sank a submarine, and a submarine torpedoed a destroyer in the same region, the Italians reported.]

The South African air force, operating from Kenya, bombed Mogadiscio, in Italian Somaliland, and the near-by seaside point of Merca to prevent the Italians there from getting set for any offensive action across the Gulf of Aden against the British-held tip of Arabia.

Says British Air Output Claim Is Propaganda

Nazi Officer Belittles Contention That Germany Would Soon Be Surpassed

Berlin, Aug. 22 (AP) (Via Radio)—British claims that she soon would surpass Germany in airplane production were dismissed as propaganda today by Major von Siegler, a German air force officer, who declared German information corroborated by documents discovered in France clearly shows "time is not working for, but against, England."

Concerning British statements that her plants are producing 1,000 planes per month, the officer declared the British must be counting "everything with wings," including machines unfit for war purposes.

American aid, he said, is "absolutely understandable" if the United States accepts English credits to finance new airplane plants, but he asserted that American statements admitted production could not begin before 1942.

BERLIN-Aug-22
VON SIEGLER SAID GERMAN "INCREDULITY" AT BRITISH CLAIMS WAS BASED ON THESE POINTS:
ENGLAND MUST IMPORT 45 PER CENT OF HER MATERIALS WHILE GERMANY PRODUCES HER OWN AND HAS AN UNMENACED "RICH HINTERLAND;" THAT GERMANY HAD A GREAT HEAD START BEFORE THE WAR THROUGH UNIFORM LEADERSHIP IN INDUSTRY; THAT GERMANY'S BLOCKADE NOW MAKES THE DWINDLING OF BRITISH IMPORTS A CERTAINTY.

FASTEST PLANE IN WORLD FOR U. S. AIR CORPS

500-Mile-An-Hour Interceptor Put Through Paces For Knudsen

Biggest Bomber Is Also Viewed—Can Fly To Europe And Back

AUG 23 1940

London, Aug. 22 (AP)—Britain has developed a new bomber-fighter plane—a "battleship of the air"—and it is reported that orders for some have been placed in Canada.

The specifications of performance, design, armament and armor are secret but the plane is described as "gigantic," with extra long range and almost impregnable to ordinary defense fire.

[By the Associated Press]

Los Angeles, Aug. 22—The United States' newest warplane, the Lockheed interceptor, can fly more than 500 miles an hour, Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold said today in releasing for the first time its performance figures.

"The world's fastest," beamed the chief of the United States Army Air Corps.

Its speed, Arnold said, is 460 miles an hour at two-thirds throttle but it is stepped up past 500 miles an hour when "wide open."

Range Of 1,100 Miles

Its range is 1,100 miles; rate of climb, 4,000 feet a minute; armament, one rapid-fire cannon, shooting a one-pound shell, and four machine guns.

William S. Knudsen, chairman of the National Defense Advisory Committee, watched the new plane put through its paces today.

Major K. B. Wolfe, chief production engineer for the Army Air Corps, said the army has ordered a large quantity of these new type planes—"I can't tell you the exact number, but it is the largest order for combat planes under the national defense program. We hope to get delivery of one hundred a month."

World's Biggest Plane

The biggest airplane ever built—a bomber capable of flying non-stop from New York to Europe, thence back to Los Angeles—is nearing completion, General Arnold also revealed.

The huge fighter has been under construction secretly in the Douglas factory at near-by Santa Monica for four years.

Lieut. Col. C. E. Bradshaw, Army Air Corps officer in charge of its construction, said the plane would be powered with four 2,000-horsepower engines, largest ever built. It will be in the air this fall.

212-Foot Wingspread

With a wingspread of 212 feet and 112 feet long, its tail assembly alone is larger than the ordinary commercial plane.

The craft will have a gasoline capacity of 11,000 gallons. It will carry bigger cannon than any airplane in the world, but Colonel Bradshaw said the exact armament details were secret. The plane will require a crew of ten.

[Editor's Note—Compared to the largest Clipper planes now in transatlantic service, the new "flying battleship" is half as large again. The largest Pan American Clippers have a wingspread of 152 feet. They are powered by four motors, each producing 1,200 horsepower. Gasoline capacity of the big Clippers is 4,200 gallons, cruising range 3,100 miles with 40 passengers.]

After his inspection tour at the Lockheed plant, Knudsen told reporters:

"When we get back to Washington we'll coordinate the demands of the army and navy and speed up production. Two many factories are wasting their time on a lot of different types of planes. One is building eleven different types.

"Over in Germany they just tell the Dornier people to keep turning out Dornier 17's as fast as they can. That's why they can build 2,000 airplanes a month."

Second-Hand Worry?

"Our observers are in Europe," said General Arnold, "and we know just what kind of planes they're building. Our stuff is certainly not behind theirs."

He launched into a set of figures to show that with the automotive industry helping on production of engines and tools, the airplane output will be going full blast by next spring.

"Pretty soon," grinned Knudsen, "it'll be like the automobile business—they'll have to worry about the second-hand market."

BERMUDA CENSORS ARE AIDED BY U. S.

Routing Of American Mails Through Island Helps Blockade Of Axis

Action Will Impede Nazi And Italian Pictures And Propaganda

AUG 23 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 22—The British blockade against German or Italian business transactions with this country appeared tonight to be materially strengthened because American mails are again being routed through Bermuda, scene of a tight British censorship.

Moreover, it was said authoritatively that the United States Government now has no objections to the Bermuda censorship, which led to a controversy some months ago and prompted Pan American Airways to skip Bermuda on its transatlantic hops.

Pan American clippers, and vessels of the American Export Line, have now resumed stops at Bermuda, en route between New York and Lisbon. The British examination of most of the mail passing between Europe and the United States, informed sources said, will make it difficult for German or Italian securities, or anything which might be converted into foreign exchange, to reach this country.

Will Bar Propaganda

It will also render it difficult, it was added, for German or Italian news pictures or propaganda to arrive in the United States.

When British censors first removed clipper mail at Bermuda last January, both Pan American Airways and the American consul protested. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said at the time that if the matter could not be worked out with reasonable satisfaction, the question whether Bermuda might be omitted as a stopping point might come up. Shortly afterward Pan American did, in fact, begin passing up Bermuda.

Conferred With Welles

Officials would not say today whether the Government influenced Pan American Airways in resuming calls at the isle. The new move was regarded in informed quarters, however, as a further measure of cooperation with Great Britain.

It was recalled that Juan Trippe, president of Pan American, recently conferred with Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State.

The importance the British attach to Bermuda as a "bottleneck" was indicated by the arrival of more than one hundred censors from England to augment the censorship staff at Hamilton. The work was said to have increased greatly with the calling of American Export liners there. More than 1,000 bags of mail were reported removed from two of the liners in the last two weeks.

United States postal and other authorities were said to have decided there would be compensating advantages to this country from the stops at Bermuda.

Avoids Undue Risk

One advantage cited for the calling of liners there was that it avoided the risk of having the ships taken by British naval vessels into the European combat zone to a point such as Gibraltar.

Although clippers are not yet subject to the same risk, officials said aerial warfare conceivably might develop to a point where transatlantic civil planes would be forced down for a search.

Polish Prince And Wife Are Admitted To U. S.

Granted Entry, For Six Months' Visit, After Immigration Hearing

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Prince Wladyslaw Sapieha, of Poland, and his wife, Princess Mathylda, the former Matilda Prince, of Philadelphia and Ellerslie Hall, Del., today were admitted to the United States as visitors for six months after a hearing before a special board of inquiry at Ellis Island.

Upon their arrival yesterday aboard the Yankee Clipper, immigration authorities classed them as "doubtful visitors." They are travelling on a Polish passport.

100 Mail Censors Arrive in Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—More than 100 censors, including several women have arrived from England to assist the Bermuda staff in handling a greatly increased flow of mail due to calls from ships of the American Export Line.

The announcement last night said they arrived "this week." Several hundred pouches of mail are removed from each of the American ships stopping at Bermuda.

ROOSEVELT CALLS AIDS ON AIR BASES

No Decision on British Deal Is Announced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt conferred on hemisphere defense questions with four high advisers today, but what they decided was kept private.

Stephen T. Early, White House press secretary, told newspaper men there was nothing new regarding the British proposal to lease some of their possessions in this hemisphere to the United States for use as naval and air bases.

He did say, however, that the President had decided on the names of members of an American board to serve with a similar group from Canada in Canadian-United States defense actions.

The names were telegraphed to Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada and the White House was waiting for the names of the Canadian members before making an announcement.

Called to the meeting were Secretaries Stimson and Knox, Attorney-General Robert Jackson and Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State.

Reach Agreement.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Canadian and Newfoundland officials have reached general agreement on all points covering defense of Newfoundland, with special regard to this vast island's position in the first line of defense of the North American Hemisphere.

This phrase from a statement issued at the conclusion of a conference last night was regarded by some observers as significant in connection with possible United States acquisition of naval and air bases in Newfoundland.

The statement said that details would be handled by continuous discussions between Canadian and Newfoundland Government representatives.

It was understood that Canada has undertaken full responsibility for the defense of Newfoundland with the agreement of Newfoundland officials. A defense confederation actually has been in operation since Canadian land and air forces arrived here to defend Newfoundland.

The Canadian delegation, headed by Associate Defense Minister C. G. Power, planned to return to Nova Scotia today.

ROME PRESS OPPOSES U. S. LEASE OF BASES

We Are Seeking Share in 'Break-up' of Britain, One Paper Says

ROME, Aug. 22 (AP)—Italian newspapers showed discontent with the plan for the United States to lease naval bases in Britain's Western Hemisphere possessions by charging today that the United States was seeking to gain territory in the "break-up" of the British Empire.

Il Resto del Carlino, a paper of Bologna, said the United States not only was trying to get control of Canada by offering to send an army to defend her, but added that unless something happened in the Pacific America would try later to get Australia.

"Japan rightly is rather alarmed at this new development of American imperialism," Il Resto said.

To gain possession of the British West Indies, Il Resto said, Washington was ready to cede "motors, guns and even some obsolete destroyers in payment for a 99-year lease on England's American islands."

Il Popolo di Roma, expressing the same view, applauded Mexico and Guatemala for reported opposition to United States occupation of nava land air bases in British Honduras.

Stefani, official Italian news agency, said that various South American republics considered the United States, on the excuse there was a threat from Europe, was "seeking rather cleverly" to establish hegemony over Central America and to transform the whole Caribbean Sea into a big naval base for the North American fleet.

Stefani said that South American circles believed that if Washington should realize this program the independence of Colombia and Venezuela would be gravely lessened. The agency added that "this prospect is viewed with little enthusiasm in Brazil."

Stefani said the proposed concession of air and naval bases by Britain to the United States was viewed as prelude to an historical evolution "in which the first chapter was London's domination over the thirteen colonies of North America," and the last chapter might be presented by England's entrance "as a dominion in an imperial commonwealth of the United States."

Both Sides Gave Warnings

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP).—The reason the United States government refused to change the course of the Army transport American ...tion despite a German warning was related today by President Roosevelt to Senator Homer T. Bone, Democrat, of Washington, who charged in the Senate this week that war had been risked in the matter because of stubbornness.

Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, also was present when the President received Senator Bone in the living quarters of the White House.

Stephen T. Early, the President's press secretary, described the situation to reporters as a case of one nation having said certain waters were mined and another having said certain other waters were mined.

The number of refugee Americans brought home by the transport from Petsamo, was nearly double the number which had been expected originally, Mr. Early said, and no food for the additional ones was to be had in Petsamo. The route taken was probably the most direct one, the secretary said.

Asked by newsmen whether the President's explanation had satisfied him, Senator Bone declared: "My only interest was to keep the ship from being blown up. God knows what might happen if it were sunk. I don't know anything about the mine fields against which different countries warned."

GERMANS GET JOBS IN ALSACE

Oust All But Pure Alsatians From State Employ.

THEIR PROPERTY CONFISCATED

Nazis Carry Out Same Tactic in Lorraine Also.

BASLE, Switzerland, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The German authorities in Alsace and Lorraine were reported today to have completed the removal of all State employees—from provincial officials to common laborers—not of pure Alsatian or Lorraine origin.

The last group of such State employees left the two provinces yesterday on German order, according to advices reaching Switzerland, for other parts of German-occupied France, or for the zone governed from Vichy. They were permitted to take with them fifty pounds of baggage and 5,000 French francs, or 250 marks (nominally about $100). All their other property was confiscated by the State.

Jobs Filled by Germans.

Their jobs had been filled since July 15 by German appointees, or men hired by the Germans, including many Alsatians who moved to Germany after the provinces were taken back by France as a result of the world war.

So far as civil organization is concerned, Alsace is already joined to Baden and Lorraine to the Saar in the German Reich.

In contrast to the reported disorganization of communications in the unoccupied area of France and in many parts of the occupied zone, almost all railroads in Alsace and Lorraine are running. War damages to the lines have been repaired at least temporarily by German engineers and French labor battalions.

Still Underpopulated.

Although food is not plentiful in the two provinces, it is described as sufficient for the needs of the present population, which is still a fraction of normal. Supplies have been brought in from other districts of the occupied zone and some from Baden.

German industrialists from many parts of the Reich have been installed in the manufacturing towns of Strasburg and Mulhouse, where many industries are again functioning. Their total output goes to Germany, which provided raw materials when Alsatian stocks were found to be exhausted.

Thousands of Alsatian and Lorraine farmers are being repatriated from the unoccupied zone, but this process is slow.

German reconstruction experts have made sanitary installations, and engineers have removed dud shells and bombs from the fields.

The cities are still underpopulated, and any acute labor shortages in manufacturing districts are being made up in part by bringing in factory workers from Germany.

U. S. Approves 27,128 Frozen Fund Shifts

2,586 Applications Denied—Most Requests Involved Transfers Within The Nation

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP)—The special Treasury office which controls approximately $3,500,000,000 worth of assets of invaded European countries said today that so far it has approved 27,128 and disapproved 2,586 applications for release of some of the "frozen" funds. No amounts were disclosed.

After each country was invaded or occupied by Germany, President Roosevelt ordered that any assets of those countries in the United States could not be transferred either out of the country or to someone else in this country without Treasury permission.

Virtually all of the applications were said to have involved only the transfer of the foreign funds within the United States, and not for shipment of money to a foreign country. Transfers within the country usually are to pay bills or debts of foreigners to Americans.

GUARD SERVICE BILL IS PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Measure Expected to Be Accepted Promptly by the Senate.

BARKLEY FOR VOTE ON DRAFT

Gen. Marshall Says U. S. Has Enough Rifles to Supply 3,000,000 Trainees.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (A. P.). Legislation for mobilization of 400,000 National Guardsmen and army reserves was approved finally by the House today and sent to the Senate for expected prompt acceptance.

The House accepted a report of a joint committee named to resolve differences between Senate and House versions of the legislation which President Roosevelt had requested.

The legislation would involve about 242,000 guardsmen, 116,000 reserve officers and 50,000 enlisted men. It would permit them to be sent any place in the Western Hemisphere and possessions and territories of the United States, including the Philippine Islands.

The Guard legislation has been considered by military men as a necessary preliminary to any sort of draft program. The Guard and reserve units would furnish officers and men for organizing and training conscripts.

Barkley Seeks Final Vote.

The Senate heatedly debated the draft program provided for by the Burke-Wadsworth bill through another session today, and Senator Barkley, Democratic leader, maneuvered for a final vote by the week end. The House committee, dominated by a Republican-Democratic group favoring delay, put off a final vote on its conscription bill until Tuesday hoping that the Senate would act before that time.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, took cognizance at a press conference of the argument made by draft opponents and others that the military lacked sufficient equipment to train men who would be drafted under the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Gen. Marshall said the War Department has plenty of material for that purpose.

In the Senate debate, Senator Holt said he was convinced that the same group of New York financiers and business men who advocated compulsory military training before the last war now was active in support of the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

"The same firm of J. P. Morgan is putting on the same pressure now," he declared, naming also the Carnegie Corporation of New York as a contributor to what he called "so-called preparedness" campaigns.

Senator Holt said Allen L. Lindley, whom he described as one of a group seeking enactment of conscription legislation, had sent a letter to every member of the New York Stock Exchange asking contributions to finance a campaign for the bill.

The West Virginia Senator also declared that "the social lobby is behind this drive."

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, told his colleagues that if Congress approved a peacetime draft bill it would "fasten shackles on this country that will stay forever."

He shouted that he would be willing to accept defeat for re-election if that would assure rejection of the legislation.

Urges 1,200,000 Limit.

Senator Barkley also proposed that a limitation of 1,200,000 be placed on the number of men who could be conscripted in any one year.

This figure, he said, should prove to be an acceptable compromise between those who want unlimited draft and those who support an amendment by Senator Lodge, Republican of Massachusetts, to restrict to 800,000 the number of draftees under training at any one time.

Senator Barkley's limit generally would permit the army to go ahead with the program it already had outlined for inducting men into the armed forces under unlimited conscription.

The question of equipment supply has been raised in the Senate during debate on the draft bill and in other quarters. Taking notice of this, Gen. Marshall said at a press conference "We have enough .30 caliber rifles for 3,000,000 men right now."

It makes little difference for training purposes, he said, whether a soldier is equipped with a semi-automatic or .30 caliber rifle.

Commenting on his recent visit to troops which have been training in the four army areas, the Army Chief of Staff said he received "no particular reaction" from officers and men on reporting deficiences in equipment.

The men understood that they actually did have all of the basic equipment they needed, he said, and lacked only such modern items as anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

With regard to the lack of tanks at army maneuvers, Gen. Marshall explained that the newly created armored corps had been kept intact for training as a unit, rather than dispersed among other units. Two armored divisions in the armored corps, he said, "have something like 500 tanks between them and they will be very good workable units in short order."

LaGuardia Is Appointed To U.S.-Canadian Board

Mayor to Continue in City Office; Army and Navy Officers and State Department Official Named to Defense Group; First Meeting Monday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York was named tonight by President Roosevelt as one of the United States representatives on the new Canadian-United States joint defense board, which will devise strategy to defend North America against possible invasion.

The appointment of the Mayor, a veteran of the World War, was disclosed in the following announcement from the White House:

"President Roosevelt and Premier King today appointed the following to serve as members of the Joint Permanent Board of Defense, United States and Canada:

"For the United States:

"Hon. Fiorello H. LaGuardia, president United States Conference of Mayors.

"Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, commanding the 4th Corps Area; headquarters, Atlanta, Ga.

"Capt. Harry W. Hill, United States Navy War Plans Division, office of chief of naval operations.

"Comdr. Forrest P. Sherman, United States Navy [bracketed with:

"Lieut. Col. Joseph T. McNarney, Army Air Corps.

"Mr. John D. Hickerson, assistant chief, Division of European Affairs, State Department, to be secretary of the American section of the joint board.

"For Canada:

"Mr. O. M. Bigger, K. C.

"Brig. J. Stuart, D. S. O., M. C., deputy chief general staff.

"Capt. L. W. Murray, R. C. N., deputy chief naval staff.

"Air Comdr. A. A. L. Cuffe, air member air staff, Royal Canadian Air Force.

"The first meeting of the joint board will be held in Ottawa on Monday, Aug. 26."

Although the White House announcement did not say so, it is understood that Mayor LaGuardia's new duties would require only part of his time and would not necessitate his retirement as chief executive of the nation's largest city. Mayor LaGuardia and the other United States members of the board will meet at frequent intervals with their Canadian "opposite numbers" to co-ordinate the air forces, armies and navies of the two countries in what appears to be an alliance for mutual defense, to enforce the Monroe Doctrine and keep out interlopers from across the Atlantic or Pacific.

The appointment of Mayor LaGuardia surprised Washington, although he has made numerous flying visits here and has always been a welcome guest at the White House. One week ago today the Mayor had a long conference with the President, after which he assured reporters he had called merely to pledge full co-operation in national defense matters by the Council of Mayors.

Since it was known that the joint board would be composed mainly of service officers, it had been reported that the United States membership would include Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; Brig. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, and Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of naval aeronautics. However, they were preoccupied with their present duties, and so they recommended subordinates for the joint defense board.

While the United States-Canadian agreement called for five-man boards to represent each government, it was noted that the President found it necessary, because of the form of organization of the United States defense services, to divide one of the places in the section between officers of the Army and Navy air services. Under this arrangement, Comdr. Sherman and Col. McNarney could represent the air services alternately in broad general discussions or their separate services when naval or Army problems were under consideration.

Communiques of Belligerents

British

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP).—An Admiralty and Air Ministry communique:

Shortly before noon today one of our convoys in the vicinity of the Straits of Dover came under fire from heavy guns mounted on the French coast. The warships escorting the convoy at once laid smoke screens to conceal the convoy from the enemy. Although some shells fell fairly close to the ships, no ship of the convoy or escort was hit or received damage.

The same convoy was later attacked by enemy aircraft. No damage was caused by this attack, and the enemy were driven off by our gunfire and fighter aircraft. Our fighters shot down one enemy aircraft in the course of this action.

An Air Ministry communique:

Reports received up to 7 p. m. show that a small number of enemy aircraft, in most cases operating singly, crossed our coast today. None penetrated more than a few miles, and no bombs were dropped on land.

Four enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters. Two of our fighter aircraft have been lost, but the pilot of one is safe.

An Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

Enemy attacks during the night were very few and on a small scale. High-explosive bombs were dropped at two points in southeast England, where some damage was caused to gas and water mains in a town on the coast and where a railway line farther inland was temporarily obstructed. In southeast Scotland a bomb fell on a hillside, slightly wounding one soldier. So far as is known at present this was the only casualty during the night.

An Air Ministry communique:

Further attacks on enemy oil

30,24-4489

refineries were carried out last night, although weather conditions were unfavorable. The chief targets were the important Brabag oil refineries at Magdeburg and the Deurag installations at Hanover.

At Caen and Abbeville our aircraft bombed the airdromes, causing explosions on runways and landing grounds, and setting hangars on fire. Searchlight batteries were extinguished by gunfire.

Attacks were also made on the airdromes at Quaqenbruck, near Hanover, and on the island of Texel.

Railway centers were bombed in the Ruhr and the Rhineland. Bombs were dropped on a tunnel between Heinburg and Verben, northwest of Hanover, as a supply train entered.

One of our aircraft has not returned.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 22 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

On the night of Aug. 19-20, bombing aircraft of the R. A. F. raided Tobruk Harbor, Libya. Naval oil tanks and a foreshore jetty were the main objectives, and these suffered direct hits. Other bombers attacked with success landing grounds at Tobruk and El Aden.

Three Italian bombers, S79's, were seriously damaged during a raid on Sidi el Taimi yesterday. One S79 was set on fire and exploded. A second burned. The third had its wings blown off. There were also a number of near misses which probably caused damage to other enemy aircraft. All our bombers returned safely.

Our aircraft also rained bombs in Libya. A direct hit was registered on the seaplane jetty.

Aircraft of South African and Rhodesian squadrons carried out numerous offensive reconnaissances over Italian Somaliland. At Mogadiscio, direct hits were registered on a jetty and one hangar, while at Merca one Caproni aircraft on the ground was damaged and direct hits were also registered on buildings.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Aug. 22 (AP).—A British communique:

Ground patrols were again active in the northern frontier districts and gathered very valuable information.

The South African air force raided Mogadiscio. Direct hits were obtained on transport and administrative buildings. A wireless station and hangars were set on fire. High explosive and incendiary bombs fell in the target area. All our aircraft returned.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (AP).—The German high command communique:

In the course of armed air reconnaissance over the British Isles Aug. 21, numerous industrial plants and rail facilities as well as fifteen airports were successfully attacked.

Bomb hits were observed on industrial plants at Skegness, Great Yarmouth, Witney, Coventry and Bournemouth as well as port facilities at Bridlington.

During a raid on a convoy off the east coast of England, one merchantman was severely damaged by bomb hits.

Last night our fighting planes effectively bombarded the airplane works southeast of London, as well as an armament plant near Brighton.

Enemy bombs last night in northern Germany caused minor damage.

The foe lost seven airplanes yesterday. Six of our own planes are missing.

Italian

ROMF, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

One of our air formations bombed military objectives in Gibraltar. One plane failed to return.

In the eastern Mediterranean, one of our torpedo boats sank a submarine, and one of our submarines torpedoed a destroyer.

An enemy naval formation composed of cruisers was reached in the eastern Mediterranean by our air formations and subjected to intense bombardment. Two cruisers were hit repeatedly. All our planes returned to their bases of departure.

In East Africa, an English plane was shot down by our Dubats (native Eritrean troops at Cocacia, in Kenya.

British Parliament Adjourns for 2 Weeks

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—The British Parliament adjourned today for a two-week recess.

HorsesGo,ChildrenWait, Commons Is Informed

Communist Says Shipping Space Is Used for Animals

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP).—Communist William Gallacher charged in the House of Commons tonight that rich sportsmen were sending thoroughbred horses out of the country while shipping space was unavailable to remove children. One owner recently shipped twelve horses on the ship American Farmer at a cost of $400 a head, he said.

Sir Arthur Salter, parliamentary secretary of the Shipping Ministry, replied that the American Farmer, which now sails under the Belgian flag, was trading on her owner's account and the Ministry of Shipping had no control over her. He added the ship was fitted especially for horses, not for the transport of children.

The Thoroughbred Breeders' Association, meanwhile, said 100 horses —"every one of them the property of American citizens"—had been shipped from the British Isles since July 1, and added: "No English owner has thought of sending horses out of the country, despite almost endless requests from the United States."

Foreign Office Denies Britain Seeks Alliance

Laughs Off Query: Would She Refuse U. S. Offer? 'Times' for 'Co-operation'

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP).—A Foreign Office spokesman emphatically denied today that Great Britain was seeking a military alliance with the United States, and laughed off the question of a reporter who asked if Britain would refuse an alliance if it were offered.

Usually well informed quarters yesterday said Britain was seeking an alliance.

"The Times," of London, whose editorial attitude often foreshadows government policy, asserted today that "it is of course axiomatic in British policy to be ready to cooperate with the United States."

Commenting on Germany's control over the greater part of western Europe's seaboard, the newspaper said:

"It is therefore imperative that the United States and the British empire—which of course is an American power as well as an Asiatic, African and European power should have a close and regulated understanding about the defense of their position in the Western Hemisphere, where Germany may at any moment attempt to gain a foothold by putting pressure upon one of her victims."

The editorial, which was captioned "Defense in Common," also predicted that the United States and Canada henceforth will "have closer ties than they have ever had in the past, and Canada will be the linchpin in Anglo-American relations."

A group of Members of Parliament, representing all parties, opposed today the placing of a time limit on the proposed lease of air and naval bases to the United States in Britain's western hemisphere possessions. An amendment to the proposal of Somerset S. De Chair, Conservative, for a reduction in the ninety-nine-year lease period was presented, stating that the group "sees no reason to place any limit of time on this association of the two great English-speaking democracies."

Duff Cooper Promises Faster Air-Raid News

Information Minister Acts After Being Criticized On Handling Of Attack On London

London, Aug. 22 (AP)—Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, promised the House of Commons today there would be less delay in the future in allowing news accounts of German air raids to reach the United States.

The Minister was criticized after Nazi raids on the outskirts of London last week. First American newspaper accounts came from Germany.

He said the delays were due to "rules which were made at a time when it was expected that official communiques would be issued more promptly than has so far been the case." That situation is being remedied, he added.

Anti-Nazi Aliens to Get Hearings in England

Frequent criticism over the internment of such aliens preceded the announcement.

WAR RISK RATES

They Are Still Lower Than in World War, British Say.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—War risk shipping insurance rates, increased Monday to 20 per cent of valuation in certain sea areas, still are lower on the whole than those during the world war, London insurance circles said today.

Even in Germany's submarine campaign of 1917 rates never rose above 20 per cent, one informant said, adding that the present rates generally are lower than in 1914-18 "because Germany has no navy to speak of and her attempts to blockade Britain by bombs have failed."

This source said the present maximum of 20 per cent is not based on the assumption that one ship of each five which travels through the areas is lost, but on the ship's route, its armament and type of cargo.

Britain Adopts Assembly Line at Last

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Great Britain is now using mass production methods in turning out training planes.

A track assembly line introduced in a British aircraft factory, it was disclosed today, is being used for final stages of construction of the fast Miles-Master single-motored training plane.

NAZIS GET 800 PLANES

Gen. De Gaulle Says French Aircraft Pass to Enemy.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, whom Britain recognizes as "the leader of free Frenchmen," declared in a broadcast tonight that "at this moment 800 French airplanes, the mainstay of African defense, are leaving Morocco, Algeria and Tunis to be taken to Istres (France) and put at the disposal of the enemy."

Morrison Is Optimistic On Arms Manufacture

'Beginning to See Daylight Through the Trees'

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply, said in a broadcast tonight that the war effort speedup had given Great Britain "an arms industry greater in its output and far greater in its future productive capacity than any one would have dared to think possible three months ago."

"When we think of our worldwide tasks of defense and offense and of the two or three years of campaigning in many parts of the globe that may well be before us, we see our work hitherto as but the beginning of the beginning," Morrison said.

Britain, however, is still behind Germany in arms making, he observed. "We are beginning to see daylight through the trees," he said, and cited the case of one ordnance factory which began production four months ahead of schedule. "It's a lovely ything to beat th) clock in these days," he added.

CONSULS TO LEAVE SEPT. 5

Americans Must Quit Estonia, Latvia And Lithuania Then

Moscow, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Soviet Government extended today until September 5, the time for closing United States consulates in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, recently absorbed into the Soviet Union.

It is understood Britain and other powers received a similar extension from the original August 25 date.

GREEK CHROME ISSUE

Axis Is Reported Angling for War Necessity.

ATHENS, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Greece's million-dollar annual output of chrome ore, important in the manufacture of gun barrels and other war goods, was reported to be a new issue in her relations with the axis Powers, as a Greek trade delegation left here for Berlin today.

Neutral observers predicted that Germany would try to divert Greece's yearly output of more than 60,000 tons of the ore from England to the Reich.

Although Great Britain herself was overstocked with chrome ore at the start of the war, she bought the entire Greek supply as part of the economic blockade against Germany.

2 GERMAN SAILORS CAUGHT

Were Fleeing To Brazil From Argentine Camp

They were accompanied by a German resident of Argentina, and will be returned to the internment camp from which they escaped.

BALKAN COMPROMISE

Rumania Appears Closer to Solution With Hungary.

TURNU-SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 22 (A. P.).—Fresh indications that Rumania is arranging for some solution of her territorial argument with Hungary appeared today.

The fact that negotiators are expected back here tomorrow or Saturday with fresh instructions from their governments encouraged reports that a compromise was in the making.

King Carol's appointment yesterday of two bishops of the disputed province of Transylvania to his Crown Council was followed by reports that he may take Transylvanian leaders into his Council of Ministers. These steps were interpreted as an attempt to have the disputed area well represented in the governmental bodies which must approve any agreement that is reached.

One of the biggest points of discussion at Craiova with Bulgaria on the cession of southern Dobruja, meanwhile, centered on whether this southern tip of Rumania will be handed over before or after the harvest. Each side has an eye on the crops.

GermanCaught After Canadian Prison Escape

Seized in Montreal; Error in Identity Is Laid to Deception to Aid Flight

OTTAWA, Aug. 22 (AP).—The National Defense Department said today a German war prisoner who tunneled his way out of a north Ontario internment camp Monday was captured last night crossing the Victoria Bridge in Montreal.

The department said he was Guenther Lorentz and not Werner Koche, German naval lieutenant, as previously announced. It explained the error was made because another prisoner answered for Lorentz in the roll call.

Officials said they believed the misunderstanding over the identity of the escaped prisoner was deliberately created to facilitate Lorentz's flight.

Lorentz spoke perfect English but Koche had a distinct accent, officials said, and when some one answered for Lorentz and Koche did not answer at rollcall, a search was started for a man with an accent.

Treatment of recaptured prisoners of war is covered in the Geneva Convention, in which escape is not regarded as a criminal offense. The recaptured prisoner may be confined to a cell at the internment camp for a maximum of twenty-eight days, however, as a disciplinary measure.

Another prisoner, a German civilian who was held at a camp in northwestern Ontario, escaped about the same time and is still at large, the authorities said.

Both Lorentz and the civilian were sent to Canada from British internment camps.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

AUG 23 1940

IT IS NOT SURPRISING THAT A BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN SHOULD DENY THIS MORNING THE STATEMENT BY UNOFFICIAL BUT WELL-INFORMED SOURCES IN LONDON THAT ENGLAND IS SEEKING A MILITARY ALLIANCE WITH THE UNITED STATES.

THE DESIRE FOR SUCH AN ALLIANCE IS NO SURPRISE, SINCE PREMIER CHURCHILL FOR MANY YEARS HAS ADVOCATED THE CLOSEST POSSIBLE RELATIONS BETWEEN ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES. BUT ONE WOULD SCARCELY EXPECT SUCH A PROJECT TO BE PUBLICLY BROACHED AT THIS JUNCTURE IN VIEW OF THE OPPOSITION WHICH IT WOULD BE BOUND TO ENCOUNTER IN MANY QUARTERS IN THIS COUNTRY.

HAD THIS INFORMATION COME DIRECT FROM OUR OLD FRIEND THE VERY TALKATIVE ALFRED DUFF-COOPER, WHO IS APPROPRIATELY DESIGNATED AS MINISTER OF INFORMATION, THE POSITION WOULD HAVE BEEN QUITE UNDERSTANDABLE. HE HAS BEEN COACHING US FOR MONTHS ON HOW TO GET INTO THE WAR.

IT WAS DIFFICULT TO BELIEVE, HOWEVER, THAT MR.CHURCHILL WOULD GIVE COUNTENANCE TO AN ANNOUNCEMENT FULL OF HOPES OF AN ALLIANCE AT THIS TIME. HE IS TOO EVERLASTINGLY [redacted] TO SPILL THE BEANS IN SUCH A MANNER.

PERSONALLY I WAS WAITING WITH MUCH INTEREST TO SEE WHETHER THE AMERICAN REACTION TO THE SUGGESTION OF AN ALLIANCE WOULD BE OF A NATURE TO ENCOURAGE PURSUIT OF A SUBJECT WHICH IS ONE OF THE MOST INFLAMMABLE THAT COULD BE TOSSED AMONG OUR PUBLIC. THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE HAS ACTED WITH REMARKABLE SPEED TO AVOID DISCUSSION OF THE MATTER.

IT IS TRUE THAT THE SUGGESTED ALLIANCE AS OUTLINED UNOFFICIALLY IS BY WAY OF PUTTING FURTHER TEETH IN THE MONROE DOCTRINE. IT WOULD EMBRACE THE DEFENSE OF CANADA AND OTHER BRITISH POSSESSIONS IN THIS HEMISPHERE.

AUG 23 1940

MANY AMERICANS MAY FIND IT HARD, HOWEVER, TO SEE HOW SUCH A PACT COULD AVOID COMMITMENTS WHICH WOULD BE WIDER THAN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE. INDEED, THE LONDON SOURCES SAY THAT THE ALLIANCE AS ENVISAGED NOW ALSO "WOULD FORM THE BASIS FOR COMMON DIPLOMACY IN THE FAR EAST AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT." THAT MEANS, OF COURSE, COMMON ACTION IN HANDLING JAPAN.

THIS STATEMENT ABOUT AN ALLIANCE CAME ON THE HEELS OF THE ADVOCACY BY FORMER MINISTER OF WAR HORE-BELISHA OF A UNION BETWEEN ENGLAND AND AMERICA WHICH, SO FAR AS I CAN PUZZLE IT OUT, WOULD GIVE US DOMINION STATUS. MR.HOREBELISHA EXPRESSED THIS THOUGHT ON THE FLOOR OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AFTER PREMIER CHURCHILL HAD REFERRED TO BRITISH-AMERICAN COOPERATION AS "ROLLING ALONG LIKE THE MISSISSIPPI." SAID THE EX-MINISTER:

"IF THE TREND SHOULD LEAD TO THE SAME KIND OF CONSUMMATION AS WE HOPED FOR IN THE CASE OF FRANCE--NAMELY AN EVENTUAL COMMON CITIZENSHIP--ALL THE EVILS OF THIS WAR WILL HAVE BEEN WORTH WHILE."

THE PROPOSAL TO FRANCE NEVER WAS MADE FULLY CLEAR TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

HOWEVER, IN THE PRESENT INSTANCE IT WOULD SEEM THAT WE WOULD BE ACCORDED A POSITION AS ONE OF THE UNITS IN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS.

IF YOU ARE ACQUAINTED WITH MR. HORE-BELISHA'S VERY BRITANNIC PERSONALITY YOU WON'T LET THIS SUGGESTION MAKE THE HAIRS STIFFEN ON YOUR NECK. YOU CAN BE SURE IT NEVER WOULD OCCUR TO HIM THAT AMERICAN OUGHT NOT TO BE HIGHLY COMPLIMENTED TO BE PERMITTED TO RETURN TO THE DAYS BEFORE GOOD OLD GEORGE THE THIRD CALLED FOR HIS PIPE AND CALLED FOR HIS BOWL AND CALLED FOR HIS FIDDLERS THREE AND STAGED THE TEA-DANCE IN BOSTON HARBOR.

Donovan Bares 5th Column Acts In Europe and Warns America

Colonel, Sent Over by Knox, and Edgar Mowrer, War Correspondent, Find 'Military Masterpieces' Depended on Nazi Spies to Undermine Foe

Following is the first of four articles made public by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy. In a forward, Secretary Knox writes:

"At my request, Col. William J. Donovan went to London. In London he was met by the veteran foreign correspondent, Edgar Mowrer, who had just reached London following the French debacle.

"These two men, on behalf of the United States, made the most thoroughgoing survey of German 'fifth column' methods used in weakening resistancee of possible enemies and undermining the morale of countries they proposed to attack.

"The result of this careful study, made with every official source available to these two men, is to be found in the series of articles which follow. They are designed to make Americans fully conscious of methods used by the totalitarian powers, so that if or when such methods are used here they will instantly be recognized for what they are and their effect nullified.

"I regard defense against possible enemy propaganda as second only to defense against enemy armaments."

AUG-19

By Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer

Adolf Hitler's blitz-conquest of Poland, of Norway, of Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg and France are military masterpieces.

In all secrecy and with incredible speed the Nazi leader built up a unique military machine, beside which all other armies in the world were obsolete. Basing his organization upon experience acquired in Spain during the civil war, Hitler placed at the head of his mobilized masses a modern "airplane-plus-tank" spearhead. The German masses were not particularly impressive. They did not need to be. It was the spearhead of 50,000 men that beat France.

To his superior striking power the Nazi leader added surprise and audacity. Equipping dive-bombers with noise-makers sounds childish, but against green troops it worked. By striking suddenly, fiercely and without regard for his own immediate losses, Hitler gained an initiative he never lost.

Yet no amount of genius would have accomplished what the Germans accomplished in so short a time without two other elements. These were the Germans abroad and sympathizers in the victim countries.

Every one understands the role played by the Sudeten Germans in the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia. While claiming to be loyal citizens of the new state, an active minority of the Germans was really working for its destruction.

Poland Was Stabbed in Back

As in Czecho-Slovakia, so in Poland. There a tiny minority, probably about a million in all, while claiming to be loyal to Warsaw, were preparing to stab Poland in the back. Directed by the German Gestapo, organized into political groups, the Deutsche Vereinigung and the Young German party, the minority leaders found means of terrorizing or otherwise inducing practically all the Germans to become spies and agents. As industrialists, commercial travelers, waiters, barbers, taxi drivers, they wormed their way into Polish life. Some 10,000 were actually trained in special camps in Germany to be forerunners, agents and guides to the invading army columns. The Germans were more quickly informed of the Polish military movements than the Polish commanders.

On the eve of the war, these specially coached Germans, acting under direct orders from Berlin, picked quarrels with Poles in order to create frontier and other incidents." Other Germans disguised as Polish soldiers spread panic through the villages. Germans speaking Polish issued false instructions and orders to the people by wireless. Still others remained deep behind the lines and from there signaled objectives and instructions to German airmen.

Germans have admitted that two weeks more of resistance by the Polish armies would have exhausted the German blitz units and made a long and exhaustive campaign necessary.

Practically no Germans lived in Norway. But if the Norwegians had been suspicious of all Germans, including German visitors, Norway might not be occupied today.

Trondheim, Bergen and Stavenger, with air fields whose possession later enabled the Germans to fight off the Allies, fell to attacks by German soldiers hidden in the holds of merchant ships anchored in the fjords or moored off the quayside.

Agitators Spread Terror

There is no evidence that the Germans in Denmark took any considerable part in the actual German conquest of that country. It is certain, however, that German agitators in Schleswig, numerous German agents in Copenhagen disguised as newspaper men, business men and diplomats, by their constant threats and interference with the Danish government, had produced a state of mind bordering on terror that contributed to drive any thought of real resistance from the Danish mind.

Germans hidden in barges seized the Moordyk Bridge in Holland, which enabled the German invaders to turn the Dutch defenses from the south. This was decisive. But 120,000 Germans resident in the little country occupied a considerable share of the Dutch armed forces and made conquest that much easier. The 120,000 occupied their leisure in propaganda and espionage for the Nazis. Two hundred and fifty enjoyed extra-territorial privileges as members of the German Legation in The Hague, without counting the officials in the various consulates. Fifty or a hundred so-called newspaper men spent most of their time wandering the country bent on strategic and economic research. German servants nearly everywhere carefully amassed bits of conversation or copied private papers.

When Hitler finally struck, the 120,000 turned on their placid hosts and, where they could, shot them down.

Practically all produced red identification cards which procured them the respect and co-operation of the German officers. In Rotterdam they utilized private wireless senders supplied by the Nazi party. Everywhere they served as guides and advisers for parachutists and it was no fault of theirs that the Queen of Holland, the members of the Dutch government and a selected list of patriotic Dutchmen were not all seized by air raiders and taken to Germany the first day of attack.

The 60,000 Germans living in Belgium do not seem to have taken any particular part in the treasonable failure to destroy the bridges over the Albert Canal, Belgium's first and chief line of defense, thanks to which both Belgium and Holland were doomed to easy conquest. There was no need for them. The thousands of dissatisfied Flemings of the Dinase (Dietsche Nationale Solidaristen) and the members of Leon DeGrelle's Rexist party saw to that. But the 60,000 reinforced by the usual diplomatic, newspaper, artistic and business propaganda and espionage corps from Germany, played a powerful part in building up and financing these treasonable Belgian organizations, and in influencing important persons in a sense favorable to Germany. The final astounding decision of King Albert to surrender in full battle cannot be ascribed to purely Belgian influences.

Nor, in France, would the decision of Petain, Weygand, Baudouin and Laval to lay down their arms and seek salvation in French submission to the Nazis have been possible without the long and tireless activity in that country of such German "intellectuals" as Frederich Sieburg and Otto Abetz, recent Nazi appointee to the German ambassadorship at Vichy.

There was no chance for the Germans in Great Britain to show their hand. In the first place Britain's island situation saved it from any surprise attack. And secondly, the British secret service had, for a long time, been fully aware of the dangers. In the first twenty-four hours of the war, some 400 German Nazi agents were put out of the way. The whole number of Hitler-Germans were then either expelled or arrested and a great number of the anti-Hitlerian German refugees as well—some say up to 90 per cent.

Donovan Tells How Hitler Made 5th Column a 'Decisive Weapon'

Colonel and Mowrer Trace Defeat of Six Nations, Find Nazis' 'Systematic Corruption' of Foe Before Striking Worked Best in Democracies

Following is the second of four articles made public by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, as part of the national defense program. Col. Donovan recently returned from a mission abroad on behalf of Secretary Knox. He wrote these articles in collaboration with Edgar Mowrer, foreign correspondent.

AUG 25 1940 AUG-20

By Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer

When all allowance has been made for Hitler's superior armies, his resourcefulness, his daring, and the vital assistance by Germans living within the victim countries, his success can only be explained by another factor. This is nothing less than the presence among his enemies of what, since the Spanish civil war, has been known as the "fifth column."

Since no country has ever been unanimous, a "fifth column" has existed potentially in every land in every war. But despotic or totalitarian countries ruthlessly suppress it at home while exploiting it elsewhere. It is in a democracy that the "fifth column" can function most freely and effectively. It remained for Adolf Hitler's genius to raise the creation, strengthening, organization and activity of the "fifth column" in the countries that opposed him to a decisive weapon.

He said, more or less openly, that he would do so.

"We need armies. But we shall not use them as in 1914. The place of artillery will in the future be taken by revolutionary propaganda, to break down the enemy psychologically before the armies begin to function at all. The enemy people must be demoralized and ready to capitulate before military action can even be thought of . . . mental confusion, indecisiveness, panic, these are our weapons. The history of revolutions . . . is always the same: the ruling classes capitulate. Why? Defeatism: they no longer have the will to conquer."

Used Two Species of Bait

The propaganda machine for creating and sustaining a "fifth column"—again according to Hitler's confessed theory—is of a double nature. On one side it aims at influencing the masses. For this purpose Hitler in the present war utilizes his radio traitors. Lord Haw Haw for the English, Ferdonnet for the French, and to some extent, particularly in the last two years, Communist agitators whom he tricked or corrupted into serving him. But for the classes he had a much more subtle bait. As he himself put it:

"The results at which I aim are only to be obtained by the systematic corruption of the possessing and governing classes. Business advantages, erotic satisfactions and ambition, are the three main stops in our propaganda organ."

How did this work in the various countries?

In the bloodless conquest of Austria, "fifth column" Austrian leaders like Seyss-Inquart, dupes like Guido Schmidt, played a decisive part. While the discontent of the masses was whipped up to enthusiasm in favor of Nazi Germany, agents like Franz von Papen skilfully convinced leading Austrians that only through Hitler could their secret aspirations be fulfilled.

Czechs Betrayed by Allies

The Slovaks, who had suffered their bondage under Hungary, could be duped. But Czechs and Poles could not. Both peoples had lived far too long cheek to jowl with Prussians to have the slightest doubt as to Hitler's real intentions. There was no strong "fifth column" among the Czechs and Poles; a few Czech agrarians, the former Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck. The Czechs were finally conquered by French betrayal and British selfishness, the Poles by the armed might of a nation three or four times as strong.

In Norway there is little doubt that "fifth column" activities contributed to the success of the German blitz attack and were responsible for the quick collapse of all organized resistance. Maj. and former National Defense Minister Quisling had been, if not actually in the pay of German Nazis, at least in close contact with them for years. His success in stabbing Norway in the back can be traced (a) to the fear of socialism carefully fostered among leading Norwegians by Nazi propaganda, and (b) to the fact that numerous appointments to high army commands had been made by Quisling's intimate friend. There is some reason to believe that the electrically controlled mines guarding the inner harbor of Oslo were put out of action by another highly placed Norwegian traitor. In view of the efficiency of relatively weak coastal defenses, it is safe to say that without "fifth column" activity in Norway, the Norwegian resistance would have lasted several days and the invasion conceivably failed altogether.

Refugees Blocked Roads

In Holland the "fifth column" was more numerous than effective. This was doubtless due to its open character. The 5-odd per cent of all Dutchmen organized in Mussert's Dutch National Socialist party for years provided the Nazis with military and economic information. But the Dutch government had little enough to conceal. The Dutch National Socialists did what they could do to welcome, assist and succor the invading German parachutists and air-borne infantry, and somewhat half-heartedly took part in the German attacks upon the Dutch police and army. But of themselves they were relatively ineffective.

In Belgium, without the shadow of a doubt, Flemings loyal to Hitler betrayed the main defenses of the Albert Canal and opened not only their country, but Holland as well, to German invasion. An eye-witness, the wife of a patriotic Belgian customs authority stationed on the Dutch frontier near by, reported how Flemish soldiers deliberately neglected to blow up the bridges over the canal which had been constructed primarily as a barrier to invasion. Others took to their heels at the sight of the first German. In all the towns, pro-German Flemings and Rexists of DeGrelle spread stories of the uselessness of the war, the strength of Germany and the futility of resistance. Others threw the villages into panic, creating hordes of refugees, whose presence on the roads southward slowed and even prevented the advance of the French and British armies that were coming to Belgium's assistance.

Donovan Says Nazis Won Half Of French Opinion Before War

He and Mowrer Find Hitler's Agents Divided Foe Just as Fuehrer Planned, Foredooming Army; Britain Believed Solid Despite Fifth Column

AUG-21

Following is the third of a series of four articles on "fifth column" activities as released by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy:

By Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer

The masterpiece of the "fifth column" was unquestionably the French debacle. Here everything that Hitler had promised came to pass with almost mathematical precision.

He did not strike until he was in touch with certain important Frenchmen who were ready to treat with him. He needed but one swift blow. He terrified the soldiers by his noise-making engines; he demoralized the officers by the surprise and power of his attacks; he bewildered the generals by the daring of his strategic conceptions, and troubled the entire population by his radio propaganda, which insisted that France was being betrayed by Britain and by the French "warmongers." He spread horrible rumors through villages, issued fearsome reports by wireless, and then, when the populations had congested the roads in their flight, machine-gunned them to heighten their panic.

Meanwhile, his agents within France, presumably by clandestine wireless senders, kept him informed of what was going on, and he thus could choose the precise moment for Italy's entrance into the war when French disarray was at its climax. As a result France was not only beaten far more thoroughly and far more easily than Poland, but, unlike Poland, France cracked morally as well, and a new set of leaders sought to purchase the German's mercy, if not his respect, by submission to France's conquerors.

French Unity Was at Low Ebb

Admittedly this could not have been accomplished save during a low ebb in French history. The French masses were increasingly materialistic. Capital and labor were at loggerheads, the former remembering the experiments of the Popular Front government of 1936-'37, the latter resentful of the attempted Fascist coup d'etat in 1934 and the unpunished "Cagoulard" Fascist conspiracy later. Moreover, the peculiar French form of parliamentary government was creaking and the bulk of the people had lost nearly all faith in their leaders. This enabled Hitler (and Mussolini as well) to keep up propaganda pressure, often through the Communists, and prevent the output in the armament industries from ever reaching a satisfactory level.

The crucial test justified all Hitler's efforts: When the French soldiers had a chance of fighting on equal terms, they fought fairly well; when nothing but heroism could have made up for superior German equipment, the French infantry, repeatedly deserted by their officers, melted away.

What happened to the French officers? Simply this: for the most part they had ceased to believe in freedom, democracy or any of the slogans which alone could galvanize the entire country.

While not exactly pro-Fascist (and certainly not pro-German), they were hostile to the Third Republic; many had come to believe that an authoritative regime like that of Italy and Germany was really preferable. It would, they thought, save the position of the privileged classes and really save France from the disagreeable necessity of defending itself. If there was to be a war, then let it be against the Bolsheviks. In other words, at least half and perhaps the majority of influential French citizens had come to believe what Hitler wanted them to believe.

Beautiful Women Among Agents

How had Hitler accomplished this? By patient activity. For years his agents in France, Friedrich Sieburg, the author; Otto Abetz, "pro-French" consuls like Holde, many others, had "worked" the French leaders. When necessary they were assisted by beautiful women: the Baroness von Einem, the Princess von Hohenlohe and others of lesser brilliance. They "got in" with certain of those leading French women who, at the moment of defeat, exercised such a devastating influence on certain French statesmen. They went everywhere, saw everybody, came to know everything, dipped into French politics through scandalously venal French newspapers. To the weak and the cynical they preached defeatism; to the unsuccessful, hatred of the Jew; to all, the possibility of living on good terms with Germany, if only France would break relations with the Bolsheviks and "money-minded" Britain, cease meddling in central and eastern Europe and propitiate the Italians by the gift of some "unimportant" French territories.

For years this sort of thing went on more or less in broad daylight. During the appeasement period the Germans were actually aided by certain members of the British Embassy in Paris.

Not until two months before the outbreak of the war did any one dare to take action against the numerous German agents—and then the vacillating Daladier talked big and did little.

A hesitant officer class brought about sure defeat for the army; the army's defeat frightened the army leaders lest the soldiers seek scapegoats among the generals. And a majority of cynical and cowardly politicians rushed their country into one of the most contemptible surrenders on record. Just as Adolf Hitler had said they would.

Duped Key Britons, Too

What of Hitler's "fifth column" in Great Britain? Short of the supreme test, it is impossible to say for sure. What is evident is that during the appeasement period, the Germans spun a web of friendship for Nazi Germany among the more gullible or dissatisfied members of the ruling class.

It is obviously a triumph in so proud a country as Britain to have created even so weak a satellite party as the British Union of Fascists. Organizations like the Link, the Anglo-German Fellowship, the Christian Fellowship duped any number of highly placed Englishmen.

Female members of British society were induced to look kindly upon Hitler's aims by the flattering attention of handsome young German aristocrats. British visitors to Germany never lacked congenial guides.

The fact that the British police found it necessary to arrest a member of Parliament, Capt. Ramsay, on the charge of having transmitted to the German Legation at Dublin treasonable information given him by Tyler Kent, cipher clerk at the American Embassy in London, would seem to show that some of the many finely spun threads from Berlin to London still remain. One hears hints of a persistent "pro-Germanism" in the London city.

Roundups Cleared the Air

But it must be stated emphatically that the vast majority of the British, unlike the French, underwent radical change of heart after it became apparent that Hitler had duped Chamberlain at Munich, although there were still appeasers ready to try to bribe the Nazis to be good with a Hudson-Wohlthat plan for economic concessions to Germany. Moreover, with British patriotism at the white heat of today under threat of imminent invasion, the fate of confessed "fifth columnists" in Britain would be short and unenviable.

This time the British police were prepared for the war. At the opening of hostilities they jailed some 400 of the best German agents. Later raids tended to show that the backbone of the organization was broken then. The involuntary confinement of over 1,000 Britishers, mostly followers of Mosley, further cleared the air.

All in all, foreigners in Britain have the impression that the several branches of the competent British police are masters of the situation, and that the British soul was never really tainted by Nazi propaganda. Every one listens to Lord Haw Haw but his words arouse more laughter than belief. A nation that faces mortal peril with the grim joke, "Well, at least Britain has reached the finals!" seems sound.

None the less, many foreigners believe that if the worst should happen and an invasion of Britain occur, some positive and hitherto unrevealed fruits of Hitler's propaganda would appear in the shape of a not entirely insignificant British "fifth column" which, like the French, would find numerous reasons why Britain should rather "come to terms" with Hitler than continue single-handed a desperate struggle, the outcome of which is bound to contain some social change. Whether such a "fifth column" could, as in France, come to supreme power is quite another question.

Kent's Arrest Explained

The charge that Tyler Kent, former cipher clerk in the American Embassy in London, was involved with Capt. Archibald H. M. Ramsay in the transmission of treasonable information to the Germans through Dublin is the first explanation made public here of his arrest on June 1. His arrest was a result of action taken by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. On Aug. 19, he appeared in Bow Street Police Court for a secret hearing, but the charges were not revealed.

Donovan Says 5th Column in U.S. Might Decide a War With Reich

Thinks Nazis' Spy System Here May Be Their Finest; Would Ban German Publications and Investigate Commercial Tie-Ups to Combat Big Outlay

Following is the last of a series of articles made public by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, in connection with the national defense program.

AUG 22 1940 — AUG-22

By Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer

Since we must ascribe a huge share in Adolf Hitler's incomparable military successes to his use of Germans and "fifth columnists" in victim countries, the question arises: How was such success possible? How are Germans abroad brought to such self-sacrificing enthusiasm for the regime? How, above all, can foreigners living under relatively mild and civilized governments be induced voluntarily to betray their own countries for Hitler's Germany? It seems mysterious.

The answer is $200,000,000 spent annually on organization and propaganda abroad. The immensity of this sum is the secret. Nazi Germany is not a government—not even a "folkdom" of the sort Nazi orators talk about. Nazi Germany is a conspiracy. Its scope is universal and its aim world dominion. Its primary agents are as many of the millions of Germans in Germany, and abroad, as can be induced or compelled to serve the German fatherland.

Its activities begin with attempted proselyting of Germans abroad, go on to the murder and kidnaping of real or fancied enemies and end in armed insurrection against the foreign country Hitler wishes to conquer or absorb. Such insurrections of Germans actually occurred in Czecho-Slovakia, Austria and Holland. But for the firm attitude of the United States, such an insurrection would, many students believe, have occurred in Brazil.

Reich Claims Second Generations

That the Germans abroad are usually "naturalized" into something else is no hindrance. Pre-war imperial Germany sanctioned the "double-nationality status" — Germans could, that is, become French or American or Portuguese without losing their German nationality. The Weimar Republic did not alter this strange conception, and Nazi Germany has made it the center of its "Trojan horse" tactics of placing Germans within the enemy walls. It is safe to say that a very fair proportion of the non-refugee Germans who have become American since Hitler came to power did so with the secret intention of turning free and democratic America into "their"—that is, Hitler's—America.

Children of Germans naturalized half a century ago are still counted German by Berlin, and every effort is made to convince them of the fact. Naturally, the Nazis accept traitors as allies wherever they can find them and welcome the assistance of non-Nordics. But peoples racially akin to Germans—Scandinavians, Dutch, Flemings, German-speaking Swiss, even Anglo-Saxons—are made the object of special proselytizing as belonging to the "same blood." These form the material with which the Nazi world conspiracy chiefly attempts to work.

The center is the Nazi party. The tool is the Auslands Organization (or "Organization Abroad") of this party. Today this organization of Germans abroad has nearly 4,000,000 members, all of whom are conscious agents. More than 600 local groups or "supporting points" are organized in forty-five or more "Landesgruppen"—one in each country.

Fancy Names Are Camouflage

The headquarters is in Stuttgart, but all the groups are directed by a single man in Berlin, Gauleiter Ernst Wilhelm Bohle, with some 800 assistants. Technically Bohle is a "state secretary" in the German Foreign Office. Where the local branches dare not appear under their true colors they take on fancy names—in Rumania, the "Iron Guard"; in Switzerland, "True Confederates"; in the United States, "Amerika-Deutscher Volksbund."

But everywhere, whether the members are Germans, naturalized Germans or non-Germans, the aim is the same, to achieve Hitler's end by trickery or terror; the organizing principle is the same, with S. A. and Hitler Youth and Hitler sport, marching, emblems, ruthless discipline, ceremonies in honor of Nazi heroes or Hitler's birthday parties; and in case of war they would all be on Germany's side. In time of peace they make lists of Hitler's enemies, who are marked down for murder or kidnaping to Germany and torture when the great day comes. Organized Germans abroad are publicly told to "obey the laws of their guest-country," but at the same time urged to "convince every outsider of the necessity of Germany's victory." The Nazi party Auslands Organization is by no means the only entity that works for Hitler outside Germany.

There are, in fact, no less than seven others. The political police or Gestapo, the Propaganda Ministry of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, the German Labor Front, the intelligence services of the German Army, of the German Navy and of the German air arm, and finally the German Foreign Office with its embassies and consulates all over the world.

Together these eight organizations spend on propaganda, espionage and sabotage roughly $200,000,000 a year. It seems a lot of money, but Hitler has publicly expressed his intention of keeping this service at full blast even if it means fewer infantry divisions in the Army. When one considers that this combined service, with its 30,000 employees, can probably claim credit for the ease of Hitler's many victories, it is obvious that the same result could hardly be obtained so cheaply in any other way.

Sway Cuest Country's Policy

The German Foreign Office thus has two irons in the fire abroad. One is the millions of Germans in Bohle's Auslands Organization. The other is the German diplomats abroad. By noticing that on the whole the German government has four or five times as many "accredited" diplomatic and consular agents in each post as any other country, one can perhaps guess the type of activity of four-fifths of them. Often they publicly mix in the policy of the countries to which they are accredited. Thus the famous Capt. Wiedemann, Consul General in San Francisco, was publicly congratulated by order of the Fuehrer in Berlin for his work in preventing the United States Senate from accepting Roosevelt's modified neutrality legislation in July, 1939.

The intelligence services of the German Army, Navy and air arm are not much different from those in other countries, with the possible exception that the German Army maintains, in the Prinz Friedrich Karl Strasse in Berlin, a "psychological laboratory." The heads are (or were) Col. Von Voss and Oberregierungsrat Max Somonelt. A secret section bears the title, "International Psychology." Here are trained not only the military spies but the Gestapo and party agents especially designated for service abroad.

Members of the German Labor Front who go abroad to work have the duty of reporting anything of interest they may see or learn in foreign ships, shops, factories or other places. Furthermore, since 1936 there has existed in Hamburg an "International Central Office," where Germans and Italians work together against trade unions, particularly in democratic countries, and support any movement against organized labor.

Seek to Influence Press

Particularly important, notably in countries like the Third French Republic, is the work of the press attaches in the German embassies and consulates. Not only do they see that the 1,700 German-language newspapers outside Germany (total circulation 3,000,000) are supplied with interesting material of all sorts at the price no other source can meet, but they also watch over German radio programs. Special attention is given to winning over possible Nazi friends on the local press and combating or bringing into disrepute newspapers and periodicals that oppose Hitler.

The German Gestapo of Heinrich Himmler, whose ruthless efficiency surpasses even the Russian Ogpu, employs only about 5,000 agents abroad. One of its special tasks is watching over German refugee emigrants, but it does not scorn to cast an eye even on Nazis in good standing, some of whom have been known to speak slightingly of the Fuehrer or to express a passing wish for greater personal freedom. Therefore one or more agents can be found in every German consulate or embassy abroad. A good angler can manage to locate others in the larger German commercial enterprises, such as shipping or oil companies.

In addition to the agencies already mentioned, there exists a colonial political department headed by Gen. Franz Ritter von Epp, Hitler's special friend, which carries on a lively pro-Nazi propaganda in the former German colonies and among Germans in colonies of other countries.

Propaganda on the Air

Although there is some doubt, presumably it is the Gestapo that picks out special agents for particular jobs in countries that happen at a particular moment to interest the Nazis most. Rumor speaks of a high-class German technician who managed to find a relatively insignificant job in an American broadcasting company. Broadcasting plays a great role in German spy life. Not only do the agents possess tiny senders with which they transmit information unfit for the public, but they receive instructions carefully concealed in public broadcasts from the fatherland. One such typical broadcast was that called Kamaradschaftsdienst supposedly intended for the soldiers at the front.

There is no claim that this description of the German propaganda service is complete. Conceivably there exist other even more interesting services. But this much should make it clear why Adolf Hitler has been so successful in utilizing Germans abroad and creating "fifth columns" among his enemies. Thanks to the pains taken and the money spent, Hitler has in nearly every country been able to do considerable in breaking down the national morale and enlisting traitors.

One particularly good dodge is, in most places, the creation of two Nazi organizations, one of which acts in a strictly legal way. Another (until it was found out) was the use of German servant girls. Dutch employers of a particularly "dumm" German cook were surprised to hear her conversing in the kitchen with a perfect stranger in fluent Oxford English. She was dismissed—and took with her the more important family papers. German exchange students, carefully schooled in espionage and propaganda, collected no end of information in Switzerland. Strength-Through-Joy tourists carefully mapped Poland for the Reichswehr. It must always be remembered that no German receives police permission to leave the Reich, regardless of the motives, until he or she promises to report everything seen and heard abroad. Each must declare his address to the nearest Nazi official and keep in touch with him so far as circumstances permit.

Urges Strong Hand

In the United States an organization of Nazis is being trained in arms. As matters now stand, it is conceivable that the United States possesses the finest Nazi-schooled "fifth column" in the world, one which in case of war with Germany could be our undoing.

Could, but need not be. The Nazis are strong only where unopposed. Where they are resisted, where the initiative is taken from them, they tend to collapse. The revelations in the American press of the fortunes amassed and held abroad by leading Nazis kept Goebbels busy denying it for two weeks. It is hard to see why under present circumstances, in view of "fifth column" activity observed abroad, countries that do not intend to submit to the Third Reich permit any German-language publications or why they do not adopt legislation allowing naturalizations obtained under false pretenses to be annulled by executive act, or do not insist on knowing just which domestic industries and commercial houses have tie-ups of any sort with the Nazis.

Failure to do this, failure to study and combat the entire Nazi Auslands Organization, may have tragic consequences. Unearthed in time, the Nazi conspiracy is relatively harmless.

Knox Says 5th Column Exposé Forearms U. S. Against Attack

Praising Articles by Col. Donovan and Mowrer, He Summarizes Methods and Hazards of Totalitarian Nations' War From Within

The following article by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, is intended to summarize four articles on "fifth column" activities, written by Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer and made public earlier this week:

AUG 23

By Frank Knox
Secretary of the Navy

The articles by Col. William J. Donovan and Mr. Edgar Mowrer which have appeared in the press of America have served, in my judgment, a highly useful purpose. Their frank purpose was in forewarning and thus forearming the American people against a subtle form of attack successfully used elsewhere by the totalitarian powers. Unpreparedness, surprise, then delay, and finally panic are the essential features of this new form of attack. Summarizing, the purposes of such propaganda are to accomplish the following objectives:

First, to create confusion of thought, suspicion and dissension among the masses in order to weaken their morale and lower the stamina of the people.

Secondly, to incite jealousy and antagonism between different classes of society, as well as between various political, racial and religious groups. This is an effective means of weakening a country, by disrupting its unity of purpose and action.

Pacifist Efforts Fostered

Third, to retard any effective preparation for defense. In all the conquered countries of Europe the pacifists were stimulated to the utmost activity. Prominent officials and politicians who were conscientious pacifists were induced to use their influence against large-scale armament. Church dignitaries were covertly worked upon on similar grounds to express publicly their disapproval. The radical labor element was secretly urged to oppose the plans of the government for enlisting them in any war. In France, labor's sabotage of the armament program was a factor in that country's lack of essential equipment. Such activities were carried on at the very time when the Nazis were driving the working people of Germany to the limit of their strength to create those implements of war with which she conquered France. Now those same French workmen who listened to fifth-column agitation against their former government have been ordered to work fifty-six hours a week with no extra pay for overtime, and this is just the beginning of Nazi rule in France.

Fourth, the fear of radicalism so prevalent among the rich and the ruling classes in England and in France was used as a potent argument for a more friendly, tolerant feeling toward the Nazi regime and as a point of leverage for a policy of appeasement. Subtle persuasion, secret pressure and, in all probability, open bribery were all used to break down the loyalty and to secure the co-operation of a few key men in official positions and in the armies. When the final crisis came these traitors contributed dramatically to the collapse of Allied resistance in Norway, Holland, Belgium and probably in France.

Fifth, before the outbreak of war and throughout its earlier stages the smaller countries were constantly urged to maintain their neutrality and were warned to avoid any collaboration with other nations for their common defense. Government officials and the public, by means of propaganda, were constantly assured of safety and immunity from war if only they practiced the strictest neutrality and abstained from military co-operation with their neighbors. The little democracies were so impressed with this myth of neutrality and the security it would give them that the Nazis were successful in their strategy of overrunning one nation at a time and thus avoided any united opposition. Fifth-column propaganda played an important part in keeping public attention focused on the necessity for a neutrality which, in the end, proved to be pure fiction and which made effective defense impossible.

Privileges Form Hazard

Those personal privileges which in our democracy we value so highly—freedom of speech and of the press—make us particularly vulnerable to this new form of warfare. It represents a new and a grave danger for a self-governing country which springs from many nationalities.

30,24-4497

Fortunately, there is an effective primary means of defense against the underhand activities of fifth-column agents. It lies in tearing down the veil of secrecy and subterfuge under which they operate, to inform our citizens in detail as to means they employ and their purposes.

A secondary means of defense lies in the timely discernment of fifth-column methods, with prompt counteraction wherever possible. This is a duty which requires intelligent and organized co-ordination. We should be ready to back this program with all the energy and resources at our command. It is a problem which requires thought and organization. It is more immediate even than the military problem. The latter, if we cannot solve the former, may well be incapable of solution.

At that same time, all German radio stations went silent, suggesting British raids in the interior.

Searchlight Sweeps Sky

A single searchlight beam swept the sky midway along the French shore between Boulogne and Calais, but was cut off after a few minutes.

The R. A. F.'s counter-attack across the Channel was one of a series first launched last night when the Nazis opened up with their big guns, bombarding the English coast, particularly in the region of Dover, which was heavily shelled.

The British disclosed today that their own coastal guns had fired a few rounds back. They insisted the German shells could give the Nazis no more than a nuisance advantage.

Dover Can't Be Knocked Out

Dover as a military point, they said, could not be knocked out.

Raids Held "Indiscriminate"

The Air and War Ministries early in the evening officially accused the raiders of "indiscriminate machine-gun attacks" at several places in the industrial Midlands and in one eastern district.

Reports that were both brief and incomprehensive suggested that the Midlands again had borne the heaviest burden in civilian casualties.

In addition to the attacks on the French coast, officials declared today that the R. A. F. had attacked twenty-two airdromes in German-occupied territory, losing only one plane.

Targets in Germany were bombed during the night," a communique said, "including the synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, the aircraft factory at Frankfurt, the power station at Knappsack near Cologne, a high explosive factory at Greisheim near Frankfurt, and docks at the Rhine port of Duisburg.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Britain disclosed today that heavy guns on both sides of the Channel have joined the battle of Britain as German air raiders, stepping up their pace again, hit hard three thickly populated London suburbs in early morning attacks.

Military sources said British guns had fired "a few rounds" at German cannon bombarding the important Channel port of Dover from the French Coast.

They minimized the possibilities of long-range shelling, however, declaring the German guns could have some "nuisance value," but could have no military significance.

Although vans began moving the belongings of Dover's populace from what now has become a front-line city, military sources declared the Nazi guns—which they figured might be mobile "12-inchers" mounted on railroad cars—could not make the British give up Dover as a war base.

Those areas also were raided by night and an official announcement acknowledged there had been "a number of fatal injuries." The night raids, staged largely by lone bombers or small groups, covered a wide area and as many as 50 planes were sighted.

On the other hand, the British reported nine German warplanes shot down against four British, from two of which the flyers returned safely.

Cross-Channel Shelling.

The attack on London, the first pre-dawn air raid on the capital, followed by only a few hours a spectacular night cross-Channel artillery shelling of the important Dover coastal region.

About 30 bombs were dropped during the night on one southwest town by relays of single aircraft. A German bomber crashed in a field in Southeast England this morning. A gamekeeper captured the crew of four.

AUG 24 1940

Shortly before noon single planes raided the Midlands, one dropping some medium-sized bombs which smashed a cottage. Another raider dropped three bombs on another Midlands town, but all fell on open land.

Six bombs fell on a thickly populated district of a third Midlands town. One casualty was reported.

Early this afternoon a single bomber dived out of the clouds and dropped six high explosive bombs along the sea front of a southwest town. All hit the beach.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Home Security said there will be no published list of the dead and injured in London raids. The August total of civilian air raid casualties for all of Britain will be issued the first week in September.

Two waves of German air attacks today in Southwestern England were regarded by the British as aimed at destroying crops. Officials said there was little damage, although about 200 bombs fell.

One farmer said most hits on his land were near meadows and orchards and another said a hail of incendiary bombs lit up the countryside, but fell harmlessly on pasture land.

These rapid developments led some Britons to believe Germany might be ready for a resumption of the large-scale massed raids which marked the war last week but had not come again since Sunday.

The raid on London, which had hundreds of thousands of the city's nearly 9,000,000 inhabitants in air raid shelters from 3:15 until 4 a.m., appeared to be centered on the western outskirts, but the invading planes could be seen plainly by roof-top watchers in Central London as they were picked out by searchlights.

In the attacked area, a direct hit demolished an empty motion picture theater and an adjoining hall. A second motion picture theater, also empty, a bank and a number of houses were badly damaged. Another bomb started a fire. In another section, high explosive and incendiary bombs fell on the edge of a wood, starting a fire which was controlled quickly.

A government communique said there was only "a small number of casualties," but it was known two of the wounded had died.

Observers said the German planes came over the city in "fairly large numbers," but the attack lasted only a short time. The thunder of bursting bombs could be heard plainly by spectators in London's west end who choose to watch the searchlight beams play on the raiders and see the "oranges" of exploding anti-aircraft shells break beside the attackers, rather than hide in air shelters.

Bomb Misses Apartments.

There were 200 persons still asleep in the apartment building, but none was hurt. Two women, awakened by the blast which wrecked the neighborhood movie theater, found themselves blanketed by sharp fragments of splintered glass from a window above their bed.

The bomb had struck the boiler house on the movie, demolishing the theater and an adjoining dance hall. The front entrance and the balcony of the theater alone were left standing. The boiler was draped in grotesque shapes over the orchestra seats, while the silvered screen, which had reflected many newsreel images of war scenes around the world, swayed in tattered strips.

Some suburban streets were closed off this morning as the debris was being cleared away, and the ruins were searched for possible additional casualties.

In one suburb, where three bombs fell between a movie theater and a bank across the street, the windows of stores and houses were shattered for 100 yards.

Dover Houses Smashed.

More damaging was the shelling of Dover and the nearby coast by Germany's new long-range guns placed along the coast of German-occupied France.

The big guns, planted along 30 miles of coast from Calais to Boulogne, concentrated their attack on Dover itself, smashing homes and other buildings and taking a uncounted toll of lives.

High explosive shells burst over a wide coastal area around Dover. The attack came in two sessions, the first about dusk. As late as midnight Dover residents were fleeing their homes with bedding to spend the night in safer places.

R.A.F. Hammers Enemy Harder, Bombs Cross-Channel Batteries As Lull in Nazi Raids Continues

AUG 24 1940

BRITISH PUSH RAIDS ON NAZI GUN BASES

R. A. F. Also Believed To Have Made More Attacks On Germany Itself

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 23—New raids by British bombers on German artillery emplacements on the Nazi-held French coast line were signaled late tonight by the barking of German anti-aircraft batteries across the English Channel and the dull thunder of bombs.

Flashes from the Nazi guns could be seen first at 10 P. M., dotting the French side for miles. Occasionally there were more diffused flashes, apparently caused by the falling British bombs.

Nevertheless, Dover's hills were alive all day with moving vans, taking out the belongings of inhabitants who asserted that the German marksmanship was such that their shells might readily land anywhere.

Britain itself was under widespread air attack tonight. Low-flying Nazi bombers were over southeast and southwest coast towns, and as far as Wales. One flight dropped twenty bombs on a southern residential district, causing some casualties.

In a southeast coast town, several were reported killed. Explosions in that area were said by residents to be very much louder than those customarily heard. Many homes were smashed or damaged.

Bombed also were a town in Hampshire and parts of the Isle of Wight. There, too, some fatalities were reported.

These night raids were on a scale apparently at least equal to those which during the day had occurred in far-separated areas in Britain. During the day-time attacks bombs fell in at least three sections. Up to late afternoon four German planes had been reported shot down.

Railway junctions at Mannheim and Coblenz were attacked and the goods siding at Hamm and Soest were bombed as usual.

British Heavy Guns Duel With Germans Over Dover Straits

Suburbs of London Are Hard Hit in Nazi Bombing

Casualties are Few.

Homes and public buildings were blasted by Nazi explosives in the raid on London and a delayed-action bomb burst in one roped-off area several hours later, but casualties were comparatively few.

Apparently signaling a resumption of their wholesale daylight attacks, Nazi planes struck also at scattered areas in the southeast and northeast, damaging buildings and killing at least two children.

The British replied with dive-bomber attacks, the big planes crossing the Channel during both bombardments and aiming their bombs at the bursts of fire belched by the enemy artillery.

The battle was spectacular, with an estimated 50 or more shells screaming across the Channel at the height of one attack and with the boom of British bombs heard bursting on the German side, from 20 to 30 miles away.

These German guns were the ones brought into their first big action yesterday morning, when their shells burst all around a British convey in the Channel. A communique said no ships were hit.

Bombs in Other Sections.

The government announced that in last night's raids, in addition to the attack on the outskirts of London, bombs were dropped "in a number of areas in South Wales," on a town in East Scotland, on two towns in Northeast England and on two towns in Southeast England.

"A number of fatal injuries have been reported," a communique said.

The raid on the outskirts of London was the third of the war on Greater London, the first being a week ago yesterday, when Croydon Airdrome and the eastern dock area were attacked, and the second on the following day, when southwestern suburbs were hit. These were daylight attacks.

This morning many Londoners, initiated by the previous daylight alarms, turned over and went to sleep again when the alarm was sounded, preferring their warm beds to the cold shelters. It was a chilly night.

The metropolitan defense forces appeared to take the raid in stride, their searchlights catching the German bombers and forcing them to dive and circle to get away.

Night's Fatalities.

Details of the night's fatalities around the country reached London during the morning.

AUG 24 1941

Three persons—an elderly man, his grandson and an air raid warden—were killed when a single raider dropped four high explosive bombs on a Northeast Scotland town. The boy's mother was taken to a hospital critically hurt. They were in a shelter behind their bungalow.

Nazi planes in attacking a northeast coats town, demolished a cafe. Several persons who had sought refuge in the cellar were trapped under the debris.

One of the largest stores in the town was wrecked by a direct bomb hit, and the hotel was damaged.

Children Die at Dawn.

Then at dawn today two children, one 3 years old and the other 7, were killed when a raider dropped six bombs in the residential area of a northeast of England coastal town.

In a southeast of England town one man was killed and two were injured. Many high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped in the southeast area. But most fell in the open country.

Shortly before noon single planes raided the midlands, one dropping some medium-sized bombs which smashed a cottage. Another raider dropped three bombs on another midlands town, but all fell on open land.

Six bombs fell on a thickly populated district of a third Midlands town. One casualty was reported.

Nazi Batteries Bombed.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The British Air Ministry announced tonight that Royal Air Force bombers had attacked German gun emplacements on the French shore between Calais and Bolougne for several hours, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

AUG 24 1941

This announcement followed a reply by British long-range guns to German shelling of Dover yesterday. The English batteries hurled shot back across the channel at Calais.

The Air Ministry also announced tonight that the R. A. F. last night had attacked twenty-two airdromes in German-occupied territory, losing only one plane.

Text of British Communique.

The communique's content:

"Targets in Germany bombed during the night include the synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, the aircraft factory at Frankfort, the power station at Knappsack near Cologne, a high explosive factory at Greisheim near Frankfort, and docks at the Rhine port of Duisburg.

"Railway junctions at Mannheim and Coblenz were attacked and the goods siding at Hamm and Soest were bombed as usual. Attacks were also made on twenty-two airdromes in Germany and German-occupied territory.

"The strong bomber force engaged in these operations returned safely except that one aircraft made a forced landing and the crew were killed."

The Air Ministry also said that Blenheim bombers last night had attacked airdromes at St. Omer and Dinard, in France, and started many fires among the hangars and other buildings.

British Tell of Firing Guns.

Military spokesmen said that British guns had fired "a few rounds across the channel" at the German guns bombarding Dover from the French coast.

These spokesmen said that the German bombardment would not make Dover untenable from a military point of view. They declined to say whether the British had fired from land or from the type of gunboat known as a monitor.

Naval spokesmen said it would be extremely hard for battleships to silence the German guns which offered comparatively small targets.

Military men declared that the German bombardment was "practice."

One military spokesman said that the German guns were "about twelve inches" and are probably mounted on railroad trucks, "brought up, fired and withdrawn."

A number of gun emplacements have been observed on the French coast between Calais and Boulogne, but this informant said that a number of them may be dummies."

The bombardment did not appear to "usher in a new phase of the battle for Britain," he continued, and added: "It certainly has some nuisance value, but beyond that I can see no great military value."

It was held likely that the shelling would result in the removal of some civilians from the coastal area.

London, Aug. 23-(AP)-One bomb dropped in this morning's raid on three London suburbs scored a direct hit on a movie theatre, which was empty, and just barely missed an apartment building, which was full.

AUG 24 1941

This seemed to typify the result of the raid, in which houses and apartment buildings were damaged in thickly-populated sections but only a relatively few persons hurt. Police said none was killed.

A daylight survey after the London area's first night raid on the war showed that inaddition to a number of private houses and apartment buildings, two movie theaters, a dance hall, a saloon and a bank were damaged.

There were 200 persons still asleep in the apartment building, but none was hurt. Two women, awakened by the blast which wrecked the neighboring movie theater, found themselves blanketed by sharp fragments of splintered glass from a window above their bed.

Movie Is Shattered.

The bomb had struck the movie's boiler house, demolishing the theater and an adjoining dance hall. The front entrance and the balcony of the theater alone were left standing. The boiler was draped in grotesque shapes over the orchestra seats, while the silver screen swayed in tattered strips.

Some suburban streets were closed off as the debris was being cleared away and the ruins were searched for possible additional casualties.

One housewife, Mrs. J. Jackson, said: "The force of the explosion blew me out of bed."

Another woman, who lives across the street from the movie theater, said she was on her way to waken her thirteen-year-old son when "suddenly there was a whistling sound as if a bomb were dropping."

"I flung myself over my boy," she said, "and suddenly there was a huge flare from across the road and a terrific, rending sound which seemed to leave us both deaf.

"Glass crashed in from every window in the house, but we were not hurt."

Observers said that the German planes came over London in fairly large numbers, but the attack lasted only a short time.

Many Stay in Bed.

The raid on the outskirts of London was the third attack of the war on Greater London. The first occurred a week ago yesterday, when the Croydon Airdrome and the East End docks were attacked, and the second came the following day, when southwestern suburbs were hit. These were daylight attacks, however.

This morning many Londoners, initiated by the previous daylight alarms, turned over and went to sleep again when the alarm was sounded, preferring their warm beds to the cold shelters. It was a chilly night.

The Government announced that in the course of last night's raids, in addition to the attack on the outskirts of London, bombs were dropped "in a number of areas in South Wales," on a town in the east of Scotland, and on several towns in England.

mind because he "couldn't sell the stuff anyway after the war started."

A policeman stood guard over two demolished house walls which stood no higher than 4 feet above the ground.

"Now, would you believe it?" he asked, "but an old woman and her husband were dug out of that house on the right—I mean what's left of it—and the man wasn't even scratched? The wife was hurt only a little."

In another section of the town a small dwelling lay crushed by a shell, which military men said may have been of 12-inch caliber.

The picture theater was crowded when it began "dancing like a Hottentot," according to excited patrons. They didn't mind that at first, but the projector and the screen danced a different rhythm and time, and the focus was ruined.

Inhabitants Evacuate as Dover Becomes Front-Line City

People Did Not Mind Air Raids, but Shelling Forces Them to Make Exodus

By WILLIAM L. HUMPHREYS,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

DOVER, England, Aug. 23.—Red and green moving vans packed with furniture moved ponderously up the Dover hills today, moving inhabitants and their goods of this famous kent seaport which has now become a front-line city.

For, while there was no official order to get out, a good many of the city's 41,000 persons have decided that life is too uncertain now that the Germans have begun their shelling of this coast by big guns across the Channel.

They didn't mind so much the bombing raids—at any rate they were reasonably jolly in ducking for cover when the air-raid warnings sounded—but most of them say now that the German gunnery is too poor to be healthy. The big shells may land anywhere, Doverites believe.

George Fitzpatrick's wine store was damaged, a church was hit, at least three dwellings were demolished and a movie house was shaken so badly that the picture was blurred

The splinters that hit Fitzpatrick's place smashed his German wine stock, but Fitzpatrick said he didn't

One shell scored a direct hit on a church. On the floor among the debris of plaster and shattered candelabra lay a colored print—station ten of the way of the cross—"Jesus Is Stripped of His Garments."

The picture bore the imprint of the shop of Franz Hanfstaengel of Munich, the family of "Putzi" Hanfstaengel, Harvard graduate and former intimate of Adolf Hitler.

Shells Annoyed Men on Ship

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—"I don't mind bombs so much. You can hear them coming at you. But I don't like those shells a little bit."

That comment on the new phase of the Battle of Britain came today from the Lewis machine-gunner on a British coastal steamer that yesterday ran a ten-mile gantlet of fire from the German guns on the French coast.

"The wind was against us and we couldn't hear the whistle of the shells," said the machine-gunner. "We never knew they were being fired until they suddenly began crashing into the sea near us, sending up great geysers.

"One shell whizzed right over the decks."

NEW ZEALAND SEARCHES FOR GERMAN RAIDER

AUG 24 1940

Warship Is Hunted In South Pacific After Attack On British Vessel

Naval And Air Craft Scour Tasman Sea For Reich Ship

[By the Associated Press]

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 21—New Zealand naval and air forces searched the Tasman Sea tonight for an unidentified German raider which attacked the British steamer Turakina three days ago.

They also hunted the 8,706-ton Turakina herself. She flashed a radio message Tuesday night that the raider was firing on her and gave her position. Nothing has been heard from her since.

The Tasman Sea is in the South Pacific between New Zealand and Australia. It was the first report of an attack on a British ship in Australian waters.

Due Thursday, Did Not Arrive

Prime Minister Peter Fraser announced the attack. He said the Turakina was due last night in a New Zealand port but had not arrived.

The Tuakina's appeal was the first indication that a Nazi raider was in the South Pacific, although the 7,582-ton Canadian - Australasian liner Niagara went down off the New Zealand coast June 18. The sinking was attributed to a mine.

In West Indies Last Month

A German raider was reported preying on British shipping in the South Atlantic and Caribbean Sea last month, but has not been heard of since the British auxiliary naval vessel Alcantara engaged her July 31 off the coast of Brazil. The Alcantara left Rio de Janeira August 5 in search of the Nazi ship.

The most famous raider thus far in this war has been the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, which harried Allied shipping in the Atlantic until she was crippled by three British cruisers last December and forced into Montevideo harbor, Uruguay, where the captain scuttled her.

Raiders Sank 60 British Ships During World War

German commerce raiders, either at large at the outbreak of hostilities or which slipped through the British blockade later, captured and sank more than sixty Allied and neutral ships during the World War.

Most famous of all was the German light cruiser Emden, 3,500 tons, which captured or sank twenty-two ships in the Pacific and Indian oceans in the fall of 1914. She was finally put out of commission in a running sea battle with the Australian cruiser Sydney off the Cocos Islands, November 10, 1914.

Almost equally celebrated was Count Felix von Luckner's four-masted schooner, the Seeadler, or Sea Eagle, which slipped through the British blockade in November, 1916, and captured fourteen Allied or neutral ships before she finally was washed ashore on a South Pacific island in a hurricane the following August.

Karlsruhe Also Celebrated

Another celebrated raider was the German cruiser Karlsruhe, which happened to be at Havana at the outbreak of the war. Eluding all pursuers, she roamed the Atlantic and accounted for at least seventeen merchant ships before she finally sunk mysteriously off South America November 4, 1914, apparently from an internal explosion.

The Möwe was another German raider whose exploits became widely known. Threading her way through the Allied blockade in the winter of 1915-16, she cruised for days in North Atlantic ship lanes and captured at least six ships, securing valuable cargoes of gold and other plunder.

Exploits of the Möwe first became known when the British ship Appam, with a German prize crew and many prisoners aboard, dropped anchor off Fort Monroe, Va., February 1, 1916. March 5 it was announced that the Möwe had run the British blockade and miraculously entered the closely guarded port of Wilhelmshaven.

Two Others Interned

Other commerce raiders included the auxiliary cruisers Prinz Eitel Freidrich and Kronprinz Wilhelm, which were trapped by the British after they had put in at Newport News in March, 1916, and eventually were interned in this country; the auxiliary cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, sunk off Africa by the British cruiser High Flyer August 27, 1914; the auxiliary cruiser Cap Trafalgar, sunk by the converted liner Carmania off South America September 14, 1914, and the Crocodile, a specially built raider sunk by the British in the Kattegat late in the war.

SEA RAIDER SOUGHT OFF NEW ZEALAND

AUG 24 1940

Attack Made on British Ship in New Zone.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The 8,706-ton British steamship Turakina sent a radio from the Tasman Sea Tuesday night saying she was being fired on by a raider, Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand announced today.

This was the first report of an attack on a British ship in Australian waters.

The message gave the ship's position but no later advice has been received from the vessel, which was due at a New Zealand port last night.

All possible steps were taken immediately by New Zealand naval and air forces to deal with the reported raider, the Prime Minister said.

The search is continuing.

The 7,582-ton Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara was sunk by a mine off the New Zealand coast last June 18, a day after she left Auckland, but the reported attack on the Turakina was the first indication that a Nazi surface raider or submarine was in the south Pacific.

Wichita and Quincy Arrive at Montevideo

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The United States cruisers Wichita and Quincy arrived here today for their second visit to Montevideo. They will call later at Buenos Aires.

War Vessels Active In Caribbean, Says Crew Of Freighter

AUG 24 1940

Boston, Aug. 23 (AP)—Members of the Danish operated Honduran freighter Oradel reported today the seas from Venezuela to a point north of Cuba were harboring English, German and Italian air and sea craft.

About two weeks ago, they said, they saw a big Italian freighter, which had been attacked by a British plane, aground off Maracaibo, Venezuela, and in the same port observed several German freighters tied up.

They heard rumors, they said, that a submarine had run into the harbor and moored alongside the freighters on at least one occasion.

Later they saw a convoy of fifty tankers off a Venezuelan oil port, apparently headed for the British Isles, several unidentified convoys off Bermuda and a number of British Royal Air Force planes North of Cuba, flying over British cruisers.

The aircraft, they believed, were searching for a German submarine reported operating in the area.

2 Ships Sunk Off Ireland

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 23—The freighter Ville de Gand, one of eight American ships sold to a Belgian firm for trade between England and New York, has been torpedoed off the Irish coast, the United States Lines said today.

The company said about half of her crew of fifty-four were rescued and that hope for the others still existed.

A vessel giving call letters similar to those of the 7,590-ton Ville de Gand radioed August 18 that she was torpedoed 300 miles west of Ireland.

The ship left Liverpool August 17 for New York. She was the third loss for the Belgian company, which has a forty per cent. American ownership.

Formerly the American Importer, the vessel carried Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his family to England in 1935 after the kidnapping and murder of his son.

The ship was built at Hog Island, Pa., in 1920 and was designed as an army transport.

The New York Maritime Register said today that the 7,244-ton Canadian freighter Geraldine Mary had been sunk by "enemy action" off the Irish coast with a loss of three lives—one passenger and two crewmen.

An Eastern Canadian Port, Aug. 23 (AP)—Passengers of a liner which brought more than 800 children and 400 adults here today from Britain reported that a destroyer, which accompanied the ship, dropped depth charges during the voyage.

Authorities declined comment on whether a submarine had been sighted.

Japan Seen Awaiting Nazi South Sea Signal

BY CHARLES RELINE

[By the Asso...

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Aug. 23—Japan's avowed program of expansion in the South Seas is seen here as awaiting a "go" signal from Europe.

Businessmen and diplomats in the Netherlands East Indies and French Indo-China believe Japan will take no direct action until Germany's assault upon Britain reaches its climax. They expect Japan and Germany to arrange a partitioning in the Orient when the Western nations are preoccupied elsewhere.

Differing Views On U. S.

In contrast to the unanimity of opinion on that, is the varying appraisal of the United States' role in the Orient.

Indo-China has secretly been trying to persuade United States airplane builders to turn over about 200 planes originally ordered for France, but most sources admit they have small hope of any American military intervention.

Nevertheless, the Indies particularly have taken comfort in the continued presence of the United States fleet in Hawaii.

Of the two areas, Indo-China is acknowledged to be far more susceptible to Japanese absorption because of her scanty troops and equipment. Indo-China, in this strained atmosphere, is imposing air raid precaution blackout tests.

One of the most persistent reports in Hanoi is that before Marshal Petain's French Government obtains a formal treaty with Germany, a Nazi delegation will inspect Indo-China to determine its worth. Informed Hanoi sources reason that if this were done the delegation would advise Hitler that Indo-China is too valuable to give to Japan.

China Trade Restricted

Tokyo's recall of her Ambassador to France, among other envoys, was taken here to imply that there will be more delay and discussion between Japan and the Vichy Government, and indirectly with Berlin, regarding Indo-China.

In the meantime, this colony still is restricting trade with China, as provided in an egreement with Japan, and warily watching reports that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is massing Chinese troops along the frontier.

CORDOBA QUERIED ON NAZI ACTIVITY

Ecuador's President Heard in Secret Session.

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—Informed sources said today that Andres Cordoba, Provisional President, had been questioned on Nazi activities in Ecuador at a secret session of Congress last night.

Another secret session was to be held Monday at which Cabinet Ministers are expected to explain the results of their investigation of reported Nazi activities.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—Informed persons said today that an understanding on Costa Rican military co-operation with the United States has been reached in conversations between President Rafael Calderon Guardia and a United States military mission.

Details were not announced.

Members of the mission will fly to Managua, Nicaragua, Sunday and later will visit other Central American capitals.

American Legion Due Here on Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The American Legion, United States Army transport now apparently out of danger in its refugee-carrying voyage from Finland, is expected in New York next Wednesday.

The tentative arrival time was announced at the State Department, which had been concerned about a German disclaimer of responsibility for the safety of the ship in waters it now has traversed.

U. S.-Canada Defense

Joint Board All Set For Strategy Talks

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 23 — President Roosevelt noted at his press conference today that the United States-Canadian defense board would organize in Ottawa Monday, but volunteered that there was no news on negotiations for British naval and air bases, or on the much-discussed question of transferring over-age destroyers to Britain.

Reporters crowded into the President's office expecting that an announcement might be forthcoming on the leasing of British air and naval bases in this hemisphere, possibly in Newfoundland, Bermuda and Trinidad. Yesterday there had been a White House conference on the subject.

But today, regarding these negotiations and the proposal to transfer destroyers advocated by Gen. John J. Pershing and Ambassador William C. Bullitt, the President said there just simply ain't no news.

Strategy Talks Next

The appointment of the joint United States-Canadian defense board paved the way for active consultation on the problems of strategy and military planning involved.

Six Americans were selected by President Roosevelt and five Canadians by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Later Mr. Roosevelt called a meeting of the American members of the joint board for tomorrow morning at the White House.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York was the only man named by Mr. Roosevelt last night who is not in the Federal service, the others being officials of the Army, Navy or State Department.

Capt. Harry W. Hill, of the navy's war plans division.

Commander Forrest P. Sherman, of the navy, and Lieut. Col. Joseph T. McNarney, of the Army Air Corps, who will alternate, one sitting during discussion of naval problems and the other for army air problems.

John D. Hickerson, assistant chief of the European affairs division of the State Department, who will be secretary of the American section of the board.

The Canadian Members

The Canadian members are: O. M. Biggar, K. C.; Brigadier K. Stuart, D. S. O., M. C., deputy chief of the Canadian army general staff; Capt. L. W. Murray, R. C. N., deputy chief of the naval staff; Air Commander A. A. L. Cuffe, a member of the air staff, Royal Canadian Air Force, and Hugh L. Keenleyside, counselor of the Department of External Affairs, who will be secretary of the Canadian section of the board.

The appointments were made in less than a week after Mr. Roosevelt and the Canadian Prime Minister reached a broad agreement for common defense measures.

LaGuardia's selection surprised the capital, although as Mayor of the nation's largest city and president of the United States Conference of Mayors, he has been in consultation with Mr. Roosevelt on defense matters.

Navy, Air Corps Men

The others named by the President are:

Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, commanding the Fourth Corps Area, with headquarters at Atlanta.

Canada's "Aloofness"

The New Statesman and Nation said Canada's "aloofness" might in part account for the "somewhat disappointing record" of the Pan-American Union. Even though Canadian membership in the union would create "constitutional difficulties," the paper declared "common sense will not be deterred from going forward under the spur of a common danger."

(The Pan-American Union was organized to include only the American "republics." Canada is not a republic.)

Trying to envision the post-war setup, the weekly said Europe is a natural unit, but its empires "bestride other continents."

Even if the United Kingdom belonged to Europe the dominions "emphatically do not," it declared, concluding that "for some purpose we shall have to tolerate and even encourage a dual allegiance. A beginning has been made by Canada."

Bermuda Discusses Plans.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 23 A. P.).—Political observers here expressed the belief today that a special meeting of the House of Assembly, called for tomorrow afternoon, might be linked with proposals to lease air bases to the United States in British possessions in the western Atlantic. Three secret meetings already have been held this week, with the subject of discussion guarded closely.

London Editors Comment On Joint Defense Plan

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 23—Discussing implications of the Canada-United States joint defense board, the British weekly New Statesman and Nation today said that "sooner or later Canadians will have to reconsider their attitude toward the political structure of the New World."

Asserting that continents now are the natural units for defense purposes, the paper added, "if either the Nazis or the Japanese could win a footing anywhere on either coast of this hemisphere (American), the security of all its twenty-one republics and of Canada would be threatened."

Blockade Aid Seen As Bermuda Mail Route Is Resumed

Censorship Expected to Curb Transfer of Nazi Securities to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Resumption of the Bermuda route for trans-Atlantic mails was seen in informed quarters today as a further measure of tacit United States co-operation with Great Britain.

A tight British censorship exists at Bermuda, and the examination there of mail passing between the United States and Europe led to a controversy some months ago, resulting in Pan-American Airways omitting the stop on its trans-Atlantic plane routes.

The planes recently resumed stopping at Bermuda, but officials declined last night to say whether the Government had influenced the company on the matter. Authoritative sources indicated, however, that now there are no objections to the censorship.

The Bermuda censorship will strengthen the British blockade, it was believed here, and make it difficult for German or Italian owned securities, or anything which may be converted into foreign exchange, to reach this country.

It will also render it difficult, it was said, for German or Italian news pictures or propaganda to arrive in the United States.

When British censors first removed Clipper mail at Bermuda last January, both Pan-American Airways and the American Consul protested. Secretary of State Hull said at the time if the matter could not be worked out with reasonable satisfaction, the question whether Bermuda might be omitted as a stopping point might come up. Shortly afterward Pan-American did in fact begin passing up Bermuda.

The importance the British attach to Bermuda as a "bottleneck" was indicated by the arrival of more than 100 censors from England to augment the censorship staff at Hamilton. The work was said to have increased greatly with the calling of American Export liners there. More than 1,000 bags of mail were reported removed from two of the liners in the last two weeks.

Search And Seizure Ordered In Bahamas

Windsor Issues Decree Applicable To Imports And Exports

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 23 (AP)—Using a power granted in an emergency defense act passed last year the Duke of Windsor, as Governor of the Bahamas, today decreed that officers might seize bank notes, postal orders, gold, securities or foreign currency entering or leaving the Bahamas.

The order, effective next Tuesday, permits the search of imported or exported goods. Certain exemptions will be provided, however, through a special license from the Duke.

A specially composed song, entitled "Blessings on the Duke of Windsor," was sung to the royal Governor today as nearly 10,000 natives attended an open-air reception for the Windsors in Clifford Park, near Fort Charlotte. The Duke appeared pleased, as the crowd sang the song in the first reception of its kind ever accorded a Governor here.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE IS OPPOSED TO DRAFT DELAY

Asserts It Would Hold Up Defense Program One or Two Years.

NEW EQUIPMENT NEEDS MEN

Roosevelt Quotes Stimson Memo on Army Essentials---Glass Wants Speedy Action.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today that he was personally and absolutely opposed to postponement of compulsory military training until next year.

The President told reporters at a press conference that new increments of man power were needed now to learn to use modern fighting equipment that already is on hand.

To put off actual drafting of men, he said, would delay the whole defense program a year or two.

Mr. Roosevelt said Congress had been considering the subject since June 20 and still was talking about it. If a bill should not be enacted in the next couple of weeks, he added, there was going to be real delay in the defense program.

Likening this program to the consistently winning Notre Dame football teams under the late Knute Rockne, the President asserted that if Rockne had started a season with only eleven prospective players instead of forty-four men—or four full teams—he would not have had a winning team.

If the United States is invaded it wants to win, the President said, adding that we had better have a good team than none at all.

30.24-4501

Mr. Roosevelt did not explain this latter remark, but apparently referred back to the fact that nine players did not make a football team.

Pending in the Senate as the President spoke was an amendment proposed to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill by Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, which would delay the actual seelction of men for active military service until January 1 while a further trial was given for the volunteer system.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed himself as emphatically opposed to such delay. A short while earlier, Senator Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, had joined the ranks of conscription advocates opposing the Maloney amendment.

"I think we have postponed getting ready for years," Mr. Glass told reporters, "and I am not in favor of postponing action for another day."

But resuming Senate debate on conscription, Senator Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, contended that voluntary service should be given a trial before compulsory training is ordered.

"The Senate cannot afford to hasten action on this bill. Every angle is too important. If we debate this for three more weeks it will not, in my opinion, delay preparedness. . . . America will not be invaded and America will be prepared."

Mr. Wiley said the Senate probably "will pass this bill," but added: "That does not mean we're going to get into war."

Roosevelt Statement Debated.

Conscription advocates quickly contended that President Roosevelt's statement to the press would tip the scales against the Maloney amendment. Senator Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska, co-author of the pending measure, said he thought the President's views would result in passage of the Burke-Wadsworth bill without "vitiating amendments" such as the Maloney proposal.

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, who has opposed the principle of peacetime conscription, commented:

"I expect that if Captain Roosevelt is determined to make a football game of this emergency he will be able to rally enough of his squad to prevent postponement of conscription. It will be rather easy for men to assume that as long as the principle of the peacetime draft is to be adopted it might as well be sooner as later."

Senator Maloney declined to comment on the President's stand against his amendment, but remarked that he was "entirely in accord with the President's feeling that the Senate ought to come to a conclusion of the matter very quickly."

Most observers agreed, however, that a Senate vote on the Maloney proposal was unlikely before next week.

The President, at his press conference, said the Government had been concentrating on letting orders for new equipment and much of it was to be delivered this fall and next spring. The equipment without man power is of no use, he declared.

The present strength of the army and National Guard, the President continued, was about 400,000 men, and the aim was to raise this to 1,200,000 a year from this fall.

No News on Old Destroyers.

There was no news, he told reporters, on the negotiations with Britain on leasing by the United States of some of the British possessions in this hemisphere for naval bases. There also was nothing to be said, he added, on the question of furnishing Britain with some of our over-age destroyers.

Mr. Roosevelt noted, however, that the joint Canadian-American Defense Board named last night would meet Monday in Ottawa to organize and start work.

Reading from a memorandum from Secretary of War Stimson, the President said Mr. Stimson had informed him that it would take a year to fill up present regular and reserve army units with another 400,000 men, even at the present high rate of recruiting.

Interpolating his own remark that time is of the essence, he continued reading from the Stimson memorandum to say that another 400,000 men of supporting troops would be needed to make the army function as an organized team.

This, Mr. Stimson said, would take another year on the present basis of recruiting.

The President then went on to say that from present army maneuvers it had been shown that the country has too many men who are soft. There was plenty of willingness to work on the part of the men, he said, but many showed they could not stand the strain.

For example, Mr. Roosevelt said a fifteen-mile march was a terrible physical strain for some, yet on the other side of the ocean some armies could march thirty miles a day. In warfare, he commented, that means an awful lot.

Mr. Stimson, Mr. Roosevelt continued, said that delay of the draft until next year would seriously hamper the defense program because equipment was now being gathered for the additional man power.

Asking the pardon of women reporters present, the President said it was nice to be able to order special B. V. D.'s, but that it did not make much difference whether underwear was obtained by special order or whether the army went into a regular haberdashery store to buy it. There was plenty of such clothing in the United States, he added, and said a similar situation existed with relation to shoes, since there were plenty of good marching shoes in the stores.

Mr. Roosevelt said there also were plenty of rifles in reserve to drill the new men.

Again emphasizing the need for quick action, the President said there were many things in modern warfare that civilians do not realize. He told the reporters present they would not be any good at certain technical trades.

For instance he said the new men would have to learn to use "walkie-talkies," portable radios carried on the soldier's back. With these, he said a man would be able to talk with officers in command of neighboring regiments and battalions maybe a half mile away.

The President then mentioned airplane detectors and said it required a lot of training to operate them.

Continuing to read from Mr. Stimson's report, Mr. Roosevelt said that all these new instruments open up a new line for troops and it was necessary to have trained personnel. There was need for co-operation between air and ground troops, he said, adding that this program was only rudimentary now.

Mr. Stimson went on to say that there was no use training ten men when 1,000 were needed and a successful team could not be obtained until men were hardened for the job.

Asked about published reports that Nazi refueling bases had been discovered in the Caribbean area, the President said they were being checked. He added the investigation perhaps would disclose something and perhaps not. Similar reports had been checked in the past, he said, and turned out to be figments of the imagination.

60,000 Due for Duty as F.D.R. Gets Guard Bill

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt today received Congressional authority to mobilize the National Guard, and in military circles it was anticipated that he would soon order active duty for about 60,000 officers and men.

Senate approval of a compromise bill, already passed by the House, sent the Guard legislation to the White House. No dissent was heard in the voice vote.

The measure permits Roosevelt to order approximately 396,000 Guardsmen, Reserve officers and enlisted reserves to a year's active service anywhere in this hemisphere, U. S. possessions elsewhere, or the Philippines.

However, at the time the measure was before congressional committees, Army officials testified that immediate plans called for induction into active service of only 55,426 enlisted men, 53 warrant officers and 3,930 officers of the National Guard.

These men would receive intensive training and be available to replace on continental duty any Regular Army troops dispatched to Latin America or elsewhere because of an emergency.

While an early call to this group was expected, it was believed that the date for them to report would not be earlier than the middle of September.

War Department officials declined to say which Guard units would receive the first call to active service. When the question was first raised last month, it was said that the 44th, 30th, 45th and 41st Divisions had been tentatively selected, together with some coastal Guard units. Those divisions are made up of men from New York and New Jersey, Tennessee and the Carolinas, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and Colorado, and Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho.

Guard Bill's Major Provisions

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 23—Principal provisions of legislation sent to the White House today authorizing President Roosevelt to call the National Guard and army reserves to active duty are:

Subject To Call—Members of National Guard, regular army reserves, Officers Reserve Corps, enlisted reserve corps, retired officers and retired enlisted men.

Period Of Duty—Twelve consecutive months.

Pay—Same as that of regular army ($21 month basic pay for enlisted men).

Where Serve—Any point designated by President within Western Hemisphere, on American possessions outside this hemisphere and on the Philippine Islands.

Resignations—All Guardsmen and reserves under the rank of captain, who have dependents, permitted to resign within twenty days after being ordered to active duty.

Discharges—Automatically given to all Guard members under 18 years.

Medical Examinations—Provided on entry into Federal service and on release, with medical certificate of service illness or injuries to be provided.

Reemployment — Employers required to reemploy soldier who makes application for reinstatement in job forty days after completing service, unless employer finds it "impossible or unreasonable" to do so. United States district attorneys empowered to act as attorney for soldier in suits to force reemployment.

Benefits—Trainees to receive benefits of Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act.

Operation Of Law—Limited to period ending June 30, 1942.

Replying directly to critics who have said that the War Department could not equip a conscript army, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, declared flatly yesterday: "We have plenty of material to train all these men."

The Admitted Shortages

Although he derided fears that the United States would have a "wooden gun" or "broomstick" army, General Marshall acknowledged without hesitation that adequate supplies of the newer, lightning-war weapons were lacking. He referred especially to anti-tank guns, 60-millimeter mortars and 90-millimeter anti-aircraft guns.

Taking issue with the argument that men should not be drafted until modern weapons were available, he declared that a soldier's basic training could be given with existing equipment.

"Rifles For 3,000,000"

"We have enough 30-caliber rifles for 3,000,000 men right now," General Marshall said. "It makes little difference in the training of a soldier whether he has a Garand (semi-automatic) rifle or 30-caliber rifle."

Backing up General Marshall's statement with its latest count of basic weapons, the War Department said it owned 3,000 75-millimeter guns and 75,000 machine guns (exclusive of aircraft guns), which also were sufficient for 3,000,000 men.

Other Weapons

Its June 27 inventory of other weapons showed:

Three-inch anti-aircraft guns—448 on hand, 52 additional on order.

Ninety-millimeter anti-aircraft guns (a new design—funds provided for 203, with 1,409 more to be bought.

Fifty-caliber anti-aircraft machine guns—1,014 on hand, 1,362 more to be ordered.

War Dept. Reveals Weapons On Hand

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 23—An official inventory showed today, officers said, that the army has an ample supply, not only of rifles, but of all basic weapons for a force of 3,000,000 men—more than twice the number that would be under arms in the first year of a compulsory military training program.

Garand semi-automatic rifles—42,000 in the hands of troops, 128,000 more being made at 400 a day, 70,000 additional to be bought.

Reserve of Springfield and Enfield rifles (to which Marshall referred)—2,000,000.

464 Tanks, Combat Cars

Tanks and combat cars—464 on hand, 1,000 more to be bought.

Scout cars—485 on hand, 861 more soon to be ordered.

75-millimeter guns—3,000 on hand, with 141 completely modernized, 459 more in process of modernization and perhaps 839 additional to be modernized.

75-millimeter howitzers—60 on hand, 120 in production.

105-millimeter howitzers—120 in production or soon to be ordered.

155-millimeter guns—96 in production or to be ordered.

8-inch howitzers—48 in production or to be ordered.

Gas masks—407,696 on hand, 116,065 in production, 345,956 to be ordered.

Plane Production Limited to Few Types Urged by Knudsen

Bomber With Range of 7,000 Miles Nearing Completion

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—Army and Navy fighting planes, declares William S. Knudsen, member of the National Defense Commission in charge of production, must be narrowed to a few types to speed up production.

"Too many factories are wasting their time on a lot of different types of planes," he said.

"Over in Germany they just tell the Dornier people to keep turning out Dornier 17s as fast as they can. That's why they can build 2,000 airplanes a month."

Mr. Knudsen and Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, inspected the world's fastest fighting plane and another ship, the world's largest fighting plane, before leaving today for San Diego to look over a giant bomber being built there for the Army.

7,000-Mile Flying Range.

The 140,000-pound Douglas B-19 bomber, which will have a maximum flying range of 7,000 miles, is nearing completion at Santa Monica and will be ready for flying tests this fall.

Five hundred men are working in three shifts on the craft, which will carry cannon bigger than those of any bomber in use. It has a wingspread of 212 feet and is 112 feet long. It will be powered by four air-cooled (Wright Duplex) engines generating 8,000 horsepower.

Gen. Arnold and Mr. Knudsen also inspected a sleek Lockheed P-38 twin-engined interceptor pursuit ship designed for a speed of 460 miles an hour, but declared capable of 500.

It has a range of 1,100 miles, can climb 4,000 feet a minute, carries four machine guns and a rapid fire cannon firing a 1-pound shell. An official said the Army hopes for delivery of 100 of these fighters a month. Orders for the bomber will depend on test flight results.

5,500 Planes by April.

"The Army will have its 5,500-plane program finished by April—weeks ahead of schedule," said Gen. Arnold.

"That means 5,500 airplanes with pilots, ground crews and equipment to match. We'll be well on our way toward the 15,000-plane total.

"They'll be planes equal to any in the world. All you have to do is to see what our planes are doing over in Europe to know that."

Mr. Knudsen said: "When we get back to Washington we'll coordinate the demands of the Army and Navy to avoid confusion and speed up production."

NEW PLAN TO SPUR ARMS FACTORIES

Defense Commission Offers Financing Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The Defense Commission announced today a plan whereby the Government would offer manufacturers contracts good for underwriting bank loans to finance factory construction in defense enterprises. The commission urged Congress to enact quickly legislation it said was needed to make the plan effective.

John D. Biggers, Deputy Production Commissioner, said the plan would "enable the use of the vast idle capital resources of the nation and at the same time conserve the credit and resources of the Government."

Mr. Biggers added that the plan could not work without congressional approval of the $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill, and a measure which would suspend the Vinson-Trammel profit limitation law and also permit more rapid amortization of new factory costs for tax purposes.

The plan provides for the Government buying airplanes and other defense materials at their intrinsic value and paying the manufacturers separately for the cost of building new factories necessary for producing the items.

Then the Government would promise to pay the cost of erecting the factory in five annual installments and the manufacturer could use this written promise of the Government as security for a bank loan.

Huge Navy Drydock Arrives At Honolulu

Reaches Destination From New Orleans After Voyage Of Five Months

Honolulu, Aug. 23 (AP)—A huge drydock which will accommodate cruisers and submarines arrived today from New Orleans after a five-month voyage.

The dock carried a large cargo, including a thousand tons of bricks for the Mokapu naval air base project.

The drydock was built in New Orleans and left there last March 19. It was taken through the Panama Canal in sections and put together again on the Pacific side. A tanker and two tugs towed it from the mainland and an average of a hundred miles was covered daily.

Canadians To Build New Nitrate Plant

$8,000,000 Unit To Provide Essential Materials For Manufacture Of Explosives

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 23 (AP)—Construction in Alberta of an $8,000,000 ammonium nitrate plant for the Dominion Government has been started by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Corporation, it was reported here today.

Consolidated Smelters is erecting the plant and will operate it for the Dominion Government as an integral part of the Government's explosives program, it is understood.

This plant will be one of a group of new Government-owned chemical plants providing essential materials to the Government's two big new explosives plants in central Canada.

Denies Great Shortage Of Aluminum In Britain

General Manager Of English Company Leaves On Yankee Clipper For Home

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Henry James, general manager of the Northern Aluminum Company, Ltd., of England, said today there was no great shortage of aluminum or other materials necessary for the manufacture of airplanes in Great Britain.

One of ten passengers who left LaGuardia Field aboard the Yankee Clipper for Horta and Lisbon, James said news pictures showing British women and children donating aluminum kitchen utensils were "probably something just to stimulate the people."

Other passengers were Douglas V. Steere, philosophy professor at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.; William Reid, United States State Department messenger, and John G. Tausig, Washington lawyer.

Lithuanian Legations Refuse Soviet Demand

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Lithuanian Legation said today it had heard from Rome that officials of the Soviet Embassy there yesterday had "demanded that the Lithuanian legations at the Quirinal and the Vatican be handed over to them," under threat of force. The Lithuanian Ministers were said to have "flatly refused" the demand.

Hitler Still Capable of Smash, Belief

Must Depend on Air Power to Defeat Great Britain

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Expert)

The Nazi raid over England during the hours of darkness wasn't a big wind but just a breeze in the midst of the doldrums through which the blitzkrieg has been wallowing the past few days.

This unusual calm is attracting a lot of attention. Four out of five of the many people I meet daily are demanding what is delaying Hitler's death-blow at Britain, and want to know:

"Is this the lull before the storm—or what?"

Well, it's a real compliment to have folk ask questions like that with so much trust and anticipation. Likely the smart thing for a professional observer to do is to give a quick answer and not admit that he doesn't know. Be that as may, I'm going to plead guilty to ignorance of the exact reason why the Fuehrer still paces the sands of the English channel, as did Napoleon.

True, I have some ideas on the subject which may come near the mark, and I am prepared to share them. Of one thing I feel very sure:

The worst mistake that Britain could make—would be to assume that Herr Hitler is finished.

Hitler Still Holds Power.

He is carrying in his clenched hand a far greater bolt of lightning than he has yet flung at the England he hates. If and when he will let it loose, perhaps he himself doesn't know. It is even possible that he won't find it feasible to use it at all in the manner originally intended.

The important thing, however, is that the bolt is there in the form of as yet untouched aerial power which is his to use as he wills.

Apparently there was some danger that Britons, with their growing confidence, might discount this fact. While admitting the numerical superiority of the Nazi air armada, the English just now claim that they finally have surpassed the German airplane production. Yesterday when some were declaring that the Royal Air force had shot the "blitz" out of the blitzkrieg Air Secy. Sinclair jumped in with a warning.

It would be a mistake, he told them, "to think that the danger of invasion, or of massed attacks from the air, is past." He added that the Germans have used 'only a small fraction of their heavy bomber force."

So far as we know that vast air power is the weapon upon which Hitler must depend for victory, unless he does the hat-trick and pulls out something that is new to military science. The increasingly strong defense which the British have been making means that he must strike with all the force he has, and with exceeding care and skill.

Quick Victory or Defeat.

This presages quick victory or defeat. With that in mind it doesn't take much imagination to see that the Nazi high command is faced with a tremendous amount of organization before they can attack. Only Tuesday, British Premier Churchill told the House of Commons that "hostile air fields are still being developed in France and the Low Countries and the movement of squadrons and material for attacking us is still proceeding."

There we have one probable reason for delay in the assault. Another undoubtedly has been bad flying weather the past few days, which Berlin claims and England admits. Still, the weather is only a temporary barrier and doesn't explain much, for the blitzkrieg was dragging while flying was good.

Again, as I have pointed out before, the Nazis must have control of the air for any invasion. And while they have superiority at present, they do not have control, as witness the vigorous British offensive operations.

Nazis Must Control Channel.

By the same token the Germans must control the waters of the channel, and yesterday's operations provide interesting light on this subject. The Nazis make much of the fact that they have got into action long-range guns which provide "a weapon to control the English channel." They shelled the English coast, and—they shelled a British convoy steaming through the contested waters.

What, I ask you, was a British convoy doing in the channel if the Germans are maintaining the effective blockade they have claimed? The answer obviously is that the blockade isn't effective.

At the same time, the French government at Vichy lodged a bitter complaint at England because of the British blockade. France charges that the British are depriving the continent of necessary food. That would seem to me to be another way of saying that it is the British who still control the seas.

Hawaii Lacks Planes, But Trains Airmen

[By the Associated Press]

Honolulu, Aug. 23—If we had the planes, we'd have an air force, if we had the men to man them.

To help build up that air force, Hawaii is today stretching itself to train airmen, hoping that in time the planes will be forthcoming.

Airplane hangars, old locker rooms, tents and machine shops are being converted into classrooms to train the pilots of tomorrow.

At Hickam Field—the United States Army's largest airport—prospective airmen are having their rough spots knocked off, their hands quickened and new ideas poured into their heads.

Men Are Important

For United States defense it may be important to have 50,000 airplanes, but more important just now is to have trained men to fly them. This presents a big job.

For every one of the 50,000 planes there must be two trained men to fly it. That's 100,000 pilots. For every plane, five ground men, that's 250,000. For every pilot, a copilot, and for bombing planes, a crew of seven . . . adding, roughly, another 250,000. Total, 600,000 men a year. These 600,000 men to fly the 50,000 planes for which President Roosevelt asked Congress.

Brig. Gen. Walter H. Frank, commander of Hawaii's Eighteenth Wing—which includes Hickam and Wheeler fields—is stretching the talents of his personnel to meet the nation's demands on Hawaii. Officers are doubling and tripling their work.

Lieut. Allen's Case

Take the case of Lieut. Brooke Allen, out of Kelly Field, Texas, 1936. Yesterday he was aide to the general, no small job. Today he is aide, press relations man, head of the Intelligence Department and besides, when time hangs heavy, directs the taking of pictures and the writing of stories.

To push the training program Hawaii is taking about 5,000 mainland youths and making them into mechanics, cameramen, pilots, propeller experts, bombing experts and whatever the air force calls for.

GERMANS CLAIM SINKING OF BIG BRITISH SHIP

AUG 24 1940

15,000-Ton Merchant Vessel Reported Bombed Off Scotland

Nazi Planes Raid Plane Factory Near London, Berlin Asserts

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 23—Germany, concentrating on her "total" blockade of Britain, reported today the sinking of a 15,000-ton British merchant ship and damage to others in moonlight raids on the Scottish coast.

Despite bad flying weather, the official news agency, DNB, said the Nazi flyers drove home these attacks and others on essential war industries in central England and airplane factories and airports in southern England.

Direct Hits Reported

Four air bombs were reported to have hit squarely on the decks of the British ship in an attack on a convoy as it entered Moray Firth, Scotland, with the ship settling quickly to the bottom.

In one raid on a plane parts factory at Luton, northwest of London, the plant was reported destroyed by bombers guided to their target by fires set off by a lone raider preceding them.

Bolstering Germany's newly proclaimed blockade, the high command reported the mining of British harbors continued. Recounting yesterday's air fighting, today's communique said eleven British planes and two barrage balloons were downed against the loss of two Nazi craft.

British Raid Holland

British planes raided the Netherlands during Thursday night and first reports from Amsterdam indicated sixteen persons were killed. Ten of the dead were counted at Rotterdam and six civilians were killed, twenty wounded and eighty dwellings wrecked in an east Netherlands town, German authorities reported.

The Economics Ministry announced, meanwhile, that new and more liberal ration cards for clothing would be issued September 1, two months earlier than had been planned, because of the favorable textile situation."

The new cards will have a value of 150 "points" instead of 100 as before, but the point rating for each article of clothing will change, some lower and others raised.

Area Around Calais Shelled by British, Germans Declare

15,000-Ton Vessel Sunk By Four Bombs, Nazi News Agency Reports

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—DNB, official German news agency, reported today that British long-range guns shelled the region around the Nazi-held French port of Calais yesterday. The agency claimed no damage was done.

(Authoritative British circles said a few rounds had been fired in answer to the German shelling of the Dover coast area, but would not disclose whether they were from land or naval batteries.)

DNB also said a German Junkers plane had sunk a 15,000-ton merchant ship by dropping four bombs on its deck as it was entering Moray Firth, Scotland.

DNB said that the ship was in a convoy and that the raid was carried out in moonlight. The agency said another raid started fires in a plane parts factory at Luton, northwest of London. So bright were the flames, Germans said, that they gave the location to other bombers, which destroyed the plant.

British Planes Claimed.

Germans reported their air raiders yesterday shot down 11 British warplanes, against the loss of three of their own, despite bad weather hampering air activity.

Air patrols over the Channel, these sources added, dispersed a British convoy near Dover and badly damaged two merchantmen with bomb hits. Effective bombings of several British airports also were reported.

DNB said the German "bag" included seven Spitfire fighter planes shot down over the South England coast by Nazi pursuit patrols in the course of the evening.

The high command mentioned specifically air attack on the Manston Airport and night forays on other bases in Cornwall and Wales as well as an airplane factory and a motor plant in Rochester. It said fires and explosions followed the bombardment.

AUG 24 1940

Channel Control Claimed.

Germany claimed "a weapon to control the English Channel" today in batteries of long-range guns set up along the conquered French Coast. Nazi military sources have said they have guns which can shell London, 90 miles from the French Coast.

Authoritative sources made no mention of an artillery attack on a British convoy yesterday, as was reported in London, but insisted the big guns merely were shooting at "targets." Nor was there any immediate mention of last night's shelling of Dover, as reported from England.

"Range-finding and practice shelling," said the well-informed commentary Dienst aus Deutschland, was proof that emplacement of the coastal batteries was complete and that their "force shortly can make itself felt."

Bristol Channel Mined.

At the same time, military informants pointed to the "threatening proportions" of another part of the counter-blockade of Britain, mines laid by Nazi planes in Bristol Channel, one of the chief water gateways to England from the west.

They described mining of the channel and "extensive destruction" to Bristol Channel harbors as "a perilous blow to Britain's supplies of raw materials and foodstuffs."

On the defensive side, Berlin authorities issued new rules for conduct in air raids. In the future residents of the capital will be required to go to air raid shelters only if the sound of enemy engines is heard or if searchlights and anti-aircraft guns go into action.

Russian Pact Hailed.

On the diplomatic side, Germany contemplated the 12 months which have passed since the signing of her non-aggression and trade agreements with Russia and found many reasons to express satisfaction.

On the eve of the anniversary of the treaty signing the Nazi press asserted both countries had benefitted, with avoidance of a war on two fronts the greatest gain to Germany.

The chief gain to Russia was seen to be annexation of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia and territorial enlargement at the expense of Poland and Rumania.

The Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz observed that Russia got an "opportunity to eliminate a number of unsatisfactory and disturbing situations on her western border."

Both nations, it was stated, are profiting more and more from trade growing out of the complementary economies of the two states.

Germany Declared Paying for War As She Goes

No Increase in Taxation Or Big Public Loans, Reinhardt Asserts

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—Fritz Reinhardt, state secretary of the Finance Ministry, reported today Germany is paying for the war as she goes, without any extraordinary increase in taxes or great public loans.

Reinhardt, in predicting income taxes in 1940 would bring the government 25,000,000,000 marks (nominally $10,000,000,000), observed the tax income when Adolf Hitler assumed power in 1933 was 6,800,000,000 marks and increased to 23,600,000,000 marks in 1939.

This increase, he said, was made possible by a tremendous enlargement of the German people's productive capacities under Hitler and a corresponding increase in incomes and elevation of living standards.

"It reflects a fundamental change in the way of life," said Reinhardt.

To illustrate what he termed the comparatively slight tax increase caused by the war, Reinhardt gave comparative figures for collections from six tax sources for the April-July period last year and his estimates for the same four months in 1940.

These figures in millions of marks, he said, were:

	Collected in 1939.	Estimated for 1940.
Wage tax	876.8	934.5
Income tax	1,430	1,503.2
Sugar tax	132.2	153.1
Beer tax	196.4	204.9
Tobacco tax	355.3	471.3
Property tax	106.2	126.5

"Financing of the war rests on the income of the German people, a portion of which is available to the state," Reinhardt said.

"It is certain this income will increase, which in turn will force a further enlargement of the productive power of the nation and a consequent greater increase in the financial strength of the Reich."

DUTCH SAY R. A. F. BOMBS KILLED 16

10 Victims Are Reported in Rotterdam.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—Sixteen persons were reported killed by British bombers in the Netherlands early today.

Ten were said to have been killed in Rotterdam, while six civilians were reported killed, twenty wounded and eighty dwellings wrecked at a town in the East Netherlands.

Anti-aircraft guns were declared to have driven the raiders from Amsterdam.

Unexploded bombs were said to have injured thirteen in another town.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—It was said here today that the explosion of a British air bomb at Ghent, Belgium, on Wednesday had damaged three houses and injured twenty-three persons.

England Photographed In Detail, Nazis Claim

All Military Objectives And Shipping Activity Included In Plane "Mapping"

Berlin, Aug. 23 (AP) — Observation planes flying from new bases on the French coast have photographed every portion of England, including every military objective, authorized German sources asserted today.

Photographing of southern and central England, where the most carefully guarded military points are situated, has been particularly thorough, it was said.

These long-range observation planes also have been used to scout shipping, these sources said, explaining how ships far out in the Atlantic have been bombed.

BRITISH EFFORT AT BLOCKADE IS LAUGHED OFF

Official Press Declares Raw Materials Flow Into Germany

Treaty Called "Turning Point In History Of All Europe"

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Aug. 23—One year old, the Soviet-German partnership was declared today by the official organ of the Russian Government to stand with "unshakable firmness" in the face of efforts to break it which continue "up to this day."

An editorial in the newspaper Izvestia, on the anniversary of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact, likewise related how the corollary trade agreement between the two countries has, in the last year, given Germany "the raw materials she especially needs . . . because of the blockade organized by Britain, at first against Germany alone and now, already, against the whole of Europe."

Britain Still Woos Russia

This uncompromising statement appeared at a time when Great Britain, through the offices of a new Laborite ambassador, Sir Stafford Cripps, still is trying to bring Russia to the British side. Only Thursday, Sir Stafford had a long audience with the Soviet Foreign Trade Commissar. Moreover, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in his House of Commons speech last Tuesday, indicated his belief that Hitler was wary of the Soviet air force.

Frankly, Izvestia called the non-aggression treaty "a veritable turning point in the history of all Europe."

It reiterated the Stalin thesis that the British and French "above all" tried to provoke war between Germany and the Soviet Union, and thus "pull chestnuts out of the fire with other people's hands."

Treaty Foiled Plan

The treaty foiled all this, said Izvestia, and thus it "was and remains the most important factor for peace."

"The past year," said the newspaper, "has fully provoked the immense historic significance of the treaty. The treaty not only has fully stood all trials of the present stormy period, but has proved its unshakable firmness despite the fact that enemies of the Soviet Union up to this day tirelessly pursue provocational attempts to sow discord and mutual distrust between the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

This "truth," it added, has to be reiterated "for those gentleman who—with astonishing obstinacy, cannot or do not desire to understand it and use their failure or unwillingness to understand it as a basis for various plans which are, therefore, doomed to failure."

Pravda, the Communist party organ, said the pact gave Germany "calm certainty in the East."

RUSSIANS BOAST OF HELPING NAZIS

Tell of Part in Attempt to Smash Blockade.

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia declared today that Russia is helping Germany beat the British blockade by supplying her with raw materials, and in return is receiving German industrial products, including armaments.

Reviewing relations between the two Powers since the signing of their non-aggression pact one year ago tomorrow, Izvestia hailed the treaty as still 'the most important factor for peace," and asserted that under the trade accord, signed three days earlier, commerce between the two nations was the greatest since the world war.

Discussing the Russo-German trade treaty Izvestia declared:

"As a result of this agreement Germany receives raw materials she especially needs throughout this period because of the blockade organized by Great Britain, at first against Germany alone and now against the whole of Europe."

It said the signing of the treaty put an end to "enmity artificially fanned by war provocateurs" and was "a veritable turning point not only in the history of Soviet-German relations but also in the history of all Europe, and not of Europe alone."

"In signing the treaty," it said, "both parties realized that ideological differences and a difference in state systems must not constitute an insurmountable obstacle to establishment of good-neighborly, friendly relations."

"During many months previous to the conclusion of the Soviet-German treaty," it asserted, "Britain and France made constant attempts to harness the Soviet Union to their chariot and use the Soviet Union for their imperialist schemes. Above all they strove to provoke armed conflict between the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

The non-aggression pact was put in official form under date of Aug. 23 last year in Moscow, and signed the next day by Premier-Foreign Commissar Viacheslav Molotov and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. It is a ten-year treaty under which each country undertakes to refrain from any act of force against the other, and not to support war-like acts against the other.

"In order to realize fully the scope of this agreement, it is sufficient to recall that already during the first year of its operation it provides for development of trade between the U. S. S. R. and Germany which must surpass the volume of Soviet-German trade in any year since the World War.

"As a result of this agreement Germany receives raw materials she especially needs throughout this period because of the blockade organized by Britain, at first against Germany alone and now against the whole of Europe.

"On her part, Germany supplies to the Soviet Union industrial products, including armaments, which are sufficiently important in the present tense international situation."

The newspaper said the non-aggression pact "has proved its unshakeable firmness despite the fact that enemies of the Soviet Union up to this day tirelessly pursue provocational attempts to sow discord and mutual distrust."

SESSION TODAY HELD LIKELY TO END QUICKLY

Rumanian And Hungarian Conferees Reported Unable To Agree

Budapest Doubts Axis Will Step In, Merely Seeking To Prevent Clash

30,24-4505

30.24-4505

[By the Associated Press]

Turnu Severin, Rumania, Aug. 23—Observers tonight predicted likely collapse of the Rumanian-Hungarian conference through failure of delegates to agree in principle on the Transylvania question.

Discussion of Hungary's territorial claim, embracing Transylvania, is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow, but there were predictions that an "agreement to disagree" would be reached quickly unless a compromise could be devised on the general approach to the problem.

Rejection Still Predicted

It was reported today in Budapest that Hungary would continue her rejection of the Rumanian proposal for complete transfer of populations, but was willing to use the plan as a basis for discussion.

A Hungarian source expressed doubt whether, in the event of failure here, Germany and Italy would attempt any immediate arbitration of the problem, which he called potential dynamite.

He predicted that the Axis partners would merely seek to prevent an armed clash between bitterly opposed Rumania and Hungary.

A Hungarian spokesman, describing developments thus far, said that before the conference began the Rumanians agreed to the principle of the Magyar demand for part of Transylvania, a territory which Rumania obtained in the World War settlements.

Two-Thirds Sought

At the conference, he said, Hungary asked for about two-thirds of the 35,000 square miles of Transylvania, and Rumania replied with a diplomatic document proposing the transfer of populations and omitting any mention of possible land cession.

At this point, he said, the Hungarian delegation ordered their Danubian boat to get up steam and asked for clearance papers and a pilot.

But in a last-minute attempt to prevent the conference breaking up, both sides agreed to consult their governments and report back.

Present reports say neither side has changed its position and that unless an agreement in principle can be found, tomorrow's meeting will be mere formality, with the conference doomed to failure.

TRANSYLVANIA COMPROMISE?

Turnu Severin, Rumania, Aug. 23 (AP)—Possibility that the Transylvanian problem might be solved by compromise involving the partial transfer of populations was seen here today as the Hungarian-Rumanian delegation chiefs returned to renew discussions.

Hungarian circles in Budapest reported that Hungary would continue to reject the Rumanian plan for complete transfer of populations, but was willing to use the new plan as the basis for discussions to prevent collapse of the conference.

All Army Leaves Are Canceled —Breakdown of Parleys With Hungary Seen

By The Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 23—All Rumanian reserve officers and non-commissioned officers were unexpectedly called up tonight and all army leaves were canceled indefinitely.

This was interpreted as a bad augury for the Turnu Severin conference scheduled to reconvene tomorrow for discussion of the Hungarian demands upon Rumania for the return of the Transylvania area.

Invasion of Greece Threatened in Rome If British Take Isles

Fierce Aerial and Naval War Rages From Indian Ocean to Mediterranean

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 23.—A clear warning that Italy will invade Greece if the British occupy strategic Greek islands was sounded by a high Fascist source today.

"Italy is not going to let the British occupy any Greek islands. If the British move into Greece we will do the same," this source declared in response to rumors that Britain is considering occupation of the Islands of Crete and Corfu.

(British Foreign Office quarters said Britain intends to stand by her guarantee of Greek independence, given April 13, 1939, if Greece resists any invasion, and that a report of a conversation yesterday between the British Minister and Greek Premier John Metaxas was being awaited.)

Air, Naval War Rages.

The comment of the high Fascist source was made as a fierce give-and-take air and naval war raged from the Eastern Mediterranean to the shores of the Indian Ocean.

An intense bombardment of a British convoy escorted by two destroyers was carried out by Italian planes in the Eastern Mediterranean, an Italian communique said, and Alexandria, Britain's naval base in Egypt, was attacked.

(The British reported a low-flying attack on Italian warships anchored in Bomba roadstead off the Libyan coast destroyed two submarines, a destroyer and a submarine depot ship, and that bombs falling among airplanes, trucks and other vehicles gathered near Derna, nearby caused great damage.)

Relations between Greece and Italy, grown taut since the Italian press and radio accused Greeks of the decapitation of an Albanian "patriot," Daut Hoggia, on Italian-conquered Albanian soil, were drawn tighter today by rumors concerning British intentions.

Border Closing Charged.

The Albanian newspaper, Tomori, reported that Greece had "virtually closed" the mountainous frontier with Albania, preventing Albanians from crossing into Greece to work their land, and charged the Greeks with new grievances.

While diplomatic circles expressed a belief that any Italian action against Greece would be held in abeyance for some time, Tomori continued to report other grievances. It charged that a former Albanian official, Shevaket Osman Taka, was "assassinated" last May, although Greek authorities had reported that Taka committed suicide.

Corfu, which Britain was rumored to be about to occupy, is a Greek island at the entrance to the Adriatic Sea which Italy bombarded and occupied for a month in 1927, withdrawing only when an indemnity was paid for the assassination of an Italian official engaged in delimiting the Greek-Albanian border.

It is opposite the Ciamuria district of Greek Epirus which the Italian press has asserted should be included under the Italian crown with Albania.

Crete of Key Value.

Crete, 70 miles off the Greek mainland and less than 200 miles from the Libyan coast, would be of key value to Britain in maintaining her line of communications through the Eastern Mediterranean with Turkey, and in defending Palestine, the Mosul oil field outlets, her bases at Cyprus and the Suez Canal. It also would be of value in a Near Eastern campaign by Italy against those objectives.

Italy's attitude toward Egypt was defined by responsible Fascists as "unchanged" after declarations by Cairo officials that Egypt had no quarrel with any country, but would fight if attacked.

Without saying whether Italy intended eventually to invade Egypt, as some foreign observers believe, one authority said Italy was "fighting the British, not the Egyptians," and explained that Italian planes bombed Alexandria only because it is a British base.

Little Effect of Bombings.

The high command communique said the British had bombed Italian positions in Libya, Italian Somaliland and Eritrea with little effect.

Details of the sinking of a British submarine by an Italian torpedo boat, reported yesterday, were given as Italian newspapers declared air bombings were making the Mediterranean increasingly dangerous for the British fleet, which, they said, was unable to escape the Italian attacks.

Stefani, official Italian news agency, said the two British cruisers bombed in an air attack on a squadron in the Eastern Mediterranean two days ago appeared to be damaged badly, with their superstructures destroyed and fires visible on board.

ITALY SOUNDS WARNING ON GREEK INVASION

Fascists To Move If Britain Occupies Corfu Or Crete

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 23 (Via Radio)—Athens dispatches quoted tonight by the German wireless said fire had destroyed one of Greece's largest armament plants and that it was believed many had perished in the flames and explosions.

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 23—An Italian invasion of Greece will follow any effort by the British to occupy the strategic Greek islands, a high Fascist source declared in plain words today.

"Italy is not going to let the British occupy any Greek islands," he said, discussing rumors that Britain was thinking of moving into the islands of Crete and Corfu.

"If the British move into Greece we will do the same."

Claims On Albania Mapped

Italian claims on Greece on behalf of Albania, foreign sources predicted, will be announced at an early session of the Albanian Legislative Council, attended by Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister.

These sources expressed the belief that Italy, in this way, would try to get territory from Greece without an invasion. (Italians have declared Greece should indemnify Albania for the recent beheading, allegedly by Greeks, of a so-called Albanian patriot.)

Italians Claim Successes

In the war already at hand, the Italian high command reported that an English submarine had been sunk by a torpedo boat; that the British Egyptian base in Alexandria had been successfully bombed, and that Italian planes yesterday had made an "intense bombardment" of a British Mediterranean convoy protected by two destroyers.

Italy's furious press campaign against Greece first was touched off by the murder of the Albanian patriot, Daut Hoggia.

Britain To Stand Firm On Greek Military Pact

London, Aug. 23 (AP)—The British Government will stand by its guarantee to support Greece against any threat to the nation's independence, Foreign Office circles said today.

The Foreign Office said it was awaiting a report of a conversation between the British Minister and Prime Minister General John Metaxas yesterday.

The British guarantee was made April 13, 1939, when Neville Chamberlain was Prime Minister. It said:

"In the event of any action being taken which clearly threatens the independence of Greece and which the Greek Government consider it vital to resist with their national forces, his Majesty's Government would feel bound to lend to the Greek Government all the strength in its power."

ATHENS, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—Four more categories of specialists in Greece's armed forces were called to the colors today. The number and nature of the specialists involved was not disclosed.

Air raid wardens patroled the Greek coast last night, watchful, waiting, as the Government officially termed Italian charges of terrorism along the Albanian frontier a fantastic invention.

Indications that continued Italian pressure is causing Greece to prepare swiftly for any turn of events were seen in lengthy conferences in the last twenty-four hours between Premier Gen. John Metaxas and his army general staff.

Greek newspapers today, for the first time, carried full statements of recent Italian press attacks against Greece — coupled with sweeping Greek denials.

R. A. F. Bombs Italian Fleet

Reports 2 Submarines and Destroyer Sunk —Rome Planes Attack Convoy.

CAIRO, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force announced today that British bombers destroyed two Italian submarines, one destroyer and one submarine depot ship yesterday in a low-flying attack on warships anchored in the Bomba Roadstead, Libya.

The communique added that all British airplanes returned safely. Bomba is about 100 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Bombs falling among airplanes, trucks and other vehicles gathered close to Derna, which is near Bomba, caused great damage, the R. A. F. spokesman reported.

At the same time it was revealed that Italian troops had reoccupied Fort Capuzzo near Bardia in Libya following the British Navy's recent shelling of the stone fort, British military headquarters announced here tonight.

Made Direct Hits

The text of the communique:

"Our aircraft made a low-flying attack on enemy warships anchored in Bomba Roadstead, obtaining direct hits which destroyed two submarines, one destroyer and a submarine depot ship.

"All our aircraft returned safely.

"The attacking aircraft were fired on by heavy anti-aircraft guns, pom-poms and multiple machine guns.

"Our bombers also attacked the landing ground at Derna as well as motor-transport concentrations, a repair depot and shipping.

"Many bombs exploded among aircraft and motor-transport vehicles, causing considerable damage.

"We suffered no casualties.

"In Italian Comaliland, Mogadiscio airdrome was subjected to a series of raids by bombers of the South African Air Force. Direct hits were scored on transports concentrated in the vicinity of administrative buildings, which subsequently were seen burning.

"Direct hits were also scored on buildings, hangars, wireless transmitting station and barracks.

"Three enemy aircraft were believed to have been badly damaged. All our aircraft returned safely."

"Numerous reconnaissances were carried out over the Kenya-Italian Somaliland frontier. In the course of a raid on Assab, Eritrea, naval barracks were bombed."

Italian Planes Bomb Alexandria District

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Aug. 23 (AP).—Italian war planes early this morning bombed the Alexandria area.

An air-raid warning lasted two and a half hours except for two brief all-clear signals.

Anti-Jewish Rioters Break Windows On Champs Elysees

14 Arrested After First Demonstration Of Kind In Paris—Press Deplores Violence

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Aug. 21 (Delayed, via Berlin), Windows were broken and fourteen persons were arrested in the Champs Elysees yesterday when a score of members of an anti-Semitic organization marched along the wide avenue, shouting, "Down with the Jews."

At the same time, a group of seventy from the same organization tried to thrust their way into offices of a youth organization on the Rue de Valois to learn the names of its directors. Police arrested the whole group, but later released all.

First Disorder Of Kind

These were the first anti-Jewish demonstrations in Paris, although the newspapers have unanimously attacked the Jews since the German occupation.

The newspaper Matin called the disturbances "completely regrettable," and said that while it was wholeheartedly in favor of fighting Jewish influence "we do not think breaking windows is a good way to purification. There are enough ruins in France without adding others.

"The police must put an end to these deplorable agitations which have nothing to do with the cleaning-up measures which are necessary and which have the air of being the work of agents provocateurs."

Les Dernieres Nouvelles de Paris also suggested that the incidents were the work of subversive agents.

"We fight the Jewish ideology because we believe it is dangerous to French economy," the paper added. "We will not become associated with acts of violence menacing goods and persons."

The most violent anti-Jewish newspaper, La France au Travail, did not mention the disturbances.

Paris was told today that German General Schaumburg had been named commander of the city. The German authorities published reminders that French prisoners may receive no visitors.

Paris authorities announced that no rice, dried vegetables or tinned foods would be sold while fresh vegetables were obtainable. Ration cards for them probably will be issued later.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (AP)—The German wireless reported from Vichy, France, today that "French political quarters" expected that a "special law" would be enacted soon to regulate "the status of the Jews."

The wireless added:

"It is quite obvious that anti-Semitic feeling since France's collapse had been steadily growing. From many towns in unoccupied France there have come lately reports of anti-Jewish disturbances. The French Government-controlled radio stations launched a campaign against certain professions, particularly those of doctors and medicine, being swamped by Jews."

"QUARTERS CLOSE TO THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT BELIEVE THAT MARSHAL PETAIN HAS THE INTENTION OF ISSUING A SPECIAL 'JEW LAW.'...AN ARTICLE PUBLISHED BY THE NEW FRENCH NEWS AGENCY INTERFRANCE..ADVOCATES CREATION OF A SPECIAL STATUS FOR JEWS...IT IS FURTHER DEMANDED THAT THE DECREE... MAKING ANTI-JEWISH PROPAGANDA A PUNISHABLE OFFENSE SHOULD BE RESCINDED. "...THE FRENCH NEWS AGENCY ALSO TURNS DOWN THE POLICY OF THE FORMER POPULAR FRONT GOVERNMENT ALLOWING MANY THOUSANDS OF JEWISH EMIGRANTS TO ENTER FRANCE AND TO ACT THERE AS WAR MONGERS OF THE WORST TYPE..."

SAY FRANCE HAS FOOD

British Cite Vast Stores and Blame Nazis for Hunger.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—An authoritative British spokesman, commenting on the assertion of the French Foreign Minister, Paul Baudoin, that the British blockade is a hostile act, said today that there is no reason why France should be short of food this winter since she is virtually a self-supporting agricultural nation.

This spokesman added that there were vast stocks of food stored in France and, if there were any interference with their distribution to the French people, the responsibility was not that of Great Britain but "of the Power with which the French Government rushed to come to terms."

The statement of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who is recognized by Great Britain as the leader of "all free Frenchmen," that the French Government was violating the terms of the armistice by handing over to Germany 800 French planes, brought only the noncommittal comment: "It may possibly be true, though we have no means of confirming it at the moment."

Gen. de Gaulle said that the planes were being brought from French colonial Africa.

The Taylors' departure today was for Lisbon, whence the party will sail Aug. 29 for New York.

London 'Times' Urges Changes in the Cabinet

Speaks of 'Misfits,' Naming Wood and Cooper

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—"The Times" of London, usually close to the government, added its voice today to the move for changes in Great Britain's Cabinet. The newspaper spoke of "a number of misfits" in the present regime.

Reviewing the Parliamentary session which closed yesterday, "The Times," in an editorial entitled "The New Order," singled out Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, Food Minister Lord Woolton and Aircraft Production Minister Lord Beaverbrook for praise, and had blame for Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood and Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper.

The newspaper said the change in the war leadership made on May 10, the day Germany invaded the Lowlands, when Churchill succeeded Neville Chamberlain, was "overdue" and that it had produced results "certainly fruitful."

"Nevertheless," "The Times" said, "an administration formed in the middle of a great battle must necessarily contain a number of misfits and a number of failures in organization, not serious enough to impair the immense improvement in our strength and spirit secured during the last three months, but enough to make it certain we are not yet in every respect giving of our best."

T. N. Tea

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—In the midst of the air-raid alarm in a London apartment building today the silence was pierced suddenly by a shrill whistle followed by a slight pop.

It was simply that water had come to a boil in the whistling teakettle.

London, Aug. 23—(AP)—Farmer Charles James of Barry, Wales, who argued that his cows gave thin milk because German bombs scared them, was acquitted today for selling milk deficient in butterfat.

When James was arrested last week he pleaded that he wasn't responsible for the milk. A commission was appointed to check up on his claims.

Wild Barrage Balloon Batters London Town

LONDON, Aug. 23 (A. P.).—A barrage balloon broke loose and went on a rampage over London today, knocking over chimney pots and setting off showers of sparks by trailing its cable over trolley wires.

Finally it tangled on St. Mark's Church tower. While firemen, policemen and a balloon crew were trying to free it, it suddenly gave a yank that pulled the church spire loose, snapped its cable and sailed away.

Indiscriminate machine-gun attacks were made in various places in the Midlands and one eastern district. A small number of casualties were caused by these attacks, but none was fatal. Bombs were dropped in three localities, but only slight damage resulted.

Three more enemy aircraft have been shot down, two by our fighters and one by anti-aircraft fire, making a total of four today.

It is now established that our fighters shot down another enemy aircraft during yesterday's air battles. This brings yesterday's total to ten.

An Air Ministry communique:

Gun emplacements on the French-Calais and Boulogne were heavily attacked by R. A. F. bombers last night after a convoy had been shelled in the channel. Our aircraft encountered intense anti-aircraft fire but maintained their attacks for several hours.

Targets in German bombed during the night include the synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, the aircraft factory at Frankfurt, the power station at Knappsack near Cologne, a high explosive factory at Greisheim, near Frankfurt, and docks at the Rhine port of Duisburg. Railway junctions at Mannheim and Coblenz were attacked and the goods slidings at Hamm and Soest were bombed as usual.

Attacks were also made on twenty-two airdromes in Germany and German-occupied territory.

The strong bomber force engaged in these operations returned safely except that one aircraft made a forced landing and the crew were killed.

An Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

During the night there was some activity over thic country by enemy aircraft operating singly on in small numbers. Bombs were dropped in a number of areas in south Wales and a town in east Scotland.

Some bombs were droped in districts on the outskirts of London. Damage was done to houses and a cinema and there was a small number of casualties.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 23 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

Our aircraft made a low-flying attack on enemy warships anchored in Bomba roadstead, obtaining direct hits which destroyed two submarines, one destroyer and a submarine depot ship. All our aircraft returned safely. The attacking aircraft were fired on by heavy anti-aircraft guns, pom-poms and multiple machine guns.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (AP).—The German high command communique:

Fighting plane units in the course of armed reconnaissance yesterday attacked convoys, one each in the regions off Berwick and in the Downs, scoring several hits on four merchant ships. Besides, the airport at Manston was effectively bombed.

In the course of the day several air fights developed over southeast England which were successful for our pursuit planes.

During night raids on several airports in Cornwall and Wales, an airplane factory in Reading and a motor factory in Rochester, fires and explosions gave evidence to the effectiveness of the bombs.

British planes last night dropped bombs without special effect on western Germany. In one town an apartment house was destroyed and several others were damaged. A number of civilians were injured.

The enemy lost eleven planes and two barrage balloons in air fights yesterday. Two German planes are missing.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

The English submarine mentioned in yesterday's bulletin was sunk by a torpedo boat. The submarine had fired three torpedoes against the torpedo boat without any result. With a quick turn the latter rushed at the submarine to ram it and then dropped numerous depth bombs. The submarine, damaged irreparably, rose to the surface, showing its keel, and sank soon afterward.

Alexandria again was bombed by one of our air formations.

Another air formation, identifying an enemy convoy escorted by two destroyers in the eastern Mediterranean, subjected it to intense bombardment.

In both actions all our planes returned.

An air raid was carried out with little success by the enemy at Bomba and Derna, in North Africa, where one person was killed and five were injured.

Other raids took place in East Africa at Mogadiscio, where five Askaris (Eritrean troops) and five natives were injured and two hangars in which four buses were stored were hit, as well as at Massawa and the Island of Harmil, near Massawa, where there were neither losses nor damage.

LONDON REPELS TWO AIR ATTACKS

BIG FIRE IS REPORTED AT PORTSMOUTH BASE

AUG 25 1940

Ramsgate Battered at Mouth of Thames and Airdrome Near By Is Hard Hit—British Fighters Battle Massed Raiders.

LONDON, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—Hundreds of German bombers and fighter planes swarmed over southern England today in mass attacks and attempted two raids on the London area, but the British authorities said the invaders were turned back by British fighter planes.

Some bombs fell in one London suburb. They exploded in an open field and did no damage.

Ramsgate, gay little seaside town at the mouth of the Thames Estuary, was attacked by one group of twenty-one bombers. The British expressed the belief that these planes had been beaten off their real objective—London—and took it out on Ramsgate, which was badly battered.

Buildings of the Royal Air Force airdrome at Manston, near Ramsgate, suffered considerable damage, the Air and Home Security ministries announced, adding that thirty-two German planes had been shot down during the first mass raids since last Sunday. One British plane was acknowledged lost.

[Berlin claimed that fifty British planes had been shot down and that only thirteen German machines had been lost.]

At the height of both offensives the Germans began hammering at the Dover area, twenty-two miles across the channel from Calais, while big guns and British naval batteries set up ashore replied briskly.

Nazi Planes Act as Spotters.

A high-flying German plane acted as spotter for the evening shelling, just as another did during the morning bombardment. Several anti-aircraft guns drove off the spotter, but it returned doggedly. The morning "spotter" was shot down by a Spitfire and plunged into the sea near the English shore.

Early tonight more than a score of German bombers scattered projectiles over a residential and working class section of Portsmouth, site of a big naval base. Anti-aircraft fire, the authorities said, forced them to veer off military targets. A number of casualties were reported.

Sweeping over the city in two waves, they dropped bombs indiscriminately. One smashed a movie theater where a performance was in progress. A number of persons were reported trapped there.

A furniture factory, clothing factory and a number of shops were wrecked.

[Berlin reported that a fire started at harbor facilities had spread to the city proper.]

Reporting that two air attacks on London had been fended off, British officials said that the afternoon attack had come at 3:43 o'clock (10:43 A. M., New York time), after an alarm at 8:34 A. M. had sent Londoners on their way to work scurrying to cover.

While the capital's anti-aircraft guns raised a wall of explosive steel around the city, British fighters challenged the raiders before they penetrated the city's defenses, and were reported to have shot down one bomber and an escorting Messerschmitt.

A large formation of German planes approached the London area during the afternoon from the southeast and the explosions of bombs were heard distinctly in the heart of the city.

Observers on rooftops in the northeastern outskirts said that dogfights raged between raiders and British fighters.

Heavy Firing Fades Away.

The heavy firing faded after a few moments and the drone of the planes gradually died away. The all-clear was sounded about an hour after the alarm.

The British communique dealing with today's action follows:

"This morning Dover was attacked by gunfire from the French coast, resulting in slight damage to houses and a few casualties.

"Later the enemy directed attacks from the air on Dover and Ramsgate. Little damage was caused at Dover, but at Ramsgate some buildings were hit, including a gas works. Some persons were killed and injured.

"Attacks also were made on the RAF airdrome at Manston, near Ramsgate, where considerable damage was done to buildings.

"Reports so far received show that during these operations ten more enemy aircraft were shot down, one by anti-aircraft gunfire. This brings the total so far today to thirteen.

"One of our aircraft was lost, but the pilot is safe."

German Bases Attacked.

Later the Air Ministry issued this communique regarding British operations on the Continent:

"Daylight operations carried out by R. A. F. bombers yesterday included harassing attacks on airdromes and other objectives in northwest France, the Low Countries and Germany.

"At night an oil refinery at Sterkrade, in the Ruhr, and supply depots in the Rhineland were bombed. Some twenty airdromes and seaplane bases occupied by the enemy in Holland and France, and other targets at Boulogne, Dieppe and Brest also were attacked.

"Three of our bombers have not returned."

The Air Ministry News Service also announced that the R. A. F. again had raided Villacoublay, a military airfield on the outskirts of Paris, early today.

Shortly before the sirens screamed for London's second air alarm, large numbers of Dornier bombers and Messerschmitt fighters were reported coming over the southeast coast and were engaged by British fighters. Coastal patrols fought a running battle with the Nazi craft, some coming over in groups of fifty-five.

During this attack German planes were over two southeast coast towns and a third in the southwest.

This afternoon twenty-one bombers unloaded their cargoes on a southeast coast town in the town's fourth raid since early morning. A pall of smoke blotted out the white cliffs around it, places near by were shaken by the explosions and the earth trembled from the shocks.

Waves of Bombers Over Coast.

Salvo after salvo of anti-aircraft shells burst around the raiders, who came over at an estimated height of 20,000 feet, using the sun to hide themselves from observers on the ground.

Waves of raiders followed each other in rapid-fire order. Dog fights took place at such altitude that the planes could be seen only when they dived.

London, Aug. 24 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers made numerous daylight "harassing attacks" and night raids on airdromes and other military objectives in Nazi-occupied France, the German-conquered Low Countries and Germany, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

HEART OF LONDON BOMBED

SMOKING RUINS LEFT IN BRITAIN'S CAPITAL BY NAZI SKY RAIDERS

Hundreds Of Planes Swarm Over England, Blasting At Great City Thrice In One Day—Crowds Of Shoppers Watch Dogfights

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 24—The National Broadcasting Company said tonight that both the Italian and British radios had reported that Adolf Hitler has left for his "front-line headquarters" somewhere in France, "where large military operations are taking place."

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Aug. 25—German air warriors, in their first direct assault against the heavily protected city of London last night and early today, dropped great clusters of incendiary bombs, which lit up this heart of the British Empire with the orange glow of flames.

The furious and prolonged bombing scattered fires that enveloped whole buildings within a few minutes.

Dense Pall Of Smoke Over City

Even after the raiders had gone and most of the fires had been subdued a dense pall of smoke hung in the morning sky.

The Nazi bombers kept up their work in sporadic attacks on into the dawn, but the big raid of the night was upon the city itself.

That huge onslaught was the third time in twenty-four hours that Londoners had scurried for air-raid shelters by alarms in the metropolitan area. In all, the Greater London section has been raided six times since August 15.

There was no estimate of casualties or damage, but first reports said nothing of serious damage to military objectives.

Mass Attack On Naval Base

The intense attack upon London followed mass assaults against the Portsmouth naval base and southeast England in which the Air Ministry News Service estimated the Germans used 800 bombers and fighter planes.

One screaming attack by a dive bomber, who dropped a big incendiary bomb in the face of the full power of the city's defenses, touched off the biggest blaze of the night marked by several fires throughout the city.

As the din of battle sounded overhead the fire blazed fiercely. The flames got such a hold that within a half hour they illuminated the sky over a large part of the London area. The blaze finally was controlled.

Enemy Planes Heard Far After Midnight

After the all-clear signal was given some time after midnight, what was believed to be enemy planes were heard over London.

Later searchlights resumed their swing across the skies in search of enemy planes and distant explosions were heard.

In one section of the London area a screaming bomb was dropped. It started another fire, which brought fire pumps rushing to the scene.

Four bombs were dropped in another section, shattering windows, hurling down walls and flinging bomb splinters through the streets. The only serious casualty there was an air-raid warden struck by splinters.

Coast Town Heavily Bombed

Early this morning a northeast coast town was heavily bombed, with considerable property damage in three different districts and some dead and wounded.

The Germans spread out as far as Wales in the night raiding. Bombs were dropped near a village, but anti-aircraft fire drove off the enemy and there were no casualties.

Nazi dive bombers were participating in the London attack, dropping scream bombs as the battle wore on.

Men wearink tuxedos rushed about with the rescue workers answering calls for aid.

Hundreds Of Planes In Assault

There was no immediate indication how many planes were used in the third attack on London but the Air Ministry said the Germans had used 500 bombers and fighters against Portsmouth and 300 bombers and fighters had been used for yesterday's assaults on Southeast England.

The raid still was under way at 2 A. M. (8 P. M. E. S. T.), two hours and twenty-five minutes after the alarm was sounded.

Bursts of anti-aircraft fire caused great excitement among home-going crowds in the London area.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The censor declined to pass the time the all-clear signal was given. The first indication, however, that the clear signal had been sounded was contained in a dispatch timed in London at 3.20 A. M., which was 3 hours and 45 minutes after the first alarm.]

Almost immediately, the sky was criss-crossed with the beams of searchlights and the reports of gunfire and explosions could be heard.

A column of more than twenty German bombers smashed at Britain's naval base and city of Portsmouth last night after the long-range assaults all over southern England.

In the earlier attacks on London bombs fell in the capital's eastern industrial suburbs.

Reporters Hear Blasts

At the Associated Press office in downtown London, staff men could hear the planes high overhead and the heavy bomb explosions. Flares lighting the sky also could be seen.

While the third air-raid warning in the London area still was on, red flashes were reported in the sky over the French coast from Calais to Boulogne, indicating that the Royal Air Force was striking again at German-held Channel ports and emplacements for the big guns which shelled Dover.

Spurts of flames from the water line, seen by watchers on the English shore, showed that German anti-aircraft guns were in action against the British bombers.

The raiders over Portsmouth were driven off from their military targets, the British said, and then loosed their bombs indiscriminately on a residential and working-class section of the city, causing an undetermined number of casualties.

A movie theater was reported smashed and a number of its patrons trapped. Several factories were wrecked. Fires sprang up in the city.

While thus resuming mass aerial raids upon Britain, long-range Nazi guns across the English Channel shelled the British coast in the morning and again for forty-five minutes in the evening. British coastal guns answered heavily.

Up to 9.30 P. M. forty-five German planes were officially put down as destroyed, against ten British fighters acknowledged missing.

Termed Mass Raids

These Nazi sky attacks were termed "mass raids" by the Air Ministry itself, which added that in the first wave eighty German planes came over.

"As one wave of raiders disappeared," the Ministry added, "another took up the attack." One British formation was said to have climbed five miles high to attack thirty German fighters; a British fighter squadron, the Ministry added, chased a Nazi bomber three miles inland from Calais, France, across the Channel, before the German finally crashed.

Anti-aircraft gunners were in almost constant action all along the Kent coast and the Thames estuary.

Big Berthas Open Up Again

In their second thrust at London late yesterday, the bombers broke through the outer defenses far enough to drop bombs in the fields of one suburb. Shortly thereafter, the German Big Berthas on the French coast opened their second bombardment.

The shells from this evening's bombardment fell mostly in rural coastal areas. At first they came five minutes apart, but the interval then lengthened.

It was thus a day of unprecedented double action against Britain, loosed by the Nazi artillery on the French coastline and supported by hundreds of planes.

Damage Acknowledged

An official British announcement acknowledged "considerable damage" from bombs to the Manston airdrome, and said there was lesser damage from both shells and bombs in the towns of England's "Hell Corner," across the Dover Straits from France.

The raiders struck hard all over southern England, but smashed particularly at the area of the Thames estuary, the waterway to London.

They thundered first to London's gates Saturday morning, while hundreds of thousands of citizens were going to work. They were beaten off only to return again in midafternoon.

Blasts Heard In City

The explosions of their bombs could be heard plainly in the city. Squadron after squadron of British Spitfire fighter planes went up to meet them, and the fire of anti-aircraft rose all around the town.

The suburban area bombed was declared not to have suffered, the German explosives falling in an open field.

Ramsgate, a modest little seaside resort town about fifty miles to the east, was assaulted by a single force of twenty-one bombers apparently in their retreat from London. "Some buildings" in the business district, including a gas works, were hit there and an undetermined number of persons killed or injured.

Airdrome Is Blasted

"Considerable damage" to the Royal Air Force airdrome at Manston, near Ramsgate, was acknowledged by the Air Ministry, which declared, however, that during the day thirteen Nazi planes had been shot down. One British plane was acknowledged lost.

The morning shelling, the Ministry said, damaged some buildings at Dover and caused some casualties.

One English town was attacked three times. Fires sprang up after the first raid and while the townspeople were working to extinguish them a second wave of German bombers appeared and pounded the area hard. At last, after the town had been savagely hammered in a third raid, Spitfires chased the Nazis off and the residents set up a cheer.

The defense of London—a series of bitter dogfights visible to men standing on the rooftops in the northeastern edge of the city—was plainly audible even as more distant explosions came from the region of the estuary.

Swarms Of Nazi Planes

The Germans came over both the southwest and southeast coasts, sometimes in groups of as many as fifty-five.

During the day two parachutes, which apparently had not been manned, were found in the industrial midlands.

The fury of the Nazi air raids was illustrated by the fact that in one Channel area intermittent attacks were made for a period of nine hours.

"Same Old Story"

It was the same old story of German strategy—trying to keep the British defenses busy at one point while slipping through to attack others.

At least thirty German bombers, heavily escorted by fighters, were in the formation which loosed the day's second attack at London. Anti-aircraft guns were given a big share of the credit for driving them off.

Aerial action was intense over the Channel, too. The Admiralty announced that the British naval trawler Arctic Trapper had shot down two German bombers and damaged two others with three rounds of anti-aircraft shellfire.

Shoppers See Dogfight

Saturday afternoon shoppers in one London suburban area saw dogfights "all over the sky." Some of the Germans, in breaking from formation, skimmed so low over the rooftop that home guards took rifle potshots at them.

Then, last night the Air Ministry made its customary daily announcement of British counter-blows over German territory.

This time, it was said, R. A. F. bombers in raids yesterday and last night attacked some twenty airdromes and seaplane bases in German-occupied Holland and France; "other targets" at Boulogne, Dieppe and Brest, France; an oil refinery in the industrial German Ruhr, and supply depots in Rhineland.

Paris Outskirts Bombed

Too, it was announced, British bombers penetrated to the outskirts of Paris early Saturday, raiding the big military air base at Villa-Coublay for the second time in a few days. Bombs dropped in low attacks were seen to burst across the airdrome.

London Ablaze—
By An Eyewitness

By LILLIAN MELCHER

London, Sunday, Aug. 25—"I hope to hell Berlin is blazing now," cried a spectator early today as firemen battled a great blaze started by a German incendiary bomb.

"That's right; they better get something for this," another watcher replied.

"Yep, this war's getting serious," agreed a third.

"It looks like indiscriminate bombing to me," said another.

Bombs In West End

I was just coming out of a West End restaurant when a German bomb whistled dow nand exploded. Fire flared up not far from me almost immediately.

This midnight bombing, from a moonlit sky, was the first direct attack on London since the war began, but was the third on Greater London in less than a day.

Crowds seeped in from the dark narrow streets about this area, which had been nearly deserted, as usual, on the British week end. They talked among themselves, quietly but bitterly.

The presence of helmeted soldiers carrying gas masks, gave wartime trimmings to this fire which already had all the emotion of a spectacular American fire.

Tin-hatted policemen let me through the fire lines when I shouted: "American reporter."

"Go ahad, boy. Tell the States about it. Best thing you can do," they shouted.

I got so close that the flames flushed my face and I was wet from firehose.

Curbs flowed deep with water from a score of streams trained on the angry flames. Three were big red fire engines like those in the United States, plus tough little auxiliary engines jamming the streets.

Silhouettes Against Flame

Firemen on tall towers were silhoutted against the red background as they fought the flames under guidance of portable telephones hooked up with the engines below.

Just as the firemen got the flames under control, a gutted brick wall began to totter, and the sirens suddenly shrieked again.

The throng ran for shelter, falling over tangled pythons of firehose, then pulled up abruptly as the police yelled:

"It's just the clear signal. The raiders have passed."

London, Sunday, Aug. 25—On the streets of air-raided London this morning I came upon a little old man watching the scene where an incendiary German air bomb had wrought havoc.

Bobbing his cloth-capped head, he complained querulously: "It didn't make half an explosion. It musta been one o' these 'ere incendiary bombs.

"I fell on the floor when I 'eard 'er come whistling down. Then I went out in the street."

"Another Bloody Jerry"

An air-raid warden ran up, shouting: "Better stand in a shelter, Jack. There's another of those bloody Jerries!"

Off to the east, searchlights poked up through the sky. We could hear the German plane, but couldn't see it. We stood there.

Presently a woman walked past. Tragic-eyed, dressed in night clothing and a man's old greatcoat, she clutched a baby to her breast.

There was silence while she passed. The men's faces reflected only a sober, fierce anger.

Stretcher-Carrier In Tails

A man came pounding up the street, bawling, "Stretcher party! Stretcher party!"

His cries soon brought four men carrying stretchers. One of the stretcher-bearers was immaculately clad in evening dress.

In a few minutes they trudged past in the opposite direction, their stretchers occupied. A limp arm dangled from one. A bloody tunic was thrown across the legs of an unconscious man.

The little old man in the cloth cap muttered curses.

Spotting a cab at the corner, I hailed the driver to ask if he could take me to the office through the blackout.

"Hell, yes, this ain't nothing," and away he went.

LONDON, AUG 24-(AP)-DARING NAZI AIR RAIDERS SKIMMED OVER LONDON TONIGHT AND DROPPED BOMBS UPON THE HEAVILY PROTECTED CITY.

FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BUILDING I PLAINLY HEARD THE DRONE OF THE PLANE THAT VENTURED INTO THIS AREA, THE WHINE OF THE BOMB AND THE THUD AS IT EXPLODED. A MOMENT LATER A DULL RED GLOW FLAMED IN THE SKY. THERE WAS THE SOUND OF MANY AIRPLANE MOTORS AND GUNFIRE AND EXPLOSION OF BOMBS.

THE SCREAMS OF THE BOMBER'S WIRES COULD BE HEARD PLAINLY. THE BOMB ONLY MADE A DULL BUMP, BUT IT WAS ENOUGH TO SHATTER WINDOWS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD WHERE IT FELL.9

SOME THOUGHT THE BOMB WAS A SCREAMER BUT IT SOUNDED LIKE THE NOISE CAME FROM THE PLANE ITSELF RATHER THAN THE BOMB.

LONDON, AUG 24-(AP)-LONDONERS WENT TO WORK THIS MORNING TO THE SOUND OF SCREAMING AIR RAID SIRENS, SIGNALLING A 51-MINUTE DAYLIGHT ALARM DURING WHICH NOTHING APPARENTLY HAPPENED IN THE LONDON AREAS.

THE ALARM SOUNDED AT 8:24 A.M. (2:24 A.M., E.S.T.), AND SENT MANY PEOPLE SCURRYING TO SHELTERS. BUT AFTER SEVERAL MINUTES, WHEN NOTHING HAD HAPPENED, THEY CAME OUT AND WENT ON ABOUT THEIR BUSINESS.

BY THE TIME THE ALL-CLEAR SOUNDED AT 9:15 THE STREETS IN THE CENTER OF TOWN WERE ALMOST AS CROWDED AS USUAL WITH THE MORNING RUSH.

THE ALARM WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN CAUSED BY PLANES HEADING INLAND FROM THE SOUTHEAST. REPORTS FROM A SOUTHEAST TOWN SAID THAT THE FAINT NOISE OF PLANES WAS HEARD HIGH OVERHEAD, FOLLOWED BY THE NOISE OF BOMBS EXPLODING TO THE NORTH.

LATER NEW EXPLOSIONS WERE HEARD FROM ANOTHER DIRECTION, AND BRITISH FIGHTERS THEN WERE SEEN RACING OUT TOWARD THE SOURCE OF THE EXPLOSIONS.

OVER THE LONDON AREA ITSELF, HOWEVER, THERE WAS NO ACTIVITY EXCEPT FOR PATROLS BY BRITISH FIGHTER PLANES.

DURING THE NIGHT A FEW BOMBS WERE DROPPED ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF LONDON, IN A SOUTHEASTERN DISTRICT. ALL WERE REPORTED TO HAVE FALLEN IN OPEN GROUND, AND TO HAVE CAUSED LITTLE DAMAGE.

TRAINS, BUSES AND STREET CARS DID NOT STOP, ALTHOUGH MOST OTHER STREET TRAFFIC WAS HALTED.

TODAY'S ALARM CAME LITTLE MORE THAN 24 HOURS AFTER THE FIRST NAZI NIGHT ATTACK ON THE CAPITAL, WHICH SENT HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF LONDON'S NEARLY 9,000,000 INHABITANTS INTO SHELTERS FROM 3:15 UNTIL 4 A.M. BIG BERTHAS ROAR AS AIR BATTLES RAGE

Trans-Channel Bombardment And Dogfights Overhead Described

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS
Associated Press Correspondent

Dover, England, Aug. 24—German cross-Channel guns opened their second bombardment of the day against the Dover area this afternoon while, in a brilliant, cloudless sky, countless dogfights raged between British fighters and swarms of fighter-escorted German bombers.

The bombardment, a resumption of an early-morning shelling which caused some deaths here, inflicted little damage. Most of the shells fell harmlessly in open country near by.

The air tussles raged so high the presence of the fighters was detected only by the rise and fall of the sound of their motors, interspersed by the chatter of machine guns.

The noise of the cannonading, the whine of the plane motors and the rattle of machine guns was almost deafening on the ground despite the altitude of the combatants.

Two Plummet Out Of Skies

I saw two of the planes, just little dots at first but growing bigger and bigger, plummet out of the skies. One crashed into the sea just a few feet off the beach front, its pilot bailing out and coming down far out to sea.

Among the spectators were American-born Mrs. Reiner Van Der Woude, the former Mary Wendell, of Boston, and her 19-year-old son, Gerritt Northam Griggs, American Red Cross representative. They had ringside seats in the garden of her home at nearby Eastry.

The anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest heard in this region of the coast since the Germans launched their mass raids August 8.

The whole coastline shuddered with falling bombs.

Appears To Be "Day Of Days"

Even the war-hardened south coast people said:

"This appears to be a day of days."

On the way home, apparently from a bombing expedition, one German plane shot down two balloons over a southeast coast town.

Their flames were brilliant against the sky.

The German flyer, who had run through anti-aircraft fire to bag the balloons, was surrounded by bursts before he got through.

Later in the evening another German came over on his way home. He, too, ran through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Thud Of Bombs In France

During the afternoon one could hear the thud of falling bombs on the French coast and it appeared that the bombing there was heavier than any other up to this day.

At any rate, the German artillery barrage was silent for a time, whether of its own volition or not.

ONE FORMATION OF AT LEAST 24 JUNKER 88'S WAS COUNTED, FLYING OVER UNDER ESCORT OF HEAVY PATROLS OF MESSERSCHMITT FIGHTERS, WHICH IMMEDIATELY WERE ENGAGED BY BRITISH PLANES.

GROUND DEFENSES HURLED A HEAVY BARRAGE OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS INTO THE SKY AROUND THE RAIDERS, WHICH CAME OVER AT AN ESTIMATED HEIGHT OF 20,000 FEET, USING THE SUN TO HIDE THEMSELVES FROM OBSERVERS ON THE GROUND.

THE WAVES OF RAIDERS FOLLOWED EACH OTHER IN RAPID-FIRE ORDER.

THE FIRST ALARM FOR THE SOUTH KENT AREA WAS SIGNALLED BY THREE LOUD EXPLOSIONS AT QUICK INTERVALS JUST AFTER 10 A.M. (4 A.M., E.S.T.), WHICH SHOOK HOUSES AND RATTLED WINDOWS THROUGHOUT THE DOVER AREA.R

Support For De Gaulle

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 24—Foreign Office sources announced today that Colonel de Larminat, chief of the general staff of the French Near Eastern Army, has arrived in London and joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle's "free French" forces fighting alongside the English.

The colonel reported on the strength of regiments of French troops which have left Syria for Egypt where they are forming a combat unit to aid the British.

Adapted to counter the motorcycle raiders who shot through France, tearing up and firing the countryside, these squads are composed of three heavily-armed men who ride a motorcycle and sidecar.

A machine-gunner occupies the sidecar, sitting on a revolving stool which gives him an unrestricted field of fire.

British fighter defense whatsoever."

Anti-aircraft fire was declared light and badly aimed.

(Thirty-five British planes were shot down and twelve German aircraft are "missing" from today's air battles in Britain, the German radio said in a broadcast heard by CBS in New York.)

Claim Shipping Jammed

The Germans said they believed British fighter strength had been "considerably weakened" by recent losses.

Other authorized statements said British shipping was jammed helplessly in the west coast harbors. DNB, German news agency, said photographic evidence proved that the first week of Germany's "total blockade" had paralyzed shipping.

Bristol Attacked

During the previous night constant, widespread attacks were reported to have fired and damaged the west coast ports of Bristol and Avonmouth; Devonport, near Plymouth, and Great Yarmouth, on the Norfolk coast. Arms factories and troop concentrations also were blasted. Cambridge was specifically mentioned. A munitions factory at Banbury, north of Oxford, was said to have been set afire.

Submarines sank more than 100,000 tons of "enemy shipping space" in eight days and a Nazi raider was declared to have dispatched the British "armed" merchantman Turakina in the Tasman Sea, the high command said. (A New Zealand announcement yesterday said the Turakina had not been heard from since she reported she was under a raider's fire Tuesday night.)

Terrific Air Fights

German headquarters on the Channel coast declared "terrific air fights broke out over the Channel; numerous foes were shot down and planes are floating on the surface in several places. Twelve British planes were shot down to no losses of our own."

German rescue planes were dispatched to pick up crews shot down.

The raiders flew out across the narrowest part of the Channel, between Calais, France, and Dover, British Channel port frequently bombed by the Germans.

British planes made their nightly visits to western Germany, but their bombs failed to cause noteworthy damage, the high command reported.

The German air force shot down seven British planes yesterday while losing two of its own, informed sources declared today. They said four British planes were bagged by anti-aircraft artillery, three by fighter planes.

High Command Communique

The high command's communique today said:

"German naval forces sank the armed British merchant steamer Turakina, 8,706 tons, in Australian waters.

Germans Hurdle 'Weak Defenses'

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 24—Germany sent measured waves of bombers across the narrow Straits of Dover today to pound at British air and military strength across south England to the edges of London.

Nazi sources said "weak" British fighter forces "were almost all shot down" in morning raids on the south of England, and that subsequently the bombers raiding military objectives in the London vicinity "encountered no

Waves of twenty or more bombers and ten fighters were declared to have breasted the British southeast coastal defenses, downing a dozen British fighters in spectacular dogfights. Then, the Germans said, the bombers methodically blasted at airports and other military objectives in Kent. "Effective hits on hangars" were reported.

"Of this space one submarine accounted for 15,000 tons, another U-boat sank the armed British merchantmen Severn Leygh 5,242 tons, and Brookwood 5,100 tons, and another armed merchantman 4,000 tons.

"A third submarine torepedoed an armed enemy merchant steamer of 11,000 tons.

Munitions Plant Bombed

"German airplanes on August 23 and last night attacked ports, docks, airports, armament plants and troop concentrations in the entire southern and central parts of England.

"In the course of armed reconnaissance during the day, bombs were dropped on a munitions plant at Banbury, where fires and big explosions were observed.

"Far visible fires and explosions were caused by numerous nocturnal bomb raids, especially on the ports of Bristol, Avonmouth, Devonport and Great Yarmouth, as well as airports at Cambridge.

"Several enemy planes last night dropped bombs in western Germany without noteworthy effect. Yesterday three enemy planes were bagged by chasers, four by anti-aircraft fire. Two of our own planes are missing."

Shipping in British waters has been virtually paralyzed in the first week of the Nazi "total blockade," Germans claimed.

DNB, official German news agency, said photographs and other material gathered in reconnaissance flights over Britain in recent days showed veritable "traffic jams" of freighters of all categories in western England ports, while "shipping in the Irish Sea has decreased more and more in recent days."

The news agency attributed the gradual paralyzation of shipping to German mines laid in this region. It said a large number of mine sweepers had been observed, some of which were made targets of Nazi air attacks.

DNB said that wharfs and docks were fully engaged, and that the aerial photographs revealed "a surprisingly large number of smaller warships, especially destroyers, anchored at places known to be repair quays."

BERLIN, AUG. 24-(AP)-THE GERMAN AIRFORCE SHOT DOWN SEVEN BRITISH PLANES YESTERDAY WHILE LOSING TWO OF ITS OWN, INFORMED SOURCES DECLARED TODAY. THEY SAID FOUR BRITISH PLANES WERE BAGGED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT ARTILLERY, THREE BY FIGHTER PLANES.

Berlin Reports Raids Set Fire To Portsmouth

Asserts 50 British Planes Fell in Battles During Bombing of Wide Areas

BERLIN, Aug. 24 (AP).—German sources asserted tonight that some of the harbor facilities of the English naval port of Portsmouth had been left in flames (which were said to have spread to the city proper) today in heavy Nazi air raids over Great Britain and that the British had lost fifty planes to eighteen for the Germans.

Airports in southeastern England, especially at Canterbury and Manston, were reported raided "with success." At Yarmouth, the Germans said, warehouses were destroyed and fires started.

Nazi sources said "weak" British fighter forces "were almost all shot down" in morning raids on the south of England, and that subsequently the bombers raiding military objectives in the London vicinity "encountered no British fighter defense whatsoever." Anti-aircraft fire was declared light and badly aimed. The Germans said they believed British fighter strength had been "considerably weakened" by recent losses.

Across the British Isles, said other authorized statements, British shipping was jammed helplessly in west coast harbors, terminals for trans-Atlantic shipments. D. N. B., official German news agency, said photographic evidence proved that the first week of Germany's total blockade had paralyzed shipping around the British Isles.

Airports Blasted

Waves of twenty or more bombers and ten fighters were declared to have breasted the British southeast coastal defenses during the day, sending a dozen British fighters into the water after spectacular dogfights. Then, according to the German version, the bombers methodically blasted at airports and other military objectives in Kent, southeast of London. "Effective hits on hangars" were reported.

During the previous night, constant, widespread attacks were reported to have fired and damaged the west coast ports of Bristol and Avonmouth, Devonport, near Plymouth, and Great Yarmouth, on the jutting Norfolk coast. Arms factories and troop concentrations also were blasted. Cambridge, the university town fifty-seven miles north of London, was specifically mentioned. A munitions factory at Banbury, north of Oxford, was said to have been set afire. The Morris motor works at Birmingham also was "successfully bombed" in the night raids, D. N. B. reported.

German military quarters, declaring that the rate of four British plane losses to one German was being maintained, said: "The British are constantly bringing new forces to England. They transfer pursuit unit after pursuit unit to the Channel coast without being able to check the Germans from breaking through their air defense."

They ridiculed a new British device which shoots projectiles with nets attached into the air to trap German planes. "Not a single German plane has been destroyed in this manner," they said.

Submarines, the high command reported, sank more than 100,000 tons of "enemy shipping space" in eight days, and a Nazi raider was declared to have destroyed the British armed merchantman Turakina in the Tasman Sea. (A New Zealand announcement yesterday said the Turakina had not been heard from since she reported she was under a raider's fire Tuesday night.)

Nazis Warn Shippers On Navicert System

Compliance With British Regulations "Unneutral Act," Berlin Spokesman Says

Berlin, Aug. 24 (AP)—Authorized German sources issued a new warning today to non-belligerent shippers, asserting that "submission" to the British navicert system is "an unneutral act."

Britain has expanded this system, under which neutral ships' cargoes are approved by British authorities at ports of origin for clearance through the blockade.

"England is no longer in a position to exercise effective, airtight control of the sea," the German spokesman said. "Therefore, if neutral shipping voluntarily puts itself under British control by letters of safe conduct it does so without compelling necessity."

BERLIN, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—The German High Command said today that an armed British merchantman, the 8,706-ton Turakina, had been sunk in Australian waters.

[New Zealand officials announced yesterday that nothing had been heard from the Turakina since it sent a radio appeal on Tuesday night saying that she had been fired on by a surface raider.]

DNB, the official German news agency, said further that five steamships, totaling 21,000 tons, had been damaged in an air attack on a convoy near Moray Firth in Scotland, and that two totaling 15,000 tons must be presumed to have sunk.

Three Sinkings Confirmed.

The New York Maritime Register confirmed today the sinking of the 13,056-ton British tanker San Fernando and two freighters.

The San Fernando, which traded between England and South America, was sunk early last month off the Spanish coast by a German submarine. The 4-871-ton British freighter Zarian was torpedoed by a U-boat on June 30, about 350 miles off Ireland. No casualties were known on either British vessel.

One sailor was killed when the 1,540-ton Swedish freighter Greth hit a mine and sank on July 21 off the Swedish coast.

Reich Bishops Due To Ask War Unity

Berlin, Aug. 24 (AP).—Informed quarters declared today that the conference of Catholic Bishops of Greater Germany at Fulda would publish next month a pastoral letter admonishing all German Catholics to support Hitler's "fight for Germany's freedom."

These sources said the letter would ask the civil population to bear war's hardships cheerfully because sacrifices demanded of civilians were slight compared with those of the soldiers.

The bishops' session began Aug. 19.

Amsterdam, Aug. 24 (A. P. Via Berlin)—Germany's iron grip on Holland tightened another notch today with announcement that high officials formerly appointed by Queen Wilhelmina henceforth will be named by Reichscommissioner Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

The German move was the latest in a series which, since the occupation of Holland by German troops last May, restricted civil liberties and sharpened German control over the conquered country.

French War Vessels Still Fly Tri-Color, Nazi Radio Reports

Berlin, Aug. 24 (AP) (Via Radio)—French naval units tied up at Toulon include the battleship Strasbourg, the seaplane carrier Commandant Teste, ten cruisers, twenty-four destroyers, twelve submarines and a number of smaller vessels, the German wireless declared tonight.

Quoting the magazine Das Reich, it said all the ships appeared newly painted and were flying the French tri-color at the Mediterranean base.

The Strasbourg, the Commandant Teste, the destroyers Volta, Kersaint, Le Terrible and Lynx, along with some submarines and torpedo boats, were listed as the only vessels escaping the fight with the British at Oran, Algeria, early in July.

Cruisers named in the broadcast as safe at Toulon included the 10,000-ton Algerie, Foch, Dupleix and Colbert.

Newspapers May Not Accept Subsidies From Abroad

BERLIN, Aug. 24 (AP).—Dispatches from Vichy, the French capital, said today that a new press law for France is being drafted under which newspaper proprietors will be responsible for "every disregard of directions given by the government in advance."

"Directions are to be given to newspaper representatives on domestic and foreign political matters at regular press conferences," said the dispatches. Newspapers may not accept any subsidies from abroad, but they may receive subsidies from French sources, provided these sources are made known. Finally, the information department of the Havas Agency (French News Service), is to be taken over by the State. After this has been done the Havas Agency will be given another name."

The government will have right of veto over lists of direc and editors. A mail censorship a will be introduced.

"The enemy carried out air raids on Massaua, Berbera and Debel without causing victims or damage."

BERLIN.

The German High Command issued the following communique:

"German naval forces sank the armed British merchant steamship Turakina, 8,706 tons, in Australian waters.

"Submarines in the past eight days again sank more than 100,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping space.

"Of this space one submarine accounted for 15,000 tons, another U-boat sank the armed British merchantmen Severn Leygh, 5,242 tons, and Brockwood, 5,100 tons, and another armed merchantman, 4,000 tons.

The Air and Home Security Ministries also issued this communiqué:

This morning Dover was attacked by gunfire from the French coast, resulting in slight damage to houses and a few casualties. Later the enemy directed attacks from the air on Dover and Ramsgate. Little damage was caused at Dover, but at Ramsgate some buildings were hit, including a gas works. Some persons were killed and injured.

Attacks also were made on the R. A. F. airdrome at Manston, near Ramsgate, where considerable damage was done to buildings.

Reports so far received show that during these operations ten more enemy aircraft were shot down, one by anti-aircraft gunfire. This brings the total so far today to thirteen.

One of our aircraft was lost, but the pilot is safe.

Another Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué:

This evening enemy aircraft again approached the London area. The only bombs dropped were in the eastern outskirts and fell in fields, causing minor damage.

Portsmouth was attacked by a large force of enemy aircraft this evening. Reports of damage and casualties are not yet complete, but it is known that a number of buildings were hit and some fires were caused.

Reports received up to 7 P. M. show that thirty-two enemy aircraft have been destroyed in today's actions, twenty-eight by our fighters and four by A. A. [anti-aircraft] guns. Ten of our fighters are missing, but the pilot of one is safe.

The text of an Air Ministry communiqué:

Daylight operations carried out by R. A. F. bombers yesterday included harassing attacks on airdromes and other objectives in Northwest France, the Low Countries and Germany.

At night an oil refinery at Sterkrade, in the Ruhr, and supply depots in the Rhineland were bombed. Some twenty airdromes and seaplane bases occupied by the enemy in Holland and France, and other targets at Boulogne, Dieppe and Brest, also were attacked.

Three of our bombers have not returned.

Another Admiralty communiqué stated:

When His Majesty's trawler Arctic Trapper was attacked by enemy aircraft thi... afternoon, she shot down two enemy bombers into the sea and probably damaged two others.

His Majesty's trawler Arctic Trapper was machine-gunned by German fighters which were escorting a force of German bombers. The trawler opened fire on the bombers. The first shell burst between two of the enemy bombers and it is probable that both aircraft received damage.

The second shell scored a direct hit on another bomber and this aircraft crashed into the sea. The third shell burst very close to another bomber and this machine was seen to turn over and come down in the sea. There were no casualties in His Majesty's trawler Arctic Trapper.

LONDON, Sunday, Aug. 25 (AP)—A joint Air and Home Security Ministries communiqué this morning announced:

Last night, a considerable number of enemy aircraft, operating for the most part singly, dropped bombs in many districts in England, including the London area, and in South Wales.

Anti-aircraft defenses were in action at many points. Fighter aircraft went up to intercept, and it is known that one enemy bomber was shot down.

In one part of London bombs caused fires which damaged some commercial property. The fire brigade, assisted by auxiliary fire service units, quickly brought the fires under control. In other districts damage was done to dwelling houses.

According to reports so far received from London and other parts of the country the number of casualties is small.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 24 (AP)—The British command issued the following communiqué tonight:

NO MORE NEUTRALITY

Petain Says Schools in France Will Teach New Way

VICHY, France, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—The neutral tone heretofore characteristic of public school teachings in France will be missing in the schools of the new France, Chief of State Philippe Petain said today.

Public instruction henceforth, he explained, will tend strongly toward instilling respect for human beings, for the family, for society and the country.

"The school will no longer pretend to be neutral in thought," said the veteran Marshal in an article published here. "There is no neutrality possible between truth and falsehood, between order and disorder."

A new emphasis will be given to manual training, and a national type of strictly supervised schoolbooks will be obligatory in all schools, he said.

BELGIAN CABINET DECIDES TO QUIT

Refugee Government Tried to Resign Before.

VICHY, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—The refugee Belgian government of Premier Hubert Pierlot plans to resign, informed spokesmen here said today, since it is impossible to function under existing circumstances.

The Premier and most members of his Cabinet, which attempted to carry on from unoccupied France after King Leopold's surrender, previously offered their resignations but the King refused to accept them. Now, Belgian sources said, they were determined on unequivocal resignation.

With the great homeward trek of Belgian refugees well under way, the ministers' families have returned to Belgium. The ministers themselves are said to have decided to remain in Southern France after disbanding the Cabinet.

Belgian officials estimate it will take two months more to repatriate nearly 1,000,000 refugees. The Germans' frequent closing of the border between the occupied and unoccupied zones has stalled thousands of refugees in trains, automobiles and afoot.

Richard Allen, European delegate of the American Red Cross, was in Vichy today conferring, it was reported, on the dispatch of another relief ship from America.

Joseph Stokes, representative of the Quaker Relief Organization, left for Marseille after the Germans refused him a permit to enter the occupied zone. He carried papers from the United States embassy which hitherto have been honored.

It is reported here that many French refugees, returning to their homes, find them already occupied when they arrive and can do nothing about it.

ITALIANS BOMBARD ALEXANDRIA BASE

But Rome Concedes R.A.F. Hit One Submarine.

ROME, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—Italian air squadrons swooped down on Alexandria last night and subjected the British naval base to prolonged and violent bombardment, the High Command announced today.

Night raiders also smashed at the Sidi Barrani air field and British concentrations at Mersa Matruh, on the Egyptian coast, the communique said, while far up in the Sudan other Italian squadrons thundered over Khartoum, the British garrison city which dominates the Nile, causing extensive destruction to hangars and starting a tremendous fire.

All the planes participating returned safely, the communique said, but it conceded that British torpedo planes had scored hits on an Italian submarine in the Gulf of Bomba, Libya, on Thursday, putting it out of action and killing part of the crew.

The High Command, summarizing the campaign which resulted in occupation of Somaliland, the British protectorate, on August 19, said that hundreds of motor vehicles, armored cars, guns and machine guns were seized along with "some hundreds" of regular troops and natives. In one captured stronghold only one officer and a few soldiers were found alive. Thirteen officers were among 200 slain, a communique said.

Hitler's Arch German Foe Reported Safe In Portug

Otto Strasser Aided In Forming Nazi Party, But Has Waged War On Führer Since 1930

[By the Associated Press]

Vila do Conde, Portugal, Aug. 24.—Otto Strasser, German arch-enemy of Adolf Hitler, was reported in refuge tonight in this little fishing village.

[Editor's Note—A well-informed German source in Berlin declared a month ago today that Strasser had fallen into Nazi hands in Paris, but German authorities declined comment.]

Strasser is seeing no one here while he waits for a brother, Bernard, a Benedictine monk, to arrange for them to cross the Atlantic.

Bernard has booked passage on the Pan-American Airways for next Tuesday, but there is no booking for Otto.

It is believed in Lisbon that Otto might go to Brazil.

Otto Strasser, one of the founders of the Nazi party, broke with Hitler in 1930. He organized the "Black Front" opposition and began an unremitting campaign against the Nazis by secret radio, and by a newspaper, the Deutsche Revolution.

and had many hairbreadth escapes before he finally entered France.

After the Munich beer hall explosion of last November 8, the Nazi Gestapo charged that Strasser organized the plot as an attempt on Hitler's life, with money supplied from Britain.

Another brother, Gregor, who remained with Hitler, died in the 1934 blood purge.

Otto, fleeing from country to country while plotting against Hitler, was expelled from Greece and Switzerland, was jailed in Czecho-Slovakia

BERNE, Switzerland, Sunday, Aug. 25 (AP)—Air raid alarms sounded twice last night and early today in Berne and Geneva. The first alarm in Berne lasted fifty minutes.

Later an army communiqué said foreign planes, probably British, flew over Swiss territory between 11 P. M. Saturday and 2 A. M. Sunday.

Rumania Refuses Land

[By the Associated Press]

Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Aug. 24—The Hungarian-Rumanian conference over Transylvania collapsed today.

The two delegations admitted failure to find a common ground for continuing the negotiations.

The collapse of the Axis-inspired attempt to arrive at a friendly settlement of Hungary's claims to the 35,000-square mile province of Transylvania, which Rumania has held since the World War, came after the Rumanians failed to give a satisfactory reply to a Hungarian demand for some concrete territorial concessions.

Rumania's Offer

The Hungarians had demanded about two-thirds of the province. The Rumanians refused and offered to exchange minority populations instead.

The fact that several hundred thousand Hungarians live in Transylvania has been the focal point of the long Hungarian compaign for return of the province.

Hungarian delegates wore glum expressions as they left the hall where conferences had been held intermittently for ten days. They immediately went to their Danube steamer to return to Budapest.

A stiffening of Rumania's attitude had been seen earlier in the calling up of army reserves, the appointment of a new chief and vice-chief of the general staff and the offer of five seats in the Government to the anti-revisionist group of Juliu Maniu, the Peasant party leader.

The army appointees were understood to oppose any cession of Transylvanian territory.

Maniu, however, was understood to have rejected the proferred Cabinet posts unless King Carol's new totalitarian party were dissolved.

At Craiova, meanwhile, where Rumanians are negotiating with Bulgarians over southern Dobruja it was reported the Rumanians have proposed to cede all of the town of Silistra, on the Danube, provided Bulgaria creates a free zone at the port of Balcic, on the Black Sea, for Rumania, with an international highway leading from it to the Rumanian Black Sea port of Constanta.

Kobayashi Japan's New Envoy To Dutch Indies

Commerce Minister To Go Instead Of Koiso, Who Predicted Friction With U. S.

Tokyo, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Government announced today it has decided to send Commerce Minister Kobayashi as a special envoy to the Dutch East Indies, instead of Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, exponent of an aggressive Japanese policy in the South Seas.

General Koiso had predicted friction between the United States and Japan over the Dutch East Indies' rubber and raw materials and had indicated his appointment as special envoy depended upon the Government's acceptance of his program.

HITLER'S HAND SEEN IN NEW NEGOTIATIONS

Hungarians Agree To Reopen Issue After Collapse Of Parley

Rumania And Neighbor In Meantime Call Up Army Reserves

[By the Associated Press]

Turnu Severin, Rumania, Aug. 24—Pressure from King Carol's Palace reported actually to have originated in Berlin, appeared tonight to have opened the possibility for a resumption of the Hungarian-Rumanian conference over Transylvania, which had collapsed earlier in the day.

After the delegates had announced there was no possibility of continuing their negotiations and were even at the railroad station waiting to go home, a new communique was issued jointly by the Hungarians and Rumanians expressing "hope that the negotiations will be resumed in the shortest time."

No Decision On Time And Place

No decision was reached as to when and where the arguments would begin again over Hungary's demand for the return of Transylvania, lost to her after the World War.

The original communique, which was withdrawn formally at the request of the Rumanian delegation after it had been public for hours, had read:

"In view of the fact that no common basis can be found for continuing the discussion, on the request of the Hungarian delegation the conversations have been declared closed."

Rumanians Call It Off

Later, while the Hungarians were preparing to leave, the Rumanians conferred over the telephone for hours with their Government in Bucharest, which was represented as intensely dissatisfied with the decision to break up negotiations.

Then, after much scurrying about, it was finally decided to issue the new communique.

Hungary And Rumania Call Up Fresh Reserves

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 24 (AP)—An effort to settle peacefully Hungary's claim to the Rumanian province of Transylvania collapsed today and both countries called up reserve fighting men.

In Turnu-Severin, Rumania, Hungarian and Rumanian delegates walked dourly for the last time from the hall in which they had been negotiating intermittently for ten days.

They not only had failed to find the answer to the Transylvanian question. Apparently they had failed Adolf Hitler in which amounted to his direct order that a solution must be reached that would prevent war from breaking out in the Balkans and thus interrupting the agricultural and industrial production so vital now to Germany in her war with Britain.

War Threat "Not Eliminated"

Although a Hungarian spokesman indicated his Government's policy merely would be one of watchful waiting for the present, he declared the possibility of war over the long-contested territory "has not been eliminated."

Friction over the dispatch of two Rumanian divisions to Transylvania this week was reported to have figured in the breakdown of the conference.

In Budapest the news of the failure was followed quickly not only by the summoning of army reservists—as Rumania had done—but by other war-like steps. Additional soldiers were put on guard about the national railway system; auto bus and taxicab companies restricted their regular service to have military transport available.

Italian Comment Reprinted

Newspapers prominently reprinted Italian press comment that Hungary's right to Transylvania—which was part of the old Austro-Hungarian empire before the World War—was beyond debate; "above discussion."

Hungary had demanded about two-thirds of the province; the Rumanians were willing only to exchange minority populations.

In Rumania the Government chose a new chief of staff and vice-chief, and even offered five seats in the Cabinet to the faction of Juliu Maniu, the Peasant party leader who has been an outspoken opponent of ceding territory to Hungary.

But Maniu was understood to have made known that he'd have no Cabinet posts unless King Carol would agree to dissolve his new totalitarian and strongly pro-Fascist party.

Dobruja Parley Still On

Other territorial demands upon Rumania were pressed at Cariova, Rumania, where negotiations went forward with the Bulgarians over their claim to southern Dobruja.

The Rumanians were reported to have suggested the cession of the town of Silistra, on the Danube, with the condition that Bulgaria create a free zone at the port of Balcic, on the Black Sea, with an international highway leading from it to the Rumanian Black Sea port of Constanta.

Japanese Free British

Shanghai, Aug. 24 (AP)—Two Seaforth Highlanders (British soldiers), arrested twice in Japanese-occupied Hongkew on charges of assault and battery, were released by Japanese today after Major S. R. Hunt, liaison officer of British forces, expressed regret for their misconduct.

The Japanese press had predicted authorities would demand an apology. The men were accused of striking six Japanese and Chinese, including two women, while intoxicated.

Hungary Calls Troops

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Aug. 24—Hungary took new defensive measures today, calling up army reservists overnight, as the conference with Rumania over Transylvania ended in failure.

The number of reservists called up was not disclosed.

Additional soldiers were detailed to guard the national railway system, and bus and taxicab companies restricted their activities, presumably to put their vehicles at the disposal of the military authorities.

Hungarian newspapers reprinted prominently today Italian press comment that Hungary's right to regain her pre-World War province of Transylvania "is above discussion."

Reports received here said the Rumanian high command forbade all inhabitants of the border area to listen to the Hungarian radio on penalty of court-martial.

MAIL SEIZURE STILL OPPOSED

Hull Says Attitude of U. S. Remains Unchanged.

NO STATEMENT ON JAPAN

No Comment on Plan to Get Plane Bases for British Debt.

WASHINGTON, Aug 24 (A. P.).—Secretary Hull said today that this Government was still opposed to the seizure and censorship of United States mails by the British at Bermuda.

He reaffirmed this postion at his press conference in response to inquiries as to whether the recent resumption of trans-Atlantic plane stops by Pan American Airways at Bermuda meant that the United States had changed its attitude toward the censorship of mails carried by the clipper planes.

Attitude Is Unchanged.

Mr. Hull replied that this Government's attitude had been consistent from the beginning. That attitude, he said, was one of opposition to seizure and censorship of the mails for any purpose and that continues to be the American position.

The Secretary of State, who returned to Washington only recently after a rest, said he had not checked to see what the plans of Pan American Airways might be since its planes seemed to be making an increasing number of stops at Bermuda.

For a time after the British began seizing and censoring mail carried by the clippers the airline ceased stopping at the Atlantic island except when bad weather required.

Mr. Hull was questioned about a published report that the State Department had given the Japanese Government recently a note warning that there would be a day of reckoning ultimately if Japanese disregard of American rights in the Orient continued. The Secretary replied that he could not add anything to what previously had been said concerning the situation in the Far East.

Refuses to Comment.

He had no news "when asked about reports that this Government had discussed informally with Uruguay proposals to establish United States naval and air bases in that country.

In response to a question regarding another published report to the effect that he had transmitted to President Roosevelt a plan originating in congressional quarters to wipe out Great Britain's war debt to this country in exchange for naval and air base sites in the Western Hemisphere, Mr. Hull said he did not want to create the impression that he had taken any particular initiative in connection with such a proposal.

U. S. Still Opposes Mail Censorship At Bermuda

Secretary Hull Reaffirms Government's Position Against Seizure At Press Conference

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The United States Government today reaffirmed its opposition to the seizure and censorship of this country's mails at the British island of Bermuda.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, reiterated the Government's position at a press conference following publication of reports that Pan American clipper planes and ships of the American Export Line were resuming regular calls at the island after passing it up as much as possible since the British began censoring their cargoes of mail there.

Asked whether the more frequent visits of clipper planes indicated a change in the Government's attitude toward the censorship, Hull said the United States attitude had been consistent from the start. That attitude was one of opposition to the seizure and censorship of mails for any purpose, he added, and that continued to be the American position.

Laundry Of Duchess Is Sent To New York

Package Labeled "Her Royal Highness" Gets Quick Service On Arrival At Pier

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—All the way from Nassau, the Bahamas, to a cleaning establishment in Manhattan yesterday came a bundle of clothes from the Duchess of Windsor.

The package, labeled "Her Royal Highness," arrived on the steamship Acadia. Customs authorities, noting that the gowns were not declared on the ship's manifest, held them at the pier until a steamship official posted $500 covering bond.

Then the package was rushed uptown, where a crew of cleaners worked late into the night on the garments.

A few minutes before the Acadia sailed again today, a representative of the cleaners dashed breathlessly back to the pier, the customs passed the bundle and her Highness' gowns were Nassau bound.

Bermuda Offers America Site As Air Base

ISLAND'S GREAT SOUND DISCLOSED AS AVAILABLE UNDER 99-YEAR LEASE

Hemisphere Defense Step Will Not Affect Colony's Status In British Empire, Governor Assures Legislature In Hamilton

[By the Associated Press.] AUG 25 1940

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 24—The great Sound of Bermuda will be made available to the United States for an air base and possibly for a naval base, on a ninety-nine-year lease, Maj. Gen. Denis Bernard, Governor of Bermuda, informed a special session of this British colony's Assembly today.

The Legislature first had received assurances that the unprecedented step would have no effect on Bermuda's status in the British Empire.

First Specific Site For Base

This was the first specific indication of where United States bases on British territory in the Western Hemisphere might be established.

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons last Tuesday that Britain was discussing such bases with the United States, and Foreign Minister Lord Halifax told the House of Lords that agreement already had been reached "in principle" with Washington.

It was intimated then that Bermuda, Newfoundland and points in the West Indies all might become sites for United States bases for Western Hemisphere defense.

Disturbed Over Colony Status

A memorial sent to the Governor for transmission to Lord Lloyd, British Secretary of State for Colonies, declared that "the people of Bermuda are deeply disturbed lest some new conception of American hemispheric defense may affect the status of this ancint colony as an integral part of the British Commonwealth."

It asked assurance "that nothing be allowed to prejudice our Constitution, our Government or our complete happiness and contentment under British rule."

Reaffirming "unswerving loyalty" to the crown, the memorial recognized that the British Government's consideration of the defense proposals was intended "only to further the interests of the empire at this critical juncture" and pledged support of any agreement.

No Question Of Separation

The Governor's message, in reply, said the memorial had been answered reassuringly by Lord Lloyd who declared "there is no question of Bermuda or any part of it being separated from the British Empire or of the people of Bermuda ceasing to be British subjects."

As far as Bermuda is concerned, the message said, the negotiations so far are confined to provisions for an air base for which the waters of Great Sound would be made available.

"It is, of course, possible that a request for naval bases may be made by the United States," the Governor's message added, "and should this be forthcoming the Governor is sure that by giving them most sympathetic consideration he would be furthering the wishes of the people of Bermuda."

At West End Of Island

Bermuda has figured recently in reports that the United States and Great Britain have agreed "in principle" on leasing air and naval bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere to the United States.

Great Sound, chief water entrance to Bermuda, is a landlocked island-studded body of water filling the hollow of the "fish hook" at the western end of Bermuda Island, the largest of the British colony off the coast of North Carolina—about 700 miles southeast of New York and 570 east of Cape Hatteras.

The entrance to the sound is from the north, between Ireland Island on the west and Spanish Point on the east.

At its broadest, between Somerset Island on the west and the harbor of Hamilton, Bermuda's chief port, on the east, it is about five and one-half miles.

Regulations Relaxed On Border Crossing

State Department Works Out Arrangement To Aid Newfoundland, Canada And Mexico

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The State Department announced tonight that it had worked out an arrangement to facilitate the border crossing for temporary visitors from Canada, Newfoundland and Mexico without sacrificing "effective control" of this traffic.

Previously, tthe department had received complaints that entrance requirements imposed on temporary visitors had discouraged legitimate visits by Canadians.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, has authorized American consular and diplomatic offices to inaugurate a modified policy August 28. On that date they will begin issuing non-resident alien border crossing identification cards to citizens of Canada, Newfoundland and Mexico who reside in those countries, and to British subjects living in Canada and Newfoundland. These cards will be valid for visits not exceeding twenty-nine days and for any number of such visits during one year without the necessity of registration and formal fingerprinting.

NAVAL AID NAMED

Capt. Read to Be Attache at Ottawa.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—The navy today assigned Capt. Oliver M. Read as naval and air attache at Ottawa in another move toward closer defense relations with Canada.

Capt. Read, now on duty at the Navy Department, is the first to fill the post. The army assigned an attache to Ottawa for the first time earlier this year.

Capt. Read is a native of Beaufort, S. C., and won the Navy Cross in the world war for service as commander of a submarine operating in European waters.

SENATE WON'T LIMIT DEBATE ON DRAFT BILL

Agrees Only to a Curb on Speeches About One Amendment.

GIBSON PREDICTS AN INVASION

Vermonter Quotes From Book and Tells Colleagues That They Are Too Slow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. (A. P.).—Seeking to hasten a final vote on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill, the Senate agreed today to limit further debate on a pending amendment to fifteen minutes for each Senator.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, obtained an agreement after he told the Senate that he had been unable in private conversations to get all Senators to agree to cut short debate on the bill itself.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, said that opponents of conscription had no objection to limiting debate on the amendment, a proposal to limit to 800,000 the number of conscripts that might be in training at any one time.

Expects Invasion.

Advocating rapid action, Senator Gibson, Republican, of Vermont, told his colleagues today that the Senate had taken the same length of time to debate the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory conscription bill that had been required by Hitler to conquer France.

"No wonder that Hitler has the utmost contempt for democratic institutions which are incapable of prompt and wise action in times of emergency," the thirty-nine-year-old Senator said in his first formal address since he came to the Senate to fill the seat vacated by his father's death on June 20.

Senator Gibson took the floor after the start of today's session had been delayed for twenty-five minutes because a quorum of Senators was not present.

"I have heard on this floor," Mr. Gibson said, "many expressions by able members of this Senate that they do not believe there is any possibility of attack on this country. In all courtesy to them, their beliefs amount to nothing. Let us see what the one man who knows believes about the possibility of this attack.

Quoted From Book.

"A short time ago one of Hitler's most intimate friends wrote a book—I refer to 'The Voice of Destruction' by Hermann Rauschnig, very recently published. Listen to one short quotation from that book and then let any Senator arise and say he doesn't believe that Hitler will possibly attack us. I quote:

" 'National Socialism alone is destined to liberate the American people from their ruling clique and give them back the means of becoming a great nation. I shall undertake this task simultaneously with the restoration of Germany to her leading position in America.'

"What do you suppose he meant by these words? Do they mean the peaceful conquest of America by the infiltration of ideals of national socialism, or do they mean the type of liberation which Poland, Holland and Belgium have enjoyed?

"What do you suppose would happen to any of you Senators if you suddenly awakened some morning in your home town and found that fifty Germans equipped with light machine guns had landed during the night and taken possession of your City Hall, your communication system, your lighting system, your water system, your police station and your armory?"

Mr. Gibson argued that there must be a reservoir of trained men in every town.

Passage Predicted.

Administration strategists predicted today that the Senate would approve the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill next week by a margin of at least ten votes and in a form calling for immediate conscription.

These leaders also said that a recheck of their polls, following President Roosevelt's call for speedy enactment of a selective service law that would become effective at once, indicated that a substitute bill, sponsored by Senator Maloney of Connecticut, to delay the draft until January 1 faced defeat by a margin of from two to four votes.

The Senate gave up its usual Saturday holiday to continue debate. Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told reporters that he had hope of getting the Senate to agree to a limitation of debate.

On the other hand, Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, an opponent of conscription, said he thought no attempt would be made to cut off debate on a matter of this importance.

Fears Defense Delay.

The President said yesterday that to put off the actual drafting of men might delay the whole defense program a year or two and he remarked that Congress had been considering the matter since June 20 and still was talking.

Opponents of conscription conceded that Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that he was personally and absolutely opposed to postponement of compulsory military training was likely to swing the balance against Mr. Maloney's proposal to delay conscription until a system of voluntary one-year enlistments could be tried.

1,500 Couples Storm Bureaus In New York For Marriage Licenses

AUG 25 1940

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Extra police were called in to keep order today as more than 1,500 altar-bound young couples stormed the five marriage license bureaus of New York city.

The current rush to marry has kept pace with Congressional action on the selective service bill, but prospective bridegrooms questioned today denied they were hurrying into wedlock to escape the draft.

The biggest rush was at the Brooklyn bureau where approximately 1,200 couples tried to get licenses. A sergeant and two patrolmen were on duty, but when the situation got out of hand, another sergeant and thirteen patrolmen arrived. After a half-hour struggle with the crowd, they turned 300 couples away, telling them to come back another day.

DEBATE LIMITED ON DRAFT AS SENATE BALKS FILIBUSTER

AUG 25 1940 [redacted] NEWS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Senate determination to break an incipient filibuster and get to a vote on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill next week, as demanded by President Roosevelt, took form today in a 15-minute debate limitation on the Lodge amendment, which would limit the draft army to 800,000.

The Saturday session—a rarity in Senate procedure—was taken over by the "big guns" favoring the selective service army of 1,250,000.

Outdistancing them all, however, was youthful Republican Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont, 39-year-old

Senator Gibson

His speech wins praise.

"rookie" recently appointed to fill out the unexpired term of his deceased father. Gibson's eloquent plea for haste in passing the bill drew the praise of Majority Leader Alben Barkley as the best speech yet of the debate—an inter-party compliment which is also rare.

The Vermont Republican reminded the Senate that "Hitler was able to conquer France" in the same length of time it has taken to debate the bill. He added that it was no wonder Hitler has utmost contempt for democratic institutions which are incapable of prompt and wise actions in times of emergency.

Byrd Demands Action.

In an equally strong protest against delay in defense preparations that menace national security, Senator Byrd (D-Va.), demanded that the Senate "stay in session day and night until a vote is obtained" on the conscription bill.

His statement called on defense chiefs to explain why "the placing of orders for delivery of mechanized military equipment is lagging." Official figures "directly from the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of War," said Byrd, show that only 343 combat planes—99 for the Army and 244 for the Navy—have been ordered in the last 100 days, and that none will be delivered this calendar year.

"If red tape is to blame," added Byrd, "the country should know it. If it is due to the refusal of business enterprise to accept contracts from the Government, we should know it."

Gibson, delivering his first Senate speech from his "rookie row" seat in the rear, leveled a finger at opponents of the bill and told them they acted "as though the war in Europe was a spectacle produced in Hollywood, rather than the most hideous reality in the history of the bloody world."

"Let us arm for the women we would save from the ravisher; for the children we would guard from eternal bondage; for the altars that the swastika would darken," Gibson pleaded.

Gibson answered the opponents' talk about constitutional rights being invaded by peactime conscription with a story of his schoolboy experience with fire drills. He sarcastically told how under that "un-American and un-democratic institution" he was forced to learn how to escape in case of fire whether he wanted to or not.

Democratic Leader Barkley's ability to get the debate limit on the Lodge amendment—a mous consent was needed—was a indication that the opposition to t bill was weakening. However, had failed in an effort to get agre ment on a 2 P. M. Monday vote the Lodge amendment.

The other would suspend present limitations on profits on Government contracts.

The argument over the relative effects of the excess profits tax on large and small corporations, tax experts said, grew out of the fact that a small corporation might be charged heavily for making a few extra thousand dollars, while a big corporation making several million dollars a year might pay a smaller tax on an equal amount of profit.

For example:

Suppose company A has been earning $30,000 a year and this year makes $50,000. The pending law would tax it $5,125.

Suppose company B has been earning $1,000,000 a year. If it made $1,000,000 again this year, it would pay no excess profits tax. Or if it also added $50,000 to its earnings as company A did, and earned $1,050,000, the excess tax would be $3,750.

The tax would be smaller because the extra profit would be a smaller percentage of "normal earnings" and therefore subject to lower tax rates.

The discrepancy, however, would not be as great as it seems because the excess profits tax would be in addition to regular income taxes, which would be $10,450 on $50,000 profits and $209,000 on $1,000,000 profits.

If both were required to use an invested capital method, as some authorities have suggested, and assuming A had $50,000 capital and B $1,000,000 capital, here's how the taxes would work out:

Company A would pay $16,600 excess tax and Company B would pay $375,000.

Some object to this plan, too, on the ground that it is unfair to the big corporation.

Profit Tax Bill May Be Split

Separate Passage of Defense Feature Sought by Some Congress Groups.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—Despite various administration demands for quick action on some provisions, the administration's excess profits tax bill appeared today to be caught in a House committee controversy as to whether proposed levies fall with equal weight on small and large corporations.

As a result some members of the ways and means committee renewed talk of splitting the measure in an attempt to obtain separate passage for those provisions designed to speed up industry's defense production.

One provision urged by army, navy and defense commission officials would permit manufacturers expanding their plants for defense purposes to write off the expansion cost against their taxable income over a five-year period.

RFC Financing Available To Boeing And Bendix Aviation For Plant Expansion

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced tonight that it had offered to lend $10,500,000 to the Boeing Airplane Company and $18,587,855 to the Bendix Aviation Corporation to finance plant expansions.

Emil Schram, RFC chairman, told P. J. Johnson, Boeing president, the RFC would lend the money at four per cent. interest on first mortgages on plants to be constructed at Wichita, Kan., and Seattle, Wash.

The offer was contingent on the company's securing a Government contract for 500 bombing planes. Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator told Edwin R. Palmer, vice-president-treasurer of Bendix, the RFC would lend money at four per cent.

BIG POWER SOURCES LINKED IN FAR WEST

White House Says Marketing From Bonneville and Grand Coulee Will Be Combined

AS AID TO DEFENSE PLANTS

One Aim Is to Speed Up Supply of Strategic Minerals Found in Pacific Coast Region

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Administration moved today to combine a potential 2,400,000 kilowatts of government hydro-electric power from the Columbia River to meet prospective national defense requirements in the Pacific Northwest.

A White House statement disclosed that President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes were preparing an executive order combining the marketing of electric energy produced at the Bonneville and Grand Coulee Dams on the river in Washington and Oregon.

Interior Department officials said that the combined power could be used by national defense industries to manufacture aircraft, ordnance, munitions and ships from Western raw materials.

The White House statement said that the Bonneville administration, with headquarters at Portland, Ore., under command of Paul J. Raver, would become the marketing agency for both power projects. Mr. Raver, 46, a native of Logansport, Ind., and former chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, became Bonneville administrator on Aug. 21.

"By combining the marketing of power produced at the Bonneville and Grand Coulee Dams under one marketing agency," the White House statement said, "the transmission network now under construction by the Bonneville power administration will carry the low-cost power from both developments throughout the Pacific Northwest.

"The present emergency makes even more pressing the need for coordinating the power facilities of the two projects and for providing a single agency for marketing the power in the region.

"The present national defense emergency makes evident the fact that the many strategic and critical mineral reserves found in the Pacific Northwest are a matter of national interest. An abundance of low-cost electric power available in the Columbia River region will accelerate the supply of necessary minerals for national defense, because electricity is an important factor in the processing of many of these minerals. It will also provide power for war industries in this region."

Grand Coulee would begin to produce power in 1941, officials said. Bonneville is now in operation with commitments of 106,850 kilowatts to industries and public power agencies. Officials said that about 300,000 kilowatts would be available from Bonneville on the transmission network within 12 months.

Since taking charge at Bonneville, Mr. Raver has executed contracts for the sale of government power to the Aluminum Company of America, the Sierra Iron Company, the Portland (Ore.) General Electric Company, and adjacent cities, towns, municipalities and public utility districts.

To Coordinate Power Of Columbia River

Roosevelt To Make Resources Available For National Defense Needs

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The White House today said President Roosevelt would coordinate the power resources of the Columbia river by combining the marketing of power produced at the Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams under one agency.

Stephen Early, press secretary, said the transmission network now under construction by the Bonneville Power Administration would carry the low-cost power from both developments through the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Roosevelt, he added, informed his Cabinet meeting yesterday of the plan to coordinate the power resources of the Columbia "available for the requirements of national defense, industrial development and domestic consumption."

Officers of All Americas Invited to See U. S. Army

Marshall Arranges for Tours During October Visits

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, has invited the chiefs of staff and one officer from each republic of South and Central America to visit the United States in October in order to become familiar with the United States military establishment.

In making this announcement today, the War Department said it was contemplated that officials of the armies of Bolivia, Argentina, Peru, Uruguay, Panama, the Dominican Republic, Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Columbia would visit the United States from Oct. 1 to 14.

A second group—from Ecuador, Chile, Haiti, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Venezuela, Mexico, Brazil and Cuba—was invited to be here from Oct. 16 to 30.

The department said that the invitations were extended in two groups in order to take advantage of the most favorable weather conditions.

The department said that the visitors would be transported by Army planes to various Army posts. The tentative itinerary for the tours follow:

Washington, two days; infantry school, Fort Benning, Ga., two days; Barksdale Field and air corps installations in the San Antonio, Tex., area, two days; ground troop activities, San Antonio, two days; field artillery school, Fort Sill, Okla., two days; Fort Knox, Ky., two days; Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., one day; Washington, one day.

Razor Blades for Defense

SAVANNAH, Aug. 24 (AP).—A new suggestion on the old problem of what to do with used razor blades comes from Bernard M. Nelson. He has written national defense leaders suggesting a nationwide movement to establish receptacles for collecting old blades as a means of recovering "valuable material now going to waste."

Name LaGuardia U. S. Chairman Of Joint Defense

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—The six United States members of the Joint American-Canadian Defense Board named Mayor LaGuardia of New York as their chairman today after conferring at length with President Roosevelt.

LaGuardia announced after a separate meeting of the board that the group would leave tomorrow, for their first meeting with their Canadian colleagues in Ottawa on Monday.

As he left the White House, LaGuardia told newsmen:

"The United States members of the permanent joint board met with the President, who outlined his views of the situation.

"The members then met to discuss procedure and arranged to leave tomorrow afternoon for Ottawa."

Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox participated in the meeting with the President, but left before it was over.

Before Mayor LaGuardia left LaGuardia Field on an American Airlines plane yesterday morning, he was questioned concerning the suggestion of Theodore T. Hayes, acting United States Commissioner to the World's Fair, that the Fair grounds be converted into a national defense base for Army and Navy use.

"If the Army and Navy want it, arrangements can be made," the Mayor said, pointing out that a decision would have to be made in a few days because of demolition contracts between the Fair and exhibitors.

Long Hours May Not Boost Output, Sen. Wagner Asserts

Social Legislation Advocate Replies To Idea Labor Standards Must Be Modified

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 24.—Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem., N. Y.), replying to "the suggestion that labor standards must be modified in the interest of national defense," declared tonight that "long hours of labor do not necessarily result in increased production of goods."

Wagner, outstanding advocate and author of national social legislation, spoke in an interview broadcast.

Four Answers

The original forty-hour-week law in France was a forty-hour week for factories as well as for their workers. There is nothing in our labor laws to hinder American factories from operation twenty-four hours a day, and an increasing number of our factories are, in fact, operating on three shifts.

Our factories are not hindered by law from a longer work week if they pay time and a half for overtime.

We must find and give work to unemployed millions before we begin to work present employes overtime. Five million workers are registered in the United States employment offices for all types of jobs, including skilled labor needed for national defense.

Experience here and in Great Britain proves conclusively that long hours of labor do not necessarily result in increasing production of goods. During the last war, the chief of ordnance of the United States Army made this statement: "Industrial history proves that fair working conditions and a proper wage scale are essential to high production."

Wagner blamed "insecurity and cial maladjustment" on enemies wi... in our gates," and added that "we can no more afford to adopt a half-hearted policy of appeasement toward them than toward a potential invading foe."

BULLITT DENIES STATEMENT ON FAVORING WAR

Ambassador Declares He Never Assured French Of U. S. Help

Letter Calls Charge He Met With Cabinet "Nonsense"

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 24—Senator Clark (Dem., Mo.) made public in the Senate today a denial from Ambassador William C. Bullitt that he had promised France that this country would enter the European war.

The denial took the form of a letter protesting "many misstatements" in a newspaper article by the Senator's sister, Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thomson. Similar statements had been made in the Senate by some critics of the Ambassador.

"Paul Reynaud did not become French Premier until more than six months after France had gone to war upon the invasion of Poland," Bullitt wrote. "Never, at any time, to any French Premier or anyone else, did I write a letter indicating or intimating that if France went to war she would be followed in a short time by the United States."

"Fantastic Nonsense"

The Ambassador said a published statement that he sat in French Cabinet meetings was "fantastic nonsense."

"It would be as impossible for the American Ambassador in Paris to sit in a French Cabinet meeting as for the French Ambassador in Washington to sit in an American Cabinet meeting.

Bullitt also said that "I never received any orders from the State Department to follow the French Government to Bordeaux" in answer to a charge that he remained in Paris after German occupation, contrary to State Department orders.

Denies Going Over Any Heads

He also denied that he had ignored State Department superiors on his return to this country by reporting directly to President Roosevelt. He explained that ". . . the Secretary of State and the Under Secretary were absent from the city. I reported immediately to the ranking officer of the Department of State who was in the city—an adviser to the Secretary of State. I then reported at the White House and after returning from Hyde Park, immediately reported to all the authorities of the Department of State."

Clark explained that he had forwarded Bullitt's letter to his sister, an editor for a New Orleans newspaper before placing it in the Congressional Record.

He also placed in the Record an explanation from Mrs. Thomson which said her article had been based upon published reports she regarded as authentic and added that she hoped many of the things that Bullitt denied were untrue.

DANGER TO AMERICA IS REAL, SAYS HULL

Secretary Appeals For Full Support For Western Hemisphere Defense

Joint U. S.-Canadian Board To Hold First Meeting In Ottawa Tomorrow

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 24—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, appealed to the American people today for united support of "full and adequate preparations" to defend the Western Hemisphere.

In a statement, the State Department head declared that "the possibilities of danger to the American republics are real.

"The conclusion is therefore inescapable that full and adequate preparations for hemispheric defense cannot be completed too soon," he added. "I desire again to appeal for the fullest possible measure of unity on the part of our people in support of such program of defense and of related foreign policies."

Meets In Ottawa Tomorrow

Meanwhile, other governmental departments took steps to make Western Hemisphere preparedness a reality.

Six American members of the recently created joint United States-Canadian Defense Board arranged to leave for Ottawa tomorrow for the board's first meeting Monday.

The American members named Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York as their chairman after conferring with President Roosevelt. The group said no statement on defense plans would be made before the Monday meeting.

The Navy Department assigned Capt. Oliver M. Read as American naval and air attache at Ottawa.

Negotiating For Bases

Secretary Hull's appeal for unity in support of a hemispheric defense program was issued at a time when Administration officials are striving to work out methods of acquiring naval and air-base sites in this hemisphere from Great Britain. President Roosevelt announced recently that negotiations for acquisition of such bases were being conducted with Great Britain, and reliable sources said today that they understood Robert H. Jackson, Attorney General, gave the Roosevelt Cabinet yesterday an opinion on the legal questions involved.

It has been proposed in Congressional quarters that Britain's World War debts to the United States be canceled or reduced in exchange for ninety-nine-year leases on bases in Newfoundland, Bermuda, Trinidad, and other British territory in the New World.

Loans To Latin America

Already pending in Congress is an Administration proposal to increase the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank and clarify its power to make loans to Latin-American countries to facilitate the handling of their surplus products while European markets are closed to them by the war.

Secretary Hull did not mention any of these proposals specifically.

Text Of Hull's Statement

The text of the statement:

"I feel constrained to reemphasize the view expressed upon my return from the Havana Conference, that the possibilities of danger to the American republics are real; that a threat to any important part of the Americas means a threat to each and all of the American nations.

"The conclusion is, therefore, inescapable that full and adequate preparations for hemispheric defense cannot be completed too soon. I desire, again, to appeal for the fullest possible measure of unity on the part of our people in support of such program of defense and of related foreign policies."

TEACHERS AGAINST ANY DICTATORSHIP

Federation Assails Nazi and Red Tyranny

BUFFALO, Aug. 24 (A. P.).—A resolution condemning all forms of dictator government had been accepted today by the American Federation of Teachers as the final session of its annual convention came to a close.

Dissatisfaction with the resolution, even in its final form, was indicated in the vote—announced as 358 to 250. The outcome was revealed following a secret roll-call, which was decided upon when delegates failed yesterday to agree on the language of the resolution.

The anti-dictator resolution was directed at "all dictatorships, whether of Nazi, Fascist or Communist origin, whether in Germany, Italy or Russia."

In the same resolution the federation pledged its support to the United States Constitution, calling for "continuation for all people" of the principles of American Government.

After nearly one and a half hours of bitter debate on a resolution dealing with possible involvement of the United States in the European war delegates voted to adjourn sine die. No action was taken on that resolution.

Hood Co-eds Will Help Austrian Refugee in College

By The Associated Press.

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—Co-eds of Hood College, through the cooperation of the American Friends' Service Committee in Philadelphia, will help "underwrite" the college education of an Austrian girl, a refugee from her native Vienna.

College officials announced that the student, Miss Maria Eva Vari, now living in New York, would enroll for the Fall term.

Under a plan approved by the college trustees several months ago, the college will furnish tuition and living expenses for Miss Vari, while members of the student body will contribute funds for clothing and incidentals.

Miss Vari was named as the refugee student after conferences with the Philadelphia committee, which has been seeking similar arrangements with colleges throughout the country.

She fled Austria last year and spent a year in England, serving as a governess for six months.

Among the passengers are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, and Princess Martha of Norway and her three children.

IN JUNE HE ASKED MRS. HEITZ TO PROVIDE A HAVEN IN THIS COUNTRY FOR THE CHILDREN AND THEIR 70-YEAR-OLD GRANDMOTHER.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED, ALLISON WROTE THAT THEY WERE WAITING FOR A SHIP.

A SERIES OF CENSORED MESSAGES FOLLOWED, AT INTERVALS IN JUNE AND JULY:

THIS LETTER ENDED: "WE DON'T KNOW WHEN WE CAN SEND THEM."

English City Sends Plea to Namesake

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 24 (A. P.).—This city had a request today from the city of the same name in England to help buy a fighter airplane.

Mayor Joshua Studley, declaring that any action on the matter rested with the City Council, which meets September 3, said he had received this cablegram from the Lord Mayor of Rochester, England:

"Opening fund to buy fighter aircraft for our city squadron. Each Spitfire and Hurricane costs us $25,000. Can mother city look to you for help to defend our homes?"

British vs. British

Operator Tells Of Messages Reporting Gunfire Between Ships

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP)—The radio operator of the American Export liner Exeter, which returned today from Lisbon with 175 passengers, including ninety-nine aliens, told of hearing wireless messages reporting the shelling of one British ship by another.

It occurred Aug. 19 about 600 miles west of Lisbon, said the operator, Robert Redman. He first picked up a message from the Rowollan Castle, 7,798-ton freighter, saying, "shelled by raider." Later came another message: "still chasing us and gunning."

After the Exeter had given her position and asked whether she could aid the Rowollan Castle, Redman said he heard the 11,136-ton liner Circassia reporting to England: "We fired on Rowollan Castle." There was no explanation, Redman said.

The overloaded Exeter—twenty-four passengers slept on cots in the lounge—left Lisbon August 15 and stopped at Bermuda, where 315 sacks of mail from Switzerland, Spain and Portugal were removed for censorship.

JAILED FOR HITLER 'HAIL'

Louisville Youth Had Signs on His Auto

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 24 (AP)—Kenneth Metzmeier, 19, was fined $50 and sentenced to thirty days in jail on a disorderly conduct charge today for having "Hail Hitler" and swastikas painted in two places on the front bumper of his 1930 model automobile.

The youth, a metal worker, pleaded guilty to the charge after Sergeant Edward Fawbush admonished him that the painted words "might incite a riot."

Attention of the police was called to Kenneth's roadster by complaints of people who had seen the wording on the front bumper.

"Hail Hitler" and swastikas were painted in red on each end of the double bumper. In the center, in larger letters, was "Kenny" and below "Louise." Metzmeier explained Louise was his "girl friend."

He told the court he was "sorry" and "didn't mean anything."

"I had some paint left over and just wrote the letters there," he said.

He was born in this country, his parents were born here also and he would "like to join the navy," Kenneth testified.

"I'll never put another drop of paint on that car if it rusts to pieces," he told reporters.

A police towed the auto to a garage to remove the paint on the bumper.

Germans Questioned On Their Arrival In U. S.

Four Aviation Mechanics And Flyers Land At San Francisco From South America

San Francisco, Aug. 24 (AP)—Four German aviation mechanics and flyers from South America were questioned closely by immigration authorities today on their arrival aboard the United States liner Manhattan.

W. E. Walsh, immigration inspector, called the investigation "routine," but it lasted several hours. The Germans are returning to the fatherland via Japan and Siberia, after a period of employment at the Scadtka Aviation Company at Bogota, Colombia. They boarded the ship at Panama.

"This is a vacation," said one of the quartet, who had been in South America twelve years. The four, Guenther Katzke, Franz Neumann, Hans Sandkamm and Ewald Flesch, declined to say whether they were summoned to the fatherland because of a growing need for aviators and mechanics.

Tells 2d Naval District Group Future Depends on British, Chinese Efforts

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 24 (AP).—Rear-Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, U. S. N. (retired), former commander of the Asiatic Fleet, urging "all possible aid" for Great Britain and China, said today that the United States' future existence as a nation "depends on the overthrow of the two great despotisms in the West and in the East."

"It is our war as much as that of Great Britain and China," he said in an address prepared for a reunion of the 2d Naval District Association. "And make no mistake," he added, "the outcome of the war in Asia is as important to us as that in Europe."

"As for Great Britain," Admiral Yarnell said, "we can send planes, destroyers and other necessary naval craft and repeal the neutrality and Johnson acts in order that the necessary food and munition supplies may reach her.

"As for China, we can stop war material going to Japan, insist on the opening of the Burma Road, make the necessary loans to support the nationalist government, and strengthen the Asiatic Fleet, basing the reinforcements at Singapore."

Citing speeches by Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan as evidence of fascist intentions to rule the world, Admiral Yarnell warned that if the liberties won by bloodshed in past centuries were lost now, "the world will revert to the dark ages as far as the rights of man are concerned."

Before discussing international developments, Admiral Yarnell called

Yarnell Asserts Despots' Defeat Is Vital to U. S.

BY MAX BOYD

AUG 25 1940

(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON, AUG. 31-(AP)-INTO THE MILITARY TEXTBOOKS OF THE WORLD, THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR IN EUROPE HAS WRITTEN A NEW CHAPTER ENTITLED: "MECHANICAL SPEED AND POWER".

STILL IN THE BOOKS, REVERED AND RESPECTED BY MILITARY MEN, ARE THE GREAT LESSONS OF THE PAST ON BASIC STRATEGY--HANNIBAL'S DOUBLE ENVELOPMENT OF THE ROMANS AT CANNAE, NAPOLEON'S RULE TO "DIVIDE AND CONQUER", VON SCHLIEFFEN'S ONCE-THWARTED PLAN TO CAPTURE PARIS, AND LESS RENOWNED UNDERTAKINGS LIKE SHERMAN'S MARCH FROM ATLANTA TO THE SEA.

BUT THE HOLOCAUST THAT BEGAN WITH GERMANY'S MARCH INTO POLAND ON SEPTEMBER 1, 1939, HAS GIVEN THE WORLD A NEW CONCEPTION OF THE SPEED AND POWER WITH WHICH MACHINES CAN EXECUTE THE FAMILIAR BROAD PLANS OF

30.24-4525

WAR.

AS ONE MILITARY EXPERT PUTS IT:

"THIS CONFLICT HAS BROUGHT THE FIRST APPLICATION OF THE INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINE TO WARFARE ON A GRAND SCALE!"

SO FAR AS STRATEGY IS CONCERNED, THIS EXPERT THINKS THE GERMANS USED ABOUT THE SAME BROAD PLAN IN THE BATTLE OF FLANDERS AS HANNIBAL DID WHEN HIS CARTHAGINIANS GAVE THE ROMANS THEIR WORST DEFEAT IN HISTORY ON THE ITALIAN BATTLEFIELD OF CANNAE 216 YEARS BEFORE CHRIST.

IN THE BATTLE OF CANNAE, HANNIBAL'S FORCES FIRST ATTACKED NEAR THE CENTER OF THEIR LINE, THEN SLOWLY WITHDREW TO DRAW THE COUNTER-ATTACKING ROMANS INTO A CROWDED POCKET.

BOTH RIGHT AND LEFT WINGS OF THE CARTHAGINIANS THEN SWEPT FORWARD SWIFTLY, ALL BUT SURROUNDING THE POCKETED FIGHTERS AND DRIVING THEM TOGETHER SO CLOSELY THAT THEY HAD LITTLE ROOM IN WHICH TO WIELD THEIR SWORDS. FINALLY, CAVALRY RODE THROUGH WHAT REMAINED OF THE MOUTH OF THE POCKET AND SLAUGHTERED THE CLOSELY-PACKED ROMANS.

IN DRAWING A PARALLEL BETWEEN THIS CLASSIC MILITARY STRATEGY AND THAT EMPLOYED BY THE GERMANS IN FLANDERS, IT IS POINTED OUT THE NAZIS STRUCK AGAINST HOLLAND AND BELGIUM AND THUS DREW THE FRENCH AND BRITISH INTO THE LOW COUNTRIES.

AUG 25 1940

GERMAN COMMANDERS WERE WELL AWARE THAT BRITISH TROOPS COULD NOT AFFORD TO SIT IDLY BEHIND THE "LITTLE MAGINOT" LINE AND SEE THE CAPTURE OF DUTCH AND BELGIAN PORTS FROM WHICH AIR RAIDERS COULD REACH ENGLAND EASILY.

THEY WERE AWARE ALSO THAT FRANCE, HAVING FAILED TO BUILD A FULL-STRENGTH MAGINOT LINE BETWEEN ITSELF AND BELGIUM, COUNTED ON THE ALBERT CANAL AND BELGIAN FORTIFICATIONS TO HELP REPULSE THE INVADERS.

THE ALLIED TROOPS RUSHED, THEN, TO PROTECT THEIR VITAL INTERESTS IN THE INVADED COUNTRIES.

NO SOONER HAD THEY DONE SO THAN THE NAZIS, WITH THEIR MARVELOUSLY COORDINATED USE OF DIVE BOMBERS, TANKS AND INFANTRY, BROKE THROUGH AT SEDAN AND RACED FOR THE COAST IN A VAST ENVELOPING MOVEMENT.

ONLY THE MIRACLE OF DUNKIRQUE SAVED THE POCKETED ALLIES FROM COMPLETE ENCIRCLEMENT AND ANNIHILATION. THE GERMANS TRIED TO DO, WITH PLANES AND ARTILLERY, WHAT THE CAVALRY DID IN THE LAST CMQTER OF CANN

AUG 25 1940

WITH PLANES AND ARTILLERY, WHAT THE CAVALRY DID IN THE LAST CHAPTER OF CANNAE.

BUT BRITISH PLANES FOUGHT THE NAZI RAIDERS TO A STANDSTILL, AND HEROIC REAR GUARD ACTIONS KEPT ENEMY TROOPS AWAY FROM THE PORT AT DUNKIRKQUE, UNTIL THOUSANDS OF BRITISH AND FRENCH SOLDIERS HAD BEEN TAKEN TO ENGLAND THROUGH THE NARROW MOUTH OF THE POCKET.

THIS DOUBLE ENVELOPMENT PLAN HAS BEEN A FETISH WITH THE GERMANS FOR MANY, MANY YEARS.

VON SCHLIEFFEN, THE GREAT GERMAN GENERAL, OUTLINED IT COMPLETELY BEFORE THE WORLD WAR.

AS HE VISUALIZED IT, IN THE DAYS WHEN THERE WAS NO MAGINOT LINE, THE DOUBLE ENVELOPMENT WOULD HAVE OPERATED ON A GRANDER SCALE. IT WAS HIS IDEA THAT ONE ARM OF THE ENVELOPING FORCES SHOULD GO THROUGH SWITZERLAND, THE OTHER THROUGH BELGIUM OR HOLLAND.

HIS DYING ADVICE TO THE FATHERLAND WAS THAT THE RIGHT WING SHOULD BE KEPT STRONG.

AS MILITARY MEN HERE SEE IT, THE VON SCHLIEFFEN PLAN FAILED IN THE WORLD WAR FOR TWO REASONS. ONE WAS THAT THE GERMANS FAILED TO SECURE THE CHANNEL PORTS BEFORE PRESSING ONWARD TOWARD PARIS; THE OTHER WAS THAT THE GERMANS WEAKENED THE RIGHT WING TO SEND TROOPS TO THE EAST AGAINST RUSSIA.

IN THE FIRST BATTLE OF THE MARNE, THE ENVELOPING MOVEMENT WAS STOPPED AND TURNED BACK. IT NEVER GOT AS FAR AGAIN UNTIL THE SECOND BATTLE OF THE MARNE IN 1918, BY WHICH TIME AMERICAN TROOPS WERE THERE TO ASSIST IN STOPPING IT.

TO SOME EXPERTS, WHO PREFER TO LOOK AT THE WHOLE BATTLEFRONT OF THE LAST YEAR RATHER THAN AT THE FLANDERS SECTOR BY ITSELF, THE STRATEGY OF THE GERMANS RESEMBLES THAT OF GENERAL SHERMAN ON HIS CIVIL WAR MARCH THROUGH ENEMY COUNTRY FROM ATLANTA TO THE SEA.

HIS ARMY WAS SELF-CONTAINED, LIVING ON THE COUNTRY, DESTROYING EVERYTHING IT DID NOT USE.

GERMANY'S FLEET PANZER DIVISIONS ARE ABLE TO OPERATE IN SOMEWHAT SIMILAR FASHION, PENETRATING DEEP INTO ENEMY TERRITORY AND DESTROYING COMMUNICATIONS WITHOUT CONCENTRATING ON PROTECTION OF THEIR OWN FLANKS OR REMAINING NEAR THEIR BASES OF SUPPLY.

THE STRATEGY USED BY GERMANY IN PENETRATING THE ALLIES' LINE AND CUTTING THEIR FORCES IN TWO DID NOT IGNORE THE DANGER OF EXPOSING BOTH FLANKS OF THE PENETRATING COLUMN, HOWEVER.

THE TANKS AND TROOP-CARRYING TRUCKS THAT ROLLED FROM SEDAN TO THE SEA KEPT THE SOMME RIVER BETWEEN THEMSELVES AND ALLIED REINFORCEMENTS, THUS USING FOR THEIR OWN PROTECTION ONE OF FRANCE'S GREAT NATURAL BARRIERS AGAINST INVASION.

THE IMPORTANCE OF MOBILITY TO GAIN AN ADVANTAGE IN TIME OVER EQUAL OR SUPERIOR FORCES--TO ENABLE AN ATTACKING FORCE TO DESTROY ;MENT OF THE ENEMY, FOR INSTANCE, BEFORE REINFORCEMENTS CAN --HAS LONG BEEN RECOGNIZED.

NAPOLEON IS CREDITED WITH HAVING ACHIEVED SUCH AN ADVANTAGE IN HIS INAUGURATION OF SUPPLY BY COMBAT WAGONS AND CARTS.

APPARENTLY, GERMANY RECOGNIZED IN THE PRODUCTION OF HER PRESENT HIGHLY-MECHANIZED ARMY THAT THE PERFECTION OF MOTORIZED EQUIPMENT HAD PROVIDED THE MEANS TO OBTAIN THE GREATEST ADVANTAGE IN MOBILITY SINCE THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE RAILROAD.

IN ANY EVENT, HER FAST LIGHT TANKS, PERSONNEL-CARRYING TRUCKS AND HORDES OF AIRPLANE HAVE CONSTITUTED THE PRINCIPAL NEW ELEMENT IN THE PRESENT WAR.

NEITHER TANKS, AIRPLANES NOR TROOP-CARRYING TRUCKS ARE ENTIRELY NEW; BUT NEVER BEFORE WERE THEY AS FAST AND POWERFUL NOR AS NUMEROUS.

TANKS INTRODUCED BY THE BRITISH IN THE WORLD WAR WERE HUGE, LUMBERING BATTLE-WAGONS THAT TRAVELED FROM FOUR TO SIX MILES AN HOUR OR LESS AND HAD TO STOP FREQUENTLY FOR REPAIRS.

PLANES STARTED OUT IN THE WORLD WAR IN A PURELY OBSERVATORY ROLE; NEAR THE END OF THE WAR BOMBARDIERS WERE STILL SIGHTING THEIR BOMBS BY LINING UP THE TARGET WITH A COUPLE OF NAILS FASTENED INSIDE THE COCKPIT.

THE COORDINATED USE OF THE POWERFUL NEW EQUIPMENT HAS DEMONSTRATED ONCE AGAIN THE GREAT VALUE OF SURPRISE IN WAR. IT IS ONE OF THE RULES OF THE GAME THAT SURPRISE IS ALMOST ALWAYS SUCCESSFUL.

OBVIOUSLY, THE FRENCH WERE TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

FEW IF ANY FRENCH OFFICERS BELIEVED THE GERMANS COULD MOVE AT SUCH SPEED OR GO SO DEEPLY THROUGH FRENCH DEFENSES, LEAVING THEIR FLANKS EXPOSED. THE FRENCH HAD INADEQUATE DEFENSES AGAINST BOTH TANKS AND DIVE BOMBERS.

TO MANY MILITARY MEN, THE DEFEAT OF FRANCE WAS THE FIRST DEMONSTRATION OF THE THEORY THAT WHOEVER HAS COMPLETE DOMINANCE OF THE AIR WINS, OTHER THINGS BEING EQUAL OR NEARLY SO.

30.24-4527

THE MILITARISTS WHO TAKE THIS VIEW SAY THAT THE DEMONSTRATION THUS FAR HAS BEEN CONVINCING AS TO WARFARE ON AND OVER THE LAND; THAT WHETHER THE THEORY APPLIES WITH EQUAL FORCE TO NAVAL WARFARE HAS YET TO BE SHOWN CONCLUSIVELY.

CAVALRY OFFICERS FIND IN THE GERMAN PENETRATION OF THE FRENCH FORCES AT SEDAN AN HISTORICAL PARALLEL WITH PENETRATIONS EFFECTED BY BATTLE CAVALRY IN THE PAST.

THE WAR HAS DEMONSTRATED GENERALLY THAT MANY PEOPLE, ESPECIALLY THE FRENCH, HAD GREATLY OVER-ESTIMATED THE POWER OF DEFENSE AGAINST THE POWER OF OFFENSE.

MANY HAD THOUGHT THE DEFENSE WOULD HAVE AN EASIER TIME OBTAINING SUPPLIES, AND THAT ITS CASUALTIES WOULD BE LESS.

IN THIS CASE, INFORMATION IN MILITARY CIRCLES HERE INDICATES, CASUALTIES ON THE DEFENSE HAVE BEEN GREATER.

AS TO SUPPLIES, THE GERMAN ADVANCE FORCES HAD A THREE-DAY SUPPLY WITH THEM AND, IN MANY INSTANCES, THE RESERVE WAS LESS THAN TWELVE HOURS BEHIND.

SOME AMERICAN MILITARY EXPERTS BELIEVE FRANCE MIGHT HAVE HAD A CHANCE AGAINST THE GERMAN WAR MACHINE, IN SPITE OF ITS SPEED, HAD NOT FRENCH AUTHORITIES PERMITTED APPROXIMATELY 2,000,000 BELGIANS TO ENTER FRANCE AND SPREAD THE WORD OF THE GERMAN ADVANCE THROUGH THE FRENCH PEASANTRY.

REFUGEES CREATED HOPELESS TRAFFIC CONGESTION ON EVERY ROAD; HAD THEY STAYED AT HOME THE FRENCH ARMY WOULD HAVE BEEN MUCH BETTER OFF.

THESE SAME EXPERTS HAVE BEEN IMPRESSED GREATLY WITH THE PROPORTIONS OF "FIFTH COLUMN" ACTIVITY USED BY THE GERMANS, BUT THEY DO NOT REGARD THIS AS ANYTHING NEW IN WAR.

THERE ARE PARALLELS FOR IT, THEY POINT OUT, FROM THE TIME OF THE ORIGINAL "TROJAN HORSE" THROUGH THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR. IT WAS IN THE LATTER CONFLICT THAT THE USE OF SYMPATHIZERS AND SPIES WITHIN THE ENEMY'S GATES RECEIVED ITS PRESENT NAME.

THE PREVAILING IDEA HERE IS THAT TREACHERY WITHIN THE RANKS OF THE FRENCH ARMY MAY NOT HAVE BEEN AS WIDESPREAD AS DEVELOPMENTS INDICATED; THAT SENTINELS LEFT TO BLOW UP BRIDGES UPON THE APPROACH OF THE GERMANS DID NOT BETRAY THE REPUBLIC THEMSELVES, BUT WERE KILLED BY SPIES WHO POSED AS FRENCH PEASANTS OR SOLDIERS.

THE WAR HAS BROUGHT A NEW CONCEPTION OF AERIAL BOMBERS AS A "SUPER-ARTILLERY", BOMBING TROOP AND SUPPLY CONCENTRATIONS HUNDREDS OF MILES BEHIND THE LINES INSTEAD OF TEN OR FIFTEEN AS ARTILLERY USED TO DO.

ANOTHER DEVELOPMENT LITTLE KNOWN IN THE WORLD WAR HAS BEEN THE USE OF OLD PLANES TO TRANSPORT TROOPS; THE RUSSIANS HAVE EVEN GONE SO FAR AS TO TRANSPORT LIGHT TANKS BY PLANE.

PLANES HAVE BEEN USED WIDELY, OF COURSE, TO DROP TROOPS BY PARACHUTE BEHIND ENEMY LINES; THIS HAS BEEN ONE OF THE MOST WIDELY PUBLICIZED PHASES OF THE "FIFTH COLUMN" ACTIVITY.

THE MILITARY WORLD IS STILL WONDERING AS TO ALL OF THE TACTICS THAT WERE USED BY THE GERMANS TO OVERPOWER THE GREAT FORTS IN BELGIUM; ONE POSSIBILITY SUGGESTED IN AMERICAN CIRCLES IS THAT THE GERMANS MAY HAVE FOUND AND CUT THE UNDERGROUND POWER LINES THAT LED TO THE MACHINERY AND LIGHTING SYSTEMS OF THESE FORTS.

TACTICS USED AGAINST HEAVY FRENCH FORTIFICATIONS ARE SAID TO HAVE INCLUDED PROTECTION OF TANKS WITH SMOKE SCREENS UNTIL THEY GOT WITHIN FLAME-THROWING RANGE AND KILLED THE DEFENDERS WITH FLAMES SHOT THROUGH THE GUN APERTURES.

ONE CONVICTION THAT HAS GROWN WITH THE PROGRESS OF THE WAR HAS BEEN THAT AIRPLANES ARE THE BEST DEFENSE AGAINST AIRPLANES; THAT PLANE ATTACKS CAN BE NEUTRALIZED FAIRLY WELL BY FIGHTER CRAFT SHOOTING DOWN THE ATTACKERS OR BY BOMBERS RETALIATING AGAINST THE ENEMY COUNTRY.

PERHAPS, THE BIGGEST QUESTION LEFT UNANSWERED BY THE FIRST YEAR OF THE CONFLICT IS WHETHER BRITAIN'S OLD STRATEGY OF BLOCKADING THE CONTINENT WITH NAVAL POWER CAN BE MAINTAINED OVER A LONG PERIOD, AS IT MUST TO STARVE OUT AND WEAKEN GERMANY, IN THE FACE OF THE NEW FACTOR OF AERIAL POWER.

THAT ANSWER MAY BE WRITTEN IN THE AIRPLANE FACTORIES OF BRITAIN AND THIS COUNTRY.

FOR THE BRITISH RELY UPON THESE FACTORIES TO NEUTRALIZE EVENTUALLY THE GREAT NUMERICAL SUPERIORITY NOW ENJOYED BY GERMANY IN THE AIR.

SPECIAL NEWS SERVICE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

(ADVANCE)--A EUROPE DOMINATED BY ADOLF HITLER IN THE BRIEF SPAN OF 12 MONTHS PASSES THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF ITS LATEST WAR TODAY (SEPT. 1)--A CONFLICT WITHOUT PARALLEL IN THE OLD WORLD'S CENTURIES OF QUARRELING.

IN THIS TYPE THE GERMAN [illegible]RER, SELF-PROCLAIMED BULDER OF A "NEW EUROPE," IN THE WORDS OF HIS OWN PRESS CHIEF "EQUALLED NAPOLEON" AND THE END IS NOT IN SIGHT.

HE SUBJUGATED NEARLY ONE-FIFTH OF EUROPE'S HALF-BILLION POPULATION AND MORE THAN ONE-SIXTH OF ITS 3,750,000 SQUARE MILES OF TERRITORY.

FRANCE, THE BIGGEST PRIZE, AND POLAND, WHERE THE WAR STARTED, WERE CONQUERED.

FIVE OTHER NATIONS--NORWAY, DENMARK, THE NETHERLANDS, BELGIUM AND LUXEMBOURG--BOWED TO THE NIGHT OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST MILITARY MACHINE.

AND NOW PLAYING FOR THE BIGGEST STAKE OF ALL, THE GERMANS ARE BATTERING AT BRITAIN WITH THREE-DIMENSION, "TOTAL" WAR BY LAND, SEA AND BLOCKADE.

EXCEPT FOR POLAND, WHICH WAS FINISHED OFF IN A MONTH, HITLER'S CONQUESTS HAVE BEEN ACHIEVED SINCE THE APRIL 9 INVASION OF NORWAY AND DENMARK.

UP UNTIL THEN, FROM THE TIME THE WAR STARTED IN POLAND SEPT. 1 AND THE BRITISH ENTRY THREE DAYS LATER, THE WAR'S INACTION LED SOME PEOPLE TO CALL IT A "PHONY."

IT WASN'T "PHONY" LONG.

THE COST IN BLOOD TO DATE IS A MATTER FOR THE HISTORIANS OF THE FUTURE TO RECORD.

SO FAR, 236,603 DEAD HAVE BEEN ADMITTED OFFICIALLY AND RELIABLY ESTIMATED. BUT THIS DOES NOT INCLUDE OFFICIAL POLISH, NORWEGIAN, NETHERLANDS, BELGIAN, FRENCH, OR BRITISH FIGURES.

FROM VARIOUS COMPILATIONS, THE TOTAL OF DEAD, WOUNDED AND MISSING IS FIXED AT 3,300,000 TO 5,300,000---ACCORDING TO WHOSE FIGURES YOU ARE READING.

GERMAN OFFICIAL REPORTS PLACE THE MISSING IN POLAND ALONE AT 1,000,000. RED CROSS ESTIMATES SAY 80,000 TO 100,000 FRENCHMEN WERE KILLED AND 1,500,000 TO 2,000,000 CAPTURED.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, ON AUG. 20, ANNOUNCED BRITAIN'S DEAD, WOUNDED AND MISSING--INCLUDING CIVILIANS --UP TO THEN NUMBERED 92,000, COMPARED WITH 365,000 CASUALTIES IN THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WORLD WAR.

BUT REMEMBER THIS WAR IS BEING FOUGHT UNDER VASTLY CHANGED CONDITIONS, WITH THE AIRPLANE LARGELY PLAYING THE PART FORMERLY PLAYED BY MASSED TROOPS IN LAND OFFENSIVES.

OF THE BRITISH CASUALTIES, UPWARDS OF 30,000 WERE ACKNOWLEDGED OFFICIALLY IN THE HISTORIC BRITISH RETREAT FROM DUNKERQUE.

BRITAIN HAS ACKNOWLEDGED THE LOSS OF 2,514,199 TONS OF BRITISH, ALLIED AND NEUTRAL SHIPPING, COMPARED WITH THE GERMAN CLAIMS OF HAVING SUNK 5,078,038 TONS.

AUG 25 1940

ADMITTED BRITISH NAVAL LOSSES INCLUDE ONE BATTLESHIP, TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, THREE CRUISERS, 29 DESTROYERS, 14 SUBMARINES AND MANY CONVERTED MERCHANTMEN AND SMALLER CRAFT. AGAINST THESE 47 UNITS, THE GERMANS CLAIM TO HAVE SUNK 269 UNITS.

ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE LEDGER, THE BRITISH ASSERT THEY HAVE DRIVEN GERMANY FROM THE SEAS WITH THE SINKING AND CAPTURE OF 1,211,500 TONS OF ENEMY MERCHANT SHIPPING. MOST OF THIS WAS GERMAN, WITH SOME ITALIAN INCLUDED.

GERMANY HAS ADMITTED FEW OF THE LOSSES REPORTED INFLICTED BY THE BRITISH. SHE HAS ACKNOWLEDGED THE LOSS OF ONE POCKET-BATTLESHIP, THREE CRUISERS, 10 DESTROYERS, SIX SUBMARINES AND 17 OTHER CRAFT. ITALY HAS ADMITTED THE LOSS OF ONE CRUISER.

THE SPREAD IN RIVAL REPORTS OF PLANES BAGGED IS JUST AS WIDE. BRITAIN SAYS 3,1919 GERMAN PLANES HAVE BEEN DESTROYED, THE GERMANS ADMIT 626; THE GERMANS SAY 5,106 ALLIED CRAFT HAVE BEEN DESTROYED, THE BRITISH ADMIT 449.

WHEN GERMANY SENT HER GREY-GREEN LEGIONS MARCHING NORTHWARD DENMARK OFFERED NO RESISTANCE. BRITAIN AND FRANCE WENT INTO THE WAR TO HELP NORWAY, WHO ELECTED TO FIGHT, BUT IT FINALLY GAVE UP THE STRUGGLE JUNE 9. NORWAY'S KING HAAKON FLED TO ENGLAND. HIS BROTHER, KING CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK, STAYED AT HOME.

THEN CAME THE INVASION OF THE LOW COUNTRIES, LUXEMBOURG, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS. TINY LUXEMBOURG HAD NO OPPOSITION TO OFFER; THE NETHERLANDS, WHOSE QUEEN WILHELMINA HAD FLED TO ENGLAND, GAVE UP AFTER FOUR DAYS; KING LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM CAPITULATED MAY 28, AND NOW IS THE "GUEST" OF THE GERMANS.

WITH THE LOW COUNTRIES CONQUERED, HITLER LAUNCHED HIS SWIFT CAMPAIGN AGAINST FRANCE, FOLLOWING THE TRAMPLED PATH OF INVASION DOWN THROUGH THE NORTH.

HIS "IRON RING" TACTICS OF DIVIDING AND CONQUERING BROUGHT THE DOWNFALL OF FRANCE AFTER A MONTH AND 12 DAYS OF FIGHTING, AND THE BRITISH WITHDREW TO FIGHT IT OUT ALONE FROM THEIR "TIGHT LITTLE ISLES."

IN FRANCE, HITLER UNLEASHED THE SAME TACTICS USED SO SUCCESSFU. IN POLAND--CORDINATED OFFENSIVES BY HIS AIR AND MOTORIZED LAND FORCES. FIRST THE DIVE-BOMBERS WOULD BLAZE A PATH OF DESTRUCTION, FOLLOWED BY SWIFT TANKS BY THE HUNDREDS AND FINALLY MOPPING UP FORCES.

FRANCE, RELYING ON HER FAMED MAGINOT LINE, ATTEMPTED TO BEAT OFF THE INVADERS WITH HER CLASSIC WAR OF POSITION, BUT THESE TACTICS FAILED BEFORE GERMANY'S NEW WAR OF MOVEMENT.

CRUSHED, SHE SIGNED HITLER'S DICTATED ARMISTICE TERMS JUNE 22 IN THE SAME COMPIEGNE FOREST SETTING AND THE SAME ANCIENT RAILWAY CAR WHERE THE GERMANS CAPITULATED TO THE ALLIES IN 1918.

THIS TIME HITLER SAT AT THE HEAD OF THE TABLE, WHERE FOCH SAT 20 YEARS AGO.

ITALY, COMING INTO THE WAR AT GERMANY'S SIDE AGAINST HER WORLD WAR ALLIES 17 DAYS BEFORE THE FRENCH SURRENDER, BROUGHT THE FRENCH TO

TERMS FOUR DAYS AFTER THE SIGNING OF THE FRENCH-GERMAN ARMISTICE.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI GOT LITTLE EXCEPT MILITARY OCCUPATION OF A SMALL BORDER STRIP OF CONTINENTAL FRANCE, BUT THE DEMILITARIZATION OF FRANCE'S AFRICAN AND MEDITERRANEAN POSSESSIONS CLEARED THE WAY FOR WAR AGAINST BRITAIN IN AFRICA.

THE ITALIANS, CONFINING THEIR FIGHTING TO AFRICA, THE MEDITERRANEAN AND RAIDS ON GIBRALTAR, ON AUG.19 WON THEIR FIRST MAJOR CAMPAIGN WHEN THE BRITISH WITHDREW FROM BRITISH SOMALILAND, IN EAST AFRICA ON THE GULF OF ADEN. IL DUCE HOPES EVENTUALLY TO SMASH BRITISH CONTROL OF THE MEDITERRANEAN AND THE SUEZ CANAL.

THE UNITED STATES, WATCHING EUROPEAN DEVELOPMENTS WITH GROWING APPREHENSION, LAUNCHED A HUGE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM.

IN ADDITION, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ANNOUNCED ON AUG.17 THAT NEGOTIATIONS ARE UNDER WAY FOR ACQUISITION OF NAVAL AND AIR BASES ON BRITISH POSSESSIONS IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

THE DAY AFTER THIS ANNOUNCEMENT, MR.ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING OF CANADA REACHED AN AGREEMENT ON A PERMANENT JOINT BOARD OF DEFENSE FOR CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

THE PRESIDENT SAID "USE YOUR IMAGINATION" AS TO WHAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD PLAY FOR THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE BASES ACQUIRED FROM BRITAIN. HIS ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE NEGOTIATIONS COINCIDED WITH A PLEA BY CHURCHILL FOR 50 OVER-AGE AMERICAN DESTROYERS, BUT THE PRESIDENT WARNED AGAINST CONNECTING THE TWO SUBJECTS.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS, IN AN EFFORT TO INSULATE THEMSELVES FROM THE WAR, SET UP A NEUTRALITY "SAFETY ZONE" AROUND THEIR SHORES IN THE PANAMA DECLARATION OF OCT.1, 1939.

NEVERTHELESS, THE WAR CAME CLOSE TO HOME WITH FREQUENT ATTACKS BY EUROPEAN NATIONS ON EACH OTHER'S SHIPPING BY RIVAL SEA RAIDERS AND THE SOUTH ATLANTIC SEA BATTLE BETWEEN BRITISH CRUISERS AND THE POCKET BATTLESHIP ADMIRAL GRAF SPEE, DISABLED AND SUBSEQUENTLY SCUTTLED IN MONTEVIDEO HARBOR LAST DEC. 17.

IN A FURTHER MOVE TO PROTECT THEMSELVES FROM THE THREAT OF THE EUROPEAN WAR, THE 21 NATIONS OF THE WESTERN WORLD MEETING AT HAVANA OCT. 2 AGREED UPON A DECLARATION OF CONTINENTAL SOLIDARITY AND SERVED NOTICE THAT TRANSFER OF ANY EUROPEAN-HELD IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE TO ANOTHER POWER WOULD NOT BE TOLERATED.

WHILE HITLER WAS GOING ABOUT HIS TASK OF "RIGHTING THE WRONGS OF VERSAILLES," SOVIET RUSSIA, HIS NEW-FOUND PARTNER IN A NONAGGRESSION ACT SIGNED AUG. 24, 1939, DID SOME TERRITORY ACQUIRING OF HER OWN.

RUSSIA SENT HER RED ARMY INTO POLAND 17 DAYS AFTER THE SEPT. 1 GERMAN INVASION AND IN THE SPLIT-UP OF POLISH TERRITORY GOT THE WESTERN UKRAINE AND WHITE RUSSIA.

WITH HITLER FREED BY HIS PACT WITH MOSCOW TO WAGE WAR IN THE WEST, THE RUSSIANS NEXT INVADED FINLAND, ACQUIRING THE KARELIAN ISTHMUS AND THE HANKO NAVAL BASE ON THE BALTIC IN A DICTATED PEACE SIGNED AFTER THREE MONTHS AND 11 DAYS OF WAR WITH PLUCKY LITTLE FINLAND.

ONLY A LITTLE SABRE RATTLING IN MOSCOW WAS NECESSARY AFTER THAT TO GET BACK LITHUANIA, LATVIA AND ESTONIA, WHICH LIKE FINLAND FORMERLY BELONGED TO RUSSIA. THE THREE BALTIC STATES BOWED TO MOSCOW'S DEMANDS IN AUGUST AND WERE INCORPORATED AS REPUBLICS OF THE SOVIET UNION.

RUSSIA ALSO SEIZED BESSARABIA AND NORTHERN BUCOVINA FROM RUMANIA, WHICH HELD AN ALLIED TERRITORIAL GUARANTEE AND HAD LEANINGS IN THAT DIRECTION UNTIL HITLER'S CONQUESTS CHANGED KING CAROL'S MIND.

CAROL, ALWAYS A REALIST, SAW THE WAY THE WIND WAS BLOWING AND IMMEDIATELY NAZIFIED HIS GOVERNMENT TO FIT THE GERMAN PATTERN. HE RELUCTANTLY CAPITULATED TO GERMAN DEMANDS TO SETTLE TERRITORIAL CLAIMS ON RUMANIA BY HUNGARY AND BULGARIA. THESE NEGOTIATIONS ARE IN PROGRESS.

TURKEY, ANOTHER HOLDER OF AN ALLIED GUARANTEE IN SOUTHEAST EUROPE, QUICKLY TURNED TO MOSCOW FOR INSTRUCTIONS AFTER THE FALL OF FRANCE.

30.24-4531

A GREEK CRUISER WAS SUNK IN A MYSTERIOUS SUBMARINE ATTACKS EARLY IN AUGUST, AND TWO OF HER DESTROYERS WERE ATTACKED BY PLANES OF UNDISCLOSED NATIONALITY SHORTLY AFTER THE ITALIANS TURNED ON THE HEAT. ROME DISCLAIMED ANY KNOWLEDGE OF THESE ATTACKS.

WHATEVER THE OUTCOME OF THE EUROPEAN STRUGGLE, BRITAIN'S PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL REPEATEDLY PROCLAIMED THE EMPIRE'S DETERMINATION TO A FINISHED FIGHT.

THE BRITISH HAVE ANNOUNCED PLANS TO TAKE THE OFFENSIVE IN "1940 OR 1941," AND THE GERMANS REPUTEDLY ARE ACCEPTING ORDERS FROM SOUTH AMERICAN CUSTOMERS FOR OCTOBER DELIVERY.

SINCE THE BRITISH BLOCKADE HAS SHUT THE GERMANS OFF FROM THEIR SOUTH AMERICAN MARKETS SINCE THE WAR'S START, THIS WOULD INDICATE A NAZI BELIEF THE CONFLICT WILL BE OVER BEFORE ANOTHER WINTER SETS IN.

THE BRITISH OFFER A DIFFERENT VIEW.

AUG 25 1940

BY EDWARD E.BOMAR

THE APPEARANCE OF A NAZI SEA RAIDER IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC HINTS RESUMPTION OF THIS COLORFUL PHASE OF NAVAL WARFARE ON A MORE EXTENSIVE SCALE.

AUG 25 1940

WITH THE BRITISH FLEET OCCUPIED IN HOME WATERS AND MEDITERRANEAN AND IN ESCORTING CONVOYS, GERMANY IS IN SUCH AN ADVANTAGEOUS POSITION TO HARASS COMMERCE FAR AND WIDE THAT IT IS SLIGHTLY PUZZLING THAT THE OPPORTUNITY HAS NOT BEEN USED TO A GREATER EXTENT.

THE EXPLANATION ACCEPTED BY NAVAL MEN IS THAT THE NAZIS HAVE SUBORDINATED EVERYTHING FOR THE TIME BEING TO THE ATTEMPT TO CONQUER ENGLAND. IF THEY FAIL BEFORE THE ONSET OF AUTUMN WEATHER, BRITAIN'S FOES MAY BE EXPECTED TO TURN TO HIGH SEA RAIDERS AND ALL OTHER MEANS TO TIGHTEN THE "TOTAL BLOCKADE."

THE PROSPECT MUST BE INVITING TO DARING SPIRITS IN THE IDLE GERNAVY. CRUISERS AND ARMED MERCHANTMEN AS WELL AS U-BOATS MAY NOW BE SENT AROUND SCOTLAND INTO THE ATLANTIC FROM NORWEGIAN PORTS WITH FAR LESS RISK OF ENCOUNTERING ENEMY WARSHIPS THAN WHEN THEY WERE ACTIVE LAST FALL AND WINTER.

IN THE WORLD WAR, THE RAIDERS HAD TO STEAL OUT IN THICK WEATHER AND IN DISGUISE THROUGH A TIGHT ALLIED BLOCKADE, YET THEY MANAGED TO SINK MORE THAN 60 VESSELS ON THE HIGH SEAS.

IT IS THE NECESSITY IMPOSED ON BRITAIN OF DIVERTING CRUISERS AND OTHER WARSHIPS INTO THE CHASE AND OF REINFORCING CONVOY GUARDS THAT IS THE PRINCIPAL VALUE OF SUCH WARFARE IN GERMAN EYES. ACTUAL DESTRUCTION OF SHIPPING IS MORE INVITING NEAR ENGLAND ITSELF, WHERE BERLIN CLAIMS MORE THAN 100,000 TONS WAS SUNK LAST WEEK BY TORPEDOES AND BOMBS.

HOW QUICKLY THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY IS TO REACT TO ANY CHALLENGE BY ENEMY SURFACE SHIPS IS ATTESTED BY THE DESTRUCTION OF THE ADMIRAL GRAF SPEE OFF MONTEVIDEO LAST WINTER, THE NORTH ATLANTIC NAVAL BATTLE IN WHICH THE BRITISH ARMED LINER RAWALPINDI WAS LOST, AND THE ATTEMPT OF THE MERCHANT CRUISER ALCANTRA TO SINK A RAIDER OFF BRAZIL LAST MONTH.

THE RAIDER REPORTED TO HAVE SUNK THE 8,706-TON STEAMER TURAKINA IN NEW ZEALAND WATERS THE PAST WEEK MAY BE THE SAME WHICH THE ALCANTRA FAILED TO PUT OUT OF ACTION MORE THAN 6,000 MILES AWAY ON JULY 31. IF SO, THE NAZI CRAFT MUST HAVE BEEN STEALTHILY REFUELLED AND GIVEN SUPPLIES IN THE MEANTIME, IN THE MANNER OF THE WORLD WAR RAIDERS.

THE WORLD WAR RAIDERS MANAGED TO COVER IMMENSE DISTANCES WITHOUT THE SHORE BASES WHICH THE NAZIS STILL LACK. THE SMALL CRUISER EMDEN SANK 22 SHIPS IN THE PACIFIC AND INDIAN OCEANS IN THE FALL OF 1914 BEFORE BEING DESTROYED BY THE AUSTRALIAN CRUISER SYDNEY.

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER'S DISGUISED SCHOONER SEEADLER CRUISED FROM GRMANY FAR INTO THE PACIFIC BEFORE BEING LOST IN A HURRICANE.

PREOCCUPIED AS THE BRITISH NAVY IS WITH THE EMPIRE'S LIFE-OR-DEATH STRUGGLE, IT REMAINS ABLE TO CHALLENGE THE PROSPECTIVE THREAT. WHILE DESTROYERS ARE BUSY WITH CONVOYS, A NUMBER OF PATROLLING CRUISERS ARE KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN KEPT FREE TO COPE WITH RAIDERS IN THE ATLANTIC. IN THE AIRPLANE, THE BRITISH HAVE A SCOUTING WEAPON THAT WAS BARELY EXPERIMENTAL A QUARTER CENTURY AGO.

(ADVANCE) PRAGUE-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-"BAD, AND GRADUALLY GETTING WORSE," IS THE PHRASE WITH WHICH A BOHEMIAN JEW CHARACTERIZED THE PRESENT SITUATION OF JEWISH CITIZENS OF THE PROTECTORATE.

THERE ARE STILL MORE THAN 200,000 JEWS IN BOHEMIA AND MORAVIA, MORE THAN 40,000 IN PRAGUE ITSELF. AND THERE IS LITTLE PROSPECT THAT ANY GREAT NUMBER OF THESE WILL BE ABLE TO GET AWAY SOON. FOR CZECH JEWS, BORDERS ARE GETTING TIGHTER EACH WEEK. A VERY FEW ARE GETTING AWAY TO SHANGHAI, DISTANT CHINA BEING ABOUT THE ONLY PLACE STILL WILLING OR ABLE TO ABSORB SOME OF THE LUCKLESS JEWS OF THE FORMER CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

ABOUT THE ONLY FOREIGN FINANCIAL SUPPORT REACHING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY HERE COMES FROM THE AMERICAN JOINT DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE.

THUS, AN UNEMPLOYED JEW, IF HE IS LUCKY, CAN GET ABOUT $3 A WEEK TO SUPPORT HIMSELF AND HIS FAMILY. BUT HE DOESN'T GET THE DOLLARS--HE MUST ACCEPT CZECH CROWNS AT A FIXED RATE OF EXCHANGE.

THERE HAS, OF COURSE, BEEN NO HELP FROM ENGLAND OR FRANCE SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR. AND NOW CONTRIBUTIONS FROM JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS IN BELGIUM AND HOLLAND, WHICH WERE CONSIDERABLE, HAVE CEASED.

THE JEWISH COMMUNITY OF PRAGUE AND THE JEWISH EMIGRATION OFFICE CONSEQUENTLY MUST RELY WHOLLY ON CONTRIBUTIONS FROM PROTECTORATE JEWS, WHO ARE GETTING POOR DAILY. MANY OF THE WEALTHY JEWS HAVE LONG 'NCE LEFT.

TWO ASPECTS OF THEIR SITUATION IN PRAGUE MAKE THEIR POSITION SOMEWHAT EASIER THAN THAT OF JEWS WHO WERE ENGULFED BY ANTI-SEMITIC MOVEMENTS IN SOME OTHER LANDS.

FIRST, THERE HAS BEEN NO VIOLENCE, THE ONLY PERSONS HURT IN PRAGUE'S SINGLE ANTI-JEWISH DEMONSTRATIONS BEING ARYANS.

AND SECOND, RESTRICTIVE MEASURES HAVE BEEN APPLIED GRADUALLY. JEWS ARE BEING SQUEEZED OUT OF BUSINESS. BUT IN WENSELSPLATZ, WITHIN SIGHT OF THE STATUE OF SAINT WENZESLAUS, THE HEART OF BOHEMIA, TWO SHOPS OPERATED BY JEWS MANAGE TO KEEP THEIR DOORS OPEN.

A FEW JEWISH BUTCHERS AND OPERATORS OF BEAUTY PARLORS AND TOILET GOODS SHOPS HAVE BEEN UNDISTURBED. THESE BUSINESS MEN, HOWEVER, FEEL THEY WON'T LAST LONG.

JEWS ARE EXCLUDED FROM CERTAIN PARKS, BATHING ESTABLISHMENTS AND PUBLIC PLACES. ONE ACUTE PROBLEM WAS FINDING HOSPITAL ACCOMMODATIONS FOR JEWISH PATIENTS, FOR THERE NEVER WAS A JEWISH HOSPITAL. A MODEST ONE IS BEING BUILT, WITH THE HELP OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC SYMPATHIZERS.

FOR A TIME JEWISH DOCTORS WERE VIRTUALLY UNABLE TO PRACTICE. NOW TWENTY JEWISH GENERAL PRACTITIONERS OF PRAGUE HAVE RECEIVED LICENSES TO CARE FOR JEWISH PATIENTS. THERE IS, CONSEQUENTLY, ONE JEWISH DOCTOR FOR ABOUT 2,000 JEWISH CITIZENS. IN ADDITION, A FEW SPECIALISTS WERE PERMITTED TO PRACTICE.

AS TO THE FUTURE, A SMALL FRACTION OF BOHEMIA'S JEWS SEEMS DETERMINED TO REMAIN HERE--CONTENDING IT'S HOME, AND THAT THESE DARK DAYS WILL PASS.

30.24-4533

BUT, JUDGING FROM COMMENTS OF THE MAJORITY OF CALLERS AT HEADQUARTERS OF THE JEWISH COMMUNITY, THE MORE GENERAL HOPE SEEMS TO BE THAT EMIGRATION WILL AGAIN BECOME POSSIBLE. THE BELIEF THAT IT WILL EVER BE FEASIBLE TO ESTABLISH A NATIONAL HOME IN PALESTINE SEEMS TO BE DWINDLING, TO BE REPLACED BY A HOPE THAT SOME LARGER PLACE, NOT SO POLITICALLY COMPROMISED AS PALESTINE, WILL BE FOUN

"WHERE WILL HITLER SEND US?" IN A QUESTION ONE JEW FREQUENTLY ASKS ANOTHER.

GERMANY WAS REPORTED LAST (SATURDAY) NIGHT TO HAVE PUT THE PRESSURE ON RUMANIA AGAIN TO BRING ABOUT A SETTLEMENT OF HUNGARY'S CLAIMS ON TRANSYLVANIA, WHICH HAVE THREATENED TO DISRUPT THE PRECARIOUS PEACE OF THE BALKANS AND HINDER AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION VITAL TO GERMANY'S WAR MACHINE.

A CONFERENCE OF HUNGARIAN AND RUMANIAN DELEGATES AT TURNU SEVERIN, RUMANIA, BROKE DOWN YESTERDAY AND BOTH COUNTRIES WENT ON A VIRTUAL WAR FOOTING.

AUG 25 1940

THE DELEGATES WERE UNABLE TO FIND A COMMON GROUND FOR DISCUSSING THE HUNGARIAN CLAIMS ON THE HUGE PROVINCE WHICH ONCE BELONGED TO THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE.

AS THE DELEGATES WERE LEAVING HOWEVER, A NEW COMMUNIQUE SUDDENLY WAS ISSUED, JOINTLY EXPRESSING "HOPE THAT THE NEGOTIATIONS WILL BE RESUMED IN THE SHORTEST TIME."

THIS COMMUNIQUE WAS REPORTED TO HAVE RESULTED FROM PRESSURE FROM KING CAROL'S PALACE IN BUCHAREST AND SOME REPORTS SAID THAT IT ACTUALLY ORIGINATED IN BERLIN.

THE GERMAN RADIO IN A DISPATCH FROM TURNU SEVERIN SAID THAT NEGOTIATIONS PROBABLY WOULD BE RESUMED WEDNESDAY WHEN RUMANIA WOULD OFFER A BOUNDARY LINE AS ENVISAGED BY KING CAROL'S PRO-NAZI GOVERNMENT.

THE GERMAN WIRELESS SAID THE RUMANIANS STILL WERE OF THE OPINION THAT AN EXCHANGE OF POPULATION OUGHT TO PRECEDE A SETTLEMENT OF TERRITORY. HOWEVER, THE HUNGARIANS HAVE INSISTED ON AT LEAST PART OF THE PROVINCE, PERHAPS TWO-THIRDS.

WHILE MARSHALING HIS FORCES THIS SUMMER FOR HIS BATTLE WITH THE BRITISH, ADOLF HITLER ORDERED RUMANIA TO SETTLE BY DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS THE TERRITORIAL DEMANDS OF HUNGARY AND BULGARIA ON PAIN OF A SETTLEMENT IMPOSED BY THE ROME-BERLIN AXIS. IT WAS SAID HIS OBJECT WAS TO MAINTAIN PEACE IN THE BALKANS SO THE FLOW OF SUPPLIES FOR HIS ARMY AND AIR FORCE WOULD NOT BE HINDERED.

WHEN IT APPEARED THE NEGOTIATIONS MIGHT BREAK DOWN, RUMANIA CALLED UP HER RESERVES AND HUNGARY FOLLOWED SUIT YESTERDAY.

THEN CAME THE REPORTED NEW INSTRUCTIONS FROM BUCHAREST AND THE POSSIBILITY OF CONTINUATION OF THE TALKS.

(EDITORS DESIRING TO ROUNDUP THE BALKAN SITUATION IN ONE UNDATED PIECE MAY PICK UP TURNU SEVERIN DATE AT FOURTH GRAF, BEGINNING [illegible] ORIGINAL COMMUNIQUE ETC." AND THEN PICK UP BUDAPEST DATE, EDITING LATTER TO CONFORM.)

(ADVANCE) BERLIN (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS -- LIFE IN FRANCE, UNDER GERMAN OCCUPATION, HAS FALLEN BACK ALMOST A CENTUY.

SINCE THE COLLAPSE UNDER GERMAN ARMS OF THE THIRD REPUBLIC, WHICH HAD RULED FOR SEVENTY YEARS, FRANCE HAS REVERTED TO MUCH THAT SHE KNEW IN THE 19TH CENTURY, AND FACES THE PROBLEM OF RECOVERY FROM ANOTHER DEFEAT LIKE THAT IN 1870.

THE DEFEATED REPUBLIC HAS DISAPPEARED, JUST AS THE EMPIRE DID IN THE LAST CENTURY. WITH IT HAVE GONE THE POWER, FINANCES, INDUSTRIES, PLEASURES -- EVEN THE AUTOMOBILES -- WHICH MADE PARIS THE CAPITAL OF WESTERN EUROPE IN THE 20TH CENTURY.

AFTER FOUR YEARS IN PARI, I M

BERLIN FIRST ADD FRANCE, UNDER GERMAN DOMINATION, (BY CASSIDY) 20TH CENTURY.

AFTER FOUR YEARS IN PARI, I HAVE JUST SEEN THE LIFE THERE REVERSED IN A PERIOD OF SIX WEEKS.

ON THE SURFACE, PARIS AND MOST OF THE OCCUPIED CITIES AND TOWNS

AMS MOVED AUG. 17, 1940

HAVE BEEN REMARKABLY LITTLE CHANGED BY THE WAR.

THE SANDBAGS HAVE BEEN TAKEN DOWN FROM PARIS MONUMENTS, AND ALL THE CELEBRATED STRUCTURES OF THE CITY ARE INTACT. MOST TOWNS ALSO ESCAPED UNDAMAGED, AND EVEN IN THOSE LIKE COMPIEGNE, SENLIS AND CAMBRAI, WHERE THERE WAS FIGHTING, THE CATHEDRALS STILL STAND AND ONLY SOME QUARTERS HAVE BEEN SMASHED.

BUT BENEATH THE SURFACE, LIFE HAS CHANGED RADICALLY.

QUEUES FORM FOR FOOD, WHERE ONCE THERE WAS PLENTY.

COFFEE, MILK, EGGS, CHEESE AND OIL HAVE ALL BEEN LACKING. SOAP AND CLEANING FLUIDS ARE ALSO RUNNING SHORT. SUGAR RATIONS HAVE BEEN CUT FROM 750 TO 500 GRAMS A MONTH, AND ANOTHER REDUCTION IS EXPECTED. BREAD AND COAL ALSO ARE RATIONED.

THERE HAS BEEN A RUN ON TOBACCO, AS WELL AS SILKS, LINENS AND CLOTHING IN GENERAL, AND LUXURY CIGARETTES HAVE DISAPPEARED.

SOME IMPROVEMENT IN FOOD SUPPLIES HAS BEEN MADE SINCE TRANSPORTATION HAS BEEN RESTORED, AND A FINE MEAL CAN STILL BE BOUGHT IN A FIRST-CLASS RESTAURANT, BUT THE AVERAGE HOUSEKEEPER MUST SEARCH TO FIND SUPPLIES.

THE WAR-TIME RESTRICTIONS, PROVIDING THREE MEAT-LESS AND THREE ALCOHOL-LESS DAYS A WEEK, HAVE BEEN RE-ESTABLISHED.

GASOLINE IS FORBIDDEN TO PRIVATE PERSONS.

THE BOULEVARDS, ONCE CROWDED WITH STROLLERS, ARE NOW JAMMED WITH PEOPLE PLODDING ALONG BECAUSE THEY HAVE NO OTHER MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION. THE SUBWAY STILL RUNS, BUT THERE ARE NO BUSSES OR TAXIS. ONLY DRIVERS FOR PUBLIC SERVICES CAN GET GASOLINE.

THE RESULT HAS BEEN THAT THE STREETS, ONCE LIVELY WITH RECKLESS, HORN-HONKING CAB DRIVERS, ARE NOW VIRTUALLY DESERTED EXCEPT FOR GRAY GERMAN ARMY CARS AND ANCIENT VEHICLES PRESSED INTO SERVICE TO CARRY SUPPLIES FOR THE CITY.

HORSE-DRAWN CARTS, HANSOM CABS AND ANTIQUE BICYCLES, WITH SIX-FOOT FRONT WHEELS AND ONE-FOOT REAR WHEELS, ARE BEING USED.

POLICEMEN STAND AT EVERY CORNER, BUT THEY HAVE LITTLE TO DO BEYOND TRYING TO KEEP PEDESTRIANS FROM WALKING IN THE STREETS.

THE CITY, WHERE LIFE ONCE REACHED ITS PEAK AT NIGHT, NOW GOES DEAD AT 11:00 P.M., WHEN THE CURFEW BECOMES EFFECTIVE, AND NOT UNTIL 5:00 A.M. DOES LIFE STIR AGAIN IN THE STREETS.

THE GERMAN ADMINISTRATION IS CONDUCTED BEHIND THE SCENES. CIVILIANS HAVE BEEN NOTIFIED BY POSTERS TO PRESENT THEIR PROBLEMS ONLY TO LOCAL FRENCH AUTHORITIES, WHO IN TURN REFER THEM, WHEN NECESSARY, TO GERMAN OFFICERS.

THE GERMAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN SET UP AT THE FORMER NAVY MINISTRY ON THE PLACE DE LA CONCORDE. TROOPS ARE QUARTERED AT VARIOUS HOTELS IN THE CITY.

ROGER LANGERON, PREFECT OF POLICE, AND ACHILLE VILLEY, PREFECT OF THE SEINE, HAVE REMAINED AT THEIR POSTS.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT, HOWEVER, PULLS THE STRINGS, AND ON OCCASION, ISSUES PUBLIC NOTICES TO MAKE ITS ORDERS PLAIN.

THE PRESS HAS BEEN PUT UNDER CLOSE CONTROL.

PARIS, WHICH ONCE HAD MORE THAN A DOZEN NEWSPAPERS OF WIDELY-VARIED POLICIES, NOW HAS FOUR. THEY ARE LE MATIN, LA FRANCE AU TRAVAIL AND LES DERNIERES NOUVELLES DE PARIS IN THE MORNING, AND PARIS SOIR AND A LATE EDITION OF LE MATIN IN THE EVENING.

THE PAPERS HAVE COME FORTH WITH THREE NEW TRENDS -- ANTI-BRITISH, ANTI-SEMITIC AND MORALISTIC.

ECONOMICALLY, THE 20TH CENTURY SYSTEM HAS BEEN DISRUPTED.

THE CURRENCY HAS BEEN HIGHLY INFLATED BY INJECTION OF GERMAN

21.24-4537

30.24-4537

OCCUPATION-TERRITORY MARKS INTO CIRCULATION. FRANCS AND MARKS ARE USED INTERCHANGEABLY ON THE BASIS OF TWENTY FRANCS TO ONE MARK. CASHIERS MAKE CHANGE IN FRANCS FOR THOSE WHO PAY IN FRANCS, AND IN MARKS FOR THOSE WHO PAY IN MARKS.

THE GERMAN MILITARY AUTHORITY HAS WARNED THAT ANY REFUSAL TO ACCEPT MARKS WILL BE SEVERELY PUNISHED.

STRICT CONTROL HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED OVER PRICES. THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAS FORBIDDEN ANY INCREASE ABOVE THE MAY 1 LEVEL. SOME INCREASES HAVE BEEN DETECTED, AND THE OFFENDERS IMPRISONED. THE RESULT HAS BEEN SOME HOARDING, BUT COMMITTEES HAVE BEEN NAMED IN EACH COMMUNITY TO SEEK AND DISTRIBUTE HIDDEN SUPPLIES.

SOME STORES AND FACTORIES HAVE BEEN RE-OPENED BY EMPLOYES WHOSE EMPLOYERS FAILED TO RETURN, BUT DISPERSAL OF THE POPULATION AND HESITATION OVER THE FUTURE HAVE CRIPPLED BUSINESS.

AT LEAST FIVE MILLION OF THE MASSES WHICH FLED IN HEADLONG PANIC BEFORE THE GERMAN ONRUSH HAVE YET TO RETURN TO THEIR PLACES IN THE COMMUNITY, AND THAT FIGURE DOES NOT INCLUDE THE MEN STILL TO BE RELEASED FROM THE ARMY.

AUG 25 1940

THE AMERICAN COLONY, WHICH ONCE NUMBERED THOUSANDS, HAS DROPPED TO ABOUT 500.

POLITICALLY, THE SITUATION IS EQUALLY UNCERTAIN.

FRANCE HAS BECOME, FOR THE PRESENT, A FASCIST STATE UNDER AN AUTHORITARIAN GOVERNMENT, HEADED BY MARSHAL PETAIN AND MANAGED BY PIERRE LAVAL. BUT NONE EXPECTS THAT TO LAST.

THE GERMANS DISAPPROVE OF HOLD-OVER MINISTERS FROM THE WAR. THE FRENCH OBJECT TO ITS CREATION BY THE OLD REGIME, BEFORE "NEW MEN" COULD HAVE A VOICE IN ITS FORMATION. THE "NEW MAN" MOST WIDELY MENTION IS JACQUES DORIOT, EX-COMMUNIST WHO TURNED FASCIST AND HEADED THE FRENCH PEOPLE'S PARTY.

THE MAJOR QUESTION -- WHETHER FRANCE WILL REMAIN IN GERMANY'S ORBIT, OR COME BACK AS SHE DID AFTER 1870 -- REMAINS FOR THE FUTURE.

NOT MANY CHANGES IN LIFE (700) (PROVIDENCE JOURNAL NOTE)

BY ERNEST G.FISCHER

(ADVANCE)-COPENHAGEN, DENMARK-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-WARS MAY COME AND GO, BUT DENMARK REMAINS THE BIG BUTTER-AND-EGG COUNTRY OF EUROPE.

EVEN UNDER GERMAN SWAY, THE EVERYDAY LIFE ON THE INSULAR PLAINS REMAINS UNCHANGED EXCEPT, ACCORDING TO SOME FARMERS AND MERCHANTS, THE DANES ARE RECEIVING A SLIGHTLY HIGHER PRICE FOR BUTTER, EGGS AND OTHER FOODSTUFFS.

THE BIG NEIGHBOR TO THE SOUTH, A HEARTY EATER, TAKES MOST OF THE FOODSTUFFS NOW, WHEREAS FORMERLY GREAT BRITAIN WAS THE CHIEF EXPORT OUTLET.

IN FACT, GERMANY IS CULTIVATING A KIND OF "GOOD NEIGHBOR" POLICY TOWARD DENMARK.

A RECENT SPECIAL EDITION OF THE BERLINER BOERSEN-ZEITUNG WAS LABELLED "NEIGHBOR DENMARK AND SUBTITLED "THE COOPERATION WITH GERMANY." THIS MASTHEAD WAS PRINTED OVER THE ROYAL COAT-OF-ARMS OF DENMARK. THE ARTICLES, IN GERMAN AND DANISH, STRESSED THE MUTUAL INTERESTS OF THE TWO NATIONS.

SLIGHTLY SUGAR-COATED, THE STORIES SMACKED OF AN OLD-FASHIONED FAMILY REUNION AND A HORSE-TRADING DAY. AN ARCHAEOLOGIST, TRACING THE TEUTONIC ORIGINS, WROTE THAT "SINCE THE BRONZE AGE, DENMARK HAS ALWAYS BELONGED IN THE GERMANIC COMMERCIAL AND CULTURAL CIRCLE."

A COMMERCIAL EXPERT WROTE THAT "DENMARK HAS A SURPLUS OF FOOD-STUFFS FOR WHICH GERMANY OFFERS AN OUTLET, AND GERMANY HAS RAW MATERIALS AND MANUFACTURED ARTICLES WHICH FAIL IN DENMARK."

FOREIGN MINISTER ERIK SCAVENIUS EXPRESSED "THE WILL AND WISH OF MY LAND X X X TO BRING ABOUT A POSITIVE AND LOYAL COOPERATION WITH THE NEWLY CREATED CONTINENT UNDER GERMANY'S LEADERSHIP."

THAT DOES NOT MEAN THAT DENMARK IS UNDER GERMANY'S "ADMINISTRATION," IT HAS BEEN POINTED OUT BY DANISH OFFICIALDOM. WHAT HAS HAPPENED IN SOME OTHER COUNTRIES OCCUPIED BY GERMANY, WHERE NATIONAL CIVIL AND MILITARY FUNCTIONS WERE ASSUMED BY THE GERMANS, DID NOT OCCUR IN DENMARK.

THE NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION, CIVIL AND MILITARY, HAS REMAINED INTACT AND LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT PREVAILS. THE RIGSDAG (DANISH PARLIAMENT) IS PROCEEDING NORMALLY.

IN SUPPORT OF THE STATEMENT THAT THERE IS NO GERMAN INTERFERENCE WITH DANISH AUTHORITY, DANES CITE A TRIAL WHICH IS IN PROGRESS HERE. DEFENDANTS ARE 150 MEMBERS OF THE DANISH NATIONAL SOCIALIST PARTY. THEY ARE ACCUSED OF HAVING ARRANGED A PROPAGANDA-MARCH IN VIOLATION OF EMERGENCY REGULATIONS.

THE DEFENDANTS, MOST OF THEM YOUNG PERSONS, ARE BEING SENTENCED ACCORDING TO DANISH LAWS WITHOUT REGARD TO THE FACT THAT THE POLITICAL PROCLIVITIES OF THESE WOULD-BE DEMONSTRATORS WERE IN SYMPATHY WITH THOSE OF NAZI GERMANY.

DANISH AUTHORITIES SAID THERE HAD BEEN NO ATTEMPT TO INFLUENCE THE DECISIONS IN THE CASE.

KAI SCHOU, COPENHAGEN NEWSPAPERMAN, SAID "IF IT WERE NOT FOR THE GERMAN TROOPS THE DANES WOULD NEVER THINK THAT THEIR COUNTRY WAS OCCUPIED BY A FOREIGN POWER."

SO, FOR THE MAN IN THE STREET, THE FARMER, THE MILKMAID AND THE FISHERMAN, EVERYDAY LIFE HAS NOT CHANGED MUCH SINCE KING CHRISTIAN LAST APRIL 9 ACCEPTED GERMAN OCCUPATION "UNDER PROTEST."

THEIR PRODUCTS ARE FINDING A MARKET AND, THEY HOPE, WILL COMMAND A BETTER EXCHANGE VALUE AS THE RESULT OF NEGOTIATIONS WHICH HAVE BEEN IN PROGRESS BETWEEN GERMANY AND DENMARK. THE KRONER HERE IS QUOTED AT TWO FOR ONE REICHSMARK. THE BUYING POWER OF THE KRONER IN THE COUNTRY ITSELF HAS NOT DETERIORATED.

DETAILS OF THE PROPOSED DANISH-GERMAN AGREEMENTS HAVE NOT BEEN ANNOUNCED. AFTER THE WORLD WAR UNTIL 1929, GERMAN-DANISH TRADE LAGGE MATERIALLY, BUT IT PICKED UP SOME SINCE 1933. HOWEVER, GREAT BRITAIN STILL WAS THE PRINCIPAL IMPORTER OF DANISH PRODUCTS. GERMANY WAS SECOND AND SWEDEN, THIRD.

ABOUT THREE-FOURTHS OF DENMARK'S AREA IS AGRICULTURAL LAND, INCLUDING GREAT MEADOWS. A THIRD OF THE POPULATION IS ENGAGED IN FARMING AND DAIRYING.

BUTTER CONSTITUTES ABOUT 40 PER CENT OF THE EXPORTS, BUT BACON AND EGGS ALSO ARE MAJOR ITEMS.

CONTRARY TO AMERICAN CUSTOM, BREAKFAST BACON, IN MANY EUROPEAN COUNTRIES, HAS NOT BEEN ON THE MENU. HOWEVER, THE GERMAN HAUSFRAU AND HER FAMILY ARE TAKING KINDLY TO THE BACON IDEA--SO KINDLY THAT THE WORD "BACON" IS COMING TO BE GENERALLY USED. THAT IS TRUE IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT, GENERALLY SPEAKING, THE USE OF ENGLISH WORDS IN WARTIME GERMANY IS FROWNED UPON.

BUT THE DANISH BACON HANDLERS, IN ADVERTISEMENTS FOR THE GERMAN CLIENTELE, OBLIGINGLY EXPLAIN IN PARENTHESES THAT BACON IS "GESALZENES SCHWEINEFLEISCH" (SALTED PORK).

SO THE TRADERS ARE GREASING THE LITTLE SORE SPOTS WHICH MAY HAVE DEVELOPED LAST APRIL, NOT TO MENTION THAT LITTLE EPISODE OF ABOUT 1,000 YEARS AGO WHEN THE YELLOW-HAIRED, BLUE-EYED WARRIORS OF THE DANISH KING, HAROLD BLUETOOTH, SUBDUED SOME GERMANIC TRIBES SOUTH OF THE EIDER.

(ADVANCE)..STOCKHOLM--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

--SWEDEN-- CAUGHT IN THE BACKWASH OF WAR -- IS PAYING 15 PERCENT MORE FOR THE NCESSITIES OF EVERYDAY LIFE AND EVEN ROCKIER TIMES ARE IN PROSPECT AS COMMODITY RESERVES DECREASE.

DURING THE PAST FOUR MONTHS, SWEDEN HAS UNDERGONE COMPLETE ISOLATION FROM TWO OF HER THREE LARGEST EXPORT AND IMPORT MARKETS, THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND AMERICA, WITH GREAT DETRIMENT TO HER ECONOMIC SET-UP.

FOR, IN ITS SIMPLEST TERMS, SWEDISH ECONOMY IS LARGELY BASED UPON THE EXPORT OF RAW MATERIALS FOR BIG INDUSTRY AND THE IMPORT OF CONSUMER COMMODITIES OR MATERIALS FOR THEIR MANUFACTURE: TEXTILES, OIL, AUTOMOBILES, CERTAIN FOODSTUFFS.

SWEDEN IS SELF-SUFFICIENT IN THE IMPORTANT CEREALS AND ANIMAL PRODUCTS, BUT NORMALLY IMPORTS FERTILIZERS.

IN SUCH AN ECONOMY, WHERE FOOD STORES ARE STOCKED WITH AMERICAN CANNED GOODS AND PEOPLE WEAR CLOTHES OF BRITISH WOOL AND BRITISH AND AMERICAN COTTON, EVERYONE'S WEEKDAY BUDGET IS DIRECTLY DEPENDINT ON NORMALCY IN THE IMPORT MARKET.

NATURALLY, A SMOOTHLY RUNNING ECONOMIC SYSTEM, SUCH AS SWEDEN HAS BUILT UP, ORDINARILY MAKES IT UNNECESSARY FOR THE AVERAGE PERSON TO CONCERN HIMSELF WITH THE FIGURES OF EXPORT AND IMPORT ANY MORE THAN IS NECESSARY FOR THE HOUSEHOLDER IN AMERICA.

BUT THE SUDDEN DISAPPEARANCE OF THE MAJOR PART OF SUCH COMMERCE WHERE IT IS SO INTERWOVEN IN THE LIVELIHOOD OF THE PEOPLE MEANS, SOONER OR LATER, SCARCITY OF MANY COMMODITIES, HAMPERED PRODUCTION AND HIGHER PRICES BECAUSE OF LACK OF OR MORE EXPENSIVE RAW PRODUCTS.

TO PROTECT AGAINST RISING PRICES OR SHORTAGE, THE STATE ECONOMIC

AGENCIES IN SWEDEN IMMEDIATELY ENLARGED THEIR ACTIVITIES, BROADENED REGULATIONS CONCERNING USE OF SUPPLIES PREVIOUSLY STORED WITHIN THE COUNTRY, A FEW MONTHS AGO INTRODUCING RATIONING WHERE NECESSARY, WITH THE RESULT THAT THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE ARE STILL ABUNDANT.

NEVERTHELESS, HOUSEWIVES HAVE PLENTY TO BE CONCERNED OVER NOW THAT BUTTER IS UP TO 40 CENTS PER POUND, ORANGES OF MEDIUM SIZE 8 CENTS EACH, RASPBERRIES 36 CENTS PER QUART, CANTALOUPE AROUND 50 CENT EACH AND APPLIES 24 CENTS A POUND.

VEGETABLES ARE AT THE HEIGHT OF THE SEASON WITH CABBAGE AT 4 CENTS PER POUND, GREEN BEANS 15 CENTS PER POUND, AND CARROTS 6 CENTS A BUNCH AS TYPICAL.

PULLETS FOR FRYING ARE 70 CENTS EACH WHILE FISH RANGES FROM 12 CENTS TO 22 CENTS PER POUND.

MILK IS STILL CHEAP AT 8 CENTS PER QUART AND MOST EXCELLENT BREAD SELLS FOR 8 CENTS A POUND.

THE WELL KNOWN BRANDS OF AMERICAN CANNED GOODS ARE BETWEEN 2 AND 3 TIMES THEIR COST IN NEW YORK, MAKING THEM A LUXURY RATHER THAN AN ECONOMY.

(ADVANCE)..STOCKHOLM-- FIRST ADD SWEDISH ECONOMY X X X AN ECONOM.

NONE OF THESE FOODS IS INCLUDED IN THE RATIONING, WHICH TO DATE EXISTS ONLY TO THE FOLLOWING EXTENT:

COFFEE: 1 POUND PER MONTH PER PERSON

TEA (IN PLACE OF COFFEE): 7 OUNCES PER PERSON PER MONTH

COCOA (IN PLACE FOR COFFEE OR TEA): 14 OUNCES

SUGAR: 2 POUNDS PER MONTH PER PERSON, MORE DURING THE CANNING SEASON

SOAP AND WASHING PREPARATIONS CONTAINING FAT, INCLUDING SHAVING CREAM:

ACCORDING TO WEIGHT (A MONTH'S SUPPLY MIGHT BE A CAKE OF TOILET SOAP AND A PACKAGE OF SOAP FLAKES OR BAR OF LAUNDRY SOAP OR A TUBE OF SHAVING CREAM AND ONE OR TWO CAKES OF TOILET SOAP.)

GASOLINE: AVAILABLE ONLY FOR TAXICABS, DIPLOMATIC CARS, TRUCKS, BUSSES AND MILITARY USES.

MARGARINE IS NO LONGER MANUFACTURED AT ALL, DUE TO USE OF FAT FOR SOAP SO REBATES ON BUTTER ARE GIVEN TO FAMILIES IN LOW INCOME GROUPS.

CONSIDERED AS IMPORTANT AS STATE RATIONING AND STATE PRICE CONTROL IN KEEPING EVERYDAY ECONOMY ON AN EVEN KEEL IS CONSTANT ALERTNESS ON THE PART OF EVERY CITIZEN TO RECOGNIZE ALL POSSIBLE SUBSTITUTIONS AND TO MAKE USE OF THEM TO MAINTAIN HIS STANDARD OF NUTRITION AND GENERAL LIVING.

IT TAKES A GOOD DEAL OF THIS SORT OF JUGGLING TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET IN THE FAMILY BUDGET UNDER CONDITIONS WHEN THE SOCIAL BUREAU'S INDEX OF LIVING COSTS FROM JULY 1, 1939 TO JULY 1, 1940 SHOWS SUCH ITEMS AS FOOD 15 PERCENT HIGHER, FUEL AND LIGHT 32 PER CENT HIGHER (THOUGH PERHAPS TO BE LOWERED SOON, AS SWEDEN IS NOW OBTAINING COAL FROM GERMANY) CLOTHING 21 PERCENT HIGHER, TAXES 8 PERCENT AND OTHER EXPENSES 14 PERCENT MORE. TO FACILITATE REARRANGEMENT OF CONSUMPTION SO THAT THE REAL RISE IN THE COST OF LIVING WILL NOT BE SO GREAT AS IF CONSUMERS CONTINUED TO BUY THE PRECISE ARTICLES ON WHICH THE INDEX IS BASED, INTENSIVE PRACTICAL EDUCATION IS BEING CARRIED ON THROUGH THE ENTIRE COUNTRY IN A CAMPAIGN CALLED "ACTIVE MANAGEMENT" IN WHOSE INTRODUCTORY PAMPHLET IS STATED FRANKLYN: "IT DEPENDS ON OUR

INDUSTRIOUSNESS AND OUR WILL WHETHER THE SOCIAL WELFARE CAN BE MAINTAINED, EVEN IF PROSPERITY SINKS."

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF A STATE INFORMATION BUREAU, WOMEN'S CLUBS, SCHOOLS, COUNTY HOME CONSULTANTS AND OTHERS, PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION IS MADE AVAILABLE THROUGH COURSES ALL OVER THE COUNTRY, THROUGH MAGAZINE AND NEWSPAPER ADVICE, BROCHURES, ETC.

AS CONDITIONS CHANGE THIS TRAINING WILL CHANGE ALSO. JUST NOW, CONSIDERED MOST IMPORTANT ARE COURSES ON: MORE GARDEN PRODUCE IN THE DIET, WISE CANNING, STORING OF VEGETABLES AND ROOT FOODS FOR THE WINTER, FISH IN THE EVERYDAY DIET, LAUNDRY BY NEW METHODS (TO TEACH PEOPLE HOW TO USE THE WASHING POWDERS NOW SUBSTITUTED FOR LAUNDRY SOAP), CARE OF CLOTHES AND HOUSEHOLD TEXTILES.

BY SUCH A PROGRAM, STATE AUTHORITIES HOPE TO PROVIDE EVERY CONSUMER WITH A DEFENSE AGAINST THE RISING COST OF LIVING IN GENERAL AS WELL AS A GUIDE TO MAINTAINING A GOOD NUTRITIONAL AND LIVING STANDARD THROUGH WHAT MAY BECOME A PROLONGED PERIOD OF LACK OF IMPORTS AND CONSEQUENTLY LESSENED HOME PRODUCTION.

5TH ATTACK IN 3 DAYS HITS BRITISH CAPITAL; CHANNEL GUNS ACTIVE

Meanwhile, Germans Scurry To Cover As Anti-Aircraft Batteries Roar At Cloud-Concealed R. A. F. Planes Over Great City On Rhine

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Monday, Aug. 26—More than 4,000,000 residents of Berlin and its environs huddled in basement shelters for three hours and four minutes early today while anti-aircraft cannon sent up an earsplitting but "blind" barrage at British planes circling low in the clouds overhead.

In the very heart of Berlin there were heavy explosions, but authorities emphasized that these were from the large caliber artillery and that no bombs exploded in the city.

Pamphlets were dropped over a considerable area.

Flyers Appear Confused By Clouds

Spectators gained the impression that the flyers were not sure they were over a city and were groping about for some opening in the thick clouds.

So murky was it that German searchlights were scarcely used and the gunners apparently controlled their fire entirely by sound-detection devices.

The alarm was Berlin's fifth and longest of the war, lasting from 12.19 to 3.23 A. M. (5.19 to 8.23 P. M., Sunday S.T.).

Fairgoers In Leipzig Take Shelter

The enemy flyers covered an extensive area in Prussia and Saxony and there were alarms in many cities, including Leipzig, crowded with visitors to its famous fall fair.

At Leipzig thousands of fairgoers, many of them from neutral nations, spent twenty-five minutes in air-raid shelters as anti-aircraft artillery boomed away at aerial raiders. No bomb damage was reported.

In Berlin anti-aircraft shell splinters pattered on downtown roofs like hail.

Nazis Bomb London For Fifth Time In Last Three Days

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Aug. 26—A German raider dropped three scream bombs in the London area early today and was believed to have been brought down in turn.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Aug. 26—Screaming bombs were heard dropping in the London area early today as the fifth air-raid warning within three days roused Londoners from their beds.

The buzz of airplanes was heard overhead.

There was heavy searchlight activity as Londoners again scurried to air-raid shelters.

The warning came within a few hours after the all-clear signal had been given following a Sunday night alarm.

Heavy Anti-Aircraft Fire

The German raiders departed quickly under heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Through the night other German raiders kept up attacks on widespread parts of England.

In a Midland town planes were heard overhead, as well as the thud of bombs dropping some miles away.

The German Luftwaffe returned to the attack despite the loss, as claimed by the British, of eighty-nine planes over the week end—thirty-nine on Sunday and fifty Saturday—in raids on this country.

Shelling Reported Heard

Three loud explosions which residents believed came from shells fired by German long-range guns on the French coast were heard late Sunday night in the Dover area.

From the English side of the Channel searchlights could be seen sweeping the sky on the French coast, and the flash of anti-aircraft guns stabbed the night.

Heavy explosions were heard, indicating the Royal Air Force was bombing the German positions.

During the last eight days, the British claim, nearly 300 German planes have been shot down in and around the British Isles.

The week-end "bag" boosted to 1,175 the number of German planes which the British declare have been brought down by Royal Air Force and ground defenses fighting against air raids on this country since the start of the war.

This total includes 1,101 aircraft which the British say have been lost by the Luftwaffe since it started its mass air raids on Britain June 18. More than 800 German planes have been reported destroyed since mass raids began August 8.

Alarm Follows Lull

London's first alarm of two during the night came after a new lull.

An official account of Sunday's raids said that "one in every four of the enemy was shot down in the course of air attacks which were launched in the late afternoon of yesterday against our shores."

The Ministry of Information said:

"About 130 enemy aircraft approached the Dorset coast. Of these thirty-four were destroyed and many others received heavy punishment.

Bulk Of Raiders Turned Back

"The bulk of the enemy's formation was turned back during this attack before it could reach its objectives, which appeared to be inland from the coast.

"Another attack was directed against the southeast coast. Reports received up to 9 P. M. show that in the attack three at least of the enemy were destroyed.

"Together with an enemy bomber which was shot down after a fifty-mile chase early yesterday morning and another which was destroyed off the South Wales coast yesterday afternoon, this brings the total of enemy losses up to thirty-nine, according to the latest reports."

Raid On Germany Indicated

Even as searchlights swept the skies over the British capital and the deadly hum of airplanes could be heard from the outskirts, the sudden silencing of German radio stations at Bremen, Munich, Leipzig and Berlin indicated that British bombers were repaying the Nazi visits.

Of eleven admittedly lost British planes, the Air Ministry said "it is known that three of our pilots are safe."

24 Bagged On Coast

British air fighters, battling new waves of German air raiders over Southern England, shot down twenty-four planes in one fight when a Nazi squadron attempted to cross the Dorset coast "in force."

Revising upward its figures for Saturday's fierce air fighting, the Air Ministry claimed a bag of fifty German planes—making a two-day total so far of seventy-five—and admitted British losses of nineteen.

The new Nazi air assaults came as London extinguished the embers and cleared the debris from Saturday's first widespread night air raid on the metropolitan area.

Damage Called Slight

Although one blaze in the heart of London shot flames 150 feet into the air, silhouetting the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral and illuminating a large area of the city the damage was assessed officially as "very slight."

Defenders stood ready to repel any new Nazi air attack on this capital of empire, but the Germans contented themselves during the daylight hours with isolated sorties on other parts of England and Wales.

After another seeming lull in Germany's Luftwaffe war, however, the attack intensified after nightfall with a first wave of fifty German planes reported over the southeast coast. The Nazi bombers started several fires but damage was said to have been slight.

Anti-aircraft batteries went into action along with Royal Air Force planes.

Another battle was reported last night over the southeast coast and two Nazi Messerschmitts were said to have been shot down. Shortly afterward planes believed to be German were reported over Wales and another southwestern English region.

A Home Security Ministry spokesman said that the air raids Saturday which caused three alarms in the heart of London, started two large fires, one in the City—London's closely built "Wall Street" section in the center of the downtown business district. The other was in a warehouse district.

Casualties were few and the fires quickly brought under control, however, the spokesman declared, although he acknowledged that several hundred bombs had fallen on the vast, sprawling city.

A survey showed that most of the bombs, explosives and incendiaries had been dropped in a circle around the center of the city outside the protective balloon barrage and had damaged at least one factory and several warehouses besides burning down a number of dwellings and business properties.

New Raids Avoid London

While London still doused bomb-set flames, German raiders made sporadic stabs again, particularly on northeast and southwest England, but their blows were slight as compared to Saturday. They came in much smaller numbers and avoided London.

Two persons were reported killed and several injured when bombs fell on a working-class district in an undisclosed northeast town Sunday. Also in the northeast, bomb hits burst water mains in one town.

Throughout the night falling explosives and incendiary bombs caused considerable property damage and an undisclosed number of casualties, some fatal, in the northeast.

In one coastal town a gas works was hit and 200 persons were left homeless. In another district farther south thirty persons were made homeless and a fire was started when two high-explosive bombs struck near a large factory.

Brush and timber were set aflame on a northeast moor by incendiary bombs.

Three bombs fell near a waterworks in the southeast early Sunday, but caused no damage.

In a southeast town a bomb plowed its way under an air-raid shelter and exploded, killing a woman inside. High explosives and incendiary bombs also caused some damage and casualties in a southwest town.

Fire Damage Minimized

The Home Security Ministry spokesman described the financial district fire as a "big peacetime blaze" but said war fire brigades had succeeded swiftly in putting it under control.

Although sections of the city were roped off, ostensibly to protect stocks of stores whose windows were smashed, city police expressed confidence there were no delayed-action bombs there "now."

The spokesman also admitted that damage caused at Dover, Portsmouth and Ramsgate—all potential footholds for any sea-borne Nazi invasion—was extensive but asserted it was "by no means catastrophic."

Delayed-action bombs exploded periodically in Portsmouth today. Because of bombs lying about, a number of streets were closed off and residents of the emptied areas were moved into schools and fed by the municipality.

Spend Night In Shelters

Many families in London awoke Sunday in shelters, having spent the night under the security of their thick roofs rather than risk the peril of delayed-action bombs or take the chance of being hurried underground again by new raids.

In one shelter in a business street, a 70-year-old clergyman led prayer while outside firemen, even after daybreak, continued to turn their hoses on flames flaring up occasionally from bomb-kindled fires and air-raid precaution workers searched in ruins.

Londoners found stark evidence that air siege had made their city part of the war's front line. They saw an ancient church gutted by fire, a bomb-scarred cemetery in the Thames estuary district, four flame-seared warehouses in one area and a home where a bull's-eye bomb hit had killed three occupants.

Hospital Struck By Bomb

In several places areas of three or four blocks were closed to sightseers.

Elsewhere in the metropolitan area incendiary bombs struck the roof of a hospital, but the fire was extinguished by firemen and nurses before it could spread. Another incendiary bomb fell on a factory, but spluttered out on the structure's asbestos roof.

Several four-story business buildings, however, caught fire and only their blackened shells were left. In another commercial district a big blaze burned the roof off a large warehouse and damaged another.

Bomb Falls Near Home Of Kennedy

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 25—A high-caliber bomb fell 300 yards from Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's residence during last night's London air raids, American Embassy officials disclosed tonight and incendiary bombs were dropped in the immediate vicinity.

The bomb near his residence tore out a deep crater without damaging property, the announcement said.

"Surprise" For Nazis

London, Monday, Aug. 26 (AP)—The R. A. F.'s "newest and deadliest aircraft, a dive bomber," and other new types, "will be kept in reserve as a surprise packet for the Nazis," the Daily Mail declared today.

The new plane, it said, has been demonstrated to the United States observers who were "greatly impressed."

SOS From U-Boat Victim

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Mackay Radio today picked up an SOS from a British steamer which reported it was sinking fast after an attack by a submarine 700 miles west of Ireland. Mackay could not identify the ship by her call letters, GLZB.

Raid in Northeast

A NORTHEASTERN TOWN IN ENGLAND, Aug. 25 (AP).—Several persons were killed and some injured today by bombs dropped on the working class district from a lone Nazi raider. Two schools, two public houses and a church were damaged. It was the town's first raid of the war.

Sea Losses And Gains

London, Monday, Aug. 26 (AP). Ronald Cross, Minister of Shipping, said today in an overseas broadcast that Britain had lost slightly less than 1,900,000 gross tons of merchant shipping in the first year of war, but had offset this by adding "just over 2,000,000" tons to the merchant fleet.

GERMANS CLAIM 51 PLANES IN DAY DOWNED

Rolls-Royce Plant Hit, Put Out Of Commission, Berlin Says

Sinking Of Another British Destroyer Announced By Nazis

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 25—Fifty-one British planes were destroyed in raids over southern England today, according to an official German tabulation, bringing to 115 the toll of British aircraft claimed for the last two days.

Twelve German planes were reported missing.

Germany, still striving to conquer Britain from the air, claimed to have struck a devitalizing blow against the great Rolls-Royce factory in the Midlands—the plant that turns out engines for the Spitfire fighter planes which the British count on heavily to check the Luftwaffe.

Dive bombers, according to DNB, damaged the big plant which is at Derby, sixty miles southeast of Manchester, so effectively that they put the great part of the works "out of commission."

The German high command at the same time announced the sinking of another British destroyer, of the Viscount class, and declared German planes had attacked numerous English towns, coastal and inland.

The high command's communique acknowledged the loss of twenty planes in Saturday's operations.

The attacks, the high command said, were aimed particularly at air fields and seaports. It cited considerable damage to fields at North Weald, Hornchurch, Manston, Canterbury and Ramsgate, all points south or east of London. Hornchurch, in Essex county, is close to the East London suburbs.

Naval Base Bombed

The great naval base of Portsmouth, where Lord Nelson's old ship Victory lies, was one of the targets of the Nazi bombers. Harbor and wharf facilities were set on fire, the communique said.

At Dover, DNB elaborated, Nazi bombers dived 3,000 feet through the clouds and scattered seventy bombs on British troop concentrations. They encountered no resistance, the agency said, and reported that the German flyers, zoming back to the cover of the clouds, saw fires breaking out below.

Great Yarmouth also was effectively bombed, the communique said, and storehouses and sheds were set afire. There were fires also, and explosions in the Thames region.

Wide Successes Reported

Other German claims:

Considerable destruction to Bristol harbor on the west coast.

Damage to airplane factories at Birmingham, Kingston and Rochester.

Darkening of numerous searchlight positions.

The communique said British flyers had dropped bombs in open fields in north, west and southwest Germany and on the residential section of two southwestern German cities where some houses were hit and two civilians killed and two wounded.

The submarine which claimed destruction of the destroyer also reported sinking a 7,000-ton merchant vessel.

OBJECTIVES.

FRANKFURT, LUDWIGSHAVEN AND STUTTGART, AS WELL AS "MANY AIRDROMES IN FRANCE, BELGIUM, HOLLAND AND GERMANY" WERE MENTIONED IN AN AIR MINISTRY COMMUNIQUE AS TARGETS OF THE BRITISH NIGHT RAIDERS.

A LATER AIR MINISTRY STATEMENT ADDED THAT FOR THE THIRD SUCCESSIVE NIGHT, BRITISH BOMBERS ALSO HAD ATTACKED GERMAN LONG-RANGE GUN POSITIONS AROUND CAP GRIS NEZ AND THAT COASTAL COMMAND AIRCRAFT HAD "SPOTTED" FOR BRITISH ARTILLERY FIRING AGAINST NAZI GUN EMPLACEMENTS BETWEEN BOULOGNE AND CALAIS, ON THE FRENCH CHANNEL COAST.

AT LUDWIGSHAVEN, IT SAID, THE BRITISH BOMBERS SCORED "SEVERAL HITS" ON A NITROGEN PLANT AND OBSERVED HEAVY EXPLOSIONS. SEVERAL SMALL FIRES BROKE OUT ALSO AFTER AN ATTACK ON A SYNTHETIC OIL PLANT AT FRANKFURT, IT REPORTED, AND ANOTHER FIRE AFTER BOMBS DROPPED ON AN ELECTRIC POWER STATION NEAR COLOGNE.

BESIDES 20 NAZI-OCCUPIED AIRDROMES IN HOLLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE, IT SAID, BRITISH FLIERS ALSO RAIDED AN AIRDROME UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN THE DUTCH CITY OF HAARLEM.

IN THE ATTACKS ON GERMANY, IT SAID, THE DAIMLER-BENZ PLANT AT STUTTGART, "ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT ARMAMENT AND ARMORED CAR FACTORIES IN WESTERN GERMANY," WAS "METHODICALLY" BOMBED FOR MORE THAN AN HOUR.

"FIRE SOON BROKE OUT, AS MORE BOMBS FELL, AND SPREAD RAPIDLY UNTIL THE MAIN GROUP OF BUILDINGS WAS SEEN TO BE BLAZING," IT ADDED. "AS THE FLAMES SPREAD, A SERIES OF HEAVY EXPLOSIONS WAS OBSERVED. ONE OF THE BIGGEST EXPLOSIONS OF ALL OCCURRED 10 MINUTES AFTER THE AIRCRAFT HAD LEFT FOR HOME AND FIRES STILL BURNING FIERCELY IN MANY PARTS OF THE PLANT WERE VISIBLE FROM 60 MILES AWAY."

BERLIN, AUG 26-(MONDAY)-BERLINERS HUDDLED IN BASEMENT SHELTERS FOR THREE HOURS AND FOUR MINUTES EARLY TODAY WHILE ANTI-AIRCRAFT CANNON BLAZED AWAY INTO CLOUDY SKIES AT BRITISH PLANES CIRCLING OVER THE NAZI CAPITAL.

(AFTER SEVERAL PREVIOUS ALARMS AT WIDELY-SPACED INTERVALS, GERMAN AUTHORITIES HAVE NOT EVEN ACKNOWLEDGED THAT BRITISH PLANES REACHED BERLIN ITSELF.)

THERE WERE NO REPORTS OF DAMAGE, BUT THE FIRE FROM GUNS OF ALL SIZES WAS BRISK ALL OVER THE CITY. SEARCHLIGHTS APPARENTLY DID LITTLE GOOD IN PENETRATING THE CLOUDS AND WERE USED SPARINGLY. A NUMBER OF THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS FIRED TRACER SHELLS, SEEMINGLY AIMED BY THE SOUND OF THE PLANES OVERHEAD.

THE ALARM, FROM 12:19 TO 3:23 A.M. (5:19 TO 8:23 P.M., SUNDAY, EST) WAS THE FIFTH AND LONGEST OF THE WAR FOR BERLIN.

THERE WAS NO REPORT OF BOMBS DROPPED, BUT PAMPHLETS WERE SCATTERED OVER A CONSIDERABLE AREA, AND THE GERMAN GUNFIRE WAS SO HEAVY THAT IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL WHETHER SOME OF THE EXPLOSIONS MIGHT HAVE BEEN DISTANT BOMB BLASTS.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELL SPLINTERS PATTERED LIKE HAIL ON SLATE AND METAL ROOFS, EVEN IN THE DOWNTOWN AREA.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO ASCERTAIN WHERE OR WHETHER BOMBS WERE DROPPED. THE PLANES APPARENTLY CAME FROM THE WEST AND NORTH, THEIR MOTORS ROARING DISTINCTLY.

GERMAN OFFICIAL ACCOUNTS TOLD ONLY OF NAZI RAIDS ON ENGLAND SUNDAY, IN WHICH AN OFFICIAL TABULATION SAID 51 BRITISH AND 12 GERMAN PLANES WERE LOST. THIS BROUGHT TO 115 THE GERMAN CLAIM OF BRITISH LOSSES IN TWO DAYS.

(GERMAN ACCOUNTS DID NOT MENTION THE RENEWED RAIDS ON LONDON SUNDAY NIGHT AND MONDAY MORNING. THE BRITISH PLACED GERMAN LOSSES AT 39 AND THEIR OWN AT 11, BRINGING THE WEEKEND TOTALS TO 89 GERMANS AND 30 BRITISH.)

Berlin Takes Vichy To Task Over 'False Report' On Air Losse

Berlin, Aug. 25 (A.P. Via Radio)—Th German Government has asked th Vichy Government to desist fron issuing "false reports," the officia radio broadcast today, referring to recent communique of the Frenc Air Ministry which said that up to June 10 the French lost 306 planes to the Germans' 982.

"These figures are declared by competent German quarters to be faked," the radio said.

"It is emphasized by German authorities that when the armistice between Germany and France was signed the entire French Air Force had been destroyed which fact in itself should be sufficient to disprove the veracity of the French official statement."

Lyon, Vichy and elsewhere were continuing their affairs normally.

There are official decrees against anyone not born of a French father holding jobs as public functionaries or practicing medicine, dentistry or pharmacy, but these are not directed against the Jews.

Some newspapers sporadically editorialize against certain Jews who held prominent public offices before the armistice, alleging they were in part responsible for France's unpreparedness, but no general campaign against Jews has been instigated.

FRANCE NOT HURTING JEWS

No Legal Steps Taken as Yet on Pattern Set by Nazis

VICHY, France, Aug. 25 (AP)—There are signs of anti-Semitism in unoccupied France, but up to now, despite the example set by Germany and Italy, there have been no specific legal actions taken against the Jews by the Petain government.

LIGHTNING WAR NOT YET BEGUN, GAYDA ASSERTS

Italians Renew Raids On Malta, Continue Air Sparring In Africa

English Drop Bombs And Leaflets In Three Forays On North Italy

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 25—Fascism's chief editorial spokesman served notice on Britain today that "it will not be many more days before she finds herself up against some new surprise."

This warning, without any hint of what Italy and Germany might have in mind, was sounded by the usually authoritative Virginio Gayda during a new surge of Italian air raids on the British island fortress of Malta, continued air sparring in North Africa and three British night raids on northern Italy.

Egypt, Balkans Or Britain?

Considerable speculation arose immediately whether Gayda referred to possible Italian action against Egypt, a thrust in the Balkans or to the long-expected German attempt to invade Britain.

The tenor of his remarks, made in the newspaper La Voce d'Italia, was such that either separate German or Italian action or both could have been in the writer's mind.

Tension between Italy and Greece remained undiminished and Fascist officials declined to throw any light on the possibility of a move against that pro-British neighbor of Italian-annexed Albania.

They met with a "no comment" reports from abroad that Italian troops are massing on the border of Greece in the wake of Fascist press demands for border territory—demands the Greeks have indicated they would resist.

Offensive "Hardly Started"

Some observers thought Gayda's words may have been by way of explaining to the Italian public why the threatened summer invasion of England has not yet been attempted with the time for unfavorable winter fogs over the English Channel drawing near.

Chiding the English for being jubilant because the British Isles have not yet been destroyed, Gayda said he could assure them that the German offensive, like the Italian, "hardly has started."

"Germany's lightning war has not yet begun and everything which has happened up to now in the British skies and seas is nothing but methodical, necessary preparation," he said.

Advice To The British

"Germany and Italy are not accustomed to communicate in advance to the British their intentions, the time and the form of their actions.

"They strike by surprise with means least expected but with forces mathematically certain. . . . It will not be many days before the British will find themselves up against some new surprise.

"This is a calm foreword we give the English, together with advice not to be in a hurry to unfurl their flags."

British Raids On Italy

The Italian high command announced, meanwhile, that British planes, which it accused of flying across Switzerland, dropped bombs and leaflets in three raids on Lombardy and Piedmont, in northern Italy.

Two civilians were reported killed and dwellings damaged at Mariano Commenzo. Other bombs were dropped near Anione and in the outskirts of Alessandria, where a farmhouse was said to have been set afire.

Italian Raids On Malta

The high command said four British planes and one Italian bomber were shot down in raids yesterday on Malta.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Reports from Valletta, Malta, said one Italian plane was downed, another believed damaged in a Saturday raid in which the Italians dropped numerous bombs without inflicting casualties. No mention was made of any British plane losses.]

In North Africa, the daily communique said, two British destroyers were driven off in an attempted night bombardment of Bardia, Libyan port on the Mediterranean thirty miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Italian bombers were said to have destroyed three armored cars in a raid on a British motorized column between Sidi Barrani and the Libyan border, and heavily bombed airports at Garissa and Wajir, in Kenya, and military objectives at Daga, in the lower Sudan. The British raided Tobruk, Libyan port, wounding five persons and causing "extremely small damage."

Athens, Aug. 25 (AP)—Greek reservists from fourteen classes in the Epirus district at the southern tip of Albania were reported today to have received individual summonses to serve in the border garrison.

Although diplomatic activity in the Greek-Italian crisis was halted because of Sunday, military authorities pushed ahead with defense measures. A steady movement of troops to key frontier posts was noted and additional private vehicles were requisitioned.

HUNGARY CALLS OUT THOUSANDS OF RESERVISTS

Acts After Word Of Rumanian Reinforcements In Transylvania

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Aug. 25—Hungary called up thousands of additional reservists, ordered air raid precautions and took other defense measures today following reports that Rumania was sending reinforcements to Transylvania.

The intensification of military activity came as the Hungarian delegation arrived home from Turnu-Severin, where negotiations with Rumania over Hungarian claims to Transylvania collapsed yesterday.

Hungarian Defense Steps

Hungary's defense preparations in the last twenty-four hours included continuation of the calling of reservists which began Friday night, requisitioning of thousands of automobiles, screening street lights with blue anti-air raid filters, assembling special fire-fighting apparatus and whitewashing curbs for possible blackout.

No explanation of the defense measure was given, but the Government press asserted that Rumania was not acting in accord with the will of the Rome-Berlin Axis—which ordered the negotiations—and that Hungary would stand firm on her demands for the province lost to Rumania in the World War settlement.

Resolved Not To Give In

The Budapest newspaper Pester Lloyd said, "we are resolved not to give in and to enforce what we consider just, correct and reasonable in the interest of lasting peace."

Another paper, Magyar Sag, said, "Rumania is using Little Entente methods of trying to get public opinion on the Rumanian side."

Reports circulated, meanwhile, here and in Bucharest that the negotiations might be resumed some time this week, possibly in Hungary. Official Hungarian circles said Berlin and Rome were bringing strong pressure on Rumania to make concessions to the Budapest Government.

Bucharest Considering Resumption Of Parley

Bucharest, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Rumanian delegates to the Turnu-Severin conference on Transylvania returned home tonight and immediately conferred with Cabinet members over the possible resumption of the negotiations with Hungary.

The conference collapsed yesterday when Rumanian delegates failed to give a satisfactory reply to the Hungarians. It was reported likely tonight that a new Rumanian delegation would be named in an attempt to satisfy the Axis-inspired demands.

Delegates Confused

Talks of a last-minute revival of the discussions caused considerable confusion among some members of the delegation now refusing to take part in further conferences.

The general opinion in well-informed circles was that even if negotiations should be resumed it would take months before anything approaching an agreement could be reached.

Dobruja Accord Reached, Italian Radio Reports

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—An Italian radio announcement heard in New York today by CBS said Rumanian-Bulgarian negotiations for the cession of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria had been completed and that Rumanians would begin vacating the territory October 11.

The negotiations for the return of Dobruja, which Bulgaria lost in the post-World War settlements, have been under way at the border town of Craiova, Rumania.

A dispatch from Budapest, however, said that no final agreement on the Dobruja had been reached and that such reports were speculative.

France's Standing Army Is Reduced to 100,000

Demobilization Carried Out as Nazi Officers Look On

VICHY, France, Aug. 25 (AP).—France's standing armed forces, including militarized police, have been reduced almost to the 100,000 men permitted under the armistice with Germany, military authorities reported today.

Demobilization of millions of reservists recently has been carried out, they said, under the eyes of German officers sent into the unoccupied areas of France to supervise the operations. The permanent army remaining will be composed of professional soldiers recruited from time to time as needed and will include about 20,000 Mobile Guards or military police.

Seventy French naval officers whose ships were taken over by the British at Alexandria, Egypt, early in July arrived at the Mediterranean port of Toulon Saturday aboard the French liner Providence from Beirut, Syria. Another steamer is expected tonight with a further contingent of officers.

SPAIN SEEN STAYING OUT

Colonel Behn Says Franco Seeks to Keep Country 'Far From War'

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 25 (AP)—Colonel Sosthenes Behn, head of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, expressed the opinion today that Spain was "far from war."

He had just come from Madrid, where he reached an agreement with the Franco government for return of I. T. & T. properties in Spain to American management.

Colonel Behn, who had seen Spanish leaders frequently in recent weeks, expressed the opinion that Generalissimo Francisco Franco was determined to keep Spain out of the European conflict as long as possible.

"There has been a decided improvement in the outlook lately," he said.

been closed since June 30.

At the time of the line's closing the action was reported here to have been taken in an effort to prevent information leaking out concerning German preparations to invade Britain.

Immediate significance of the reopening could not be ascertained, but it inspired reports in foreign quarters that the Germans might have deferred any invasion plans for the moment.

The Basel railroad like all others between Switzerland and Germany, except the one at St. Margarethen on the old Austrian frontier, had been closed by the June 30 order.

An announcement said that from 5 A. M. to 9 P. M. daily all persons with visas to go to Germany may enter through Basel instead of taking the long route by way of St. Margarethen.

Permission also was granted Swiss farmers and other frontier workers to renew their frontier travel cards suspended when the railroad was closed. This means they may return to their jobs on the German side of the frontier daily if they wish.

French Army With British Bears Joan of Arc Cross

Soldiers Who Fled Colonies Join Fight in Near East

SOMEWHERE IN THE SUEZ CANAL ZONE, Aug. 25 (AP).—Free French soldiers—men who have fled France's colonies to join Great Britain's Mediterranean war against Italy after the military collapse of France—formally became a part of the British army in the Near East today.

The trained, fully equipped troops, wearing British uniforms but French insignia, received their regimental colors on a green parade ground. The British Ambassador to Egypt, Sir Miles Lampson, gave the welcome, and Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British Middle East forces, was among the guests. Lampson handed a regimental flag bearing the Cross of Lorraine, Joan of Arc's symbol, to the officer commanding the French troops.

A reporter, visiting the training camp of the French soldiers, found them in excellent spirits. They told him they were eager for an opportunity to get into active combat. French soldiers will receive the same pay as their British comrades-in-arms.

"None of us can understand why France gave up this fight," declared one French officer. "We came here to go on fighting alongside Great Britain, for we know that only in her victory can there ever again be a free France."

Thousands of French residents of the little French city within the capital of the canal zone thronged the ground to watch the ceremony.

Sir John A. MacTaggart Leaves Aboard American Clipper For Lisbon And Great Britain

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Sir John A. MacTaggart, 72-year-old Scottish real estate operator, left today on the American Clipper for Lisbon, Portugal and Great Britain, saying he had heard there was "going to be a Blitzkrieg in a day or two" and that he didn't want to miss it.

"I've never seen a Blitzkrieg and I want to be certain that Hitler fulfills the advertised specifications," he said. "If they have more than 1,000 planes in the air at one time I don't want to be asleep here in New York while a show of that kind is available."

The British baronet lives here but directs the Western Heritable Investing Corporation, Ltd., of Glasgow, Scotland, owners of 12,000 apartment houses in the United Kingdom occupied by some 50,000 Glasgow and London families.

He was one of eight passengers on the American Clipper which also carried 1,496 pounds of mail.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Tired, sleepy—one weeping from fatigue—77 British refugee children rolled into Grand Central terminal tonight. They came from Montreal, where they arrived by boat from England, under sponsorship of the United States Committee for the Care of European Children.

Three buses took them to Edwin Gould Foundation for Children, a Bronx welfare home that will care for them until their foster-parents claim them.

The group originally was part of 285 children, of whom 118 went to Rochester, N. Y., and two to Minnesota. Thirty-nine of tonight's arrivals are to go to Worcester, Mass., and thirteen others—Quakers—to Philadelphia.

Former German Official Glad To Register In U. S.

Philadelphia Resident, Dismissed By Hitler, Enthusiastic About Alien Act

Philadelphia, Aug. 25 (AP)—Robert M. W. Kempner, who knows the official side of alien registration in Germany and Austria, expects to be one of the first non-citizens to report here Tuesday when the United States starts a tally of aliens—and he is enthusiastic about the idea.

Kempner, 41, was chief legal adviser to the German Ministry of the Interior, until Hitler came to power in 1933. He served as expert in alien and resident registration until the Führer dismissed him.

Kempner applied for citizenship papers shortly after arriving here last year to be with his mother, a research worker at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mayor LaGuardia Leads Delegation On Way To Conference

New York Executive Says Members Will Be In Canada About Two Days

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 25—Mayor LaGuardia and the five other American members of the new United States-Canadian joint defense board entrained tonight for Ottawa, Canada, to confer with Canadian board members on strategy to defend North America against possible invasion.

The Mayor, chairman of the American delegation, said the members would be in Canada at least two days.

Asked to comment on the proposal of Republican Presidential nominee Wendell Willkie that a Cabinet office for aviation be created, LaGuardia said:

"Listen, we're in a national emergency. It's action, not talk that counts now."

The other American members, who boarded the train in Washington, were Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embrick, of the army; Capt. Harry W. Hill and Commander Forrest P. Sherman, of the navy; Lieut. Col. Joseph T. McNarney, of the Army Air Corps, and John D. Hickerson, of the State Department.

Ottawa, Aug. 25 (Canadian Press)—The joint board of defense for Canada and the United States will hold its first meeting here at 2 P. M. tomorrow. The United States members will arrive two hours earlier.

There is no indication how long the board will sit.

The visit of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York and American associates on the board is awaited with keen interest here. They likely will be met at the station by Col. J. M. Biggar, who heads the Canadian members, together with the representatives of the three defense services and the Department of External Affairs.

3 Men in Boat Held Able To Wreck Alaska Defense

Engineer Says a Few Bombs at Seward Could End Supplies

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25 (AP).—Three men with a fishing boat, operating on a dark night, could paralyze the United States Alaskan defense machine in less than an hour, in the opinion of Donald MacDonald, Alaska highway commission engineer.

Mr. MacDonald, en route home from Washington, where he conferred with military leaders, said in an interview that within ninety days after the three men had done their work the Alaskan population would be facing starvation.

The most vulnerable point, he said, was Seward, the territory's only all-weather entrance.

"The little town of 4,000 would be asleep and the first intimation of invasion would be a series of explosions. One would be the oil tanks near the only wharf. Alaska's entire gas and oil supply is there, with no reserve anywhere.

"The next would be the wharf itself. Then, as the startled population tried to give chase, they would find the channel markers destroyed, and the whole area would be as dangerous as a mine field, owing to the hidden reefs for which the Alaskan coast is famous."

The only answer Mr. MacDonald sees to the Alaskan defense problem "is construction of a road from the railhead at Hazelton, B. C., to Fairbanks, curving through the Yukon Territory." Such a highway, he added, would be virtually immune from offshore attack.

Spain Decorates 2 Nazis For Aid in Rehabilitation

Crosses Symbolize Gratitude to 'Noble German People'

MADRID, Aug. 25 (AP).—Spain has awarded grand crosses of the civilian order of La Beneficensia (charity) to Erich Hilgenfeldt, chief of the German welfare institution winter relief, and to Hans Weidentrass, the organization's representative in Spain.

A note, published today, said the decorations were official acknowledgment of their "heroic, charitable aid" to Madrid and other cities in civil war rehabilitation. The awards also were said to express Spain's gratitude toward "the great and noble German people."

One hundred and twenty tons of religious objects to refurbish Spanish churches — chalices, crucifixes and similar emblems and ornaments —have been received from Germany recently, according to a Barcelona dispatch.

Five months ago, England sent a similar cargo. The goods will go to churches which suffered damage in the civil war.

Thousands of Germans Captives in East Indies

Dutch Release Jews and Others Opposed to Hitler

BATAVIA, Dutch East Indies (Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Several thousands of the 9,000 Germans who were living in the East Indies when Germany invaded the Lowlands have been rounded up and placed in concentration camps by government authorities.

The roundup started within half an hour after the home government advised Batavia officials that the Nazi military machine had struck against Holland. No distinction was made at first between any of the German residents, gentiles and Jews being taken into custody alike by police and soldiers. Since then, hundreds of German Jews and others opposed to Adolf Hitler have been released from the camps.

The East Indies government solved the problem of housing the aliens by constructing one camp on the tiny isle of Onrust, off the coast of Batavia. Another camp was erected in an old fortress built more than 100 years ago, near the border of the East Java province.

Barkley Wants 'Whole String' Of Island Bases

Praises Bermuda's Offer of Great Sound, Calls It Desirable for Defense

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Senator Allen W. Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democrat Senate Leader, said today that the United States ought to acquire "a whole string" of air and naval bases guarding the Panama Canal.

Commenting upon the disclosure in Bermuda yesterday that the Great Sound there would be made available to the United States for an air base and possibly for a naval base, the Senator told newsmen:

"I think its's a very fine indication of the spirit of those who control Bermuda to offer it to us."

Senator Barkley said that the Great Sound, about 700 miles southeast of New York, was a desirable, "if not indispensable," outpost for defense of the Atlantic approaches to the United States.

He added that the Bermuda site was only one of many which the United States ought to acquire. Recalling that the British islands of Newfoundland, Trinidad, Barbados and the Bahamas had all been mentioned in reports concerning negotiations for the acquisition of additional bases, the Administration leader said the location of bases was a military and technical matter which he was not competent to discuss.

"But we ought to have a whole string of bases along the islands guarding the Panama Canal," he declared.

Such a string would conceivably include Trinidad, near the northern coast of South America; Barbados, about two hundred miles to the northeast, and the Bahamas, about the same distance east of Miami, Fla. Asked whether he thought an American defense base would also be desirable in British Guiana, on the northeast coast of South America, Senator Barkley said that would be a question for the military experts.

Military men say that an American defense base at Bermuda would have to be captured or destroyed before an enemy fleet could strike at the United States east coast without exposing itself to flank attack and its communication lines to destruction.

Bermuda, a mecca for American tourists, is in an area where the United States Navy now has no bases. The nearest is at Norfolk, Va., to the south. The base at Guantanamo, Cuba, is around a thousand miles away.

In military circles, therefore, the announcement that the Great Sound of Bermuda would be made available to the United States for an air base, and possibly for a naval base also, meant that the effective range of American planes and warships guarding the coast would be increased approximately 600 miles.

Military experts assume that the proposed air base at Bermuda would be fortified strongly. The British Navy already has a dockyard there, and if the island were not made secure, an attacking force might seize this and the new American facilities and turn them against the United States.

Payment Being Studied

Questioned about methods of paying Britain for leases on the base sites, Senator Barkley pointed out that no official plan had been announced yet, but that various methods had been suggested in different quarters, among them reduction or cancellation of the British war debt and transfer to Britain of fifty United States destroyers.

Whether the Administration intends to acquire the leases without action by Congress has not yet been disclosed. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson is understood to have given the Cabinet an opinion last Friday on the legal questions.

The announcement in Bermuda was taken by some analysts to mean that the Administration had decided Congressional action was unnecessary and that it was proceeding to conclude executive agreements, but there was no official confirmation of this.

When he announced at a press conference recently that negotiations for the acquisition of bases from the British were under way, President Roosevelt said the consideration had not yet been determined. He cautioned reporters against linking the negotiations for bases with the proposed sale of destroyers.

EXPERTS POINT OUT VALUE OF BERMUDA BASE

Say It Would Add 600 Miles To Range Of U. S. Air And Navy Ships

Importance Of Such Stations Illustrated By Britain's Chain

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 25—Military experts said today that an American defense base at Bermuda would have to be captured or destroyed before an enemy fleet could strike at the east coast of the continent without exposing itself to flank attack and its communication lines to destruction.

The British island of Bermuda, a mecca for American tourists, is about 700 miles southeast of New York and 570 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N. C. It is in an area where the United States Navy now has no bases. The nearest is at Norfolk, Va. To the south, the base at Guantanamo, Cuba, is around 1,000 miles away.

Bases Navy's Filling Stations

Bases are the navy's filling stations and garages. Ships and naval planes can no more keep at sea indefinitely than an automobile can stick to the road forever. They must go into bases for fuel and repairs.

In military circles, therefore, the announcement that the Great Sound of Bermuda would be made available to the United States for an air base, and possibly for a naval base also, meant that the effective range of American planes and warships guarding the coast would be increased approximately 600 miles.

Units based at Bermuda would be in a position to detect and dispute the advance of an enemy fleet farther from American shores than at present. In addition, if the attacking force moved against the coast without putting them out of commission, the defense units would be able to attack from the rear while shore-based ships and planes struck from the other direction. Enemy communication lines stretched past the base likewise would be exposed to attack.

British Bases All Over World

Enemy ships following the northerly Great Circle course toward New England might be outside the effective range of bombing planes from Bermuda, but they, too, would be exposed to flank attack if another base were established at Newfoundland.

The importance of bases to naval operations is illustrated, naval men say, by the fact that Britain has established them all over the world.

For instance, the British Asiatic Fleet has had strong bases at Singapore and Hongkong while the United States has relied in the Far East upon a limited base at Manila. This country has one of the strongest bases in the world at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, however, and is now strengthening advanced bases farther to the west. Both the army and the navy are rushing the installation of additional defenses in the Alaskan area also.

Radius Of Patrol Bombers

From naval base outposts, patrol bombers have an extreme radius of action of more than 1,000 miles, a normal radius of 300 to 400 miles. Although such planes can fly 2,500 miles non-stop, they must use part of their flying time over their objective, cannot spend it all on the trips out and back.

Military experts assume that the proposed air base at Bermuda will be fortified strongly. The British navy already has a dockyard there, and if the island were not made secure an attacking force might seize this and the new American facilities and turn them against this country.

Method May Stir Controversy

Although the idea of acquiring naval and air bases in this hemisphere from the British has met widespread approval in Congress, the method by which it is to be done may stir up controversy. That method has not yet been disclosed.

One question now in many minds is whether action by Congress will be proposed or the matter be handled by executive agreements.

Another is the consideration to be given England. Reduction or cancellation of war debts has been suggested in Congressional sources as one possibility. William C. Bullitt, the United States Ambassador to France, advocated recently that this country make available to Britain fifty of its old destroyers, but President Roosevelt has cautioned newsmen against linking this proposal with the negotiations for bases.

War Communiques

British

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique said tonight:

It is authoritatively stated that reports so far received show that twenty-five enemy aircraft have been destroyed today. Four of our aircraft are missing but three of the pilots are saft.

Five more enemy planes have been established as having been shot down by the Royal Air Force and anti-aircraft batteries yesterday, making a total of fifty for the day. Nineteen of our aircraft were lost yesterday but the crews of all the pilots are safe.

Further information has now confirmed that five more enemy aircraft were shot down yesterday by anti-aircraft fire, making a total of fifty destroyed during that day. Nineteen of our aircraft are now known to have been lost but the crews of all but seven are safe.

Later reports with regard to last night's enemy bombing attacks show that some damage was done to industrial premises on the northeast coast but no further casualties are reported.

Enemy activity was on a smaller scale today, but bombs were reported to have been dropped this afternoon on the Scilly Isles, where one person was killed. Bombs also were dropped in south Wales where no damage was reported but one person was injured seriously. An enemy bomber was shot down by our fighters in this area.

Early this afternoon the enemy made an attempt in force to cross the Dorset coast, but was driven off. More bombs are reported to have been dropped and it is already known that twenty-four enemy aircraft were destroyed in this engagement. Four of our aircraft are missing but the pilots of three are safe.

A communique issued by the Ministry of Home Security said:

It is now confirmed that during the raid on Portsmouth yesterday afternoon a number of casualties were caused, some of them fatal. The majority of these were in a cinema, which received a direct hit.

Damage also was done to private property and business premises. It is known that in addition to the attack already reported on Manston Airdrome, casualties were caused at another R. A. F. airdrome yesterday.

Reports which have not been received show that in last night's raids on parts of the London area there were some casualties, but of these the number killed was small. Otherwise there is nothing to add to the previous communique when it was stated that the damage was done to commercial and private property.

Elsewhere in England sporadic attacks were made over a wide area. In three towns in the north of England and a fourth in the Midlands some damage was done mainly to residential property and some casualties were caused, a few of them fatal. In other districts, however, the damage is reported as slight and the casualties few.

An Air Ministry communique said:

Last night—Saturday—the R. A. F. attacked military objectives in towns in southwest Germany, including Frankfort, Ludwigshafen and Stuttgart.

Many airdromes in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany were attacked, among them being those at Plouescat, Dinard, Le Crotoy, Vierzon, Flushing, Haarlem and Darmstad. Two of our aircraft are missing.

Military objectives in Italy, including targets at Milan and Sesto Calendo, were also bombed. From the Italian operations all our aircraft returned safely.

BERLIN, Aug. 25 (AP).—The German high command communique said today:

North Weald, Hornchurch, Manston, Canterbury and Ramsgate The war harbor at Portsmouth was bombed heavily, partially with bombs of such heavy caliber that harbor and wharf facilities were set aflame.

Our fighting units further bombed Great Yarmouth, where storehouses and sheds went up in flames. Troop barracks near Dover also were bombed. During the day numerous hectic air fights took place in which our pursuit planes again proved their superiority.

Numerous nocturnal attacks of our pilots resulted in considerable destruction of the harbor of Bristol, fires and explosions in a large oil tank in the region of the Thames, heavy damage to various factories of the British airplane industry, among others those in Derby, Birmingham, Kingston, and Rochester.

English fliers threw bombs on open fields in north, west and southwest Germany as well as into the residential section of two southwestern German cities. In one city numerous homes were hit, two civilians were killed and two wounded. At another place a bomb destroyed a house in which war prisoners were living. Eight were wounded.

Total losses of the enemy yesterday were sixty-four planes, of which fifty-seven were destroyed in air fights and seven by anti-aircraft or on the ground. Twenty German planes are missing.

A submarine sank a British destroyer of the Viscount class and a merchantman of 7,000 tons out of a heavily protected convoy.

ROME, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Italian communique said today:

One of our formations bombed Hal Far airport at Malta. Ten English chasers already in the air tried to block our action but were attacked by our chasers. Four English planes and one of ours were shot down in the fight which followed.

In North Africa two English destroyers which began a night bombardment of the port at Bardia were attacked by our bombers and put to flight.

Other air attacks were carried out by our formations against enemy motorized forces between Sidi Barrani and the Cyrenaican (Libyan) border. Three armored cars were destroyed.

An enemy air raid on Tobruk caused five wounded and extremely small material damage. From later information it was learned that during enemy action over Tobruk, reported in the communique of Aug. 20, two enemy planes were downed by naval anti-aircraft.

In eastern Africa our air formations bombed airports at Garissa and Wajir, in Kenya, and enemy positions at Daga, a river post in the lower Sudan.

Enemy air raids took place last night in Piedmont and Lombardy. Enemy planes, always coming over Switzerland, were put to flight by our chasers after dropping three bombs near Anione and three in the outskirts of Alessandria, causing one fire in a farmhouse. At Mariano Commenzo two deaths were caused among the populace and light damage to private dwellings. The usual leaflets were dropped with the bombs.

DANAHER SAID THAT THE UNITED STATES WAS BOUND BY DOMESTIC AND INTERNATIONAL LAW TO REFRAIN FROM SUCH A TRANSFER.

"SUPPLYING DESTROYERS TO ENGLAND IS A RECOGNIZED ACT OF WAR AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE SHOULD FULLY REALIZE IT," HE ASSERTED. X X X IF WE MAKE AVAILABLE TO ENGLAND SOME OF OUR DESTROYERS FOR USE IN THE WAR, INEVITABLY WE ENTER THAT WAR."

EXPRESSING THE VIEW THAT ADDITION OF 50 DESTROYERS TO THE BRITISH FLEET MIGHT MEAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VICTORY AND DEFEAT FOR BRITAIN, PEPPER SAID:

"THESE FIFTY WORLD WAR DESTROYERS COULD BE OF NO HIGHER SERVICE TO THEIR COUNTRY'S SAFETY THAN IF, BY MAINTAINING ENGLAND'S NAVAL SUPREMACY, THEY CAN KEEP ENGLAND'S ENEMY AND OUR OWN FROM THE SHORES OF THE UNITED STATES."

BRECKENRIDGE SAID THAT "FIFTY DESTROYERS TO ENGLAND MAY BE WORTH 500 TO US FIVE WEEKS FROM NOW" BECAUSE "THEY MAY TURN THE TIDE OF BATTLE AGAINST OUR DECLARED ENEMIES."

(ADVANCE)-NASSAU, BAHAMAS--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--BY THE SIMPLE CHARM OF THEIR PERSONALITIES, THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR ARE WINNING THROUGH TRADITIONAL BRITISH OUTER CRUST TO THE HEARTS OF THIS LITTLE COLONY.

FROM THE DAY OF THEIR ARRIVAL AUG. 17, THE NEW BAHAMIAN GOVERNOR AND HIS AMERICAN-BORN WIFE HAVE FITTED THEMSELVES SMOOTHLY INTO THE PROVINCIAL LIFE OF THIS CAPITAL, HAVE GRACIOUSLY ACKNOWLEDGED THE FORMALITIES AND, WITH UNCONSCIOUS EASE, HAVE WON A FAR MORE SPONTANEOUS AND ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION THAN EVER WAS EXPECTED.

THE FORMER KING IS NO LONGER A GLAMOUR BOY. YET AT 46, WHEN MOST MEN ARE GETTING THICKER WAISTLINES AND THINNER HAIR, HE IS SLIMLY YOUTHFUL AND SPORTS AN APPEALINGLY BOYISH SMILE.

LIKE HER ROYAL HUSBAND, THE DUCHESS LOOKS YOUNG IN HER CHIC COSTUMES MANY OF THEM BECOMING WALLIS BLUE, AND SHE EXHIBITS TO THE CURIOUS ISLANDERS A NATURAL GRACE IN ANY COMPANY.

AUG 26 1940

THE APPOINTMENT OF EDWARD AS GOVERNOR TO THE 20 ISLANDS AND 68,000 PERSONS OF THE BAHAMAS SURPRISED AND DISCONCERTED THE TOP RANK POPULATION, WITH THE RESULT THAT PREPARATION FOR THEIR STAY IN NASSAU WAS MARKED BY NOTICEABLE APPREHENSION.

30-24-4551

30.24—4551

THIS FEELING WAS DISPELLED DAY BY DAY AS BOTH THE DUKE AND DUCHESS SHOWED A MODEST DESIRE TO BE HELPFUL AND EXHIBITED NO TENDENCY TO ASSUME STRONG-HANDED LEADERSHIP.

IN SUCH A SMALL BRITISH COLONY, THE SENTIMENT IS STRONG AGAINST ANY INFLUENCE THAT UPSETS THE SMOOTH ROUTINE OF DAY-TO-DAY LIFE. ANY ATTEMPT ON THE DUKE'S PART TO MAKE QUICK, IMPORTANT CHANGES WOULD HAVE MET STRONG RESISTANCE, UNDERCOVER AT LEAST. SENSING THIS SITUATION, BOTH EDWARD AND WALLY SOON MADE IT CLEAR THAT THEY WOULD ADAPT THEMSELVES TO LOCAL CONDITIONS AND NOT BUCK THE DEEP FLOW OF COLONIAL CUSTOM.

AUG 26 1940

ON THEIR VERY FIRST DAY IN NASSAU, THE DUKE SET A PACE FOR HIS RELATIONS WITH THE PEOPLE BY ACKNOWLEDGING HIS OWN IGNORANCE OF THE JOB AND ALMOST SHYLY COURTING THE HELP OF ASSOCIATES.

"ALTHOUGH THE ROLE OF COLONIAL ADMINISTRATOR IS NOVEL AND UNFAMILIAR TO ME," HE SAID IN AN ADDRESS, "MY PAST EXPERIENCE AND YOUR OFFER OF READY CO-OPERATION ENCOURAGE ME IN THE BELIEF MY TASK WILL NOT PROVE TOO FORMIDABLE."

THE DUCHESS DID AN EQUALLY POPULAR THING WHEN SHE LET IT BE KNOWN WITHOUT DELAY THAT SHE WOULD FOLLOW PREVAILING CUSTOM AS TO ENTERTAINMENT AND SEEK NO LEADERSHIP OF A NEW SOCIETY. THIS MEANT THAT PUBLIC ENTERTAINING AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE, FOR THE PRESENT AT LEAST, WOULD BE LIMITED TO WAR BENEFITS AND CHARITY AFFAIRS. OTHER SOCIAL ACTIVITY HERE, AS ELSEWHERE IN THE EMPIRE, HAS COME TO BE CONSIDERED DISTINCTLY UNPATRIOTIC SINCE THE WAR STARTED A YEAR AGO.

THE DUCHESS HAD A DEFINITELY APPEALING QUALITY WHEN SHE ADMITTED TO HAVING LEFT FRANCE HURRIEDLY WITHOUT AN ADEQUATE WARDROBE AND WHEN SHE TOLD OF HAVING BEEN WITHOUT THE SERVICES OF A HAIRDRESSER SINCE LEAVING LISBON FOR THE DUKE'S NEW STATION.

AS THESE HUMAN TOUCHES ENDEARED EDWARD AND WALLY TO THOSE OF UPPER STATION, THE NUMERICALLY-HEAVY NATIVE POPULATION REQUIRED NOTHING BUT THE SIGHT OF THEIR NEW GOVERNOR AND HIS LADY TO BECOME ENTHUSIASTIC.

"DID YOU SEE THE KING?" THEY ASKED ONE ANOTHER, PERSISTING IN THE SINCERE BELIEF THAT THEIR GOVERNOR STILL WAS RULER OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

AUG 26 1940

WHEN EDWARD WALKED THE STREETS ON OFFICIAL BUSINESS, HUNDREDS TRAILED AT HIS HEELS, STOOD WAITING IN BROILING MID-DAY HEAT OUTSIDE WHATEVER BUILDING HE ENTERED, THEN TOOK UP HIS TRAIL IN INCREASING NUMBERS UNTIL SQUADS OF HELMETED CONSTABLES WERE CALLED TO MAKE A WAY FOR HIM.

PLANES REACH ENGLAND IN WAVES; BERLIN WARNS MORE ARE COMING

Folkestone, Dover and South Coast Are Battered---Dublin Protests to Reich When Bombs Kill Girls---German Capital Target of R. A. F.--- Spokesmen There Call Preliminaries Over.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—German war planes failed today in an attempt to pierce London's defenses again, but massed Nazi raiders smashed at a thirty-mile stretch of the south coast and showered bombs also on a wide area inland. Bombs were also dropped near New Ross in County Wexford, southern Ireland, today.

The Irish Government announced in Dublin that a German plane had dropped bombs which killed three girls. An immediate protest was made to Berlin.

"A bomber aircraft of German nationality flew over the area of Campile, Ballymippy, Bannow and Duncormick, county Wexford between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon," said a statement by the Government Information Bureau.

Bomb Strikes Creamery.

"Bombs were dropped at each of these points. The co-operative creamery at Campile was wrecked, three girls were killed and one injured by falling masonry.

"The Irish Charge d'Affaires in Berlin has been instructed to make a protest to the German Government and to demand full reparations."

Two big waves of German bombers which headed toward the British capital were turned off by R. A. F. fighters in a ten-minute battle in the clouds about 20,000 feet over the southeast coast.

Machine-gun and the cannon fire of Messerschmitt fighters escorting the bombers died away as the Germans made for home without breaking through, at least three of their planes falling as the battle's toll. Fourteen German planes were reported downed previously.

An air raid alarm earlier sent Londoners underground for the sixth time since Saturday, but the metropolitan area was unscathed.

London's millions went scurrying to shelter at 3:26 P. M. (10:26 A. M., New York time) when alarm sirens screamed, but they emerged again when the all-clear signal was given thirty-seven minutes later without any sign of the raiders or any activity by the city's anti-aircraft guns.

Dover, the channel "Hell's Corner," Folkestone and the South Foreland apparently bore the brount of the Luftwaffe's reply to Britain's first big air attack on Berlin.

The day's biggest battle raged over Dover, the English Channel port which is only twenty-two miles from the French coast. Four of the attackers were downed here.

Folkestone, a town of 35,000 population, withstood a heavy attack in which two of the German craft were shot down after creating scenes of horror. Folkestone is southwest of Dover and twenty-six miles from Boulogne, France.

Nazis Mention Canterbury.

South Foreland, a sparsely settled sandy waste northeast of Dover, near the Royal Military School, was the scene of the day's third major attack.

[Berlin also told of fighting in the air over the cathedral town of Canterbury.]

The bombs that fell in Ireland landed near a railway bridge at Campile, a village on the main Rosslare-Cork line where it crosses the River Barrow, about seventeen miles from Wexford Town.

The inhabitants said that ten bombs in all were believed dropped. Some persons professed to have seen three planes over the area, with one being pursued by the other two.

The dull roar of bombs were heard at intervals throughout the battle all along the coast east of Dover to Folkestone, at the lower tip of the southeastern section of Britain which the fighters call Hell's Corner.

The German attackers and British defenders battled desperately for almost two hours, the planes plunging so low over Folkestone that R. A. F. men guarding barrage balloons opened fire on the raiding craft with rifles.

Before the British fighters downed their first three German planes in the Folkestone area, large apartment houses close to the sea front were bombed to the ground. A number of fires sent flames skyward. Rescue workers searched frantically in the ruins for victims.

Only a few bombs were dropped east of Dover. The action over Dover itself was confined mostly to dog fights high in the sky while anti-aircraft guns pumped shells at the raiders.

British Rescue Enemy.

The crews of three German planes shot down off Folkestone were rescued by British motor lifeboats. A Spitfire which shot down one of them circled slowly over the victims until the lifeboat reached them.

At Folkestone the Germans swooped out of the [illegible] and the townspeople saw the bombs leaving their racks as the raiders dived within a few hundred feet of the rooftops.

Three other dive bombers were reported shot down in fighting over the mainland.

As three escorting Messerschmitts turned for home they dashed by Dover for their daily sport of "balloon-potting" and shot down two of the big cable-bearing bags.

The Air Ministry announced that thirty-seven German planes were destroyed in attacks on Britain today with a loss of fifteen British planes.

[Berlin said that thirty-nine British planes were destroyed over South England and that ten German machines were missing.]

Strike at Shopping Hour.

A number of casualties, including many dead, were inflicted by the Nazis who dived from a formation of twenty bombers to blast at Folkestone in the midst of the morning shopping hour.

Two attackers were shot down here within three minutes after the British swept aloft to the challenge. One fell in flames just outside the town, the second plummeted into the channel.

One bomb hit squarely on a laundry at Folkestone filled with girls at work. One body was removed from the wreckage immediately and volunteer forces searched for additional victims.

The attack caught the town unawares, the people at first thinking the attackers were their own planes.

"They headed for us, accompanied by fighters which seemed to drop out of the sky," one eyewitnes related.

Air raid precaution and auxiliary fire service workers digging in smoldering ruins could hear a woman's screams and the wailing of a baby under a mass of wreckage.

Debris Flies Half Mile.

Debris from some explosions was hurled half a mile and in some streets not one window pane was left unshattered.

In a second battle, a second Messerschmitt fighter fell into the sea. It scooped up water and apparently sank.

Five minutes later a third machine plummeted down over the South Forelands and plunged behind the cliffs.

The fourth victim in this section was a heavy German bomber which approached the coast from the northeast, flying about 800 feet up and only a short distance from shore. As the raider headed southward it was downed by antiaircraft fire.

The alarm sounded in London just after a large number of planes, believed to be German, sped high over the Thames estuary in the direction of the city.

They were engaged by anti-aircraft guns and British fighters went up to patrol the sky.

The Air Ministry stated tonight that a coastal command flying boat, patrolling the area of Tromsoe, Norway, had attacked German flying boats at anchor, sinking two, setting fire to two and damaging others.

There were raids before dawn over Wales.

Most of the incendiary bombs dumped on Wales struck in fields without causing serious damage or casualties. High explosive bombs were dropped on the northeast coast, but the only casualty was one soldier injured slightly.

The British bombers streaking out across the channel crossed paths with Nazi night raiders who bombed a town in the Midlands, industrial center of England, causing some casualties including "a few people killed."

Casualties reported so far from German raids last night in the midlands included:

A man, his wife and four children, all killed when a bomber scored a direct hit on their home.

Several persons killed when a bomb landed directly on a shelter, blowing it so high it fell on the roof of a neighboring house, in which an entire family was wiped out.

In a southwest town three children were killed this morning by a delayed action bomb while playing around a hole it made when dropped during the night.

Observers in one Midland city attacked last night said the raid ranked as the most serious the place had undergone, both in terms of duration and casualties, but details could not be given.

Two factories were hit there, it was said, but neither seriously damaged.

Britain's air war recapitulation listed 1,175 German raiders brought down since the start of the war; 1,101 since June 18, when the direct attack on England was begun, and more than 800 since August 8, first day of the mass attacks.

New Ships for Britain.

On the economic front Ronald Cross, Minister of Shipping, announced that Great Britain would "embark upon the second year of war with shipping resources under the British flag undiminished" through addition of "just over 2,000,000 tons" to the merchant fleet to offset first-year losses of slightly less than 1,900,000 tons.

Mr. Cross said "4,500,000 million tons of import in a single month (July) of intense enemy attack both by sea and by air leaves me very well satisfied" and declared that during July 25 per cent more shipping left British ports with cargoes for America than in any month "in the more peaceful" January to April period.

BERLIN, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—German flyers returning from raids on southern England said heaviest air fighting today was over the Kent towns of Canterbury, Deal, Folkestone and Tunbridge.

Without giving actual figures on either side, the Germans said their losses were in a ratio of only one to five for the British.

All the towns mentioned are near Dover on the English Channel. Deal is nine miles north, Folkestone four miles southwest and Canterbury fifteen miles northeast.

Dropped 1,500 Bombs.

BERLIN, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—German planes dropped 1,500 bombs totaling approximately 150 tons in attacks on thirty-eight objectives in the British Isles during the night, according to a broadcast today by the German wireless.

Birmingham, important Midlands center of Britain's armament industry, was reported bombed again last night for the second successive night.

The German High Command said Nazi planes made "concentric attacks" on the English city—presumably slicing in on their objectives from all directions.

It raised its toll of British planes downed over England yesterday from 51 to 72.

Meanwhile, the German High Command reported that German raiders had inflicted paralyzing damage Saturday on the Rolls-Royce factory at Derby, sixty miles south of Manchester, which was said to be turning out motors for Spitfire fighting planes.

Other Places Bombed.

Heavy damage also was said to have been inflicted on the Portsmouth naval base, where port facilities were set afire; at Dover, where dive bombers attacked British troop concentrations, and on Great Yarmouth, where storehouses were left in flames.

Other objectives bombed, the communique reported, included airplane factories at Birmingham, Kingston and Rochester; Bristol harbor on the west coast, and a number of military airdromes.

Germans insisted three to four British planes were being put out of action for every Nazi machine lost and asserted that this ratio was drastically wearing down England's air defenses.

Increased attention, authorized sources said, is being paid by the German raiders to disruption of British rail transportation facilities.

Railway terminals are being systematically attacked, it was said, with the result that Britain is being increasingly hampered in trying to move supplies from western ports to southern industrial cities.

HEAVY DAMAGE REPORTED AS OUTSKIRTS OF CAPITAL ARE STEADILY ATTACKED

Most Of German Planes Kept From Heart Of City, But Explosives Fall In Residential And Working-Class Districts

AUG 27 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Tuesday, Aug. 27—Successive waves of foreign planes—apparently British bombers raiding Italy—ran a gantlet of Swiss anti-aircraft gunfire for more than three hours last night and early today.

Both as they went and as they returned, the planes were subjected to heavy Swiss ground fire that echoed through the defiles of the Jura, Bernese and Oberland Alps. There were no reports of planes hit.

The last previous flight of foreign warplanes over Switzerland was Saturday night and Sunday morning, drawing a Swiss protest to Britain for the second time within a fortnight.

AUG 27 1940

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Aug. 27—For more than six hours the German air force hurled slaughter and destruction in and around London last night and early today in the longest air raid of the war.

The toll of property damage and casualties was unestimable but apparently heavy. Some bombs fell in fashionable residential districts as well as thickly populated working-class quarters.

The all-clear signal came about 3.40 A. M., slightly more than six hours after the sirens first screeched the alarm. Publication of the exact times was not permitted, but the censor allowed word that the raid lasted past the six-hour mark.

Raiders Kept From Heart Of City

A flaming ring of anti-aircraft defense apparently kept the raiders from the heart of the city, but they roared around and around it, dropping their bombs on the outskirts.

Many watchers declared the continuous chain of circling Nazis was a deliberate maneuver—a nuisance raid to keep the city up all night.

Several times bombers were caught in the beams of powerful searchlights and jettisoned their heavy explosive cargoes to speed their escape.

Fleet Street At Standstill

So intense was the conflict that operations in Fleet London's newspaper row, were brought to a virtual star editions being held up to await the outcome.

An Air Ministry communique this morning, giving figures on plane losses in yesterday's bitter fighting, said for six German planes had been destroyed and fifteen R. A. F. plane were lost, although the pilots of eleven were safe.

Jammed thousands of theatergoers were caught out by the raid and missed their last trains to suburban homes which they may or may not find intact.

Some Traffic Still Moves

Within the continual circle of the city's defenses, blinding bright, the blackout made a core of darkness so deep that the occasional flare of a match was startling.

Yet through it some traffic continued to move.

Bombs were heard dropping on the suburbs, and in one thickly populated district, Associated Press staff observers heard tremendous explosions as one raider was caught in a cross-fire of searchlights. Apparently, the plane had jettisoned its bombs in an effort to escape.

Millions Crouch In Shelters

All around the sky flashed fitfully with bomb blasts and anti-aircraft cannonading.

Millions of Londoners and suburbanites crouched long in shelters, but many others insisted on staying on street corners to watch the show despite frantic admonitions of air-raid wardens to get below ground or else be killed.

The Nazi strategy appeared to be to send raiders around the city individually at split-second intervals.

AUG 27 1940

Appear Baffled By Defenses

The raiders, however, appeared baffled by the city's tight defense of barrage balloons, searchlights and clattering anti-aircraft cannon.

Some lone planes leaped this deadly barrier and dashed across the center of London, however, at altitudes so high that gunfire could not reach them.

Searchlights caught some of these, and appeared to "toss" them from one to another, like basket balls in the hands of skilled players, until the anti-aircraft guns could get a bead on them.

Even at that, observers said the full ground defenses had not yet been brought into use.

Some London cabbies still plied their trade in the gloom and glare, telling fares, "You know there's a raid still on," and dodging like rabbits when they passed military objectives.

The prolonged raid on London was timed with others which struck anew from the Channel coast to the Midlands, scenes of fiery assaults all day yesterday.

At Least 50 Killed At Folkestone

At Folkestone, on the Channel, during the day at least fifty persons were acknowledged to have been slain by bombers who raided the town at market time.

The German raiders, both in London and elsewhere, were making skilled use of the cover provided by fitfully drifting clouds.

In northeast England they attacked last night and early today at time-clock intervals, flying high but dropping bombs in what seemed a hit-or-miss manner to observers on the ground.

Those areas, the southwest coast and Wales all were objects of new raids during the night, simultaneously with the new swoop on London. One action apparently centered over London's south suburbs.

The persistence of the raiders and their continual hammering at every corner of Britain lent significance to authoritative British predictions that the attack will be increasingly intensified all winter long, with no land invasion attempted before next spring.

Tougher Than Expected

The German Luftwaffe is finding it a tougher-than-expected job to knock out the R. A. F. and "soften up" Britain generally, the British said, so the night raids in particular will be stepped up.

The last British reconnaissance has failed to disclose signs of concentrations on the Continent for an imminent invasion, these sources said.

The tempo and scope of the German air raids already is increasing, today being one of the worst periods of horror and destruction which this island yet has known.

The Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security reported bomb blasts and battle from Soutl. Foreland to the Scilly Isles off Land's End.

German "balloon busters" concentrated on the Dover balloon barrage; the center of Folkestone was raided and targets some distance inland suffered.

But the Ministries called the afternoon raid—second of the day—on London a failure. The enemy, swarming up the Thames, was scattered, the Ministries said, and a later attack on the south coast naval base of Portland was similarly dispersed.

Some Dropped In Essex

Some bombs were dropped in Essex, however, and casualties were acknowledged from more isolated attacks on several districts.

While Adolf Hitler's air force struck back with fury, mines apparently sowed in his nine-day-old blockade of Britain sent another British destroyer, the 1,340-ton Hostile, to the bottom. The casualties were not announced. The Hostile carried a normal complement of 145 men. It was the thirtieth destroyer Britain has acknowledged losing.

2 Others Turned Back

In the raid yesterday morning bombs were dropped on a municipally owned housing development on the outskirts of London. But in violent battle over the southeast coast two other big forces of raiders striking at the capital were turned back. It was presumed that these forces occasioned the second alarm in the capital.

About twenty bombers attacked Folkestone, a city of 35,000, at the market hour and loosed a shower of bombs.

One bomb hit squarely a laundry filled with girls.

Those killed in this area, along with others elsewhere, probably constituted Britain's heaviest air-raid casualty list of any single day of the war.

6 Killed In Shelter

Six fatalities resulted from a direct hit on one of the small steel air-raid shelters which Britons have been encouraged to erect in their backyards. The shelter was blown to the roof of a neighboring house.

Other raids were made in northeast Scotland, where eight bombs dropped on a municipal housing development killed a man and a girl, and in far-apart areas of Wales.

The press association reported a raid on the Scilly Islands, just off the southwest coast, yesterday in which 150 bombs were dropped, some houses set afire, and a beach swept by machine-gun fire which killed a girl and wounded several other persons.

Dwellings and business establishments and some factories were hit by scores of high-explosive and fire bombs which fell in Midlands districts.

Nazi Bombs Kill Three In Ireland; Dublin Protests

Dublin, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Irish Government announced a German plane dropped bombs which killed three girls in southeastern Ireland today. An immediate protest was made to Berlin.

"A bomber aircraft of German nationality flew over the area of Campile, Ballymippy, Brannow and Duncormick, county of Wexford, between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon," said a statement by the Government Information Bureau.

"Bombs were dropped at each of these points. The cooperative creamery at Campile was wrecked, three girls were killed and one injured by falling masonry.

Instructed To Protest

"The Irish charge d'affaires in Berlin has been instructed to make a protest to the German Government and to demand full reparations."

Campile is a village on the main Rosslare-Cork Railway where the line crosses the River Barrow, and is about seventeen miles from Wexford Town.

The inhabitants said ten bombs in all were believed dropped. Some persons professed to have seen three planes over the area, with one being pursued by the other two.

GUNFIRE HEARD WEST OF CITY DURING RAID

AUG 27 1940

Nazis Say Planned Destruction Of Foe's Arms Plants Is Under Way

German Planes Aim At English Factories And Military Airports

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Tuesday, Aug. 27—Residents of Berlin were routed from bed this morning by the second British air raid in two nights.

Gunfire was heard distinctly to the west during the forty-minute alarm, from 12.42 to 1.22 A. M., but there was no repetition of the thunderous anti-aircraft artillery fire which kept the city aroused during the three hours and four minutes of yesterday morning's British raid.

Air-raid wardens appeared much more lenient this morning, letting some citizens gather in doorways. Some did not leave their homes.

Only last night they had been told by the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland that with preliminaries of the war on Britain ended, "now begins the planned destruction of industrial plants essential to war."

Even as German spokesmen explained that the use of 2,000-pound bombs in Sunday night's raids on the British arms and aircraft production centers of the industrial Midlands meant destruction was beginning in earnest, swarms of Nazi planes roared across the English Channel on a thirty-mile front to smash at Deal, Folkestone, Canterbury, Cambridge and Tunbridge.

These were blows at a Southeast England area regarded as a logical spot for the long-heralded attempt at invasion.

39 To 10 Score Claimed

Semi-official German reports said thirty-nine British planes were destroyed yesterday with ten German planes missing.

Fierce fighting raged over Kent.

The Germans aimed especially at industrial plants and various airports maintained as a defense against Germany's near-by continental bases in Holland, Belgium and France.

The night raid on Birmingham, however, was emphasized by German sources. DNB news agency said from sixty to seventy planes, each carrying 2,000-pound bombs, concentrated on the city.

38 Towns Raided

Altogether, during this one night, authoritative sources said, thirty-eight English towns and cities were raided and an aggregate of 165 tons of bombs dropped.

Fires were started in industrial plants at Billingham and Middlesborough, DNB said.

Flyers on both sides seemed undisturbed by anti-aircraft fire Sunday night—notably over Berlin, where British raiders droned back and forth for three hours, concealed by murky weather.

Not since Napoleon's time has Berlin really smelled enemy powder; but last night Berliners had a sample of what war sounds like, even though the high command insisted practically no damage was done.

No Planes Shot Down

Despite the skyward hail of bullets and shrapnel, no British plane was shot down over the capital. Germans said, however, one was downed on the way home.

Seventy-two British planes were shot down Sunday, the high command said, with fourteen German planes failing to return, raising the combined Saturday and Sunday figures to 136 and 34, respectively.

One German plane ranging the Atlantic far from British shores bombed and sank a 4,000-ton merchantmen, the communique said, while two German submarines reported sinking 76,170 tons of shipping, including four vessels shot out of a convoy.

Warn Of Reprisals

In a note sent to neutral Switzerland for relay, the German Government warned Britain of reprisals if reported attacks on German first-aid seaplanes continue.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The British have charged the white-painted German Red Cross planes actually are being used for scouting in addition to ambulance and first aid work.]

The German rescue planes saved the crews of two British bombers forced down off the Netherlands coast last night after the crewmen flashed an SOS.

BERLIN, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—The preliminaries of the battle of Britain are over, the semi-official Dienst aus Deutschland said tonight, and now begins the detailed destruction of Britain's war industries. Its statement came on the heels of the heaviest air attack Berlin has suffered since the war began.

With last night's intensive raids on the British Midlands—including the dropping of one-ton demolition bombs—a new phase of the war began, said the Dienst.

German air supremacy over the island kingdom has been achieved, the news commentary explained, and "now begins the planned destruction of industrial plants essential to war."

Berlin got a taste of an air raid today when four waves of British bombers, coming above a protective ceiling of clouds, skirted spectacular German anti-aircraft fire and dropped incendiary bombs on the fringe of the city.

Berlin's 4,000,000 population huddled in cellars and shelters for three hours and four minutes during the early morning, but informed sources said only one three-room garden cottage in the northern suburb of Rosenthal was damaged by fire, and that there were no casualties.

The High Command said it was the first time British planes have flown over the German capital, but it was Berlin's fifth air raid alarm.

Germans said that there was no damage, and that one of the raiders was shot down. The High Command said the "aimless" bombing hit only non-military objects.

[London announced that R. A. F. planes had dumped bombs on Berlin armament factories.]

At least one explosive bomb fell about twenty miles from the heart of Berlin in a village north of Spandau, industrial suburb west of the capital, but Nazis said there was no danger.

Anti-aircraft Guns in Action

Hundreds of anti-aircraft guns went into action against the British squadrons which thundered over Berlin.

So incessant and ear-splitting was the cannonading that it was impossible for observers to tell whether blasts of bombs were mingled with the gunfire. The British planes came over the city in at least four waves but authorities did not estimate their number.

The air raid alarm coincided with the appearance of British planes over extensive areas of Prussia and Saxony, causing warnings in many cities. Leipzig, crowded with visitors to the famous Fall Fair, had a twenty-five-minute alarm.

German authorities said first reports indicated no bombs had been dropped in any of those localities.

Appearance of the British raiders over Berlin was regarded here as a possible attempt at retaliation for intensification of German raids yesterday on England, where the German High Command said important military objectives had been struck.

Those whose duties kept them above ground during the alarm in Berlin saw a spectacular display as flashes of gunfire rent the blackness and hundreds of tracer shells arched into the sky like Roman candles.

Heavy clouds, which hung only a few hundred feet over the city, obscured the enemy planes from view but the roar of motors was audible in the heart of the city.

Splinters of anti-aircraft shells fell on rooftops like hail as guns followed the sound of the raiders across the sky from one end of the city to the other. The gunners apparently controlled their fire solely by sound-detecting devices.

Some spectators gained the impression the flyers were not sure they were over the city and were groping about trying to find an opening in the clouds.

Searchlights seemed to be of little use and were used sparingly by the ground defenses.

Most of the invading planes seemed to approach from the west and north. Firing was particularly heavy in the western suburbs. There were reports that pamphlets had been dropped at several points.

German planes dropped 1,500 bombs totaling approximately 150 tons in attacks on thirty-eight objectives in the British Isles during the night, according to a broadcast today by the German wireless.

Birmingham, important Midlands center of Britain's armament industry, was reported bombed again last night for the second successive night.

The German High Command said Nazi planes made "concentric attacks" on the English city—presumably slicing in on their objectives from all directions.

It raised its toll of British planes downed over England yesterday from 51 to 72.

Germans insisted three to four British planes were being put out of action for every Nazi machine lost and asserted that this ratio was drastically wearing down England's air defenses.

Increased attention, authorized sources said, is being paid by the German raiders to disruption of British rail transportation facilities.

Railway terminals are being systematically attacked, it was said, with the result that Britain is being increasingly hampered in trying to move supplies from western ports to southern industrial cities.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Britain flung her bombers against Berlin early today in thundering reprisal to five Nazi air raids on this heart of Empire in little more than forty-eight hours. In their first major drive of the war on the German capital, the Air Ministry announced that R. A. F. planes dumped bombs on Berlin armament factories while other formations raided additional military objectives in the Ruhr and elsewhere in northwest Germany.

The Air Ministry said tonight that the British bombing raid on Berlin last night was aimed at "selected military objectives" as well as anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights on the outskirts of the German capital.

Airdromes in Holland, Belgium and northern France and other military objectives in Germany and Italy also were bombed yesterday by British planes in raids that began in daylight and continued after dark, its communique added.

It admitted, however, that the British flyers were hampered by bad weather in the raid on Berlin and that five planes had failed to return from the widespread attacks.

3,000 NAZI PLANES SEEN IN R. A. F. WAR

Neutral Attaches Estimate Figure at One-Sixth of Total German Strength

LONDON FIRES DISCOUNTED

Soon Checked by Emergency Firemen — Vichy Reports Gun to Reach Capital

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP)—Three thousand German warplanes, roughly one-sixth of the air force's total operating strength, have been hurled into the streamlined aerial offensive aimed at breaking the Royal Air Force and the spirit of the British people, neutral air attachés estimated today.

The new technique of sending planes on bold raids singly or in twos and threes, instead of the original plan of mass attacks by scores and sometimes hundreds of bombers on a single objective, has been less costly to the Nazi air force, these observers declared.

The former tactics enabled the R. A. F. to concentrate their defenses, and a burst from a British fighter's guns fired into the thick of a Nazi formation was sure to damage, if not bring down, at least one of what R. A. F. pilots called "sitting birds."

From observation, the actual damage done in the London area was small. It is more difficult to calculate the effect that loss of sleep and war "nerves" will have on the people and on industrial production after ten days or two weeks more of this.

Fires Quickly Controlled

The fires started by Saturday night's raiders were as spectacular and did about as much damage as a three-alarm blaze in an American city's financial or commercial district.

They were curbed swiftly—mainly because long months of comparative peace had enabled the auxiliary fire service to learn the best defense against fires started by incendiary bombs.

One burning warehouse, full of especially inflammable material, was brought under control in a little over an hour. Its contents undoubtedly were lost but, more important to London, the fire was prevented from spreading.

One factor that must be considered was the probability that German night bombing would increase in accuracy as the night attacks continued. Until this month the Germans had done most of their bombing in the daytime. It was natural for the bombardiers to be inaccurate on their first night sorties.

This accounts for the comparatively light damage to military objectives, such as airports like Manston. One airfield, which Berlin reported was bombed heavily, still was being used by a fighter squadron with little loss of efficiency.

British Disappointment Seen

Britons who have been looking for a break in the German Air Force morale because of its losses of the last three weeks—the British claim over 800 raiders downed since Aug. 8—may be disappointed, according to one neutral air attaché, who claimed that "the Germans do not know anything about it."

"Their bomber crews are assembled at an airdrome to which they have been brought by train: the pilot from Hamburg, the bombardier from Reims, the machine gunner from Brussels, the navigator from Lille," he explained.

"They are given a plane, told where to go and what to do, and take off from an airport on the French coast. When the job is done they fly to Norway, landing among ground crews who do not know the number of planes which set out."

The air attaché said this "undoubtedly hurts the efficiency of the bomber crew" because it has had no practice working together or in operating the plane to which it is assigned.

"It is quite probable that very few in the German Air Force know the real extent of their losses," he said, "because the force is so scattered that it is impossible for the pilots to make contact with each other or the ground crews to estimate the extent of damage."

Indian-File Nazi Raids

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Aug. 27—The tactics of the Nazi air force in the raid last night and early today appeared to be a new sort of Indian-file "follow-the-leader" routine intended to create the most damage and disturbance with the least number of planes.

London reports said fewer than a dozen raiders were employed at any time, yet it is manifest that many more must have been used, for a plane could not carry enough bombs or fuel to last out a tour of nearly six hours around London.

In each case the peculiar non-synchronized sound of German plane motors first was heard in the northwest, seemed to circle about the city's tight ring of guns and spotlights, drop its bombs and whirl away toward the southeast, its mission finished.

Conveyor Belt

It seemed to be a sort of conveyor belt of planes and bombs, dividing at the northwest of the city, with one branch swinging around to the left and another to the right.

Possibly hundreds of machines were required to keep that system going for half the night and some of these probably landed on the coast of France, refueled and reloaded, and joined the lineup again.

Occasionally, by orders or by individual daring, a Nazi plane would soar to 20,000 feet or more, hurdle the anti-aircraft ring, and wheel around inside to deposit his bombs.

Fewer Targets

Some of these were caught by searchlights and probably came to destruction, but even so there were fewer targets for the ground gunners than in the usual mass raids.

The method is reminiscent of that employed by German land forces in cleaning up villages in the Low Countries and France.

They snaked single file through the streets and alleys, each man on the alert, while individuals occasionally detached themselves from the line to toss grenades into a window or down a cellar stair.

WEATHER HINDERED ATTACK ON BERLIN

But Lucky Gap in Clouds Gave Fliers First Shot at Target They Were Eager to Attack

ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE HEAVY

Raiders Cruised Around Half Hour Before Locating Their Objective, Pilot Asserts

diers last night their first crack at an objective they had been eager to attack.

The R. A. F. raiders found their target and dropped their bombs despite bad weather and a constant barrage of anti-aircraft fire that dogged their passage across German territory.

In his own words, one of the bomber pilots gave this account of the foray tonight.

"Everybody was pleased when the intelligence officer mentioned Berlin at the 'briefing' before we started. We all were very keen to have a crack at it.

"The weather was bad right from the start and as soon as we gained any height at all we ran right into heavy clouds.

"It was the same the whole way and during the journey we caught sight of only three small gaps in the clouds.

"For at least two-thirds of the way there was very heavy anti-aircraft fire—much more than usual. One might almost have thought the Germans were expecting us.

"When we arrived over Berlin there was a formidable concentration of guns and searchlights. We cruised around for about half an hour before we located the target and all the time the guns were popping quite accurately.

"Then suddenly we saw a small gap beginning to open in the clouds three or four miles away and we made for it. We thought we could see a main road junction. Then the hole in the clouds widened and we saw we were right. Next we caught sight of the reflection of the moon on a lake and these two points gave us our position.

"Working down to the lake we got on our target. There was more anti-aircraft fire than ever and the searchlights blazed more brightly and we couldn't keep a steady

[illegible]urse to bomb the first

"So we did a preliminary canter. Then we went away and two or three minutes later came back.

"But we didn't go very far away, because, having had that bit of luck in finding the place, we were afraid of losing it once more in the clouds. We went just far enough to shake off the guns and the searchlights, then came right back over the target.

"By this time the friendly gap had opened up just a bit more. Having dropped our bombs we turned away, dodging violently because the guns were getting warm again.

"We could see a large red fire burning, then clouds finally closed over the scene."

Although last night was the first occasion the R. A. F. had bombed the Berlin area, many pilots are familiar with the route, having made it on leaflet raids and reconnaissances in every kind of weather since last Fall.

SUB, RAMMED, GETS BACK TO ITS BASE

Sealion Commander Tells Of Stalking Convoy, Returning Across North Sea

Briton Says Underwater Vessel Sank One 3,300-Ton Storeship

[By the Associated Press]

A Scottish Port, Aug. 11 (Delayed by Censor)—Tall, bearded Ben Bryan, commander of the submarine Sealion, told today how an enemy merchant ship rammed his vessel just outside a Kerman naval base, ripping away the deck rails and tearing both periscopes loose.

The dented and damaged Sealion limped home August 10 after a blind trip across the North Sea with the wreckage of the periscopes lashed to her deck.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Sealion, completed in December, 1934, is a 670-ton vessel with a normal crew of forty.]

Sank 3,300-Ton Ship

Commander Bryan said that at the start of his North Sea patrol he sank the only German vessel he could find—a 3,300-ton storeship—and then ventured close to the German base.

There the Sealion came among the ships of a German convoy and spent an exciting hour stalking the game.

Two prospective victims shifted course in time to escape. One turned directly toward the Sealion at close quarters.

Grinding Shock

"There was a grinding shock overhead," said the commander, "and we realized she had struck our periscopes.

"This grinding noise was followed by depth charges."

Plunging to the bottom, the Sealion lay silent until the immediate danger passed.

Then on two successive nights the submarine cautiously came to the surface and made temporary repairs, going back to the bottom in the daytime. Finally, in shape to travel, though without her "eyes," the submarine escaped German waters and came home.

Warns Egypt on Aid to Britain

Gayda, Italian Spokesman, Says Nation Must Stop Allowing Base for Attacks.

ROME, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Virginio Gayda, often Italy's editorial mouthpiece, warned Egyptians today against letting their country be used as a springboard for British attacks on Italian territory.

The Fascist editor of Il Giornale D'Italia, charging the British with attacking Libya from Egypt, declared "it is necessary to fix positions and responsibilities quite clearly."

[Egypt, bound by a mutual defense pact with Britain, has remained a passive ally of the British. Although Italians have crossed the Egyptian frontier from Libya and raided Alexandria, Egyptian base for Britain's Mediterranean fleet, there have been indications that Egypt would declare war only in the event of an Italian attack aimed directly at her.]

The British have been speaking of threatened Italians attacks against Egypt, Gayda said, in an attempt to drag that country into war.

Instead, he contended, "one must speak of threatened attacks by Anglicized Egypt against Italy, which has the right and duty to take all defensive measures which the rules of war may impose."

"England cannot demand and Egypt cannot allow pretended Egyptian neutrality and independence to become more and more every day a protective trenchwork for British preparations and unexpected aggressive naval, air and sea eruption against Italian territory in Africa and against Italy herself," Gayda wrote.

Exceed Military Alliance.

He asserted that the British were exceeding the military limitations of the alliance with Egypt by "invading and dominating territorial waters, ports, soil, cities and camps of Egypt to make them a single, formidable instrument of war against Italy."

Meanwhile a new attack on Alexandria was carried out yesterday by Italian warplanes, a High Command communique said today.

British air raids on Italian positions in East Africa were said to have killed eight colonists and wounded about forty persons at Gallabat, injured several civilians at Mogadiscio and wounded fifteen Askari troops at Combolcia.

British and Italian forces in Africa continue to strike in the area bordering on the frontier between Libya and Egypt, Great Britain's passive ally.

The Fascist High Command's communique yesterday reported a new attack by British naval forces on the port of Bardia, an air raid on Tobruk, another Libyan port, and an Italian bombing attack on British motorized forces between the border and Sidi Barrani, Egypt, in which three armored cars were said to have been destroyed.

The two destroyers which undertook the attack on Bardia Saturday night were driven off by bombing planes, the High Command said, while the Tobruk raid caused "extremely small" damage and wounded five persons.

Gayda also warned Great Britain in obscure terms of "some new surmany more days."

Italian authorities reported the latest British direct attack on Italy had caused little damage.

North Italy Bombed.

Bombing planes which attacked Piedmont and Lombardy, in the north, on Saturday night were said to have dropped very few bombs, which killed two persons. The planes were reported put to flight by Italian fighters.

[Elsewhere in the Mediterranean area, an Associated Press correspondent in the Suez Canal zone reported formal incorporation into Britain's middle eastern army of trained, fully-equipped French troops who had fled French colonies after their homeland's defeat.]

Fascist officials declined comment on reports from abroad that Italy is massing troops on the Greek frontier in order to enforce territorial demands in behalf of Albania. Italian-Greek tension remained high.

Italians Raid Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Italian Savoia bombers raided Alexandria early this morning in a low-flying, ninety-minute attack with incendiary bombs, which injured three Moslems.

Large batteries of British searchlights picked up the planes, and ground defenses immediately swung into action. The bombers were enveloped in a cloud of anti-aircraft fire and several were believed have been damaged.

Earlier reports said one person was killed and five were wounded. The raid was the sixth Alexandria, site of a British naval base, has experienced since the start of the war.

Greek Troops on Move.

ATHENS, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Greek troops continued on the move to key frontier positions today, more private vehicles were requisitioned and Greek reservists from fourteen classes in a district bordering on Albania were said to have received summonses to serve in border garrisons.

EGYPT WARNED AGAINST AID TO ENGLAND

Nation Used As Springboard By British, Italians Charge

Three Moslems Killed In 90-Minute Air Raid On Alexandria

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 26—Sir Miles Lampson, British Ambassador to Egypt, told the people of Egypt tonight that Britain soon would launch "a great counter-offensive" to smash Naziism and Fascism and "liberate the tortured inhabitants" of countries now in the enemy's grip.

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 26—Italy, through her chief editorial spokesman, advised Egypt to refrain from aiding British attacks on the Fascist African empire and, by way of emphasis, her air force again raided Alexandria, Egyptian base for the British Mediterranean fleet.

"It is necessary to fix positions and responsibilities quite clearly," Virginio Gayda, who often reflects Premier Mussolini's views, wrote in Il Giornale d'Italia.

Claims Egypt Base Used

Gayda charged the British with attacks on Italian Libya from neighboring Egypt and said that British talk of threatened Italian atacks on Egypt was an attempt to "drag Egypt into the war."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Egypt is bound to Britain by a mutual defense pact, but has indicated she will continue a passive ally unless the Italians attempt an invasion.]

"England cannot demand and Egypt cannot allow pretended Egyptian neutrality and independence to become more and more every day a protective trenchwork for British preparations . . against Italian territory in Africa and even against Italy herself," Gayda said.

"By invading and dominating territorial waters, ports, soil, cities and camps of Egypt to make them a single, formidable instrument of war against Italy, Britain is exceding the military limitations of their alliance."

In an early-morning raid, the high command said, "successive waves of Italian planes bombed Alexandria."

Italian Bases Blasted By British Bon[illegible]s

Cairo, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Roy[illegible]ir Force reported today fires and explosions were set off in heavy raids on Italian air bases and other military objectives in Italian Somaliland, Abyssinia and the western desert.

The communique said:

"Bombing aircraft of the Royal Air Force raided military objectives in Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, registering direct hits on buildings. A number of fires were observed.

"Airdrome Dessie, in Abyssinia, was raided and hangars were bombed. One building was demolished following an explosion and a fire started. All of our aircraft returned safely. Direct hits were registered on military buildings in Galabat Metoma during raids there. In western desert Bardia el Adem was attacked and several direct hits were observed on hangars."

7 Rhodesians Reported Killed In Somaliland

Luseka, Northern Rhodesia, Aug. 26 (AP)—Rhodesian authorities issued the following communique tonight:

"Northern Rhodesia Regiment: European casualties in the recent fighting in Somaliland were: Seven killed in action and four missing, believed killed.

"There is no information about African casualties."

Rhodesians formed part of the force which resisted the Italian conquest of British Somaliland until withdrawn by sea last week.

LORD NORTH KILLED BY A LAND MINE

His Sister Also Dies and His Wife Is Injured.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Lord North, thirty-eight-year-old son and heir of the Earl of Guilford, and his sister, Lady Cynthia Williams, 32 years old, were killed by the explosion of a land mine yesterday when they were walking in a forbidden area on the southeast coast.

Lady North, elder daughter of Sir Merrik Burrell, was injured.

Lord North, born Francis George North, was an artillery lieutenant in the territorial army. The Norths were married in 1927 and had a son and two daughters.

Lady Cynthia, only daughter of the Earl of Guilford, was married in 1935 to Max Well Williams, listed in the marriage register as the European manager of the American Steel Company. They had one daughter.

One of Lord North's ancestors, the second Earl of Guilford, was a prominent British statesman who, when Lord North, was Prime Minister during the years of the American Revolution.

ST. GILES CHURCH STRUCK BY BOMB

Milton Statue Also Hit by Nazis in London Raid.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—The famous old Church of St. Giles and the statue of Milton outside it were hit during German Saturday night raids on the city—London's Wall street district. The British censor released the fact today for publication.

A bomb blew a hole in the northwest wall of the church and shattered most of the age-old windows. Slabs above the grave of the poet, Milton, inside the church, escaped harm.

St. Giles Cripplegate is in the heart of the closely-built downtown section of London, only a few blocks from the monumental St.Paul's Cathedral and in the region of the ancient Guild Halls.

First reports of fires spreading in London Saturday night acknowledged that only the charred walls of a downtown church remained, but censorship had hid the name.

St. Giles is the burial place of the blind poet John Milton who died 1674.

Near the north door stood the bronze statue of Milton by Horace Montford, with reliefs from Milton's "Paradise Lost" and "Comus."

The church was built in the fourteenth century, almost completely rebuilt after a fire in 1545 and enlarged and restored generally during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Haakon Defends Flight From Invaded Norway

Says Government Avoided Acquiescence to Nazis

LONDON, Aug. 26 (AP). — King Haakon VII of Norway defended today his flight from German-occupied Norway with his government with the statement that "if we had stayed in Norway, the present rulers of that country would have been able to force us to accept what they wished."

The monarch broadcast his message to Norway from his refuge somewhere in England, a place, he said, where "we can still represent a free country."

Norway was overrun by the Germans in April and May. King Haakon's broadcast was an answer to "certain circles" who have asserted, he said, that the exile government's flight "caused difficulties for the country and for those who remained behind."

"I think we did right," the King said. "It was clear to me that the only possibility of recreating a free Norway lay in the victory of that side which stands for the right of small nations to lead their own lives."

Completed in 1936, she was capable of 36 knots and mounted four 4.7-inch guns and eight torpedo tubes.

"These brave defenders of the liberties of Britain, ignoring air raids and indifferent to enemy attacks, have provided for the Royal Air Force in the last week more fighters and more bombers than ever before in the history of aviation.

"Supported by the alloy workers in steel and aluminum, by the drop stampers and by all those who labor in the fabrication of their raw materials, they have given us a record week of production.

HUNGARY SUMMONS MORE RESERVISTS

Delegation Fails to Settle Transylvania Dispute.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Thousands of additional Hungarian reservists answered a call to the colors today amid reports that Rumania was sending re-enforcements into the disputed border province of Transylvania.

The summons came with return of a Hungarian delegation from Turnu-Severin, where negotiations with Rumania over Hungary's demands for a slice of Transylvania collapsed Saturday.

Reports from Bucharest said the Rumanian Government was considering appointment of a new delegation to resume negotiations and attempt to satisfy Berlin's demands for quick settlement of the dispute, but informed quarters there said that under any circumstances it was unlikely an agreement could be reached before several months.

The Hungarian Government press, meanwhile, declared Rumania was not acting in accord with the desires of the Rome-Berlin axis and said Hungary would stand firm in her demands on Transylvania, which Rumania gained in the world war settlement.

Official Hungarian spokesmen said both Germany and Italy were exercising strong pressure on Rumania to make territorial concessions.

In addition to calling up additional army reserves, Hungary requisitioned thousands of automobiles for military use and took special air raid precautions, which included screening of street lights in principal cities and organization of fire-fighting units.

DEMAND EXPULSION OF BRITON FROM U. S.

Senators Take Stand After Wheeler Tells Of Visit By Sir George Paish

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 26—Demands for expulsion of Sir George Paish, British economist and writer, from the United States were voiced by two Senators today because of statements which Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) said the Englishman had made about getting this country's assistance for Great Britain.

Wheeler told his colleagues that Sir George visited his office a few days ago, and, as he was leaving, said to him:

"I am responsible for getting this country into the last war, and I intend to get it into this one."

Qualified Statement

"I said to him," Wheeler related, "'That is a broad statement.'

"Then he qualified it to the extent of saying, 'Well, everything short of war.'"

Sir George was an economic adviser to the British Treasury in the World War and visited the United States on an official mission in 1916. Wheeler said he did not know whether he represented the British Government now, but Senator Lundeen (Dem., Minn.) declared him to be an "emissary" of Great Britain and asserted that he "should be deported from the United States."

Senator Glass (Dem., Va.) observed that "if any Englishman were to come to my office with any such proposal I would drive him out, and I think any Senator of self-respect should have driven him out.

"It seems to me," he added, "that the Senator should have taken steps to acquaint the officials of this country with this man's behavior, and if there is not a law to put him out, he should be put out anyway."

Wheeler said he had inquired at the State Department and learned that Sir George was not registered "as a propagandist."

Paish Makes Reply

Sir George said tonight that he had come here to deliver a series of lectures after the November election on "certain facts regarding Germany's intentions toward the United States and South America," but that "in view of their importance" he had decided to present them in advance to certain Senators.

He said that Wheeler's reference to his responsibility for the United States' entry into the World War apparently arose from his statement to Wheeler that, as a British financial adviser, he had "placed information at the disposal of my Government," which the British turned over to this Government and which, Sir George declared, influenced the United States' course.

Sir George declined to name the Senators on whom he had called, saying that he did "not like to give people away." He added that "in England a private conversation is private," and that he had not expected Wheeler or others to make public what he said.

Called At White House

A British Embassy spokesman said that Sir George was in this country in a strictly private capacity and had no official connection with the British Government. He was a White House caller last week, where he told reporters he was in this country to give the American people the benefit of his information. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, he said, had arranged for him to see Mr. Roosevelt.

Wheeler told the Senate that Sir George had visited a number of Congress members and had urged that fifty destroyers be sent to England and that existing restrictions on loans to Great Britain be repealed.

"He said to me," Wheeler said, "'Senator, the sentiment in this country is going to roll up and up like the ocean's waves.' He said, 'Regardless of what you want, you will be forced to vote.'

"I told him I would never vote to put this country into war regardless of what the people of the United States want."

Senator Holt (Dem., W. Va.) asserted that the country was "honeycombed with British agents who are here, but who are not listed in the Department of State."

He added that "Sir William Wiseman, the man who did much to put America into the World War, who is here as an official of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., also is using his influence to get America into the war, and is paying for part of the propaganda."

RULES ON DATE OF EXPATRIATION

Jackson Holds Americans Concerned Took Action As Of July 2, 1921

Attorney General's Decision Concerns Naturalization, Marriages, Foreign Oath

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 26—Robert H. Jackson, Attorney General, ruled today that steps taken by American citizens during the World War to expatriate themselves became effective when Congress declared the war ended on July 2, 1921, and that such persons were, in general, not citizens now.

Jackson's opinion was given in response to a request from Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, concerning three situations: citizens who became naturalized in a foreign state while the United States was at war; American women who acquired foreign naturalization by marriage during that period, and American citizens who took a foreign oath of allegiance during the period.

Effective When War Ended

In the first case, Jackson held that expatriation became effective when the war ended unless some affirmative action had been taken to end the foreign naturalization. In the second case he held that the American woman lost her citizenship if the marriage extended beyond July 2, 1921.

In the third case, he said, the practice was to recognize retention of citizenship if the individual returned to this country for permanent residence prior to the conclusion of the war and did nothing to indicate allegiance to a foreign government. However, he said, if the individual did not return there was doubt as to retention of American citizenship and such cases could not be dealt with in a general opinion.

He declared that none of the conclusions could be applied to a person who left the United States to avoid military or naval service, since such cases required special consideration.

BERMUDA STILL 'BOTTLENECK' FOR U. S. MAIL

Postal Matter Seized Despite Repeated Protests By Hull

Export Line Reports 842 Bags Removed In Last 18 Days

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 26—All European mail routed through Lisbon today appeared to be passing through the "bottleneck" of Bermuda censorship despite the repeated opposition of Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, to the seizure of Government mail by the British.

Chief carriers of mails between Lisbon and New York are Pan American Airways planes and the ships of the American Export Line.

It was reported that 842 mail bags had been removed from American Export ships at Hamilton in the last eighteen days. The line obtained permission from the United States Maritime Commission early in August to make stops at Bermuda and the Azores.

The first vessel to call at Hamilton was the Excalibur, on August 8, when 133 bags of mail were removed.

400 Bags Seized

Four hundred bags were seized from the Exochorda and 315 from the Exeter. The mail was scanned by a staff of censors—recently augmented by the arrival of one hundred from England—and approved matter reshipped to New York by the next available vessel.

The Associated Press was unable today to obtain a statement from officials of the line as to their reasons for including the Bermuda call in the New York-Lisbon service. The ships do not carry passengers traveling only between Bermuda and New York, but can carry passengers between Lisbon and the island. Bermuda is approximately 600 miles south of the direct course to Portugal.

Handled As Routine

In Washington, the Maritime Commission said the request for permission to call at Bermuda had been handled as a routine shipping matter.

Pan American Airways officials said today that pilots of their Atlantic Clippers would continue to avoid Bermuda, except in case of bad weather or mechanical trouble.

Since May 18, when Pan American canceled regular stops at Hamilton—presumably because of the censorship—Clipper planes have made thirty stops at the island, in 86 Atlantic crossings. Eight stops were on flights to Lisbon, 22 on flights to this country.

Seizure Opposed

Pan American's statement followed announcement Saturday by Secretary Hull that this Government had consistently opposed seizure and censorship of the mails for any purpose, and that this continued to be the American position.

An average of 50 per cent. of the Clipper mail loads, 1,000 to 2,000 pounds, has been taken off by the censors.

British examination of most of the mail passing between Europe and the United States has already blocked transit of German or Italian news pictures to this country.

Dixie Clipper Arrives

During the stop-over, British censors examined the Clipper's 2,000-pound mail cargo but replaced "nearly all" the bags before the take-off for New York, it was said.

Twenty passengers—sixteen from Lisbon, four from Bermuda—were passed through customs without the personal search that marked the arrival Sunday of twenty-six passengers on the Bermuda Clipper. The examination today was thorough, requiring two and one-half hours.

Watch Being Kept

After Sunday's examination, in which passengers were taken separately into a room and searched, it was reported in Washington that watch was being kept on all persons entering from Portugal to block entry of counterfeit money, allegedly made in Lisbon.

Four of the clipper's passengers from Lisbon were United States citizens.

They included Richard C. Long, Pan American representative, who said British overseas airways was maintaining regular service between England and Lisbon. Long said Pan American passage to New York was booked through October.

Jules Cardes, former Governor General of French North African colonies, also a passenger, said he was on his way to French possessions in the Caribbean "on an extraordinary mission for the government at Vichy."

Remarkable R. A. F.

By Devon Francis

Associated Press Aviation Editor

New York, Aug. 26—A remarkable performance—remarkable in that it was not expected—is being put on by Great Britain's Royal Air Force, and any immediate turn of events in the battle of England may well hinge on the morale of the opposing airmen.

England entered the war as an underdog in air power.

The "shadow factory" system of aircraft manufacture—by which scattered plants produce airplane parts—had not been too successful, and Canada's empire air-training scheme, by which 25,000 pilots were to be turned out annually, was slow in reaching its proper tempo.

Replacing Daily Losses

The British claim that the isles are making more warplanes than the Germans now, a year after the outbreak of hostilities, is for the moment immaterial. Certainly they are making enough to replace their daily losses.

The important aspect of the air fighting, in which Germany is making every bid for definite air superiority before launching other moves in the Blitzkreig, is the maintenance of morale and pilot strength in the R. A. F.

Germany has pilots to spare. During the battle of France, England apparently had a severe shortage of fighter airmen. British pilots, by their own accounts, fought hour after hour to the point of exhaustion.

Yet today the British appear to be matching the German fighters, plane for plane and pilot for pilot. Moreover, the week end British forays by air on German depots in France and Germany bespeak a reserve of men who can fly the "heavy stuff," the bombers whose handling requires many hours of cockpit and tactical training.

Two aspects of the German air attack may be of more than passing significance, the letup in the daylight mass bombing attacks and recourse to the British system of night bombings.

The Germans' own change of strategy may belie their assertion that they are encountering "weak" British fighter forces.

Over and above that is the element of morale. Harold Hartney, commander of America's first pursuit group in the World War, characterizes the British airman as the world's best.

Acts to Hold Number of Men Training at One Time to 900,000.

FOUR MILLION IS ARMY GOAL

Chamber Rejects, by 60 to 19, Proposal to Draft Only Men From 21 Through 24.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—The Senate rejected 60 to 19 today a proposal by Senator Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, to limit compulsory military service to men from 21 through 24 years old under terms of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. As now written, the measure would make all men from 21 through 30 liable to such training.

The action came after the chamber had written into the measure, by a voice vote, an amendment fixing 900,000 as the number of peacetime conscripts who might be in training at any one time.

Rejection of the Lodge amendment followed an anunouncement by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, that the Senate would begin holding night sessions tonight in an effort to speed a final vote on the compulsory service measure.

More than a score of other amendments must be acted on before a test vote on a proposal by Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, to carry out the registration of men from 21 through 30, but to delay actual conscription until January 1 while attempts are made to fill the Army's quota with one-year enlistments.

The limitation of 900,000 on trainees was agreed to on a voice vote as a compromise between a porposal offered by Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, for a limit of 1,000,000 men and an amendment by Senator Lodge for a limit of 800,000.

Previously the bill had carried no limitation and Senator Sheppard told his colleagues that it was the War Department's plan to train 3,400,000 conscripts in the next five years.

It was the War Department's intention, Mr. Sheppard said, to create a "possible army" of 4,000,000 men by early 1945.

Plans First Call for Oct. 15.

Mr. Sheppard said that the "possible army" of 4,000,000 men would include 3,400,000 conscript trainees. Upon enactment of the draft bill, he continued, the War Department planned to call up these men, beginning October 15, this year, with a contingent of 75,000. By early January, he said, there would be 400,000 draftees under training.

Another 400,000, Senator Sheppard continued, would be called up April 1, 1941, with 600,000 the following October 1. After that the men would be inducted in groups of 400,000 each April 1 and October 1 through April 1, 1944. That would bring in the final group to give a total of 3,400,000 conscripts. All of these, he said, by expiration of the conscription bill in April, 1945, would have received a year of training.

Amendment Called 'Crippling.'

Mr. Sheppard said that in addition to this trained group of "third line" reserves, Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, was counting on the regular army of 375,000 men and a National Guard of 271,250, authorized and appropriated for, plus 108,000 authorized but for which there have not yet been appropriations.

The effect of the Lodge amendment, Mr. Sheppard contended, would be to cut off 600,000 from the War Department's goal of 3,400,000 trained third line reserves.

"The War Department says this would seriously cripple their plan," he told the Senate.

Senator Lodge promptly denied it would do so and he also argued that at any time it became necessary Congress had the power to raise the limit.

Mr. Sheppard's outline of the War Department's program brought a quick protest from Senator Taft, of Ohio, that no such ambitious plan had been given by the Texas Senator when he explained the Burke-Wadsworth bill at the beginning of debate. Mr. Sheppard then had said, Mr. Taft contended, that the number of men to be called after the first 800,000 were summoned, would depend largely on the need for them.

Senator Wheeler of Montana, observed that "week by week" the War Department seemed to be increasing its requests to Congress for men and equipment. Mr. Sheppard retorted that Mr. Wheeler was "absolutely mistaken," that no increase had been made in requests.

ARMY WILL CALL 613,000 TO ARMS

Schedule Is Ready if Bills Are Approved.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Present plans of the War Department call for 220,000 National Guardsmen and 393,000 conscripts to be put into training progressively between September 19 and December 15, under the pending compulsory military service program.

A detailed schedule of the rate at which guardsmen and conscripts are to be called to duty was given to Congress recently by Brig.-Gen. William E. Shedd as follows:

September 15—55,000 guardsmen.

October 15—55,000 guardsmen and 75,000 trainees.

November 1—55,000 trainees.

November 15—70,000 guardsmen and 65,000 trainees.

December 1—40,000 guardsmen and 100,000 trainees.

December 15—98,000 trainees.

Adherence to the schedule depends on the President's signing the National Guard mobilization bill, passage of the compulsory service bill now in the Senate and appropriation of funds for training.

ARMY WON'T TAKE DEFENSE WORKERS

Stimson Says They Should Leave National Guard.

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson served notice today that National Guardsmen holding civilian jobs important to rearmament would not be called into active military service, and urged that their military positions be filled by others before the guard units are brought to active duty.

"In the event that the National Guard is ordered into active Federal service," he write to Gov. Saltonstall, "it is important to minimize the effect of this action on other, and equally essential, defense activities.

"The National Guard contains among its officers and enlisted men a number who now occupy key positions in industries engaged in important defense projects, Government arsenals, Navy yards and similar activities."

"Such men are more important to the nation in their present positions than they would be in active military service and it is vital that they remain on their jobs."

Mr. Stimson said that he knew that the decision would involve sacrifice and disappointment to many who have followed their military avocation with enthusiasm, but he appealed to them to remain where they can do the greatest good for the whole country.

Gov. Saltonstall notified the Secretary that Massachusetts would begin immediately a survey as a basis for carrying out the War Department's policy. Printed instructions went out to unit commanders to determine the key workers, along with an order saying: "Individuals in this category who cannot he promptly replaced in their civilian occupation should be honorably discharged."

CONTRACTS LET BY NATION FOR 6747 AIRCRAFT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (A. P.).—The Defense Commission reported to President Roosevelt today that contracts for 6,747 army and navy planes were outstanding as of August 17, despite the fact that funds for much of the aircraft procurement program were still tied up in the $5,008,000,000 defense bill.

The figures were contained in a report based on Treasury Department figures which were brought to the White House by Robert Horton, publicity director of the commission,

The report said that, as of August 17, contracts were "in the works" for 3,916 army planes, including 2,029 combat and observation planes and 1,887 other types, primarily training.

For the navy on that date, Mr. Horton said, contracts had been let for 2,831, including 1,221 combat and observation, and 1,610 other types, mostly training,

Mr. Horton explained that these figures covered contracts outstanding for planes yet to be delivered. Dates of delivery for the planes were not disclosd.

He said it was impossible to contract for planes to fill out the present program until Congress passed the $5,008,000 measure.

The report was made public at a time when congressional critics contended that the defense program was bogging down. Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, made suc ha statement last night and asked for an investigation. Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, said only 343 combat planes had been ordered in the last 00 days.

U. S.-Canada Board Opens Defense Talks

American Group Headed by LaGuardia to Speed 'Continental Fortress'

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Preliminary studies of mutual defense problems opened here today between representatives of Canada and the United States at the first plenary session of the Permanent Canadian-United States Joint Board on Defense. The meeting began soon after the arrival of the American section, which was headed by Mayor F. H. La Guardia of New York.

Col. J. M. Biggar, chairman of the Canadian section, said at the end of a four-hour sitting that the meetings would be continued tomorrow, and that they might adjourn Wednesday so that the members, carrying heavy responsibilities in both countries, might attend to their normal work.

Today's discussions were said to have centered on the specific defense problems of the two countries with a view to ascertaining the extent to which they might be co-ordinated.

Behind Closed Doors

Speeding through simple and brief formalities, the board went to work behind closed and carefully guarded doors.

Thus, within little more than a week, the agreement reached at the historic conference between Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada and President Roosevelt was translated into action.

"We are here to produce results," Mayor LaGuardia said.

Col. Biggar said the board would get down to preliminaries and probably would be engaged for some time on its studies of defense problems.

After a hasty lunch the board members called upon Prime Minister King. The American members were introduced by J. Pierrepont Moffat, American Minister to Canada.

OTTAWA, AUG 26-(AP)-DELIBERATIONS OF THE CANADA-UNITED STATES PERMANENT JOINT BOARD ON DEFENSE REPRESENT "THE MONROE DOCTRINE TRANSLATED INTO ACTION," DECLARED FIORELLO LA GUARDIA, MAYOR OF NEW YORK AND CHAIRMAN OF THE UNITED STATES SECTION, IN AN INTERVIEW HERE TONIGHT. THE BOARD HELD ITS FIRST SESSION THIS AFTERNOON.

AUG 27 1940

ASKED IF CREATION OF THE BOARD REPRESENTED A NEW APPROACH TO A PAN-AMERICAN DEFENSE PLAN MAYOR LA GUARDIA SAID:

"YOU CAN USE YOUR OWN JUDGMENT. I THINK IT IS SELF-EVIDENT."

THE SHORT, STOCKY WORLD WAR AVIATOR, WHO SAID HE BELIEVED IN PLAIN SPEAKING, SAID OF THE UNITED STATES DEFENSE FORCES: "WE HAVEN'T MUCH TO BRAG ABOUT BUT WE WILL HAVE IN A FEW WEEKS."

THE BOARD, CREATED LAST WEEK AFTER A CONFERENCE AT OGDENSBURG, N.Y., BETWEEN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING, AUG. 17-18, OPENED ITS STUDIES TODAY OF PROBLEMS FACING THE TWO COUNTRIES IN DEFENDING THE NORTHERN HALF OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE FROM AGGRESSION.

WHILE ALL ITS ACTIVITIES ARE BEHIND CLOSED DOORS AND ITS REPORT WILL GO DIRECT TO THE TWO GOVERNMENTS CONCERNED, IT IS BELIEVED TO CONTEMPLATE THE ESTABLISVMENT OF UNITED STATES ARMY, NAVAL AND AIR BASES ON CANADIAN TERRITORY, PRESUMABLY IN THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

SO FAR AS COULD BE LEARNED THE BOARD IS CONCENTRATING AT THE MOMENT ON DEFENSE OF STRATEGIC POINTS ON THE ATLANTIC. MAYOR LA GUARDIA SAID THIS GAVE THE BOARD "PLENTY OF MILEAGE."

J.PIERREPONT MOFFAT, UNITED STATES MINISTER TO CANADA, ENTERTAINED THE CANADIAN AND AMERICAN SECTIONS OF THE BOARD AT DINNER TONIGHT. OTTAWA CORRESPONDENTS WERE INVITED AFTERWARD TO MEET THE VISITORS. PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING. DEFENSE MINISTER

J.L.RALSTON, NAVY MINISTER ANGUS L.MACDONALD (SMALL D), AND DR. O.D.SKELTON, UNDER-SECRETARY OF STATE FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS, ALSO WERE PRESENT.

MAYOR LA GUARDIA AND COL. O.M.BIGGAR, CHAIRMAN OF THE CANADIAN SECTION, ANSWERED QUESTIONS FROM THE NEWSPAPERMEN WITH THE FORMER ACTING AS CHIEF SPOKESMAN.

"I DON'T BELIEVE THAT ANY INTERNATIONAL BOARD EVER GOT DOWN TO BUSINESS IN LESS TIME THAN WE TOOK TODAY," MAYOR LA GUARDIA SAID.

"IN 6 1/2 MINUTES ALL FORMALITIES WERE CLEARED AWAY, ALL EXCHANGES OF COURTESIES FINISHED AND WE WENT TO WORK. WE AGREED AT ONCE TO TALK PLAIN ENGLISH. WE DECIDED TO DEPART FROM THE COMPLEX AND INVOLVED LANGUAGE OF DIPLOMACY AND GET RIGHT DOWN TO REAL ISSUES."

RST XXX SECOND GRAPH.

AUG 27 1940

"SO FAR AS THE UNITED STATES IS CONCERNED WE HAVE A COMMON PROBLEM AND A COMMON OBJECTIVE, AND THE WHOLE PROBLEM BOILS DOWN TO THIS: IN THE FACE OF EXISTING CONDITIONS AND WHAT WE HAVE LEARNED OF MODERN WARFARE, WHETHER OR NOT STRATEGIC POINTS ON THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE ARE TO BE TAKEN AS BASES FOR OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS BY POTENTIAL ENEMIES, OR IF THESE STRATEGIC POINTS ARE TO BE USED AS OUTPOSTS OF DEFENSE OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

"THAT IS OUR PROBLEM. OUR BOARD IS COMPOSED OF MANY OFFICERS OF THE SERVICES, MEN WHO ARE EXPERIENCED AND WHO ARE REALISTIC. YOUR COLONAL BIGGAR IS A MAN AFTER MY OWN HEART--A MAN OF ACTION AND DETERMINATION.

"THERE WILL BE NO MINORITY REPORT FROM THIS BOARD. COMMON DEFENSE OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE IS OUR ONE OBJECTIVE."

TO A QUESTION AS TO THE SPECIFIC POINTS BEING CONSIDERED AS POSSIBILITIES FOR UNITED STATES DEFENSE ESTABLISHMENTS MAYOR LA GUARDIA SAID "THAT IS AN IMPRUDENT QUESTION, DON'T YOU THINK?"

ASKED IF IT WAS PROPOSED TO SET UP ANY UNIFORM STANDARDS OF EQUIPMENT AS BETWEEN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES, THE MAYOR REPLIED: "WE ARE UNIFORM IN MNE RESPECT. WE DO NOT EXPECT THAT ANY FOREIGN POWER WILL EVER OBTAIN A FOOTHOLD ON THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE."

THE BOARD REALIZES, MAYOR LA GUARDIA SAID, THAT "TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE." IT WILL PROBABLY CONCLUDE THE FIRST STAGE OF ITS STUDIES WEDNESDAY AND ADJOURN, BUT HE SAID THIS WAS NOT A TEMPORARY JOB. THE BOARD IS PERMANENT AND WILL CARRY ON UNTIL THE DEFENSE PROBLEM NO LONGER EXISTS. IT WILL ENGAGE TECHNICIANS AS ADVISERS AND WILL MEET FROM TIME TO TIME EITHER IN OTTAWA OR WASHINGTON.

IF CIRCUMSTANCES INDICATE THE NECESSITY, THE BOARD WILL TRAVEL TO SITES PROPOSED FOR JOINT DEFENSE OPERATIONS BUT THIS, AND SUCH QUESTIONS AS A LONG RUMORED UNITED STATES MILITARY HIGHWAY THROUGH CANADA TO ALASKA, WOULD BE DETAILS NOT TO BE DISCUSSED PUBLICLY.

THE AGENTS THEN PLACED A NEW CREW ABOARD, BUT O GLOBO SAID THAT A QUANTITY OF SALT WAS FOUND IN THE BOILERS AND TURBINES AND THAT THE CAPTAIN AND FEW MEMBERS OF THE REMOVED CREW WERE DETAINED.

THE BERLIN-ROME BROTHERHOOD IS TAKING A VERY SOUR AND UNCOMPLIMENTARY VIEW OF UNCLE SAM'S DISCUSSIONS WITH CANADA REGARDING DEFENSE MATTERS OF MUTUAL INTEREST, AND HIS CONVERSATIONS WITH ENGLAND CONCERNING THE LEASING OF NAVAL BASES IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

The War Today
Dewitt Mackenzie

IT WOULD SEEM FROM THE FASCIST AND NAZI PRESS (WHICH, AS YOU KNOW, IS GOVERNMENT CONTROLLED) THAT SAM IS UP TO SOME SORT OF SKULDUGGERY WHEREBY HE HOPES TO GAIN AT THE EXPENSE OF HIS FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS. HE HAS, THEY SAY, IMPERIALISTIC AMBITIONS.

THE INTIMATION IS THAT UNCLE SAM IS PREPARING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF JOHN BULL'S TOUGH POSITION AND APPROPRIATE BRITISH TERRITORY. THAT IS TO SAY SAM IS PLANNING TO JUMP ON JOHN WITH BOTH FEET WHILE THE LATTER IS DOWN.

AUG 27 1940

THE ITALIAN PRESS IS THE MORE VOLUBLE ON THE SUBJECT OF OUR TAKING ADVANTAGE OF ENGLAND--PERHAPS HAVING IN MIND TO GET SOME OF ITS OWN BACK FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S HISTORIC REBUKE TO ITALY WHEN SHE ENTERED THE WAR JUST BEFORE FRANCE COLLAPSED. F.D.R. DECLARED THAT "ON THIS TENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1940, THE HAND THAT HELD THE DAGGER HAS STRUCK IT INTO THE BACK OF ITS NEIGHBOR."

THE UNITED STATES IS CHARGED WITH SEEKING TO SECURE TERRITORY IN THE "BREAK UP" OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE, WHICH THE AXIS POWERS ASSERT IS NEAR. THIS INCLUDES CONTROL OF CANADA, AND DAS SCHWARZE KORPS OF BERLIN, ORGAN OF HITLER'S BLACK-SHIRTED ELITE GUARD, SUGGESTS THAT THE DEFEAT OF BRITAIN MIGHT RAISE THE QUESTION OF AMERICAN INCORPORATION OF THE DOMINION.

THIS ISN'T THE FIRST TIME THAT SUCH A NOTION HAS BEEN ADVANCED IN GERMANY, FOR IT HAS CROPPED UP OFTEN. THE FACT THAT ITALY IS TAKING A SIMILAR LINE, AND EMBROIDERING THE POSITION, WOULD SEEM TO INDICATE THAT THE SUBJECT HAS BEEN MADE A MATTER OF COMMON CONSENT BY THE AXIS PARTNERS.

ANYTHING HAVING LESS BASIS OF POSSIBILITY THAN OUR ANNEXATION OF CANADA IS HARD TO IMAGINE. STILL, IN VIEW OF THE DEFENSE DISCUSSIONS THERE IS SPECIAL INTEREST AT THIS TIME IN AMERICAN-CANADIAN RELATIONS AS THEY HAVE TO DO WITH THE CRISIS ARISING FROM THE EUROPEAN WAR.

WE DON'T NEED TO WASTE MUCH TIME ON THE ANNEXATION FANTASY. I KNOW CANADIANS PRETTY WELL, BOTH IN WAR AND IN PEACE. I'VE SPENT MUCH TIME IN CANADA, AND HAVE STUDIED HER RELATIONS TO THE UNITED STATES AND THE MOTHER COUNTRY.

THERE IS NO DOUBT IN MY MIND THAT CANADIANS WOULD FIGHT WITH EVERY AVAILABLE WEAPON TO PREVENT ANNEXATION. HOWEVER, THEY HAVE NO FEAR OF ANY EFFORT ON OUR PART TO TAKE THEM OVER. PERSONALLY I NEVER HAVE HEARD ANY RESPONSIBLE AMERICAN SUGGEST SUCH A THING.

IT IS TRUE THAT CANADIANS ARE ON THE WHOLE MORE LIKE AMERICANS THAN ENGLISH. WE SPEAK THE SAME LANGUAGE, HAVE THE SAME CUSTOMS AND OUR WAYS OF LIVING ARE MORE OR LESS IDENTICAL. IT IS ALSO TRUE THAT THE AVERAGE CANADIAN EXPECTS TO JOIN HANDS WITH HIS AMERICAN NEIGHBORS IN CASE OF ATTACK.

HOWEVER, THE CANADIANS ARE A PROUD AND INDEPENDENT PEOPLE WHO REFUSE TO LET EVEN MOTHER ENGLAND DICTATE TO THEM. THE BOND WHICH HOLDS THEM WITHIN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH IS MORE OF SENTIMENT THAN REALITY, AND THEY WILL MAINTAIN THEIR SOVEREIGNTY.

IN THIS CONNECTION I HAVE HEARD THE QUESTION RAISED OF WHETHER ANY PACT WE MADE WITH CANADA WOULD IPSO FACTO BE A PACT WITH ENGLAND AS WELL. THE ANSWER IN MY VIEW IS THAT ENGLAND WOULD HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH AN AMERICAN-CANADIAN AGREEMENT, UNLESS THAT AGREEMENT SPECIFICALLY MADE BRITAIN A PARTY TO IT.

CANADA IS A SOVEREIGN STATE. THE STATUTE OF WESTMINISTER, ADOPTED IN 1931 IN LONDON, LAID DOWN THAT THE "DOMINIONS ARE AUTONOMOUS COMMUNITIES WITHIN THE BRITISH EMPIRE." THEY HAVE A COMMON ALLEGIANCE TO THE CROWN, BUT ARE NOT SUBORDINATE TO THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT.

AS A MATTER OF FACT IT WAS CANADA WHICH DURING THE VERSAILLES PEACE CONFERENCE LED THE DOMINION CAMPAIGN THAT RESULTED IN GREAT BRITAIN CONCEDING THEM AUTONOMY. I WAS ON THE GROUND AND WATCHED WITH DEEPEST INTEREST WHILE SIR ROBERT BORDEN, CANADIAN PREMIER, TOOK THE LEADERSHIP IN WHAT WAS A TOUGH BATTLE. THE ENGLISH FOUGHT AGAINST THE CONCESSION, BUT WHEN THEY FINALLY DECIDED TO GIVE IN THEY WENT ALL THE WAY.

CANADA IS WHOLLY FREE TO MAKE ANY AGREEMENT SHE WANTS WITH THE UNITED STATES.

BY DEVON FRANCIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, AUG. 26--A TIDY NUMBER OF AMERICA'S CIVILIAN FLIERS HAVE ORGANIZED THEMSELVES INTO TRAINING GROUPS WHICH, IN TIME OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY, PROBABLY WOULD BE CALLED ON BY THE GOVERNMENT TO BUTTRESS THE AIR DEFENSE SYSTEM.

THE MOVEMENT IS STILL IN ITS INFANCY.

ABOUT 4,000 YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN ARE AT WORK PERFECTING THEIR FLYING TECHNIQUE, AND IN SOME INSTANCES ACTUALLY TAKING TRAINING OF A MILITARY CHARACTER, THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

(SPECIAL NEWS SERVICE ADVANCE FOR AMS OF TUESDAY, AUGUST 27)

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK--FIRST ADD CIVILIAN FLIERS BY FRANCIS XXX THE COUNTRY.

UNLIKE THE STUDENTS TAKING CIVIL PRIMARY TRAINING AT THE EXPENSE OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, THESE GROUPS DERIVE NO FINANCIAL SUPPORT FROM OFFICIAL WASHINGTON.

THE MOVEMENT, PURELY SPONTANEOUS, CORRESPONDS ROUGHLY TO THE WIDESPREAD CIVILIAN FLYING ACTIVITIES IN GERMANY, ITALY AND RUSSIA, EXCEPT THAT EUROPE'S CIVILIAN RESERVE FLYING IS ALL GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED AND IN MOST INSTANCES GOVERNMENT-SUBSIDIZED.

THE OBJECTIVES OF THE AMERICAN GROUPS--AS YET NOT EVEN LOOSELY COORDINATED--RANGE ALL THE WAY FROM MERE ORGANIZED SPORT FLYING TO A DETERMINED EFFORT TO LEND AID TO THE ARMY AND THE NAVY IN TIME OF WAR.

THE CIVILIAN AIR RESERVE, WITH HEADQUARTERS AT TOLEDO, O., WAS ORGANIZED FOR THE AVOWED PURPOSE OF BUTTRESSING AIR DEFENSE. GROWING RAPIDLY, IT IS STRONGEST IN THE OHIO AND NEW ENGLAND AREAS.

TYPICAL OF IT IS THE MASSACHUSETTS WING, BORN AT REVERE, MASS., LAST JANUARY. SINCE THEN GROUPS HAVE BEEN FORMED AT NORWOOD, BOSTON, HANOVER AND BROCKTON, MASS. THE SAME ORGANIZATION HAS UNITS AT CARIBOU AND BANGOR, ME.

THE CIVILIAN AIR RESERVE'S STATED PURPOSE IS TO CONSTITUTE A THIRD BULWARK OF THE NATIONAL AIR DEFENSE, FITTING INTO A NICHE BEHIND THE REGULAR ARMED SERVICES AND THE NATIONAL GUARD-ORGANIZED RESERVE UNITS.

BETWEEN 50 AND 60 PLANES, MOST OF THEM OF THE "AIR FLIVVER" TYPE, ARE OWNED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS WING, AND A NUMBER OF OTHER SHIPS ARE HIRED FOR TRAINING HOURS. MEMBERS OF EACH GROUP IN THE WING MEET TWICE WEEKLY AT THEIR HOME AIRPORTS, ON SUNDAYS FOR PRACTICE FLIGHTS, ON WEEKDAY FOR GROUND SCHOOL INSTRUCTION AND INFANTRY DRILL.

INFANTRY DRILL.

IN FLORIDA, GEORGIA, NEW YORK STATE, COLORADO, CONNECTICUT, WISCONSIN, ILLINOIS, WASHINGTON STATE, NEW JERSEY AND TEXAS ARE OTHER CIVILIAN GROUPS, SOME OF THEM EXCLUSIVELY FOR WOMEN. MOST OF THEM HAVE APPROACHED THE QUESTION OF THEIR USEFULNESS IN WARTIME TENTATIVELY, AND NOT A FEW OF THEM HAVE TRIED UNSUCCESSFULLY TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT SUPPORT FOR THEIR ACTIVITIES.

COMMUNIST YOUTH FLYING ACTIVITIES IN RUSSIA ARE CLOSELY SUPERVISED, AND LIKELY-LOOKING YOUNGSTERS--BOTH BOYS AND GIRLS--ARE HURRIED INTO MILITARY TRAINING AS SOON AS THEIR AGES PERMIT.

AIR TRAINING FOR MUSSOLINI'S FASCIST YOUTH STARTS AT THE AGE OF 13 WHEN BOYS ENTER THE AVANGUARDISTI (ADVANCE GUARDS) AND THOSE INCLINED TOWARD FLYING JOIN THE LEGIONS OF THE PREAVIERI. IT HAS BEEN ESTIMATED THAT ONE OUT OF EVERY 20 ITALIAN BOYS REACHING THE AGE OF 20 IS A GLIDER PILOT AND SIX OTHERS HAVE BEEN TRAINED IN OTHER AVIATION SPECIALTIES.

IN GERMANY, YOUTH'S AIR TRAINING IS SUPERVISED BY THE NATIONAL SOZIALISTISCHE FLIEGERKORPS, ORGANIZED IN 520 "STURMS" SCATTERED THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY. S.PAUL JOHNSTON REPORTED IN FEBRUARY, 1939, THAT MORE THAN 65,000 YOUNGSTERS WERE IN TRAINING IN ADDITION TO MORE THAN 100,000 OTHERS OF THE MODEL-BUILDING AGE.

BUT NO SUCH NATIONALLY-INTEGRATED AIR DEFENSE MOVEMENT HAS OCCURRED IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE INTENSIVE CIVILIAN AIR TRAINING PROGRAM OF THE FEDERAL CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD HAS A FAINT MILITARY COMPLEXION, BUT THE GRADUATES OF SUCH COURSES ARE NOT ORGANIZED AS A CIVILIAN RESERVE. A SMALL PERCENTAGE GOES ON TO ADVANCED TRAINING LEADING INTO INDUCTION INTO THE ARMY AIR CORPS.

THE NON-GOVERNMENT-SUPPORTED TRAINING GROUPS, THEREFORE, REMAIN THE NEAREST APPROACH TO EUROPE'S ORGANIZATION OF THE GENERAL PUBLIC FOR ACTIVE AIR DEFENSE WORK.

ARTHUR W.STONE, JACKSONVILLE, FLA., HEAD OF AN ORGANIZATION OF 22 NORTH FLORIDA AND SOUTH GEORGIA CITIES, PLANS TO OFFER THE SERVICES OF 100 SPORTSMEN FLIERS AND THEIR PLANES TO THE GOVERNMENT FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE PURPOSES. THE MEMBERSHIP OF HIS GROUP INCLUDES

30.24-4565 . 30.24-4565

BOTH MEN AND WOMEN. THE AVERAGE AGE IS 25, ALTHOUGH ONE MAN OF 81 FLIES TO ALL THE MEETINGS.

FOR THE MORE THAN 18 MONTHS OF THE GROUP'S EXISTENCE SOME EMPHASIS HAS BEEN PLACED ON MILITARY FLYING. ONE OF THE COMMONOEST COMPETITION'S IS "BOMB DROPPING." BAGS OF FLOUR ARE TOSSED AT A TARGET ON THE GROUND.

ABOUT 50 AMATEUR PILOTS IN CONNECTICUT HAVE A CIVILIAN AIR SQUADRON IN THE FORMATIVE STAGE.

NOT MILITARY IN CHARACTER BUT DEVOTED TO PROMOTING CIVIL FLYING IS THE WISCONSIN CIVIL AIR CORPS WITH A MEMBERSHIP OF ABOUT 300 AND CHAPTERS IN MILWAUKEE, RACINE, KENOSHA, BEAVER DAM, WEST BEND AND WAUKESHA.

CHICAGO'S CIVILIAN AIR CORPS, WITH 400 MEMBERS, IS AFFILIATED WITH THE TOLEDO GROUP. IT HOLDS DRILLS ONE NIGHT A WEEK, AND ON SUNDAY HAS SUPERVISED FLIGHT INSTRUCTION, INCLUDING FORMATION FLYING AND MANEUVERS. ARTHUR J.LA POINTE, JR., ONE OF THE CORPS CHAIRMAN, SAYS IT HAS SOUGHT ARMY INSTRUCTION, THUS FAR WITH LITTLE SUCCESS.

THE CARIBOU, ME., WING OF THE CIVILIAN AIR RESERVE IS BUYING UNIFORMS TO ENCOURAGE THE MILITARY ASPECTS OF ITS ACTIVITIES. COMMANDED BY MAJ.CLARENCE SPROUL, IT HAS AN EXECUTIVE OFFICER, ADJUTANT, COMMUNICATIONS OFFICER, PHOTOGRAPHIC OFFICER AND MEN IN CHARGE OF SEVERAL OTHER DEPARTMENTS.

SEATTLE HAS NINE PRIVATE FLYING CLUBS, INCLUDING THE ASSOCIATED WOMEN PILOTS OF BOEING FIELD. NONE IS MILITARY IN CHARACTER. THE WOMEN'S ORGANIZATION, FORMED IN 1933, HAS A MEMBERSHIP OF MORE THAN 60 AND IS GROWING FAST.

WHILE NO CIVILIAN FLYING GROUPS IN NEW JERSEY HAVE NATIONAL DEFENSE AS AN OBJECTIVE, MANQ OF THE STATE'S 100 CLUBS HAVE ASKED GILL ROBB WILSON, DIRECTOR OF THE STATE AVIATION DEPARTMENT, HOW THEY COULD SERVE IN THE DEFENSE PICTURE.

AUG 27 1940

THE TEXAS CIVIL AIR CORPS WAS ORGANIZED IN DALLAS BY J.G.KIRBY, JR., YOUTHFUL BROKER WHO WAS IN LE HAVRE DURING THE GERMAN BOMBING RAIDS IN THE "BATTLE OF FRANCE" AND RETURNED TO "DO SOMETHING FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE." THE CHARACTER OF THE GROUP GRADUALLY CHANGED AS ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS BECAME INTERESTED IN IT.

KIRBY RESIGNED, AND THE CORPS IS COMMANDED BY RESERVIST CAPTAIN A.B.TANCO. GROUND SCHOOL CLASSES HAVE BEEN STARTED.

IN NEW YORK THE "WOMEN FLIERS OF AMERICA" RECENTLY BANDED TOGETHER TO BRING FLYING INSTRUCTION WITHIN THE REACH OF MOST WOMEN AND TO EQUIP THEM TO UNDERTAKE TASKS IN TIME OF EMERGENCY. KATHARINE HEPBURN, THE ACTRESS, HAS BEEN ACTIVE IN FURTHERING THE ACTIVITIES OF THE GROUP.

"RELIEF WINGS," COMPOSED OF BOTH MEN AND WOMEN, HAS BEEN ORGANIZED IN RECENT WEEKS TO RELIEVE DISTRESS BY PLANE IN WAR AND DISASTER.

(ADVANCE)-SEATTLE, WASH., AUG 26--THE UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON HAS A NEW AIRPLANE SCALES WHICH WEIGHS WITH THE SPEED OF LIGHT.

IT WAS INVENTED TO WEIGH THE FORCES WHICH STRIKE AN AIRPLANE IN FLIGHT. IT CAN RECORD ANYTHING FROM THE SLAP OF A FEATHER TO A TON AND A QUARTER YANK.

THIS SCALES RECORDS ACCURATELY A PULL WHICH LASTS ONLY ONE-HUNDREDTH OF A SECOND. THE NAME OF THESE MOMENTARY STRESSES ON THE PARTS OF A PLANE IS FORCE TRANSIENTS.

THE INVENTOR IS PROFESSOR F.S.EASTMAN, OF AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING. THE SCALES IS USED IN THE WASHINGTON WIND TUNNEL UNDER HIS DIRECTION.

THE WEIGHTS IN THIS SCALES ARE SET LIKE THOSE OF AN ORDINARY BALANCE. BUT THEY NEVER SEEM TO MOVE. BECAUSE THE MOTION THEY TRY TO MAKE IS CONVERTED INTO ELECTRICITY, MOVING WITH THE SPEED OF LIGHT, 286,000 MILES A SECOND, HEADING OFF THE "WEIGHT" MOTION BEFORE IT CAN PERCEPTIBLY START.

A PULL ON THE PLANE PASSES DOWNWARD EXACTLY LIKE THE FORCE WHICH TILTS ONE SIDE OF A BALANCE DOWNWARD. THE DOWN PULL PUSHES DOWN ON A SMALL ELECTRIC COIL SET BETWEEN MAGNETS.

YEAR OF WARFARE

A LOOK AT THE NEW

MAP OF EUROPE (900)

BY LOUIS P.LOCHNER

(ADVANCE) BERLIN (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-ONE YEAR OF WAR HAS GIVEN HITLER AND GERMANY HEGEMONY OVER EUROPE. HER AXIS PARTNER, BENITO MUSSOLINI, PLAYS SECOND FIDDLE.

THE FIRST STEP TOWARD THAT HEGEMONY WAS THE RESTORATION OF THE FRONTIERS OF 1914. THE SECOND WAS THE DEFEAT OF THE CONTINENTAL ENEMIES, THE THIRD THE SPREAD OF GERMAN POWER TO THE SOUTHEAST.

SINCE THE EARLY HOURS OF SEPTEMBER 1, 1939, WHEN THE GERMAN FUEHRER ISSUED THE FAMOUS ORDER TO "MEET FORCE WITH FORCE" ALONG THE POLISH BORDER, GERMANY HAS REGAINED EVERYTHING THAT CONSTITUTED GERMAN CONTINENTAL TERRITORY BEFORE WORLD WAR I, EXCEPT A LITTLE SECTION OF NORTH SLESVIG WHICH IS TECHNICALLY UNDER DANISH RULE, BUT DOMINATED BY THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION FOR DENMARK.

DANZIG, THE POLISH CORRIDOR, EUPEN-MALMEDY, ALSACE-LORAINE -- ALL HAVE BEEN REUNITED WITH THE REICH. NORTH SLESVIG PROBABLY WILL RETURN AUTOMATICALLY IN DUE TIME.

AS FAR AS THE FORMER AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE IS CONCERNED, THE AUSTRIAN PART OF WHICH IS NOW A "GAU" OF GREATER GERMANY, IT CAN BE SAID THAT HUNGARY AND SLOVAKIA, WHILE TECHNICALLY INDEPENDENT STATES,

30.24-4567

30.24-4567

ARE DEFINITELY WITHIN THE GERMAN POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC ORBIT.

THOSE SECTIONS OF THE LATE POLISH STATE WHICH BEFORE 1918 WERE AUSTRIAN HAVE, LIKE THE FORMER GERMAN PARTS, BEEN REJOINED TO GERMANY WITH BUT INSIGNIFICANT EXCEPTIONS. SUDETENLAND AND THE PROTECTORATE OF BOHEMIA-MORAVIA, ONCE MEMBERS OF THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE, WERE A PART OF GREATER GERMANY EVEN BEFORE THE WAR BEGAN.

ONLY SOUTH TYROL AND THE TRIESTE REGION ARE NOT LIKELY TO BE RETURNED, FOR HITLER HAS DEFINITELY ASSURED HIS FRIEND MUSSOLINI THAT HE RENOUNCED ALL CLAIMS THERETO. WHERE CROATIA, ONCE A PART OF THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE, WILL ULTIMATELY GO IS A MATTER OF CONJECTURE.

AUG 27 1940

AS COMPENSATION FOR THE POSSIBLE PERMANENT LOSS OF SOUTH TYROL AND CROATIA THE REICH HAS ALREADY IN EFFECT BAGGED LUXEMBURG, DECLARED BY GERMAN RACIAL EXPERTS TO BE ESSENTIALLY TEUTONIC. ALSO, THE SO-CALLED "GENERAL GOVERNMENT" OF POLAND MAY BE REGARDED AS PERMANENTLY UNDER GERMAN DOMINATION.

BUT THAT IS NOT ALL. DENMARK, NORWAY, THE NETHERLANDS, BELGIUM, FRNCE -- ALL ARE STUDDED WITH GERMAN OCCUPATION TROOPS. IN DENMARK, THEIR PRESENCE IS PERHAPS LEAST CONSPICUOUS. DENMARK OFFERED NO RESISTANCE. HER SOVEREIGN ACCEPTED THE GERMAN OCCUPATION, "UNDER PROTEST", TO BE SURE -- BUT HE ACCEPTED. THE GRAND DUCHESS OF LUXEMBURG DID NOT, AND NORWAY, HOLLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE DREW THE SWORD AGAINST THE REICH'S FORCES.

GERMANY THUS, AFTER ONE YEAR OF WAR, HOLDS SWAY FROM NARVIK IN THE EXTREME NORTH TO THE SPANISH SEA-COAST BORDER IN THE SOUTH -- AN AREA TO WHICH FEW PEOPLE IN GERMANY IN EVEN THEIR BOLDEST DREAMS DARED ASPIRE.

HAND IN HAND WITH MILITARY CONQUEST WENT THE ECONOMIC AND EVEN POLITICAL PENETRATION OF SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE. IT WAS BUT NATURAL THAT, AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR WHEN BRITISH PRESTIGE WAS STILL HIGH, THE BALKAN COUNTRIES TRIED MORE OR LESS TO CARRY WATER ON BOTH SHOULDERS. EVEN HUNGARY, TRADITIONAL FRIEND OF GERMANY, DID A BIT OF STRADDLING. RUMANIA WAS PARTICULARLY OFFISH, AND SEEMED TO FEEL SECURE IN THE BRITISH GUARANTEE OF ASSISTANCE IN THE EVENT OF AGGRESSION. YUGOSLAVIA REMAINED NON-COMMITTAL; BULGARIA DEFINITELY PRO-GERMAN; GREECE INCLINED TOWARD THE WESTERN POWERS BUT NOT SO COMPLETELY AS TO FOREGO FRIENDLY RELATIONS WITH GERMANY AND ITALY. TURKEY ALONE COMMITTED HERSELF ONE-SIDEDLY AND DEFINITELY TO THE ALLIED CAUSE.

(ADVANCE) BERLIN (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--FIRST ADD YEAR OF WARFARE (BY LOCKNER) X X X ALLIED CAUSE.

NOW, A YEAR LATER, GERMANY DOMINATES THE SOUTHEAST. THE SUCCESSIVE VISITS OF HUNGARIAN, RUMANIAN, BULGARIAN, AND SLOVAK STATESMEN TO HITLER IN JUNE AND JULY SHOWED PLAINLY WHO THE REAL MASTER OF THE BALKANS IS. GERMAN INFLUENCE EVEN EXTENDED TO MAKING RUMANIA, BULGARIA AND HUNGARY ENTER UPON DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS WITH A VIEW TO WIPING OUT OLD SCORES BETWEEN THEM.

GREECE TOOK PAINS TO ASSURE GERMANY ANEW OF HER FRIENDSHIP. YUGOSLAV STATESMEN STRESSED THEIR DESIRE TO REMAIN ON THE BEST OF TERMS WITH THE AXIS, AND EVEN TURKEY BEGAN TO SOFTPEDAL HER ALLIANCE WITH BRITAIN. THE WILY GERMAN AMBASSADOR, FRANZ VON PAPEN, A MASTER AT THIS SORT OF THING,SIGNED A NEW TRADE AGREEMENT WITH TURKEY IN AUGUST WHICH PARTLY NEUTRALIZED THE TURKISH-ENGLISH SET-UP.

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF ALL THESE STARTLING RESULTS WITHIN ONE YEAR WOULD PERHAPS NOT HAVE BEEN POSSIBLE, HAD SOVIET RUSSIA BEEN INIMICAL TO THE REICH. HITLER, AS A PRACTICAL POLITICIAN, REALIZED THIS. HE THEREFORE COMPLETELY REVERSED THE OFFICIAL GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARD THE BIG EASTERN NEIGHBOR SHORTLY BEFORE WORLD WAR II BROKE OUT, AND THROUGH FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIN VON RIBBENTROP CONCLUDED A PACT WITH MOSCOW ON AUGUST 23, 1939, WHICH CHANGED THE MAP OF EUROPE.

THE FUEHRER, NATURALLY, HAD TO OFFER SOMETHING FOR THIS NEW POLITICAL FRIENDSHIP WHICH ENABLED HIM TO DEVOTE ALL ENERGIES TO THE WES AFTER HIS WALK-AWAY IN POLAND. HE DECLARED HIS DISINTERESTEDNESS IN THE EASTERN BALTIC, AND ENDORSED RUSSIAN CLAIMS TO BESSARABIA AND CERTAIN PARTS OF POLAND.

AUG 27 1940

FINLAND RECEIVED A COLD SHOULDER WHEN SHE EXPECTED GERMAN SYMPATHY IN HER STRUGGLE WITH RUSSIA. ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA CEASED TO EXIST AS INDEPENDENT STATES AND BECAME PART OF THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS. UKRAINE AND OTHER EASTERN SECTION OF POLAND REVERTED TO RUSSIAN RULE. BESSARABIA, TOO, WAS RE-ANNEXED BY RUSSIA, AND EVEN NORTHERN BUCOVINA WAS TAKEN BY THE SOVIETS AS A PUNITIVE MEASURE, WITH THE FULL APPROVAL OF THE REICH.

RELATIONS WITH ITALY DURING THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR DEEPENED ALL THE TIME UNTIL, ON JUNE 10, MUSSOLINI DECIDED TO ENTER THE FRAY AS AN ACTIVE BELLIGERENT. GERMANY AND ITALY ARE NOW FIGHTING SIDE BY SIDI "FOR A NEW ORDER IN EUROPE".

RESTRICTIONS NECESSARY FOR THE SUCCESSFUL CONTINUATION OF WAR ACTIVITIES POP OUT AT YOU FROM THE MOST UNEXPECTED CORNERS.

FIRST OF ALL, THERE'S THAT BLACKOUT. REALLY MOST PERSONS WOULD FEEL SORT OF ASHAMED AND THEATRICAL--AFTER SPENDING 12 MONTHS IN THE EVENING DARK--TO HAVE TO STEP OUT UNDER A BRILLIANT STREET LAMP.

EYES HAVE BECOME SO ACCUSTOMED TO STRUGGLING AROUND IN THE DARK THAT THE BUSINESS IN PHOSPHORESCENT BUTTONS HAS DROPPED OFF TO NIL.

THEN THERE IS THE TAXI SITUATION. WOE BETIDE YOU IF YOU GET INTO A TAXI WITHOUT AN IRON CLAD, DOUBLE-BARRELED REASON. TIRED FEET DON'T COUNT. RUSHING OVER TO SEE A SICK AUNT MIGHT GET YOU BY--MAYBE, MAYBE.

ON THE OTHER HAND IF YOU ARE THINKING OF SITTING DOWN IN A RESTAURANT, OR OUT ON THE SIDEWALK CAFE AND LETTING YOUR PHANTASY ROAM, ORDERING THE WAY YOU DID WAY BACK IN '38, YOU'VE GOT ANOTHER THOUGHT COMING. BUT THE GOOD BURGER IS BROKEN IN TO THE MEAT, BUTTER, BREAD AND WHAT-HAVE-YOU COUPONS.

New Crisis Spurs Rome-Berlin Call For Peace Parley At Vienna Tomorrow—Further Russian Land Grabs Feared

AUG 28 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Aug. 27—The Hungarian and Rumanian Foreign Ministers, it was learned tonight, have been urgently summoned to a conference with Axis spokesmen in Vienna in an apparent move by Italy and Germany to make a quick settlement of the Balkan crisis lest Soviet Russia have opportunity to move further into that area.

Specifically, they were called to meet Thursday in Vienna with Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Italian Foreign Minister.

Axis Envoys Hurry Home

Just before this became known, the German and Italian Ministers to Rumania left Bucharest by plane for consultations with their governments, carrying detailed reports of a sharp and bloody clash between Soviet and Rumanian troops. At about the same time, the German and Italian Ministers to Budapest also left here.

The Vienna meeting was understood to be designed to force a settlement of Hungary's claims upon Rumania for Transylvania which would avoid a war disturbing to the Balkan productivity so necessary to Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in their war with Britain, and make an end to the long crisis atmosphere.

Ciano, Ribbentrop Expected

It was learned that both Ciano and Joachim von Ribbentrop German Foreign Minister, would attend.

Accounts of the Soviet-Rumanian clash first reached Budapest in diplomatic dispatches from Rumania and subsequently were confirmed by Soviet circles in Bucharest. These dispatches indicated that the fight, in which several hundred troops were killed, had begun after Russians had overstepped the Rumanian frontier at a point where Rumanian troops had been removed for service in Transylvania.

Russians Confirm Clash

Subsequently the staff of the Soviet legation in Bucharest confirmed that a bloody clash between Soviet and Rumanian troops occurred Sunday and Monday with heavy casualties on both sides.

The calling of the Vienna conference was the latest in a chain of events which began Saturday with the breakdown of a Hungarian-Rumanian conference on the Transylvania dispute.

Rumania immediately countered Hungarian strategic measures by moving thousands of troops from Moldavia to Transylvania.

Count Csaky To Go

Count Istvan Csaky, Hungarian Foreign Minister, will go to Vienna.

Mihail Manolescu, Foreign Minister of Rumania, who conferred with the Russian Minister today over the clashes, is understood to be going there also.

The opinion was expressed in quarters close to the governments in Budapest and Bucharest that Soviet troops crossed the Rumanian frontier in a major "scouting expedition" to prepare the Red army for the possibility of a real push in the event that Hungarian-Rumanian differences over Transylvania develop into open warfare.

Hundreds Reported Slain

Soviet informants in Bucharest said "several hundred" Russian troops had been slain by the Rumanians, while Bucharest sources reported more than 300 Rumanian soldiers killed.

A foreign military attache at Bucharest said the outbreak occurred just north of the town of Dorohoi, in the province of Moldavia, hard by the new frontier fixed two months ago when the Russians by ultimatum seized Bessarabia and northern Bucovina from Rumania.

The Russians, he added, were understood to have flown over Rumanian territory and to have shot down two of six Rumanian pursuit ships which rose to the attack.

In a second incident further threatening the uneasy peace of southeastern Europe, the Hungarian Foreign Office accused a Rumanian pilot of shooting down a Hungarian bomber on Hungarian soil today, and protested angrily to Bucharest against what was termed this "unprovoked and murderous attack."

After Hungarian officials had been in communication with Berlin, however, the Foreign Office spokesman said:

"The attack was provocatory, but we ourselves will not provoke."

Hungary Suppresses News

The Hungarian official news agency suppressed the news of the bomber's destruction and the newspapers were forbidden to mention it.

The Hungarian bomber was said by the Foreign Office to have been shot down about eighteen miles within the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier. One of its crew of three was declared to have been wounded.

The attacking craft, said the Foreign Office, was plainly marked with the Rumanian insignia and disappeared after the struggle in the direction of Transylvania.

Hungary's war preparations were speeded up noticeably. Artillerymen facing the Rumanian frontier were ordered to load their guns with live shells; Budapest and other Hungarian cities were under semi-blackouts.

Vienna Balkan Parley Confirmed By Berlin

Berlin, Wednesday, Aug. 28 (AP)—Reliable informants reported today that German and Italian Foreign Ministers would referee the Rumanian-Hungarian quarrel in a Vienna conference tomorrow in the conviction that Germany must settle Balkan territorial disputes to avoid at all costs any incidents which could disturb the conduct of her war against Britain.

There were no reports from German sources of a clash between Rumanian and Russian forces, but it was acknowledged that such a clash would make the Balkan settlement urgent from Germany's point of view.

Germans emphasized that preservation of peace in the Balkans was of the highest importance to them. To that end, the status of Rumania—with which Germany has important trade agreements for acquisition of war esseentials—must be clarified not only regarding Hungary, but also Russia, they said.

Propaganda Plane Shot Down, Rumanians Think

Bucharest, Aug. 27 (AP)—A Rumanian Government spokesman said tonight a Hungarian plane had dropped propaganda leaflets in Transylvania Sunday and that this probably was the craft which the Hungarian Foreign Office asserted had been shot down today.

The Hungarian protest, he said, was "being handled through the regular diplomatic channels."

The Rumanian national press displayed anti-Hungarian editorials. Timpul, the newspaper of Grigore Gafencu, former Foreign Minister, declared:

"We have reached the point in negotiations with Hungary (over the latter's demand for Transylvania) where peaceful procedure has failed.

"Hungary must suffer the consequences for her strange behavior. The question now is whether the Hungarians will change their minds. Territories are conquered by war. Boundaries are established by peace treaties. Historical rights cannot be mentioned except as pretexts for a new war."

Berlin Hints Arbitration

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight that Germany might arbitrate in the Hungarian-Rumanian territorial dispute over Transylvania, possibly with Italian aid.

The long drawn out negotiations at Turnu-Severin, Rumania, are irking the axis partners, who repeatedly have acknowledged their interest in a quick settlement for the sake of appeasement in the Balkans, these sources said.

Vienna will be the site of the arbitration meeting and German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop will preside, it was said.

INCIDENTS ALSO INVOLVE PLANES FROM HUNGARY

Hundreds Reported Slain as Carol's and Stalin's Armies Clash.

GERMANY MAY INTERVENE

Budapest Speeds Up Military Preparation After Bomber Is Felled by Rumanians.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—A Rumanian pilot was accused by the Foreign Office today of shooting down a Hungarian bomber on Hungarian soil, and Budapest angrily protested to Bucharest against what was termed this "unprovoked and murderous attack."

While the uneasy peace of the Balkans was thus further threatened directly, diplomatic dispatches from Bucharest reported a more sensational incident—a sharp border fight between Rumanian and Soviet Russian troops in which hundreds were said to have been left dead.

This reported outbreak was neither confirmed nor denied in the Rumanian capital, but a foreign military attache there wrote that the Rumanians alone had lost more than 300 soldiers.

His information was that the outbreak occurred just north of the town of Dorohoi, in the province of Moldavia, hard by the new frontier fixed two months ago when the Russians by ultimatum seized Bessarabia and northern Bucovina from Rumania. The fighting, the attache reported, began Sunday when Soviet troops crossed into Rumania proper, and was resumed yesterday.

The Russians, he added, were understood to have flown over Rumanian territory and to have shot down two of six Rumanian pursuit ships which rose to the attack.

[In Moscow, both Russian and official Rumanian diplomatic sources declared they had received no information of such a clash.]

Air Fights Over Transylvania.

Bucharest itself heard rumors of various encounters between Hungarian and Rumanian planes over Rumanian Transylvania—the province demanded by Hungary—but these, too, were not discussed officially.

The Hungarian bomber declared here to have been destroyed was said by the Foreign Office to have been shot down about eighteen miles within the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier. One of its crew of three was declared to have been wounded.

The attacking craft, said the Foreign Office, was plainly marked with the Rumanian insignia and disappeared after the struggle in the direction of Transylvania.

Hungary's war preparations were speeded up noticeably. Artillerymen facing the Rumanian frontier were ordered to load their guns with live shells; Budapest and other Hungarian cities were under semi-blackouts.

Reich May Impose Arbitration.

Thus, circumstances appeared to be making increasingly difficult a fruitful resumption of negotiations over Hungary's demand for Transylvania, which was lost to her after the world war.

Nevertheless, it was disclosed during the day that conferences probably would be resumed Thursday at Turnu-Severin, Rumania, where only last Saturday they collapsed and then were urgently and suddenly revived, apparently at the instance of the German Government.

Any action, however, must await the return of the German and Italian ministers to Bucharest and Budapest. Only this morning they left for home to get new instructions.

[In Berlin, informed persons said Germany might enter the Rumanian-Hungarian negotiations directly as arbitrator and that Vienna was the probable meeting place. Adolf Hitler has ordered that Hungarian claims upon Rumania, and similar territorial demands upon that country by Bulgaria, be settled without war—a war that would disturb the Balkan productivity needed in Germany's war against England.]

Situation Seen Deteriorating.

Foreign diplomatic quarters expressed the belief that quick intervention by Rome and Berlin was essential if the Rumanian-Hungarian relations, not to mention the Soviet-Rumanian situation, is to be saved from rapid "deterioration."

Just two months ago Rumania bowed to a Russian ultimatum, agreeing to cede to the Soviet Union the province of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

As the Russians marched in to take over their gains there were clashes between the retiring Rumanians and Soviet troops.

Dorohoi is close to the new border formed by the transfer of Bessarabia and Bucovina.

Flee Southern Dobruja.

SILISTRA, Rumania, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—The roads leading out of southern Dobruja were clogged with peasant caravans today and the bank of the Danube was jammed with refugees seeking to leave the districts they expect to be soon occupied by the Bulgarian Army.

Has No News, Moscow Says.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Russian officials and Rumanian diplomatic sources here said tonight they had received no information on reports in Bucharest and Budapest of a Russian-Rumanian border clash.

Ignorant of the exact status of the negotiations between the two countries, peasants and townsfolk trudge shoulder to shoulder toward the Old Kingdom. They have received official permission to carry with them grain, furniture, clothing and anything else they wish to save.

'They call It New Order.'

"I guess it has to be," a Silistra shopkeeper said. "They call it the New Order in Europe, but it is hard to pull yourself up by the roots from the place in which you have lived happily for so many years.

"We are Rumanians, however, and we wish to continue to live under the Rumanian flag."

Rumania and Bulgaria both hope the proposed transfer of territory may proceed smoothly, but already refugees are reporting bandit raids on small villages, resulting in deaths and pillaging.

Six Rumanian gendarmes were reported slain at one place and their bodies hung from trees.

Doctors, Too, Among Refugees.

In the peasant caravans the lucky migrants have loaded their possessions on horse-drawn carts — but oxen, mules, water buffalo, sheep dogs and even men themselves pull other conveyances.

The crowd grows larger on the southern, or Dobrujan, shore of the Danube.

There are doctors with their cases of instruments, farmers with their sacks of spring wheat, shopkeepers with cans, bottles and packing cases.

All await a chance to cross the river in rowboats, the owners of which are making a small fortune out of the pathetic traffic.

Rumanians Flee South Dobruja

Hordes of Refugee Peasants, Doctors and Townsfolk Crossing Danube.

SILISTRA, Rumania, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—The roads leading out of southern Dobruja were clogged with peasant caravans today and the bank of the Danube was jammed with refugees seeking to leave the districts they expect to be soon occupied by the Bulgarian Army.

About 150,000 Rumanians live in this borderland which their Government wrested from Bulgaria in the second Balkan war twenty-seven years ago, and which it has now tentatively agreed to relinquish.

Six Tons of Bombs Loosed in Forty-minute Raid on North Italy.

Fascist High Command Admits Attack on Milan Also—Says Briton Was Shot Down.

LONDON Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Heavy bomber blows which left Italian industrial plants shattered and smoking from the effects of tons of explosives were reported by Great Britain today, harassed herself by night-long German raids and fighting off new daylight air attacks.

The Fiat airplane, tank and motor works at Turin and the Magneto Marelli factory which makes electric equipment there, and Sesto San Giovanni, near Milan, were raided by R. A. F. pilots, who made the long double flight over France and the Alps with six tons of bombs, the Air Ministry announced.

For forty minutes bombs rained on the Turin objectives, the Air Ministry said, setting strings of fires and bright blue and white explosions. Great clouds of white smoke were sent drifting upward to 6,000 feet at Sesto Giovanni, a communique added.

It said that the raid was the fifth successful attack on northern Italy in two weeks by long-range British bombers.

The Air Ministry also announced that R. A. F. bombers delivered a successful attack upon a number of important military objectives in Germany last night as well as upon Italy.

Admit Factory Was Hit.

ROME, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—British bombs struck the Fiat airplane, automobile and tank factory at Turin in a new night raid aimed from across the Swiss Alps, the Italian High Command reported today, adding that an anti-aircraft battery brought down one British bomber which attempted to attack Milan.

The San Luigi Sanatorium at Turin also was hit.

The High Command asserted that only a few bombs were dropped, but did not disclose the amount of damage done. Farmhouses in the north of Italy were damaged, it continued, and a farmer was killed.

The Italians, meanwhile, bombed repeatedly a British convoy in the eastern Mediterranean, and carried out attacks on British mechanized units and barracks in the western Egyptian desert, the communique said.

The High Command said that "the enemy, once more coming over Switzerland, made air raids on various provinces in northern Italy, but were opposed by violent air and anti-aircraft reaction."

Swiss File New Protest.

BERNE, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—The Swiss Government today asked Great Britain to enforce immediately and scrupulousiy the orders given to the Royal Air Force to cease its alleged continued violation of Swiss territory in connection with flights to Italy.

The request was made in a note handed to the British Foreign Minister.

The Swiss Government met early today to discuss the alleged repeated violations of Swiss territory after a night in which numerous airplanes, presumably British, flew across Switzerland and a number of persons were injured by dropping fragments of anti-aircraft shells fired at the high-flying craft.

President Marcel Pilet-Golaz was instructed by his Government to summon the British Minister, David V. Kelly, to whom the protest was delivered.

It was recalled the British Government advised Berne, after a previous protest, that the R. A. F. had been specifically warned to respect Swiss neutrality.

A flight of British bombers over Switzerland indirectly caused injury to a number of Swiss who were hit by fragments of anti-aircraft shells on August 20.

Called Intentional.

These violations were intentional, the Swiss High Command asserted.

In a dawn communique, it said that the times at which the planes crossed Switzerland and their direction made it "perfectly clear" that the violation of Swiss territory was intentional.

Switzerland has already protested twice to Great Britain against the flight of her bombers over this neutral State.

Two air alarms were sounded in various Swiss cities during the night and anti-aircraft batteries fired as the planes crossed and recrossed the land.

The first signal came at 11:17 o'clock last night in Berne; another alarm was sounded at 12:50 A. M. in Berne and Geneva. The last all-clear signal was not given until 2:20 A. M.

British Blast Libyan Ports.

CAIRO, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—British naval blows against Bardia and Bomba in Italian Libya were reported today to have inflicted a severe setback on Italy's north African forces.

The British Navy belatedly announced that its forces August 24, for the second time within a week, had "successfully bombarded" both Libyan war ports, making the Bardia attack "at pointblank range." Full details have not been disclosed, however.

Many observers here believe Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, the Italian commander, will be forced to start a drive against Egypt soon despite any reverses, because, they say, constant British air and sea bombardments, with consequent disorganization of war preparations, cannot be withstood indefinitely.

Apparently occupied with first line strategy on the western front, these observers said, the Italians let the British move into the heart of the port of Bardia and blast away at military objectives virtually unmolested.

Marshal Graziani, they said, is known to have concentrated on regarrisoning bomb-blasted Fort Capuzzo as a possible front line base but apparently at the cost of leaving his rear guard unprotected.

SWISS PROTEST IS PRESSED

Berne Has New Air Alarm After London Is Chided on Flights

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 27 (AP)—A new air alarm, apparently caused by British raiders bound for Italy, sounded in Switzerland tonight a few hours after the Swiss Government had demanded that Britain "immediately and scrupulously" force the Royal Air Force to cease violating Swiss territory.

Tonight's alarm kept Geneva on the alert from 11:25 to 11:40 P. M.

The Swiss High Command charged that the repeated violations were "intentional." A note was handed to the British Minister, David V. Kelly, soon after Swiss Government heads had discussed the flights.

Several persons have been injured by falling fragments of anti-aircraft shells, with which the Swiss have been energetically greeting the visitors.

PRESS ATTACK ON CAIRO SEEN AS ONE SIGN

British Also Note Spurt In Italian Activity In North Africa

Rome Admits English Bombers Hit Fiat Plant At Turin

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 27—A spurt in Italian military activity in North Africa and Fascist press recrimination against Egypt led British observers to the conclusion today that Premier Mussolini soon would send his troops across the desert against this passive ally of Britain.

These informants expressed the conviction, too, that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander in Africa, would be forced to launch his drive shortly because he could not go on indefinitely withstanding the pummelling of British sea and air bombardments.

Graziani is reported concentrating on regarrisoning Fort Capuzzo, western desert frontier post battered into virtual ruins by the British. Apparently he wants to make it a front-line base for a campaign into Egypt.

Rear Believed Unguarded

British military men say, however, that the shelling of Bardia and Bomba, militarized Libyan ports on the Mediterranean, and the seaplane base of Derna with little or no Italian opposition indicates that the grizzled Italian commander has left his rear virtually unprotected.

His latest setback came early last Saturday with the shelling of Bardia, thirty miles from the Egyptian border, by British warships which penetrated the harbor itself. The British said they disrupted troop concentrations and leveled supply bases, firing at point-blank range.

British May Take Lead

This bombardment, reported belatedly in a British communique today, was regarded by observers here as definite indication the British might carry the battle to the Italians before Graziani gets set.

Egypt meanwhile apparently passed a Cabinet crisis. Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha announced his Government was remaining in office—following an earlier announcement that it had stepped down because of differences of opinion over undisclosed "questions of internal policy."

Italy Admits Fiat Plant Hit By British Bombers

Rome, Aug. 27 (AP)—Italy acknowledged officially today that British bombers, in a new night assault, had scored hits on the important Fiat motors factory at Turin.

The Fascist press, however, devoted itself to new tidings of a desert offensive to drive the British out of Egypt. Il Telegrafo, organ of Count Ciano, Foreign Minister, said bluntly it was sure that African Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's "sword will cut the enigma" there.

A high command communique, accusing the British of "once more coming over Switzerland," said there were bomb hits on both the Fiat plant, where planes, tanks and autos are made, and on a sanatorium.

One Raider Shot Down

It declared, however, that the British were able to drop only a few bombs because of violent anti-aircraft defense, and that one raider was shot down.

As for Egypt, the press commentaries today included a second warning from Virginio Gayda, frequently Mussolini's spokesman, that the Egyptians must not oppose Italy's efforts to drive the British from their country—if they wish to keep their independence.

New Raids Reported

New air raids on British objectives in Egypt and on a British convoy in the eastern Mediterranean were detailed by the Italian high command.

Gen. Ilio Jori, a military expert writing in Il Corriere Padano, said Khartoum, capital and principal garrison city of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and Nairobi, capital of Kenya colony and a railroad center, were likely objectives of the next Italian offensives.

Occupation of Khartoum, besides giving Italians possession of rich cotton lands in the middle Nile, would cut Britain's rail and river communications between Egypt and Central and South Africa.

CAIRO CABINET RETAINS OFFICE

Resignation Is Reported and Then Denied.

POLITICAL SITUATION UPSET

Meanwhile Anniversary of British Pact Is Celebrated.

CAIRO, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—The political situation was confused today when the Egyptian Premier, Hassan Sabry Pasha, announced that his Cabinet was holding office despite an earlier announcement that it had quit.

"There is no change," the Premier declared. "The Cabinet has not resigned. I did not go to the Palace in that connection and I have told the press not to anticipate events."

Earlier, it had been said that his Cabinet, after less than two months in office, had submitted its resignation and that the Premier had begun immediately to form a new Government at the request of King Farouk.

The Premier's statement mystified political circles, but informed spokesmen expressed a belief that differences within the Cabinet had probably been quickly patched up and the resignation withdrawn.

British-Egypt Troth

Britain and Egypt exchanged new pledges of good-will as the two nations observed the fourth anniversary of their twenty-year treaty of alliance.

In a broadcast address, Hafez Afifi Pasha, former Ambassador to London and one of the signers of the 1936 pact, declared that if it were not for Britain's help Egypt "would already have been invaded by Italy or some other power."

He told his countrymen it would be a great mistake to believe that if Italy attacked Egypt it would be because of the presence of British troops in the country.

"Italy Planned For Year"

"For years Italy has planned offensive measures against Egypt," he said. "She has massed in Libya a great army, for which there is no normal need. She has sent poor families to Tripoli, ostensibly as settlers but in reality as the nucleus of an armed force.

"Italy wishes to restore the ancient Roman empire. She cannot be trusted and her promises are merely intended to lull us into a false sense of security."

British Counter-Offensive

Sir Miles Lampson, British Ambassador, also addressed the Egyptian people by radio, reaffirming British friendship and declaring that Britain soon would launch "a great counter-offensive" to smash Naziism and Fascism and "liberate the tortured inhabitants" of countries now in their grasp.

For the moment, he said, Britain was compelled by the defeat of France to stand on the defensive, but, he added:

"We are still marshaling behind the protective screen of our naval supremacy the vast resources of our empire in men and materials.

Moment Seen Nearer

"When the moment comes—and it is not so far away—we shall launch our great counter-offensive."

War supplies, Sir Miles declared, are "flowing to Great Britain" from "the mighty industrial organization in the United States, which is rapidly transforming itself into a huge arsenal."

Gayda Warns Egypt Not To Oppose Italy

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Aug. 27—Virgino Gayda, Fascism's chief editorial spokesman, warned Egyptians today against opposing Italian efforts to drive British troops from their country if they wish to keep their independence.

The warning was the second issued in as many days by Gayda in the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia, indicating Italy's intention of eventually attacking in the Egyptian sector to prevent it from becoming a springboard for a British thrust at Italian Africa or Italy herself.

Il Telegrafo, of Leghorn, Foreign Minister Ciano's paper says it is "sure" that Marshal Graziani's "sword will cut the enigma" raised by the "threat" to Italy from Egyptian teritory, although the Egyptian people are "friendly."

Gayda said a large part of the Egyptian nation was hostile to the Government's pro-British attitude and "favorable instead to a friendly, understanding with Italy."

Italy was not thinking of fighting Egypt, he repeated, but only of dominating the British forces with the idea of making Egypt "really independent." He cautioned the Egyptian nation against "letting itself be trapped into misunderstandings by British maneuvers."

SCREAMING SIRENS SIGNAL NEW NIGHT ATTACK ON LONDON

Diners Rush to Shelters—City Had Respite During Day.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—London's full chorus of air raid sirens wailed again tonight, signaling the return of the German raiders who kept the city in a six-hour state of siege before dawn today.

Scores of searchlights swept the sky as the sound of the sirens and the whistles of air raid wardens died, but there was silence over the darkened city.

[Presumably the alarm was sounded at 9:27 P. M. (4:27 P. M., New York time)—the time the dispatch was filed, although censorship prevents correspondents from saying so.]

This second successive night "nuisance raid," as the British called it, again caught big crowds in eWst End places of entertainment.

Late dinners were abandoned hurriedly; guests in hotels and restaurants ran to shelter. But theaters continued their shows, their managements making stage announcements of the raid warning.

One London suburb heard a single plane, flying at about 5,000 feet, toward the city proper. It rose even higher while the beam of a searchlight sought it in the sky. At the same time, a report was received that German planes were over a town in northwest England.

London Gets Respite During Day.

Britain had battened down tonight in readiness for new synchronized Nazi air blows in the darkness. By contrast with last night's chain assaults over 500 miles of England and London's long raid alarm, today's daylight raids were trivial.

Only a few planes penetrated inland and the only bombs dropped on land fell "on the foreshore of the Isle of Wight," the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security asserted.

However, a convoy off the Scottish coast fought an hour's battle with a raiding squadron, with the results unannounced.

Only three raiders were shot down today, compared with forty-seven yesterday.

For the first time the Germans employed the mass raid for a night assault last night sending forty bombers to attack one town in the northeast of England. They dropped high explosive bombs there, demolishing two shops and killing at least three persons.

One of the bombers was shot down by a Spitfire. All three men of the crew, uninjured except for scratches, were captured by a Home Guardman.

Little damage and few casualties were reported from the night-long raids, which kept much of Great Britain awake.

Several Killed in Poorhouse.

The Government said that some bombs were dropped "on one district in the outskirts of central London" and others in the suburbs. Several inmates of a poorhouse in a southeast of England town were killed in that town's worst raid of the war, and a number of casualties also were reported in the Midlands, where there were three heavy night raids.

Adopting a new technic, which accounted for the record length of the London raid, the Germans employed a force of about fifty planes which flew high over the capital at regular intervals singly or in small groups, chain fashion.

Far above the balloon barrages, some of the raiders kept as high as 20,000 feet—almost four miles—and appeared as tiny silvery specks as the anti-aircraft searchlights picked them out. They kept coming, approaching London from the south and circling over the metropolitan area, and then departing, apparently only to appear later again at a scheduled interval.

Despite their great height, two of them were brought down in flames by anti-aircraft fire in the London area.

Relatively few bombs were dropped considering the length of the raid.

Whistling bombs were dropped in one London area.

Attack on 500-mile Line.

The raiders also spent one of their busiest nights of the war outside of London, attacking more than 500 miles of coastline from northeast to southeast England and around the south coast to southwest England, and penetrating inland to the Midlands.

Here, too, the raiders roamed singly or in small groups, in some cases striking repeatedly at a single point in a manner similar to that of the "chain-raid" on London.

They concentrated for several hours on one southwest of England town, for example. The planes came over at regular intervals, sometimes singly and sometimes several at a time, and dropped a large number of high explosive and a small number of incendiary bombs.

Air Raid Precaution officials considered the damage small in relation to the intensity and length of the raids, although property was destroyed and there were a number of casualties, some of which were fatal.

On previous nights raids have included simultaneous thrusts at widely scattered points, each attack lasting only briefly, however.

In the Midlands last night fires were started, industrial property was damaged in two towns, and some persons were killed, while in the northeast of England reports indicated that the damage was slight. One bomber was brought down in the Midlands.

Many observers thought that the chain raid was executed for its nuisance value—to keep Londoners from sleeping and to hold up production. With this new technic comparatively few planes were employed and yet London's millions were kept under continuous alarm for most of the night.

The all-clear signal was sounded about 3:40 A. M., slightly more than an even six hours after the first alarm. It was the third air raid of the day for London and the seventh since Saturday morning.

Londoners Join in the Chorus.

Whatever the Germans hoped to gain by the new style raid, however, London was not still. Throughout the entire attack some traffic continued to move and, although millions crouched in air raid shelters, many stayed on street corners to watch the searchlight display and whatever else they could see of the raid.

Theater crowds sang and danced, and there was much singing in the air raid shelters. In one West End theater the audience remained in their seats and saw an entire second performance.

The alarm came as homebodies were retiring and as the West End theaters were thronged with amusement seekers. When the bombers kept sweeping over in relays and the all-clear signal failed to sound, many decided to "make a night of it."

In most theaters the audiences stayed on when the shows were over, and responded with zest to the stage managers' suggestions for impromptu concerts.

At the Hippodrome Prime Minister Churchill's son-in-law, the comedian, Vic Oliver, organized an informal songfest.

'Irish Eyes' at the Hippodrome.

At the Prince's Theater Arthur Riscoe called for "partners for the girls," and generals, Royal Air Force officers and naval men stormed the stage. Mr. Riscoe said it "was more like a New Year's party than an air raid."

Aircraftsman [illegible] Kapinsky of the Royal Canadian Air Force—who was selling shoes in Cleveland, Ohio, six months ago to earn money for a musical education—was the life of the party at the Hippodrome, where he got a chance to display his tenor voice by singing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Family groups had singing parties or played cards in the air raid shelters.

Some Just Walk Home.

Many persons caught away from home when the sirens shrilled their warnings went without supper, because the large restaurants closed their doors during the raid. Regulations compelled saloons to close also, but cafes and milk bars remained open and did a rushing business.

Hundreds, defying possible danger, were on street corners to watch the show as searchlights and bursts from the anti-aircraft guns lighted the skies. Many walked leisurely home when they were unable to get transportation.

Buses and taxis reappeared as if by magic when the all-clear signal finally was sounded.

London Cabs Can Hurry.

These London taxicabs, incidentally, may look old fashioned to Americans, but they can go places in a hurry during an air raid.

The Associated Press correspondent had a half-hour's ride in one from a hotel in the West End to Fleet street while the raid was at its height. Whenever the cab came to anything that looked like a military objective, the driver, who seemed to know his way by instinct in the blackout, pushed the accelerator into the floor and took the corners on two wheels.

Once at his destination, however, he seemed to lose all interest in speed and sauntered off to the nearest shop for a cup of tea—although the sky was still bright with pyrotechnics.

Henry Jackson, an Associated Press employee, was in a bus en route to the office when the air raid warning sounded. Escorted by the bus conductor, playing a harmonica, the passengers marched off to an air raid shelter singing "Tipperary" and "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile—Smile—Smile."

They continued the journey when the conductor announced: Jerry seems to have buzzed off." But it took five hours and twenty minutes to complete a ten-mile journey that normally takes an hour.

Forty-six Raiders Shot Down.

These raids capped yesterday's unusually intense warfare all over Great Britain, when, according to British figures, forty-six German planes were shot down. The Government listed fifteen British planes as missing, with eleven of the pilots safe.

Houses were damaged in London suburbs in last night's raid, but the casualties apparently were few.

A bomb demolished a house in one London area. Air raid wardens dug the occupants out from under the debris. The householder was killed, but his wife and two other occupants survived.

There were several casualties in the neighborhood. Two were taken to a hospital and the rest were treated at first aid posts.

One Associated Press employee telephoned from his suburban home that he and his wife had arrived home just ten minutes after a bomb had fallen ten yards from their home. The explosion shattered all the windows, shooting splinters of glass into the walls like arrows. One corner of the brick house was blown away.

Fourteen bombs fell in this neighborhood, but there were no casualties.

Hospital Shaken.

Convalescent patients in one London hospital were taken to trench shelters during the raid and others too ill to be moved out of the building were placed on mattresses under their beds. The hospital was shaken by the explosion of two bombs in the vicinity but no damage was done to it.

One of the attacks on the fringe of a London suburb was made by a dive bomber which loosed three comparatively light bombs.

Machine-gunning is Reported.

One of the attacks on the fringe of a London suburb was made by a dive bomber which loosed three comparatively light bombs. The only damage was to roads, in which craters were dug, and to an indoor bowling green building, the glass roof of which was smashed.

In anotner London suburb four bombs fell in a residential district, breaking windows and blowing in doors. Little other damage was reported in this area.

In a southwest of England town, described as having had its "worst raid of the war," two bombs fell on a poorhouse, killing several people and injuring several.

A number of casualties were reported from a Midland town which had three heavy raids during the night. High explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped there.

There was a number of reports of persons being machine-gunned from the air during raids in the Midlands and the Southwest, but only one death was listed. Several were reported wounded.

Buildings were demolished in one coastal town and a woman was killed. It was feared that other bodies might be buried under the debris.

At another town in the northeast a large number of houses were razed, but only five persons were injured. Incendiary bombs fell over a wide area.

British observers interpreted Adolf Hitler's change of tactics from massed raids to scattered daylight attacks and "nuisance" forays at night as "sufficient admission of failure" of the air blitzkreig.

The London Times said "RAF observers report that for some time hostile airdromes all along the continental coast have been systematically pushed forward" and said this was "a necessary preparation for a more vigorous asssault."

The development of the night raids, coupled with "simultaneous daylight attacks on several widely separate targets at once, so as to obtain maximum effects from his superior numbers," the Times said, was "quite consistent with the intention to attempt a landing." It held, however, that such an invasion "could have no hope of success unless it were able to exploit an air victory."

Tells of Attack on Airports.

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—British troop concentrations in the south of England airports and the British naval base of Portsmouth were bombed by German air raiders, the High Command reported today.

The communique, covering yesterday's air operations, said that Nazi flyers also returned at night and attacked the Plymouth naval base, Cornwall airport, Coventry, the site of seventeen airplane plants, airplane works at Birmingham and port facilities at Hull and Newcastle.

Sharp attacks also were launched against the industrial area around Birmingham, where great fires were started which were visible for many miles, Government spokesmen asserted.

Britain, it said, lost a total of seventy planes yesterday — sixty-one shot down in air battles and nine destroyed on the ground. It acknowledged German losses of twenty-one.

Germans Threaten To Retaliate Against "Criminal Attacks"

Hitler's Flyers Report Success In New Hedge-Hopping Tactics

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 27—Nettled by British raids which on two successive nights have roused Berliners from their beds, authoritative Nazis warned today that "criminal attacks" on civilian objectives in Germany will draw full payment in kind.

Britain's scattering of bombs over Germany is "completely aimless," said one source, whereas "London knows very well that the German air force has confined itself to military objectives in the vicinity of the English capital."

Nazis Try Hedge-Hopping

In their latest forays against the British today, the Germans reported a squadron of new Dorniers successfully resorted to low-flying strafing—sometimes only six feet from the ground—to avoid British anti-aircraft fire.

Seven British planes were declared shot down and a barrack and hangars destroyed in one hedge-hopping attack on an airdrome near London. The German flight captain was killed.

"Bits of timbers from living quarters, steel helmets and uniforms and human bodies were hurled pell-mell through the air," an account of the attack said.

2 Civilians Killed

Two civilians were killed and eigh Injured in last night's British attack on Germany, authortative sources reported, but only one of four British aircraft which tried to raid Berlin succeeded in reaching its goal.

It was forced to fly at a great heigh and did not drop bombs, they said but it occasioned a forty-minute alarm

"Insignificant" damage was reported at Hamburg.

The high command declared Britain lost seventy planes to Germany's twenty-one in yesterday's fierce air fights, which developed from heavy raids carried out on troops, airports aircraft factories and ports in the British Isles.

Coventry Blasted

Coventry, site of seventeen aircraf and aircraft body plants, rocked from the dumping of fifty to sixty tons o bombs, military sources said, whil seventy tons were unloaded over Brit ain's huge naval base at Portsmouth.

Numerous fires which were "visibl for miles" broke out after "property of importance in war" was attacked at Birmingham, these sources said, and fires and explosions were caused at Hull, on the east coast.

Military sources said they had no knowledge of bombing of Irish territory in which the Irish reported three girls were killed yesterday, adding that Ireland was off the regular course of operations.

Air Score Given

The same sources asserted that 1,055 British planes had been destroyed in air battles, by anti-aircraft fire or on the ground from August 1 to 26, inclusive.

German losses in the same period were placed at 271 planes.

A total of ninety-eight British barrage balloons were said to have been shot down.

incendiary bomb clusters which started fires—and disturbing the sleep of millions.

But the British, after their six-hour siege in shelters Monday night and Tuesday morning, took the two alarms last night and today much more phlegmatically. There was less anti-aircraft cannonading and searchlight activity, and many a householder refused to leave his bed.

First Lasts 2½ Hours

The first raid, lasting about two and one-half hours, ended just before midnight, and was followed by another of less than an hour's duration shortly after midnight.

The British declared damage was small, though they acknowledged some fires and some casualties occurred.

The raiders again operated singly or in small groups. Similar harassing raids were conducted through the night over nearly all of England and Wales.

Keep Anti-Aircraft Fire Down

The British everywhere kept their searchlight and anti-aircraft fire down to the minimum.

Bombs fell north of one midland town, and Germans were reported over several other communities in the same area.

After a short interlude, new rumbling sounds were heard distantly in the London area, indicating that the Nazis had not yet given up their prowling. There was the faint drone of an engine, and searchlights flickered on and off sporadically.

Fire Bombs Hit Two Churches

In southeast England, incendiary bombs hit two churches. The British said a large fire in the roof of one was extinguished.

One German raider was reported shot down in southwest England.

Early this morning, a northwest town was awakened by bomb blasts and anti-aircraft fire.

At the end of the first attempt upon this capital not a single German plane was seen or heard to pass the city's outer defenses.

But a series of bright flares visible from the center of the metropolis indicated exploding bombs some distance away.

Not As Heavy As Night Before

To observers atop the Associated Press building the raids did not appear to have been quite as heavy as the one last night.

There was no immediate information as to the extent of damage and casualties.

The city had been ready and expecting the attack all during the early evening. These attacks also caught big crowds in West End places of entertainment.

Dinners Abandoned

Late dinners were abandoned hurriedly; guests in hotels and restaurants ran to shelter. But theaters continued their shows, their managements making stage announcements of the warning.

The punctuality of the raiding Nazis occasioned a good deal of comment. They arrived the first time within two or three minutes of the time of Monday night's visitations.

Flashes, appearing to be from bombs, could be seen at short intervals. They extended in a semi-circle. Some were very brilliant, but they obviously were at a great distance from mid-London, since explosions were not heard.

14 Other Towns Raided

How widespread were the raids on the rest of the country was illustrated by reports that German raiders also were over at least three towns in Wales, five in the southeast of England and six in the industrial English Midlands.

By contrast with Monday night's chain assaults over 500 miles of England and London's six-hour air-raid alarm, yesterday's daylight raids were trivial.

Only a few planes penetrated inland and the only bombs dropped on land fell "on the foreshore of the Isle of Wight," the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security asserted.

However, a convoy off the Scottish coast fought an hour's battle with a raiding squadron, with the results unannounced.

Three raiders were shot down today, compared with forty-seven yesterday.

Londoners were told yesterday that the raiders which caused the long alarm bombed one district on the outskirts of central London. Other bombs dropped by fifty raiders, flying singly or in small clusters, fell in suburbs, and official statements minimized the damage and casualties.

At one southwestern town (Berlin said Plymouth was raided) where at least fifty bombs were dropped during the night, several persons were killed.

Forty Attack One Town

One northeastern town had an estimated forty attackers. They smashed two shops and killed two persons.

British official spokesmen said both England and Germany must concentrate now on the problem of fighter planes intercepting bombers on night flights.

However, they spoke of the German night raids on England as having little more than "nuisance value."

21 Planes Lost

It said Britain lost seventy planes yesterday—sixty-one shot down and nine destroyed on the ground. It acknowledged German losses of twenty-one.

Military sources said they knew nothing about the Irish (Eire) Government's statement that German air bombs yesterday killed three girls in Southern Ireland.

British planes were reported to have dropped bombs near Mannheim Castle in night raids on Germany.

London, Wednesday, Aug. 28—Adol Hitler's night-flying raiders continued "insomnia raids" on the London area last night and early today, dropping A plane dropped a high explosive bomb on one northeast Scotland town and hurled a number of incendiaries down on flower gardens.

Nazis Report Success In Hedge-Hopping Raid

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 27 (Via Radio)—The German wireless reported today that a squadron of German bombers, all new Dorniers invaded England today, flying low—at times only six feet above the ground—in a successful departure in tactics to avoid anti-aircraft fire.

The bombers destroyed seven hangars and a barracks on an airdrome near London, and shot down seven British fighting planes in a battle, the wireless said.

The planes brushed over trees and hedges and the crew of one brought back leaves from an English tree which it struck.

"Bodies Hurled In Air"

The attack on the airdrome took the English completely by surprise, said a German war reporter who took part in the flight.

"Bits of timber from living quarters, steel helmets and uniforms and human bodies were hurled pellmell through the air," the wireless declared.

The German flight captain was killed in the battle, it added, and many German flyers were wounded.

Troop Centers Bombed

British troop concentrations in southern England, airports and the Portsmouth naval base were bombed by German air raiders yesterday, the high command reported.

Its communique said the flyers returned to England last night and attacked the Plymouth naval base, Cornwall Airport, Coventry, airplane works at Birmingham and port facilities at Hull and Newcastle.

Berliners Declare Bombing 'Criminal'

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 27—Distant gunfire was heard in Berlin early this morning as the city's second aid raid alarm in British aircraft circled overhead for several hours.

There was no indication that bombs were dropped in the vicinity of Berlin today, but DNB, official German news agency, accused the British of bombing non-military objectives on the city's outskirts yesterday and threatened reprisals.

"London knows very well," the news agency said, "that the German air force has confined itself to military objectives in the vicinity of the English capital. English flyers, on the contrary, dropped incendiary bombs in the vicinity of Berlin.

"This circumstance establishes that residences were the exclusive objects of the British attack. So cowardly an effort is in line with previous English attacks."

DNB added the German high command "has repeatedly been obliged to report British attacks on non-military objectives such as hospitals and residences," and added:

"All these criminal assaults are manifestations of the well-known British theme that the war is not to be waged against the armed forces of the enemy, but against the enemy people itself—against aged women and children. London may rely on it that every assault on the property and lives of the German people will be repaid."

FEALTY PLEDGE TO HITLER LAID TO HIERARCHY

German Catholic Bishops Took Action At Conference, D. N. B. Reports

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 27—A solemn pledge of loyalty to Adolf Hitler by the German Catholic Bishops Conference at Fulda is to be read to the faithful from pulpits at the end of the war, DNB, official news agency, said today.

The pledge to Hitler is contained in expressions of gratitude to German troops adopted by the conference which ended August 22.

The agency said the view predominated at the conference that "the Catholic Church in Germany is indebted to German troops for the victorious advance and defense of the German homeland. Without the successful warding off of enemy invasion by German armed forces, German Catholics could not have pursued so undisturbed and quietly their church work and ministerial offices."

Publication Postponed

"Publication of the pastoral letter, customary in past years after conclusion of the conference, is to be postponed until after the final victory of German troops," it added.

"At this time, special ceremonious acts of gratitude of the Catholic Church, including the pledge to the Führer, are provided for."

Forty-five of Germany's forty-eight bishops participated.

Among those missing because of illness, DNB said, were Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, who has been a severe critic of the Nazis; the Archbishop of Paderborn and the Apostolic Administrator of the Diocese of Aachen.

Held In Ancient Abbey

The annual meeting of the German Catholic bishops at Fulda has been watched with particular attention in the years since Adolf Hitler came to power, since pronouncements of the bishops' conference are regarded as the voice of the Catholic Church in Germany and, as such, frequently have shed light on the status of strained church-state relations in the Reich.

Because of its ancient abbey, which was functioning long before Fulda became a town in 1208, the meeting place of the bishops itself is a symbol of Catholic strength. Fulda in the early middle ages was a European center of theological learning.

Ask Bishop To Leave

In France, Monsignor Heintz, Bishop of Metz, has left that city at the request of German authorities, the official German news agency, DNB, announced today.

While no reason was given for the bishop's expulsion it was recalled that in 1919 the French Government expelled the then Bishop Benzler "in order to replace him with a favorite of the French Government, Bishop Pelt."

Bishop of Metz Expelled by Nazis

LYONS, France, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Monsignor Heintz, Bishop of Metz, in northern France, was expelled from the city on two hours' notice by German authorities and arrived today in the unoccupied zone of France.

The reason for his expulsion was not disclosed.

Heart Of Empire Stakes Life On Fivefold Defense Pattern

System Has Yet To Undergo First Real Test Against Massed Bombers Attacking In Waves

BY POST BUTTENHEIM 28 1940

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 27—This stockaded front line city—an empire's nerve center only twenty minutes' flight from the nearest German air bases in France—is staking its life on a five-layer defense pattern.

Those defenses are:

Bombers which attack German bases and military objectives—an "offense-defense."

Interceptor planes working with observer posts to pounce on raiders before they get here.

Anti-aircraft and searchlight crews to harass them when they arrive.

High-flying balloons trailing lengths of steel cable, as well as other snares.

Swift Hurricane and Spitfire fighter planes.

Best Defense Is Good Offense

The underlying principle is that a good offense is the best defense.

British authorities frankly admit that despite repeated raids topped off by last night's six-hour bombing, the system yet has to undergo its first real test—resistance against mass formations approaching in unending waves in a sustained effort to smash the city completely.

But they say they are ready to gamble on its efficiency from what they have witnessed thus far.

Aim Is To Keep Foe At Home

The job of the R. A. F. bomber—its crew a highly-trained personnel winging far over Germany and the Alps into Italy—is to freeze or destroy the enemy at his bases, keep him busy at home to sap his offensive strength.

Britons shun the word "reprisal," and insist their war scheme is not based on "get even" psychology, but on a carefully worked-out program.

When observers catch the sound of approaching enemy planes they notify interceptor planes and inner defenses. The former speed aloft, the latter gets ready.

These observer posts and interceptor bases are scattered up and down the Channel coast to the east, the west coast and throughout rural England.

Many Camouflaged

Many are camouflaged to look like anything from a hayfield to a village lane—a fact which accounts for some German bombs spilling into supposedly inoffensive places like golf courses and pastures.

Searchlight and anti-aircraft batteries ring London, so that when both go into action, as last night, beams and gun flashes resemble a hugh wide-spaced picket fence. Inside this big ring are nests of other guns and searchlights.

These guns and lights work together so that when light beams converge on a raider the guns automatically get his range and let go. Eyewitnesses saw a bit of this last night—the big beams picking out their target and shells screaming aloft up a silvery path to strike a plane whose crew took to parachutes.

Anti-aircraft batteries range from the heavier material like the popular 3.7-inchers to radip-fire Bofors guns and various types of machine guns and pompoms.

Several Secret Weapons

Then, too, there are several new secret weapons.

The fourth defense layer is the balloon barrage and secret airplane traps—both to protect objectives and catch unwary low fliers.

Hundreds of these "floating elephant" balloons encircle London, protecting particularly the central area, and they have won a pat on their broad backs from military experts.

German—and British pilots, too—have struck their steel legs and perished.

Two To Five Miles Up

This stockade of balloons swings aloft on the end of 10,000 to 25,000 feet of heavy cable, raised or lowered by mobile ground crews. German flyers, interviewed at their home bases, have admitted how murderous these sausages can be.

Then there are finally the fast pursuit planes stationed at scores of concealed airfields. They operate in close coordination with the anti-aircraft guns and searchlight units under a plan which divides the skies like a checkerboard, worked out square by square.

Londoners also count on weather as a defense, and the "accursed fogs" of yore are now a blessing awaited with high eagerness. The sea-souper fog season, starting within a few weeks, is expected to throw up a protecting shield against death from the skies.

Londoners Dance And Sing In Raid

By Dwight L. Pitkin

Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

London, Aug. 27—Robbed of their sleep by Adolf Hitler's nocturnal bombers, thousands of Londoners danced and sang until almost dawn today, ignoring intermittent sounds of gunfire and the drone of airplane motors overhead.

The air-raid alarm came as home-bodies were retiring and as West End theaters were thronged with amusement seekers. When the German bombers kept sweeping over in relays and the all-clear signal failed to sound, many decided to make a night of it.

Theater Audiences Stay

In most theaters the audiences stayed on when the shows were over and responded with zest to stage managers' suggestions for impromptu concerts.

At the Hippodrome, Prime Minister Winston Churchill's son-in-law, the comedian, Vic Oliver, organized an informal "songfest."

At Prince's Theater Arthur Riscoe called for "partners for the girls," and generals, Royal Air Force officers and naval men stormed the stage. Riscoe said it "was more like a New Year's party than an air raid."

Aircraftsman H. Kapinsky, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who was selling shoes in Cleveland, Ohio, six months ago to earn money for a musical education, was the life of the party at the Hippodrome, where he got a chance to display his tenor voice by singing "Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Family groups had singing parties or played cards in air-raid shelters.

Many persons caught away from home when the sirens shrilled their warnings went without supper because the large restaurants closed their doors during the raid. Regulations compelled saloons to close also, but cafes and milk bars remained open and did a rushing business.

Hundreds, defying possible danger, remained on street corners to watch the spectacle as searchlights and bursts from anti-aircraft guns lighted the skies. Many walked leisurely home when they were unable to get transportation.

Busses and taxis reappeared as if by magic when the all-clear signal finally was sounded at 3.40 A. M.

These London taxicabs, incidentally, may look old-fashioned to Americans, but they can go places in a hurry in an air raid.

I had a half-hour's ride in one from a hotel in the western residential district to Freet street while the raid was at its height. Whenever we came to anything that looked like a military objective, the driver, who seemed to know his way by instinct in the blackout, pushed the accelerator down to the floor and took the corners on two wheels.

Goes For Cup Of Tea

When we reached my destination he seemed to lose all interest in speed and sauntered off to the nearest shop for a cup of tea—although the sky was bright with pyrotechnics.

Henry Jackson, an Associated Press employe, was in a bus en route to the office when the air raid warning sounded. Escorted by the bus conductor, playing a harmonica, the passengers marched off to an air raid shelter singing "Tipperary" and "Pack Up Your Troubles in the Old Kit Bag."

They continued the journey when the conductor announced "Jerry seems to have buzzed off," but it took Jackson five hours and twenty minutes to complete a ten-mile journey that normally takes an hour.

LOYAL FRENCH COLONIES WILL GET BRITISH AID

Pledged Economic Help Comparaple To That Given England's

Churchill Says It Will Go On Until Independence Is Reestablished

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 27—Prime Minister Churchill today assured Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the French in exile, that economic assistance comparable to that granted the British colonies would be extended to all French overseas territories loyal to the Allies.

This aid will be granted, Churchill declared, until an "independent and constitutional authority" has been reestablished on French soil.

The Prime Minister's statement followed an announcement by General de Gaulle that the governor and commander of Chad territory in French equatorial Africa had decided to fight with Britain.

Decision Held Important

French circles in London regarded the decision as of great importance, since Chad territory borders Italian Libya and the Sudan and is the key to equatorial Africa.

The territory is 461,202 square miles in extent, with a population of 548 Europeans and 1,432,006 natives, according to the "Statesmen's Year Book."

It was thought here that certain other French African possessions may follow suit.

Churchill's Letter

Churchill's assurance to de Gaulle was contained in a letter which declared:

"In pursuance of various statements made on behalf of his Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom on the subject of economic assistance to French colonial territories, and upon the occasion of the declaration of Chad territory to adhere to the cause of the Allies, I wish to assure you on behalf of his Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom:

"(A) That until such time as independent and constitutional authority has been reestablished on free French soil, we shall do everything in our power to maintain economic stability of all French overseas territories, provided they stand by the alliance.

Would Foster Trade

"(B) That so long as our pathway to victory is not impeded we are ready to foster trade and help the administration of those parts of the great French Empire which are now cut off from captive France.

"These assurances apply with even greater force to those territories which rally to you as leader of all free Frenchmen in support of the Allied cause.

"Therefore, we are prepared to extend economic assistance on a scale similar to that which we should apply in comparable circumstances to colonies of the British Empire.

"Plans are now being worked out for making such assistance rapidly effective."

13 VESSELS SUNK BY NAZIS IN WEEK

London Issues Figures on British and Other Ships.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Thirteen British, Allied and neutral merchant ships, totalling 52,899 tons, were sunk by the enemy during the week ending August 18, the Admiralty announced today, and it was authoritatively denied that a British destroyer of the Viscount class had been sunk, as alleged by the Germans.

The total tonnage lost was slightly above the weekly average for the previous forty-nine weeks of the war, the Admiralty observed, adding that "the enemy claims to have sunk 151,711 tons, or nearly three times the actual reported losses" for the period.

Axis losses up to August 26 totaled approximately 1,187,000 tons, the Admiralty reported. German losses were 923,000 tons and Italian 264,000.

Neutral shipping seized by the enemy, amounting to 32,000 tons, also has been sunk, the Admiralty reported.

The Admiralty also stated today that naval anti-aircraft guns had accounted for 122 German planes up to August 12 and that an additional sixty-four had probably been destroyed and forty-five damaged.

The fleet air arm shot down an additional twenty-eight planes and damaged twenty-five others, many of which "can be considered lost," the Admiralty said.

BRITISH SUBMARINE IS REPORTED LOST

Spearfish Torpedoed Nazi Battleship Admiral Scheer Off Norway

Also Had Narrow Escape In Raid On Helgoland Bight Last October

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 27—The Spearfish, adventurous British submarine which torpedoed the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer April 11, is "overdue and presumed lost," the Admiralty announced tonight.

The Spearfish was a 670-ton vessel normally carrying forty men. Her commander was Lieut. Com. J. H. Forbes. She carried six 21-inch torpedo tubes and was capable of making a crash dive in 30 seconds.

The Spearfish had a narrow escape last October on a raid on Helgoland Bight. Sighted, she made a crash dive to the bottom. German depth charges blew away her periscopes, wrecked her wireless and disabled her engines.

The crew, counting the depth charges, held a sixpence sweepstakes on whether each successive one would split the hull. But the submarine survived, even though the wires of German sweeps scraped her conning tower.

When the Germans left, she went to the surface, repaired the radio and got aid from a destroyer.

Then, in the fighting that marked the Nazi invasion of Norway, the Spearfish had her revenge. The Admiralty reported that more than one torpedo from this craft had hit the prized Admiral Scheer. Whether the German ship was sunk was not stated but heavy damage was declared certain.

Sidelights Of Nazi Raids

The train raced to shelter in a tunnel.

Jury Declares German Bombs Killed 3 In Eire

Several Witnesses Testify They Saw Nazi Markings On Plane Over Campile Monday

Dublin, Aug. 27 (AP)—An Eire coroner's jury returned a verdict today that German aircraft dropped bombs that killed three girls Monday at Campile, on the southeastern coast of Ireland.

Several witnesses testified they saw German markings on the plane.

"Evidence clearly shows that these deaths were caused by German aircraft," Coroner Fintan O'Connor told the jury.

"I do not know how anybody could for an instant suggest the bombing of Campile was in any way accidental."

British Commit Tyler Kent on Espionage Charge.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Tyler Kent, former clerk at the United States embassy here, and Anna Wolkoff, daughter of a former Russian Admiral, were committed for trial at Old Bailey today at the conclusion of a hearing on charges of violating the official secrets act.

Kent's arrest was announced June 1 by the Home Secretary, who said Kent's detention was the result of action by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. He had previously been dismissed from his clerkship.

Kent is 29 years old and was born at Newchwang, Manchuria, of American parents. His father, A. H. P. Kent, is dead. His mother lives in the United States.

Officers Seize Intruder On Duke of Kent Estate

He Informs Scotland Yard He Wanted to See Duchess

LONDON, Aug. 28 (Wednesday) (AP).—Scotland Yard officials are questioning a "mystery man" captured on the country estate of the Duke of Kent Sunday night, "The Daily Mail" reported today. It said the man had identified himself as John Patrick Curtin, a former hotel employee, and had said he wanted to see the Duchess of Kent.

Fears of a possible terrorist plot against the Duchess were aroused in June, 1939, when a New Zealander fired a sawed-off rifle near her. He denied intent to harm her, and detectives said that he suffered from delusions.

British Claim 122 Planes

25 SAVED AFTER DRIFTING 6 DAYS

30 Others Missing From Torpedoed Ship.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Rescued at sea after being adrift in a lifeboat for six days in the North Atlantic, twenty-five survivors of a torpedoed vessel were landed yesterday at Galway, Ireland.

Seventeen of the men were British sailors. The remainder were other Europeans. They were picked up by the Norwegian vessel Varegg.

For twelve of the twenty-five it was the second escape from death in a torpedoing in the Atlantic. One of them was the second wireless operator aboard the liner Athenia, which was sunk on September 3, the first day of the war.

The men were at sea in a lifeboat last week from Monday through Saturday. An officer said the lifeboat had in tow a raft with thirty men but was forced to cut it loose.

The name of their vessel was not given.

Air Raid Bleachers

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 27.—It costs sixpence (about 10 cents) to watch an air raid in Wembley, site of one of Britain's biggest football stadiums.

Air raid precaution wardens urge spectators to take cover when a warning sounds, and then take up a sixpence collection from those who prefer to watch.

The money goes to buy Spitfire fighting planes.

Britons also are turning German radis to account in these ways:

Nazi planes which have been shot down are placed on exhibition to raise defense funds.

Women are using the hours they spend in air raid shelters to knit "comforts" for service men.

In Chatham, air raid wardens are growing winter cabbage atop their lookout post in an earthworks barricade.

ODD COURT-MARTIAL

British Major in Trouble Over Wanting to Fight.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Sir Edmund Ironside testified today at the strange court martial of a man who wanted to go to France and fight.

The case was that of Major A. D. Wintle, accused of feigning poor eyesight and threatening Air Commodore A. R. Boyle, director of intelligence at the Air Ministry last winter.

The Major denied threatening the Commodore and said he had pleaded bad eyesight so that he could get out of the British service and go to France "and fight."

Sir Edmund said that Major Wintle was disappointed when given charge of a cavalry depot at home and that his "chief anxiety appeared to be to get in to the firing line."

"To put is plainly he became to me a little bit of a nuisance like many people with guts who wish to go and fight."

It took the court only fifteen minutes to acquit Major Wintle of feigning defective vision.

It announced that a sentence on the second charge—of assaulting Air Commodore Boyle—would be promulgated in due course.

Wintle has been confined to the Tower of London for sixty-nine days in military custody.

LONDON, AUG 27-(AP)-HALF OF METROPOLITAN LONDON'S POPULATION HAD TO ASK THIS MORNING HOW LONG THE NIGHT'S AIR RAID LASTED.

THEY HAD GIVEN UP THE SHOW AND GONE TO BED--MISSING THE ALL CLEAR SIGNAL--WHILE THEATER GOERS STAGED SONG FESTS AND DANCES.

HOW CAN ONE GO TO BED WHILE THE GRINDING BEAT OF A GERMAN BOMBER STILL OVERHEAD COMES TO THE EARS? AT ANY MOMENT A BLAST MIGHT END YOUR EXISTENCE.

BUT SO MIGHT A BOLT OF LIGHTNING IN ANY THUNDERSTORM.

YOU THINK OF THE ODDS, SHRUG AND TURN IN.

WATCHING THE SHOW WEARIES YOU LIKE SITTING AT A GRAND FOURTH OF JULY DISPLAY FOR HOURS--AND THEN HAVING TO SEE IT ALL OVER AGAIN. YOU GIVE UP, KNOWING THERE WILL BE OTHER SHOWS.

FOR THOSE WHO DO WATCH THERE IS A MORBID SPLENDOR ABOUT THESE NIGHT RAIDS.

YOUR FEELINGS ARE MIXED. FOR SHORT PERIODS YOU FEEL THAT YOU PERSONALLY ARE THE HUNTED ONE--BUT MOST OF THE TIME IT IS THE FELLOW SOMEWHERE UP ABOVE WHO IS HUNTED.

THE GROUND UNDER YOUR FEET AND THE WALL AGAINST WHICH YOU LEAN TREMBLE AS GUNS SPEAK ABOUT YOU AND THERE SEEM SUDDENLY TO BE LIGHTNING BUGS AMONG THE FLOWERS.

THE DRONING BEE UP THERE IS THE HUNTED THING NOW AND YOU BELONG WITH THOSE WHO ARE STALKING IT.

DISCRETION COMES TO YOU WHEN THE STALKS AND BLOSSOMS ARE ALL ABOUT YOU AND YOU LOOK UP INTO A CONE OF LIGHT AND HEAR THE BEE ALMOST DIRECTLY OVERHEAD.

THE ILLUSION OF A GARDEN VANISHES.

YOU KNOW TOO WELL THERE IS NO BEE, BUT A NAZI BOMBER READY TO DEAL DEATH.

IF THEY START THE ACK-ACKS GOING, THERE IS A GOOD CHANCE THAT IN HIS TWISTING DIVE TO GET OUT OF RANGE HE MAY HAVE TO JETTISON HIS BOMB LOAD AT YOUR FEET.

SO YOU SEEK SHELTER A MOMENT UNTIL YOUR EARS TELLS YOU THE PLANE IS CIRCLING OVER ANOTHER PART OF THE CITY OR A SCRUNCH DISCLOSES HE THINKS HE HAS FOUND AN OBJECTIVE AND DROPPED A BOMB...ANOTHER...TWO MORE.

Petain Regime Begins "Three-Year Plan" For Reconstruction

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 27—The Vichy Cabinet tonight annulled a law which forbids newspaper attacks on any person on account of his religious beliefs.

No details were given on this important step regarding racial and religious questions in unoccupied France. A communique after a Cabinet meeting said the annulment decree had been signed and would be promulgated tomorrow in the official journal.

Observers viewed today's action as the first official step directed against Jews.

Jewish Influences Assailed

The law had been in force since April 21, 1939. Despite this statute newspapers recently have assailed "Jewish capitalistic" influences over France's former governments.

There had been no open official action, however, against Jews or any religious group in unoccupied France.

Meanwhile, numerous changes in the French diplomatic service were announced today as a result of Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin's "rejuvenation" process through which fifteen of twenty diplomats holding ministerial rank have been retired.

American's Son Promoted

Jean De Castellan, son of the American-born Duchess of Talleyrand, the former Anna Gould, and recently secretary of the London Embassy, was among those promoted to the rank of minister. He will be assigned a new post immediately.

De Castellan assumed charge of the London Embassy during the critical July days following the British round-up of the French fleet which led the two nations to sever diplomatic relations.

Other appointments included Georges Picot, present counselor of the embassy in Mexico City, transferred to an unspecified post as minister, and G. Helouis, as Minister to Colombia.

Favors Younger Men

Baudouin explained his intent was to make way for younger men in higher posts "in keeping with the spirit of the new France."

Coincidentally the Government launched a vigorous "three-year plan" for reconstruction of war damage and modernization of her communications system.

One appropriation of 5,000,000,000 francs (the franc has a nominal value of about 2 cents) has been set aside to buy locomotives, rolling stock and electrification of certain main-line railways.

Rail Lines Repaired

The Petain Government said rail lines in such German-occupied places as Bordeaux and Paris and several others in the north and east already have been repaired by the Germans.

These informants said shipyards have resumed operations in Rouen, Caen, Cherbourg, La Rochelle, Bordeaux, Bayonne, Sette and Marseille, despite British bombings.

1,600,000 Have Already Gone Back to Occupied Area

Reich Radio Tells of New Invasion Tactics.

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—The German radio reported today that a squadron of German bombers, all new Dorniers, invaded England today flying low—at times only six feet above the ground—in a successful departure in tactics to avoid anti-aircraft fire.

The bombers destroyed seven hangars and a barracks on an airdrome near London, and shot down seven British fighting planes in a battle, the wireless said.

The planes brushed over trees and hedges and the crew of one brought back leaves from an English tree which the plane struck.

The attack on the airdrome took the English completely by surprise, said a German war reporter who took part in the flight.

"Bits of timber from living quarters, steel helmets and uniforms and human bodies were hurled pell mell through the air," the wireless declared.

The German flight captain was killed in the battle, it added, and many German fliers were wounded.

PARIS, Aug. 24 (via Berlin—Delayed) (AP).—With an audience which included many German army men and their families, the Paris Opera tonight gave its first performance since the occupation—Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust."

To meet the 11 o'clock curfew law, the opera opened at 6 p. m. and ended at 10:30.

Few of the women wore evening gowns, and except for the many German army uniforms and the black uniforms of a group of Spanish Falange members, most of the men wore business suits.

The famous old opera house was sold out for the performance, but there was no attempt to recreate the old atmosphere of gayety.

The applause was mild.

GOLD OF BELGIUM ON DEPOSIT HERE

Credits Are Frozen Under Embargo Order.

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (A. P. via Radio).—Gold reserves of the Belgian National Bank now are on deposit in the United States, England, France and South Africa, the German radio quoted the bank's governor today in a dispatch from Brussels.

The explanation was given at a meeting of bank directors in reply to a demand of a national Flemish Senator who declared the 21,700,000,000 gold francs held before Belgium became involved in the war "have almost completely disappeared."

(The last quotation for Belgian gold francs, suspended since the German invasion, was five gold francs for each belga, which had a value of 16.56 cents, making the gold franc's value approximately 3 2-5 cents.)

"The gold was sent abroad by order of the former government of Premier Hubert Pierlot," Gov. Jansson said. He added that the credits in the United States were frozen by the embargo order of President Roosevelt.

Since June 25 the Belgian Exchequer has had no gold at its disposal, Jansson said. Up to that time he disclosed the bank had handed the former Government more than 325,000,000 gold francs and more than 1,500,000,000 gold francs to the Bank of France for exchange in Belgian bank notes.

"Part of the latter sum might yet be saved, although the hope is small in view of credits probably advanced to the former Government by the British and French exchequers," Jansson said.

Reports Food Low in Nazi Camp

Released American Ambulance Driver Says Prisoners of War Get Scant Rations.

GENEVA, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—"Short on food and water but long on entertainment" is the description given by an American here today of a German internment camp where he had been held for three months.

The former prisoner is Alfred Raymond of Chicago, one of the organizers of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps which served with the French Army.

Mr. Raymond and three comrades—Murray Shipley of Cincinnati, Louis Wahrle of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Marcus Clark of Hollywood, Cal.—were released from the camp, near Dresden, last Friday and reached Geneva yesterday. They had been prisoners since being captured at Montcomet, in the north of France, on May 17, last.

Almost Always Hungry.

"Our camp, which was divided into three parts, contained 18,000 French, Polish and Belgian officers and men," Mr. Raymond said, and added that the entire camp depended for its water supply on a town of 6,000 inhabitants and that the water therefore was limited.

"We were seldom thirsty," he continued, "but almost always hungry.

"Daily rations were a fifth of a loaf of bread, small rations of soup, one vegetable and sometimes coffee. That wasn't enough for active men, but I suppose the Germans were doing the best they could.

School Is Organized.

"Our section of the camp held 6,000 Frenchmen, who, with German help, organized an elaborate educational program which developed into a virtual university.

"We had lectures by French officers who in civil life were experts in their fields—ranging from business management to architecture.

"One of the largest classes was the English language class."

Mr. Raymond said that the Germans apparently were speeding up delivery of mail to prisoners, although "naturally everything is censored."

All the prisoners pooled what parcels they received in letters from [illegible] into a bulletin which was [illegible] at each night's assembly, he

DEFENSE BOARD SITS IN OTTAWA

Joint Group Settles Down to Its Task in Canada.

NO MINORITY REPORTS

LaGuardia Says Problem and Objective Are Common.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 27 (A. P.).—A pledge of a united front by the Canada-United States Permanent Joint Defense Board against foreign aggression in the Western Hemisphere was advanced today by Mayor LaGuardia of New York, chairman of the United States section.

"I can assure you," the New York Mayor said in an interview, "there will be no minority report from the board."

The board, appointed by governments of the two countries to study mutual defense method[illegible] opened deliberations here yesterd[illegible] under the joint chairmanship of Col. O. M. Biggar and Mayor LaGuardia. It resumed sittings this morning.

The United States chairman declared the problem, so far as his Government was concerned, boiled down to whether strategic points in the Western Hemisphere are to be used as bases for offensive operations by potential enemies or as bases for hemispere defense.

Using Plain English.

"We got right down to work and we used plain English," he said. "We decided at once to abandon the complex and involved language of diplomacy and to get down to real issues."

"So far as the United States is concerned," Mr. LaGuardia said, "we have a common problem and a common objective, and the whole problem boils down to this: In the face of existing conditions and what we have learned of modern warfare, whether or not strategic points on the Western Hemisphere are to be taken as bases for offensive operations by potential enemies, or if these strategic points are to be used as outposts of defense of the Western Hemisphere.

"That is our problem. Our board is composed of many officers of the services, men who are experienced and who are realistic. Your Col. Biggar is a man after my own heart—a man of action and determination.

Of One Mind on Defense.

Asked if it was proposed to set up any uniform standards of equipment as between Canada and the United States, the Mayor replied: "We are uniform in one respect. We do not expect that any foreign Power will ever obtain a foothold on the Western Hemisphere."

The board realizes, Mayor LaGuardia said, that "time is of the essence." It will probably conclude the first stage of its studies Wednesday and adjourn, but he said this was not a temporary job. The board is permanent and will carry on until the defense problem no longer exists. It will engage technicians as advisers and will meet from time to time either in Ottawa or Washington.

If circumstances indicate the necessity, the board will travel to sites proposed for joint defense operations, but this, and such questions as a long rumored United States military highway through Canada to Alaska, would be details not to be discussed publicly.

U. S. MAIL SHIPS SUBMIT TO CONTROL

Stop At Bermuda "Might Be Condition" Of Blockade Navicert

American Export Lines Say British Removed 524 Sacks From Excambion

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 27—American carriers of mail between the United States and Lisbon are stopping at Bermuda—and thus subjecting virtually all European mail to British censorship—because of Britain's orders that they must submit to her blockade, it developed tonight.

At the same time the American Export Line announced that British censors at Bermuda removed 524 sacks of mail from the Excambion when she called at the island port last Saturday en route to Lisbon.

The line said 620 sacks of mail previously taken from other ships of the line were placed aboard the Excambion. The seizure raised the total of sacks taken in the past three weeks to 1,366.

British consulate officials here said a stop at Bermuda "might be one of the conditions" under which a navicert—in effect a ship's passport through British contraband control—would be issued to an American vessel. They denied, however, that they demanded that American shippers agree to censorship of mail cargoes as a prerequisite to the issuance of the certificates.

Chosen Over Gibraltar

In Washington, British Embassy officials said they had told the American Export Lines, only United States operator of surface ships plying between this country and Lisbon, Portugal—the only European outlet open to American ships—that they would have to submit to the blockade at some point, and explained the company had picked Bermuda in preference to Gibraltar or other ports.

The official of the line, discussing censorship and his company's action, said:

"It's a control. We've got to recognize it. After all, the United States Government has permitted the mail to be taken off the clippers for the past year. . . ."

He said also he had received information that the British were issuing clearances "under certain conditions," these being that the ship clear for a British port, and cited one instance of a Greek steamer which could not obtain a navicert until it had first discharged its cargo of mail for Europe.

"Suppose a ship started from Lisbon without a navicert and was overhauled by a British contraband patrol," he said. "What do you suppose would happen to that ship?"

Postal Officials Silent

Postal authorities in Washington declined today to disclose how much United States-bound mail had been taken aboard at Lisbon by the American Export Lines since August 1, the amount taken off at Bermuda by censors, or the amount which finally reached the United States. They declined similar information on the Pan American Airways' clipper ships.

From the clippers and surface vessels, hundreds of sacks of mail have been removed at Bermuda in the past eighteen days—1,366 pouches during the last three weeks from Export Line ships alone.

Pan American some months ago instructed its pilots to avoid Bermuda, but the last five consecutive west-bound flights of its clippers halted there because, company officials said, of strong headwinds which ate up gas supplies. Of nine west-bound flights since August 1, six halted at Bermuda and the mails have been removed for censorship.

Utterly Untrue, Charge

L. H. Leach, British consul in charge of commercial activities, described as "utterly untrue" reports that the two American firms had been told they must agree to censorship at Bermuda.

"We simply say to a ship that is carrying mail or passengers, 'you cannot have a navicert—except under certain conditions,'" Leach explained, "but, if, for instance, a ship were to make a British port a stop en route, that might be one of the conditions and the ship would receive a navicert."

Leach agreed that American ships—or vessels of any other neutral nation—would be subject to censorship of mail cargoes if they halted in a British port.

A ship without a navicert—which certifies its cargo has been examined and passed by British authorities—under British interpretation could be halted on the high seas by the British contraband patrol and taken to the nearest control point for examination.

"Of course, I have no doubt there are some who would not wish it," Leach observed, "but, after all, there is a war, you know."

NYE CHARGES U. S. GAVE WAR SIGNAL

Says in Letter to The Times We 'Sold Out England and France' by Promise of Aid

TAKE" JAY J.E

DOUBTS PERIL OF HITLER

AUG 28 1940

Quotes Times Military Writer in Support of His Retort to Editorial Criticism

AUGUST 28

THE NEW YORK TIMES has received the following letter from Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota:

Washington, Aug. 27, 1940.

To the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES:

The New York Times in an editorial this morning entitled "Mr. Nye Finds It Funny," redicules me for allegedly having ridiculed the idea that Mr. Hitler could successfully invade the continental United States.

This if the matter were not so deadly serious, would indeed be funny, inasmuch as one of my authorities for my belief that Mr. Hitler would find such a program distinctly difficult if not, indeed, impossible, is the military expert of THE NEW YORK TIMES itself, Mr Hanson W. Baldwin.

Mr. Baldwin has said, and I have quoted him, thus:

"The maximum initial force that could be transported (from Germany to the United States) even if control of the sea were wrested from us, would not be much larger than 50,000 men.

The transportation of such a force would require 375,000 tons of shipping, perhaps forty ships, about the largest force that could conveniently be convoyed in a single operation.

"To supply such a force might require from 650,000 tons of shipping to two million tons monthly; in other words, perhaps half of the tonnage of the German merchant marine would have to be devoted solely to the job of supplying 50,000 soldiers. If this force were to be doubled, the shipping tonnage necessary would be doubled; to supply an army of one million men would require at the very least 13,000,000 tons of shipping.

"Economically and commercially, the problem seems impossible; not even Britain or a combination of Britain and Germany has sufficient shipping to divert such an enormous amount of it from their ordinary and vital trade routes to military purposes."

As to a Signal for War

So said Mr. Baldwin, THE TIMES's own expert, but THE NEW YORK TIMES has, perchance conveniently forgotten about it, just as conveniently as it forgets to add that when it quotes me predicting about a year ago that there wasn't going to be a war in Europe, that I added that there wouldn't be unless the United States gave the signal to go. Which I am confident it did, and I think history will show that the Administration gave England and France reason to believe that if they would declare war on Germany, help would be forthcoming.

I am not afraid to believe that some day history will show, as one of the blackest marks of our time, that we sold out, by deliberate falsification, the two European nations with which we had the closest ties. We sent France to her death and have brought England perilously close to it. Had they stalled Hitler for a while, while they prepared to meet him, the story might have been different. Instead they plunged into it, unready as they were.

But THE NEW YORK TIMES is anxious for national defense; no more so than am I, however. But it can see only conscription as the way to get it. I see conscription as a poor way to get it, but worse than that, the beginnings of a regimentation here which will have THE NEW YORK TIMES eventually suffering from the very kind of dictatorial power to which newspapers have been subjected in Europe.

Calls Conscription a Subterfuge

Conscription is a subterfuge, a complete subterfuge, a political subterfuge, and the Congress knows it. If it were anything else but that, the issue would have been disposed of in a week.

THE NEW YORK TIMES would like a better Army. So would I. Will it go along with me in an attempt to get one by means at our command already which do not involve blasting our own democracy and mimicking Hitler to stop a fear of Hitler? Will it go along a step further and caution Washington against more of the kind of foreign policy that has made hateful people abroad of those we ought to have as friends?

I am flattered and delighted at the personal attention of THE NEW YORK TIMES in devoting its lead editorial of virtually a column length to me, but not because of the personal advertising it gives me.

Asks Why the Attention to Him

I am flattered and delighted only because it indicates that there must be a great many people who think as I do whom THE NEW YORK TIMES is having a difficult time converting to its way of thinking, If the Administration and its foreign policy spokesman, THE NEW YORK TIMES, are so certain that the great majority of people agree with them, why all this attention to a single individual?

Were I on the other side of the fence and enjoying the confidence which THE NEW YORK TIMES and the Administration exude, I would ignore such trifling hecklers as myself. If I and others who have cautioned against intervention in foreign affairs, who have fought determinedly every step toward war, are in such terrific minority, why are we worth bothering about?

Evidently our thoughts are being entertained by many Americans who don't like this march to war.

Proposal to Bar Peacetime Draft Beaten in Senate

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP). — The Senate beat back a concentrated drive to strip the peace-time draft bill of its essential provision tonight, rejecting an amendment which would have made conscription operative only in time of war or after a Congressional declaration that the Nation was in peril of war or of invasion. The roll call vote was 54 to 29, and was received by the opposition as a test of the bill's passage.

The proposal was advanced by Senator Walsh (D.-Mass.), shortly after the dinner hour as the Senate headed into a long night session forced by Administration leaders in an effort to expedite final passage.

For nearly eight hours an unforeseen outburst of oratory, to which both sides of the controversy contributed, had prevented any action on several amendments that awaited disposition before a final vote could be taken.

Late in the evening, Democratic Leader Barkley succeeded in obtaining unanimous consent to a debate limitation which leaders of both sides believed would bring a final vote passing the legislation and sending it to the House tomorrow. Under its stipulations, no Senator may speak more than once nor longer than 30 minutes on the bill, or for more than an aggregate of 15 minutes on any amendment or substitute.

Then, just before recessing until 11 a. m., the Senate rejected, 55 to 22, a substitute by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) authorizing a voluntary army training corps of 1,500,000 enlisted men and eliminating the conscription principle.

In the late afternoon President Roosevelt emphatically reiterated his demand that talking be ended and action taken so that other important bills—a $5,008,000,000 appropriation measure for the Army and Navy, and the Excess Profits Tax Bill—might receive consideration. In his first appeal last week he called for prompt action so that there might be no undue delay in building up the Army.

'Issue Is Plain'

Walsh said his amendment provided that "No person shall be inducted into the Army, except by voluntary enlistment, unless and until Congress declares war or declares that the United States is threatened with invasion."

He explained that it would not delay the registration of prospective drafters between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, but only postpone the actual conscription pending the contingencies he enumerated.

This, he said, was an answer to the charges of those who had said that opponents of the bill wanted to delay the defense program.

"The issue is plain," Walsh shouted. "Shall we pass a bill that not only fixes and establishes registration of eligibles and the actual drafting of them or shall we omit them and postpone the act of conscription until Congress acts on either one of two alternatives."

Barkley Opposes

Senator Adams (D.-Colo.) inquired whether a vote against the Walsh amendment would not be a vote in favor of peace-time conscription and Walsh readily agreed.

Meanwhile, the House Military Affairs Committee decided to limit to 1,000,000 the number of men who might be ordered to training in the land and naval forces at any one time.

SUB-MINE DANGER FOUND GREATEST

Under-Sea Boats Account For 219 Ships And Mines 179 Out Of 825 Total

Planes Credited With 117 Sinking, While Warships Claim Only 45

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 27—The submarine and the mine far surpass the plane as a weapon of destruction on the sea, a recapitulation of the sinking of 825 ships during the current war showed today.

AUG 28 1940

Shipping records of many nations and agencies, show that submarines accounted for the loss of 219 ships; mines for 179 and planes for 117.

Warships were credited with sinking forty-five ships, a comparatively small number, due possibly to the lack of any real large naval battle.

Thirty-Nine Scuttled

Forty-four vessels were sunk by "explosion"—mine or torpedo.

German and Italian ship masters scuttled thirty-nine ships, including the liner Columbus, 32,581 tons, largest merchant marine loss of the war to date.

Thirty-nine ships are listed as "overdue—presumed lost with all hands." Scores of ships disappeared during the last World War in this fashion, many of them during short voyages between European ports.

123 From Unknown Causes

ne German pocket battleship Graf Spee sank nine vessels before British warships drove her into Montevideo harbor, forcing her commander to scuttle the ship.

No cause was listed for the loss of ninety-five ships, including twenty-eight British and French vessels lost in the evacuation of Dunkerque.

Other Causes—Collisions, twenty-nine; coastal batteries, five; unnamed Nazi raider, two; torpedo boats, two; disputed, one.

Azores, Canary Coup?

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 27—The Italian wireless broadcast a report from Bern, Switzerland, today that Britain was "planning a coup on the Azores and Canary Islands," in the Atlantic.

(Spain owns the Canary Islands, Portugal the Azores.)

The Italian announcer, heard here by CBS, said Britain regarded the island groups as trump cards to be played should complications arise in the Mediterranean and southern Europe.

SECOND SHERWOOD APPEAL BY RADIO

Playwright Urges U. S. to Work With Britain.

For the second time in as many days Robert E. Sherwood, the American playwright, last night broadcast an appeal for American co-operation with Great Britain in the fight against Hitler and advocated the immediate merger of this country, Great Britain, Canada, Ireland, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

6 28 1940

Mr. Sherwood's brief address on the subject was in support of a series of radio broadcasts called "The Hour for Union Now," created by an organization named for "Union Now," a work by Clarence K. Streit, the writer, who was on the program with Mr. Sherwood last night. Mr. Sherwood was heard last night from Station WMCA in New York, whereas the previous night the playwright spoke only to Canadian listeners through the National Broadcasting Company's Canadian facilities.

"Sending fifty destroyers at once to Britain," Mr. Sherwood said over WMCA, "voting $10,000,000,000 defense programs, conscripting millions of men, organizing hemisphere defense with Latin American countries and Canada, these measures are all to the good, but they are not nearly good enough

30.24-4581

"All put together these excellent measures do not give up even the first essential we need. They give us Americans no guaranty against invasion and defeat. For they all leave the door wide open to the danger of a separate British peace giving Germany and Japan control of the ocean ways to America while our navy, army, aviation and hemisphere defense are still a-borning."

10,015 Planes on Order, F. D. Replies to Critics

AUG 26 1940

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today that 10,015 combat and training planes were being built for the Army and Navy. His statement was a personal reply to Congressmen contending aircraft purchases were lagging.

While he acknowledged that Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) was correct when he stated recently that only 343 combat ships had been ordered in the past 100 days, the President declared that the Senator's implication was dead wrong.

Contracts Placed

Army and Navy contracts had been placed, Mr. Roosevelt said, for 6,361 planes. An additional 3,654 were being manufactured, he continued, under "letters of intention," which were given to the manufacturers pending the signing of formal contracts after Congress settles defense tax questions.

The President added that he could not order more planes until Congress passed the $5,008,000,000 Defense Appropriation Bill now awaiting Senate action. That bill, he said, contained much the larger part of the aircraft appropriations.

Report to F. D. R.

The President said he did not know how many of the planes which had been ordered were purchased before the Defense Commission was created May 28.

The Commission reported to the President yesterday that the number of planes under contract was 6,747. Subsequently, Stephen Early, White House press secretary, announced that the Chief Executive had asked the Commission for a report explaining variations in Government plane figures.

Mr. Roosevelt said the figures which he gave to his press conference were prepared by John D. Biggers, Deputy Commissioner of the Defense Commission and chief assistant to William S. Knudsen, the Commission's production chief.

Babs to Register As a Foreigner

AUG 26 1940

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 27 (AP).—Preparing to register as an alien in her native land, Countess Barbara von Haugwitz-Reventlow today said: "The day on which I become an American citizen again will be the happiest day of my life."

The Countess, who renounced her American citizenship in 1935 to wed a Danish Count whom she has since divorced, said in a newspaper interview she would "comply with the letter and spirit" of the law requiring her to register. She was born Barbara Hutton.

"I love America. I am grateful to have the privilege of living in America, the last citadel of true freedom," she said.

"I have taken steps toward the restoration of my citizenship, and as soon as I have regained it I will treasure it as my most precious possession."

Communiques of Belligerents

British

LONDON, Aug. 27 (AP).—A communique of the Air Ministry and Home Security Ministry:

Enemy air activity has been very slight today. Several small formations appeared over the channel coast, but only a few aircraft penetrated inland. Three of them were shot down by our fighters.

Up to 6 p. m. the only bombs reported to have dropped fell on the foreshore in the Isle of Wight. They did no damage and caused no casualties.

Full reports of yesterday's actions show that one more enemy aircraft was destroyed by our fighters, making forty-seven in all. In addition to the four pilots whose loss has been announced, we also lost two air gunners yesterday.

An Air Ministry communique:

Yesterday R. A. F. bombers made daylight attacks on enemy airdromes. The scope of these attacks was greatly extended last night. Twenty-seven airdromes in Germany, Holland, Belgium and enemy-occupied France were bombed.

Over Nivelles (Belgium) airdromes, one of our bombers returning from Germany shot down an enemy bomber returning from England.

Apart from attacks on Italian objectives, the main strength of our bomber force last night was directed against the synthetic oil plant at Leuna, west of Leipzig, and the oil depot at Frankfurt. At Frankfurt an aircraft factory was also attacked, and at Greisheim, on the outskirts of the city, an explosives factory was heavily bombed. At Hoechst, Cologne and Leipzig various objectives were attacked, and supply depots at Hamm and Schwerte were also bombed.

From these widespread operations, which continued throughout the night, all but one of our aircraft returned safely. Another is missing from a daylight raid.

An Air Ministry announcement:

Industrial targets in northern Italy were again successfully attacked last night when, for the fifth time in a fortnight, R. A. F. bombers made the double journey over France and the Alps.

The objectives on this occasion were the Societa Aernautica Italia Fiat Works at Turin and the Magneto Marelli factory, which makes ignition generators, and Sesto San Giovanni, near Milan. The raiders arrived over these factories just before 12:30 a. m. In the next forty minutes they dropped some six tons of bombs.

The log of one pilot who made three attacks on the Marelli works states: "Weather hazy. No clouds. Visibility showed up target to advantage. First stick of bombs started four fires and two large explosions. Second stick caused bright blue and white explosions. Third stick caused fourteen fires in a line."

Another pilot arrived ten minutes later. He had had an exciting journey for his oxygen supply diminished when he was over the Alps and he was able to obtain very little while flying three miles up. He carried on, however, and got over safely.

Fires already were burning at Sesto San Giovanni and a great cloud of white smoke which was drifting upwards to nearly 6,000 feet guided him to the target. The moon was covered by a layer of high clouds and there was haze partly shrouding the factory, but he made his attack and his bombs caused new fires on the west side of the works.

The Fiat works at Turin were also set on fire early, and guided later arrivals promptly to the scene. One pilot who made a ten-minute attack observed explosions for some time after he had left.

Bombs from another aircraft were dropped on the southern end of the target.

While these attacks were being made, two Italian fighters appeared, but did not interfere with the proceedings.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 27 (AP).—A British naval communique:

During the night of Aug. 23-24 our naval forces attacked the Italian harbor at Bardia, where there were troop concentrations, and the seaplane base at Bomba (also on the Libyan coast). Both places were successfully bombarded, and at Bardia our forces penetrated into the harbor and engaged targets at point-blank range. Our ships suffered no casualties.

German

BERLIN, Aug 27 (AP).—The German high command communique:

German flying units again raided airports and troop concentrations in southern England, as well as the naval base at Portsmouth.

The radio station on the Scilly Islands was destroyed.

Three convoyed merchantmen sustained heavy bomb hits north of Fraserburgh.

In the course of fighting, several air battles developed which the Germans won.

Last night larger fighting plane units carried out attacks on the Plymouth naval base, the Cornwall airport and Coventry and Birmingham airplane works, as well as port facilities at Hull and Newcastle. Fires and explosions were started by numerous bombs dropped, especially at Plymouth and Hull.

British planes last night dropped bombs at several points in the Reich's territory. Damage was unimportant. Two civilians were killed and eight injured.

The enemy's total losses yesterday were seventy planes, sixty-one shot down in air fights and nine on the ground. Twenty-one of our own planes are missing.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

In north Africa mechanized equipment at Bir Sceferzen and barracks at Sidi Barrani were bombed by our aviation.

An enemy convoy escorted by warships was repeatedly bombed by our air formation in the eastern Mediterranean.

In east Africa an attempted air raid on Asmara (Eritrea) failed because of the quick reaction of our defense. Enemy planes dropped their bombs in open country without causing damage. Our pursuit planes shot down one plane.

The enemy, once more coming over Switzerland, made air raids on various provinces in northern Italy. Opposed by violent air and anti-aircraft reaction, the raiders were able to drop only a few bombs on Turin, where the building of the Fiat factory and the San Luigi Sanatorium were hit. In Pavia province two small farmhouses in open country were damaged, a farmer was killed and another seriously injured.

An enemy airplane was hit by fire of the 27th Battery of Milan anti-aircraft artillery and fell in flames near Valera, in the Commune of Arese. Five men composing the crew were killed.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

THAT WAS RATHER A SURPRISING STATEMENT BY THE SEMI-OFFICIAL DIENST AUS DEUTSCHLAND OF BERLIN WHICH CHARACTERIZED ALL THAT HAS HAPPENED THUS FAR IN THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN AS "PRELIMINARIES."

THE PRELIMINARIES AT LAST ARE FINISHED, SAYS DIENST NAZIDOM HAS ACHIEVED AIR SUPREMACY OVER ENGLAND, AND "NOW BEGINS THE PLANNED DESTRUCTION OF INDUSTRIAL PLANTS ESSENTIAL TO WAR."

NOBODY BUT THE SPONSORS OF THIS STATEMENT KNOW WHETHER IT IS A "BUSINESS DOUBLE" OR JUST ANOTHER PIECE OF PROPAGANDA IN THE WAR OF NERVES. CERTAINLY IT FINDS SUPPORT IN THE HEAVY NAZI RAIDS OVER THE INDUSTRIAL AREA OF THE ENGLISH MIDLANDS THE PAST TWO NIGHTS. HOWEVER I TAKE THE LIBERTY OF BELIEVING THAT DIENST COULD HAVE GIVEN US A MUCH MORE ILLUMINATING VIEW OF THE POSITION HAD IT BEEN PERMITTED TO DO SO.

NOT FOR ONE MOMENT DO I DOUBT THAT THE NAZI AIRDROMES ARE CAPABLE OF UNLEASHING MANY TIMES THE HELL WHICH ALREADY HAS BEEN RAINED ON THE BRITONS IN THE "PRELIMINARIES" SINCE THE DIRECT ATTACK STARTED ON JUNE 18, MORE THAN TWO MONTHS AGO. THERE IS NO DOUBT, EITHER, THAT HERR HITLER INTENDS TO EMPLOY THIS VAST AERIAL POWER AND--IF IT PROVES FEASIBLE--TO ACCOMPANY IT BY INVASION.

STILL, IN MY VIEW THE WARFARE WHICH HAS BEEN GOING ON HAS BEEN MORE THAN SPADE WORK. THE FUEHRER SET OUT FOR A QUICK KILL--AND MORE THAN TWO MONTHS IS A LONG TIME FOR A MAN IN A HURRY. IN SHORT, IT STRIKES ME THAT CIRCUMSTANCES OVER WHICH HITLER HAS HAD NO CONTROL HAVE HAMPERED HIS BLITZKRIEG PLANS AND NULLIFIED SOME OF HIS OPERATIONS.

AMONG THESE CIRCUMSTANCES WE CERTAINLY MAY LIST THE STRENGTH SHOWN BY THE BRITISH NOT ONLY IN DEFENSE BUT IN OFFENSE, AND THE THREAT OF TROUBLE IN THE BALKANS AT GERMANY'S BACK-DOOR. WE ARE ENTITLED ALSO TO ASK FOR MORE SUPPORT OF THE CONTENTION THAT THE NAZIS HAVE ACHIEVED SUPREMACY OVER THE ENGLISH IN THE AIR.

THAT GERMANY HAS SUPERIORITY IN AIR STRENGTH THERE IS NO QUESTION, BUT "SUPREMACY" IS ANOTHER THING, FOR IT DENOTES CONTROL OF THE AIR. THE GERMAN SUPERIORITY HASN'T PREVENTED PERSISTENT BRITISH RAIDS OVER GERMAN TERRITORY IN RECENT WEEKS ALSO, ONLY YESTERDAY LONDON LISTED 1,101 GERMAN RAIDERS BROUGHT DOWN SINCE JUNE 18, AND MORE THAN 800 SINCE AUGUST 8, WHICH WAS THE FIRST DAY OF THE NAZI MASS ATTACKS. THAT DOESN'T SOUND LIKE GERMAN "CONTROL."

THERE IS ANOTHER ASPECT OF THE BEGINNING OF THIS NEW PHASE OF WARFARE WHICH IS HIGHLY IMPORTANT. THAT IS BOUND UP IN THE PROVERB THAT TIME AND TIDE WAIT FOR NO MAN, NOT EVEN A CONQUEROR LIKE HERR HITLER. HE IS GETTING PERILOUSLY CLOSE TO THE BAD WEATHER SEASON WHICH WILL RENDER MILITARY OPERATIONS MOST DIFFICULT IF NOT IMPOSSIBLE.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN IN THE WAY OF WEATHER AFTER THE BEGINNING OF SEPTEMBER, ALTHOUGH THE FIRST HALF OF THE MONTH GENERALLY IS GOOD. SOMETIMES THE WHOLE MONTH IS ALL RIGHT, BUT OCTOBER MEANS THE START OF BAD DAYS. RAIN, FOG AND WINDS SERIOUSLY HAMPER FLYING,

30.24-4583

30.24-4583

AND THE ALWAYS TRICKY ENGLISH CHANNEL KICKS UP FAR MORE TROUBLE THAN ANY INVADING FORCE WOULD WANT TO DEAL WITH.

ONE OF HITLER'S WORST ENEMIES WILL BE THE FOGS, AND THOSE ARE COMMON OVER THIS WHOLE AREA FROM OCTOBER TO MARCH, INCLUSIVE. AND ENGLISH FOGS ARE THE REAL THING, SOMETIMES BLOTTING OUT EVERYTHING FOR SEVERAL DAYS ON END.

APART FROM THE WEATH... THE CHANNEL ITSELF PRESENTS A FORMIDABLE BARRIER TO INVASION. THIS WHOLE LONG STRETCH OF WATER IS FILLED WITH TIDAL STREAMS WHICH SHIFT AND SQUIRM AND TURN SO THAT ONLY A GREAT EXPERT CAN FIGURE THEM OUT. THE COMPARATIVELY FEW PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABLE TO SWIM THE CHANNEL HAVE DONE SO ONLY THROUGH THE ADVICE OF MEN WHO HAVE SPENT THEIR LIVES STUDYING THE TIDES AND CURRENTS. THE WINDS HAVE CONSIDERABLE EFFECT ON THE TIDAL STREAMS, ESPECIALLY IN THE STRAITS OF DOVER, WHICH ARE ONLY 22 MILES WIDE. TO CAP ALL THIS, THE ENGLISH WATERS CLOSE TO SHORE ARE ONLY A FEW FEET DEEP IN MANY PLACES AND WOULD REPRESENT A TERRIFIC PROBLEM FOR AN INVADING FLEET.

THERE IS STILL A FURTHER CATCH IN THE THING FOR THE NAZIS. IT ISN'T ENOUGH TO BE ABLE TO PICK A FEW DAYS OF GOOD WEATHER FOR THE ATTEMPTED INVASION WITH AN ARMY.

THEY MUST FIGURE THAT ONCE THEY HAVE LANDED IN ENGLAND THEY MUST KEEP BOATS CROSSING THE CHANNEL WITH SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS. THUS THE CLOSER THEY COME TO THE TIME OF SETTLED BAD WEATHER THE GREATER WILL BE THEIR PROBLEM OF INVASION.

THE MOST OPTIMISTIC ESTIMATE OF THE NATION'S ABILITY TO BOOST ITS AIRPLANE OUTPUT--FROM INDUSTRIAL AND NOT ADMINISTRATION SOURCES --UP TO NOW WAS A FIGURE OF 36,000 PLANES A YEAR IN ANNUAL PRODUCTION BY THE SPRING OF 1944.

HERE IS SOME DATA TO BRING THE PROBLEM INTO FOCUS:

INDUSTRY SOURCES ESTIMATE IT WOULD REQUIRE A PLANT INVESTMENT OF $390,000,000 FOR AIRPLANES, PROPELLERS AND ENGINES TO PRODUCE 36,000 PLANES A YEAR.

THE ANNUAL OUTPUT AT THAT RATE WOULD BE WORTH $2,670,000,000. THAT WOULD BE $370,000,000 MORE THAN THE WHOLESALE VALUE OF ALL THE AUTOMOBILES AND TRUCKS PRODUCED IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA IN 1939.

AS AGAINST 100,000 PERSONS EMPLOYED IN ALL PHASES OF AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION TODAY, MORE THAN 500,000 WOULD BE NECESSARY TO TURN OUT 36,000 PLANES A YEAR.

A28

IF ITS RATED CAPACITY OF 12,000 ENGINES A YEAR IS REACHED BY DECEMBER, 1941, THE COUNTRY'S ENTIRE MILITARY ENGINE PRODUCTION WILL BE LITTLE MORE THAN 30,000 A YEAR. AT AN ESTIMATE OF 1.5 ENGINES TO A PLANE--COUNTING MULTIENGINED MACHINES--THAT would equip ONLY 20,000 PLANES.

THE 36,000 PLANES A YEAR PREDICTION BY THE DEFENSE COMMISSION SPOKESMAN INFERS AN ENGINE PRODUCTION OF 54,000 ENGINES, OR THE CONSTRUCTION OF TWO MORE PLANTS OF A SIZE AND CAPACITY EQUAL TO THE ONE NOW PROJECTED IN THE CINCINNATI AREA.

Justice Bureau Inquiring Into Paish's Mission

May Annul Entry Permit if It Finds Him an Emissary of War, as Wheeler Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—A Department of Justice official said today that an investigation would be made of charges voiced in the Senate that Sir George Paish, seventy-two-year-old British economist, came here to try to get the United States into the European war.

If the investigation should reveal that Sir George is here for such a purpose and failed to disclose it in his application for a visitor's permit, this official said, that could be made the grounds for revoking his permit.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, said in the Senate yesterday—and Sir George subsequently denied the charge—that the Englishman had told him in a conversation:

"I am responsible for getting this country into the last war, and I intend to get it into this one."

Senator Wheeler told the Senate today that "we are following exactly" a program outlined to him by Sir George, which included the enactment of selective service legislation and then the sending of fifty American destroyers to England.

Senator Edward R. Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska, co-author of the selective service bill now before the Senate, remarked that if Sir George thought he could persuade Senator Wheeler to support the legislation "then Paish ought to be—as was suggested here yesterday—examined for his mentality."

This prompted Senator James F. Byrnes, Democrat, of South Carolina, to say that Sir George had attempted to see him but that he had refused to talk to the Briton because he thought he had no influence in England.

Senator Wheeler retorted that the only difference between Sir George and other British "propagandists" was that Sir George was "more frank than the rest."

Distinguished Elderly Gentleman.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (A. P.).—A Foreign Office spokesman described Sir George Paish today as an "elderly gentleman with a distinguished past," who is in the United States on private business and "has no authority to speak for his Majesty's Government."

SENATE PASSES DRAFT TRAINING BILL, ALLOWS TAKING OVER INDUSTRY PLANTS

LONDON AND BERLIN BOMBED

Bill Would Let Army or Navy Run Any Factory Balking Arms Orders

Party Lines Crack In 69-16 Decision

Attempts to Defer Call, First in Peace-Time History, All Rejected

Com[illegible]

By Joseph Driscoll

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—After three weeks of historic debate the Senate passed tonight and sent to the House the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill which would make 12,000,000 men between the ages of twenty - one and thirty-one subject to registration for possible military training and service with the Army.

The vote on final passage was 58 to 31.

Included in the bill was a provision permitting the President, through the Secretaries of War and Navy, to conscript industrial and other plants when such action was deemed necessary for the defense program.

Party lines were split on the highly controversial issue, with Democrats and Republicans finding themselves voting against their own party colleagues. The vote was accomplished just before 8 o'clock. The Senate had debated the issue for fourteen days.

The House, with its rules limiting debate, is expected to reach a vote in a week. The House Military Affairs Committee failed to agree today on its own version of the bill, but it is now thought the House may take over the Senate version with only minor changes. After the House has passed the bill, House and Senate conferees will be designated to coordinate their respective bills and to evolve a joint bill for the President's signature. This is assuming, of course, that the House follows the Senate's decision of tonight, which seems likely but is not an absolute certainty.

Both Candidates for It

Tonight's favorable action on the bill was attributed in part to reiterated indorsement of the compulsory training principle by both President Roosevelt and the Republican Presidential candidate, Wendell L. Willkie.

The Associated Press rollcall on the bill was as follows:

Postponement Rejected

The last obstacle to a vote was overcome this evening when the Senate rejected, 50 to 35, the Maloney substitute bill which would have postponed a draft of men until Jan. 7 and made it operative then only if during the next four months the present voluntary recruiting system had failed to provide sufficient enlistments to bring the Army to its full strength.

This substitute was sponsored by Senator Francis T. Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, and was generally regarded as providing the decisive test of the fate of the Burke-Wadsworth bill, whose authors are Senator Edward R. Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska, and Representative James W. Wadsworth, Republican, of New York. Only a week or so ago proponents of the Maloney substitute were claiming victory for it.

The Burke-Wadsworth bill has undergone many revisions since its original introduction. These revisions limit its scope considerably, but they do not affect the major precedent-breaking principle involved—that is, compulsory military service for citizens of the United States in peace time.

Many Would Be Exempt

Although the Burke-Wadsworth bill, as revised and passed by the Senate, would make 12,000,000 men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one subject to registration, the Army does not intend to draft that many for military training. It is estimated that 7,500,000 men would be exempted after hearings before draft boards because of dependent wives or children, physical disabilities, or conscientious objections. Theological students, members of Congress and high government officials also would be exempt, leaving only about 4,500,000 subject to the Army's call.

Over a period of five years the Army plans to call up 3,400,000 of these. These would be called in batches of approximately 800,000 a year and after twelve months' training would be permitted to return to their homes, providing the United States is still at peace. In addition to the 800,000 a year for the Army, the Navy also has tentative plans to draft a comparatively few thousand to augment its forces.

The bill contains provisions designed to guarantee re-employment of trainees in their old civilian jobs after they are mustered out of the Army. If they cannot recover these jobs otherwise, they are entitled to appeal to the Federal courts for justice.

The bill contains a provision raising the base Army pay from $21 to $30 a month, to place it on an equal plane with Navy pay. It is hoped that this will encourage more voluntary enlistments.

Another American precedent was broken when the Senate adopted, by a vote of 69 to 16, the amendment sponsored by Senator Richard B. Russell, Democrat, of George, authorizing the government to commandeer private plants which refused to co-operate in the national defense program.

May Take Over at Once

Under the amendment, any private plant necessary for defense preparations which cannot reach an agreement for its use or operation by the War or Navy Departments would be subject to condemnation proceedings under Federal law. In addition, the government, after filing such proceedings, "may take immediate possession" of the plant and operate it either with its own workers or by contract with private firms.

Senator Russell explained that his amendment, which drew support from Administration spokesmen, "doesn't go so far as to say that the government is going to take over all industry.

"We're going to take over only that part of industry which doesn't co-operate in these times of emergency," he added.

Senator Russell said the inspiration for his proposal came from testimony by Navy officials before Congressional committees that there had been delays in placing some national defense orders because contractors and subcontractors resented statutory limits on the profits they could make. Such delays, he said, were crippling the preparedness campaign.

The vote on the Russell amendment, as reported by The Associated Press, follows:

8 Per Cent Limit on Profits

The Senate adopted, by voice vote, an amendment by Senator Alva B. Adams, Democrat, of Colorado, to limit to 8 per cent the net profits on Army ordnance contracts. Senator Adams contended it would be unfair to draft men and fail to fix reasonable limits on defense contract profits. Administration leaders joined in supporting the amendment on the ground that it would establish uniformity on Army and Navy contracts.

The Administration, while willing to make concessions as to limiting profits and seizing reluctant industries, refused to compromise on its demand for a huge reservoir of man power more than ample to fill the Army's needs.

After accepting the Russell amendment, the Senate rejected, by a close vote of 43 to 41, an amendment by Senator Carl Hayden, Democrat, of Arizona, which would have deferred the application of the draft for sixty days after the principle was written into law, and then would have applied the law only to the number of men actually needed to fill Army quotas. President Roosevelt would have been authorized under the Hayden proposal to call for volunteer quotas of 400,000 men at a time.

Fears Delay Until Election

Opposing the Hayden plan, Senator Barkley remarked cryptically that in all likelihood the compulsory feature of the plan would be held up until "about Nov. 15, after the election." Senator Barkley and other Administration leaders opposed the plan as a move to postpone the emergency procurement of men urgently needed by the Army.

The Senate defeated, 58 to 26, an amendment by Senator Matthew M. Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, which would have postponed compulsory service if, within thirty days of enactment of the law, volunteer enlistments should total 75,000 men; within sixty days, 115,000, and within ninety days, 210,000.

Earlier in the day, the Senate defeated, 55 to 27, an amendment by Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, which would have deferred any draft of man power until and unless Congress declared a state of emergency. This was similar to an amendment offered by Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, which was defeated last night, 54 to 29.

The Senate, by voice vote, defeated an amendment by Senator Ernest Gibson jr., Republican, of Vermont, to prohibit Army officers from holding administrative positions in the government. Senator Gibson, supported by Senator John A. Danaher, Republican, of Connecticut, said the practice of allowing Army officers to serve in government administrative posts was a "dangerous principle."

Senator Rush D. Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia, contributed to the excitement by charging that two "leading New Deal Senators" were conducting a secret poll among Senators to ascertain whether the Senate would vote to declare war on Germany, if so requested by the President. Senator Holt did not name the Senators.

Other developments were:

The White House announces that President Roosevelt had signed the Administration bill, approved by Congress last week, authorizing the President to mobilize 360,000 National Guardsmen and Army reservists for a year's active service with the Army.

President Roosevelt also signed various other bills, the most important of which amends the neutrality law to permit American vessels to enter hitherto barred European combat zones to remove British children to America, provided guaranties of safe conduct are obtained in advance from the belligerent nations. As Germany has intimated that she will refuse such guaranties, application of the new law appears doubtful.

Congress should conserve funds for defense purposes and not waste money on celebrations, President Roosevelt said in vetoing a bill to create an exposition commission to arrange a ceremonial observance of the discovery of the Mississippi River by Hernando de Soto.

Russell Wins Support

The Democratic leader of the Senate, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, supported the Russell amendment to the Burke-Wadsworth bill as a "wise move." So did another Administration spokesman, Senator James F. Byrnes, Democrat, of South Carolina, who remarked that "as long as I'm going to vote to conscript a man, I can't see how I can refuse to conscript a business."

Senator Josh Lee, Democrat, of Oklahoma, who has been demanding that the government draft the country's wealth as well as its man power for national defense, thought the Russell amendment was "very mild" and would "help break the bottleneck that is hindering our defense program."

Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, attacked the amendment as a "most extraordinary provision for the confiscation of property." He added, "If it were necessary in time of war, I'd be in favor of it. But no emerency exists now. Under this proposal, a business built up over a hundred years is wiped out overnight."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg, Republican, of Michigan, and Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, spoke for the amendment. When the vote was taken, Senator Vandenberg was recorded against it. He explained this paradox as follows "Whenever I vote to conscript men, I'll vote to conscript property—but I'm not ready to conscript men."

30.24-4587

As the sharp debate proceeded Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Democrat, of Washington, announced he would vote against the Russell amendment because he felt it would bring about a "complete collapse of our economic system of government."

Senator A. B. Chandler, Democrat, of Kentucky, opposed the amendment on the ground that the government should not "take anything that belongs to the people of the United States unless Congress declares that an emergency exists."

Senator Walter F. George, Democrat, of Georgia, senior colleague of Senator Russell, told the Senate:

"I do not feel that you can conscript man power, wealth and everything else and still stand for peace.

"Don't kid yourselves. Don't try to deceive American people.

"Do you think you are going to make the people think you want peace? We're not in war. You can't escape that fact."

How Draft Bill Would Operate

WHO MUST REGISTER AND HOW—With few exceptions all men who have passed their twenty-first birthday and have not reached their thirty-first birthday must register. This applies to citizens and aliens alike; but aliens will not be subject to draft unless they have declared their intention to become United States citizens. Election officials will conduct the registration, probably fourteen days after final enactment of the bill. It is estimated that 12,000,000 men must register.

EXEMPTIONS—Specifically exempt are active, reserve and cadet members of the Army, National Guard, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard; members of the Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service; officials, but not employees, of the Federal and state governments.

WHO WILL BE DRAFTED AND HOW—The bill permits 900,000 conscripts to be in training at any one time. About 400,000 probably will be drafted this fall. A lottery will determine the order in which men will be called before local draft boards throughout the country. The Army does not intend to call any men who have dependents or who are employed in essential industrial or agricultural pursuits. College students probably will not be drafted. The bill exempts divinity students from service. The Army estimates that after deferments there will be about 4,500,000 ablebodied single men from whom to select. Each state and locality will be given a quota.

APPEALS—Boards will be set up to hear appeals from men who wish to contest their selection by the local draft boards.

PENALTIES—To evade the draft or to assist any one to do so would be punishable by up to five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine, or both.

LENGTH OF SERVICE—One year. This could be extended indefinitely if the country became engaged in war or Congress declared the national interest was imperiled.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS—Exempted from military service, if they can prove to the Department of Justice that their objections are based on legitimate religious scruples.

PAY—For the first four months of their year's training draftees would receive $21 a month. For the next eight they would receive $30, unless they won promotion to higher grades at slightly higher pay.

USE OF CONSCRIPTS—Permitted only in the Western Hemisphere, the United States and its territories and possessions, including the Philippine Islands.

JOB PROTECTION—Conscripts on the Federal government's pay roll would be guaranteed the return of their jobs without loss of seniority.

DEBT PROTECTION—The bill provides a moratorium on tax and insurance charges for which draftees are liable until after their training period.

COST OF PROGRAM—Estimated by Army at $1,000,000,000 annually.

VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENT—Any person between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five may enlist voluntarily for one year.

$327,000,000 VOTED TO AID DEFENSE ROADS

Congress Acts to Improve Highways of the Country

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP)—A $327,000,000 Federal aid highway measure won final Congressional approval today after insertion of a provision giving precedence to highways adjudged vital to national defense.

The measure now goes to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature. The national defeense provision was written in by the Senate and modified by a Senate-House conference committee.

House approval of the conference report, previously approved by the Senate, completed Congressional action.

The bill authorizes an appropriation of $163,500,000 a year for each of the two fiscal years starting July 1, 1941, and July 1, 1942. Of this sum, $100,000,000 a year is for primary highways and the remainder is divided among secondary roads, grade crossings, forest roads, public land and park roads and Indian roads.

SENATE VOTES RIGHT TO SEIZE FACTORIES

Provision Written Into Burke Bill Would Give President Power to Take Over Plants Needed for Defense Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The Senate wrote into the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill today provision for the Government to take over manufacturing plants when necessary for defense purposes.

The vote by which the provision was approved was 69 to 16.

Described by its authors, Senators Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, and Overton, Democrat, of Louisiana, as a prohibition against any possible business "sit-down" against limited profits provided on some items of the defense construction program, the amendment would confer broad powers on the Secretaries of War and Navy.

Under its terms the President would be authorized to direct institution of plant condemnation proceedings whenever either secretary "determines that any existing manufacturing plant or facility is necessary for the national defense and is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of such plant or facility for its use or operation" by the War or Navy departments.

The departments would be empowered to take over the plant and operate it pending court action.

Vote on Amendment.

The vote by which the Senate added to the conscription bill an amendment giving the Government authority to take over industrial plants for defense purposes:

For the amendment (69).

Democrats against—

Brown, Clark, (Idaho), Donahey, Downey, Harrison, Maloney, Smith, Schwellenbach (8).

Republicans Against — Danaher, Gurney, Hale, Reed, Taft, Vandenberg, White, Wiley (8).

The Senate was pushing the conscription bill toward final passage late in the day when the Russell-Overton amendment was reached. It was prepared recently after defense officials told the appropriations committee that some contracts had been delayed because of "profit" considerations by manufacturers.

Senator Wheeler asked why the Senate did not "go the whole way" and "attach a declaration of war to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill."

[President Roosevelt told a press conference yesterday that the Defense Commission had seen no evidence of a sit-down strike by industry.]

Tells of Canvass on War.

Senator Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia, told reporters meanwhile, that he had received information he considered reliable that two pro-administration members were canvassing the Senate to determine whether there was sufficient support to obtain passage of a resolution declaring that a state of war existed with Germany.

The contention might be made, Mr. Holt said he was informed, that a state of war existed because of statements antagonistic to this country made by Hitler and Mussolini. The West Virginia Senator refused to disclose the source of his information or to name the Senators he said were involved.

On the House side the Military Affairs Committee adopted an amendment proposed by Representative Byrns, Democrat, of Tennessee, for the express purpose of "scuttling" the bill, but all the members who would comment were in disagreement as to just what actually was accomplished.

Mr. Byrns, while not explaining how the bill would be scuttled, declared the amendment removed a draft restriction which limited to home defense units conscription of men 18 to 21 and 45 to 64.

Representative Wadsworth, Republican, of New York, said the registration as well as the draft section was altered so that only men between the ages of 21 and 45 had to register and become subject to service.

The Byrns amendment was put orally and there was so much disagreement over it some persons thought it would receive further committee attention.

New Move for Delay Lost.

Supporters of compulsory military training earlier in the day defeated a new effort to defer the conscription program until Congress should declare existence of an emergency.

By a 55 to 27 vote, the Senate rejected an amendment offered to the Burke-Wadsworth bill by Senator Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, which would have permitted immediate setting up of conscription machinery, with registration of men from 21 through 30, but which would have prohibited calling men into service until Congress declared the step necessary.

serve officers would be used in training and organizing a conscript army.

Now that the legislation is signed, Mr. Roosevelt may summon the guard to duty at any time. The army high command, it is reported, has set September 15, tentatively, as the date for mobilization of the first contingent.

55,000 to Be Called First.

That contingent probably will number 55,000 officers and men, but there has been no announcement as to the units from which the men will be drawn. There have been indications, however, that those units probably would be the Thirtieth, Forty-first, Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth.

The September 15 date was agreed upon, some authorities reported, because the army desired to give guardsmen two weeks at home between the end of summer maneuvers and the beginning of the twelve-months' service period. The last maneuvers end August 31.

The guardsmen and reserves called, including also all those summoned to duty in later contingents, may be assigned by the President to serve anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, on American possessions outside this hemisphere and on the Philippine Islands.

Those on active duty will draw pay at the same rates as are prescribed for the regular army—based on $21 a month for enlisted men.

Not All Called Will Serve.

Not all men in all units called will have to serve. The law provides that discharges will be given automatically to all guard members under eighteen years of age. All guardsmen and reserves under the rank of captain who have dependents will be permitted to resign within twenty days after being called to duty.

Roosevelt Signs Guard Bill

Measure Authorizing Call to Active Duty for Year Becomes Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt has signed legislation authorizing him to call out 396,000 members of the National Guard and army reserves for twelve months of active duty.

The White House announced Mr. Roosevelt's action, saying the measure was signed last night.

Congressional action on the Guard legislation finally was completed last week. It was represented to Congress by military experts as an essential preliminary to draft legislation, since the guardsmen and reserve officers would be used in training and organizing a conscript army.

Other sections of the law call for:

Medical examinations—Provided on entry into Federal service and on release, with medical certificate of service illness or injuries to be provided.

Re-employment—Employers re-employ soldier who makes application for re-instatement in job forty days after completing service, unless employer finds it "impossible

MAY DELAY CALLING GUARD FEW DAYS

President's Action Indicated As Awaiting Drafting Of Orders

Archbishop Spellman Has Lunch With Roosevelt At Hyde Park Home

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 28—President Roosevelt, who came to his country estate today to spend the rest of the week, gave no hint as to when he might call the first units of the National Guard to active duty under a bill he signed last night.

There were indications, however, that he might delay action for a day or so to permit the drafting of necessary orders.

Shortly after the President arrived from Washington, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of Catholic Archdiocese of New York, reached the Roosevelt home for luncheon. White House officials had nothing to say about the nature of the visit and said that so far as they knew it was Mr. Roosevelt's only engagement for the day.

Accompanied By Laymen

Accompanied by laymen, Archbishop Spellman, who recently entertained Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, at lunch, last visited the President's home in the capacity of escort to Pope Pius XII, who, at the time, was Cardinal Pacelli, Secretary of State at the Vatican. They were accompanied then by two prominent Catholic laymen, Frank C. Walker, New York businessman, and Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain.

Walker, former Democratic National Committee official, figures conspicuously in speculation about a successor to James A. Farley, whose resignation as Postmaster General becomes effective Saturday. There was a possibility the President would announce the Cabinet appointment before leaving Sunday on a trip that calls for the dedication Monday morning of the Chickamauga Dam, part of the TVA system, dedication of of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park Monday afternoon and an inspection Tuesday of a naval gun and armor plant at West Charleston, W. Va.

Army Prepares to Start Calling Guard Sept. 15

55,000 To Be Mobilized Then, 175,000 More by Dec. 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP).—The War Department plans tentatively to begin mobilization of the National Guard, under legislation signed by President Roosevelt last night, by calling up 55,000 officers and men Sept. 15 for a year of intensive training.

The men, comprising four infantry divisions, four aircraft squadrons and numerous coast artillery units, are expected to enter camp barely two weeks after completion of the last of summer maneuvers on Aug. 31. This would give them a brief period to settle personal affairs.

Tentative War Department plans also call for ordering out 175,000 more Guardsmen by Dec. 1, along with 393,000 conscript soldiers who would be drafted by Dec. 15, should the compulsory service bill become law by that time.

War Department authorities told Congress recently that Guard mobilization was an essential preliminary to the compulsory training program. Conscripts would be trained in the ranks of the Guard and regular army, they explained, rather than as separate units. Congress passed the guard bill last week.

All told, some 386,000 Guardsmen and reservists were made subject to call by the mobilization act which the President signed last night. Included are 110,000 active reserve officers, 30,000 regular army reserves, 3,500 enlisted reserves and 242,708 National Guard officers and men.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, has announced, however, that he intends to call reserve officers to active duty as they are needed on a voluntary basis, as far as possible. More than 10,000 young reserve officers already are serving.

The War Department is proceeding with training plans on the theory that only 220,000 of the 242,708 National Guardsmen ultimately will enter camp.

The act provides for the automatic discharge of Guardsmen under eighteen. Those below the rank of captain who have dependents will be allowed to resign twenty days after being called.

Guardsmen who enter the service will receive a medical certificate showing service illnesses or injuries which they may have acquired upon their release.

Employers will be required by the act to re-employ soldiers who apply forty days after completing service, unless the employers find it "impossible or unreasonable." The law will expire June 30, 1942, unless extended by Congress.

The Guardsmen and reservists may be sent to any place in the Western Hemisphere, to United States possessions outside the hemisphere or to the Philippine Islands.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS REFUGEE SHIP BILL

Vessels May Enter War Zone if Pledges Are Obtained.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Authority for American vessels to enter the European combat zone to bring refugee children to the United States has been signed into law by President Roosevelt.

Under the new act, the vessels may enter war zones otherwise forbidden to American shipping by the neutrality law in order to remove children, provided assurances first are obtained from belligerents that the ships would not suffer any molestation from their armed forces.

Germany has indicated, however, that she may not give such assurances because the ships would be in danger from uncontrolled mines.

The State Department has announced that it is prepared to carry out any steps contemplated under the act, but it has not yet stated specifically that the belligerents will be approached regarding assurances of safe voyages.

Refugee Ships To Await Nazi Safety Pledges

Roosevelt Approves Aid to British Children Only if Belligerents Agree

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP).—Neutrality act barriers against the use of American ships to bring refugee children here from England were removed today, but Germany's attitude and the intensification of the fighting left plans for the children in doubt.

The White House announced that President Roosevelt had signed a measure permitting American ships to enter the European combat zone for this purpose if assurances of safe conduct were obtained from the belligerents.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said the State Department would not act until private relief agencies had made arrangements and had asked for ships to make the voyages. The government, in that event, would ask safe-conduct assurances, he said.

A German Embassy spokesman said his government would examine carefully any request for such assurances and decide solely on the basis of the dangers involved.

A German news agency report last week described the new legislation as "illusory" and asserted that Germany could not grant such assurances. Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, First Secretary at the Embassy, said, however, that this did not constitute an advance answer.

The Marshall Field Committee in New York, one of the principal organizations with which the State Department has been discussing the refugee question, was said to have no immediate plan for sending ships because of the uncertainty of Germany's attitude and the intensified scale of hostilities around the British Isles.

The new act does not limit its application to British children, but that was its main purpose. It provides that the children must be under sixteen years of age.

The author of the measure, Representative Thomas C. Hennings jr., Democrat, of Missouri, estimated 200,000 British children would be brought here if there were ships to carry them.

AIR BATTLES RAGE OVER KENTISH COAST

General Alarm Sounds as Darkness Falls on British Capital—Germans Say They Devastated Flying Field.

LONDON, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—A general air raid alarm was sounded in London tonight.

Darkness already had settled in the city's streets when the sirens wailed shortly before 9 P. M. (4 P. M. New York time), but overhead there were fading tinges of twilight.

Deadly wedges of Nazi bombers rode the high and stormy air lanes of southeast England all day long today, and again and again were fought off before the outer defenses of London.

The Germans struck, too, in other areas of Britain, but it was between the region of Dover and the Thames estuary leading to this capital that their greatest efforts were made.

In a thirty-mile wide corridor alive with shell and flame they centered the offensive, and along the channel coast there occurred the first incident to suggest that the Germans in that offensive were not operating alone.

Italian Parachute Seen.

In the late afternoon a pilot baled out of a crippled attacking plane and as he fell slowly into the channel watchers saw that his parachute was red and white and green, the colors used by Italian flyers.

The British officially announced that the attacks were heavy. They declared that at least twenty-four of the raiders had been shot down, but made no mention of damage. A resident of one southeast coast town said excitedly that German airmen were coming down like snowflakes.

[The Germans declared that an airport at the mouth of the Thames was left in devastation and that in the ensuing encounter eight British and three German planes were destroyed.]

The Germans struck at England methodically. Early in the afternoon two waves of Nazi attackers, one of eighteen and the other of twenty-one planes, broke through the coastal defenses and roared away in the direction of London.

The formations were broken up, the British said, in two engagements, one of which raged for half an hour from Middle Kent to the Thames. The residential section of a town was bombed in that fight and an apartment house was hit, but only three persons were hurt.

Other waves followed at intervals and a dark one Kent town had six times been attacked.

Three high explosive bombs did extensive damage to a southwestern factory in one of the early morning raids.

The first formation of eighteen bombers, with fighter escorts, roared in over Folkestone on the southeast coast and began dropping bombs inland. Spitfires and Hurricanes which engaged them were reported to have shot down two of this group.

One of them, a Messerschmitt, fell in flames inland, blasted by a British fighter. The pilot bailed out and parachuted to a landing in an orchard.

Another Badly Damaged.

In addition to the two raiders shot down, a third was believed severely damaged. This plane, a Messerschmitt 109, was seen heading out to sea, rapidly losing altitude, and appeared so badly hit that it was considered doubhtful that it could reach the French coast.

A coastal barrage balloon was shot down as the raiders turned back.

The eighteen bombers, flying in V-shaped waves, was met by a particularly intensive anti-aircraft fire as they crossed the coast. Shortly afterward a parachute was seen drifting slowly out to sea, indicating a hit on a plane, which by that time had disappeared inland.

The first raiders crossed over Folkestone just before 9 A.M. (4 A. M., New York time).

The British air force in turn attacked military objectives in Germany and enemy-occupied France last night, the Air Ministry announced tonight. One British plane failed to return.

In Germany the targets included the docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven, a transformer station at Kelsterbach near Frankfurt, the Messerschmitt factory at Augsburg, oil tanks and supply depots at Mannheim and several airdromes. In German-occupied France oil tanks in the Gironde Estuary near Bordeaux, at Pauillac near Brest, and at Cherbourg were bombed.

Ten Persons Killed.

At least ten persons were reported killed and one German plane brought down by anti-aircraft in over-night raids which ranged from Scotland to Wales, causing two air raid alarms in London and hitting particularly four towns in the Southeast and Northwest.

Great numbers of incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped, but the government said that damage was done only to houses and that the attacks were "indiscriminate."

In one northeast town four persons, three men and a boy, were killed and a number injured during night and early morning raids. Six houses were demolished in one street and two in another.

WAVES OF NAZI BOMBERS ATTACK CITY FOR 7 HOURS; MANY EXPLOSIONS HEARD

Several Fires Started—Blasts Reported In Heart Of Capital—Incendiary Bombs Dropped. Other Sections Of Country Pounded

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Aug. 29—Roaring waves of German warplanes lashed London overnight with explosive, incendiary and scream bombs in the longest and heaviest air attack of the war against the world's largest city.

The capital was in a state of siege for more than seven hours as the raiders dealt death and destruction on into the pre-dawn hours. The all-clear signal finally was sounded shortly after 4 A. M.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—As always, censorship forbade approximations of destruction and casualties.]

May Be Worst Raid Yet

The Nazis carried their attacks to other parts of the British Isles throughout the night and, when final reports are in, they might prove the worst yet experienced by the British.

The raiders filled London's night with the crash of bursting bombs and the clang of fire engines rushing to blazes started by incendiary bombs.

After six hours of the drumfire of death and destruction, activity slackened a bit. However, Nazi planes were still aloft and the air-raid alarm remained in effect.

Bombers Sent Over In Relays

The continuous sound of German planes at the height of the raiding indicated clearly that the Luftwaffe was sending over relays in greater force than ever before.

Crowds in Piccadilly Circus in downtown London heard the anti-aircraft guns blazing away at the raiders.

As the raid continued, a new series of heavy, shuddering explosions indicated other bombs had found a target somewhere in the metropolitan area.

From One Direction After Another

In mid-London, the crash of bombs was plainly audible from one direction after another.

A continuous series of flashes on the city's eastern horizon—the flashes of falling explosives—was visible from the center of London.

Especially big explosions were heard just as two of the raiders passed over the city.

London's defense was the most spectacular of the war. The greatest concentration of searchlights ever seen here laced the sky with a hundred beams, and anti-aircraft fire resounded throughout the city.

Reports from out-lying sections reaching here clearly indicated that raiding Nazis were over these islands in the hundreds. One raider dropped six high explosive bombs over a northeast town, killing one woman and injuring several persons seriously. Four bombs were dropped in one northwest town and twenty in a southeastern point. The attackers also raided Wales.

Just before midnight four consecutive explosions from bombs were heard in the London area.

A deep, rolling series of heavy explosions was heard in one part of the city after searchlights had pursued a single raider across the sky.

Explosions In Another Sector

There was a few moments of silence, then a second series of explosions rumbled from another sector. Within a few moments there again was silence and Big Ben could be heard chiming the hour of midnight.

For one southwest town upon which bombs fell it was the sixty-second raid of the war.

The horizon blazed with continuous flashes as anti-aircraft batteries apparently turned on full force against the raiders.

Shells could be seen bursting in the beams of the searchlights. Continuous explosions were heard from a northerly direction.

The whole scene was like a multiple thunder storm—with a hail of metal from the anti-aircraft shells.

The raiders approached from the north and some of them shortly were heard to pass southward over the heart of the city. Now and then, a plane was caught in a brief pencil of light from below.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Dispatches on the London raid were received in disconnected fashion and it was obvious that they were subject to heavy censorship.]

Tonight the Germans were ahead of their self-set evening schedule. All the city's sirens howled a little before 9 o'clock, about a half hour earlier than Tuesday night, and they were preceded by a twenty-minute alarm in one outlying London area.

The occupants of one shelter made themselves comfortable in deck chairs, camp beds and armchairs with cushions and pillows which they had carried in with them along with books, chess sets and dart games.

A sweepstakes was started on the probable time the all-clear would sound. Children laughed and played.

24 Nazi Planes Claimed

Just before the alarm the Air Ministry, in a communique, stated that twenty-four German planes had been shot down up to 8 P. M., compared with British losses of twelve fighters.

The same communique said the raiders had tried to penetrate the central defenses all afternoon, but that their only important damage had been to a Thames Estuary town. The morning, also, had witnessed constant attacks in this pathway to London.

In a thirty-mile-wide corridor alive with shell and flame the Nazis centered their offensive, and along the Channel coast there occurred the first incident to suggest that the Germans in that offensive were not operating alone.

In the late afternoon a pilot baled out of a crippled attacking plane and as he fell slowly into the Channel watchers saw that his parachute was red and white and green—the colors used by Italian flyers.

Attack In Two Waves

The Germans struck at England methodically. Early in the afternoon two waves of Nazi attackers—one of eighteen and the other of twenty-one planes—broke through coastal defenses and sped away in the direction of London.

They were split and broken up, the British said, into engagements, one of which roared on for half an hour from middle Kent to the Thames. The residential section of a town was bombed in that fight and an apartment house was hit, but only three persons were hurt.

Other waves followed at intervals and at dark one Kent town had been attacked six times.

In another northeast town a woman was killed when a bomb wrecked her house as she was carrying her baby downstairs to shelter. The infant was injured seriously.

About seventy persons in that town were given temporary accommodation in a girl's school after bombs fell on the housing development where they lived.

One Welsh town was attacked twice in the night. A German bomber was believed to have crashed into the sea after the second raid.

Two of twenty-one German bombers and one of the escorting Messerschmitt fighters were shot down in a series of dogfights over a southeast town.

One German bomber was seen to crash into the sea several miles from land and another was shot down by a Spitfire into the sea after jettisoning its bombs while only fifty feet above water. Two survivors were brought ashore by lifeboats.

Three women were injured by a bomb which hit an apartment building during the fights. Rescuers dug for other casualties.

Streets of the residential section were covered with broken glass and pieces of shell, but the residents had taken shelter.

One house in the London area was demolished by a direct hit from a high explosive bomb. In another part of the metropolis a bomb fell in the roadway in front of a row of houses but did little damage beyond shattering windows.

A single German plane crossed the coastline of Northeast Scotland early this morning and dropped a small high explosive bomb on a building where troops were quartered, killing one soldier and slightly injuring four others. Four other bombs and a considerable number of incendiaries were dropped in the same area.

It was the second successive night of heavy bombing throughout the country, the action far outstripping the daylight attacks of yesterday and approximating that of Monday night, which was the heaviest night assault of the war.

Pounding Is Heaviest So Far.

From an increasing number of communities came reports of individual towns undergoing "the biggest attack of the war" and the widespread use of incendiary bombs was noted.

The bombing was particularly heavy on two town in the southeast of England and at two points in the north of England, it was officially stated, and damage was done to houses and several casualties were caused, "including some persons killed."

A twelve-year-old boy and a nineteen-year-old girl were killed in a garden in a Southeast town, and a woman was killed when a lone plane dropped bombs on a Northeast of English town and headed out to sea under heavy anti-aircraft fire. Before it crossed the coast the raider then dropped several more bombs which fell on a congested residential area, demolishing houses and killing at least two more persons, and it was feared that others were still buried in the debris.

The casualties were lighter elsewhere. The British reported one bomber shot down by anti-aircraft guns on the coast.

Incendiary bombs fell everywhere, but the British reported bringing the fires quickly under control. The Germans have been making increasing use of the gasoline bomb, which consists simply of a drum of gasoline and mechanism to ignite it.

One of these bombs fell in an open space in the center of a southof England town which had its longest alarm of the war. Explosive bombs dropped in the town's residential suburbs.

Incendiary bombs hit two churches in one southeast town and struck homes in another, and fell in flower gardens in a northeast of Scotland town and in an English Midlands town which also had its longest alarm to date.

Railroad Trains Machine Gunned.

One southeast of England area was kept awake for most of the night by intermittent raids, with fire brigades rushing about all night long fighting fires started by incendiary bombs.

At one Midlands point 100 incendiary bombs fell in open country.

One German raider was reported shot down by anti-aircraft fire during the night over Wales.

Two trains were reported machine gunned in the course of the night raids, one a freight and the other a passenger train. No casualties were reported in either attack, although the bullets ripped through the tops of the passenger coaches.

London's two night alarms, short in comparison with the preceding night's record six-hour alarm, found the capital's inhabitants more phlegmatic. An increasing number remained in bed rather than go to an uncomfortable shelter.

Plane Factories Reported Bombed.

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—In its raids on England last night the German Air Force concentrated on the Spitfire airplane works at Birmingham, on Government wharves at Chatham and Southampton and on industrial plants at Derby, authorized German spokesmen said today.

Big fires resulted from the bombing of all these points and at Aberdeen, Dundee, Leeds and Hull, the Germans said.

Activity during yesterday was extremely limited, it was said. Three British planes and one German craft were said to have been shot down.

British Bombers Battle Ice For Attacks On Italy

London, Aug. 28 (AP)—Britain's long-distance bombers, flying through freezing temperatures over the lofty Alps, again dumped heavy explosives on the Fiat motor works at Turin in northern Italy last night, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

One pilot saw two of his high-explosive clusters fall squarely on the main works, the Ministry news service said in an expansion of the communique.

"Later over fifty incendiary bombs were scattered over the target area and within a short space of time a large fire was observed. Half an hour later the fire was still burning fiercely and was plainly visible from a height over 15,000 feet," the service reported.

Magneto Factory Raided

The Marelli magneto factory at Sesto San Giovanni also was raided.

Weather difficulties which will increase with the approach of winter handicapped the bombers roaring with their tons of bombs on a round trip of approximately 1,500 miles.

"Extremely low temperatures caused ice to form on the wings of the aircraft and one bomber became so loaded with this extra weight that it was forced to turn for home without completing its task."

Attacks On Germany

R. A. F. crews also attacked military objectives in Germany and German-occupied France, raiding docks at the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases, a transformer station at Kelsterbach near Frankfurt; the Messerschmitt plane factory at Augsburg, oil tanks and supply depots at Mannheim, and several airdromes.

Oil tanks on the Gironde river mouth near Bordeaux in German-occupied France, at Pauillac near Brest, and at Cherbourg also were bombed.

One British bomber failed to return.

NOTED SUBMARINE POSTED AS MISSING

H.M.S. Spearfish Torpedoed the Scheer in April.

LONDON, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The 670-ton submarine Spearfish, which torpedoed and damaged the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer on April 11, is overdue today and presumed lost, according to the Admiralty. She nominally carried a crew of forty officers and men.

This was the submarine which had a close call last October while raiding Helgoland Bight. On that occasion she was attacked by a German ship and periscopes were blown away and her wireless was wrecked. During the attack her crew held a sweepstakes on which depth bomb would blow her up.

Nazis Fired on Submarines.

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that German coastal batteries fired on two British submarines in the English Channel and probably sank them.

DNB, the official German news agency, said today that the British submarine Sea Lion tried to attack a German convoy yesterday but was run down and battered by a Nazi escort ship.

The news agency said that the escort craft sighted the submarine before it could discharge its torpedoes and, rushing full steam at the undersea raider, tore off both its periscopes. The submarine, it said, then "disappeared."

The Sea Lion belongs to the same 670-ton class as the Spearfish.

Berlin Counts 10 Dead After 3-Hour Raid

30 Injured in Workers' Quarter as British Fly Over City Repeatedly

R.A.F. Attacks Kiel And Wilhelmshaven

Craters 10 Feet Wide, 5 Feet Deep, Blasted in Berlin's Pavements

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (Thursday).—Ten persons were killed and about thirty injured in Berlin early today by British bombs dropped in a raid which kept Berlin under air alarm 2 hours and 54 minutes. It was the longest raid of the war.

All the dead were civilians who lived in a workers' quarter in the southeastern section of the German capital. One woman and a sixteen-year-old girl were among those killed by the bombs from high-flying British raiders, which swept over the city repeatedly.

About a dozen high-explosive and a larger number of incendiary bombs were dropped. Authorities asserted no objectives of military importance were hit.

Writers View Damage

Three American correspondents, including an Associated Press staff man, were rushed about Berlin at dawn to spots damaged by bombs. At their request they also were taken to other places which might have been military objectives.

No damage of any sort was noted at Templehof Airport, where dozens of civilian planes were being warmed up, nor was there any sign of destruction at the great Klingenberg plant, which supplies power to half the city, at other important plants or at railway stations.

The greatest destruction apparently was concentrated in about one city block in Kottbusser Street, a congested district less than two miles from the heart of the city. Here five persons were killed in one house and another in an adjoining building.

In this area 100-pound high explosive and smaller incendiary bombs apparently were dropped simultaneously. One explosive bomb ripped open a roof and the incendiaries, falling into the opening, started fires throughout the building.

Three flats in Kottbusser Street flared up in flames at once.

All persons killed in this street either had been on the sidewalk or in doorways on their way to air raid shelters.

Pedestrians Mowed Down

Two explosive bombs hit the pavement and the fragments, scattering in all directions, mowed down pedestrains and smashed in building fronts.

Hundreds of windows, even in top floors, were shattered for a block in all directions.

The bombs blasted craters ten feet wide and five feet deep out of the hard paving. Although they landed directly over the subway, the tunnel was not damaged. But traffic was stopped temporarily because a "dud" lay half-buried in the asphalt and police feared it might be a delayed-action bomb.

The dead were taken to a neighborhood film [illegible]eater, while Nazi relief organizati[illegible] before daylight had found quarte[illegible]r every one with homes in the [illegible]ed buildings.

Meanwhile [illegible]B., official German news a[illegible] announced that only two P[illegible]omes near the Thames e[illegible]een attacked on Wedne[illegible] Nazi air force The ager[illegible]ited number of plane[illegible] and reported two skirmishes in which only a few planes were downed.

The British raiders arrived over Berlin out of a cloudless sky.

At the end of the first hour of the alarm the drone of motors could be heard in central Berlin, but it was apparent the aircraft still were circling about the western suburbs. Suburban anti-aircraft artillery set up a great banging, but most guns in the heart of the city remained silent during the raid.

In the West End many residents reported shell fragments pattered down on rooftops, sending back into shelters many curious who had ventured into the streets.

The raid began at 12:24 a. m. and ended at 3:18 a. m. (6:24 p. m to 9:18 p. m., New York time).

West of the city several flares were dropped. Only heavy guns were in action, as the raiding planes apparently were too high for smaller guns.

The glow in the southeastern sky remained many minutes. The hostile planes were followed by searchlights and sharp flashes of exploding shells as they crossed back and forth across the city.

[Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, British planes bombed the naval docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven, synthetic oil plants at Mannheim, several airports and a plane factory. They also repeated a visit to northern Italy, where they bombed the Fiat works at Turin and a megneto factory near Milan, the Air Ministry at London said.]

BERLIN RAID ALARM

But Nazis Say It Was False One Due to Slip.

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Berlin had a four-minute air raid alarm today beginning at 8:54 A. M. (2:54 A. M., New York time), but authoritative spokesmen said it was caused by a mechanical error at the main release switch.

A British air raid on the naval base of Kiel resulted, however, in the damaging of a number of apartment houses, the High Command said.

NO SIGN OF BOMBS VISIBLE IN BERLIN

Reporter Finds Only Damage Done by Defense Guns.

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—A personal tour of virtually every major spot in central Berlin, including Adolf Hitler's Chancellery and other official quarters, has failed to disclose a single bomb hole caused by British raids.

Important war industries in the outskirts of the city are in a restricted area which reporters were unable to visit, of course, but no informed resident of those sections has been found who reported either fire or explosions in those vicinities.

Apparently more damage has been done by German anti-aircraft projectiles than by British raiders, and that damage is trifling.

After the British raid Monday windows were reported broken by falling splinters. A bucket full of tile broken off by a piece of shell fell near this correspondent, but the monetary damage was slight.

Military authorities say that it is extremely difficult to determine at a distance the difference between large caliber anti-aircraft fire and medium weight bomb explosions.

Those who have heard both would hesitate to swear that three extraordinarily loud explosions heard in the far northwest outskirts of Berlin on Monday morning were bombs.

GASOLINE RESTRICTED

Greeks Forbidden to Trade in Motor Fuel.

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The Greek Government has issued a decree putting all gasoline stocks under official control and forbidding free trading in this commodity, the German radio reported from Athens today.

The radio quoted Greek economic sources as saying Greece has sufficient gasoline for only another four weeks.

Nazis Say British Pilot Thought Reich Scotland

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The German radio claimed today that a four-man British bombing plane landed near Worms, Germany, and its pilot stepped out and said:

"We thought we were in Scotland."

Germans quoted the pilot as saying he had just dropped six bombs on Berlin's Tempelhof airdrome, but they declared Tempelhof had not been bombed and they could not learn where the bombs fell.

Not So Funny Here; Must Be the Accent

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—It's no longer "gute nacht" in Berlin; it's "bolona."

Thought up by a Berlin wit and immediately adopted by the populace, bolona stands for "bombenlose night" — bombless night.

Germans in Ethiopia Join Italian Forces

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—A volunteer motorized company organized by Germans living in Ethiopia has joined the Italian forces in Africa, DNB, the official German news agency said today.

Indian Ocean Scene Of Attack On Tanker

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 28—The sinking of the second British merchant ship within a week by surface raiders operating in distant waters was announced today by the German high command, which said the 6,901-ton "armed" tanker, British Commander, had gone down in the Indian Ocean.

(Radio reports received in New York Monday from the British Commander said she had been stopped and shelled north of Madagascar, off the east coast of Africa, by an unidentified ship.)

Turakina Is Sunk

The high command announced last Saturday that a raider had sunk the 8,706-ton steamer Turakina in the Tasman Sea, between Australia and New Zealand.

(The distance between the two sinkings is some 7,000 to 8,000 miles.)

The high command also reported the sinking of two British submarines in the English Channel by German naval artillery firing from the French coast, and huge fires started from bombings of British aircraft and motor works at Birmingham and Derby, and numerous ports.

British Raid Kiel

A British air raid on the naval base of Kiel resulted in the damaging of a number of apartment houses, the high command said.

One submarine reported the sinking of 28,600 tons of merchant shipping space.

Other fires resulted from the bombing of Government wharves at Chatham and points at Southhampton, Aberdeen, Dundee, Leeds and Hull, the Germans said.

WOULD OUST 'OLD FACES IN NEW FRANCE'

Trying To Curry Favor With Nazis By Aping Their Government

Flandin, Doriot And Deat Picked For Posts By Vice-Premier

[By the Associated Press]

Les Verrieres, on the France-Switzerland Border, Aug. 28—Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of the French Government has gone to Paris to seek German approval of a possible shakeup in the Cabinet of Premier Marshal Petain, informed French sources declared tonight.

Laval, seeking also to consolidate his position with the Germans, is reported to have envisioned three changes in the Cabinet. The new members would be:

Pierre-Etienne Flandin, former Premier, chief exponent of an understanding with Germany before the war started last year.

Jacques Doriot, former Communist who deserted Moscon and during the republic was hailed by many Frenchmen as a coming dictator.

Marcel Deat, former Minister of Air.

Would Drop Baudouin, Lemery

The ministers Laval reportedly is planning to drop include Paul Baudouin, Foreign Minister, and Senator Henri Lemery, Minister of Colonies.

Laval himself has been reported near resignation because of German opposition to "old faces in new France."

But both Baudouin and Lemery, informed sources said, are leaders of a growing opposition to the policy of Laval and Adrian Marquet, Minister of Interior, who are said to be seeking to please the conquering Germans by aping their Government.

Flandin Reported In Accord

The Laval-Marquet group, it is said, plans to carry the French metamorphosis into a totalitarian state by increasing the anti-Jewish campaign and further muzzling and standardizing the French press.

30.24-4591

Flandin was reported in agreement with this program and will replace Baudouin if Laval's plans meet German approval.

Vichy Blames Rebellion In Africa On Churchill

Vichy, France, Aug. 28 (AP)—The French Government acknowledged for the first time today the existence of a rebellion in French East Africa, and blamed it on Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister.

The extent and military significance of the movement, however, was not made clear.

The Government charged the movement was fomented by Churchill with the aid of the "renegade" French Gen. Charles de Gaulle, London leader of "all free Frenchmen."

De Gaulle announced yesterday that Colonel de Larminat, Governor of Chad, French territory in the heart of Africa, had notified him Chad would fight on at the side of Britain. At the same time Churchill pledged economic aid to any French territory which keeps on fighting Germany.

Report Measures Taken

A French Government communique said today that "necessary measures" had been taken to meet the situation, but did not explain what they were. It added that "this is not the first time Great Britain has sought to extend her influence under the guise of economic collaboration . . . Without a doubt Churchill is seeking means to justify the blockade to which he has condemned the French civilian population, depriving them of their colonial products."

The Government's statement said Colonel de Larminat went to British West Africa, after communicating with General de Gaulle, and there issued a call for rebellion in French possessions.

Caledonian Disorders

It was not made clear whether the Chad rebellion had spread to other regions of French East Africa. Disorders were acknowledged in New Caledonia, French possession in South Pacific, where the governing council was reported to have sided with de Gaulle.

Reports of dissension in French Indo-China could not be confirmed here.

In accusing Churchill of attempting to detach French possessions from the motherland, today's communique recalled that on June 16 (when the French military collapse was becoming apparent) the British Government "proposed to the French Government a merger of France and Britain and their empires. This would have signified, in the circumstances under which the proposal was made, that France and its overseas possessions would deliver their future into the hands of Great Britain.

Churchill On Offensive

"The proposal also embraced continuation of hostilities; in brief, capitulation of the French army and transfer of the Government abroad. It was rejected as not in keeping with the Government's duties toward the country.

"It is apparent now that Churchill resumed the offensive, but limited his ambitions this time to correspond with his reduced means, and in the absence of anything better used a renegade ex-general for his purposes."

French Blame British For 'African Revolt'

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 28—The French Government disclosed today what it called a British-inspired rebellion in France's African Empire.

The government declared that "all necessary dispositions have been taken to localize the situation."

(General Charles de Gaulle, recognized by Britain as the leader of "Free Frenchmen," announced yesterday that the Governor of Chad, French territory in the heart of Africa, had notified him of a decision to fight on at the side of the British rather than yield to the Vichy Government.)

A communique said that this was not the first time that Britain had attempted to influence French colonies in Africa, referring to a British offer of protection for all parts of the French Empire which sided with her after France's armistice with Germany and Italy.

The communique also referred to British Prime Minister Churchill's offer shortly before the armistice to make Britain and France one country, with common citizenship.

This, the communique said, was incompatible with French interests.

The rebellious situation arose in French East Africa, the announcement went on, when the military governor of the Chad region, Colonel de Larmina, went to British West Africa after making contact with General de Gaulle to incite the Chad population to "rebellion."

It was not made clear whether the Chad "rebellion" had spread to other regions of French East Africa.

The Government earlier had admitted disorders in New Caledonia, French possession in the South Pacific, whose governing council has decided to follow De Gaulee. Officials said the people there lacked knowledge of conditions in the motherland.

VICHY-AUG-28

REFERRING TO CHURCHILL'S PROMISE OF ECONOMIC PROTECTION FOR FRENCH COLONIES UNTIL "CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT" IS REESTABLISHED IN FRANCE, TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE SAID:

"THIS IS NOT THE FIRST TIME THAT GREAT BRITAIN HAS SOUGHT TO EXTEND HER INFLUENCE UNDER THE GUISE OF ECONOMIC COLLABORATION. XXX WITHOUT A DOUBT CHURCHILL IS SEEKING MEANS TO JUSTIFY THE BLOCKADE TO WHICH HE HAS CONDEMNED THE FRENCH CIVILIAN POPULATION, DEPRIVING THEM OF THEIR COLONIAL PRODUCTS."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY OF THE PETAIN GOVERNMENT WAS DOUBTED ONLY BY CHURCHILL.

THE FRENCH ALSO DENIED "FOREIGN REPORTS" (A DE GAULLE ANNOUNCEMENT) THAT 800 FRENCH PLANES HAD BEEN FLOWN FROM FRENCH NORTH AFRICA TO ISTRIS, FRANCE, FOR DELIVERY TO GERMANY.

Delay In Nazi Bill Seen Worrying Vichy

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 28—Neutral economists foresee financial difficulties for the French Government at Vichy unless Germany presents a moderate war bill quickly.

Delay in fixing a definite cost of the army of occupation, which by the armistice terms France is to pay, is tending to weaken political and monetary affairs of unoccupied France, economic experts say.

$8,000,000 Daily

Reports to banking and business leaders here are that the daily cost of the German occupation ranges around 400,000,000 francs (nominally about $8,000,000).

The Vichy Government is understood to fear the Germans may add a large part of the cost of their war against Britain to that figure.

So far all efforts of the Vichy Government to get even an approximate figure from the Germans have failed.

Credits Dwindling

It is pointed out that the credits of the Vichy Government abroad are dwindling. All efforts to obtain fresh credits have been balked, informed sources say. One reason given is German refusal to set armistice costs.

Informed sources declare that one huge part of the occupation costs to the French are purchases made by German troops with "occupation marks," the value of which is based mainly on the French ability to repay them as a part of armistice terms.

Observers from the unoccupied zone declare that with these "occupation marks" the Germans are taking from the country everything consumable. They are reported also to be sending much jewelry, silverware and works of art—all purchased with their special marks—back to Germany.

Paganism Beat France'

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 28—A Cabinet decree lifting a ban on press attacks based on racial or religious grounds, issued yesterday, was followed today by an article in the morning press calling Nazi anti-clericalism "fanaticism if you wish, but logic also."

The article, printed in l'Oeuvre, was signed by Marcel Deat, prominently mentioned for some important official post in any future shakeup of the Vichy Government.

(Chief of State Philippe Petain is a devout Catholic.)

"Supposing our armies did defend 'Christian civilization,' which remains to be shown," Dean wrote, "they were defeated by a new paganism. . . .

"The Panzer Divisionen (armored divisions) blow was one of a young, collective, ardent, irresistible belief against a civilization of contradictory and broken ideals.

"The Nazi religion is totalitarian—it excludes all others. It could not tolerate any organized church within the nation."

R. A. F. Raids Italy and Africa

ROME, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—British air raids over a front ranging from the north of Italy to Ethiopia were acknowledged today by the Italian High Command, which also reported that Italian flyers had carried out a violent daylight attack on the British oil base at Haifa, Palestine.

Sharp opposition by Italian fighter planes and anti-aircraft batteries limited the effectiveness of the British raids on industrial centers in the upper Italian provinces of Piedmont and Lombardy, a communique declared.

The raiders were able to drop a few bombs on Michelino, in the province of Turin, it said, but the only damage mentioned was one farmhouse set on fire. One British plane was reported shot down.

[In London the Air Ministry announced that the Fiat works at Turin and Marelli Magneto factory at Sesto San Giovanni were again attacked.]

British bombers attacked the Libyan seaport of Derna, where an Italian lumber ship was hit. Some additional damage was acknowledged, resulting in the death of two persons and injury to five others.

British bombs also fell on a native hospital at Harar, Ethiopia, and on another hospital at Dessye, where eight were killed and twenty wounded, the communique said. Nine inmates of a prison at Massaua, Eritrea, were said to have been killed when British bombers raided that city.

One more British plane was reported shot down in these raids.

The raid on Haifa was the fourth reported by the Italians since they entered the war on June 10 and apparently was aimed at immobilizing British ships and planes in the Mediterranean by depriving them of oil.

Swiss Sound Air Raid Alarms.

BERNE, Aug. 28 (A. P.). — A flight of British bombers along the river Rhine, headed toward Italy, swung south early today, indicating that the Royal Air Force is now seeking a route to Italy which would not force them to cross over neutral Swiss territory.

They were still too far north, however, according to a communique isued by the Swiss General Staff today.

The communique reported the passage of planes both ways across Switzerland during the night a said that the bombers this ti only crossed the southwest corn

Alexandria and Port Said Raided.

CAIRO, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Alexandria, the British naval base, and Port Said, at the north entrance to the Suez Canal, were raided by enemy airplanes early today, but no damage was caused and there were no casualties, a British naval communique announced.

It was the first raid of the war upon Port Said, which is guarded by the British fleet in its control of the canal and by British land forces under the terms of a military agreement between Great Britain and Egypt.

Alexandria has frequently been attacked by Italian planes.

A dispatch direct from Alexandria said that that port had a seventeen-minute air raid alarm at dawn during which foreign planes flew over the city, but dropped no bombs.

The raid on Port Said lasted for sixty-five minutes and, it was reported, only a few bombs were dropped.

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 28—Vital Port Said, lying at the northern entrance to the Suez Canal and guarded by the British fleet, was bombed for more than an hour today by Italian warplanes.

The British-Egyptian naval base at Alexandria, likewise, was raided, but it was declared that no bombs were dropped there.

The raid on Port Said, the first of the war, was acknowledged in a British communique, which asserted that there were no casualties and no damage.

Nothing was said as to any Italian losses.

Adardeb Left In Flames

The British command also announced that a mechanized British patrol of Sudanese troops two days ago successfully raided the Italian frontier post of Adardeb in East Africa, inflicting "many casualties" and leaving the post in flames.

The official communique said an Italian raid on Haifa, Palestine, yesterday caused "negligible damage" with "a few casualties among civilians, but none of them fatal."

HITLER CONFERS ON BALKANS

Axis Calls for Quick Accord as Fear of Russian Action Grows.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Charges that a Hungarian plane bombed and machine-gunned a Rumanian airport at Satu-Mare, in Translyvania, and then was shot down by Rumanian anti-aircraft guns were contained in an official communique issued tonight.

The communique asserted:

"Lately Hungarian military planes on several occasions have violated Rumanian national air space.

"In spite of all our energetic protests to the Hungarian Government these flights have been repeated and Hungarian airplanes have come as far as Brasov, Vintul de Jus and Someseni where they threw out pamphlets hostile to the Rumanian State."

"In the face of this attitude measures have been taken to avoid by force these incursions. Yesterday at 12:15 P. M. a Hungarian bomber passed the Rumanian frontier at Sacueni and was engaged by a Rumanian fighter.

"They fought in the air and the Hungarian plane was obliged to withdraw badly damaged and with the pilots wounded.

"Today flights were repeated by Hungarian planes which executed real acts of hostility. At 10:15 A. M. a Hungarian bomber, F-225, used machine guns and dropped six bombs on the civil airport at Satumare and damaged a hangar. There was no material loss because the airport had been evacuated.

Ciano at Berchtesgaden.

SALZBURG, Germany, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler conferred today with axis diplomats in his lofty Berchtesgaden retreat and then sent them off to Vienna where, starting tomorrow, they will try to induce Hungary and Rumania to compose their territorial dispute lest it flare into war.

Foreign Ministers Count Galeazzo Ciano and Joachim von Ribbentrop, representing the two ends of the Rome-Berlin axis, lunched with Der Fuehrer and then took a plane for the capital of old Austria, there to meet the Foreign Ministers of Rumania and Hungary and their aids.

Adding urgency to the peace-making attempt were reports of Rumanian and Hungarian frontier incidents and of bloody clashes between Rumanian and Russian forces.

The unofficial guerrilla conflict involving Red Army forces occupying a large area of former Rumanian territory recently ceded to the Soviet Union underlined Moscow's position as interested in the outcome of the Vienna conference, though she was not invited to it.

Spokesmen of the axis partners were most anxious to tell the world that Von Ribbentrop and Ciano would not browbeat the Hungarian and Rumanian representatives into signing on the dotted line any document prepared in advance.

Hungary wants to get back Transylvania, lost in the world war settlement. Rumania first sought to appease Hungary by proposing a transfer of populations and, since that has failed to satisfy Budapest, has offered alternatives of partial cession of territory provided Hungary agrees to complete exchanges of population.

Rumanian Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu and an aide-negotiator, Valerie Pop, will deal with Hungarian Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky and his advisers across a council table under the watchful eyes of axis diplomats.

Before the German and Italian foreign ministers left for Vienna, Ciano was received by Hitler in a private conference at the Berchtesgaden chalet on Obersalzburg Mountain.

They discussed "current affairs," as DNB, official news agency expressed it, and then Ciano joined Von Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Reich Press Chief Otto Dietrich and Italian Ambassador Dino Alfieri at luncheon with Der Fuehrer.

In the afternoon the two foreign ministers and Alfieri, along with Hans Georg-Viktor von Mackensen, German Ambassador to Rome, took the plane for Vienna, where they arrive tonight.

Meanwhile Bucharest dispatches said that a mixed Russo-Rumanian commission was investigating a bloody clash near Adancata, in Bucovina, where some hundreds of soldiers were killed.

Moreover, Russia was reported to be increasing her demands upon Rumania—who ceded northern Bucovina and the province of Bessarabia to the Soviet only two months ago—and to be asking various financial arrangements.

Rumania was reported preparing to make a new offer of a maximum of one-fourth of Transylvania to Hungary.

It was the second time the axis Powers had exerted pressure for a settlement of the Hungarian-Rumanian dispute, and political spokesmen in Berlin have expressed a firm conviction that this time a speedy agreement must be arrived at in order to avoid further incidents which may disturb the Italo-German war effort against Great Britain.

Some observers here expressed the belief that the Italo-German desire for a speedy settlement of the Rumanian-Hungarian dispute was inspired by anxiety lest Russia take advantage of the situation to extend herself further in the southeast.

Negotiations instituted at the insistence of Berlin collapsed on Saturday when Rumania refused Hungary's demand for the return of three-quarters of Transylvania—which Rumania won as a result of the world war—and both countries have been massing troops along the frontier.

Russian Clash Investigated.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—A mixed Russo-Rumanian commission began an investigation today of a frontier clash which is reported to have caused the death of hundreds of soldiers near Adancata in Bucovina.

Meanwhile Government officials confirmed reports, previously denied, that a Russian plane, making a reconnaissance flight over Ru-

...manian territory, yesterday afternoon, was shot down and fell onto the Dorohoi-Botosavi highway.

They also said that about the same time a Rumanian plane was fired on by a Russian pursuit plane, but escaped into the clouds.

In another aerial clash, two Soviet planes were reported shot down yesterday by six Rumanian fighters.

These developments cast a new troubled light on relations between Rumania and her great neighbor to the North whose demands she sought to appease in June by handing over to her Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

Russia was reported to have intensified the strain by closing the frontiers of the occupied territory to prevent any return of Rumanians except under strict control. Thousands had fled before the advance of the Red armies of occupation.

Rumanians in occupied territory were said to have been ordered to turn in their Rumanian currency to provide railway fare for their refugee country men wishing to return.

Bucharest Charges "Real Acts Of Hostility"—Civil Airport Attacked

Adopts Policy Of "Force" On Eve Of Axis' Appeasement Parley

New York, Aug. 28—All wire communications between Bucharest and various northern Rumanian provinces have been cut, the official Budapest radio said tonight in a broadcast heard here by the National Broadcasting Company.

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Rumania, Aug. 28—Rumania formally accused the Hungarian air force tonight of "real acts of hostility," and announced that a Hungarian bomber had been forced down by anti-aircraft fire after it had made a bombing and machine-gun attack on a Rumanian civil airport.

This incident, described in a sharp official communique as but one instance of repeated violations of "Rumanian national air space," occurred at Satu-Mare in Transylvania, the area demanded from Rumania by Hungary.

Policy Of "Force" Adopted

The Government, saying it had adopted a policy of "force" to repel Hungarian incursions, likewise took responsibility for an attack on another Hungarian bomber yesterday.

That plane was declared to have crossed the Rumanian frontier at Sacueni and to have been crippled by a Rumanian pilot.

The Government's communique—issued even as Hungarian and Rumanian representatives prepared to meet with German and Italian mediators at Vienna tomorrow in the Axis' effort to settle Balkan affairs—was far from diplomatic in tone.

Pamphlets Hostile To Rumania

"Lately," it said, "Hungarian military planes on several occasions have violated Rumanian national air space.

"In spite of all our energetic protests to the Hungarian Government, these flights have been repeated and Hungarian airplanes have come as far as Brasov, Vintul de Jus and Someseni, where they threw out pamphlets hostile to the Rumanian state.

Withdraw From Russ Frontier

The withdrawal of certain Rumanian army units, supply depots and state institutions from the Russian frontier toward the interior of this country was disclosed tonight in an army communique.

The announcement said the bulk of the army and all Government authorities will now "remain where they are."

There have been numerous reports that Rumanian civilians and officials were quitting the Southern Bucovina and Moldavia areas which now are surrounded by Russian troops.

Reassurance From Russia

Russia, it was learned in official circles, reassured Rumania through her minister in Moscow that she wanted to avoid border incidents as much as Rumania.

That assurance was given after the Rumanian Minister, Grigore Gafencu, visited Premier Vyacheslaff M. Molotoff and told him that heavy Soviet troop concentrations on the new frontier was causing disquiet in Rumania.

Earlier in the day, a mixed Rumanian-Russian commission began an investigation of a frontier clash between Soviet and Rumanian troops said to have left hundreds dead in northern Bucovina, the Rumanian province taken by Russia from Rumania by ultimatum some two months ago.

At the same time, the Rumanian Government confirmed reports that a Russian plane, in reconnaissance over Rumania yesterday, had been shot down. In still another aerial engagement of yesterday, two Soviet planes were reported shot down by Rumanian fighter craft.

Hungarians Deny Raid; Make Counter-Charges

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 28 (AP)—Hungary accused the Rumanian air force tonight of sending army planes on reconnaissance flights over this country's territory and denied that one of its own bombers had attacked a Rumanian airport.

A Foreign Office statement said:

"This afternoon a Rumanian squadron of five planes coming from Satu-Mare crossed the Hungarian frontier, evidently to make photographs of Hungarian territory.

Forced Down In Rumania

"In view of the fact that flights of this kind have been made very often by the Rumanians, and that yesterday a Hungarian machine was shot down while over Debrecen (Hungary), two planes of the Hungarian air force took off immediately and forced the Rumanian planes to return to Rumania.

"During the pursuit one Hungarian plane was forced to land on Rumanian soil because of motor trouble. No attack was ever made on the Satu-Mare airport (in Rumania)."

Porders Bristle With Arms

The Foreign Office spokesman, thus insisting that the only Hungarian plane to land in Rumania did so without belligerent intent, said Hungary would ask for the release of the three officers arrested when the craft touched ground.

On both sides of the disputed border of Transylvania, the countryside bristled tonight with infantry, tanks, artillery and bombers.

AXIS RUSHES DIPLOMATS TO BALKAN PARLEY

"Peacemakers" Fly To Vienna For Rumanian-Hungarian Appeasement

Hitler And Ciano Hold Preliminary Conference At Bavarian Chalet

[By the Associated Press]

Vienna, Aug. 28—Germany and Italy, in their chosen role of "creators of a new Europe" and "peacemakers" in the Balkans, rushed diplomatic shock troops to this former Austrian capital tonight for a four-power conference intended to fashion an Axis style appeasement of the disquieting Rumanian-Hungarian dispute over Transylvania.

In the old Belvedere Castle, once the residence of Austrian Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, the Axis diplomats tomorrow will exercise their "united weight" to bring Rumania and Hungary together again. Those were the words chosen by the authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, to describe the nature of the proceedings.

Tonight the route from the airdrome to the Hotel Imperial was lined with dense, cheering crowds greeting the vanguard of the diplomats, the Italian and German Foreign Ministers and their associates.

The German wireless minimized the character of recent Russian-Rumanian border incidents, laid them to the fact that the new Russo-Rumanian border is not clearly defined, and said it was not likely "anything further will result."

However, there was an unmistakable air of urgency both in the number of Axis diplomats sent to Vienna and the speed of their assembly.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—From outside of Germany, there were strong indications that Russia, missing from the Vienna conference, was the vital factor in the emergency meeting.]

Urgent From Nazi Viewpoint

The Germans themselves acknowledged that any serious Rumanian-Russian frontier clashes would make quick settlement of the Balkan situation urgent from a German point of view.

Preservation of productive peace in Southeastern Europe, where Germany has important trade treaties for war supplies, is a keystone of German policy.

In Rome, foreign observers believed that fear a Rumanian-Hungarian conflict would open the way to Soviet expansion was one of the underlying causes of the swift diplomatic initiative of the Axis.

Hitler Receives Ciano

Hitler received the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, who had flown from Rome, at a "preliminary" conference in the Führer's Bavarian chalet near Salzburg today, and an imposing list of diplomats prepared to take part in the talks tomorrow.

Participating in a luncheon after the conference were the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop; Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Otto Dietrich, Reich press chief, and Dino Alfieri, the Italian Ambassador.

Ciano, Ribbentrop, Alfieri and Hans Georg-Viktor von Mackensen, German Ambassador to Rome, then took a plane to Vienna to meet Mihail Manoilescu, Rumanian Foreign Minister, and Count Istvan Csaky, Foreign Minister of Hungary, and their aides.

Second Attempt At Settlement

While the Hitler-Ciano talk was described as merely a conference on "current affairs," an official announcement previously had been made that the Hungarian and Rumanian statesmen had been summoned to Vienna.

It will be the Axis powers' second attempt to settle Balkan problems.

Following a round of individual talks among Balkan and Axis leaders last July, it was stated authoritatively in Berlin that Rumania and Hungary had been given instructions to negotiate and to settle their problems as expeditiously as possible.

Tension Follows Breakdown

But these negotiations, undertaken at Turnu-Severin on the Danube, broke down last Saturday after ten fruitless days. There followed immediate tension, with both nations stepping up defense preparations. The Russian-Rumanian clash occurred at the height of the tension.

German sources said the Turnu-Severin negotiations showed the Rumanian and Hungarian viewpoints were as divergent as the two poles and that "no immediate, direct understanding" could be reached—something which the highest interests of the Axis powers demands because they want to give undivided attention to England.

Axis "Arbitration" Denied

The Hungarians demanded restoration of practically everything Rumania took away from her as a result of their World War treaty, or approximately five-sixths of Transylvania.

On the other hand, German sources say, the Rumanians wanted to begin with shifting their respective national minorities and then later to consider the cession of a narrow strip of territory.

Authoritative sources emphatically denied that Rome and Berlin intended to "arbitrate" this dispute.

Rather, they said, Germany and Italy will urge energetically that the two countries find a solution and will make suggestions for concessions until a concrete result is achieved.

Turkey Seeking Credit To Increase Imports

Hope Is Expressed Agreement With U. S. May Be Worked On Virtual Barter Basis

Ankara, Turkey, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Turkish Government is making a new attempt to arrange credit for increasing imports from the United States, it was learned today. The shipments would be carried on Greek ships.

Because of Turkey's limited foreign exchange, it is hoped that an agreement with United States exporters can be worked out on a virtual barter basis.

U. S. AMBULANCE MEN REACH SPAIN

State Department Now Tries to Free Them There.

MADRID, Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Twenty American uniformed ambulance drivers homeward-bound after service in France who had been detained at the French-Spanish frontier were expected to reach Barcelona today.

Spanish frontier officials, reversing an earlier decision, permitted them to go to Barcelona to await a ruling by high authority as to whether they should be treated as combatants.

James Wood Johnson, president of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, said today that the State Department was bending every effort to effect the release of the group in Spain and that he felt confident all twenty would be permitted to continue their voyage to Lisbon within the next two or three days.

The State Department, he said, has cabled to Spanish authorities the information that the ambulance drivers are non-combatants and have been engaged solely in humanitarian work in France. He revealed that the American Embassy in Madrid and the Consulate in Barcelona are working on the case. Pointing to the success our Government had in effecting the release of American ambulance drivers from German prison camps, Mr. Johnson said that he was not at all alarmed by the situation that has developed in Spain.

When released the party will go direct to Lisbon and sail for New York on board one of the American Export Line vessels. All members of the unit went to France last April and saw between two and three months' active service before the capitulation of France.

The unit, which is headed by Col. James Sparks, Indianapolis physician, includes nine youths from the metropolitan area of New York. They are Curtenius Gillette of 111 East Forty-eighth street; Herbert Witcombe of 122 East Fifty-seventh street; M. Lee Price of 240 West 102d street, and Charles A. McCarthy of 400 East Fifty-second street, all of New York city; Francis Ryder, John H. Creveling and William Throop of Mount Vernon; James J. Gardner of New Rochelle and Beverly Bristol of Douglaston, L. I.

His ad interim successor will be Deputy Secretary-General Sean Lester of Ireland. M. Avenol, however, is expected to remain at the Secretary-General's residence in Geneva, at the disposition of of the league until a permanent successor is chosen.

Windsor's Aide Denies Plans For N. Y. Visit

Capt. Drury Declares His Journey To Manhattan Had Naught To Do With Duke's Trip

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 28 (AP)—Capt. Vyvyan Drury denied today a New York report that he had been making quiet preparations for the Duke of Windsor's expected visit to the United States and Canada.

Drury, one of the Duke's two aides-de-camp, flew here today from Miami after visiting in Canada and the United States. He said he had no knowledge of the former British King's intentions.

It was reported in New York that Drury disclosed to close friends that he had been arranging quietly for the Duke's projected trip. The Duke had said in Bermuda, on his way to Nassau, that he thought he would pay another visit to New York. Such a journey undoubtedly would include a stop at the Duke's cattle ranch in Canada.

Canadian Army Corps Planned For England

Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton To Command Force After Training Is Completed

Ottawa, Aug. 28 (AP)—An all-Canadian army corps, commanded by Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, will be formed in England as soon as the training of the second division is completed, Defense Minister Ralston said today.

"And that won't be long now," he added.

Search Ontario Woods For Escaped Prisoners

Canadian Police Hunt Two More Germans Who Got Away From Internment Camps

Ottawa, Aug. 28 (AP)—Canadian police searched the forests of northern Ontario tonight for two more German war prisoners believed to have made their escape after being partly buried in a shallow trench near a football field outside their barracks.

Defense Minister Ralston said the prisoners, Theodor Steyrer, 29, an under-officer of the German navy who has a gunshot wound in the left leg, and Hans Kibart, 25, airman, were among the prisoners who attended a football match during the recreation period yesterday. It was believed they were aided in digging their ground hideouts by other hundreds of fellow-prisoners who screened them from the view of guards.

Prison guards fired on them as they fled into thick woods near the camp after nightfall.

BERMUDA CURTAILS MAIL TO EUROPE

U. S. Dispatches To Nazi-Occupied Nations Affected By Decree

[By the Associated Press]

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 28—Suspension of all mail service from Bermuda, a frequent Pan-American clipper and United States shipping stop, to Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Danzig, Denmark, German-occupied France, Holland, Luxembourg, Norway and German-occupied Poland was announced in a Government notice today.

Parcel post service also was suspended to almost every country in Europe.

The notice further warned that "all mail services which have not been suspended to European countries are subject to heavy delay and in certain cases mails are liable to enemy interception."

Action Won't Stop Mail To Nazis, Officials Say

Washington, Aug. 28 (AP)—A postal official expressed the view today that the suspension of mail service from Bermuda to German-dominated countries of Europe would not prevent mail from the United States reaching those countries.

He said he presumed that any mail stopped at Bermuda would be turned back to this country and an attempt made to get it through by some other route.

Officials here said they presumed mail service had been suspended from Bermuda to Germany, Italy and unoccupied France, although those countries were not mentioned in the Bermuda Government announcement.

Mail from this country has been reaching all belligerent countries by way of Lisbon, officials said. Mail carried by planes and ships putting in at Bermuda en route to and from Europe has been subject to censorship. Most of this, it was said, had been allowed to continue after elimination of "objectionable" matter.

3 British Actors in Air Corps

TORONTO, Aug. 28 (AP).—Three British motion-picture actors who passed initial tests in the Royal Canadian Air Force at Ottawa arrived here last night to continue their training at the Manning Depot. They are Patric Knowles, Robert Coots and Colin Tapley. They went to Ottawa from Hollywood several weeks ago and joined the air force as aircraftmen. From Manning Depot here they will be allocated to training schools from which they may emerge as gunners, pilots or air observers.

CANADA GETS NEW AIRPLANE ENGINE

Inventor Says They Can Be Turned Out Rapidly.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 28 (A. P.).—Lloyd M. Taylor, designer of an airplane motor which he says can be made as fast as tin cans are made, told reporters today that he had given exclusive manufacturing rights to a Canadian company.

Mr. Taylor said that after conferences with Canadian Government officials in Ottawa, he signed a contract with the Vancouver Sales & Appraisal Company, a British Columbia firm that has been making sawmill and mining machinery.

Mr. Taylor said that the Canadian Government might finance a factory for the Vancouver concern.

The Taylor motor, its inventor says, departs from normal in that its block is laminated instead of cast. The motor is built of sheets stamped from steel, held together with a special flux, and baked in an electric oven.

Several weeks ago Mr. Taylor said that he had discussed his motor with United States Government airplane experts, and with representatives of the Ford Motor Company.

The inventor declared the engine, 1,000 pounds weight and cooled by liquid, would develop 1,250-horse power. It has twelve cylinders, made from steel tubing.

Mr. Taylor said the two opposed banks of cylinders make a flat engine, shaped for easy installation inside a plane's wings, reducing air resistance and increasing lifting power.

He estimated that the motor, if manufactured on a mass production basis, would cost only a third as much as a conventional motor.

1,700-H. P. Motored Dive Bomber Built To Carry Huge Load

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Curtiss-Wright Corporation announced tonight it was perfecting a type of dive bomber with increased bomb-load capacity and improved general performance for delivery soon to the United States Navy for flight tests.

A low-wing, all-metal ship, powered by a 1,700-horsepower Wright cyclone engine of fourteen cylinders, the plane is known as the Curtiss XSB2C1. It is nearing completion at the plant at Buffalo.

The bomber is designed to operate from aircraft carriers and provide the fleet with maximum offensive power by carrying heavy machine guns and bomb loads at high speed over long distances, the announcement said.

Young Hapsburg Royalty See "Democratic" Austria

Archduke Karl Ludwig, Brother And Sisters, Here To Study Government Of United States

[By the Associated Press]

Philadephia, Aug. 28—When Austria "lives again" under the Hapsburgs—and four children of the exiled Empress Zita entertain no doubts about that—some of the members of the Royal Family want to make it "truly democratic."

Archduke Karl Ludwig, 22, who came here with a brother and two younger sisters for a visit in suburban Merion, said:

"We are learning the democracy of the United States."

Trio Agrees With Brother

This knowledge, the youthful Prince is confident, will serve his family when the throne is restored.

Archduke Rudolfe, 20, and the Archduchesses Charlotte, 19, and Elizabeth, 18, accompanied their brother to the home of Baron and Baroness von Trapp, who like themselves are in exile.

The children came to this country with their mother, after the Nazi invasion of Belgium forced them to leave their home in exile. She is now in Royalton, Mass.

Both Karl Ludwig and Rudolf are anxious to join up with Britain, but their immediate plans call for more schooling in some American university yet to be chosen. They want to study economics.

"We don't resent our exile," said Karl Ludwig. "It is an experience, it is a chance to learn new things."

Princess Off Early

The Norwegian Crown Princess Martha and her children, fleeing from Scandinavia, were taken off the American Legion down the bay by a Coast Guard Cutter. They landed at the Battery, where arrangements had been made to take them immediately to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

The reception at the Battery probably was the least spectacular ever accorded visiting royalty. A small crowd huddled in the rain outside the covered pier and watched the Crown Princess and her retinue whiz past in a motor caravan.

Held Son In Lap

The Princess held her 3-year-old son, Prince Harald, in her lap in the first car. She wore a blue ensemble, with a silver fox scarf and a wide-brimmed, dark hat. She also carried a large bouquet of roses.

During the trip up the bay she remarked that the weather was the same as it was when she came here last year to open the Norwegian pavilion at the New York World's Fair. It was a dark, rainy day.

Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, and a number of other diplomats remained aboard until the vessel docked in Brooklyn.

Sees General Shortage

Mrs. Harriman, the first woman to represent the United States officially in a war zone, said she was certain there would be a food, fuel and fodder shortage in Norway during the coming winter.

Capt. Bror E. Torning, master of the American Legion, conceded that he was "very uneasy" many times during the voyage, although he said he saw only two mines.

He said German propaganda broadcasts assailing the voyage as "foolish" and "dangerous" were heard repeatedly.

The royal party was met by Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, Norwegian Minister to the United States, and George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol of the State Department. At the Crown Princess' request, there was a minimum of ceremony.

Refugee Ship Arrives

New York, Aug. 28—After a perilous voyage during part of which death seemed to lurk in every wave, the army transport American Legion arrived in New York harbor today with more than 800 American refugees.

The voyage, which began at Petsamo, Finland, August 16, carried the vessel through mine areas north of Scotland at a time when Germany was proclaiming unrestricted warfare in British waters.

The royal party planned to drive to Hyde Park tomorrow and be the guests of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt until the Crown Princess can find suitable quarters.

The American Legion was picked up miles at sea by two United States troyers forming an honorary es-t.

Belgians Off Torpedoed Ship Land At New York

Spanish Craft Brings 34 Sailors Of Ville De Namur Here To Man Another Vessel

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Thirty-four Belgian sailors, survivors of the torpedoed freighter, Ville de Namur, arrived here today aboard the Spanish steamer Magallanes and said their ship was attacked without warning in the Bay of Biscay on June 19.

The Ville de Namur was formerly the American Merchant, one of eight vessels sold by the United States Lines early in the war to a Belgian company. The survivors said they were brought here to man another ship in service to belligerent ports.

Brookwood And Severn Leigh Sunk By Torpedoes In Atlantic

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The sinking of two 5,000-ton British freighters, reported four days ago by the German high command, was confirmed tonight through London sources by the New York maritime register. They were the armed merchantmen Brookwood and Severn Leigh, both torpedoed somewhere in the Atlantic. Fate of the crews was unknown.

The maritime register also reported a Nazi U-boat sank the former German freighter Pomona, a ship of 3,457 tons built in 1938 and formerly in trade between Europe and the West Indies.

She was taken by the British in prize court proceedings last November and has sailed recently under British registry as the Empire Merchant. She was torpedoed August 16, en route to Kingston, Jamaica. Survivors were landed at Dublin by a Yugoslav steamer.

March Of Time Defies Demand Of Nazis To Censor War Film

German Embassy Secretary Threatens Court Action To Kill Sequence In "The Remparts We Watch"

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 28—Louis de Rochemont, producer of March of Time, said a German Government representative tonight demanded removal of all portions of the Nazi picture "Feuertauff" from the feature "The Ramparts We Watch," under threat of legal action and expulsion from Germany of Time and Life employes.

De Rochemont said in a statement that Baron Ulrich von Gienanth, second secretary at the German Embassy in Washington, notified him Germany would institute court action immediately if the March of Time war feature were not censored.

The publisher declared that he, with the approval of Henry R. Luce, board chairman of Time, Inc., refused to censor the picture, and told Von Gienanth they would welcome "a showdown on Germany's indirect censorship of American films."

De Rochemont said such censorship had been used by Germany for more than two years, and that he was determined to "bring it out into the open."

The German Government, he declared, by "such methods as they are trying to use now, have tried to dictate what shall or shall not be shown in certain pictures and refuse to allow any German scenes to be shown in connection with anything related to England."

"Feuertaufe" (baptism of fire), was made in Germany, De Rochemont said, "to show the might of the German army," but has been so arranged with "The Ramparts We Watch" that it "has become anti-Nazi propaganda instead of pro-Nazi propaganda."

Plane Played Critical Role In Fight With Graf Spee

Capt. Kitchen, Of Edgewood Arsenal, Says British Craft Kept Nazi Ship Under Guns' Eyes

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Aug. 28—A complete story of the naval battle off Montevideo last December between the German pocket battleship and three British cruisers shows that an airplane played one of the most critical roles.

The plane was British, from the light cruiser Ajax. The spotting of this plane enabled the two little cruisers, Ajax and Achilles, with nothing larger than 6-inch guns, to outfight and chase off the battleship after the latter had put the cruiser Exeter, with 8-inch guns, out of action.

The story is told in the Chemical Warfare Bulletin, U. S. A., by Capt Carr P. Kitchen, Mineola, Texas, reserve officer of the United States Chemical Warfare Service, stationed on active duty at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. He obtained the data from official and news accounts.

Contrary to early accounts of this sea fight, the little cruisers did not protect themselves with smoke screens after the Graf Spee, with her 11-inch guns, had only them to deal with. It was the Graf Spee which put up the smoke screens. With smoke pots cast upon the sea and a stern smoke apparatus, the German vessel zigzagged, laying smoke curtains, and dodging out from them to fire at the British cruisers.

This maneuver was calculated to destroy the British, for both sides would have to spot their targets after the German emerged, both would be expected to make about an equal number of hits, and the Germans with big shells should be victorious.

The Ajax plane spoiled this plan for Captain Langsdorff of the Graf Spee. The plane was able to keep the British cruisers informed of the pocket battleship's position so well that their fire was the more accurate.

Captain Kitchen stated that the German's failure to launch one of her two planes for spotting purposes at the outset of the battle was probably one reason for disaster. By the time the two light cruisers lined up parallel to the stronger ship to fight it out in the open, the Graf Spee's planes could not be launched owing to a damaged catapult and partial destruction of one plane.

The British ships, Captain Kitchen pointed out, did not need a spotting plane so long as the Exeter was in the fight, since she was on the opposite side of the German from the other two British cruisers, and the British on each side could spot for their guns on the other side.

Captain Kitchen concluded that the German pocket battleship is not the invincible fighting machine it was supposed to be. The Graf Spee was supposed to be able to outrun the light cruisers, but failed, and her armor was supposed to be protection against their smaller guns, but was not.

In enemy-occupied France oil tanks in the Gironde estuary near Bordeaux, at Pauillas near Brest and at Cherbourg were bombed.

One of our aircraft is missing.

An Air Ministry communique:

Enemy activities this morning have been almost entirely confined to two attempts to penetrate our defenses in the Thames Estuary and in Kent. In both cases our fighters have intercepted the enemy and broken up his formations.

Early reports of these engagements show that six enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters.

An Air Ministry and Home Security Ministry communique:

Enemy activities over this country during last night consisted of a number of dispersed and indiscriminate bombing attacks in many districts, including the London area.

At two towns in the southeast and at two points in the north of England damage was done to house property and there were casualties, including some persons killed.

In the London area the damage was very slight and no casualties have been reported.

Attacks in other parts of the country also caused only slight damage, but resulted in casualties in a few cases.

Big fires showed the effect of the bomb raids, especially on airplane and motor works at Derby and Birmingham, government wharves at Chatham, and at Southampton, Aberdeen, Dundee, Leeds and Hull.

British planes last night bombed territory of the Reich without noteworthy effect. A number of apartment houses were damaged in Kiel. Due to the discipline of the tenants, only one person was slightly injured.

Three British planes were shot down, one of which was by navy artillery. One of our own planes is missing.

A submarine sank 28,600 tons of enemy ships from strongly protected convoys.

German naval artillery shot at two enemy submarines from the French Channel coast. Their destruction can be considered certain.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 28 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

The oil center of Haifa was again violently bombed by the Italian air force in daylight yesterday. The railway station and new oil refinery were hit. Large fires were caused everywhere. All our planes returned safely.

Communiques of Three Belligerent Powers

British

LONDON, Aug. 28 (AP).—An Air Ministry and Home Security Ministry communique:

Large numbers of enemy aircraft again attempted to penetrate out fighting defenses during this afternoon. Few bombs were dropped except in one town on the Thames Estuary, where some damage was done and a small number of casualties.

Reports received up to 8 p. m. show that twenty-four enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters.

Twelve of our aircraft have been lost, but the pilots of four are known to be safe.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night R. A. F. bombers attacked military objectives in Germany, Italy and enemy-occupied France.

In Germany the targets included the docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven, a transformer station at Kelsterbach, near Frankfurt; the Messerschmitt factory at Augsberg, oil tanks and supply depots at Mannheim and several airdromes.

In Italy the Fiat works at Turin and Marelli Magneto factory at Sesto San Giovanni were again attacked.

Shortly before midnight an enemy bomber was shot down into the sea by our anti-aircraft guns.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 28 (AP).—A British naval communique:

The commander in chief of the Mediterranean announces an air raid over Alexandria and Port Said took place early this morning. There were no casualties and no damage was caused.

A British high command communique:

On Aug. 26 a mechanized British patrol of Sudanese troops successfully raided the Italian frontier post of Adardeb. The enemy post was left in flames and many casualties were inflicted.

Yesterday afternoon Haifa was again bombed, with negligible damage. There were a few casualties among civilians, but none of them were fatal.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (AP).—The German high command communique:

Bad visibility limited air force activity to armed reconnaissance, in the course of which bombs were dropped on the port facilities of Gosport.

Last night larger fighting units attacked port facilities, wharves, airplane plants and armament plants in England and Scotland.

In North Africa the enemy in large numbers raided Derna (Libya). A small Italian ship carrying timber was hit. Elsewhere some damage was caused. Two people were killed and five wounded.

In East Africa the enemy raided Harrar (Ethiopia), where a native hospital was hit, and Dessie, where a local garrison hospital was damaged, causing eight dead and five wounded. One British plane was shot down. In Massaua (Eritrea) a prison was hit and nine inmates were killed.

British planes, coming as usual from Switzerland, raided the north Italian provinces of Piedmont and Lombardy. Following a strong defense by our fighters and anti-aircraft guns, only a few bombs were dropped on Michelino in the province of Turin, where one farmhouse was set on fire.

DEMOCRATIC

SWISS MANEUVER

"SQUEEZE" (900)

BY CHARLES S.FOLTZ, JR.

(ADVANCE) BERN, SWITZERLAND (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DEMOCRATIC SWITZERLAND IS TRYING TO SIDESTEP A TOTALITARIAN "SQUEEZE" PLAY--AT LEAST UNTIL THE AXIS POWERS BEAT OR GET BEATEN BY BRITAIN.

THE SWISS HAVE THE ONLY DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC LEFT IN EUROPE. THEY LIKE THEIR LITTLE CONFEDERATION AND THEY HAVE NO DESIRE TO SWAP IT FOR FOREIGN CONTROL OR FOR A TOTALITARIAN GOVERNMENT.

EVEN NOW MOST MILITARY OBSERVERS BELIEVE THE SWISS NOT ONLY WOULD FIGHT IF INVADED ON ONE OR ALL FRONTIERS, BUT WOULD FIGHT VERY WELL. THE CATCH IS THAT THE AXIS POWERS, AS THINGS NOW STAND, WOULDN'T HAVE TO USE MEN, GUNS AND MUNITIONS TO FORCE THE SWISS TO SUBMIT TO THEIR DICTATES.

THE SWISS NOT ONLY LIVE ON WORLD TRADE--THEY MUST IMPORT FOOD AND FUEL FOR THEIR 4,000,000 INHABITANTS. SWITZERLAND HAS NO SEAPORTS AND ITS ONLY COMMUNICATIONS GO THROUGH FRANCE, NOW IN THE POWER OF THE AXIS, OR THROUGH GERMANY AND ITALY.

IF THE AXIS CHOOSES TO SQUEEZE--TO CUT OFF ALL COMMUNICATIONS INTO SWITZERLAND--THEY CAN DO SO EASILY ENOUGH AND AT LITTLE COST. SWITZERLAND'S ONLY HOPE IS THAT THEY WILL NOT CHOOSE TO SQUEEZE.

ONE SIGN THAT THE SQUEEZE HAS AT LEAST BEEN POSTPONED IS THAT THE SWISS ECONOMIC NEGOTIATORS IN BERLIN FINALLY SIGNED AN AGREEMENT WITH GERMANY ON CLEARING AND TRADE WHICH IS TO EXTEND TO THE END OF JUNE, 1941.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TODAY CHARGED NAZI NIGHT RAIDERS WITH "INDISCRIMINATE BOMBING ATTACKS" IN MANY PARTS OF ENGLAND. ANY INDISCRIMINATE BOMBING OF CIVILIANS WOULD BE FOR THE PURPOSE OF CAUSING TERROR AND THEREBY SHATTERING PUBLIC MORALE.

THE SERMON.

THE OUTCOME OF THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN WILL DEPEND LARGELY TO MY MIND ON THE MORALE OF THE CIVILIAN POPULATIONS OF THE BELLIGERENTS, AND ON THE SPIRIT OF THE FIGHTING FORCES AS THEY ARE AFFECTED, NOT BY THEIR OWN DANGERS BUT BY THE DANGERS AND PRIVATIONS OF THEIR FOLK AT HOME.

LET'S TAKE AN ILLUSTRATION OF THE MEANING OF MORALE. THE WORLD WAR DISCLOSED THAT THE SOLDIERS WHO COLLAPSED THROUGH FEAR GENERALLY WERE THE BIG, STRAPPING CHAPS WHO WERE PHYSICALLY PERFECT BUT INTELLECTUALLY SLOW AND NOT USED TO THINKING FOR THEMSELVES. THE HIGHLY STRUNG, FAST-THINKING INTELLECTUAL FELLOW CAME THROUGH ALL RIGHT,

BECAUSE HE WAS ABLE TO ADAPT HIMSELF QUICKLY TO THE CRISIS AT HAND.
(MORE) EZ939AED

UNDATED-FIRST ADD MACKENZIE'S THE WAR TODAY XXX CRISIS AT HAND.

WE FOUND ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, TOO, THAT SOLDIERS FROM PRIMITIVE RACES COULDN'T STAND THE TERRORS OF MODERN WARFARE--THE BOMBING AND BIG-GUN BARRAGES AND WHAT NOT. THEY WERE BRAVE ENOUGH IN THEIR OWN TYPE OF COMBAT BUT COULDN'T COPE WITH THE SHOCK OF SOMETHING WHICH WAS WHOLLY MYSTERIOUS TO THEM.

IT'S DANGEROUS TO DRAW GENERAL CONCLUSIONS FROM ISOLATED CASES. HOWEVER, IT SEEMS REASONABLE TO BELIEVE THAT IN THE PRESENT WAR THE CIVIL POPULATIONS WHICH ARE MOST USED TO THINKING FOR THEMSELVES, AND SOLVING THEIR OWN PROBLEMS, WILL STAND BEST THE TORTURES WHICH ARE SURE TO COME. FEAR OFTEN IS BRED BY LACK OF UNDERSTANDING.

THIS WAR MORE THAN ANY OTHER IN HISTORY AFFECTS CIVILIAN MORALE. THE DEVELOPMENT OF AIRPOWER SINCE THE WORLD WAR HAS BROUGHT THE RIGORS OF THE BATTLE-FIELD TO INHABITANTS OF EVEN THE MOST REMOTE DISTRICTS OF EMBATTLED COUNTRIES. WE HAVE SEEN THE AWFUL EFFECTS OF THIS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, AMONG OTHER PLACES.

THE NAZI BIRD-MEN ARE BOMBING RURAL REGIONS OF THE BRITISH ISLES WHICH CERTAINLY NOT IN MODERN TIMES HAVE HEARD A GUN FIRED IN ANGER, MUCH LESS THE TERRIFYING DETONATION OF MONSTER BOMBS WHICH SCREAM LIKE DEVILS AS THEY APPROACH THEIR VICTIMS. BERLIN IS SMELLING GUN-POWDER FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE NAPOLEON.

TO THIS MUST BE ADDED THE EFFECTS OF BLOCKADE AND COUNTER-BLOCKADE, WHICH ULTIMATELY MAY SPELL DIRE HUNGER AND EVEN STARVATION FOR ONE OR MORE OF THE BELLIGERENTS--FOR MANY NEUTRALS, SO FAR AS THAT GOES. THREATS OF INVASION, AND ACTUAL INVASION, ALSO WILL PLAY THEIR PART.

THIS MEANS THAT ALL THE FEARS AND HATES AND MENTAL ANGUISH WHICH GROW OUT OF WARS ARE IMPOSED ON THE GENERAL PUBLICS--UPON THE NON-BELLIGERENTS OF THE POPULATIONS. THIS IS VASTLY IMPORTANT, FOR UPON THE MORALE OF THESE NON-BELLIGERENTS---THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN AND MEN NOT ATTACHED TO MILITARY TASKS--DEPENDS THE SUPPORT, BOTH MORAL AND MATERIAL, WHICH IS GIVEN TO THE FIGHTING FORCE.

THE GENERAL PUBLIC IS, OF COURSE, RESPONSIBLE THROUGH ITS EFFORTS FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF WAR SUPPLIES AND FOOD FOR THE BOYS IN UNIFORM; BUT IT ALSO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SPIRIT OF THE TROOPS THROUGH ITS OWN STATE OF MIND.

A SOLDIER REFLECTS THE MENTAL REACTIONS OF HIS FAMILY LIKE A MIRROR. THE OLD KAISER'S MEN FINALLY FALTERED IN THE WORLD WAR WHEN THEIR WOMEN-FOLK AND BABIES FACED STARVATION.

NATURALLY, TOO, MUCH DEPENDS ON THE PURPOSE OF THE WAR--UPON WHETHER THE PUBLIC AND THE FIGHTING FORCE HAVE THEIR HEARTS IN THE PROJECT. THE FALL OF FRANCE WAS DUE IN NO SMALL PART TO ITS LACK OF REALIZATION OF THE EXTENT OF THE THREAT TO THE EMPIRE AND THE HOME. THIS REALIZATION CAME TOO LATE.

BRITAIN LIKELY WAS SAVED A SIMILAR FATE BY THE ENGLISH CHANNEL WHICH IMPOSED A BARRIER TO THE ONRUSHING NAZIS. WITH THE THREAT TO COUNTRY AND FIRESIDE THRUST UPON THEM, THE SPIRIT OF THE POPULATION ROSE. THEY FINALLY HAD A FIGHTING SLOGAN WHICH SET THEIR HEARTS TO BURNING.

THE RESULT OF THIS REMARKABLE CHANGE HAS BEEN SHOWN IN THE STRONG RESISTANCE WHICH BRITAIN IS MAKING TO THE GERMAN ONSLAUGHT. IT IS REFLECTED IN THE ROYAL AIR FORCE, WHICH IS WRITING GREAT HISTORY.

COMING DAYS WILL TEST THE STRENGTH OF MORALE IN ALL THE BELLIGERENT COUNTRIES TO THE LIMIT. THE SIDE WHOSE CIVILIAN MORALE CRACKS FIRST WILL BE THE LOSER.

R. A. F. FIGHTERS BREAK UP WAVES; REICH CAPITAL AND LONDON HARD HIT

Enemy Strikes for Three Hours at German Metropolis in Night of Widespread Terror---Liverpool and Chatham Attacked Too---Thousands of Bombs Dropped on Britain by Nazis.

AUG 30 1940

By the Associated Press.

R. A. F. fighters intercepted a wave of 200 Nazi raiders flying at a great height over the southeast coast of England late today and drove them back.

German dive bombers smashed earlier the naval base of Portsmouth. They claimed to have left it a sea of flames. Last night was one of terror for 12,000,000 civilians in the fiercest air raids of the war over London and Berlin.

Nazi raiders also reported pre-dawn attacks against the big military and naval depot at Chatham, thirty miles southeast of London, and also against Liverpool.

Numbers were killed, and great fires were set by incendiary bombs in both capitals. In Berlin there were ten known dead and thirty wounded.

Fighters Break Up Assault

AUG 30 1940

LONDON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Nearly 200 German planes came over the southeast coast of England in waves at a great height late today. Some of them penetrated inland but fled when engaged by fighters, without dropping any bombs.

The Germans in widespread daylight forays today followed up their greatest night attack of the war in which thousands of incendiary and high explosive bombs wrought destruction, death and injury in all parts of England and Wales.

The renewal of the raids came in southeast England this afternoon. A little later raiders were reported over two Welsh towns.

A survey of the London area showed that thirteen districts were attacked in last night's raids, including four in the suburbs.

The night had shielded countless bombers in their shuttling forays over England and Wales.

[This afternoon London announced that German planes dropped many bombs over a wide area on Britain's west coast today, causing numerous fires, and this statement was promptly followed by a report from Berlin to the effect that a surprise dive attack today had made a "sea of flames" of the great naval base at Portsmouth, and a "desert full of craters" of a nearby airport.]

Some parts of the country were attacked by single planes, while others apparently were raided by successive waves of eighteen and twenty bombers each.

In London itself the Germans carried out the longest sustained attack of the war so far, lighting the night sky at times to a daylight brilliance with their fire warfare and blasting with high explosive bombs at many sections of the capital's outskirts in a seven-hour attack which lasted practically from darkness until dawn.

Throughout the metropolitan area, where the raiders seemed to mean business—this was no mere nuisance raid—bombs were dropped both by single planes and by small waves of planes.

It was the third consecutive night of intensive raiding throughout the country and the fifth successive night attack on the capital.

Despite the great number of attacking planes, only one was reported shot down during the night's operations. This bomber was caught in a searchlight beam over a southeast of England area and held there until a British fighter climbed to the attack. The lights then were turned off and the bomber was shot down.

Sky Brilliant With Fireworks.

The London sky was lighted up soon after the raids began, a combination of attack and defense weapons producing an unprecedented fireworks display. The raiders first dropped parachute flares and followed these with incendiary bombs.

The fires started by the bombs made deep glows visible for miles. The skies high above were pierced by hundreds of anti-aircraft searchlight beams as the capital's defenders called into service the biggest battery yet employed to ferret out the bombers.

Through all this brilliance there resounded the boom of exploding bombs—many could be heard from the very heart of London—and the clangor of scores of fire engines racing to attack the fires as soon as they were started.

Rail Service Tied Up.

In one London district alone more than sixty incendiary bombs fell, but 1,800 civil defense workers smothered them before they could do any damage. In the same district high explosive bombs damaged houses along the streets.

The London & North Eastern Railway suspended train service from London on one line and carried passengers by buses.

In another London section, three bombs were dropped simultaneously, one landing on top of a shelter, blowing it out of the ground—killing four members of one family who had taken refuge there.

In still another section of London a fire started by an incendiary bomb almost completely burned out an F. W. Woolworth three-penny and six-penney store.

Time Bomb Explodes Later.

Less than a quarter of a mile away, high explosive bombs demolished a number of workers' houses.

In another road, 100 yards away, several buildings were badly damaged. The police erected barricades, stopped all traffic and ordered the residents to move out.

The night shift in a factory in another section of London had taken shelter when an incendiary bomb hit the building. The fire brigade got the blaze under control before the main part of the factory was damaged.

Some bombs dropped in the London area were of the delayed action type. One of these, which fell on open ground, exploded after daylight today. Sixty persons had already been removed from nearby houses.

One bomb fell on open ground in a popular London residential district. There was no damage, however, and no casualties.

In one London suburb a hundred or so incendiary bombs and a dozen high explosive bombs were dropped over a two-square-mile area, starting fires which damaged some houses considerably. No casualties were reported, however.

Accused of Jay-raiding.

The Government accused the raiders of dropping bombs at random in the attack on London, while the use of incendiaries not only on London but throughout the entire country caused the British Press Association to describe the raid as Germany's "most venomous attack of the war against Britain." The bombers over London were called "jay-raiders."

The Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security declared in a joint communique that in London "some damage was done to houses, shops and other buildings, including a church," and "some casualties were caused, including a small number of fatal injuries."

The communique, which was longer than those usually issued on night raids, listed damage done and persons killed throughout the country, although as usual exact casualty figures were not made public.

In a southwest of England town the water supply was crippled; homes and industrial property were damaged in a Midland town and some persons were killed; industrial property, houses and other buildings were damaged "in a number of towns in the northeast and northwest" of England, and the casualties, although not numerous, included "some deaths."

In addition to these points specifically mentioned, the Government said that "elsewhere many incendiary bombs and some high explosive bombs were dropped," causing a small number of casualties, of which some were fatal.

Midland Areas Attacked.

One Midland town was attacke by raiders who cut out their mo tors to avoid attracting searc light beams and who glided dow to their attack. Some sevent bombs were dropped before Bri ish Spitfire fighter planes coul get into the air to engage them.

In one city in the Midlands tw streets of houses were wrecked b bombs.

A small town was struck by thirt bombs and the police chief the said: "It's a miracle we escaped heavy death toll. The town rocke with explosions."

Raiders were over another Mi land town for several hours, ar large numbers of incendiary ar high explosive bombs were droppe on a wide area. There were son casualties, a few of them fata and other victims were believe buried in the debris of wrecke houses. Gas and electricity se were interrupted.

Two persons were killed eral injured when a re over still another town in the Midlands and dropped five bombs, four of which fell in residential areas. A poorhouse was damaged here. Its inmates were moved elsewhere.

An elderly woman was killed and two other women were injured severely when a high explosive bomb struck farm buildings near an isolated Midland village.

In the North Midlands one town was raided for several hours; houses were damaged and one person was killed.

Northwest Coast Town Hit.

Waves of bombers over a northwest of England coastal town showered hundreds of incendiary bombs, damaging residential property. Only two casualties were reported there, however—a woman and her son were injured severely by a direct hit on their home.

Other bombers raided Wales for several hours, dropping bombs on several towns and villages in south Wales. Heavy anti-aircraft fire apparently turned them off from their main objectives. There was little damage there and only a few casualties were reported.

London Raided 6th Day; Scream Bombs Dropped

German Attackers Avoid Heart Of City, But Spread Out Over Rest Of Country — Several Incendiary Explosives Fall

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Aug. 30—Scream bombs dropped in a residential district of the London area caused a number of casualties early today.

While Nazi bombers generally avoided the metropolitan area or circled it warily, other raiders spread out over English towns and countryside.

A lone plane over a southeast coast town dropped a number of scream bombs without causing much property damage and with no casualties reported.

20 Explosive Bombs Fall

Some houses were damaged when about twenty high-explosive bombs and several fire-starters fell in a northeast coast town during the night.

The southeast coast area experienced three raids during the night, but bombs did negligible damage.

Over the capital itself there was little activity after a mass formation of 200 raiders was beaten off the southeast coast late yesterday by British fighters.

A steady glow rising from the city's outskirts late last night soon after the raiders were first heard about 11 P. M. suggested a fire bomb had been dropped, but no general air alarm had been sounded in London up to 2.30 A. M.

Contrast To Night Before

Tonight's raid was in sharp contrast to the seven-hour pummeling London took last night.

However, an inland northwestern town suffered its heaviest raid of the war today. Incendiary bombs plummeted down on one of its main streets, struck a vicarage and a cattle market. Casualties were not immediately determined. Refugees took shelter in hotel basements and available underground hideouts, as the raiders crossed the town again and again.

High-flying raiders also were active over northeastern coastal cities, weathering an intensive anti-aircraft barrage. Flares were seen dropping, followed by heavy explosions. Water mains in some country districts burst.

"Nuisance" Attack

Thus, it appeared that a "nuisance" visitation was under way—one designed not so much to destroy London buildings as to strain London nerves.

Summing up yesterday's daylight operations, the Ministry of Home Security declared early this morning that the Germans had machine-gunned civilians in the Scilly Isles and in a southwest town, that a small number of civilians had been injured, and some fires set off by Nazi incendiary bombs. Nine German planes were declared shot down yesterday, against three British craft lost.

During yesterday afternoon, British fighter planes had put to rout a 200-plane wave of German bombers which was heading for London.

A big formation of German fighter craft was beaten off, too, on the outskirts of a south coast town at 20,000 feet. They centered their attack on British barrage balloons, using aerial cannon. Three planes were destroyed in that single engagement, one of them British.

High Point Of Day War

Yesterday's battle over the Thames estuary marked the high point of daylight aerial activity for both belligerents.

It was the most ambitious effort in the Germans' daytime follow-up of a night of fire-making and explosive bombing such as England and Wales had never seen before. All parts of the country reported fires, demolition and death or injury to civilians as a result of the Wednesday-to-Thursday night assault. It was London's worst night of the war.

Other fighting in the southeast and over two Welsh towns yesterday were minor actions, and at day's end there were no reports of damage or casualties.

More Retaliatory Attacks

Despite the comparative lull, both Britain and Germany seemed to be building up to even fiercer retaliatory attacks.

The Admiralty and Air Ministry joined in picturing far-flung assaults during the preceding twenty-four hours on plane factories, oil plants and air fields in Germany—aside from Berlin—and oil tanks, a motor patrol vessel and a supply ship along the German-controlled Norwegian coast.

The Admiralty sent its dive bombers over the Norwegian coast yesterday. These planes, which the British call Skuas (after a gull found along the north European coast), scored direct hits on two remaining tanks of an oil depot previously bombed.

Ranging out from there the Skuas left burning a motor patrol vessel in a Norwegian fjord and scored two hits on a 2,000-ton supply vessel, according to the Admiralty.

All Return Safely

"All our aircraft returned safely," the communique concluded.

The Air Ministry's earlier account of the overnight British raids said plane factories at Leipzig and Dessau, oil plants at Reisholz, Dortmund and Nordenham and numerous air fields were bombed.

"A large vessel in the canal near Rathenau, twenty-five miles west of Berlin, sustained a direct hit and exploded," the Air Ministry said. "All our aircraft returned. Two made forced landings but their crews are safe."

Officially Britain emphasized the "apparent aimlessness" of Germany's raids and minimized their efforts on industrial production and morale.

King Carries Revolver

Symbolic of the country's grim decision to carry on in face of all contingencies was the appearance of King George at a northwest shipyard with a service revolver strapped to his Sam Browne belt. He and Queen Elizabeth each drove rivets into the keel plates of a new warship.

An Air Ministry official said that the Germans' "apparent objective of terrorizing" the civilian population of London had failed completely.

"For example," he said, "it is impossible to believe that the enemy can have had any specific targets in the London area in mind, and certainly no military objectives.

"The bombers mostly flew at very great heights and dropped their bombs at scattered points with no apparent plan.

Object Is To Terrorize

"It can only be assumed that the object is to terrorize the civil population and Londoners are best able to judge for themselves how completely these attempts fail."

The official declared the R. A. F.'s campaign against Germany is confined to "carefully planned attacks on military objectives and is known to be achieving valuable results."

Various measures have been adopted in industrial centers to beat the German raiders, another informed source said.

Some factories have roof-top watchers who go on duty as soon as sirens sound and wait until the approach of planes or bombs and anti-aircraft shells necessitate taking refuge. Until that final signal production continues uninterrupted.

Speeds Early Production

The way in which one London factory has speeded early evening production to allow for the slack occasioned by air raids is likely to be followed by many other plants, it was said.

"It is a voluntary effort by employes, and this week's results show that the nightly air-raid warning interruptions has had no serious effect on output," this source said.

Most householders have worked out their own problem of getting sufficient rest by fitting out their shelters with mattresses and cots, and when the sirens wail they go straight to the shelter and stay there until dawn.

Berlin's air-raid cellars demonstrated their worth last night, it is asserted here. One mother, it is reported, hadn't the heart to awaken her two children, who were sleeping peacefully, so she went to the cellar alone, leaving the children in their bedroom. Both children were killed while the mother was unscathed in the cellar when the house was struck.

Northeast City Blasted.

A number of casualties, including two dead, were reported from a Northeast of England city where about thirty bombs fell in an almost straight line across the town. Two delayed-action bombs exploded later, causing further casualties. Most of the damage was done to workers' homes, it was said.

In another Northeast city a young woman was killed and several other persons injured, two seriously, in a raid which lasted only two minutes. The attacking plane cut its motor, glided silently over the town, dropped three bombs and then flew out to sea.

Called Another Hitler Failure.

The Press Association, in its account of the raids, said that Adolf Hitler had sent "fire raiders to scatter their incendiaries indiscriminately in widespread areas."

"Bombing with high explosives was of a minor character," the agency said. "But according to reports reaching the Press Association incendiaries were furtively showered on towns, villages and open heaths.

"Despite hundreds of incendiaries dropped, the damage was extremely slight and certainly of no military importance. The civil defense, where tested, came through brilliant, stirrup pumps beating the incendiaries, and the raiders' fire bombs mission will go down as another of Hitler's failures."

Meanwhile today the Air Ministry announced that twenty-eight German planes were destroyed over Britain yesterday and that the British lost fourteen.

Tell of Attack on Portsmouth

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Swift units of the German Air Force dived at the British naval base of Portsmouth today in a surprise attack, a flying writer for DNB, the German official news agency, reported.

Two airports in southeast England cut out for particular attack were named as much-bombed Eastchurch and Southend.

German reporter-flyers returning from early morning attacks on Britain used such phrases as "a sea of flames" to describe the effect of a surprise dive bomber onslaught upon the Portsmouth naval base, and "a desert full of craters" to indicate the damage done to a nearby airfield.

Says Liverpool Was Attacked.

Earlier today informed spokesmen had said that port facilities at Liverpool were heavily attacked last night.

Wide-ranging bomb attacks on British seaports, armament plants and airports and continued mining of harbors by Germany's flying mine-layers were reported by the German High Command.

The Nazi spokesmen said that raids were carried out "with notable success" against Chatham, important military and naval center thirty miles southeast of London; Thameshaven, on the north shore of the Thames Estuary, and Middlesborough, a North Sea port in Yorkshire.

German observation planes returning to home bases after dawn reported dense smoke hampering visibility over the attacked areas, it was stated, indicating heavy fires below.

Meanwhile today, DNB, in reporting on yesterday's activity by the Nazi air force, claimed that only two British airdromes near the Thames Estuary had been attacked, with a limited number of planes engaged and only two air fights in which a few planes were shot down.

Silent on London Raid.

The DNB report made no mention of yesterday's attack on London.

The British capital had a seven-hour and ten-minute air raid alarm during the night and up to sunrise yesterday.

Sight of Berlin by Fire Bombs Described by British Raid Pilots

Fliers Tell, in Air Ministry Statement, of Spotting Target at German Capital by Means of Each Others' Explosives

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 29—The Air Ministry tonight described last night's British raid on Berlin as a methodical enterprise in which explosives and fire bombs were loosed "on a series of carefully selected military objectives and on works vital to war production."

In a supplemental statement to its communiqué the Ministry told this story of the assault:

"Aircraft drawn from two squadrons made a special attack on one objective only four miles from the center of the city. Every pilot in the two squadrons wanted to be in on the raid. Their keenness amounted to competition.

"'You couldn't have bought a seat in any of the aircraft for any amount of money,' said a senior intelligence officer.

"In one case two pilots 'tossed for it.' They normally were the first and second pilots of the same aircraft. Their difficulty, however, was that their machine had been more or less commandeered by the squadron's commanding officer, who, not having his own machine available, declared that in no circumstances was he going to miss 'this big show.'

Two Pilots Toss for Flight

"That meant either that the first or second pilot had to stand out (stay at home). Each protested he was entitled to go. The wing commander thought it over for a minute. Then he told them to toss up for it.

"It was just as dusk was gathering that the aircraft set off. Within three hours, one of the raiding force returned. Some technical trouble had developed on the way out and the pilot had had to turn back, jettisoning his bombs in the sea.

"'We'd have liked to have gone on,' he said, 'but we daren't risk it.'

"There was a wait of a few more hours and then a sergeant pilot and his crew landed.

"They marched into the intelligence room together, unruffled and excited, to give their account of the raid. The rear gunner, a stockily built Scotsman, was carrying a toy Scotty dog as a mascot.

"'He's been everywhere,' said the gunner, 'to Heligoland, Stavanger, France, over a whole lot of German territory—and now, Berlin.'

"'We went straight to Berlin and straight back,' said the sergeant pilot. 'We took seven hours exactly.'

"As they sat being interrogated by an intelligence officer the roar of the other planes returning could be overheard.

"Soon their crews began to fill the room.

"The captain of the second aircraft—a young pilot officer—told his story next. They had attacked the (Berlin) power station.

Cruising Over Reich Capital Told

"'We bombed at 12 o'clock—dead on midnight,' he said. 'Somebody had been there before us. When we arrived we found the target well on fire. We could see it when we were twenty-five minutes' flying time away from the target.

"We came in more or less north to south and put our stick (series) of bombs down just to the left of this big fire. Then four more fires started. They were burning with very bright white lights. Altogether, we were cruising round over Berlin for about half an hour.'

"Another pilot said:

"'Many of the bombers were over Berlin at the same time, while in other parts of the outskirts those from other groups taking part in the night's operations could be seen in the distance.

"'I saw eight or ten flares dropping over Berlin and about a dozen lots of other people's bombs going down during the time we were there. We spent fifty minutes over the city.'

"Intense searchlight activity, allied to some haze, prevented several pilots, who made their attacks from various heights and different directions, from observing the results. But when a few minutes after midnight one aircraft dropped its high explosives and incendiaries the haze had cleared sufficiently to enable the pilot to note four fires which broke out in the south-central part of the target.

"At twenty minutes past 12, following yet another salvo across buildings, there was a violent explosion and a large fire which could be seen burning fiercly fifteen minutes after the attack."

R. A. F. Defenders Repel Barrage Balloon Attack

Rout Messerschmitts, Down Two Over Coast Town

A SOUTHEAST COAST TOWN, England, Aug. 29 (AP).—A wedge of German Messerschmitt fighters swooped from 20,000 feet on barrage balloons at the edge of this town tonight, their aerial cannons belching, but met their match from defending Spitfires and Hurricanes of the coastal defense.

Raiders and defenders spiraled in a series of high dogfights, and within a few minutes the first plane hurtled to earth a few miles inland.

Then two others, one of them British, spun out of the mass. One fell like a stone, and when it crashed the explosion of its gasoline tank could be heard for miles.

A Royal Air Force pilot bailed out from the other. He fell in the sea a few yards from shore and was rescued by a naval torpedo-boat.

Four of the Messerschmitts headed for home amid anti-aircraft bursts.

"If sirens went off in every area across which the raiders fly, a handful of raiders could stop production everywhere," the paper pointed out, "and several million people would lose their sleep to no purpose.

"So sirens will sound only in areas where an attack is thought likely. Even then, often enough the attack does not mature or bombs are dropped only on one or two widely separated spots."

Raid Sirens' Use Reduced To Let Londoners Sleep

Light Warning in Arms Plant Cuts False-Alarm Losses

LONDON, Aug. 29 (AP).—New air raid warning tactics were in effect tonight in an effort to save Londoners' sleep and reduce the number of false alarms which send armament workers into shelters and disrupt production each time an enemy bomber nears.

Hereafter, in hospitals, factories and public service stations, a "purple" light warning will be used as a stand-by signal preliminary to the "red" flash which is equivalent to the sound of sirens.

This new measure perhaps explains why London authorities did not immediately sound the sirens tonight even though Nazi raiders were hovering near the capital.

'The Daily Herald," commending the new policy, admitted the public would undergo "unavoidable risks" with the new system but expressed belief Britons would indorse it.

England Finds Herself

This frank British viewpoint of the war with Germany is written for the Associated Press by Evelyn A. Montague, of the Manchester Guardian. Mr. Montague served with the British Expeditionary Forces as a war correspondent. He is a son of the late C. E. Montague, the famous essayist and novelist.

By E. A. MONTAGUE

London, Aug. 29—Britain today is a happy country! That is the strangest thing that has happened to us in all this strange year.

I am a happy man! My home has been broken up, my child is in one part of the country, my possessions in another. My wife and I are in a third, living in a stranger's house, overtaxed, overworked, uncertain of the future, cut off from most of our small pleasures, restricted in our movements, threatened with invasion.

But we are happier than we were twelve months ago.

Twenty-two years of unnatural living are behind the change. They began in 1918 when a million or two of our soldiers came home vowing that there should be no more war for any reason whatever.

It was natural that exhausted men whose too simple hopes of the millennium had been disappointed, and who, had been bloodily mishandled by some of their commanders, should feel that way for a time. But the temporary neurosis became a settled principle, buttressed by bad theology, slipshod logic and plain materialism. It sank deep into British minds and has influenced all our policies ever since, usually for the worse.

It began to take extravagant forms as time went on. Ignoring all the evidence, we deluded ourselves that a tough revengeful people could be won away from their purpose by our disarmament.

Our more amiable qualities—readiness to believe other men's word, friendliness toward a beaten enemy—helped to foster the delusion.

Some of us became ashamed of our own warlike history and of the empire which it had won for us; the world resounded with our cries of remorse.

We upheld the League of Nations with promises which we could not perform. We tried to persuade ourselves that we could tame the Italian lion by letting him run about loose, but keeping his food away from him.

In the end the British Labor party got itself into the ludicrous position of demanding that we should fight for the League of Nations, but not provide ourselves with the arms to do it, and the Conservative party did neither.

War was the ultimate evil; we admitted no other.

Disillusion Painful

Disillusion was slow and painful. It began for us in China, it went on in Abyssinia, Spain, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia. With deepening anger, the British, one of the great fighting races of the world, with a record of victory unbroken since the American Revolution, saw themselves outmaneuvered or elbowed aside when they tried to help the oppressed nations. But they clung to their theory that somehow things could be put right and justice done without violence. The hatred of war was still too strong in them for reason.

At last came Munich, with its scene of hysterical relief in the House of Commons and its fury of shame in the hearts of many Britons who could not make themselves heard. Happy or bitter, all of us knew then—or very soon afterward—that the dream was over.

We took stock of our armaments and set to work to make good the years that the locust had eaten.

Grew More Bitter

And all through the year that followed, as we tuned up our armament factories, built our air-raid shelters and trained our civilian army, we grew more bitter as we realized more fully how we had been fooled.

The patience of the Government outlasted the patience of the people. On the eve of war, when Chamberlain made a speech in the House of Commons which suggested that he was ready to condone even the invasion of Poland, Arthur Greenwood got up to reply for the Labor opposition, and Government backbenchers, in an agony of shame and rage, cried out to him, "Speak for England."

Their voices were the voice of England taking charge at last, saying, "No more of these hesitations, this appeasement which leaves us in the end nothing but a choice between dishonors. Life is not so precious as we have made ourselves believe. Death is not so horrible as compromise with tyranny and enslavement. We are going to fight until either this nation or Hitler is destroyed."

Government Listened

The Government listened to the voice of England. Two days later we were at war, and over all of us hung the certainty of loss and the destruction of hopes, the possibility of death. But we were happy at last.

"We have had bad times since then. . . . We were distressed and worried by the 'phony war' and angered by the retreat from Norway. There were black days when Leopold laid down his arms with a suddenness that invited a harder name, when our troops seemed inescapably trapped at Dunkerque, when Petain withdrew France from the struggle and left us to fight alone.

When France surrendered it seemed for the first and last time that we might not win.

But the good times have outweighed the bad.

The rapturous ecstasy of the whole British people over the rescue of the B. E. F. from Dunkerque was not wholly, or even mainly, joy at the saving of husbands and sons.

Faith Recovered

It was the happiness of recovering our faith in ourselves, sapped by years of unnatural meekness in the face of insolent injustice. When the heroic story of Dunkerque became known, every Briton said to himself exultantly, "By God, we are a great people still. We are the great fighters and adventurers of the world. What other army and navy could have done it?"

From that moment this nation was twice as formidable as it had been before.

We have had other rapturous moments, when Narvik or Oran or the River Plate showed that we had recovered our ancient knack of striking hard and quick, without waiting to apologize beforehand, when we knew that right was on our side.

This year of war has been for us a process of discovering that we still have the barbaric virtues which we have been so busy condemning for twenty-two years.

Young Men Heroic

Our young men are still capable of being simple-hearted and heroic. The boys who a few years ago as students at Oxford were announcing that they would not fight for King and country have fought the Germans in the sky with such fantastic daring that the outside world finds it hard to believe the stories of their victories. But we, knowing them, believe and rejoice every day that the grime has been rubbed off and has left the gold untarnished.

That is why now, at the moment when war is on their own doorstep, the British are more confident than they have been at any time since last September. They have grown steadily younger, more primitive, if you like, more simple, unperplexed, self-reliant and proud.

Doctors are pointing out that nervous troubles in Britain have decreased since the war began. The civilians of Britain have faced the bombing raids of the last few weeks with untroubled and humorous fortitude. The years have fallen away from the veterans of the last war who are now in the home guard; they are aching to meet the enemy whom they have beaten once before.

We do not regret our lost Allies; we have more faith in ourselves.

Public Confidence Complete

Public confidence in victory is so complete that in the last month or two ordinary men's minds and talk have turned more and more to what we will make of Britain and the world after the victory.

The mood of the moment is propitious for such discussion. The common purpose, passionately held, has drawn us all together; Britain has never been so united in living memory as it is today. It is a purpose for which we are ready, quite simply, to give everything we have. Already we have given much—comfort and money, family life, leisure, freedom of personal behavior.

Comfort, though they have had more or it than most, has never been necessary to the British; if it had been, they would never have colonized the world. Now they are living uncomfortably (and rather liking it, incidentally), and the greed of personal ownership has receded from their minds. They are serving something outside themselves.

New Feelings Working

The result has been the growth in unexpected soil—men who used to be preoccupied with their own privileges and possessions—of a new sense of national comradeship and a new conscience. These feelings are beginning to work in ways that may make a better nation here when the war has been won.

So you see us—excited, interested, confident, frankly enjoying a situation which exactly suits our national temperament.

We have no exaggerated respect for one of our enemies and the most complete contempt for the other.

We are busy, pleased with what we have done so far, delighted to find that we can still enjoy discomfort and danger adventurously.

Do you wonder that we are happy?

Finds British Confident They Can "Stick It Out"

By DREW MIDDLETON

Associated Press Correspondent

With The British Army's Southern Command, In The Field, Aug. 29—In three days' travel through military and naval areas which the Germans have been bombing nightly I have found little damage which would hinder Britain's war effort, an unshaken faith among soldiers and civilians that they can "stick it out"—and considerable contempt for German marksmanship.

A British officer told me service casualties have been one soldier killed and "a very few injured, and they not seriously."

Lists Damage Seen

Officers have allowed me to go where I wished and I personally have seen this damage:

In a machine shop where recruits are taught to use tooling machines: Two machines damaged, shop partly damaged, but now well on the way to reconstruction. No casualties.

A vicar and his housekeeper shaken up by two bombs which fell near his house, miles from any military objective.

The wing of an old folks' home hit by a bomb. Twelve sick and feeble old people killed. Home considerable distance from any military objectives.

Predict Nazi Defeat

The men of this army of defenders tell you stanchly that Adolf Hitler's invasion "which may come any night" will be defeated by mobile British columns because "we have improved on the German's new conception of warfare. We will defeat him at his own game as we always have."

Not only that, these officers here claim their vast training program is getting them ready for "future offensives" of their own.

Lieut.-Gen. C. J. E. Auchinleck, commander in chief of the southern command, who scored Britain's sole land success in Norway by leading a mixed force of Poles, French and British in the capture of Narvik, says:

"In Flanders and France we learned that first of all we must have increased cooperation between the army, navy and the air force. We really get inside each other's minds now and we meet at the high-water mark on the beaches of Britain. . . .

Mobility Increased

"Now we have increased mobility so that mobile columns, working with the R. A. F., will be able to converge on any single stretch of flat country here if the German high command selects it as a landing port."

"The Germans will try it, all right," he concluded. "They will not care how many men are killed in landing, or how many troop carriers crash.

"But I, my commanders and men, down to the greenest recruit, know they will get a hot reception."

Running The Bomb Gantlet In A Bus

By MILO M. THOMPSON, Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

London, Aug. 29—There is nothing quite like riding across the industrial section of this blacked-out city in a blacked-out bus at the height of London's greatest air raid.

When I emerged early today from one of the Associated Press' outposts into the eerie half-light half-shadow contrived by the blackout and hundreds of searchlights, I had little hope of catching a bus.

They normally would all be lined up along the curbs until the all-clear signal came. I was resigned to several miles of walking interspersed by dashes into shelter.

But I was wrong. Above the humming beat of German propellers overhead I caught the sound of an approaching bus. How it came to be in operation at that time was a mystery.

I flagged it down and clambered in, notwithstanding the conductor's warning that it was bound only as far as a certain bridge. (The British censor likes to have people say "certain bridge" instead of naming it.)

I sat in darkness with other passengers.

Blackout Defied

The bus rolled forward, gaining speed that defied the blackout. We whipped and turned down what seemed an alley lined by great shafts of light groping for the planes above.

There was no other traffic and there was just enough diffused light from London's defensive searchlights to show our driver the way. No one talked.

I sat on the edge of the seat as the bus careened around corners. It seemed that the trip would never end, although it must have taken only a few minutes. The sound of bombs and anti-aircraft fire welled up in the distance.

Reaches Destination

Finally the bus slowed down at its destination and the conductor out of habit called out, "all change." Of course, there was nothing to change to.

The bridge loomed up beyond. If the streets I had traveled had not been likely targets, this bridge certainly would be. I stepped off into its unknown darkness.

Seemed Endless

From the moving apexes of the searchlight cones in the sky I felt sure that a German plane was overhead. He seemed to be almost at my neck. It was like walking past the cemetery as a child.

The hundreds of yards of the bridge seemed endless and the altitude of the droning plane so slight. I restrained an impulse to run.

Finally I reached the end of the bridge and the home guardsmen on duty there passed me on. I moved hastily to the dubious shelter of brick walls.

Three-hour Raid on Berlin

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Roaring high over the German capital for nearly three hours before the dawn today, British bombers took a toll of ten killed and about thirty wounded in a workers' section less than two miles from the Government offices in the Wilhelmstrasse.

All the casualties were civilians. Preliminary reports gave no word of death or injury to soldiers.

While the results of an early-morning automobile inspection tour appeared to bear out the authorities' claim that no military objectives of consequence had been hit, army officers, firemen and policemen hastened to Kottbusser street, in the southeastern part of the city, where the chief damage was done.

The officers took technical notes; the firemen fought blazes started by incendiary bombs, and the police investigated reports that the British had released delayed action bombs which might go off hours or even days after being dropped.

One British plane was brought down in the attack, the High Command said, bringing to forty-four its reports of Britain's losses yesterday and last night. Germany admitted losing fifteen.

It was Berlin's worst air raid. British planes crossed and recrossed the heart of the city as they dropped thundering charges but two miles from Adolf Hitler's Chancellery.

British planes intentionally attacked residential sections of the Reich's capital, the daily Berlin communique said, and added that incendiary and explosive bombs killed or injured numerous civilians and caused damage to several apartment houses with attic fires.

Main Damage in Single Block.

Through arrangement with the Propaganda Ministry, three American newspaper men, including an Associated Press correspondent, were taken on a two-hour tour. They visited Kottbusser street and also were taken to whatever potential military targets they wished to visit.

Such places as the Tempelhof Airdrome, where civilian planes were being warmed up; the Klingenberg power plant, which supplies half of Berlin, and the railway stations were all undamaged. It was impossible, however, to cover all the possible points of military importance on the flying trip, but the only damage the correspondents saw was to dwellings and pavement.

In one block in crowded Kottbusser street, where the dead included a woman and a sixteen-year-old girl and three other persons killed in one building, about a dozen 100-pound high explosive bombs and an even larger number of incendiaries had apparently fallen.

Came on Heels of Alarm.

Bombs dropped within ten minutes of the first sounding of the alarm at 12:24 A. M., and the damage was done while many Berliners were en route to shelters.

An air raid warden directing people to the shelters was badly wounded, a bomb fragment severing both his legs. The dead and injured were on the sidewalks or in doorways. Incendiary bombs set fire to three flats at the same moment. Other incendiaries, dropping into a gaping hole ripped in the roof of a building by a high explosive bomb, started fires throughout one house.

Raiders Can't Be Picked Out.

Incendiary bombs apparently outnumbered the high explosives dropped by the British planes, for roof fires were reported from several parts of the city. None, however, was of the size of those in Kottbusser street, the glow of which could be seen in the heart of the city.

High explosives dug two ten-foot craters, five feet deep, in the middle of the street. Sidewalks were covered with shattered glass for a block in every direction. Army officers said that the nearest objective of any military consequence was a railway station about half a mile away.

So high were the raiders that powerful searchlights were unable to pick them out, despite a cloudless sky and only the heaviest anti-aircraft guns were called into action.

The British dropped flares, as well as bombs, particularly in the western section of the city. Some were snuffed out by anti-aircraft fire, others hung over this part of the capital for several minutes each.

R. A. F. Ranges Widely.

LONDON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—British bombers last night attacked several important targets in the Berlin area during extensive raids on military objectives in Germany, Holland and France, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

A large vessel lying in a canal near Rathenow, twenty-five miles west of Berlin, was directly hit and exploded, the Ministry announced.

"Other aircraft attacked the airplane factory at Leipzig, the Junkers works at Dessau, oil plants at Reisholz, Dortmund and Nordenham, north of Bremen, and several enemy airdromes," said the communique.

One important British attack on the vital synthetic gasoline producing plant at Leuna, near Leipzig, was acknowledged, but the Germans asserted that only slight damage was wrought.

The Admiralty announced today that Great Britain's Fleet Air Arm delivered smashing blows at German oil depots on the Norwegian coast yesterday.

A communique declared that the two remaining oil tanks at a depot previously attacked were hit, that a motor patrol vessel was set on fire and that two direct hits were scored on a 2,000-ton supply ship.

All the attacking planes, it was added, returned safely.

Nazis Hammer Foe's Coast

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Nazi air force beat heavily at England's coast today in retaliation for a three-hour raid on Berlin by British bombers, the most punishing ever made on this capital.

While men still searched in Berlin's streets for British time bombs, the German command loosed squadrons of Stukas (dive bombers) upon the British naval base of Portsmouth. Returning pilots declared a surprise attack was hammered home spectacularly in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire. When they left, they said, Portsmouth Harbor was "a sea of flames" and a near-by airdrome was "a desert full of craters."

Both incendiary and demolition bombs were dropped in the morning darkness on Liverpool harbor, on Chatham, the military and naval center thirty miles southeast of London; on Thameshaven, lying on the north shore of the Thames estuary; on the ports of Middlesbrough, Cardiff and Bristol; on the airports of Eastchurch and Southend, in southeast England, and on munitions, armament and airplane plants at Sheffield, Norwich and Coventry.

One important British attack on a military objective—the synthetic gasoline plant at Leuna, near Leipzig—was acknowledged, but Germans asserted only slight damage was wrought.

As to the bombing of Berlin, during which the British raiders dropped explosives within two miles of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's headquarters in the Wilhelmstrasse, the Nazi high command declared that residential sections were "intentionally attacked."

At least ten persons were killed and thirty injured, most of them in a working-class section. A series of fires was set off and bomb craters were left in various parts of the city. One of the attacking planes was shot down. German authorities declared that no material military objectives were hit, and foreign correspondents, in a quick trip of inspection, saw no damage of military importance.

The afternoon press discussed these rules defiantly. The "Berliner Boersen Zeitung" said: "The intention is obvious that the civilian population should be terrorized and their nerves shattered. London may rest assured, however, that no people have such good nerves as the German people, who are absolutely aware of the seriousness of war and who are ready to make any sacrifice in the future."

It was announced that in future raids all telephones and telegraph communication from Germany will be halted until half an hour after the all-clear signals. Then, it was said, automobiles will be put at the disposal of foreign correspondents to inspect any section of Berlin or its suburbs they desire.

No information may be sent from Germany while raids are in progress, it was added, lest British aviators intercept such messages and use them for military purposes.

Eight Berlin districts, authorized sources said, were struck by bombs in last night's raid: Wilhelmsruh, Reinickendorf, Wedding, formerly a strongly Communist working-class district; Weissensee, Moabit, one of whose landmarks is a prison; the Kottbusser gate district, not far from Tempelhof airport; the Goerlitzer railway station district, and Gruenau, where the rowing contests of the Olympic Games were held in 1936.

In the war at sea, the German high command announced that a single submarine, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Schepke, had reported sinking seven armed British merchant ships totaling 43,000 tons. Five of them were said to have been "shot from a strongly protected convoy."

NEW AFRICAN LANDS JOIN BRITAIN'S SIDE

French Cameroons And Congo Follow Lead Of Chad Territory

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 29—The French Cameroons and Congo have followed the lead of the Chad territory and entered the war at Britain's side, turning substantially the whole of French equatorial Africa into a British ally, Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced tonight.

Thus more than a million square miles of territory has been aligned with Britain, opening a vast corridor from the South Atlantic to Italian Libya, and creating an uninterrupted British land bridge connecting the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and Red Seas.

Britain, military observers remarked, will be afforded a guarantee of the maintenance of communications for attacks on the Italian colonial empire.

Mum On War Implications

General de Gaulle, head of French forces refusing to accept the surrender to Germany ordered by the Government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and organizing to fight on, did not himself discuss the military implications of the action.

At his headquarters, however, it was declared that their new status as belligerents would sharply restrict Italian and German naval and air movements.

It was said, too, that not only were native troops available in those areas but that there were "a certain number" of airplanes there.

Believed Already Active

There was speculation that Colonel de Larminat, former chief of staff of the French armies in the Near East, already was active in equatorial Africa. It was recalled that only recently he came here from Syria for conversations with de Gaulle, and then left hurriedly on a mission that never has been disclosed.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—A broadcast of the British Broadcasting Corporation heard in New York said General de Gaulle had appointed de Larminat to be high commissioner of French equatorial Africa and Lieutenant Colonel le Clerc to be high commissioner for the Cameroons.]

The British Ministry of Information announced tonight that Gen. Jean Catroux, ousted by the Petain Government as Governor General of French Indo-China, had joined de Gaulle's forces.

De Gaulle himself, speaking over the British radio, appealed to every part of the old French Empire to stand with equatorial Africa.

"I call to duty each French territory for the work of national defense," he said. "I call the army, the navy and the French air force to arms. There remain glories to be garnered for our flag."

Vichy Government Hits Back At Africa Colonies

Vichy, France, Aug. 29 (AP)—The Petain-Laval Government struck back today at what it termed British-inspired rebellions in France's colonial empire by relieving three governors general of their posts and reinforcing the French administration in Indo-China.

The powers of Vice-Admiral Jean De Coux, new Petain-appointed Governor General of Indo-China, were increased with respect to control of the colony's five component provinces.

The Government moved swiftly in connection with African and Pacific colonies, dismissing the governors of the Chad region in equatorial Africa, the Cameroons mandate on the African west coast and New Caledonia in the southern Pacific.

Italians Report Suez Bombed

Declare Raiders Struck North End of Canal —Claim Capture of Sudan Outpost.

ROME, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Fascist warplanes bombed the Suez Canal for the first time yesterday, the Italian High Command announced today. Bombs were dropped on the northernmost part of the canal, between Port Said and Ismailia, it was stated, as well as on the Alcantara Ferry, where the railroad line passes between Egypt and Palestine.

The daily communique also reported another raid on Alexandria, Egyptian port where the British maintain an important naval base.

[A British communique yesterday said that Port Said was bombed for more than an hour, but that there were no casualties and no damage.]

British attempts to invade Eritrea, Italian East Africa, from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan were beaten off, the High Command reported, by Italian troops re-enforced by native Askaris. More than a dozen Australians were said to have been killed.

The Italians also claimed to have occupied a British outpost, Fort Polignac, near Lake Rudolph, using native Italian Somali troops, and to have defeated a British raid on Galabat, an Italian outpost in the Sudan.

Report Convoy Bombed.

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio today broadcast a dispatch from Athens asserting that a strongly-escorted British convoy, including Egyptian and Turkish merchant ships, was bombed last evening by Italian planes between the Greek islands of Chios and Nikaria.

The Egyptian 3,400-ton freighter Ghikah was reported sunk by two bombs.

Another unidentified freighter was described as seriously damaged and continuing its journey with a heavy list.

AXIS DEMANDS GIVEN HUNGARY AND RUMANIA

Foreign Ministers Inform Their Governments and Wait.

FRONTIER FIGHTING REPORTED

Ciano and von Ribbentrop Keep Opponents Apart at Vienna Border Conference.

VIENNA, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Hungarian and Rumanian delegations, brought to this capital of old Austria by axis governments, communicated the suggestions of Rome and Berlin for a Transylvanian settlement to their respective governments today after separate two-hour talks with German and Italian Foreign Ministers.

German spokesmen said that from various signs it can be presumed that conclusive results will be reached, perhaps tomorrow.

The Hungarians, Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky, and the Rumanians, Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilecu and his aids, had not yet come together in a four-Power roundtable to discuss any proposed new frontier, but had been restrictd to the separate talks with Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, the German and Italian Foreign Ministers.

The preliminary discussions were held at the Imperial Hotel, headquarters of von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano. Old Belvedere Palace was in readiness, however, for more formal conferences later on, if it is decided to bring representatives of all four nations together around a single table.

A German spokesman said that the talks would be conducted "in a spirit of comradely co-operation." He declined to discuss the possibility that arbitration might be necessary.

"No hard and fast program has been laid down," he declared, but the following objectives were summarized: 1. Quiet. 2. Peace. 3. Order. 4. Contentment, and, 5. Lasting stability.

Such a solution is uppermost in the minds of Germans and Italians because, one spokesman said, "These discussions cannot be separated from the fact that war is being waged" and Germany wants peace at her back so she may draw upon Balkan raw materials without interference.

The Nazi press emphasized that the four-Power meeting "will be of importance not only for the future fashioning of the Southeast, but also of Europe and the world. Here great English intrigue of the post-war period is being liquidated."

The conference was reminiscent of the Axis-arbitrated settlement between Hungary and Czecho-Slovakia in November, 1938, also at Vienna, as a result of which the since liquidated Czecho-Slovak Republic yielded Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) to Hungary. Count Ciano and von Ribbentrop were the Axis representatives on that occasion, too.

Air Forces in Battle.

But, even as the delegates converged upon Vienna, Rumania formally accused the Hungarian Air Force of "real acts of hostility" in connection with air clashes over their border, and announced officially that she was adopting a policy of force to repel any further the Hungarian incursions.

Hungary countered with charges that the Rumanian Air Force was sending planes on reconnaissance flights over her territory.

Recent incidents on Rumania's border with Soviet Russia also appeared to figure in the situation. Although the German wireless minimized this angle, there was plainly apparent an air of urgency in the suddenness with which today's conference was called and the number of important diplomats attending.

It was also acknowledged by German spokesmen that any serious Russo-Rumanian clash would make it urgent that a quick settlement of the Balkan situation be arrived at. Southwestern Europe is an important source of war supplies for Germany, particularly oil and wheat.

[The Rumanian Army last night announced withdrawal of certain of its units from the Russian frontier to the interior, adding that the bulk of the army units would now remain "where they are." Previously there had been border clashes in which hundreds of soldiers were reported killed.]

Viewpoints Widely Apart.

Germans acknowledged the recent negotiations at Turnu-Severin showed the Rumanian and Hungarian viewpoints to be so divergent that no immediate direct understanding could be arrived at, despite the desire of the axis to settle the problem speedily in order to give undivided attention to the war with Great Britain.

However, German spokesmen have denied that they intend to arbitrate the dispute. They repeated today their insistence the axis does not intend to dictate a settlement, but rather will do its utmost with suggestions and advice to both sides to adopt a conciliatory attitude to help them arrive at a compromise.

Hungary is demanding the restoration of practically everything Rumania took from her as a result of the world war; or approximately five-sixths of Transylvania. Rumania, on the other hand, is said to desire to begin a settlement by shifting respective national minorities, with a cession of a narrow strip of territory to be considered later.

The conference was expected to last for several days.

Rumanians Flee Red Troops.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Fearful of new clashes between Soviet and Rumanian troops following a declaration of King Carol's Government that it will yield no more ground to the Russians, hundreds of residents of southern Bucovina and Moldavia were reported moving hurriedly southward today into the old Kingdom of Rumania.

Budapest Again Accuses Rumania.

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—The Hungarian Government accused Rumanian flyers today of having tried to lure Hungarian airmen on practice flights to trespass on Rumanian territory, according to a Budapest dispatch broadcast by the German radio.

Rumanian airmen were accused of crossing over Hungary to lure the Hungarian airmen back over Rumania.

RUSSIA HURLS NEW CHARGES AT RUMANIA

Warns Against Continuation Of "Provocative Acts" On Border

Carol Reported Planning Cabinet Shakeup As Axis Seeks Peace

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Friday, Aug. 30—Tass news agency disclosed today Soviet Russia had accused Rumania of continued violation of her frontier and said repetions of these "provocative acts could not be tolerated."

Deputy Commissar for Foreign Affairs Dekanozoff handed two protests to Grigore Gafencu, Rumanian Minister, the agency said, one of them in reply to a Rumanian note alleging frontier violations by Soviet troops and aircraft.

Counter-Protest Lodged

The first note delivered August 19 reported Rumanian troops had fired on Soviet border guards and drawn the latter's fire. Rumania lodged a counter-protest six days later, the agency said, charging Soviet aircraft had violated Rumanian territory.

Dekanozoff handed Gafencu the second note yesterday, protesting "new hostile action" on the part of Rumanian troops and aircraft, adding, "It is true the Soviet side as yet has had no casualties, but should casualties occur the matter will take a grave turn."

"The Soviet Government placed upon Rumania the entire responsibility for possible consequences," the agency said, and declared "violations of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian troops continue up to the present day."

Shakeup In Rumanian Cabinet Reported Near

Bucharest, Friday, Aug. 30 (AP)—Reports circulated in the Rumanian capital today that attempts are being made by King Carol II to form a new Cabinet in the midst of Axis mediatory efforts to settle territorial demands of Rumania's bristling neighbors.

After an extraordinary Cabinet session in the Royal Palace until near dawn, the King called in a number of prominent Iron Guard (Rumanian Nazi) members for private audiences.

The King also summoned the royal councilors for an unprecedented Crown Council session to discuss the four-power conferences in progress at Vienna, in which the Rome-Berlin Axis seeks peaceable settlement of the Rumanian-Hungarian dispute over Transylvania.

Pro-Nazi To Meet King

The pro-German George Brantainu, Iuliu Mainu, peasant leader, and John Mihalache, who are not members of the council, were to meet with Carol today.

It was reported unofficially that there was full discussion of yesterday's meeting at Vienna.

An attempt will be made to reach an agreement on a course decided on at Vienna and then to transmit approval of the plan to Mihail Manoilescu, Foreign Minister, it was said.

Rumania will throw the bulk of her army into a new line of defense near the Russian border as soon as territorial disputes with Bulgaria and Hungary have been settled definitely, diplomatic sources reported.

The Rumanian-Bulgarian settlement of the Dobruja question awaits only formal signature, but the Transylvanian dispute with Hungary still is hanging fire.

The Rumanian general staff, diplomats said, already is working on plans to make the Siretul river an "impregnable second line of defense," which Rumanians are convinced they could hold, even against the Red army.

Withdrawal of certain troops and supplies from the Soviet-Rumanian border, mentioned in last night's communique, now are disclosed to have been made to the Siretul line.

There is no official confirmation of rumors of new Russian frontier incidents. Authorities said these probably were merely "amplification of earlier reports" of the clashes occurring there earlier this week.

Situation Delicate

The delicacy of the Russo-Rumanian situation was emphasized by reports that the mixed Russian-Rumanian commission sitting in Odessa for the last two months is swamped with complaints, demands and complicated technical problems arising out of the transfer of Bessarabia to Russia. Feeling is still tense along the new border.

Many residents of Southern Bucovina, fearful of further clashes between Soviet and Rumanian forces, were reported moving hurriedly southward into the old kingdom of Rumania. The flight was at its height between the River Prut and Siretul, where troops of both sides are heavily concentrated.

Axis Begins Shaping New Balkan "Peace"

Vienna, Aug. 29—Germany and Italy turned their ministerial attention to the turbulent Hungarian-Rumanian frontier today and, in separate discussions with Hungarian and Rumanian diplomats, began the shaping of a new Axis-sponsored "peace."

The contours of a new line that will divide the disputed province of Transylvania and its 3,500,000 people between Hungary and Rumania were still hidden tonight.

Confer For Two Hours

Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy conferred for two hours each with the Hungarian representatives—Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky—and Rumanian representatives—Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu and his aide, Valerie Pop.

A German spokesman said "concluding results" presumably would be reached tomorrow.

He said the length of the talks meant Ribbentrop and Ciano were going deeply into the complicated language, historical and mixed population problems of Transylvania in a "spirit of comradely cooperation."

Harsh Words Exchanged

The talks, held at the hotel headquarters of Ribbentrop and Ciano, were prefaced however, by an acid exchange of communications in which Rumania charged a Hungarian plane with bombing a Rumanian airport and Hungary indignantly rejoined.

Germans minimized the importance of Rumanian-Russian border clashes, widely reported in the foreign press, but emphasized their desire to see "quiet, peace, order, contentment and lasting stability" in the Balkans, suppliers of Axis raw materials, while the struggle with England is on.

Red-Nazi Resettlement Pact For Balkans Signed

Berlin, Aug. 29 (AP)—A Soviet-German agreement was signed today for the resettlement of 115,000 German nationals from districts in Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, newly ceded by Rumania to Russia.

The agreement is similar to the procedure followed in the removal of German nationals last winter from former Polish territory now owned by Russia.

The resettlement is to be completed by November 15, well-informed sources here said, and the property left behind by the departing Germans will be compensated for later through an exchange of German and Russian goods. The resettlers, in turn, will receive in Germany the equivalent of their former Rumanian property. Mass removals will start in mid-September.

War Communiques

British

LONDON, Aug. 30 (Friday) (AP). A joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security:

Yesterday afternoon enemy aircraft attacked the Scilly Isles. Bombs were dropped and civilians were fired on with machine guns. Fires were caused and a small number of persons were injured.

Enemy aircraft also machine gunned a southwest town during the morning. No casualties were caused and no damage was done.

A small number of bombs was dropped in the south of England early in the day. A house was slightly damaged but no one was injured.

Apart from these occurrences, no bombs are reported to have been dropped in the British Isles during the hours of daylight yesterday.

LONDON, Aug. 29 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

During this afternoon large numbers of enemy aircraft which approached the Kent coast were engaged and dispersed by our fighters. A small number of the enemy penetrated inland, but the attack was not pressed home.

This evening formations of enemy aircraft were again active in the same area. Again they were attacked by our fighters. The enemy formations were broken up and pursued out to sea.

Reports so far received show that nine enemy aircraft were destroyed, one of them by anti-aircraft gunfire and the remainder by our fighters. Three of our fighters were lost.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night R. A. F. bombers made extensive raids on military objectives in Germany, Holland and enemy-occupied France. Several important targets in the Berlin area were heavily bombed. Other aircraft attacked the airplane factory at Leipzig, the Junkers works at Dessau, oil plants at Reisholz, Dortmund and Nordenhan, north of Bremen, and several enemy airdromes.

A large vessel lying in the canal near Rathenou, twenty-five miles west of Berlin, sustained a direct hit and exploded.

All our aircraft returned. Two made forced landings, but their crews are safe.

An Air Ministry communique:

Full reports show that during yesterday twenty-eight enemy aircraft were destroyed, twenty-seven by our fighters and one by anti-aircraft fire.

In yesterday's actions we lost fourteen aircraft. Of the crews of these, seven pilots and three air gunners are reported killed or missing.

An Admiralty communique:

Suka (dive-bomber) aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm carried out offensive operations over the Norwegian coast yesterday. At one oil depot which had been attacked previously by Fleet Air Arm aircraft the two remaining tanks were bombed. Direct hits were made on both these tanks, the larger being set on fire.

A motor patrol vessel in a fjord was attacked and left burning. Off the coast a 2,000-ton supply ship was attacked and two direct hits were obtained.

All our aircraft returned safely.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (AP).—The German high command communique:

Fighting plane units yesterday effectively attacked airports at Eastchurch and Southend, on the Thames mouth, as well as the port of Bognor-Regis on the English south coast.

During the night an increased quantity of bombs was dropped on port facilities of Liverpool, Cardiff, Bristol, Middlesbrough, Chatham and Thameshaven, as well as on armament plants at Sheffield, Norwich and Coventry.

Air fights developed at several points, in the course of which thirty-eight enemy planes and twelve of our own were shot down.

British planes last night intentionally attacked residential sections of the Reich's capital (Berlin). Incendiary bombs and explosives killed or injured numerous civilians and caused damage to several apartment houses with attic fires.

One of the attacking enemy planes was downed by anti-aircraft fire before reaching the outskirts.

The Leuna works also were a target of British attack. (Leuna, near Leipzig, is the site of large synthetic gasoline works). Slight damage was caused.

At several other localities in central and western Germany where bombs dropped the damage was likewise immaterial.

Yesterday the enemy lost a total of forty-four planes and one barrage balloon, while our own total losses were fifteen.

A submarine commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Schepke sank seven armed enemy merchant ships totaling 43,000 tons. Five of these were shot from a strongly protected convoy.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

Our air formations bombed the naval base at Alexandria and for a long time, despite unfavorable weather, flew over the Suez Canal between Port Said and Ismailia, dropping bombs on the northernmost end of the canal and on Alcantara Ferry, over which the railroad uniting Egypt to Palestine passes across the canal.

In East Africa, a Dubat (native troops) band occupied the English post of Polignac, near Lake Rudolph.

Air formations bombed the railroad station of Khashm El Ghirba, in the Sudan, and the flying fields of Wajer and Garissa in Kenya.

On the border between Sudan and Eritrea, a British detachment, with several armored cars, attempted to raid our territory. Encountered near the well of Adarde by one of our bands reinforced by Askari policing troops, it was stopped and repulsed after sharp fighting. The enemy succeeded in loading numerous wounded on motor trucks, leaving more than a dozen Australian dead on the ground, as well as machine guns and various arms. We had light losses.

Another attack by strong enemy patrols against our post at Galabat was easily repulsed by Colonial troops stationed there.

Shakeup In French Colonial Government

[By the Associated Press]

The Government dismissed the Governors of the Chad region in Eqatorial Africa, the Cameroons mandate on the African west coast and New Caledonia in the southern Pacific.

Yesterday the Government announced that rebellions had developed. It charged the disorders to British guarantees of economic protection to French possessions taking the British side of the war. The civil Governor of New Caledonia was replaced by a military Governor.

So far as Indo-China is concerned the move was precautionary, at most. There has been no hint of disaffection there.

He added that he was "deeply hurt" by Senator Wheeler's remarks about him during Senate discussion of the conscription bill. Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) asserted Monday Sir George had admitted he intended to get the United States into war. The economist replied that details of his conversation with Wheeler had been misquoted.

"I have been a friend of America for more than half a century," Sir George said. "I'm a lecturer and a man of science, and I am not going to do any of the things it was said I was going to do. But I would rather address any further discussion of those remarks directly to the Goverment."

Bahamas Ponder Choice Of Windsor

[By the Associated Press]

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 29—Why was the Duke of Windsor chosen to administer this small and unimportant colony of 68,000 souls?

This question has puzzled islanders from the day Edward's appointment was announced.

Since the Duke and his American-born Duchess arrived, August 17, they have done nothing to set the speculation at rest—even if they know the answer.

Appointment Unusual

The British Empire doesn't pick its Governors carelessly or at random. Usually they arrive at this station after long and painstaking experience in the lowlier ranks of the Colonial Service.

The Duke is one of the youngest Governors, at 46, that the Bahamas ever had. Only younger one was Sir Bede Clifford, an old friend of Edward's who started his administration at 39.

Many believe there simply wasn't any other convenient place for the Windsors to go. France, where they had two homes, and other European countries were closed to them by the war. In England there was no place for the man whose abdication and marriage to a twice-divorced American left many sources of possible embarrassment.

The New World in general offered a peaceful haven, and this semi-tropical colony in particular gave opportunity for useful employment of the Duke's talents as an administrator in a station considered not beneath his dignity.

At first glance officials in Nassau believed Edward was designated to a Governorship only a few miles from Florida so he could act handily as a good-will ambassador to the American people.

They pointed out the great need of Great Britain to woo the sympathetic understanding of the average man in the United States, to lay the groundwork for more and more help in the war.

Edward's View Different

Yet Edward didn't think so. At a press conference, he said:

"I very much doubt that the British Government had in mind that my present duties would extend beyond the Bahamas at this time."

Furthermore, he let it be known he wouldn't visit the United States until after November, when the general election campaign has been completed.

Edward refused to discuss his reaction to proposals that the United States lease British possessions in this hemisphere for air-defense bases.

"That's a matter of policy for the Government," he said.

ROOSEVELT TAKES ROYALTY TO FAIR

Spends Hour At Horse Show With Crown Princess Martha And Children

War Refugees From Norway Guests At President's Hyde Park Home

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 29—President Roosevelt introduced Norwegian royalty today to one of America's famed rural institutions—a typical county fair with its exhibits, sideshows, races and hot-dog stands.

With Crown Princess Martha by his side and her two daughters clambering over his car, Mr. Roosevelt spent an hour watching a horse show at the Dutchess County Fair at nearby Rhinebeck.

Then they drove through a building of grange exhibits, in which the President's own Chapel Corners grange took the blue ribbon. They passed up all the other attractions except a display of Dutchess county flowers.

Refugees Roosevelt Guests

The members of the Norwegian royal family, refugees from a country conquered by the Nazis, found a temporary haven in the serene Hudson Valley home of the Chief Executive and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The Crown Princess and her children, Princess Ragnhild, 10; Princess Astrid, 8, and Prince Harald, 3, drove up from New York city this morning in time for lunch.

They were accompanied by the Countess Ragni Ostgaard, lady in waiting; her son, Einar, 11; Wedel Jarlsberg, master of the Norwegian Court; the Norwegian Minister to the United States, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and Mrs. Morgenstierne; Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, the President's naval aide, and George T. Summerlin, State Department protocol chief.

To Remain Perhaps A Week

All were luncheon guests, but only the members of the Royal Family and the Ostgaards remained on, for perhaps a week's stay, while efforts are made to find them a more permanent home in America.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke with pride of the prize-winning exhibit of his Grange, with its bins of vegetables and fruits, home-canned produce and a couple of barrels.

Fred B. Pulling, of La Grangeville, a past deputy master of the Dutchess County Grange, pointed out a vinegar barrel to the President, and said he couldn't tell what was in another one.

"Probably cider," the Chief Executive remarked. "If it isn't, it ought to be."

Turning to the Crown Princess, he asserted: "That's my Grange."

Roosevelt To Speak Tomorrow

White House officials, meanwhile, said it was a safe bet that Mr. Roosevelt would listen in on Secretary Wallace's acceptance address tonight.

The President arranged to make a short, informal talk of his own Saturday at an annual reception given him by neighbors and friends who are members of the Roosevelt Home Club.

Harry L. Hopkins, who resigned as Secretary of Commerce because of bad health, also accepted an invitation to speak.

Presidential aides said Mr. Roosevelt's talk would be only of "local interest." Dutchess county residents wondered whether he might take cognizance of reports that Hopkins would become superintendent of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library and Archive here.

HOUSE GROUP WOULD DRAFT MEN 21 TO 44

Full Committee Approves Conscription Bill by 20 to 4 Vote.

MUCH LIKE SENATE MEASURE

House Version Raises Limit on Trainees to 1,000,000—Fight Due on Industry Draft.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—The House Military Committee approved today a Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill calling for drafting of men from 21 to 44 years old, inclusive—a much wider age range than that provided in the bill which the Senate passed last night.

The House committee acted quickly after Senate passage on a 58 to 31 vote so that its version of the legislation might be brought to the floor Tuesday for possible final House passage late next week.

Representative May, Democrat, of Kentucky, the chairman, said the House committee vote approving the bill was 20 to 4. Other committeemen said four members actually were absent from the session but three voted by proxy. Mr. May declined to say how individuals balloted.

Later, however, Representatives Anderson, Democrat, of Missouri, and Shafer, Republican, of Michigan, told reporters they voted against the bill, and Mr. Anderson said that at the request of Representative Schaefer, Democrat, of Illinois, he had cast Mr. Schaefer's proxy against. It was reported that Representative Harness, Republican, of Indiana, was the fourth opponent, but Mr. Harness declined to comment.

At one point, Mr. May said, there was some discussion of a proposal to make the registration and conscription age brackets conform to those of the Senate's 21 through 30 years but the matter never came to a vote.

Raises Limit to 1,000,000.

Another point of difference in the two bills is that while the Senate provided a limit of 900,000 on the number of conscripts who might be serving at any one time, the House committee wrote in a 1,000,000 limit. Members said that figure was necessary to provide also for conscripts for the navy.

The committee authorized Mr. May, he said, to request two days of general debate by the House, plus unlimited consideration of amendments. House leaders previously had decided on Tuesday as the date for starting consideration.

Mr. May also reported that the committee deferred until Tuesday action on a proposal that a Senate-approved amendment authorizing the President to take over private defense plants be recommended to the House also.

The chairman said Representative Brooks, Democrat, of Louisiana made the proposal, but the question was deferred when Representative Smith, Democrat, of Connecticut offered a substitute designed to protect operators of businesses which might be taken over for defense purposes.

Use of Guard Limited.

The House bill contains many provisions like those of the Senate measure, including sections bearing on exemptions and deferments.

Like the Senate legislation the House bill also contains a section limiting use of the guard to the Western Hemisphere and American possessions.

After three weeks of stormy and often acrimonious debate, the Senate gave its approval to conscription last night at the close of a tense nine-hour session.

The bill, as passed, was substantially unchanged in its essentials from the version originally recommended by the Senate Military Committee. One major addition would give the Government the power to conscript industry for defense, if necessary.

Proponents of conscription were optimistic that the bill would be passed by the House and opponents of the measure privately conceded that chances of defeating it were slim.

Features of Senate Bill.

The bill, as passed by the Senate, contained the following major provisions:

1. All male citizens or prospective citizens from 21 through 30 would be required to register, with few exceptions.

2. Registered men would be subject to call for a year's compulsory military service.

3. The men called for service would be selected in an impartial manner, and in such numbers as the President specifies. The maximum number of trainees at any one time is limited to 900,000.

The bill also provided for an increase in the basic army pay which conscripts would receive from $21 to $30 a month.

Exemption from service would be granted registrants who are physically or mentally unfit, who have dependents or who are employed in necessary agricultural or industrial jobs.

If the measure should be approved in substantially the same form by the House a registration day probably would be set by the President about fifteen days after the legislation became law. Then, by October 15, the army would expect to induct its first quota of conscripts, approximately 75,000 young men. If army plans materialized 400,000 would be in training by January 1 and 400,000 more by April 1.

Some Amendments Opposed.

Some rumblings of House opposition were heard against a few of the amendments which the Senate voted yesterday before it reached the end of its thirteen-day finish on the legislation which would give the nation the first peacetime conscription program in its history.

The end came in the Senate after the conscription forces had beaten off one attempt after another to postpone or nullify the draft provisions of the bill.

First, however, the conscriptionists themselves joined in adding some extraneous amendments, notably the joint amendment by Senators Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, and Overton, Democrat, of Louisiana, giving the Government power to take over industrial plants for the manufacture of defense materials.

Under its terms, the President would be authorized to direct the institution of condemnation proceedings against any manufacturing plant whenever either the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy "determines that any existing manufacturing plant or facility is necessary for the national defense and is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of such plant or facility for its use or operation" by the War or Navy Department.

The departments would be empowered to take over the plant and operate it pending court action.

The amending done yesterday caused Senator Danaher, Republican, of Connecticut, to call the chamber's attention to the fact that it had made twenty-four alterations in the bill since it began debate.

Against Industry Draft.

Some House members predicted that the conscript-industry provision would meet strong opposition next week, but they said that they expected little fight on another of the final changes—the amendment of Senator Adams, Independent, of Colorado, which would extend the present aircraft profit limitation of 7 and 8 per cent to cover guns, ammunition, material and other equipment.

The Adams amendment, however, ran counter to the requests of the administration and defense commission for the suspension of the aircraft and warship profit limitations now effective. Provisions for their suspension are incorporated in the excess profits tax measure which the House took up today.

Senators explained, however, that if Congress approved the proposed suspension of the profit limitations, the Adams provision automatically would become inoperative.

The big push on amendments to postpone immediate conscription or otherwise nullify the bill's purpose found the Senate conscription forces clearly in command of the situation at all times.

Only One Close Call.

Their only close call came on a proposal by Senator Hayden, Democrat, of Arizona, to postpone conscription for sixty days while an attempt was made to raise the necessary manpower for the army by voluntary enlistments.

This beaten by a vote of 43 to 41, they breathed a sigh of relief and proceeded to take other amendments in stride.

A substitute proposal by Senator Maloney, Democrat, of Connecticut, similar in many respects to the Hayden amendment and once considered a major threat, went down 50 to 35.

The chamber then disposed of a proposal by Senator Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, to delay conscription for thirty days by a vote of 58 to 26.

Next, by a vote of 55 to 27, it rejected a proposal by Senator Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, to wait until Congress proclaimed a national emergency before invoking conscription.

MILITARY TRAINING BILL PROVISIONS

All Males From 21 Through 30 Are Affected.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Here are the principal provisions of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill as approved by the Senate:

1. All males, with minor exceptions, from 21 through 30 years of age would be required to register.

2. Those registered would become liable for service with the nation's armed forces for twelve months in peacetime or longer if Congress found the national interest imperiled. Aliens who have not filed naturalization papers would escape liability.

3. The President would be authorized to select, in an impartial manner from this group, men for service. Individuals whose work was deemed essential to the nation and those with dependents could be granted a deferment. Deferment would be mandatory for certain State and Federal officials and ministers. Divinity students would be exempted and conscientious objectors assigned to non-combatant or special work.

4. Those conscripted would be given the same pay and allowances as members of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Base pay in the army would be increased from $21 to $30 a month.

5. Service would be limited to the Western Hemisphere, and not more than 900,000 trainees could be in service at any one time.

6. Trainees who completed active service would become members of the reserves for ten years and subject to retraining at intervals.

7. Selection of trainees would be based on quotas for each State, with credit being given for men already in the armed forces.

8. All men from 18 through 34 would be given opportunity to enlist voluntarily for the same training and service as those conscripted.

9. Employers would be required, where possible, to re-employ men who left jobs because of being conscripted.

10. Provision would be made to prevent evictions and foreclosures for nonpayment of debts of men conscripted.

30.24-4611

11. The President would be authorized to establish local boards and appeal boards to classify men registered and pass on applications for deferment and similar matters.

House Votes Excess Profits Tax

Rates Are 20 to 50 Per Cent—Defense Contractors Get Allowances.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—Excess profits tax legislation, carrying special provisions designed to speed up the expansion of industrial defense facilities, passed swiftly in the House today and went to the Senate. The House passed the bill on a voice vote.

Imposing profits taxes of 20 to 50 per cent, the legislation would permit defense contractors to deduct from taxable income over a five-year period the entire cost of new facilities installed in connection with defense.

Another section of the bill would suspend, during operation of the excess profits tax, 8 and 7 per cent limitations on manufacturers' profits from warships and military aircraft.

The defense commission and military departments urged the plant amortization plan and the suspension of profit limitations as a means of encouraging contractors to sign armament contracts quickly.

The profits tax was estimated by experts to have a potential yield of $300,000,000 in 1940 and $900,000,000 a year thereafter.

Through in a Day.

The legislation was rushed through the House in a single day under procedure permitting no amendments except those approved by the Ways and Means Committee. Debate was limited to two hours.

Under the taxing provisions, all corporations would be allowed a flat $5,000 exemption. This, the Ways and Means Committee said, would exempt some 400,000 corporations from the tax.

Above the exemption, all corporations would be permitted to earn at least 7 per cent on the first $500,000 of their invested capital and 5 per cent on the remainder of their investments, without paying the excess profits levy.

Corporations with higher average earnings during a base period, 1936-1939, would pay no excess profits tax on amounts equal to their average earnings, but would be subjected to an income tax rate increase, from 20.9 to 25 per cent. Excess profit rates would be higher for corporations with high earnings than for those with low earnings.

$160,000,000 Defense Order Placed for Airplane Engines

United Aircraft Corporation to Make 17,000 Motors in the Next Two Years at Hartford.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (A. P.).—An agreement was reached between the navy and the United Aircraft Corporation today for the manufacture of 17,000 airplane engines for the army and the navy at a cost of $160,000,000.

Announcing the agreement at a press conference, Secretary Knox said that it had the full approval of the War Department and would cover the entire requirements of both army and navy from United Aircraft for the fiscal years 1941 and 1942.

A formal contract covering the agreement, Col. Knox said, will be negotiated as soon as funds for the engines are provided in the $5,008,000,000 defense appropriation bill pending in Congress.

Meanwhile, Col, Knox said, United will proceed immediately with a $2,500,000 expansion of its plant at Hartford, Conn.

Navy Will Buy Tools.

Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, added that the navy would purchase and retain title to $7,000,000 worth of machine tools to equip the expanded plant.

Admiral Towers said that it would take from six to eight months to complete the tooling, but that the plant would require somewhat less time to build.

The agreement for the production of Pratt & Whitney engines by United — constituting the largest engine order ever made under the defense program—was the second major military plane purchasing development announced within twenty-four hours. The army disclosed yesterday that it had signed contracts for 850 training planes and twenty transport ships to cost $14,410,000.

Col. Knox called the agreement "a notable example of the fine cooperation that goes on between the army and navy in this matter of procurement."

The navy signed the agreement under a system whereby it sponsors some aircraft manufacturers and the army sponsors others, he explained.

Engines delivered to the army under the contract will be paid for by transfer of army funds to the navy, he said. Similarly the army will negotiate for navy engine requirements with manufacturers under its sponsorship.

No specific delivery dates were announced on today's orders.

Praising United Aircraft officials for their co-operation, Secretary Knox said that the corporation would proceed with plant construction at its own expense immediately. The company, he said, will take advantage of the law which permits the navy to advance up to 30 per cent of the cost of a contract to aid in financing additional plant facilities.

4,500 Other Engines.

In a statement issued here today by Frederick B. Rentschler and E. E. Wilson, respectively chairman and president of United Aircraft Corporation, explaining some of the points in the huge engine contract, it was disclosed that the War Department is now negotiating with the Ford Motor Company for 4,500 additional Pratt & Whitney 2,000 horsepower engines.

It was said that these, in addition to the 17,000 engines ordered from United, would be needed to complete the combined Army-Navy program in the next two years, and that in order that the work might be done, United Aircraft was issuing manufacturing licenses to the Ford Motor Company at the small royalty rate of $1 an engine.

Besides making this arrangement with the Ford Company, the United Aircraft officers said, the company has undertaken extensive plant expansion. Describing this the statement said:

"The new buildings required to meet the Army and Navy requirements will comprise more than 400,000 square feet of manufacturing area, located to the east of the present Pratt & Whitney plant in East Hartford, and will constitute the fourth major expansion of the engine plant within the past eighteen months.

"Early in 1939, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft took over the former Hamilton Standard Propeller factory, which added 11,000 square feet of floor space to its facilities. Late in 1939 an addition covering about 300,000 square feet was erected to meet export requirements and less than three months ago work was begun on a still larger addition of more than 400,000 square feet which is now virtually completed.

"In this expansion program, Pratt & Whitney employment has increased from 3,700 employees at the beginning of 1939 to more than 10,000 today and several thousand more will be added when the new addition begins operation. With the exception of the navy machine tool commitments, all this expansion has been financed by the corporation."

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEVITT MACKENZIE

BOMBS RAINING ON ENGLAND AND GERMANY ALMOST DROWN OUT OTHER OPERATIONS BUT THERE ARE TWO MATTERS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN WHICH AT THE MOMENT FALL WITHIN THE FIELD OF WORDS RATHER THAN BULLETS--(1) THE ANXIOUS EFFORTS OF THE HITLER-MUSSOLINI BROTHERHOOD TO PREVENT A BALKAN WAR, AND (2) THE GROWING FRANCO-BRITISH ANIMOSITY.

THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTERS, VON RIBBENTROP AND COUNT CIANO, MET IN VIENNA TODAY WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF RUMANIA AND HUNGARY TO TRY TO COMPOSE THE VOLCANIC QUARREL RESULTING FROM THE HUNGARIAN CLAIM TO RUMANIAN TRANSYLVANIA. A BALKAN WAR MIGHT EASILY GROW OUT OF THIS FIGHT, AND THAT MIGHT REPRESENT A CATASTROPHE FOR THE AXIS POWERS.

THERE ARE TWO VITAL REASONS WHY HITLER AND MUSSOLINI MUST MAINTAIN PEACE ON THE PENINSULA. ONE IS THAT THEY MUST HAVE THE VAST SUPPLIES OF WAR MATERIALS AND FOODSTUFFS WHICH THEY GET FROM THE BALKANS. THE OTHER IS EVEN MORE IMPORTANT--THAT OF KEEPING RUSSIA IN HAND.

THE WAYS OF THE SPHINX OF MOSCOW, JOSEF STALIN, ARE ALL BUT INSCRUTABLE--BUT NOT QUITE. THE AXIS PARTNERS HAVE GIVEN INDICATIONS THAT THEY SUSPECT HIM OF INTENDING TO INCREASE HIS INFLUENCE THROUGH THE BALKAN SITUATION. INDEED, SOME OBSERVERS BELIEVE THERE IS A CHANCE HE MAY BECOME INVOLVED IN WAR AGAINST THE AXIS, AND THAT IS SOMETHING WHICH MESSRS HITLER AND MUSSOLINI MUST HEAD OFF AT ALL COSTS UNTIL THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN IS SETTLED.

THE TENSENESS OF THE SITUATION IN THE BALKANS, AND THE GREAT POTENTIALITIES OF DAMAGE TO THE AXIS CAUSE, UNDOUBTEDLY HAVE HAD CONSIDERABLE TO DO WITH HITLER'S DELAY IN HIS MAJOR ATTACK ON ENGLAND.

WHILE HITLER AND MUSSOLINI ARE FINDING A THREAT IN THE BALKANS, THE INCREASING HOSTILITY OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT TO BRITAIN SHOWS SIGNS OF BEING A POSSIBLE BREEDER OF DIFFICULTIES FOR ENGLAND.

THE CHARGE BY THE PETAIN GOVERNMENT THAT BRITAIN IS INSPIRING REBELLION IN THE FORMER'S AFRICAN EMPIRE IS THE LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN A FEUD WHICH HAS SWELLED IN BITTERNESS EVER SINCE THE ALLIED COLLAPSE IN THE BATTLE OF FLANDERS. THE ACCUSATION IS BASED ON THE DECISION OF THE FRENCH COLONY OF CHAD IN CENTRAL AFRICA TO SIDE WITH ENGLAND RATHER THAN WITH PETAIN.

THE QUARREL REALLY GOES BACK TO THE EARLY DAYS OF THE GERMAN DRIVE AGAINST THE ALLIES, WHEN WE HEARD UNOFFICIAL ALLEGATIONS BY EACH SIDE THAT THE OTHER FELLOW WASN'T PULLING HIS WEIGHT IN THE FIGHTING. THE EFFORT OF BOTH GOVERNMENTS TO KEEP THIS FEELING FROM OFFICIAL STATEMENTS STUCK OUT LIKE A SORE THUMB.

THE FIGHT BROKE WIDE OPEN WHEN THE BRITISH ATTACKED UNITS OF THE FRENCH FLEET WHICH INSISTED ON FOLLOWING THE PETAIN GOVERNMENT IN SURRENDER. SINCE THEN BARBS HAVE BEEN FLYING IN BOTH DIRECTIONS, AND LONDON HAS BEEN PLAYING HOST TO THE SO-CALLED FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE WHICH WAS SET UP BY GENERAL DE GAULLE TO HEAD ALL "FREE" FRENCHMEN WHO REFUSE TO SURRENDER WITH PETAIN AND WISH TO CONTINUE TO FIGHT WITH BRITAIN.

30.24-4615

ONLY LAST WEEK FRENCH FOREIGN MINISTER BAUDOUIN CHARACTERIZED BRITAIN'S BLOCKADE OF EUROPE AS "AN INHUMAN DICTATORSHIP OF FAMINE." HE SAID BRITISH PREMIER CHURCHILL HAD COMMITTED "AN ACT OF HOSTILITY" IN HIS STATEMENT THAT NO FOOD WOULD BE PERMITTED TO PASS THE BLOCKADE TO NAZI-CONQUERED COUNTRIES.

SO THE MATTER HAS GONE UNTIL ONE HEARS MANY EXPRESSIONS OF WONDER AS HOW LONG SUCH A SITUATION CAN CONTINUE WITHOUT ARRIVING AT THE POINT WHEN THESE FORMER ALLIES WILL FACE EACH OTHER ON THE BATTLE FIELD. THE INDICATIONS ALL ALONG HAVE BEEN THAT THE GERMANS ARE DOING EVERYTHING IN THEIR POWER TO FOSTER ENMITY FOR ENGLAND AMONG THE FRENCH.

Text of the announcement on the arbitration award, Page 3.

By The Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug. 30—Germany and Italy, self-proclaimed co-authors of a "new Europe," gave Hungary approximately half of Rumania's Transylvania territory in an arbitration award handed down here today and reserved for themselves the final word in any argument arising from the dictated settlement.

In the same post-Munich setting of 1938 in which they settled in Hungary's favor the latter's territorial dispute with Czecho-Slovakia, Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano of Germany and Italy, respectively, reached today's decision after stepping abruptly into the stalemated Hungarian-Rumanian negotiations.

The decision, to which Rumania made it plain she was bowing reluctantly, gave to Hungary the territory she lost after the World War and to which she never renounced her claim.

Thus within two days was completed what the Axis powers called the "last act" in the dismemberment of post-World War Rumania. It began with Russia's acquisition of Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina and the cession of Southern Dobruja to Bulgaria.

Axis Guarantees Frontiers

In return Rumania received an Axis guarantee of her borders, not only with Hungary and Bulgaria but also with Russia.

These guarantees, according to authorized German sources, are "directed against nobody in particular and against everybody in general."

It was asserted that Germany and Italy in no wise thought only of Russia in this action, that they took the Russians at their word when Moscow said its aspirations had been satisfied by Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina.

It was indicated they considered, however, that chauvinistic Hungarians might still hope to realize their "unfulfilled dream of the Crown of St. Stephen" and seek more former Hungarian soil, and also that some supernationalistic Bulgarians might not be satisfied with Southern Dobruja alone.

Options regarding citizenship and other formalities were taken care of in today's seven-point award which the Rumanians and Hungarians agreed to abide by. A protocol attached to it set forth that Hungary and Rumania, in asking the Axis powers to arbitrate their dispute, would consider the decision binding and without reservations.

The protocol said it was on this understanding that Germany and Italy agreed to act as arbiters. They made it plain, however, in the final of the seven points that in case of "difficulties or doubts" arising from direct Hungarian-Rumanian negotiations, Rome and Berlin would step in and make the final decision.

Seven Points Are Listed

The seven-point agreement provides, in brief, the following:

1. The fixing of the new frontier itself, putting about half of Transylvania into Hungarian hands, but leaving the details to a Rumanian-Hungarian commission.
2. Rumanian soldiers to move out of the ceded territory within two weeks; to hand it over "in orderly condition."
3. Rumanian citizens now living in the ceded area to become Hungarians "automatically," with the provision, however, that they receive six months to select one citizenship or the other. If they decide to remain as Rumanians they must leave the new Hungarian Transylvanian State within an additional period of twelve months, taking all their movable property and "liquidating" that which cannot be moved. For this "liquidation" they are to be compensated by Hungary in a "broad-minded and conciliatory fashion."
4. Hungarians who now are Rumanian citizens may do the same thing in reverse—go back to Hungarian citizenship under the same conditions.
5. Hungary is to give to Rumanians becoming Hungarian citizens "the same rights" as Hungarian citizens, Rumania to do likewise for those going the other way around.
6. Questions arising under all this to be negotiated directly between Rumania and Hungary.
7. If settlements cannot thus be made, the issues will be settled by Germany and Italy.

Rumania's new border roughly cuts Transylvania in two, leaving southern and southwestern portions of the province in King Carol's domain, but restoring to Hungary a larger area in the northern portion and giving back to her a long stretch of her old pre-war mountain border in the east.

Specifically, the new border begins at a point southwest of Salonta, runs northeast to a point about seven miles southeast of Oradea, then in an easterly direction (but always south of and near the railway from Oradea to Cluj), thence south past Cluj to a point approximately twenty miles northwest of Tirgu Muresului.

From there the new border runs to a point southwest of Tirgu Muresului and then proceeds in a southeasterly direction, but leaves in Rumanian hands the railway from Segisvara to Brasov. About fourteen miles northeast of Brasov the line makes an elbow bulging to the south and then running eastward to the ridge of the Carpathians, which it then follows in accordance with the old pre-war mountain border northward to a point where it reaches the new Rumanian-Soviet boundary.

[It will be some time before the surveyors agree upon the exact area of the ceded territory. The first authoritative estimates from the three capitals chiefly concerned are: Berlin, 21,930 square miles; Bucharest, 19,300 square miles, and Budapest, 17,000 square miles.]

The settlement was described as a sort of "swap," with Rumania giving up an extra large slice of Northern Transylvania, including some of her own people, and retaining in return a number of Hungarians in the south who could not be returned to Hungary except by an awkward corridor. Included in the ceded territory is the Szekler area, which formed a sack in the very heart of Rumania and which the Hungarians particularly were determined to get.

It was a swap, of course, only in the sense that Rumania gave up a group of Rumanians in the north for the purpose of consolidating scattered Hungarians and kept a number of Hungarians whose return would have involved surrendering also a large number of Rumanians.

It must be kept in mind, authorized sources emphasized, that the Rumanians also are keeping approximately 500,000 Germans in the Southern Transylvania regions. Some 100,000 other Germans are included in the territory handed to Hungary.

Twenty years of strife between Hungary and Rumania over Transylvania reached its high point in mid-afternoon at Belvedere Palace, in the middle of Vienna.

After some delay in beginning the day's session, apparently while Rumanian and Hungarian delegates made their last contacts with their governments, the final negotiations were concluded quickly in the palace's ornate gold room.

It was in a neighboring room that Herr von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano awarded to Hungary a portion of Slovakia in their post-Munich arbitration. Czecho-Slovakia since has vanished as a republic.

The Hungarians and Rumanians, who broke off their direct negotiations at Turnu Severin, came face to face here for the first time when they were summoned to the gold room conference table.

The Hungarian Premier, Count Paul Teleki, alone of the seven men seated at the conference table, was dressed in civilian clothes.

The Rumanian Foreign Minister, Mihail Manoilescu, appeared pale as he listened to Herr von Ribbentrop read a statement announcing the decision. The Nazi chief of protocol, Baron Alexander von Doernberg, hastened to his side with a glass of water.

Herr von Ribbentrop in a brief speech stressed that the last territorial problem now has been settled in the Danube area and indicated the Axis would stand for no further revision.

He characterized the decision as "impartial and just" and as serving the best interests of Hungary and Rumania in aiming at "lasting and friendly relations" between the two neighbors.

The Axis powers again have proved that they are in a position to snuff out the "torch the English are trying to throw into the Danube area," he said.

The Hungarians, sources close to the Hungarian delegation said, received roughly two-thirds of their original demands.

In the conferences Germany took the opportunity to put into writing measures to secure in Hungary and Rumania the right of German minorities to organize along Nazi lines in sports, youth training, liberal arts and other activities.

Guarantee of All Frontiers Given To Bucharest

(Text of Transylvania Cession Terms, Page 8-6.)

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—Rumania, under the whip-lash of Germany and Italy, surrendered about half of Transylvania to Hungary today.

Rumania made clear she was capitulating to what she regarded as the axis' ultimatum that she cede most of her World-War-won province to Hungary.

Thus Germany and Italy, in their chosen role of "creators of the new Europe," overnight made the long-haggling Balkan neighbors settle their dispute under a threat of force and, in the Nazi view, ended the last territorial conflict in Southeast Europe.

The Vienna arbitration proceedings ended tonight with signature of the protocol by the four foreign ministers concerned. In it the Rumanian and Hungarian statesmen go on record on behalf of their governments as expressly recognizing the award as a final settlement, and they obligate themselves to carry out its provisions without reservation.

Changes in Population.

The seven-point arbitration award of the axis powers not only made vast territorial changes in Hungary's favor but also opened possibilities for extensive changes of population.

It attempted further to secure full citizenship rights for persons who, as a result of the award, will become naturalized subjects of a nation not of their birth.

(It was estimated officially in Budapest that Hungary would receive about 17,000 square miles — or approximately half — of Transylvania.)

In return, Rumania received a German-Italian guarantee of her hacked-up frontier, according to a DNB, official German news agency, announcement in Berlin.

General Guarantee.

Besides her submission to Hungary, Rumania recently has seen two other sizable areas of her territory go—Bessarabia to Soviet Russia and the Southern Dobruja to Bulgaria.

The axis' guarantee, it was said in Berlin, is meant for a general guarantee of Rumania's shrivelled borders—not only her frontier with Russia, but also with Hungary and Bulgaria in case any elements in those countries get the idea they can help themselves to more.

(In Bucharest it was reliably reported that Germany had promised troops would come speedily to help Rumania defend her troubled Russian frontier.)

In Berlin authorized sources said they had no information on reports that the German and Italian Ambassadors in Moscow had visited Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff to discuss Balkan problems.

They insisted, however, that it has long been known to all powers, including Soviet Russia, that Germany considers the Balkans her special sphere of influence, whereas Russia, in her recent phase of expansion, merely wanted the frontiers of her former empire—that of the Czars—restored.

These sources said that with the acquisition of Bessarabia this had been accomplished and the gain of Northern Bucovina had gone beyond this aim.

Map Is Prepared.

The final drawing of the Rumanian-Hungarian frontier line will be undertaken by a joint Rumanian-Hungarian commission in accordance with a map drawn up by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano at the four-power conference here, DNB said.

This statement was made in a communique issued by the news agency, which asserted that Rumania and Hungary requested Germany and Italy to arbitrate their differences and in advance accepted the award.

The region ceded to Hungary, the second point of the award stated, must "be cleared of Rumanian troops within 14 days and handed over to Hungary in an orderly condition."

Resettlement and interchange of populations on a large scale is envisaged in point three, which said:

"All Rumanian subjects who today are residents of the area to be ceded by Rumania acquire Hungarian citizenship without further formality. They are entitled, however, within six months to opt for (select) Rumanian citizenship.

"Persons who avail themselves of this right of option must leave Hungarian territory within the space of one year and are to be taken over by Rumania. They may take movable property freely with them. They may also liquidate their immovable property until the time of their emigration and likewise may take the proceeds thereof with them.

"In case the liquidation does not succeed, they must be compensated by Hungary. Hungary will handle all questions connected with the resettlement of optants in a generous and conciliatory spirit."

The part of Transylvania left to Rumania includes large German minorities of Saxons and Swabians. The Rumanian census of 1930 showed 740,000 Germans in Rumania, nearly all in Transylvania.

Point four of the award stipulates that Rumanian subjects of Hungarian origin, who are residents of the area ceded in 1919 by Hungary to Rumania and now remaining with Rumania, are granted the right within six months to decide regarding Hungarian citizenship.

Provision for Naturalized.

Both sides, according to point five, agree to treat naturalized subjects as born subjects.

Unforeseen problems arising are left to the two governments under point six.

That Germany and Italy intend to stand by until the terms are fully carried out is indicated by the seventh and last point, reading:

"In case difficulties or doubts arise in connection with the carrying out of this arbitration award, the Rumanian and Hungarian governments will seek a direct understanding concerning them.

"In case they do not succeed in coming to an agreement concerning some question, they will submit this question to the Reich government and the Italian government for final decision."

The New Border

The new border roughly cuts Transylvania in two, leaving south and southwestern areas in Rumania and restoring to Hungary a larger area in the north and a long stretch in the east.

Specifically, the new border begins at a point southwest of Nagy Szalonta (Salonta), runs northeast to a point about seven miles southeast of Oradia Mare (Grosswardein), then easterly—but always south of and near the railway—from Oradia Mare to Cluj (Klausenburg), thence south past Cluj to a point about twenty miles northwest of Tirgu-Muresului (Neumarkt). From there it runs to a point southwest of Tirgu-Muresului and then southeasterly—but leaving in Rumanian hands the railway from Segisvara (Schaessburg)—to Brasov (Kronstadt). About fourteen miles northeast of Brasov the line makes an elbow bulging to the south and then running eastward to the ridge of Carpthians, which it then follows in accordance with the old pre-war mountain border northward to a point on the Rumanian-Soviet boundary.

"Lasting Friendliness Now"

Ribbentrop and Ciano read similar statements saying the negotiations had been conducted "impartially," and that the outcome was just and would bring lasting friendliness between Hungary and Rumania.

Besides Ribbentrop and Ciano, the chief figures at the conference were Rumanian Foreign Minister Manoilescu, Hungarian Premier Teleky and Hungarian Foreign Minister Csaky.

Vienna Award Roughly Bisects Transylvania

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—Rumania's new made-in-Vienna border roughly cuts Transylvania in two, leaving southern and southwestern portions of the province in King Carol's domain but restoring to Hungary a larger area in the northern portion and giving back to her a long stretch of her old pre-war mountain border in the east.

Specifically, the new border begins at a point southwest of Nagy Szalonta (Salonta), runs northeast to a point about 7 miles southeast of Oradia Mare (Grosswardein), then in an easterly direction (but always south of and near the railway from Oradia Mare to Cluj (Klausenburg), thence south past Cluj to a point approximately 20 miles northwest of Tirgu-Muresului (Neumarkt).

From there the new border runs to a point southwest of Tirgu-Muresului and then proceeds in a southeasterly direction but leaves in Rumanian hands the railway from Segisvara (Schaessburg) to Brasov (Kronstadt).

About 14 miles northeast of Brasov the line makes an elbow bulging to the south and then running eastward to the ridge of the Carpathians which it then follows in accordance with the old pre-war mountain border northward to a point where it reaches the new Rumanian-Soviet boundary.

Text of Axis Award on Transylvania

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 30—The following joint announcement by the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, on the Vienna arbitration award was issued tonight by D. N. B., official German news agency:

The Royal Rumanian Government and the Royal Hungarian Government petitioned the German Government and the Royal Italian Government to settle by arbitration award the question pending between Rumania and Hungary apropos territories to be ceded to Hungary.

On the basis of this petition and on the basis of the declaration which the Royal Rumanian and Royal Hungarian Governments made in connection with this petition, to consider such arbitration award as binding without any reservations, German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and the Foreign Minister of His Majesty the King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia, Count Galeazzo Ciano, after renewed conversation with the Royal Rumanian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mihail Manoilescu, and the Royal Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Count Istvan Csaky, today at Vienna rendered the following arbitration award:

First, a definite border between Rumania and Hungary is the line marked in the attached map. The exact delineation of the frontier on the spot is left to a Rumanian-Hungarian Commission.

Second, hitherto Rumanian territory thus ceded to Hungary will be vacated by Rumanian troops within a fortnight and will be handed to Hungary in orderly condition. Various phases of the evacuation and occupation as well as additional modalities thereof will be immediately fixed by the Rumanian-Hungarian Commission. The Royal Rumanian and Hungarian Governments are obliged to take care that evacuation and occupation are carried out in a quiet and orderly fashion.

Third, all Rumanian citizens

who today have their domiciles in areas to be ceded by Rumania automatically are becoming Hungarian citizens. They are entitled to opt within a period of six months for Rumanian citizenship. Persons availing themselves of the right to opt must leave the Hungarian State within an additional twelve months' time and are accepted by Rumania. They may take with them their movable property. They may further liquidate their immovable property and take with them proceeds derived from such liquidation. In case they are unable to liquidate their property they must be compensated by Hungary. Hungary will treat all questions resulting from the resettlement of optants in a broad-minded and conciliatory fashion.

Fourth, Hungarian nationals who now are Rumanian citizens living in areas which in 1919 were ceded by Hungary to Rumania and who now are living in territories remaining Rumanian are entitled to opt within six months for Hungarian citizenship. For persons availing themselves of this right the same provisions as stipulated in the previous article are valid.

Direct Negotiations Provided

Fifth, the Royal Hungarian Government solemnly assumed the obligation to grant persons assuming Hungarian citizenship by this arbitration, but who are Hungarian nationals, in every respect the same rights as Hungarian citizens. The Royal Rumanian Government assumes the same obligation for Hungarian nationals of Rumanian citizenship who remain in Rumanian territory.

Sixth, regulation of all other questions resulting from the change of sovereignty is reserved for direct negotiations between the Royal Rumanian and Royal Hungarian Governments.

Seventh, in case difficulties or doubts arise during effectuation of this arbitration award, the Royal Rumanian and Royal Hungarian Governments will discuss such cases in direct negotiations.

If they cannot agree on any issue they will submit these issues for definite settlement to the German Government and the Royal Italian Government.

AUG 31 1940

Protocol Annexed to Award

The following protocol also was issued as an annex to the award:

During the conversation which took place at Vienna Aug. 29 and 30 between representatives of Germany, Italy, Rumania and Hungary about the problem pending between Rumania and Hungary concerning territory to be ceded to Hungary, representatives of Rumania and Hungary, on their authority as plenipotentiaries, requested the German Government and the Italian Government to settle the problem by arbitration.

Representatives of Rumania and Bulgaria declared at the same time that their governments would consider the arbitration award as binding and without any reservations.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano thereupon, on behalf and on instruction of their governments, declared themselves willing to meet the request of the Royal Rumanian and Royal Hungarian Governments and, after a renewed exchange of views with Rumanian Foreign Minister Manoilescu and Hungarian Foreign Minister Count Csaky, pronounced the requested arbitration award today at Belvedere Palace, Vienna, which was attached in copy with annexes to this protocol and handed same to representatives of Rumania and Hungary in duplicate text in the German and Italian languages.

The Rumanian Foreign Minister and Hungarian Foreign Minister took cognizance of the arbitration award and its annexes and, on behalf of their governments, once more confirmed the declaration that they were accepting the arbitration award as a definite settlement and pledging themselves to execute same without reservations.

Made out in the German and Italian languages in four originals. Vienna, Aug. 30, 1940.

The effect of all this was not only to lengthen the Nazi line of troops across Southeastern Europe—a line that could become instantly a barrier to Russia—but to improve Hungary's own position in the same connection. For the part of Transylvania given back to her includes the Carpathian mountain region which is her traditional barrier against invasion from the east.

Yields to Threat

Rumania gave in in the face of a threatened invasion that might have smashed her—invasion by the vast armies of Germany, by those of Hungary, and by a march from the east by Russia.

AUG 31 1940

The negotiations were carried on at Vienna, in a meeting by German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and his Italian colleague, Count Ciano.

All last night they continued, while here in Bucharest King Carol received many distinguished advisers who all told him there was only one thing to do.

Just after midnight, according to authoritative accounts, the King got an urgent telephone call from Vienna. He was told he had five minutes to decide. The Rumanian High Command reported it could not possibly defend the country against three simultaneous thrusts. Rumania capitulated.

Now Under Reich

Last June, Rumania gave up Bessarabia and northern Bukovina to Russia under the Soviet's ultimatum; she has agreed to return southern Dobruja to Bulgaria. Thus she shrinks now from 113,884 square miles by about 40,000 square miles and falls back to about her size before the World War.

For yielding part of Transylvania, Rumania was understood to have got even more than a German guarantee against further encroachments. Some Balkan politicians thought Rumania now is under the actual "military protection" of the Reich.

There was one widespread report that the Rumanian-German minority which recently has been forming an armed militia under general staff officers of German blood might immediately take over the guarding of the oil fields and other strategic points.

Meanwhile, it was understood, the Germans will send motorized troops to the Russian frontier.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Both Germany and Italy have guaranteed the newly-shrunken borders of Rumania, D. N. B., official Germany news agency, announced today.

The guarantee, it was said, not only concerns Rumania's border with Russia, but also serves notice on possible Chauvinist Hungarians and Bulgarians that Rumania can count on German and Italian might in case anybody tries to help himself to another slice.

D. N. B. further announced that the German government had made special arrangements with Hungary and Rumania for the protection of German groups in both countries.

Carol Gives Up Land; Nazis on Red Border

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 30 (AP).—Rumania, obeying orders of Germany and Italy, gave up between 17,000 and 21,000 square miles of her territory today in a swift drama of power politics that will permit Nazi soldiers to occupy her eastern frontier and stand face to face with the restless Soviet armies.

Confronted with an "or else" ultimatum from the Axis, Rumania agreed to suffer one more dismemberment—to hand over about half of the World War-won province of Transylvania to Hungary—with the understanding that what is left of the country will be protected by Germany.

The decision to capitulate was taken over the opposition of Juliu Maniu, the peasant leader, but he arrived at the palace too late to participate in the last vote. It was breakfast time before these fevered conferences was ended at last and the government's officials walked glumly out in the day.

Early this afternoon a communique told the outside world of the surrender.

In the later afternoon, after the city had aroused from its post-luncheon siesta Bucharest's people heard the news.

It was news much greater than the Transylvanian issue, itself; it was the end of a kingdom as Rumanians knew it for fifth of a century.

Seven-Point Agreement

The seven-point arbitration agreed upon in Vienna provided this, in essence:

1. The fixing of the new frontier itself, putting about half of Transylvania into Hungarian hands, but leaving the details to a Rumanian-Hungarian commission. Therefore, precise estimates of the territory involved could not be made.
2. Rumanian soldiers to move out of the ceded territory within two weeks; to hand it over "in orderly condition."
3. Rumanian citizens now living in the ceded area to become Hungarians "automatically," with the provision, however, that they be given six months to select one citizenship or the other. If they decide to remain as Rumanians they must leave the new Hungarian Transylvanian state within an additional period of twelve months, taking all their movable property and "liquidating" that which cannot be moved. For this "liquidation" they are to be compensated by Hungary in a "broad-minded and conciliatory fashion."
4. Hungarians who now are Rumanian citizens may do the same thing in reverse—go back to Hungarian citizenship under the same conditions.
5. Hungary is to give to Rumanians becoming Hungarian citizens "the same rights" as Hungarian citizens; Rumania to do likewise for those going the other way around.
6. Questions arising under all this to be negotiated directly between Rumania and Hungary.
7. If settlements cannot thus be made, the issues will be settled by Germany and Italy.

Axis Gains Ends

The Axis, with the celerity of action that has become characteristic, accomplished in this heavy formula the two aims which the world attributed to the Vienna conference from the moment it was hurriedly summoned early this week.

It forced a continuing peace, if perhaps an uneasy one, so that the Balkans might continue producing for the German-Italian war effort against Britain.

It erected a new and formidable wall—to add to that already erected in Poland—against any further westward march of the Red armies.

Add Bucharest..xxx armies

Only a few days before the conference was called, Rumanian and Soviet troops clashed on the new frontier created by Russia's absorbtion of northern Bucovina.

And even as the settlement was reached today, the Rumanian government had before it—in addition to everything else—two notes from Russia protesting "provocative action" on the frontier and predicting "grave" consequences if there were any further incidents.

Today also, the Soviet Army began certain maneuvers in a region described only as "the western special military district."

Axis' War Threat Makes Carol Bow

[Behind the News map and story on Page 3]

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Aug. 30—Rumania announced today that she had accepted an Axis ultimatum in negotiations for a cession of part of Transylvania to Hungary, and reliable reports said she had received in return a promise that German troops would come speedily to help defend her troubled Russian frontier.

While the Government's communique did not say outright that she had agreed to cede part of Transylvania, it did declare that "as a result of the ultimate demand of Germany and Italy, Rumania has decided to accept arbitration on the Transylvania question."

AUG 31 1940

It was reliably reported here that "arbitration" would involve a loss of more than half of the 35,000-square-mile province with its 3,500,000 people.

17,000 Square Miles

(An official Hungarian announcement said Rumania had agreed to cede Hungary about 17,000 square miles of Transylvania, to be transferred within two weeks. Rumanian officials are to withdraw under the supervision of a mixed Hungarian-Rumanian commission.

(The territory gained by Hungary is only about forty-five per cent. of the entire province which many Hungarians had hoped to get. The ceded area takes in the northern half of Transylvania and is in the shape of a horse's head with the nose extended on a line along the old pre-war eastern Hungarian frontier.)

Nazi Threat Reported

Threat of an immediate Soviet invasion as a consequence of a Hungarian attack backed by the Axis forced the capitulation to the four-power conference at Vienna, where Rumania was reported to have been told that German motorized columns and planes were ready to move at a moment's notice if the demand for a part of Transylvania was ignored.

But as a part of a secret agreement now being made at Vienna, it was reported reliably, German troops will be sent immediately to guard Rumania's frontier with Russia.

Government circles said Rumania faced overwhelming odds in a ring of threatened invasions.

Besides a Hungarian invasion, backed by Germany, and the possibility that Russia would move in from the north and east in event of conflict, Rumania also faced the possibility that Bulgaria would act from the south, they said.

Rumanians Kept In Dark

Late this afternoon the Rumanian populace still knew nothing about the decision except what they heard in gossip.

The communique announcing the capitulation was signed by members of the Crown Council, Council of Ministers, the orthodox patriarchs, one of whom is a Transylvanian bishop; Constantine Bratianu, former head of the National Liberal party; Ion Mihalache, a leader of the Peasant party, who had argued against the cession, and Horia Codreanu, ex-army officer and brother of the slain Iron Guard führer, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu.

Maniu's Name Missing

The signature of Juliu Maniu, veteran Peasant party leader who had argued for months against giving Hungary a single inch of territory, was missing.

This communique was issued after an answer to Rumania's decision had been received from Vienna, where the German, Italian, Rumanian and Hungarian Foreign Ministers and other statesmen were conferring.

Five-Minute Ultimatum Reported

A reply to Rumania's acceptance is expected by mid-afternoon from Vienna, where German and Italian Foreign Ministers von Ribbentrop and Ciano have been conferring with Foreign Minister Manoilescu of Rumania and Premier Teleky and Foreign Minister Csaky of Hungary.

Then the Rumanian Crown Council will meet to cinch the agreement.

An authoritative account of the all-night Rumanian Palace conferences, in which telephone contact was maintained with Vienna and a parade of leaders consulted with King Carol, said that at one stage Rumania was told she must make her decision within five minutes.

At 12.14 A. M., this story said, Foreign Minister Manoilescu, with German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop sitting beside him, telephoned that he had been given five minues in which to get a definite acceptance of the Vienna plan from Bucharest.

Invasion The Alternative

If the five minutes passed without Rumanian official approval, Ribbentrop was reported to have said, Rumania might face immediate invasion by Russia on one side and Hungary, backed by the German motorized columns and air force, on the other.

The Rumanian general staff was reported to have advised the government to accept the axis award at Vienna on the ground that the Rumanian army would be helpless to protect the country against possible Russian, Hungarian and Bulgarian attacks, especially if these were backed by the strong air fleets of Germany and Italy.

Besides pressure from Hungary and Bulgaria, informed circles saw indications that Soviet Russia was prepared to take advantage of any Rumanian preoccupation on these frontiers by entering Southern Bucovina from the north and Moldavia from the east.

The official Russian news agency made public a note disclaiming Soviet responsibility for border clashes in Southern Bucovina, warning Rumania of the "consequences" if such clashes continued, and declaring that Russian-Rumanian relations would "take a grave turn" if further incidents occurred. These Moscow warnings were discussed at an all-night government conference.

The army was ordered to be ready for any emergency.

King Carol, who has spent many hours each day in conference with his ministers and other advisers since the night the Russian ultimatum on Bessarabia was delivered, was counseled in making his decision by hundreds of political personages who streamed through the palace doors until after dawn.

Government quarters said Ribbentrop minced no words at the Vienna conference, but told the delegates what had to be done under threat of an overwhelming attack.

The Vienna conference was called by Germany and Italy after Rumania and Hungary had failed to settle the Hungarian claim between themselves at recent negotiations at Turnu-Severin.

In Cluj, Oradea and other large towns in the ceded area, the Hungarian minority staged impromptu celebrations. Rumanians in Arad and other localities claimed by Hungary but not ceded to her also celebrated.

Bucharest theaters, movies and night clubs were ordered closed for an indefinite period of national mourning. Music was forbidden in restaurants.

Many Still Unaware, However, Of Effect Of Axis-Forced Partition

Concern Felt In Bucharest Over Danger Of Disturbances

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, [redacted] Aug. 30—Tens of thousands of Rumanian public employes, judges, army officers and politicians, with their families, began a great exodus tonight from northern Transylvania, which soon will belong to Hungary.

They headed toward the old kingdom of Rumania by train, automobile, river boat and even in horse carts heaped high with personal possessions, as soon as the German-Italian ultimatum for the partition became known.

More than 1,000,000 Rumanian peasants, however, were declared still to be unaware that the distant negotiations of the Axis powers had decreed their return to Hungarian rule after twenty-two years in "Great Rumania."

Concern Expressed

No incidents yet had been reported from Transylvania, but concern was expressed in Bucharest over the danger of disturbances among the mixed populations before the transfer of authority is completed.

New Problems Beset Carol As Sequel To Latest Partition—Crown Council In Secret Session—Hungarians Jubilant

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 30 (Via Radio)—The German wireless reported from Bucharest tonight that Mihail Manoilescu, Foreign Minister of Rumania, had offered his resignation to King Carol and that the King had accepted. The telegram of resignation was reported sent from Vienna.

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Saturday, Aug. 31—While police guarded its palace session with sawed-off shotguns, the Rumanian Crown Council, which gave up half of Transylvania to Hungary, conferred until early this morning on "new problems of exceptional importance."

AUG 31 1940

Aside from this vague explanation, official quarters declined to disclose the new issues facing King Carol and his advisers as a result of the latest partitioning of his country, enforced by an Axis ultimatum.

The Council meeting ended at 2:30 A.M. with its purpose remaining secret.

"Defense Corps" Organized

But in sacrificed Transylvania, "defense corps" were being formed by unreconciled Rumanians. From Cluj, its capital, came a petition bearing thousands of signatures lauding Juliu Maniu, Rumanian Peasant party leader, for his opposition to the cession, and calling those who agreed to it "traitors."

Church bells of Transylvania were ordered to ring incessantly as a protest.

Maniu, although not a member of the Government or the Crown Council, put in a surprising appearance at the session.

Budapest, Aug. 30-(AP)-An official announcement today said Rumania had agreed to cede Hungary an estimated 44,000 square kilometers (About 17,000 square miles) of Transylvania to be transferred within two weeks. Rumanian officials are to withdraw under the supervision of a mixed Hungarian-Rumanian commission.

The territory gained by Hungary is only about 45 per cent of the entire Transylvania which many Hungarians had hoped to get.

The ceded area takes in the northern half of Transylvania and is in the shape of a horse's head with the nose extended on a line along the old pre-war eastern Hungarian frontier.

Hungarian Army Waits 'Go' Sign

BY DAN DE LUCE (By the Associated Press)

AUG 31 1940

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 30—Hungary's army, fully mobilized and eager to march, awaited impatiently tonight the signal to advance to the summit of the Carpathians and there to take up its new assignment as a military buffer for Germany on Soviet Russia's western frontier.

The country itself was in a high state of jubilation, for today Hungary got back about half of the thousand-year-old province of Transylvania—including the natural mountain fortress which for centuries has protected central Europe from whatever dangers might rise in the east.

Satellites Of Reich

The settlement imposed by the Axis, forcing Rumania to give back part of Transylvania, made both Rumania and Hungary satellites of German and Italian foreign policy. Its main point, as seen here, was to cut short any further Russian expansion into this Balkan "living space."

In the fact that German motorized legions are to be permitted to stand on the Rumanian-Russian frontier, some observers saw, too, the development of a virtual Nazi protectorate much like that in Slovakia.

The Hungarian army, strongly under German influence, was given the long wedge of mountains in the newly ceded area bordering Russia to occupy, the Rumanian forces being ordered out within fourteen days.

Capital Included

The Transylvanian capital of Cluj, which the Hungarians call Kolozsvar, falls within the ceded area. It has been since ancient days the birthplace of Hungary's most powerful rulers.

The main Transylvanian railway line, of great strategic military importance, also goes back to Hungary.

For this nation the return of northern Transylvania is the realization of a long dream. Eager crowds pawed for newspaper extras throughout the country; into tens of thousands of Hungarian homes radio loudspeakers brought military marches.

Hungarians To Return

Thousands of Hungarians who had fled Transylvania more than two decades ago made plans to go back to their old homes. Not even the breakup of Czecho-Slovakia, from which Hungary got back territory, created such high-pitched enthusiasm.

The public scarcely bothered about the details of the cession, but the sketchy line drawn by the Vienna "arbitrators" left the richest part of Transylvania in Rumanian hands. The northern section is valuable chiefly for timber, aside from its military possibilities.

The southern, or still Rumanian, section, however, has coal, iron ore, gold, salt and natural gas.

The larger cities returned to Hungary include Kolozsvar, 100,000; Nagyvarad, 85,000; Szatmarnemeti, 50,000; Sarhely, 40,000.

Russia Reveals Secret Drills of Army and Fleet

AUG 31 1940

Moscow, Silent on Vienna Agreement, Awaits Reply by Rumania to Protests

MOSCOW, Aug. 30 (AP).—Realistic Red Army drill in offensive tactics in a special western military district and maneuvers of the Red Fleet in an unidentified sea were disclosed today, while Soviet Russia viewed with an attitude of cool detachment the newest shifting of borders in the Balkans.

The Soviet Union was awaiting Rumania's reply to two protests charging Rumanian border troops with provocative actions on the Soviet-Rumanian frontier—protests warning of the grave consequences which any future trouble might bring.

Some diplomatic sources expressed the belief, however, that this situation was not now serious. They said Rumanian frontier guards had been reported to keep the peace strictly during the Vienna territorial negotiations which resulted today in the loss of approximately half of Rumania's Province of Transylvania to Hungary, and also during demarkation of the new Soviet-Rumanian border by a mixed commission which is expected to begin shortly.

Nevertheless, foreign observers took interested note of the fact that the Soviet Union's armed forces were tuned up to the alert, both on land and sea.

The western army maneuvers (there was no indication of their exact locale) were conducted under the eye of the Commissar of Defense, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko. Theoretically under fire, the troops marched thirty miles, then crossed a river on pontoon bridges under an artillery smokescreen and with the protection of the air force.

The fleet maneuvers, disclosed by the naval organ "Red Fleet," began with submarines scouting out theoretical enemy bases, thus permitting warships to take the sea for a mock battle. Again, there was no hint of where this was happening.

Russia's attitude toward the Rumanian-Hungarian trouble, as reflected by the press, was entirely objective. Only factual reports, without comment, were published.

It was reported here that four Rumanians were the only dead from incidents on the frontier in Bukovina. A mixed commission of six, including a general, a colonel and a Foreign Office representative on each side, has been named and is expected to meet soon in Moscow to start a definite demarkation of the frontier.

Diplomatic sources said Rumania gave an order to her frontier guards to cease firing in order to keep the peace during territorial negotiations with other neighbors.

Soviets Maneuver, Awaiting Reply From Bucharest

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—The Russian Navy has begun maneuvers, with submarine flotillas scouting theoretical enemy bases so as to permit the surface fleets to take the open sea for mock battle, Red Fleet, the navy's organ, announced today. The locale was not disclosed.

AUG 31 1940

The sham battles were announced as the Red Army also conducted maneuvers in unspecified western parts of Russia.

Despite these military and naval activities, however, some diplomatic sources attributed recent events on the Rumanian border to nervousness and expressed the belief the situation was not grave. It was reported here that four Rumanians were the only dead from these incidents on the frontier in Bucovina.

A mixed commission of six, including a general, a colonel and a Foreign Office representative on each side, has been named and is expected to meet soon in Moscow to start a definite demarkation of the frontier.

Diplomatic sources said Rumania gave an order to her frontier guards to cease firing in order to keep the peace during territorial negotiations with her other neighbors.

Nevertheless, the Soviet had warned Rumania demanded an "early and satisfactory" reply to two protests.

The Red Army troops trained in offensive tactics under observation by Marshal Semen Timoshenko, commissar of defense. (There was no indication that the "western" district was near the troubled Rumanian border.)

Under theoretical enemy fire, the Russian forces marched 30 miles and crossed a river while artillery laid a smoke screen, aviation provided protection and engineers built bridges in the realistic western operations.

The Soviet press, meanwhile, published reports on the Rumanian-Hungarian border clashes and the German-Italian arbitration at Vienna without editorial comment.

Provocation Charged.

Russia's two protests to Bucharest charged Rumanian troops with "provocative actions" on the Russian-Rumanian frontier and warned of possible "grave" consequences of any further incidents.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, disclosed the protests this morning Russia stated in a note of August 19 that "firing upon Soviet frontier troops by Rumanian troops could not be tolerated" and protested in a second note yesterday against "new hostile actions" by Rumanian frontier troops and against "a number of cases of violation of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian military aircraft."

In some cases Soviet frontier guards "were compelled to return the fire," Tass said. The Russian protest of yesterday stated "the Soviet side as yet had had no casualties, but should casualties occur matters would take a grave turn."

(Certain Rumanian Army units and supply depots were withdrawn from the frontier Wednesday, the same day a mixed Rumanian-Russian commission began investigation of a week end frontier clash reported in Bucharest to have caused the death of hundreds of soldiers near Adamcata, in Bucovina. On Tuesday, Rumanian government officials reported, a Russian plane making a scouting flight over Rumania was shot down by Rumanians.)

Blame Placed on Rumania.

The Soviet government placed upon the Rumanian government "the entire responsibility for possible consequences of the above-mentioned actions of Rumanian troops and military aircraft," Tass said.

Rumania replied to the first protest on August 26, Tass said, contesting the Soviet charges and declaring Rumanian frontier detachments had been fired upon, and that Soviet aircraft had crossed the Rumanian frontier.

Russia's answer, yesterday's protest, said the Rumanian charges would be investigated, but reiterated that "the Soviet government needs an early and satisfactory answer" to its own charges and stated, that despite Rumanian assurances steps were being taken to avoid incidents, "violations of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian troops continue up to the present day."

The notes were exchanged through Soviet Deputy for Foreign Affairs Dekanozoff and Rumanian Minister Grigore Gafencu.

GERMAN PLANES FIGHTING TO REACH HEART OF CITY DRIVEN AWAY; 62 DOWNED

Raiders Surprised By Spitfires Waiting For Them — Hospital Struck — Machine-Gun Bullets Aimed At Barrage, Hit Streets

AUG 31 194

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Aug. 31—German bombers dropped explosives on the outskirts of London last night and early today and subjected the empire capital to its second longest air raid since the war began almost a year ago.

The raiders loosed salvos of bombs on the suburban areas and were given a surprise when they found British Spitfire fighters waiting to engage them in the web of searchlights as they sought to penetrate the heart of the city. There were no reports of bombs falling in the midcity.

In Effect 6 Hours 39 Minutes

The alarm was in effect six hours and thirty-nine minutes. The signals screamed London's fourth alarm since yesterday morning at 9.11 P. M. last night. An all-clear was not given until 3.50 A. M.

The four alarms in one day set a record for such a period. Three earlier attempts yesterday to penetrate the city's inner defenses had been beaten off.

The extent of the damage was not known immediately. Some fires were observed, however.

Prowl Over Wide Area

The raiders also prowled over sixteen towns in England and one in Wales.

Early today the Air Ministry reported the Germans had lost sixty-two planes to nineteen for the British during the fighting yesterday in which hundreds of planes swept to the assault on vital British plants around the capital.

At least two bombers, prowling singly over London, were believed to have been crippled so badly that they would be unable to return to their bases, presumably in German-occupied France.

The British Press Association said a hospital was hit but it was not learned whether it was set ablaze. Another institution was fired.

In one metropolitan area machine-gun bullets, apparently intended to destroy a balloon barrage, whined down on the streets.

A Nazi bomber, caught momentarily in the white beam of a probing searchlight, was hit heavily by anti-aircraft and plunged to the earth in flames.

Eight bombs fell within the space of an hour, all apparently as some distance from the midcity.

The fourth alarm last night set a record. It was the first time yet that more than three visitation had occurred in one day.

The raiders moved cautiously at a great height above London--more than 20,000 feet--and in small groups.

They appeared Friday night at 9:10 o'clock, with a punctuality that has become habitual, after a day that had seen vastly heavier assaults by more than 700 planes on airdromes and industrial plants in the home counties all about the metropolis.

During the night raid on London, too, there were other German raiders over almost every section of England, bombing or scouting.

The British announced offically that more than 1,000 enemy airplanes have been destroyed this month.

Machine-Gun Bullets Hit Streets

Almost immediately after the night warning had gone out at least four bombs were dropped in one London area. Three planes could be seen over another part of the city. The raiders evidently were operating in small groups.

The Ministeries of Air and Home Security declared tonight that no serious damage had been suffered by British airdromes, but acknowledged that at one town industrial premises were damaged and that a number of persons had been killed there and elsewhere.

London's ring of anti-aircraft forts set up a wall of bursting shrapnel against the early invaders. British fighter defenders did the rest.

Nazi planes also pounded British industrial centers in the northwest, the southeast and south Wales, giving Manchester, textile center, its worst drubbing of the war.

The heaviest fighting occurred over a London suburb, where hundreds of shoppers saw a force of British fighters pounce on a formation of about twenty-five Nazi planes. They dived and looped in a free-for-all battle, which speedily split up their formation. Some invaders jettisoned their bombs and fled for home. Three caught in a cross-fire of British machine guns crashed almost in the same spot.

But it was apparent that a few of the invaders broke through to their goals. British casualties increased during the day. The Government did not reveal the exact toll.

Many of the raiders apparently just feinted at London, then skirted it to attack industrial targets farther north.

add London..xxx north.

Overnight, until Friday dawn, Britain's long-distance bombers had attacked the Krupp armaments works at Essen and other military targets in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

These attacks followed day-light forays Thursday on airdromes in German-held Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast.

Besides the big Krupp works, oil refineries and plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bottrop and St. Nazaire were attacked; power stations at Duisberg and Reisholz, freight yards at Hamm and Soest, plants in the Ruhr district, and airdromes over a wide area also were raided.

Three British bombers failed to return.

The planes swirled and dived and looped in a virtual free-for-all as the formation broke up.

Some of the attack bombers dumped their missiles in their flight.

A moment after the formation was browen up, one bomber was seen falling with two fighters swoping down on its tail.

Two Crash Nearby

Two others crashed near where the first one fell.

The sound of diving planes was followed by the explosion of bombs, indicating that some dive bombers got in their licks.

Unofficial reports said six bombers were brought down in the third raid alone, apparently while attempting to locate and bomb a factory.

In earlier tries to break through London's defenses, the Germans lost nineteen bombers. Thus, the total cost of today's smash at the capital was, unofficialy, at least twenty-five.

London Beats Off Three Nazi Raids

AUG 31 194

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 30—Furious dogfights raged high over London today as waves of German bombers, some dive-bombing the outskirts, struck again and again at the British capital.

Three alarms kept the city running to and from air-raid shelters from just before noon until nearly 6 P. M., when the last all-clear signal sounded.

The first two waves—perhaps 400 in all—were turned back after fierce battles.

But in the last attack dive bombers could be heard over the suburbs, and the roar of their motors indicated there were large numbers of them.

The third attack, too, was turned back by the British fighters, aided by an intense anti-aircraft barrage.

Formation Broken Up

At least twenty bombers flew at a great height over one district in London during this raid, but a swarm of British fighters met them and split up the formation.

Heaviest fighting occurred over a London suburb where hundreds of afternoon shoppers saw a force of British fighter planes pounce on a formation of more than a score of raiders flying in the sun.

While the third raid on the London area was in progress, the Germans, using dispersion tactics, were feinting other areas in the southeast and northwest.

Bomb Hits Welsh Town

Two men were reported killed and several injured when a bomb exploded in a Welsh town.

Streets of the suburbs were crowded with shoppers when the bombs were dropped. Men and women who had gone out after the second warning ended, had to take shelter again.

Reports from a southeast town said that while London's second warning was in progress twelve high-explosive bombs and a few incendiaries were dropped in outlying districts and several persons were injured and one man died of shock. Some houses were badly damaged.

Gunfire "Terrific"

The gunfire over one suburban area was described as "terrific" by eye-witnesses as one German bomber was shot down over the London area with two British fighters in hot pursuit.

The all-clear signal sounded over the London area at 5.48 P. M.

Battles In Southeast

The day's second alarm sounded about 3.30 P. M. But the all-clear signal came six minutes later.

An hour before the first afternoon alarm sounded air battles were reported over southeastern England, where the raiders were trying to cross over another section.

During the first raid battles raged from the outskirts of the London area all the way to the coast.

A communique issued by the Air and Home Security Ministries, said the Germans came over in three successive waves and were "scattered and driven back."

Raiders Near City

A "small proportion" of the raiders approached the London area, the communique said, but were unsuccessful in attempts to bomb airports surrounding the city.

"Bombs were dropped indiscriminately in districts of Kent and Surrey," it said. "Slight damage is reported and the number of casualties is small, but includes some killed."

Coming over in formations of fifteen to twenty planes, the Germans ran into a solid wall of anti-aircraft fire and swarming fighters.

The Air Ministry communique was issued from the Ministry of Information's special deep shelter press room during the second raid.

The attempts to raid London followed early morning attacks on the great industrial northwest, including the textile center of Manchester.

The attack on the northwest, one of the heaviest of the war, was coupled with others on the southeast, the midlands and south Wales. Many persons were killed and injured in these forays.

London's first air-raid alarm sounded shortly after noon but was lifted about an hour later without the appearance of any raiders.

Mother, Children Killed

A mother and two children were reported killed at Manchester and a number of cottages wrecked. Rescue squads worked frantically to get out a number of persons trapped in the wreckage.

Manchester is one of the largest and most important industrial cities of England. It has a population of 766,000 and is thirty-one miles east of Liverpool, to which it is connected by a large canal accommodating seagoing vessels.

Six persons were reported killed and many injured in another west coast area.

James' Home Destroyed

Still more raids were aimed at southeast England during the night. The home of the late Henry James, the author, was reported destroyed at Rye, an ancient southeastern town sitting on a high rock promontory crowned by an ancient castle and fortress.

Bombs were dropped in southeastern England, while Nazi raiders also were reported over two towns in the industrial Midlands.

Royal Air Force fighter planes shot down two German bombers in spirited fighting over a southeast coast resort town today.

One bomber fell into the sea and the other about a mile inland, after dogfights high in the sky.

Night "Breathing Spell"

Today's daylight attacks followed a night and early morning in which Britain had a relative "breathing spell," with London itself having only a "standby" warning. The most severe pre-dawn attacks were reported in northwest England.

London's stand-by warning was an innovation, introduced in order that factory work need not be halted each time a single German bomber or a few approaching raiders are reported. In future, a purple light warning in munitions and other plants, as well as hospitals and public service stations, will indicate that Nazi warplanes are near, to be followed by the red signal, which is equivalent to the sounding of sirens.

The London press, while acknowledging the unavoidable risks entailed by the new policy, approved. The newspapers pointed out that the sounding of sirens for only a few raiders interfered with Great Britain's war effort and cited a Government statement that "every one is in the front line at this time" and "must be prepared as a citizen's duty to take a risk."

Northwest Is Hardest Hit.

It was the north of England, however and particularly the northwest that took the brunt of last night's German attacks.

The British Press Association said that the raiders, which flew repeatedly over a northwest of England town, "dropped their bombs at random, and some fell near a railway station." Incendiary bombs fell on one of the town's principal streets, and there was some damage to "houses and commercial property," the Government stated, adding that the Nazi planes dropped an unusually heavy proportion of incendiary bombs in attacks which also struck at the northeast of England, the industrial Midlands and South Wales, but which took only a small toll of casualties throughout the country.

The southeast coastal area had three raids during the night but the only definite damage reported was a seaside entertainment hall set on fire, and the only German plane definitely reported downed during the pre-dawn hours was a Junkers bomber which crashed on a village green in that area. One airman was killed and three others were injured.

An Associated Press correspondent on the southwest coast, however, reported that a raider there also was believed shot down.

One or two persons were killed and some thirty injured during a night raid of several hours over a northwest coastal district.

One report said that the district was "plastered with high explosive and incendiary bombs." Several fires were started, but damage, including fires in two warehouses, was said to be comparatively slight.

A children's hospital was hit. Heavy anti-aircraft fire met planes which swept low in successive attacks.

In a northwest country district, there were believed to be several casualties when a bomb burst near a public air raid shelter, which collapsed.

In the hardest-hit northwest coast area a number of people in a working class district were trapped under the debris of shattered dwellings.

Slight damage to scattered bits of property was reported from Wales, where the crash of bombs so frightened an elderly woman she died of shock.

Family Trapped in Northeast.

About twenty high explosive and incendiary bombs fell on a northeast coastal town, trapping a family of three in the ruins of their house. A rescue squad got out the parents and continued to search for their son. The bombs fell in a residential area, leaving a number of persons homeless.

Elsewhere in the northeast the Germans dropped flares, and in rural districts a number of water mains were shattered.

A man was killed and his brother was injured in a northeastern town that was struck by sixteen high explosive and a number of incendiary bombs.

In a northeast coastal town, a number of persons were trapped in an air raid shelter, under a fish shop, in a working class district.

A bomb scored a direct hit on the shop. Rescue workers reported they could hear voices shouting to them from deep down beneath a great pile of rubble.

One northeast coast town reported that about twenty-seven large high explosive bombs and 1,000 incendiary bombs were dropped in two raids over that area.

Most of the incendiaries were reported to have fallen in the open country.

At least five persons were killed during attack on another northeastern town. A few others were reported injured severely.

A number of the casualties were caused when one of the raiders, apparently hard hit, jettisoned its bombs on a large housing development, all but demolishing three houses and badly damaging several others on three roads.

In another northeastern area, some thirty incendiary bombs fell around an isolation hospital. One fell through the roof of a ward from which all but two patients had been removed to a shelter. One was a convalescent sailor who smothered the bomb with blankets.

A matron in the hospital, where there are some forty patients, said that except for the hole in the roof "there was no damage." The hospital lies some distance from the nearest town and is surrounded by fields.

The Air Ministry announced meanwhile that of nine British planes shot down in yesterday's fighting seven pilots were saved.

Children Trapped

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 30—Rescue workers still were digging late tonight to extricate eleven persons, six of them children, entombed in the cellar of a fish market at a northeast town by a German bomb blast this morning.

The high - explosive bomb scored a direct hit on the shop, trapping the children, two men and five women. A man and a woman were rescued during the day and taken to a hospital.

London, Aug. 30—Sandwiched between air-raid alarms, life in this world's largest city goes on pretty much the same as ever despite the war.

You can still buy sightseeing guides along the Strand and embankment, and flowers on almost any street corner. The flower woman's tin hat hangs amid the asters, carnations and snapdragons.

If you want to see bombed ruins you have to find out where they are and take hours traveling to find them. They are few and far between in this city which sprawls over more square mileage than any other city in the world, not excluding Los Angeles.

Central London has twenty-four legitimate shows running this week, hundreds of movies. Newspapers have been delayed but have never missed an edition. The milkman makes his daily rounds everywhere.

There has been no shortage of food supplies in any area; distribution systems have not faltered under the raids, and not a bus route has had to make more than a temporary detour.

Commuters still ride to work as nonchalantly as ever, reading and working cross-word puzzles. Only two minor suburban lines have stopped. Boaters along the upper Thames take to their canoes religiously every morning. Dozens of river excursion boats ply their courses between raids.

It is true that there are screaming bombs and nights often are made hideous in parts of this area—with clanging fire engines and the wail of sirens. People die horribly, too, but while censorship bans the disclosure of their number, it often is insignificant.

Krupp Plant Raided By British

London, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Krupp armament works at Essen and other military targets in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France were raided by British bombers in attacks last night, the Air Ministry reported tonight. The night raids followed daylight forays on airdromes in Nazi-occupied Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast, it said.

The communique:

"Yesterday R. A. F. bombers carried out daylight attacks on enemy-occupied airdromes in Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast.

"Last night our aircraft bombed the Krupp works at Essen, oil refineries and plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bottrop, and at St. Nazaire; power stations at Duisberg and Reisholz, various military objectives in the Ruhr, the goods (freight) yards at Hamm and Soest, and a number of enemy airdromes in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

"From day and night operations, a total of three aircraft have not returned."

Two Nazis Shot Down.

A SOUTHEAST COAST TOWN IN ENGLAND, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—Royal Air Force fighter planes shot down two German bombers in spirited fighting over this resort town today.

One Nazi bomber fell in the sea and the other about a mile inland, after dogfights high in the sky.

Germans Claim 80 Planes.

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—German spokesmen declared tonight that eighty British planes had been destroyed in extensive Nazi air raids on airports in southern England today. Twenty-one German planes were acknowledged missing.

The announcement said there were numerous surprise raids on Britain during the day—most of them on airports and other Royal Air Force facilities.

Numerous air battles took place over south England and the channel.

Violent air battles ensued, DNB said, in which the German planes "again proved their distinct superiority."

Many of the British losses, it was said, occurred in battles over a flying field near Aldershot. German losses were listed as seven planes.

Great fires left raging in Liverpool and Birkenhead, on the Mersey River, Britain's greatest center of west coast shipping, were reported by German sources today after night air attacks directed chiefly at industrial plants and ports.

The high command said the fires there showed the "success" of the night raids after limited reconnaissance flights yesterday in which 19 British planes were shot down in air battles and 7 German planes lost.

Industrial plants at Felixtowe, in Suffolk County, airplane plants at Weybridge, southwest of London, and Langley-South Wells, and port facilities at Dundee, Leith and Hartlepool also were subject to night attack by fighter planes, the high command said.

Nazi Radios Silent 47 Minutes

All Berlin radio stations went off the air yesterday abruptly at 8:09 p. m., New York time, but resumed operations at 8:56 p. m., according to the National Broadcasting Company short-wave listening post here. Silence of German stations usually indicates presence of enemy air raiders.

AUG 31 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Saturday, Aug. 31—Terrific air battles over the English Channel and southern England, possibly reaching an intensity not previously attained, are being reported fragmentarily to Berlin.

Latest dispatches early today said eighty British planes had been destroyed in the fighting yesterday, while twenty-one German machines are missing.

British Acting to Halt Signals to Nazi Bombers

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—British police have started a new drive against suspected fifth-column activity during Nazi night air raids, it was reported today.

On recent nights, there have been spotted fires which police believe were set by fifth columnists to guide German bombers to their objectives.

In the London area, police observed flashes of lights from a large block of apartments. They raided the apartments and took a man in custody for questioning.

Scotland Yard daily has received scores of calls from persons reporting what they believed to be signal lights. In most cases, these flashes of light proved to be accidental.

Two incendiary bombs crashed through the roof of the tiny Evangelical Christus Church, in Diefenbach Street, in the southeast section of the capital. A blaze was started in the choir loft which was quickly extinguished. An apartment house, next door, however, burned extensively and the walls of Bethesda Hospital were scorched.

Raiders Strike in Waves

The raiders came in waves, possibly in several groups. At least one was caught in searchlight beams as it flew at a comparatively low altitude. This plane released a bomb which landed two blocks from The Associated Press office in the center of the city. No fire followed this explosion.

Another machine appeared headed for the southeastern district lighted by the first fire.

BULLETIN

AUG 31 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Saturday, Aug. 31—British air raiders swept over Berlin early this morning and dropped dozens of bombs which started two fires in apartment houses, seriously injured three civilians and slightly damaged an electrical appliance works.

Military authorities said that damage to establishments which might be regarded as military objectives was extremely small.

The fire, in the southeastern section of the German capital, was visible for many blocks. It was this section which was bombed on Thursday morning, when ten civilians were killed.

Half an hour after the fire started there was a big explosion which sent sparks high into the sky.

The air raid alarm lasted an hour and thirty-seven minutes, from 1:39 a. m. (7:39 p. m., Friday, New York time) until 3:16 a. m. (9:16 p. m.)

[German officials announced earlier this week that no news of British raids would be released until the alarm was over.]

A business building housing a printshop and other industries was reported hit.

Anti-aircraft batteries opened with a terrific fire, and shell splinters rained over the city.

Tracer bullets lanced the air, following the directions given by searchlight beams trained on spots in the sky from which the hum of motors appeared to come.

It was announced officially that three persons were injured severely and three others slightly wounded.

Planes Arrive Later

The British planes came later than they had on other raids, and did not stay so long. Nor did the sirens give Berlin residents as much warning as previously. Anti-aircraft was in action for several minutes before the sirens sounded the alarm.

Military authorities said that damage to establishments which might be regarded as military objectives was extremely small.

Communications with the outside world were cut off in order to avoid giving the flyers a clew to direction by radio waves.

The propaganda ministry, as it had done on Thursday morning, again prepared to take foreign cor-

Fresh Bombardment Of Malta Navy Base Reported by Italy

British Concentrations In Kenya Also Bombed, High Command Says

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Renewed air bombardment of the British Mediterranean island naval base of Malta and bombing of British troop concentrations in Kenya Colony were reported today by the Italian high command.

A band of native Italian Somaliland troops were reported to have inflicted serious losses on British forces in a sudden attack toward Buna.

The daily high command communique said:

"The naval base of Mikabba in Malta was subjected to accurate bombing action by our air formation.

"Enemy pursuit planes which were in flight attempted to escape the action, not wishing to engage in combat with our escorting chaser planes. Our chasers, however, succeeded in damaging three enemy planes.

"In North Africa military warehouses and barracks and a railroad platform at Mersa Matruh were bombed repeatedly and intensely in successive waves by our formation. Several hundred bombs were dropped on their objectives with accurate fire.

"In East Africa, troop concentrations and motorized columns were bombed by our planes at Arbo Elbhai and near Garissa in Kenya. The flying field at Buna also was bombed with one plane destroyed on the ground and two others damaged.

"Although some planes which took part in the above operations were hit, all returned to their bases with their crews uninjured.

"Duvak bands carried out an attack in the direction of Buna. A British lorry was destroyed and heavy losses inflicted on the enemy.

"British planes three times raided Mogadiscio, killing two and injuring six persons. The material damage was insignificant."

ROME, Aug. 30 (AP).—"Il Popolo d Roma" reported today in a dispatch from Athens that the British oil pipe line from Irak to Haifa, Palestine, had been closed as a result of Italian air bombardments of ports of British-mandated Palestine. It said the pipe line to Tripoli had been closed earlier.

The dispatch said Suez had become the principal port through which the British are receiving troop reinforcements and supplies for Egypt, since shipping allegedly abandoned Alexandria. The Gulf of Suez, it said, is full of ships.

ROME, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The newspaper Popolo di Roma hinted broadly today that Premier Mussolini's aviator sons, Bruno and Vittorio, are piloting bombing planes in raids on British bases in the Mediterranean.

Bruno is a Captain and Vittorio is a Lieutenant in the Italian air force.

ROME, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—Troops and Red Cross workers searched in the ruins of a Bologna munitions factory today for possible additional victims of an explosion that killed at least ten persons and injured many others last night.

Fascist officials went to the scene in an effort to determine the cause of the explosion.

Report Building Demolished And Fires Started At Transport Base

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 30—A "highly successful" attack by the South African air force that destroyed "several hundred" machines in a large motor transport concentration at Mogadishu, Italian Somaliland, was announced tonight by the British air command.

A communique said the raid was carried out yesterday in several waves and that when the last wave of planes reached the target dense black smoke was rising to a height of 3,000 feet and fires had broken out in the center of the depot.

"It is estimated that several hundred vehicles were destroyed," it said.

"Some fighter opposition was encountered," the communique continued, "but the raid was pushed home to its conclusion. All of our aircraft returned safely."

Telling of fighting elsewhere in Africa and the Mediterranean area, it related:

"A building was demolished and a large fire started as a result of a raid by R. A. F. bombers on Tandche, Italian East Africa.

"Naval workshops at Massaua, Eritrea, suffered direct hits during raids by our bombers and three large fires were started.

"A large formation of enemy bombers escorted by many fighters raided Malta yesterday. Some damage was done to civilian property, but casualties were only six civilians slightly injured."

U.S. MISSIONARY COUPLE KILLED IN ITALIAN RAID

Washington Notified Of Deaths Of Doctor And Wife In Sudan

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 30—The United States legation informed the State Department tonight that Dr. Robert Grieve, 28, an American medical missionary, and his wife, about 25, had been killed August 23 in an Italian air raid on their outpost in an isolated region of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, near the Ethiopian frontier.

Information received at Khartoum from Dr. T. A. Lambie, field director of the Sudan interior mission, with which the couple was associated, confirmed British reports of their death, the legation said.

Seriously Injured

Besides Doctor and Mrs. Grieve, the Reverend and Mrs. Kenneth Oglesby, also Americans, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were reported by Dr. Lambie to have been gravely injured.

High British sources said the Italians dropped thirty bombs and machine-gunned the missionary station at Doro, in Upper Nile province, despite frantic efforts to signal them with American flags. There was no indication, however, from what altitude the attack was delivered.

The Governor General of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, a British official, charged the Italians with "deliberate" machine-gunning of the remote missionary station.

Same Report Given

An army communique later gave substantially the same report, declaring that Doctor and Mrs. Grieve were killed "by machine-gun fire as they ran out waving American flags."

Three boys of the Marwan tribe near by also were wounded. A Miss Walsh, an Australian in the mission, was unharmed.

The Grieves were described here as a studious couple who began their missionary careers six months ago at the lonely Doro post. He had devoted a year to a special study of tropical diseases.

Dr. Lambie, an American who became an Ethiopian citizen and now is in process of being renaturalized, is director in the Sudan for the society, an Anglo-American, interdenominational organization.

Lambie Is Marylander

Dr. Lambie, a native of Owings Mills, Md., founded a leper hospital in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and in 1934 became a citizen of that country. Two years later, when Italian troops invaded the land, he was escorted to the Ethiopian border and his passport invalidated. Following that he turned to this country by way of London, where, at that time, the Lion of Judah, Haile Selassie, was in exile. Italians took over the work of his hospital, referred to as a "leprosarium."

Dr. Grieve And Wife Married In Seattle

Seattle, Aug. 30 (AP)—Mrs. Robert Grieve, reported killed with her husband, a medical missionary in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McClenny, who live near Edmonds, Wash. They were married here in June, 1936.

Dr. Grieve, 28, completed his medical internship at the Deaconess Hospital, Spokane, Wash., in 1939.

Before leaving for his African post, he said he understood he would be the only white doctor within 500 miles of his isolated station on the upper Nile river.

Ogelbys In African Mission Field Since '33

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Reverend and Mrs .Kenneth Oglesby, of Brooklyn, who were reported gravely injured in a recent Italian air raid on their missionary outpost in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, have been missionary workers in the Ethiopian field since 1933.

They went to Ethiopia seven years ago, the Sudan interior mission said. After a short furlough in 1938, they took their present post in the Sudan near the Ethiopian frontier.

The Rev. Mr. Oglesby has a sister, Miss Daphne Oglesby, in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Oglesby is believed to have relatives in Sedalia, Mo.

2 U. S. Missionaries Slain by Italians, British Charge

Two Others Wounded As Flyers Disregarded American Flag, Is Report

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Aug. 30.—A British official, the Governor-General of Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, charged today that an Italian airplane had machine-gunned and bombed an isolated station in the British-protected territory, killing two and wounding two other American missionaries.

The official said the attack was carried out despite the waving of an American flag by the missionaries, but no details were given as to the height from which the attack was delivered.

The Sudan, just south of Egypt, has been under repeated Italian attack, particularly on the eastern frontier near Gallabat, opposite Ethiopia, and Kassala, opposite Eritrea.

The governor's report said that two Italian planes attacked Doro, an isolated station of the Sudan Interior Mission, in upper Nile Province, about 55 miles southwest of Kurkuk, August 23. At least 30 bombs were dropped and then the Italian flyers used their machine-guns, the report said.

Of the staff of five persons, it said, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Grieve were killed and Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Oglesby were wounded. All are Americans.

A Miss Walsh, an Australian, was unhurt.

U. S. Flag Displayed

The Grieves were said to have run out of the mission station waving a large American flag, but that this failed to ward off the machine-gun attack by the Italians.

Two boys of the Marwan tribe nearby also were wounded.

The missionary station was described as "absolutely isolated with no sort of military objective in the vicinity."

Later an army communique told of the killing and wounding of the missionaries.

The communique also said British troops fought a "successful" action against Italians near the Sudan desert outpost of Gallabat and killed 10 of the enemy and wounded 15.

A few casualties were caused by an Italian bombing of Matruh when that Mediterranean point was raided twice yesterday.

Day's Communiques of the Three Belligerent Powers

British

LONDON, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security issued the following communiqué today:

In attacks by enemy aircraft during last night many bombs, especially of the incendiary type, were dropped, but the great majority of them did no damage.

In the northwest some damage was caused to houses and commercial property. Fires which broke out were soon brought under control.

In the northwest and in the midlands many incendiary and some high explosive bombs were dropped, but little damage is reported. Most of the bombs fell in fields.

In South Wales some houses were damaged.

A few bombs were dropped on the outskirts of the London area and in some adjoining districts. Only slight damage was caused. In other regions bombs also were dropped, but did little damage.

The total number of casualties reported from all areas is small.

Another communiqué of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security:

Large forces of enemy aircraft crossed the southeast coast this morning in three successive waves at short intervals.

Our defenses went into action and the battle which developed resulted in the enemy being scattered and driven back. A small proportion of them approached the London area and attempted unsuccessfully to attack several airdromes in the home counties. These aircraft, too, were engaged and dispersed.

Bombs were dropped indiscriminately in districts of Kent and Surrey. Slight damage is reported. The number of casualities is small, but includes some killed.

Reports up to 2 P. M. show that nineteen enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters. Six of our aircraft are reported missing. One pilot is known to be safe.

An Air Ministry communiqué stated:

Yesterday R. A. F. bombers carried out daylight attacks on enemy-occupied airdromes in Holland and on convoys and shipping along the Dutch coast.

Last night our aircraft bombed the Krupp Works at Essen, oil refineries and plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bottrop and at St. Nazaire, power stations at Duisburg and Reisholz, various military objectives in the Ruhr, the goods yards at Hamm and Soest and a number of enemy airdromes in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

From day and night operations a total of three aircraft have not returned.

The text of a communiqué of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security:

Large formations of enemy aircraft again crossed the Kentish coast this afternoon, later spreading out over a wide area and attempting to attack a number of R. A. F. airdromes in the home counties.

Preliminary reports indicate that no serious damage was done to the airdromes, although there were a small number of casualties, including some killed. At one town in the home counties industrial premises were damaged and a number of people killed and injured.

The enemy were heavily engaged at all points by our fighters, which inflicted severe losses.

Reports received up to 7:30 P. M. show that forty-two enemy aircraft have been destroyed. Ten of our fighters are reported lost, but the pilots of four of them are safe.

Later the Air Ministry announced:

Reports received up to 10 P. M. show that fifty-three enemy aircraft have been destroyed today. Fifteen of our fighters have been lost, but five of the pilots are safe.

It is now known that the total number of enemy aircraft destroyed yesterday was eleven. The number of enemy aircraft destroyed in air attacks on this country during this month now exceeds 1,000.

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Air Ministry issued the following communiqué early today:

Further reports show that sixty-two enemy aircraft were destroyed in the attack on this country Friday. Fifty-eight were shot down by our fighters and four by anti-aircraft guns.

Nineteen of our fighters were lost, but it is now known that the pilots of ten of these are safe.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 30 (AP)—The British command issued the following communiqué today:

Western Front—On Aug. 29 Matruh was raided twice by enemy aircraft, causing a few casualties. One enemy aircraft is reported to have been destroyed by anti-aircraft fire.

Sudan—In the Gallagat area yesterday our troops fought a successful action against the enemy preparing defenses. Ten of the enemy were killed and about fifteen wounded. Our casualties were nil.

On Aug. 25 enemy aircraft bombed and machine-gunned a Sudan missionary station at Boing, southwest of Kurmuk. One missionary and his wife were killed by machine-gun fire as they ran out waving American flags. Two missionaries were wounded. All were American citizens. The mission, which is known to the Italians, is quite isolated, unprotected and near no military objectives of any sort.

On Other Fronts—Nothing to report.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 30 (British Official Wireless)—

A highly successful attack was made by the South African Air Force on Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, on Thursday. The target was a large Italian motor transport concentration.

The raid was carried out by waves of bombers. When the last wave of bombers reached the target it was met by dense clouds of black smoke rising to 3,000 feet. Large fires broke out in the north and the center of the depot. It is estimated that several hundred vehicles were destroyed.

Some fighter opposition was encountered, but the raid was pushed home to its conclusion. All our aircraft returned safely.

A building was demolished and a large fire started as result of a raid by R. A. F. bombers on Tancho, Italian East Africa.

Naval workshops at Massawa, Eritrea, suffered direct hits during raids by our bombers, and three large fires were started.

A large formation of enemy bombers escorted by many fighters raided Malta yesterday. Some damage was done to civilian property, but casualties were only six civilians slightly injured.

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Aug. 30 (AP)—The British issued the following communiqué tonight:

Our troops encountered an enemy ambush in the Buna district, which was dispersed. Our casualties were slight.

The South African Air Force carried out a successful raid on Mogadiscio. Direct hits were made in a very large motor transport park, in which high explosive and incendiary bombs fell and large fires were started.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (AP)—Today's German High Command communiqué:

The air force's activity yesterday was limited to armed reconnaissance, in the course of which several air fights developed over Southeastern England.

During the night of Aug. 29-30 fighting plane units attacked several airports in the counties of Lincoln and Suffolk, industrial plants at Felixstowe, airplane plants at Weybridge and Langley-South Wells, and port facilities at Dundee, Leith, Hartlepool and Liverpool.

Extensive fires in the attacked regions, particularly in Liverpool Port, showed the success of the raids. British ports again were mined.

Last night British planes again dropped bombs in non-military targets in Western Germany. In the Ruhr region several residential sections were hit.

These fires, however, were quickly quenched by air-protection squads. Other property damage was immaterial. During the nocturnal flights into the Ruhr region two enemy planes were shot down by anti-aircraft.

In the air fights during the day nineteen enemy planes were bagged, six barrage balloons destroyed and seven of our own planes failed to return.

One submarine at night sank three enemy merchant ships totaling 21,000 tons from a strongly protected convoy.

Italian

ROME, Aug. 30 (AP)—Today's Italian High Command communiqué:

The naval base of Mikabba in Malta was subjected to accurate bombing action by our air formations. Enemy pursuit planes which were in flight attempted to escape the action, not wishing to engage in combat with our escorting chaser planes. Our chasers, however, succeeded in damaging three enemy planes.

In North Africa military warehouses and barracks and a railroad platform at Mersa Matruh were bombed repeatedly and intensely in successive waves by our formations. Several hundred bombs were dropped on their objectives with accurate fire.

In East Africa troop concentrations and motorized columns were bombed by our planes at Arbo El Bhai and near Garissa in Kenya. The flying field at Buna also was bombed, with one plane destroyed on the ground and two others damaged.

Although some planes which took part in the above operations were hit, all returned to their bases with their crews uninjured.

Dubat bands carried out an attack in the direction of Buna. A British lorry was destroyed and heavy losses inflicted on the enemy.

British planes three times raided Mogadiscio, killing two and injuring six persons. The material damage was insignificant.

Greece, Expecting New Italian Move, Calls Up All Reserve Officers

Athens, Aug. 30 (AP)—Greece called up substantially all of her reserve officers tonight, while informed quarters were predicting that Italy might use a projected session of the Albanian Parliament tomorrow as a sounding board for new oral attacks on this pro-British country.

Greek officials said the meeting would be watched anxiously for some sign of Italy's intention toward this kingdom. The Fascist press has carried on a violent campaign against Greece, alleging that the Greeks now hold territory rightfully belonging to Albania.

The reservists were called up for service September 11. The scope of the summons will make it possible, said military observers, to put the nation completely under arms within a few hours. Some reserve classes already are in service.

Bombs Drop at Random; Where's That? Swiss Ask

Maps Fail to Show English Town Attacked by Nazis

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 30 (AP).—Baffled Swiss thumbed through their maps and lexicons today trying to find the English town of "Random" which, according to German and Italian broadcasts, was heavily bombed yesterday. It developed, however, that the axis broadcasters had misinterpreted a British agency report which was to the effect that "the Germans had dropped bombs at random" on England.

Nose Gone, Pilot Out, Plane Gets to Base

LONDON, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The transparent nose of an American-built Lockheed was shot off by an anti-aircraft shell over Denmark, an Air Ministry news bulletin reported today, but the ship came home safely.

The pilot was knocked out by the explosion, it said, and the navigator revived him and helped to get the plane under control as it dived almost into the sea.

Britain's Latest Warplane

London, Aug. 30 (AP)—A new two-seater fighter, described as a better performer than the Skua dive bomber used by the fleet air arm, is being commissioned for Britain's naval air force, it was disclosed today.

It is named the Fulmar after the swift sea bird of the Petrel family.

Germans Put Heavy Taxes on Norwegians

OSLO, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—A general tax increase has been voted by the administration council of German-occupied Norway, including a 10 per cent sales tax and a 30 uer cent income tax on large private incomes and corporations.

Mark Now Luxemburg's Money.

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The reichsmark has been introduced as legal tender in German-occupied Luxemburg as a further step toward incorporation of the duchy into the Reich's economy, it was disclosed today.

The action was taken by a decree of the German civil administration, effective as of August 27.

Simultaneously, strict German foreign currency regulations have been put into effect.

On the other hand, Minister of Economics Walther Funk abolished by ordinance the currency restrictions which prevailed in German Luxemburg trade previously.

REICH MAY GET WAR PRISONERS

Nazis Consider Sending All Into Germany.

A MILLION STILL IN FRANCE

They Must Be Fed in Occupied Area by the Invaders.

LES VERRIERES, Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—Informed spokesmen declared today that the German Army of Occupation is considering taking all French prisoners of war out of the occupied zone to Germany because of a growing conviction that the war will continue at least through the winter.

More than 1,000,000 prisoners are involved, it was said.

The Germans would free these men in occupied territory but for the fear of sabotage and disorders, it was said, and the Vichy Government is unequipped to care for them in the unoccupied zone.

Furthermore, these spokesmen said, some supplies earmarked for the German occupying forces and troops preparing for the Battle of Britain are being used for the war prisoners because of the inability of the French authorities to feed them properly.

60,000,000 Letters Returned.

GRENOBLE, France, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The return to their senders of 60,000,000 letters piled up in three weeks by severance of mail service between German-occupied France and the unoccupied zone was interpreted here as indicating that the Germans plan to suspend mail service indefinitely.

The letters were piled up on the Vichy Government's side of the line separating the occupied and unoccupied zones.

The newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois said that the suspension order was understandable since the Germans are determined to prevent any leakage of military secrets from the occupied zone to the unoccupied region, whence they might reach Great Britain.

French Press Denounces Jews as Ban Is Lifted

Reports Anti-Semitic Rallies, Proposes Curb on Jobs

VICHY, Aug. 30 (AP).—The French press began editorial attacks on Jews today, following promulgation of a decree lifting a ban on newspaper attacks based on race or religion.

Declaring that manifestations of a "spontaneous expression of popular indignation" against Jews had taken place at several places, including Nice, Cannes, Marseilles, Toulouse and Lyons, the newspaper "Le Memorial," published at St. Etienne, called for legislation limiting the number of Jews employed by the state.

The French press must have liberty to denounce the nefarious action of Jews," said "Le Memorial," published under state control. "All those who represent peril for the nation must be placed in a position where they cannot harm the state."

Before the war, it charged, Jews "invaded" all walks of French life and agitated for a "holy war against anti-Semitic Germany. . . . Now that defeat has stricken us, the anger of the French people is rising against Israel."

Little popular anti-Semitic feeling has been observed in France, however, apart from the press attacks and slogans "Down With Jews" chalked on some walls and buildings.

Epernay's Champagne Booms Under the Nazis

Takes Lead Over Rheims as Latter Lacks River Route

VERRIERES, Switzerland (on the French frontier), Aug. 30 (AP).—The fortunes of geography are giving Epernay a chance in these troublous times to outdistance Rheims in the two cities' economic struggle to get their champagne marketed.

Under conditions prevailing in the German-occupied zone of France, Epernay has the advantage in its site along the Marne River, although many French connoisseurs have preferred Rheims wines.

Today Epernay enjoys a comparative wealth of meat and butter and other supplies because its barges, loaded to the water line with champagne, can travel down the Marne to Paris and bring back these supplies in exchange.

Rheims lies fifteen miles from the Marne and has no river transportation. Railway transport is limited because of German military needs, and gasoline, essential to mechanized warfare, is scarce. So Rheims is out of luck.

There already had been a 3-centime war-time rise in bread prices, and bakers have been permitted to sell only bread twenty-four hours old, in order to cut down consumption.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 30 (AP).—Closing of the Spanish-Portuguese frontier against travelers en route to Lisbon as a point of departure for the United States or England has left many Americans and other foreigners stranded at Perpignan on the Franco-Spanish border. BRITISH PLANES ARE INVISIBLE

Navy Chemists Study Paint Found on Raiders.

U. S. HAS SIMILAR DEVICE

Army Air Corps Uses Buff Color to Absorb Searchlight Rays.

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—Something resembling rough black soot, which is smeared on some British planes and makes them difficult to see at night is giving German chemists something to analyze, informed persons said today.

This new war paint absorbs the rays of German searchlights so that on clear nights these British planes paying nocturnal visits to Germany are hard to detect, it was said.

The planes are shown up against clouds however, and German military authorities say the problem therefore is not so big as might be thought.

U. S. Army Has Similar Paint.

WASHINGTON, Aug 30 (A. P.).—The development of a paint which so reduced the visibility of an airplane that it was able to run a gantlet of searchlights without being detected was reported by Army Air Corps officers today.

Commenting on reports from Berlin that the British were using a sooty coating to black out their bombers, the officers disclosed that the United States Army had been experimenting for years with various so-called invisible paints.

In contrast to the reported British method, the army has been using a special buff paint which absorbs light so that when subjected to the glare of a searchlight it reflects few rays that can be seen by observers.

For daytime use, a two-tone coating is employed, with light blue hues on the underside of the plane to blend with the sky and darker colors on the top side to blend with the ground. By that method, the plane's visibility is reduced both to observers above and below.

This system of camouflage is reported to have replaced the world war method of using a patchwork of various colors to break up the normal outlines of an object and make it more difficult to identify.

Experiments with "invisible" paints have been conducted for some time at Maxwell Field, Ala.

Washable Lacquer for Planes.

BUFFALO, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—A new washable lacquer, which can be quickly changed by using a special solvent, has been developed for military camouflage by the research department of Pratt & Lambert.

T. Emerson Murphy, industrial sales manager, said the new paint is being used experimentally by the army at Maxwell Field, Ala., and was employed during recent maneuvers at Plattsburg.

The lacquer was designed to permit changing colors of planes depending upon the terrain ov which they are flying.

"Invisible" Plane Paint Claimed By Coast Firm

New Compound In Experimental Stage—Its Effectiveness Believed Already Determined

San Francisco, Aug. 30 (AP)—Development of a paint which on hazy days makes an airplane almost invisible at 100 to 200 yards was claimed today by a San Francisco manufacturing concern.

Reports from Berlin that the British were using a so-called invisible paint on warplanes brought forth the announcement from the W. P. Fuller Company.

The new compound still is in the experimental stage but its effectiveness already has been determined, Harold Acker, company chemist, said. He described it as a flat gray, very dull, with no pigment. An aluminum ingredient provides the color.

Says U. S. Born Japanese Should Support Draft

Tokyo Newspaper Advises This Group To Regard Conscription As "Honorable Service"

Tokyo, Saturday, Aug. 31 (AP)—American-born Japanese should regard compulsory military service in the United States as "honorable service," the newspaper Nichi Nichi declared today in an editorial.

Such loyalty to the United States harmonizes with the Japanese spirit, the paper said, and failure to fulfill such a duty should deprive American-born Japanese of their right to vote. Worse, it said, they may be considered Fifth Columnists.

Estimating that about 20,000 Japanese would be affected, it said they must be prepared to face on the battlefield men of any race who become enemies of the United States.

SAYS INVASION OF ENGLAND IS DOOMED TO FAIL

Japanese Naval Expert Holds Nazi Air Force Insufficient To Task

Ito Asserts British Sea Command Forbids Any Landing Of Troops

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Saturday, Aug. 31—Germany never will be able to land troops in England while the British command the sea—and the German air power is insufficient to win that command—asserts Masanori Ito, one of Japan's best-known naval commentators, in a series of newspaper articles and lectures.

Ito has been arguing in this vein since the battle of Britain began.

"Difficult To Destroy"

"Command of the sea takes a long time to establish, but once established it is extremely difficult to destroy," he contended.

"I cannot believe that sea power based on a navy costing billions of yen, with thousands of trained sailors and centuries-old tradition can be upset in a Blitzkrieg," he said.

"Must Be Termed Failure"

"If the German mosquito fleet rushes recklessly into the Channel, perhaps three out of ten boats might reach shore, but such a landing must be termed a failure.

"To land in the face of 1,300,000 troops requires a greater number of attackers with tanks and heavy artillery. Motor boats are inadequate to transport this armament."

Ito asserted that the "war of nerves" was Adolf Hitler's best strategy and concluded that "he may resort to unexpected methods to cross the Channel, but I am watching events with the belief that he will not land troops in England."

Similar Views Indicated

Indications were that many Japanese naval officers held similar views, although they invariably have been cautious in commenting even unofficially, owing to recent efforts to establish closer cooperation with Italy and Germany.

Observers were unanimous in the belief that Japanese foreign policy may depend to a large extent on the outcome of the battle of Britain, and that, therefore, actions at present are cautious.

Similarly, one section of opinion holds that Japan should move swiftly and present the world with a fait accompli regardless of the ultimate victor in Europe.

CROMWELL ASSAILS U. S. ISOLATIONISTS

Certain Senators Especially Attacked In Talk By Ex-Canadian Minister

Declares Destroyers Should Be Transferred For Aid Of Great Britain

[By the Associated Press]

Toronto, Aug. 30—James H. R. Cromwell, former United States Minister to Canada, today assailed American isolationist Senators but voiced his conviction that the United States "can do more to assist the British Empire's cause" by remaining a benevolent neutral than by taking an active part in the war.

The average American, he said, addressing a press luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, is turning away from isolation.

"He has begun to question the validity of the doctrine that the ruthless destruction of Christian ethics beyond the frontiers of our own great continent is no affair of his," Cromwell said.

Predicts Destroyer Transfer

He also asserted that the United States should transfer sixty over-age destroyers to the British navy and urged strong cooperation between the United States and Canada on defense measures.

In a passage his hearers understood to refer to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Cromwell declared:

"A great aviator, who is far more credit to his country in the air than on the air, professes to view with equanimity the spectacle of America isolated in a totalitarian world. Now if our aviators are henceforth to assume the raiments of statesmanship and shape our foreign policies, I hope that a course in political economics will be included in the air training curriculum."

Recalls Storm Of Protest

Recalling what he described as the "veritable storm of abuse" heaped on him following his speech in Toronto last March 19, when he asserted that no citizen of a neutral country could be indifferent to the war, Cromwell declared:

"Despite all that has occurred since May 10 (when Germany invaded Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg) we find these same groups continuing their campaign of abuse and calumny against any official who has the courage to point out to his people the dangers now so imminent. . . .

"You have witnessed only recently the threats, insults and petty sarcasms heaped upon the head of United States Ambassador Bullitt for his courageous speech in Philadelphia. You have heard one isolationist Senator go so far as to term Mr. Bullitt a traitor—the same Senator, in fact, who last March accused me of treason."

Canada Requisitions Four French Vessels

St. Malo, Maurienne, Lisieux And Limoges Are Turned Over To Merchant Marine

Ottawa, Aug. 30 (AP)—Four French merchant ships, in Canadian harbors at the time of France's surrender, have been requisitioned and turned over to the Canadian Merchant Marine, Angus MacDonald, Naval Minister, announced today.

The ships are the St. Malo, 5,770 tons; the Maurienne, 3,259 tons; the Lisieux, 2,594 tons, and the Limoges, 2,256 tons. The Lisieux, formerly the Mumani, and the Limoges, formerly the Wallingford, had been obtained by France from the United States.

MacDonald said they would be added to 21,184 tons of Danish shipping taken over by Canada after the German invasion of Denmark.

Ship Passengers Tell Of Liverpool Bombings

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The armed British liner Eastern Prince arrived unexpectedly today from Liverpool with 91 passengers, who reported that Liverpool was bombed on three successive nights before the vessel sailed.

Mrs. Archibald Nelson-Jones, wife of a Royal Air Force medical officer, said the docks were not damaged so far as she could learn and that the nearest German bombs fell about a half mile from the ship.

With her were her two small sons whom she is taking to a friend in San Francisco for the duration of the war. They were among 47 children under 16 on the vessel, all of whom were accompanied by parents or relatives.

Bad Flying Weather, Rough Seas Will Handicap Nazis

Mackenzie Sees British Victory If Forces Are Able To Hold Out Against Bombing Until Oct. 1

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Expert)

The battle of Britain now has reached a period where we can pin down almost to the day the time when it will be possible to assay the outcome with far greater confidence than we can just now.

If England can hold out one month more against the intensified bombing, until Oct. 1—approximately the beginning of bad flying weather and rough seas in the average year—I believe she will have established her right to claim that she may win the war.

If she cracks up before this fateful month is passed—obviously Hitler has his conquest in the bag. We shall be smart, too, if we recognize that his position is so powerful he may achieve exactly that—though he may not.

One Vital Thing Lacking.

There's one vital thing lacking to make it possible for us to give a close estimate of what may happen in the next month—and that's how much damage the British Isles are suffering materially, and how much in morale, if any. The British government won't give us the answer to that and the Germans are unable to, for airmen can't make accurate estimates of their work while miles high.

It would be hard to believe that the material damage isn't heavy. But, I believe, more depends on the condition of civilian morale. England can stand to lose a lot of homes and factories before her situation will become desperate. Public morale, though, not only must be high, but must increase with adversity.

Indications are that the morale of the British Isles is riding high. A striking picture of England's will to win is painted in an article carried for this morning's papers by The Associated Press from E. A. Montague, an English newspaperman in London.

His theme is that he is happy and "Britain today is a happy country" because she at last "set to work to make good the years that the locust had eaten" during the period of appeasement and indifference, and is determined "to fight until either this nation or Hitler is destroyed."

Writer Knew Elder Montague.

I don't know the writer, but I had a dear friend in his father, the late C. E. Montague, who was one of the literary giants of England. And because Montague the elder always seemed to me to represent the real fighting spirit of Britain I want to tell you just a bit about him.

When the World war broke out this scholarly man of 55 or more dyed his snow-white hair coal black, donned a racy suit of clothes and presented himself at an enlistment office. When he was asked how old he was he replied that he was 35—which was the truth though not quite all of it. The enlisting officer grinned sympathetically and logged Montague down as a Tommy in His Majesty's service.

For 18 months he fought in the front line trenches beside men half his age. Then he was given a commission and attached to the intelligence branch, press censorship, at general headquarters. It was there that, as a war correspondent, I became acquainted with him.

Montague was the only man I ever knew who was utterly without fear on the battlefield. Actually the scream of shells and the crash of great guns sent him into a sort of ecstacy, and he would charge into danger with head thrown back like an old warhorse. He was known throughout the length of the long fighting line, and the example of his courage and fortitude helped many a solider over a tough place.

ORDER CALLING GUARD AWAITED BY ROOSEVELT

President Unable To Set Exact Date Of Issue. Reserves Included

Excellent Progress Reported In Talks With England On Bases

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 30—President Roosevelt indicated today he expected momentarily from Washington a draft of formal orders for calling out the National Guard and organized reserves for a year's training.

But he was unable to say, at a press conference, whether September 15, a date mentioned in military quarters, would find the first units of civilian soldiers mobilizing for active duty.

The President reported very excellent progress in talks with England on the leasing to the United States of sites for air and naval bases in British possessions in the Western Hemisphere, but said he could not discuss the matter nor predict when definite action might be expected.

Dodges Destroyer Issue

The Chief Executive said the same thing applied to destroyers, when asked whether he had anything to say about the sale of overage American destroyers to Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt had no additional developments to announce in connection with the activities of the Canadian-American Defense Board, but he said he probably would see Mayor LaGuardia of New York, chairman of the board's American section, in Washington on Wednesday.

Discussing the placing of munitions plants in the interior of the country, the President said the idea had been advanced for twenty years by experts who had made regular reviews of national defense in general. He said he thought some plants had been located in the less vulnerable interior under the current defense program, but that a check would be worth while.

Army Outlines Vital Areas for Defense Plants

Designates 5 Inland Zones, Miles From Coasts and International Borders

By E. C. DANIEL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP).—Enlarging upon a statement made by President Roosevelt, Army officials disclosed today defense plans for development of five interior strategic areas to be made at least partly self-sufficient in arms production.

The President said at Hyde Park, N. Y., that action had been taken to locate vital defense establishments in the interior.

The Army has already received $244,000,000 from Congress to expand armaments facilities, and contracts have been signed for four government-owned, privately operated plants. Negotiations are under way for some sixty more.

Officials said that wherever plants were built by the government and, in so far as possible, wherever private industry used government funds, the policy would be to place the plants in an area whose borders were at least 200 to 250 miles from any international boundary or coast.

A map of the United States has been drawn, with the interior area demarcated, and the whole region has been divided into five cross-country strips. In each one of those strips, it is intended eventually to place a group of industries such as a small arms plant, an ammunition loading plant and perhaps an aircraft factory.

Additional areas may be mapped, and the present ones may be changed, but, roughly speaking, the present areas have been delimited as follows:

A—Northern Indiana, northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and thence westward.

B—Ohio, southwestern Pennsylvania, West Virginia, western Virginia and eastern Kentucky.

C — Southern Indiana, Illinois, western Kentucky, Missouri, eastern Kansas and thence westward.

D—Western North Carolina, northern Georgia, Alabama and eastern Tennessee.

E—Western Tennessee, northern Mississippi, Arkansas, northern Louisana, Texas, Oklahoma and westward.

The prime strategic purposes are to locate new plants out of range of air attack, and to avoid a highly vulnerable concentration of industry such as exists today in the "industrial triangle" which has Pittsburgh, Boston and Wilmington, Del., as its three points.

In keeping with that policy, new powder plants were spotted at Charlestown, Ind., and Radford, Va., and an ammunition loading plant at Ravenna, Ohio.

A Chrysler tank-manufacturing plant will be located at Detroit, opposite the Canadian border, but officials explained that this was in order that it could be near other Chrysler enterprises and convenient to sources of raw materials, labor, etc.

Negotiations also are under way now with North American Aviation, Inc., of California, for the construction of a plant at Dallas, Tex.

When an arms plant was proposed, an officer explained, the Army submitted its location to the defense commission. The commission investigates what the Navy, private industry and foreign governments may be doing in that neighborhood, also what power, transportation, labor and housing facilities are available. If no conflicts appear and all economic factors are favorable, the negotiations are concluded.

20,000 WRIGHT ENGINES ORDERED

War Department Also Will Take 14,000 Propellers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The War Department has reached an agreement with the Wright Aeronautical Corporation for the manufacture of 20,000 airplane engines and with the Curtiss Wright Corporation for 14,000 propellers to meet combined army and navy requirements during the fiscal years 1941 and 1942.

The agreement, announced today, corresponds to that reached by the Navy Department with United Aircraft Corporation for the manufacture of 17,000 Pratt and Whitney motors for the army and navy.

The two agreements represented the largest aircraft equipment orders so far placed during the preparedness drive.

No announcement was made of the cost of the engines and propellers, or of the delivery dates on which they would be obtained. However, since the navy said yesterday it would pay about $160,000,000 for 17,000 engines, the army's 20,000, on the same basis, would cost around $188,200,000.

As in the case of the navy agreement buildings required to execute the engine and propeller orders will be constructed by the corporations at their own expense. The corporations also will purchase the machine tools needed.

New Sponsoring System.

Secretary Knox explained yesterday that contracts were being made under a system by which the army sponsors one manufacturer and the navy sponsors another, thereby eliminating conflicts between the two services and simplifying procedure.

Also today, contracts were announced by the War Department for $7,952,028 worth of personal and camp equipment which probably will be used, at least in part, by National Guardsmen and trainees to be called up under the compulsory service program.

Included were large amounts of material for pyramidal tents, folding cots, one-piece working suits, overcoats, mattress covers, comforters, raincoats, wool and cotton cloth, and canvas cot covers.

Anti-Trust Suit Names Krupp, Gen'l Electric

Carboloy Subsidiary Also Accused of Plot to Limit Vital Defense Compound

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 30—In what Federal prosecutors termed the most important national defense indictment yet returned, a special United States grand jury today indicted the General Electric Company and the Krupp Company, of Essen, Germany, on charges of conspiracy to fix prices and restrain interstate and foreign commerce in hard metal composition tools and dies.

Named with General Electric and Krupp were Walter M. Stearns, of Schenectady, manager of trade relations and special contracts for General Electric; the Carboly Company, of Detroit; wholly-owned subsidiary of General Electric; W. G. Robbins, president, and Zay Jefferies, of Cleveland, chairman of Carboloy.

Patent Control

The Government charged that the Krupp corporation, famous for many years as Germany's chief source of war materials, held a veto power over the issuance of patent licenses to American firms in the manufacture of hard metal compositions used in machine cutting tools.

These hard metal compositions include tungsten carbide, for which virtually every arsenal in the country is now bidding as a result of defense contracts.

Accused Under Sherman Act

The indictment specifically charged that the defendants violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in two counts in fixing prices and restraining interstate trade and exportation of tungsten carbide and other materials and violation of the Wilson Aariff Act in restraining the importation of tungsten carbide tools and dies.

Tungsten carbide and other materials mentioned are said by the Government to harden cutting tools, giving them a better cutting edge and longer life.

The defendants are charged with having agreed, through secret pacts, that Krupp would not export Tungsten carbide, tools and dies to the United States, and General Electric and Carboloy would not export these materials, thus setting up an international control of these vital elements.

Sir George is now at Larchmont. The embassy said it has not been advised when he would leave, but hoped it would be soon. It was said that he was in the country as a private citizen and only the embassy could advise him to leave.

Senator Wheeler last week related to the Senate a conversation with Sir George in which he quoted the British economist as saying he helped to get the United States into the world war and was seeking to duplicate the feat. The economist replied that he had said only that he intended to put the facts before the American people during a lecture tour.

Sir George Paish, British economist, declined in Larchmont today to discuss his plans after it became known that the British embassy in Washington had advised him to return to England as soon as possible.

"Thank you, but I don't care to hear the word from Washington," he said. "I am very busy with a great many things to do. I don't wish to be disturbed and I have no comment to make now."

He has been a guest at the home of George E. Roberts, retired New York banker.

SIR GEORGE PAISH ADVISED TO LEAVE

British Embassy Wants Him to Return to England.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (A. P.).—The British Embassy said today that Sir George Paish, British economist, had been advised to return to England as soon as possible as a result of charges by Senator Wheeler of Montana that he was a propagandist seeking to get the United States into the war.

An embassy spokesman said Sir George had been told by Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, that it would be in the interest of better Anglo-American relations for him to leave the country.

British Shoppers Machine-Gunned

London, Aug. 31—The Air Ministry announced today that sixty-two German planes were destroyed in raids yesterday and last night. This brought the August total of Nazi losses claimed to more than 1,000 planes. Fifteen British pilots were reported to have been saved yesterday from twenty-five planes destroyed.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 31—German air raiders dropped bombs in the London area this afternoon, in the third of their fierce daylight thrusts.

(A fourth raid alarm was sounded at 5.50 P. M. The all-clear signal came an hour and twenty-six minutes later, apparently without the raiders having penetrated to London.)

With the brilliant early afternoon sun at their tails, the attackers executed a lightning assault which left an undetermined number of casualties in a suburban town at the height of Saturday shopping.

Men, women and children scattered to shelter.

Women Reported Machine Gunned

Suburbanites reported that women shoppers were machine-gunned. A German plane was said to have dived low, with fighter planes on its tail, and fired several bursts as it approached a busy crossroad. Bullets scarred the walls of a convent.

A spectator said several attack formations participated in the assault. At one time, he said, about forty planes mixed up in dogfights.

A resident said eight bombs dropped in that sector. Buildings were shaken and clouds of dust plumed into the sky. A direct hit was made on a small factory. Houses were damaged when another bomb ripped a crater in the street.

Earlier Attempts Foiled

Two earlier attempts to breach London's screen of anti-aircraft fire, barrage balloons and fighter-plane patrols were beaten back. Several planes were reported shot down on the southeast coast and over the Channel.

Five Messerschmitt fighters attacked Dover's balloon barrages with aerial cannon and machine guns and got away. As fast as the balloons were brought down they were patched up or replaced.

German bombers damaged a Royal Air Force airdrome in eastern England and attacked another near the Thames estuary, causing some casualties.

Great aerial battles were fought in this area and over the Channel.

The Nazi raiders dropped many of their new gasoline incendiary bombs during raids in northwest England, causing numerous small fires.

The attacks followed London's worst night raid of the war.

Air-besieged Londoners were cheered by an Air Ministry announcement that a "strong force of R. A. F. bombers again attacked military objectives in the Berlin area" last night.

German Losses Great

The fresh fury of the German attack defied the mounting toll of German planes brought down.

The Air Ministry announced at 5.30 P. M. thirty-eight German planes were destroyed today. Sixteen British fighters were lost, but eleven of the pilots were safe, the Ministry said.

The third alarm of the day came at 1.03 P. M. The all-clear signal sounded fifty-five minutes later. It was London's twenty-first alarm since August 15, when the Luftwaffe struck first in the London area with a dive-bomber attack on Croydon air field.

Ace German pilots of the "Yellow Nose" squadron of Mes-

serschmitt fighters were reported routed in a great battle over a southeast coast town after what the British called "suicidal" attacks on balloons.

A dogfight raged as the Germans sought to stab into the London zone about sixty miles from the Dover coast. Spitfires, British fighting planes, which can climb to 11,000 feet in less than five minutes, were reported to have checked a large bomber formation before it crossed the Channel.

Cameraman's Hat Pierced

A movie cameraman, filming action on the Dover "battle front," got a bullet which pierced his tin hat. German planes were attacking a balloon barrage.

Several raiders were shot down and five parachutes were seen descending as the surviving attackers fled. The photographer reported Nazi Messerschmitts brought down "a lot of balloons."

Waves of more than seventy bombers flew high over three southeast coast towns, accompanied by strong escorts of fighters.

Nine persons were found dead today in debris of a cellar in a northeastern town bombarded Thursday night.

An eyewitness in one southeast coast town gave this account of today's fighting:

"It was colossal. Some of the battles were fought out close to the ground.

"No sooner had the enemy appeared than anti-aircraft guns set up a terrific barrage, followed very soon by British Spitfires charging to the attack.

"About forty of the raiders were engaged and dispersed in short order."

The first London alarm, at 8.26 A. M., lasted thirty-seven minutes, and the second, at 10.38, lasted forty-one minutes.

Early Waves Dispersed

Two formations of Nazi bombers under fighter-plane escort swept over the Southeast coast this morning, with about a dozen bombers and twenty fighters i nthe first flight and additional bombers and thirty Messerschmitts in the second.

R. A. F. fighters roared into action. Early reports said nine Nazi craft were shot down. Observers along the coast said the British defenders "scattered the German formations all over the sky."

One raider was reported to have plunged into the sea when struck by rifle fire from a ground crew.

Hundreds Of Planes

Observers estimated that several hundred German planes, flying with the sun at their backs, crossed the south coast at a height of 20,000 feet during the morning, apparently heading for London. Anti-aircraft batteries and British fighter planes met them.

Spent cartridge cases from battles high in the skies fell in three coastal towns.

Newspaper estimates of the number of German planes engaged in the attacks which carried over until just before dawn ranged between 600 and 1,500.

Where formerly dogfights were waged at such heights the planes were mere specks, this time thousands of watchers in the streets cheered as they saw R. A. F. fighters pump lead into bombers caught in the swiftly moving maze of searchlight beams.

The British Press Association reported a hospital was hit, and in one London district Nazi machine-gun bullets, apparently intended for barrage balloons, splattered in the streets.

Casualties Reported

Casualties were reported in another London area where four explosive and many more fire bombs were dropped, while firemen were called out to extinguish three fires in another borough. Two casualties were reported there.

An Associated Press correspondent followed the night battles from the roof of his apartment house. He said the din of anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest heard so far—so intense the vibrations rattled the windows.

Outside London, Nazi warplanes were reported during the night over sixteen towns, following up yesterday's attacks in which the Luftwaffe was estimated to have employed upward of 700 planes.

Bombs Hit School

In northwest England, bombs hit a school in one town and started fires in another. A Midlands town had its eighth successive night of air attack, but, despite high explosive and incendiary bombs, reported few casualties.

Among the night's casualties in the London area were a number of persons killed by a direct hit on an air-raid shelter.

One of the bombs smashed the front wall of an apartment building.

"I heard the scream of the bomb and told my wife 'Here it comes,'" said a man who was in bed in one of the flats when the blast occurred.

"I put a pillow over her head and covered myself with bedclothes. Then the bomb went off and threw us up against the wall. The bed was an old-fashioned featherbed, and that's what saved us."

One bomb which fell in the center of a road set fire to a gas main and killed an air-raid warden standing near by.

Used Unter den Linden To Locate Target

LONDON, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—One British squadron leader in the bombing of central Berlin early today flew over the famous boulevard Unter den Linden and used it as a landmark to locate his target, the Air Ministry said today.

Unable to locate their objectives from high altitudes because of patchy clouds, the pilots reported that they came down in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire to make their attacks.

One pilot reported several small fires and a big explosion in the vicinity of one target.

NAZIS DROP FIRE BOMBS BY THOUSANDS ON CITY IN NORTHWEST ENGLAND

Other Raiders Strafe London And Keep Capital In State Of Alarm Until Nearly Dawn In Seventh Foray Since Early Yesterday

[By the Associated Press]

Cape Town, Union Of South Africa, Aug. 31—The Union House of Assembly rejected, 83 to 65, a motion by Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, former Prime Minister, deploring the British war policy and calling for peace with Germany and Italy.

By the same vote, the Assembly approved an amendment by Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister, declaring that the House confirmed its stand of January 27, when a similar resolution by Hertzog failed, 81 to 59.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Sept. 1—Thousands of incendiary bombs were dropped by waves of German bombers during a six-hour attack on a northwest city in England last night and early today while other Nazi raiders strafed London and kept the Empire capital in a state of alarm until nearly dawn.

Reports from the northwest city said no military objectives were damaged by the full scale raid, but that some fatalities had resulted. Private property was hit, and one block of offices in the center of the city was set on fire.

The raiders pressed home the attack in the face of terrific anti-aircraft fire.

London's Morning Raid Tamer

London's morning raid apparently was a sideshow for the Nazis. They kept London on the alert for three full hours, but few planes appeared over the city to follow up the big-scale attacks hurled at the metropolitan area yesterday and last night.

Except for one brief burst of activity when bombs fell and the anti-aircraft barrage opened up, the raid was one of the dullest of the twenty-seven in the London area since they began August 15.

Seventh Alarm Since Yesterday

The alarm—the seventh since early yesterday—sounded at 12.54 A. M. and the all-clear was given at 3.54 A. M.

But the comparative calmness of the latest attack was a far cry from the unrelenting aerial siege of yesterday and last night, when bombs blasted down on the London area at many points.

In one of the Saturday night raids, London's elaborate subway system was interrupted, but transport officials said it was restored early today.

The British reported sixty-three German planes were destroyed and twenty-two British were missing in Saturday's fighting.

300 Planes In One Raid

The Air Ministry news service said the heaviest fighting of Saturday occurred about 6 P. M., when 300 German bombers and fighters were hurled against southeast England, including the London area. Mass flights of fifty or sixty German planes were frequent.

Among the many fighter squadrons which fought off the attack was a Polish squadron which on Friday scored its first success against the enemy, and a squadron of Canadians, the news service said.

Apparently the Nazi flyers' goal was to smash the Royal Air Force, their chief nemesis and one of the main obstacles to any direct invasion of this country, by hammering repeatedly at British airdromes.

The six alarms in the London district were a record number for the metropolitan area. They followed four Friday, including one which lasted from shortly after 9 P. M. to almost 4 A. M. today and gave the capital its worst night of the war.

While the sixth London area warning continued, enemy planes also were reported over a northeast town and over the northwest. They had been reported earlier over the Midland.

Little Activity During Fifth

Watchers in London noted little activity during the fifth alarm, which lasted twenty-one minutes from 9.49 P. M. to 10.10 P. M., but searchlights could be seen fingering the skies and airplane motors could be heard distinctly during the thirty-six-minute sixth alarm between 11.24 P. M. and midnight.

Although the British acknowledged that successive waves of German planes charging against Britain's defenses had reached some objectives and taken an undisclosed toll of civilians killed and injured, a communique declared they were "dispersed without any serious damage being done to R. A. F. airdromes, which again appear to have been the objective of the attacks."

Earlier, however, the metropolitan area got a strafing and, in the southeast, evening raiders sprayed fire bombs in several localities.

Open Fire On Crowded Street

In at least two instances, low-flying German planes dropped to within machine-gun range of suburban London and opened fire on the crowded streets. A number of bombs were dropped and several houses demolished in the London area during the fourth raid of the day.

Besides London, harried by the long series of Saturday alarms after a Friday night raid, Royal Air Force airdromes were the chief targets of the Nazi flyers. Two admittedly were hit, one in East Anglia and another along the Thames estuary, but the Air Ministry said British fighters broke up both attacks before serious damage was done.

So far, then, there was no indication that the raids, delivered by wave after wave of bomber and fighter squadrons ignoring heavy opposition, were worth the price.

The fourth air attack, which kept the capital's populace underground for one hour and twenty-six minutes, apparently repeated the formula the Germans have adopted for their hit-and-run attacks.

Watchers in the London area said they saw about fifty German raiders sweep in from the coast and fan out into small groups as soon as British fighter planes charged into their formation.

16 Planes Seen High In Sky

One column of sixteen German planes, stretched out Indian file—the Nazis' favorite bomb-attack formation—could be seen high in the northwest with aircraft shells dotting the sky around them.

The planes maneuvered in intricate patterns, apparently picking out targets and dodging British fighters. Another clump of planes appeared farther to the south and a third was seen over an unidentified greyhound racing track in the London area.

But the raids, which angered the British more than anything else, worked both ways.

Raids On Berlin Announced

During the fourth London alarm, an Air Ministry communique announced that "strong forces" of British planes had raided Berlin and other objectives in Nazi-occupied Europe.

"Fires and explosions resulted" from Friday night raids on "selected military targets" in the German capital, the ministry said, "and it is estimated that considerable damage was done."

In addition, it reported attacks by fleet air arm planes on docks and railroad sidings at Boulogne and on oil reservoirs, shipping, freight yards, airdromes and gun emplacements.

The first two German attempts to reach London were said to have been turned back by British fighter planes and anti-aircraft fire, but the third, a lightning stab with a brilliant afternoon sun at the raiders' backs, broke through to a London suburb.

Women Machine-Gunned

Suburbanites said women shoppers were machine-gunned by a German plane as it dived toward a busy crossroads with British fighters on its tail. Bullets scarred a convent wall.

Hardened to the surprise attacks, men, women and children moved to shelter without panic.

A small factory was hit squarely. Some houses were damaged when one bomb dug a crater in a street of the suburb. One witness said eight bombs fell in that neighborhood.

A big air fight was reported also over southeastern England, where British fighters intercepted other Nazi formations and were said to have turned them back.

The southeast, on the aerial highway from Germany's cross-Channel bases to London, took a hard pommeling.

Balloon Barrages Attacked

Balloon barrages at Dover, on "Hell's Corner" of the Channel, were attacked by five Messerschmitt fighters in one raid. As fast as they were shot down, the balloons were patched up or replaced.

Along a wide area of southeastern England residents had ringside seats at fierce air combats and many reported close escapes from death. For others there was no escape.

Two persons were killed when screamer bombs fell from fifteen Nazi raiders in one southeast town. Several houses were demolished and several other buildings, including a Catholic church, were heavily damaged.

In another, a machine-gunning raider drove shoppers to cover behind trees.

Many Families Routed

Many families in one residential district in London's outskirts were driven from their homes by air-raid damage and several persons were believed to have been killed.

There was virtually no respite from the air attacks. The daylight raids began only a few hours after the last Nazi plane turned home from London's worst night raid of the war.

Starting with the first daylight alarm shortly after 7 A. M., German flyers held the British capital's millions under cover intermittently all day.

"Throughout the morning," the Air Ministry said, "Spitfire and Hurricane pilots raced up into the sky to engage the enemy. Time and again, they broke up bomber formations and then harried the German pilots . . . anti-aircraft batteries also put up a terrific protective barrage.

100 Bombers Pass Coast

"The first raid this morning (Saturday) took place shortly after 7 o'clock, when formations totaling about one hundred German bombers and fighter escorts passed the coast between North Foreland and Dungeness.

"They hoped to bomb Kent and Surry airdromes.

"Hardly had the raiders been driven off when a second flight of about fifty aircraft passed the coast and an hour later several more enemy formations attacked shipping in the Thames estuary. During the first raid, Spitfire pilots of an auxiliary squadron shot down three out of a formation of twelve Messerschmitt fighters.

"The Spitfires were patrolling at 30,000 feet when they sighted the Messerschmitts below them flying in a long, wavy line.

Dive Out Of Sun To Attack

"Diving out of the sun, the Spitfires attacked. One of the Messerschmitts blew up in the air, a second went down in flames and a pilot of a third jumped by parachute from his crippled aircraft.

"Nine Hurricane pilots in less than an hour destroyed four bombers, two Dorniers and two Messerschmitt Jaguars.

"A Hurricane pilot of another squadron was attacked by several Messerschmitt 109 fighters. Although his aircraft was hit, the British pilot was able to get on the tail of one Messerschmitt and sprayed it with machine-gun bullets from only one hundred feet. As the Messerschmitt fell in flames, the German pilot bailed out."

BRITISH CLAIM SUCCESSES IN RAID ON BERLIN

15 Tons Of High Explosives, 750 Fire Bombs Dropped By One Unit

Unter Den Linden Used By Squadron Leader As Guide To Target

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 31—All German radio stations went off the air tonight during the sixth German raid on London of the day and night, indicating that the British air force was striking blows in Germany.

German stations customarily go silent when Royal Air Force raids are in progress.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 31—The Air Ministry reported tonight that a single section of the British raiding wing that attacked Berlin last night dropped fifteen tons of high explosives in addition to more than 750 incendiary bombs.

Direct hits were claimed on many targets, including gasoline plants, airplane factories and airdromes.

The raid, which began before midnight, lasted until 2.30 A. M., the Ministry said, and among targets suffering "considerable damage" were an electrical works and an adjoining railway junction. At the electric works, it was added, explosions were continuing ten minutes after the air attack had been completed.

Oil Stores Set Afire

Oil stores in the city's outskirts were declared to have been bombed continuously and set afire.

Other successes claimed:

A war factory in North Berlin bombed; a whole series of bombs dropped close to buildings on one of the city's airdromes and two other airdromes damaged; direct hits and fires started in warehouses in Hamburg and a freight yard in Bremen.

One British squadron leader reported he had flown directly over Unter den Linden and used that famous boulevard "as a landmark to locate his target."

Raid On Lerlin Described

The Air Ministry, elaborating on its announcement of the Berlin raid, gave this picture of the attack:

"The R. A. F. raid on Berlin last (Friday) night lasted between two and three hours. Our bombers made direct hits on important military targets which included petrol (gasoline) installations, aircraft factories and airdromes. Fifteen tons of high-explosive bombs were dropped by one section of the raiders and over 750 incendiaries.

"The raid began before midnight and the last aircraft did not leave the target until 2.30 this (Saturday) morning.

"An electrical works and an adjoining railway junction sustained considerable damage when bombs were dropped along the railway and the eastern section of the factories. Explosions were still continued at the works ten minutes after the attack was over. An aircraft factory was bombed and two sticks of bombs fell well on the target.

"Several aircraft attacked oil stocks elsewhere in the outskirts of the city.

Target Straddled With Bombs

"After locating the target with precision, they bombed it continuously. Two sticks of bombs were dropped by the first aircraft and bursts were seen across the target. Fires in this area guided other pilots who, after making careful runs over the objective, straddled it with their bombs.

"One attack caused fires visible for ten minutes. Another increased the strength and number of fires and the observer reported seeing the blaze from a distance of forty-five miles. Three further fires broke out as the next raider left.

"A stick of bombs was dropped across a factory which makes war material north of Berlin and another close to the buildings on one of the city's airdromes. A petroleum store was bombed through the clouds which made observation of results difficult, but after circling around following this attack, observers reported that a deep red glow illuminated the undersides of the clouds as the aircraft left the scene.

"Other aircraft operating over another of the city's airdromes scored direct hits on it. Fires were seen to break out near the airdrome buildings after one attack and fires and two large explosions were caused by later bombing. Hits were also observed on a third airdrome in the Berlin area.

"The ground defenses over Berlin were very active. Searchlights were numerous and brilliant.

Nazi Fire Intense, Accurate

"Anti-aircraft fire was intense and accurate. Some of our aircraft were holed through the wings. One machine made a forced landing as it neared the English coast. Three of its crew bailed out but the other two succeeded in bringing the bomber close to the beach with apparently very slight damage. Of the three men who bailed out two have been rescued and search continues for the third who may have come down on land.

"Another section of the raiding force bombed warehouses along the dockside at Hamburg, registering direct hits and causing five large fires, while at Bremen, aircraft bombed a goods yard where bright yellow fires continued to spread some time after the last bomb had fallen.

Thousands of Bombs Fall

A NORTHWESTERN TOWN, England, Sunday, Sept. 1 (AP)—Wave after wave of German planes rained thousands of incendiary bombs on this town in an attack lasting for six hours last night and early this morning.

Some casualties were reported unofficially, including some fatalities, but there were no reports of damage to military objectives. Offices and private property were damaged and one block of offices in the center of the city set afire.

Nazi Bombs Halt Subway

London, Sept. 1 (Sunday) (AP). German bombs interrupted the elaborate subway system of London yesterday afternoon and dislocated traffic.

Officials of the London Passenger Transport Board reported early today that the damage had been patched up and services restored along the stricken tunnel.

PLANE FINDER LIKE BIRD DOG

British Device Has Caused Downing of 100 Raiders.

SHOWS RANGE AND COURSE

Batteries Fire at Spot Just as Bomber Reaches It.

BY ROBT. BUNNELLE

LONDON, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—The defenders of Britain are using a sort of mechanical bird dog to hunt down German night raiders.

After holding up this dispatch for more than twenty-four hours, the British censor permitted disclosure for the first time today that pointing is done not only by searchlights, but by an ingenious range-and-course predictor, which the British call a sausage machine, and by other equipment of a nature kept closely secret.

With the secret devices (apparently listening apparatus), anti-aircraft gun crews determine the position and direction of the approaching raider. They feed this data into the sausage machine, which turns out a series of positions for the plane in the immediate split-second future.

These positions then are subjected to heavy fire from 3, 3.7 and 4.5-inch anti-aircraft batteries.

Searchlights also cover these spots, to try to catch the raider in the beam for the benefit both of ground gunners and defending fighter planes.

The crews say that once an enemy is caught in the glare it is relatively easy to hold him in the light of first one beam and then another until the anti-aircraft guns or fighter pilots can catch up.

Accounted for 100 Planes.

The difficulty is to catch the raider in the first place, since sound travels relatively slowly.

Nevertheless, military circles credit the anti-aircraft guns with destroying about one hundred Germans in the last month. The record is much better than in the world war, when gunners fired an average of 5,000 rounds for each plane brought down.

In addition to the course-plotting device, another defense against night raiders is to throw up a curtain barrage between the planes and their objectives.

In all this work close co-operation is necessary among observers, searchlight crews, anti-aircraft gunners and defense planes.

To avoid attacking their own planes, the ground forces and fighter pilots all have taken careful courses in study of silhouettes of all planes in use, the sound of their motors, and every possible identifying detail.

In addition, British planes carry racks of signal flares which are fired in color-combinations significant only to British flyers and gunners.

BRITISH MERCHANT CRUISER IS SUNK

Dunvegan Castle Torpedoed In North Atlantic, 30 Of Crew Missing

250 Survivors Picked Up From Lifeboats, Landed At English Ports

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 31—The Admiralty announced tonight that the 15,000-ton armed British merchant cruiser Dunvegan Castle had been torpedoed and sunk in the North Atlantic. Other sources said thirty crew members were missing.

A reconnaissance flying boat spotted the blazing ship and directed two warships to the spot, where 250 survivors were picked up from lifeboats and landed at British ports.

Text Of Communique

A communique said:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that the armed merchant cruiser H. M. S. Dunvegan Castle (Capt. H. Ardill R. N.), has been torpedoed and subsequently sunk. Two hundred and fifty survivors from H. M. S. Dunvegan Castle have been landed by British warships. The next of kin have been informed."

On Nazi "Pirate Ship" List

Prior to the war, the Dunvegan Castle, a motorship of 15,007 tons, was in passenger service between London and East Africa. She was built in 1936.

Last November 14, Germany listed her with other British vessels as "pirate ships" subject to attack without warning. Only with tonight's announcement of her loss, however, did the British acknowledge that she was an armed cruiser.

Gentlemen, The Queen

[By the Associated Press]

London, Aug. 31—Netherlands gathered in Queens Hall today to celebrate the sixtieth birthday of exiled Queen Wilhelmina—the first in her forty-two-year reign spent on foreign soil.

The Queen herself was not present, Prince Bernhard, her son-in-law, explaining that she desired to spend the day quietly in her London home.

Praise Dutch Subjects

Bernhard praised Dutch subjects for giving their Queen "the finest birthday gift possible—loyalty in adversity."

Birthday celebrations, it was announced, are being held in forty countries and in the Dutch empire—everywhere there are Netherlanders except in their German-occupied homeland, where the threat of heavy penalties prevented the population of more than 8,000,000 from joining.

Baron Michiels Van Verduynen, Netherlands Minister to London, declared, however, "no constraint whatever can destroy our unity of mind." He proclaimed the Queen's birthday "our day of independence."

The Queen received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams.

Crown Princess Juliana, broadcasting from her haven in Canada, praised her mother as an example of courage and unbreakable will power, saying she had "renounced one of the few joys remaining to her in exile—the company of those dearest to her."

It was at her mother's expressed wish, the Crown Princess explained, that she and her two daughters went to Canada.

Netherlands Flag In N. Y.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—The flag of the Netherlands and the Stars and Stripes were hoisted above the summer City Hall at the New York World's Fair today in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of the birth of Queen Wilhelmina.

Mayor LaGuardia, in ordering the ensigns flown, called her "the Grand Old Lady of Europe." He predicted that the Netherlands flag would fly again in Amsterdam next year.

'Sunday Pictorial' Urges Churchill to Clean House

Beaverbrook Called Only One in War Cabinet Justifying Place

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP).—"The Sunday Pictorial," in a full-page editorial, urged tonight that Prime Minister Winston Churchill quickly reorganize his Cabinet to weed out misfits.

It said Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, was "the only man who justifies his place" in the inner Cabinet, whose members also include Neville Chamberlain, Lord President of the Council; Laborite Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal; Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, and Arthur Greenwood, Laborite Minister Without Portfolio.

Referring to Chamberlain and Halifax, the editorial charged: "It was their diplomacy, their complacency, their downright laziness that whittled away our strength before this war was declared (by them)."

Attlee and Greenwood, it declared, were not strong enough as leaders.

LITTLE JOHN BULL

BY DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, AUG. 31--(AP)--MR. JOHN BULL, THE LITTLE MAN WHO PAYS FOR WARS AND FIGHTS THEM, HAS HAD A YEAR OF IT AND, IN SPITE OF LOSS OF SLEEP, BOMBINGS, THE BLACKOUT, FOOD RATIONS AND HIGH TAXEX, AVERS HE'S NOT UNHAPPY.

HE BELIEVES HE'S GOT THREE REASONS TO FEEL PRETY GOOD.

FIRST, HE KNOWS THAT, AT LONG LAST, THIS IS HIS WAR. THE PEOPLE RUNNING BRITAIN ARE DOING IT BECAUSE HE WILLED IT. WINSTON CHURCHILL, THE PRIME MINISTER, AND THE WORKING-CLASS MINISTERS OF LABOR AND SUPPLY, ERNEST BEVIN AND HERBERT MORRISON, ARE THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE TO LICK HITLER.

SECOND, THE AVERAGE BRITON GETS A SINCERE THRILL OUT OF THE THOUGHT THAT HE, MR. JOHN BULL, IS HITLER'S SOLE ANTAGONIST; THAT BRITAIN'S SALVATION RESTS, NOT IN THE HANDS OF POLES, NORWEGIANS, BELGIANS OR FRENCH, BUT WITH HIMSELF.

THIRD, DESPITE THE CURTAILMENT OF MANY HARD-WON LIBERTIES IN THESE DAYS OF TOTAL WAR, THE AVERAGE BRITON THINKS XX HIS COUNTRY IS GOING TO BE A BETTER PLACE TO LIVE IN WHEN THE WAR'S OVER. A LOT OF PEOPLE BELIEVE, FOR ONE THING, THAT THE NATION IS MOVING TOWARD SOME TYPE OF STATE SOCIALISM, AND THEY'RE GLAD OF IT.

THE MAN IN THE STREET WANTS HIS LIBERTIES BACK, BUT HE'S EMPHATIC ABOUT NOT RETURNING TO "THE TYPE OF GOVERNMENT THAT GOT US INTO THIS MESS."

BUT TALK OF EUROPE'S POLITICAL REORGANIZATION, SOME TIME IN THE DIM FUTURE, BORES HIM JUST NOW. HE WANTS TO SEE "OUR BOYS MARCHING DOWN THAT UNTER DEN LINDEN."

BOMBS HIT BERLIN'S CENTER

BLASTS ARE FOUR BLOCKS FROM SEAT OF NAZI RULE

R. A. F. Attacks Targets Within Reich Capital---London Is Pounded in All Day Raids.

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (A. P.). — British warplanes bombed the center of Berlin for the first time in history early today, with a rain of explosive and incendiary bombs, wrecking several apartment houses and business buildings, starting scattered fires in the southeast section and damaging the big Siemens Schuckert Electrical Equipment factory.

The 4,000,000 residents of the metropolitan area huddled in underground shelters for an hour and thirty-seven minutes as the British planes, under cover of darkness, carried out their most extensive assault on the German capital since the war began.

One high explosive bomb fell in the courtyard of the Fire Department Headquarters in Linden street, blasting a seven-foot hole in a concrete floor and smashing windows in the neighborhood, which is only four blocks east of the Wilhelmstrasse, where the Reichschancellery, the Foreign Office and other important Government buildings are located.

The authorities said that the damage to such establishments as might be considered military objectives was extremely small; that the nearest thing to a military objective struck was the vast Siemens Schuckert factory in west Berlin.

A number of bombs also fell in the southeast section of the city causing large fires. This was the section bombed on Thursday morning, when ten civilians were killed and twenty-eight were injured.

The raiders were greeted with an ear-splitting barrage from hundreds of anti-aircraft guns as they roared over the capital in several groups. Tracer bullets cut across through the darkness and searchlights stabbed the sky.

Two incendiary bombs crashed through the roof of tiny Evangelical Christus Church in Dietenbach street in the southeast section, starting a blaze in the choir loft which was quickly extinguished.

An apartment house next door to the church was damaged extensively by fire and the walls of nearby Bethesda Hospital were scorched.

All patients of the hospital were safe in underground shelters.

Newspaper correspondents rushed to the Siemen's Schuckert plant in five automobiles, where they saw the effect of one high explosive bomb which hit the corner of a one-story brick building in which lumber was being seasoned. The bomb ripped out about sixty feet of the wall.

In another part of the big factory, two incendiary bombs started fires in a yard where lumber was stored in scattered piles. The fire, the works foreman said, destroyed about $50 worth of lumber, but was quickly extinguished.

As the correspondents inspected the damage several thousand workers filed in to take over the early day shift. The plant, which manufactures electrical cable, apparently was carrying on normally.

Medical Society Hit.

The largest fire started by the bombs occurred in Ritter street, in the southeast, only a few blocks from the spot where the most serious damage occurred in last Thursday's raid.

These explosive and incendiary bombs smashed into the roof of a building occupied by small workshops and some workers' apartments, starting a blaze which burned for several hours and destroyed the homes of several dozen families.

In Linden street a few doors from the bombed fire department headquarters an explosive bomb unroofed and extensively damaged the two top floors of an office building occupied by the Reich's Medical Chamber, an organization corresponding to the American Medical Association.

There 150 persons in an air raid shelter were thoroughly frightened, but unhurt.

Throughout this region in the south and southeast of Berlin numerous small fires were started by incendiary bombs, many of which were recovered. They were metal tubes two inches in diameter and a foot long.

Except in two instances civilian raid protection organizations managed to extinguish the blazes.

Airdrome Is Hit.

An explosive bomb smashed into the middle of Sebastian street, also in the southeast, blowing all the windows out of a school on one side and an apartment house on the other.

The fire near Christus Church was said to have given the authorities the most concern, because of the possibility of its spreading to Bethesda Hospital. But it was brought under control after gutting top floors.

The correspondents, conducted about town in a procession, led at one time by two generals, could not visit every spot where incendiary bombs had landed.

Officials said that the British flyers had tossed them out liberally and haphazardly, with only a few hitting vulnerable spots. The correspondents did not visit Tempelhof Airdrome, to which they were taken on Thursday morning, but were told that one bomb had landed on a distant field there, causing no damage.

Raiders In Two Waves.

The raiders came in two waves. The authorities said most of the incendiary bombs were dropped by the first wave, followed by high explosive bombers who headed in the general direction of the blazes started by the fire bombs.

Because these fires lighted up sections of workers' homes in the southeast, that region suffered most from the explosives.

The authorities said all but one plane remained at a great height. The machine which dipped low was caught for a moment in the searchlights but escaped after bombing the fire department headquarters and an apartment house in Alexandrinen street, in the southeast.

Observers in the Associated Press offices, which are in the five-block long Zimmerstrasse, between Lindenstrasse and the Wilhelmstrasse, could see the low-flying plane clearly in the glare of the searchlights and could see the flash of exploding bombs only a few block away.

The alarm was sounded at 1:30 A. M. and the All Clear signal came at 3:16 A. M.

The air raid sirens did not give the public as much warning as they have hitherto. Anti-aircraft artillery was in action for several minutes before the sirens sounded.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sunday, Sept. 1—British bombers ranged over Berlin for the second time within twenty-four hours today, giving the Nazi capital an air-raid alarm that lasted an hour and thirty-six minutes. The planes, attacking the city from two directions, were met by thunderous anti-aircraft fire.

No damage was done to military objectives, police said. At police headquarters it was announced only three bombs had exploded in the vicinity of the capital and these in open fields, doing no damage.

From one of the western city districts police reported that a handful of incendiary bombs had fizzled out harmlessly.

'FINAL' BLOW AT BRITAIN IS DECLARED NEAR

1,193 British Planes, 99 Barrage Balloons, Toll Claimed For 3 Weeks

124 Reported Shot Down In Day's Combat Following Berlin Raid

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 31—Germany pulled the curtains tonight on a year of war and her military commentators declared that the heightened roar of battle over England meant that the "catastrophe" is approaching for "our last enemy."

They said the Nazi air arm, after trying for three weeks to "soften" England for the final blow, was "preparing the final defeat." In those three weeks, Nazis said, 1,193 British planes and 99 barrage balloons had been destroyed, not including today's operations.

Scorn For British Optimism

The commentators professed scorn for the "childish optimism" with which, they said, the British are declaring that the worst is over. England, they insisted, doesn't yet knew what modern war can be like.

One Newspaper, the Frankfurter Zeitung, explained: "Catastrophes often develop slowly."

Meantime today Adolf Hitler flung his bombers against London and nearby air bases in one of the most determined assaults yet of the Battle for Britain—an immediate retort to the first British air raid of this year-old war on the heart of Berlin.

124 British Planes, Day's Claim

Tonight, German authorities declared 124 British planes had been destroyed during the day, including 20 smashed on the ground, and that 74 English barrage balloons had been shot down. The loss of 28 German planes was acknowledged.

Most of the heaviest fighting was reported north of London. Over the British capital itself the Germans said they encountered no anti-aircraft resistance whatever.

Nazi informants said at least eleven of the British craft were shot down in air battles over Hertford county, north of London, alone. Additional "surprise" attacks were said to have set aflame hangars and barracks of R. A. F. airdromes in southeastern England.

The fights developed as a sequel to a night of heavy raids on London, port facilities, armament works in central England and oil tanks and docks at the mouth of the Thames estuary, waterway to London.

Raid On Berlin Minimized

The Nazi high command minimized effects of the British raid on Berlin, in which high-explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on the German capital during an hour and thirty-seven minute alarm that kept the city's population clinging to air-raid shelters.

Nevertheless several apartment houses and business buildings were wrecked, the big Siemens Schuckert electrical equipment factory damaged and scattered fires started in the southeastern section of the city.

Bomb Dropped In Linden Street

One bomb fell in the courtyard of the Linden street Fire Department headquarters. This is only four blocks east of the Wilhelmstrasse, on which the Reichschancellery, the Foreign Office and other important Government buildings are located.

Establishments which may be regarded as military objectives suffered only "trivial" damage, authorities said, in this the second raid on Berlin in three days. Ten civilians were killed and twenty-eight injured in a raid early Thursday on outlying districts.

In the war at sea, the German high command reported that Nazi U-boats inforcing the "total" blockade of Britain sank three British merchant ships totaling 29,000 tons, one a 12,000-ton tanker, off the Hebrides yesterday.

5,000,000 Bombs Dropped

Germans, striking a tabulation of the results of twelve months of war, produced this summary:

Five million bombs totaling more than 75,000 tons dropped by Nazi airmen in 3,500 attacks in 220 days.

Five hundred warships and merchantmen with a gross tonnage of 2,000,000 sunk by bombers and 700 others, with a gross tonnage of 3,500,000 damaged.

A total of 4,986,860 tons of Allied shipping and neutral shipping in Allied service sunk by the Nazi navy and airforce.

Other Losses Summarized

Listed as destroyed in the war's first year were:

Six thousand nine hundred and fifty Allied planes, in air battles and by anti-aircraft guns.

One hundred and fifty-five barrage balloons.

Four hundred Allied tanks.

Ten warships sunk and thirty damaged by coastal batteries.

Germany's losses in man power were listed as 39,000 dead, 143,000 wounded and 24,000 missing, compared with 580,000 casualties in the first four months of the World War.

German Bomber Crew Escapes Flaming Craft

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—The story of a German bomber crew which reached safety after nearly suffocating in their plane, set afire in an air fight over north London, was reported today by DNB, the official German news agency.

The plane, plumed with smoke and flame, roared back over the English Channel, bound for home. While still over the water the crew decided that the bomber would never make it.

The men took to parachutes. A moment later the craft exploded in mid-air. The flyers dropped close to the French shore, slipped out of their parachute gear and swam to land, DNB said.

German Claims

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Aug. 31—Authorized German sources reported seventy-two British planes and forty-seven barrage balloons shot down and twelve German planes missing in today's fierce air battles over England.

"Surprise" attacks were carried out against a number of airports scattered throughout Southeastern England and barracks and hangars were set aflame, these sources said.

The planes flew over London repeatedly, it was stated, meeting no anti-aircraft defense.

Battles Near London

Air battles also were under way in the county of Hertford, just north of London, in which at least eleven British aircraft were shot down, these sources said.

Meanwhile, the high command, in its daily communique, reported the toll of yesterday's aerial operations as ninety-eight British planes downed to thirty-four Germans.

Today's communique added:

"At several airports, hangars and barracks were damaged severely by bombs. One camp in southern England was hit several times with medium-caliber bombs.

"On the night of August 30-31, fighting plane units bombed port facilities and armament plants in central England. Oil tanks and docks at the mouth of the Thames were bombed effectively.

British Ports Mined

"Large fires resulted. British ports again were mined.

"A submarine attacked a strongly protected convoy off the Hebrides and shot from it three enemy merchant ships totaling 29,000 tons, among them a 12,000-ton tanker."

5,000,000 BOMBS DROPPED BY NAZIS

Germans Report Results of First Year of War.

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—In a year of war, German planes have dropped 5,000,000 bombs weighing more than 75,000 tons, authoritative spokesmen said today.

This amounts, they said, to fifty American trains of thirty freight cars each.

The bombers, operating on 200 days, have carried out 3,500 attacks, it was stated.

The tabulation credited German bombing planes with sinking 500 merchantmen and warships with a gross tonnage of 2,000,000 and said 700 other vessels of 2,500,000 tons were damaged.

From the beginning of the war through July 31, it was claimed, the navy and air force combined sank 4,986,860 tons of enemy shipping or neutral shipping in the service of the enemy, exclusive of vessels sunk by mines.

The Germans said 6,950 enemy planes had been destroyed.

They estimated Germany's loss in man power for the year as follows: Dead, 39,000; wounded, 143,000; missing, 24,000.

This, they said, compared with total German losses of 580,000 in the first four months of the world war.

British Are Seen 'Balked'

Berlin, Aug. 31 (AP)—The German press and political circles today described as a great achievement in the interests of peace the Balkan settlement reached yesterday at Vienna, where Hungary was given approximately half of Rumania's Transylvania territory in an agreement dictated by Axis statesmen.

It was acknowledged that the settlement might meet with some dissatisfaction on the part of Rumanian Nationalists, but the arrangement was upheld as the best possible under difficult conditions involving a mixture of populations.

The German contention was that arbitration of the Rumanian-Hungarian dispute had balked alleged British aims to spread the war to the Balkans.

Berlin Calls Conference On Danube Regulations

Berlin, Aug. 31 (AP)—A conference designed to create new regulations concerning the use of the Danube as a waterway for German exports from the Balkans has been called by the German Government.

To the meeting, to be held within a few days at Vienna, were invited representatives of the states represented on the International Danube Commission. It was called as an aftermath to the Axis settlement of the Hungarian-Rumanian territorial quarrel over Transylvania.

AMSTERDAM, German-occupied Netherlands, Aug. 31 (AP)—American, British and Netherland flags were mysteriously hung out today, the anniversary of Queen Wilhelmina's birthday, from the largest theatre in this German-held city. The theatre was then closed by the Germans.

Day's War Communiques

British

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Air Ministry issued the following communiqué early today:

Enemy attacks against airdromes in the southeastern area were renewed this morning. Shortly after 7 o'clock a formation of enemy bombers crossed the coast of Kent. Fighters of the R. A. F. intercepted the enemy and the attack was dispersed.

Later, another force crossed the Thames Estuary and attacked an airdrome in East Anglia. Some damage was done, but the enemy was driven back by our fighters and suffered loss.

Another attack was made on an airdrome near the Thames Estuary. This, too, was broken up by our fighters after a series of engagements during which bombs were dropped at several points, causing a small number of casualties.

No reports of any serious damage to airdromes have so far been received. It is known that thirty-eight enemy aircraft have been shot down. Sixteen of our fighters are missing. Eleven of the pilots are safe.

Another Air Ministry communiqué stated:

Yesterday evening Albacore aircraft of the fleet air arm, operating with the Coastal Command, carried out bombing attacks on quays and railroad sidings at Boulogne.

Last night, as already announced, strong forces of R. A. F. bombers attacked selected military objectives in the Berlin area. Fires and explosions resulted. It is estimated that considerable damage was done.

Other sections of our raiding forces attacked the oil supply depots at Gelsenkirchen, Magdeburg and Cherbourg, shipping at Emden, the goods yards at Hamm and Soest, gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez and several enemy airdromes in Germany and Holland.

Two of our aircraft are missing and three have made forced landings on our coast.

The text of another Air Ministry communiqué:

It is now known that forty-six enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters today. Twenty-one of our fighters are missing, but the pilots of sixteen are safe. These figures do not include this evening's raids.

Subsequently the Air Ministry announced:

Large numbers of enemy aircraft made a further attack on Southeast England this evening, crossing the Kent coast in successive waves at short intervals, and some of them reached the London area. Our anti-aircraft guns and fighters engaged them. No reports of damage or casualties are yet available.

The Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security issued the following communiqué:

Reports so far received of the enemy attacks on the London area and home counties this evening show that our fighters dispersed and drove off the enemy without any serious damage being done to R. A. F. airdromes, which again appear to have been the objective of the attacks.

Reports also indicate that the general damage and casualties among the civilian population resulting from the attacks have been slight. In earlier attacks during the day considerable damage was done in a town in Essex, while in two other towns in the same neighborhood bombs caused damage to houses. In the first town a number of houses were hit and persons injured, some fatally. Damage in the other two towns was slight and the number of casualties small.

Bombs dropped on a district on the outskirts of London caused damage to houses and industrial buildings. There were a number of casualties, including some persons killed. In several other districts houses were damaged and a number of people killed and injured.

Reports received up to 9:30 P. M. show that sixty-three enemy aircraft have been shot down by our fighters today. Twenty-two of our fighter aircraft have been lost, but the pilots of seventeen are safe.

The Admiralty issued the following communiqué:

The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that the armed merchant cruiser H. M. S. Dunvegan Castle (Captain H. Ardill, R. N.) has been torpedoed and subsequently sunk. Two hundred and fifty survivors from H. M. S. Dunvegan Castle have been landed by British warships. The next of kin have been informed.

The Balkans: Shift Of Sovereignty On

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Aug. 31—The establishment of German air bases and headquarters for Nazi tank corps and motorized units on Rumanian soil was reported by Government circles today to have been agreed upon at the Vienna conference yesterday which gave half of Rumania's Transylvania to Hungary.

German planes and soldiers had not put in an appearance in Rumania today, although the Rumanian general staff began demobilization of most of the Balkan kingdom's 1,300,000 men under arms.

Other plans were being rushed to vacate the northern Transylvania area, ceded to Hungary by the Axis powers in an arbitration award. This must be completed in fifteen days.

Transylvania Protests

The aroused Rumanian population in Transylvania carried on incessant demonstrations of protest to the Government's capitulation. Peasants flocked to Cluj, ancient Transylvania capital. Here and elsewhere in Transylvania there were frequent anti-Fascist outbreaks with Italy blamed largely for "selling out Rumania," as one speaker put it.

Transylvania's church bells clanged a protest against the new cession. All Bucharest theaters, movies and night clubs were ordered closed for an indefinite period of national mourning, and music was forbidden in restaurants.

"Defense Corps" Formed

From Cluj came a petition lauding Juliu Maniu, Rumanian Peasant Party leader, for his opposition to the cession and calling "traitors" those who agreed to it.

Maniu, although not a member of the Government or the Crown Council, made an unexpected appearance at the night meeting.

Carol, Worn And Haggard

King Carol, worn and haggard after two sleepless nights, finally called for silence and, in a tired voice, declared it had been the most "sorrowful moment" of his life, but that no other solution was possible.

The King explained that Rumania had to keep herself from being torn to pieces by armies on three of her frontiers, that resistance would have made it impossible ever to restore the kingdom.

The Council finally rallied around the throne by drawing up an appeal to what is left of Rumania "for unanimous solidarity with the Crown, without which there is no great hope in the future."

Many Transylvanian groups sent telegrams to King Carol declaring they would refuse to abide by the Vienna decision. An "armed defense corps" will be organized quickly, they said.

The tension in Bucharest itself was sharpened by the resignation of Minister of Public Health Vasiele Noveanu, an Iron Guardist, who stepped out as an admission of his "grave error" in agreeing to the Vienna award.

In a dramatic address to King Carol and his forty closest advisers at a Crown Council, Noveanu declared he had no inkling Germany would impose such an "injustice" on Rumania.

Nazis To Organize

(Hungary's German minority of some half million prepared to take advantage of the new German minority pact signed as a companion measure to the Vienna award. The first development expected was the authorization of the formation of a Nazi party.

(Under this concession—as one price for the return of northern Transylvania to Hungary—Germans here now will be permitted to organize freely in "expressing their national convictions.")

Meanwhile the agreement for slicing off another big bite of Rumanian territory—the return of southern Dobruja to Bulgaria—was expected to be signed within forty-eight hours at Craiova. An exchange of populations in this area was under way during the day at this border town.

All of Rumania went into mourning over the Axis-dictated territorial cessions.

Police guarded the Council's palace session as official quarters, aside from the reference to important problems, declined to disclose the new issues facing King Carol.

Russian Warnings Issued

It was understood that as part of the agreement whereby Germany and Italy guarantee Rumania's shrunken territory German motorized troops will guard the frontier with Russia, which has warned Rumania against "frontier violations."

Despite the concern in Bucharest over the danger of disturbances in Transylvania before the transfer is completed, there were no reports of any incidents.

More than 1,000,000 Rumanian peasants, however, were declared still to be unaware of the proceedings which decreed their return to Hungarian rule after twenty-two years in Greater Rumania.

Exodus Begins

Among those who learned the news reaction was immediate.

Tens of thousands of Rumanian public employes, judges, army officers and politicians, with their families, began an exodus last night from northern Transylvania. They headed toward old Rumania by train, automobile, river boat and even in horse-carts.

In Cluj, Oradea and other large towns the Hungarian minority staged impromptu celebrations.

Rumanians in Arad and other localities which Hungary claimed, but failed to receive, celebrated their "escape."

Two Weeks To Move

There was a widespread report that the German minority in Rumania, which recently has been setting up an armed militia under general staff officers of German blood, might take over the guarding of oil fields.

Rumanians in the new Hungarian Transylvania state will have six months to decide whether to become Hungarian citizens. If not, they must leave within another twelve months, taking all their movable property and "liquidating" the rest.

as a consequence of the Axis-dictated settlement of the Transylvanian issue, most of the Rumanian army of 1,300,000 was being demobilized to make way for German armored divisions reported coming here to occupy part of this country's territory.

Germany, said the Foreign Minister in a broadcast to the people, has given to Rumania an absolute military guarantee "unlike that ever given any other country in the world except little Slovakia."

Manoilescu had just returned from Vienna, where Germany and Italy forced the decision that took 17,000 to 21,000 square miles of territory from Rumania.

"The minute Rumanian territory is violated," he said, "the Nazi army will shoot." But he added that this guaranty was "directed at no nation in particular."

He called the Vienna settlement "a sentence handed down by the arbiters—a sentence we could not even discuss."

He was "heartbroken," he went on, saying that the Rumanian delegates were not allowed to argue the decision—"We could only try to smooth out the settlement."

"This," he added, "was not a decision along ethnical (racial) lines, but a decision based on other considerations. The soul of Rumania is now what remains of our country."

Adopts Axis Foreign Policy

He declared Rumania would now follow a completely Axis foreign policy.

The Minister's fifteen-minute broadcast was delivered in a tear-choked voice. It contained no mention of Soviet Russia, whose army clashed patched to Hitler and Italy's Premier Mussolini a direct warning that the Vienna decision would create smouldering agitation in eastern Europe which would be "a permanent source of trouble to peace."

Maniu, signing himself Governor General of Transylvania, said Rumanians "will never accept this decision which was handed down without consulting them," and urged the Axis powers to "annul this sentence."

In some sections angry Nationalists gathered their rifles and declared they would not submit to the forced loss to Hungary of half of Transylvania.

Germany and Italy ordered King Carol—through his representatives at a Vienna conference—to give up northern Transylvania to Hungary and, in return, to receive Nazi protection of his shrunken frontiers, including that which lies athwart the western reaches of Soviet Russia.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Newspapers of Russia published brief factual accounts today of the Vienna conference decision, without editorial comment.]

Bases For Nazis Provided For

In Rumania provision already has been made for establishment of German air bases and headquarters for tank corps and motorized units, it was authoritatively disclosed.

Through the night and into this morning, while the people of Rumania generally mourned the capitulation, Carol listened to the protests of the Liberal leader, George Bratianu, and Maniu, the leader of the Peasants.

At last, fatigued from two sleepless nights, he bade them be silent. He spoke of the decision as the most "sorrowful moment" of his life, but said that he could have made no other.

Points To Perils Of Defiance

He pointed out peril would have lain in any other decision; recalled that a refusal to accept the German-Italian terms might have brought a three-sided invasion to overwhelm the country—from Hungary, from Germany, from Russia.

Then the Crown Council, almost as spent as the Monarch himself, stood beneath the throne and appealed to the Rumanian public "for unanimous solidarity with the crown, without which there is no great hope in the future."

Pro-Fascist Minister Resigns

The pro-Fascist Minister for Public Health, Vasiele Noveau, lamented as a "grave error" his part in voting to accept the Axis ultimatum and tendered his resignation.

Rumanians all through Transylvania demonstrated; announced the formation of "armed defense groups;" drew up manifestos accusing the procession politicians of traitorism.

Speakers cried out particularly at Italy, attaching to her the greater blame for "selling our Rumania."

Some Minorities Celebrate

Some German minorities celebrated. The newspaper Tageblatt declared there had come "a new epoch for national socialism" in southeastern Europe.

In Hungary the German minority—officially estimated at half a million—was expected to form now an authorized Nazi party.

As one of the prices demanded by Germany for the return of northern Transylvania, Hungary will permit Germans to organize freely "in expressing their national convictions."

Meantime, Rumanian officials, saying the ceded territory included homes of 1,200,000 Rumanians, 1,000,000 Hungarians, 100,000 Jews and 100,000 Germans, hurried on with their plans to hand over the area within two weeks—the deadline set.

The most likely scene of a serious outbreak against Rumania's involuntary surrender of northern Transylvania appeared to be in Cluj, the capital and major city of the province. Rumanian peasants flocked there in angry thousands, demonstrating constantly.

Oddly, some of the most violent protests against the Hungarians came from Germans themselves in Transylvania. Many Germans in that area, despite their Nazi ties, always had quarreled with the Hungarians living there.

In the Nasaud district, Hungarian homes were attacked by shouting Germans. Many persons were injured and German crowds stormed through the streets, crying out:

"Down with the diktat (dictate)! We refuse to return to Hungary!"

Watch Mauling Of Hungarians

Local authorities watched silently while Hungarians were mauled.

Cluj, which normally has a population of about 100,000, was double that tonight. The streets were filled with straggling thousands, shouting recriminations and listening to speakers express fears their farms might be turned over to Hungarian nobles.

University students openly urged armed resistance and appealed to all Rumanians to join the "armed defense corps."

Rumanian army units, already evacuating Transylvania, were slowed by muddy mountain roads.

Status Like That Of Slovakia Is Promised Rumania By Hitler

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Rumania, Aug. 31—Adolf Hitler has promised to protect Rumania with the German army as he has been protecting little Slovakia, Mihail Manoilescu, Foreign Minister, told the nation tonight.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Slovakia, "independent" remnant of Czecho-Slovakia, is a virtual military protectorate of the Reich.]

Even as the Minister broadcast, confirming the supreme place Nazi arms are to occupy hereafter in this country with Rumanian troops on their new frontier early this week.

His comparison of Rumania's new status to the German protectorate over Slovakia followed confirmation of reports that Nazi military bases would be established in this country after Rumanian peasants leave the demobilized army for the farm.

Transylvania Nazis Riot

Bucharest, Aug. 31 (AP) — Some members of the German minority in northern Transylvania, which will go to Hungary under the Axis award, demonstrated violently today against returning to Magyar rule.

Despite their link with Germany and the Nazi party, these demonstrators always had quarreled bitterly with the Hungarians in Transylvania.

In the Nasaud district, containing a large German colony, numerous Hungarian homes were attacked by Germans. Many persons were injured. Crowds stormed through the little towns in that area, shouting:

"Down with the Diktat (dictate)! We refuse to return to Hungary!"

Axis Ties May Reach Into Hungarian Army

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Aug. 31—Formal occupation of northern Transylvania by the Hungarian army is expected to begin Monday, Government circles said today.

Press and public celebrated the Axis-dictated return by Rumania of half the province.

The press elaborated on the theme that Hungary, her population soon to be increased by an estimated 2,500,000 and her territory enlarged to 99,820 square miles, will assume a more dominant role in southeastern Europe within the framework of the Rome-Berlin Axis. The newspapers emphasized this country's new debt of gratitude to Germany and Italy.

Observers expressed belief the Hungarian Army, soon to be entrenched in its old lines in the Carpathian Mountains, now may become an openly recognized part of Germany's eastern defenses.

Hungarian occupation almost immediately will see the Magyar army in possession of the "Carol Line" of fortifications which Rumania built as a defense against Hungary. Rumania then will be without fixed military defenses, but will have a German guarantee of her remaining frontiers.

Hungary faced a problem of feeding the inhabitants of the newly acquired territory. Largely timber land, it formerly was dependent on Rumania for most of its food supplies.

Yugoslavia Is Reported to Be Willing to Cede Part of the Fertile Banat District

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 31 (AP)—Official sources reported tonight that because of alleged outrages against Hungarian inhabitants of Northern Transylvania, the Hungarian Army might be forced to occupy all the ceded area before the expiration of the fourteen-day period fixed for the official Rumanian departure.

It was said the occupation probably would start by mid-week, possibly as early as Tuesday. Partial demobilization of the Hungarian Army is scheduled to begin Monday, it was officially announced.

The sources expressed the belief that German Saxon colonists had not participated in attacks against Hungarians, as reported from Bucharest, but accused Rumanians of committing acts of revenge.

"The Saxons are well-disciplined folk who know what the Feuhrer expects from them," they said.

Two Hungarian Army corps of 180,000 men are ready to march in at a moment's notice, they said, if necessary "to save our people from harm." They added, "Rumania will be held responsible for whatever occurs."

A Rumanian military commission is due here Monday to confer with Hungarian headquarters on the occupation, which official circles said would not start before Sept. 5 unless disorders should force Hungary's hand.

Commission to Fix Frontier

A second commission to fix the actual new frontier is not expected to complete its task until a month after the occupation.

The press and public celebrated the Axis-dictated return by Rumania of half the province for which Hungary has clamored for twenty years. The press elaborated on the theme that Hungary, her population soon to be increased by an estimated 2,500,000 and her territory enlarged to 99,820 square miles, will assume a more dominant role in Southeastern Europe within the framework of the Rome-Berlin Axis.

Soviet Editorials Silent On Transylvanian Deal

Press Gives but Brief Story of Vienna Agreement

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Soviet press recorded without comment today the agreement whereby Rumania yielded Northern Transylvania to Hungary in exchange for a German-Italian guarantee of the remainder of her territory.

Newspapers published brief factual accounts of the Vienna conference at which the agreement was reached, but devoted their editorials to the fifth anniversary of the Stakhanovite (industrial speedup) movement.

Some diplomatic sources expressed belief that the matter of the Bessarabian frontier, which has led to recent clashes between Russian and Rumanian troops, would be settled by a joint boundary commission.

It was recalled that after Rumania ceded Bessarabia and Northern Bukoina to Russia two months ago, Premier-Foreign Commissar Vacheslav M. Molotov had told the Supreme Soviet Council on Aug. 1: "Our relations with Rumania should now run in a normal channel."

The Red Army continued its maneuvers in the west under the supervision of Marshal Semoyn Timoshenko. The theoretical enemy was retreating, with the "decisive encounter" due tomorrow.

Grain in Russia Harvested Late

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 (A. A late spring delayed the ripening of the 1940 grain.

REVOLT BREAKS OUT IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA

Rebellion In West Africa Colony Also Admitted By Vichy

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Aug. 31—The French Government acknowledged tonight that a rebellion has broken out in French Indo-China and French West Africa, following the action of French Equatorial Africa in going over to the British war cause.

The extent of the Indo-Chinese revolt—said by the Colonial Ministry to have been under the leadership of French General Jean Catroux—was unknown here. The uprising in French West Africa, the Government maintained, was confined to "certain Europeans" and had not yet spread to the native population.

"Greater Part" Loyal

The French communique said the Government had received assurances from High Commissioner Boisson at Dakar, Senegal, that the "greater part" of the West African territory under his command was remaining loyal and that he had "rapidly gained control of the situation" there.

The Government attributed the African troubles to lack of understanding of conditions in the motherland and the action of the British blockade.

This was the same reason given officially for the revolt in French New Caledonia, Africa, early in August.

Admiral Platon, one of the defenders of Dunkerque in the Allied retreat from that French port, arrived in Vichy tonight by plane from Dakar. It was understood he had come to report directly to the Government on the uprisings.

Revealed Switch To Britain

Only last Thursday, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the French general who refused to accept surrender and now is organizing a force to fight on at Britain's side, announced that almost the whole of French Equatorial Africa had been turned into a British ally.

This occurred when the French Cameroons and Congo followed the lead of the Chad territory and decided to become belligerents against Germany. Thus more than 900,000 square miles of territory were aligned with Britain, making the whole Middle Africa, extending from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean and Red Seas, a pro-British area.

Vichy, France, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Count of Paris, pretender to the non-existent throne of France, sent word to his friends today that he would "work for the resurrection of France and to restore her to the place in the world which my ancestors conquered for her."

These words were dispatched by telegram from Larache, Spanish Morocco, where his father, the Duke of Guise, died recently. They were published in the royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, which calls him Henri VI.

The first man to escape, Lieut. Guenther Lorentz, tunneled out of the Muskoka camp a week ago last Monday and was recaptured two days later in Montreal. ROME, Aug. 31 (AP)—Italian planes bombed British mechanized forces in Dar el Habra, on the Egyptian side of the Libyan-Egyptian frontier, the Fascist High Command reported today.

The communiqué claimed a British cruiser in the Red Sea was bombed and hit by an Italian air formation. It said eight men were killed and nine injured in a British raid on Camp Agordat, in Africa.

JERSALEM, Aug. 31 (AP)—New air attacks on Haifa, Palestine oil port, were reported officially tonight.

Several bombs were said to have fallen early in the afternoon, injuring twenty-five persons, one gravely, but causing little material damage.

Proposes to Purchase 3 or 4 Old U. S. Warships.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—The Uruguayan Government, it was learned today, is proposing to buy three or four of the fifty over-age United States destroyers under discussion for possible sale to Great Britain.

The deal, a spokesman here said, depends on whether the price and financing can be arranged with Washington.

Canada Pledged To Raise Adequate Defense Force

Heartened By U. S. Collaboration, Says Minister MacDonald At Corvette Launching

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 31 (AP)—Canada will raise and equip "an army, a navy and an air force that will be adequate to the great cause to which we have freely pledged ourselves," Angus L. Macdonald, Minister of Defense for Naval Services, declared at the launching of the corvette Napanee here today.

"This ship is but one of many that have been put to the service of Canada since the outbreak of war," the Minister said in an address.

Macdonald reported Canada had been heartened by formation of the joint defense board with the United States, but he warned that Canadians must accept their full share of the burden.

"We cannot be spongers on the good will and generosity of our United States' friends," he said. "We must accept the responsibilities of our position. We must acquit ourselves like men."

Canada Camp Probe On; 3 Nazis Retaken

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 31—Three escaped German war prisoners were captured today and returned to the Ontario interment camp as the Canadian Government, spurred by other escapes, launched an inquiry.

The last to be taken into custody was Fritz Pietsch, submarine petty officer, who escaped yesterday with another prisoner from the Muskoka camp at Bala. His partner, Herbert Naumann, an infantry sergeant major, was believed to have traveled about one hundred miles south to Toronto.

Reported By Cottager

Pietsch was caught at Bala after a cottager reported a German begging for food at his door.

Hans Kibart, 25, an aviator, and Theodore Steyrer, 28, a non-commissioned naval officer, who escaped Tuesday, were the others recaptured. Kibart was taken a few hours after an armed posse captured Steyrer in the vicinity of the Spanish river bridge,

ASSERTS BILL PUTS DEFENSE IN JEOPARDY

Levies Approved By House Are Termed "Disastrous" By Committee

Provisions Declared Not "Remotely Related" To Preparedness Outlay

[Washington Bureau of The Sun]

Washington, Aug. 31—In blunt, vigorous phrases, a subcommittee of the United States Chamber of Commerce protested today against the excess-profits provisions of the tax bill passed on Thursday by the House.

The revenue legislation subcommittee of the businessmen's organization contended that the House-approved measure would "depress business activity and jeopardize the defense program, private financing and the payment of outstanding debts." Moreover, it asserted, "it would disturb the markets for commodities and securities and produce other serious repercussions."

Taxes Called "Disastrous"

"Under the guise of taxing 'excess' profits, the bill imposes disastrous taxes upon profits which are only normal and essential, and not in any sense excessive, and not even remotely related to expenditures for national defense," the chamber group said further.

"Its drastic structure of rates is applied without regard to the relation of income to actual invested capital or the relation of excess profits to real normal profits. The measure makes no real effort to ascertain excess profits."

The subcommittee repeated a previous recommendation that the amortization features of the tax measure—providing for the five-year amortization of investments made in plant expansion to meet defense needs—should be considered in a separate measure and promptly enacted. More time should be given to the drafting of a "practical" excess-profits tax bill, it was argued.

Records Belief

In its report on the House bill the businessmen's group asserted:

"Before mentioning some of its major imperfections and presenting recommendations for changes we desire to record our belief that business always has been, is now, and always will be willing to cooperate fully with the Government in the development of an adequate national-defense program.

"Business has urged the enactment of a true excess-profits tax. It supports the idea that there should be no 'war millionaries' and no 'unjust enrichment' as a consequence of the national defense program. It, furthermore, expects to assume any justifiable taxes imposed for defense purposes and urges that the national defense program be placed upon a proper financial basis.

Begins Analysis

"At the same time it should be made clear there is no warrant, in a purported tax upon excess profits, for defining reasonable and normal profits as being excessive. If additional revenues, rather than control of excess profits, are the objective, they should be sought directly and openly."

The Chamber subcommittee began its analysis of the tax bill's "major imperfections" with the observation that the measure, as passed by the House, "is practically imposible of comprehension." It predicted that years of dispute and litigation would be necessary before tax liabilities could be determined.

Base Is Attacked

In addition to protesting that the measure would tax, not "excess" profits, but "normal and essential" profits, the report stated:

"It so applies the concept of average earnings over a period of years, as a basis for tax upon excess profits, as to preclude its use in most cases. It can be fairly said to have emasculated this idea which has been so widely supported as a fair basis of differentiating between normal and excess profits.

"The invested-capital base proposed is arbitrary and illogical, bearing little relation to realities. It requires impossible computations.

"The measure does not make adequate provision for special relief to those who, by reason of its involved and technical terms, will receive such harsh treatment as to amount to gross injustice.

"Not Fully Realized"

"The expectation, encouraged by official announcement and the proposal of the Ways and Means subcommittee of adequate provision for amortization to protect against capital losses in connection with defense facilities has not been fully realized because of the inclusion of some unnecessary restrictions."

The businessmen's subcommittee included in its report a series of recommendations for excess-profits legislation. Presumably these will be taken into account next week by the Senate Finance Committee, which received the bill as it came from the House and will begin hearings upon it Tuesday.

The Senate committee and the Senate itself are expected to make numerous changes in the measure.

Suggests Three Bases

A properly-devised excess-profits tax, the Chamber of Commerce group held, should be inapplicable to normal profits, and should be directed solely to improper or excess profits.

It should provide, further, for three alternate bases for determining normal profits, the report stated, listing in this connection an average-earnings basis, an invested-capital basis or a special-relief basis. The last would be intended for corporations with special capital or profits situations.

It argued farther that neither excess profits nor ability to pay taxes could be appropriately determined on the basis of one year's income, and recommended provisions for an "adequate net loss carryover" and for permission to apply losses in the first year or two of the "post-emergency" period against profits realized during the years when the tax was in force.

The rates of the excess-profits tax should not be based solely upon the dollar volume of income, the report asserted, and any graduation of rates should be based upon the relative percentage of the excess profits over normal profits. It should be recognized, it added, that "no corporation realizes an excess profit until it has earned at least its dividend requirements upon its outstanding preferred stock."

Draft Age Range Faces Fight

But Despite Scattered Opposition Measure Is Certain to Pass in House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—Various sections of the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill aroused scattered opposition in the House today, but all critics apparently agreed that even a combination of their forces would not defeat the legislation next week.

As preparations to start debate Tuesday went on behind the scenes informed members predicted that the principal fights would develop over two provisions:

1. That fixing 21 to 44, inclusive, as the age range of men who would register and be subject to conscription.

2. That giving the Government power to take over industrial plants for defense purposes.

The draft of the bill approved by the House Military Committee contains the 21-44 age range, but several Representatives said they would seek to reduce the spread to 21 through 30, the age limits voted by the Senate when it passed the bill this week. On the other hand Representative Thomason, Democrat, of Texas, advocated registration of all men 18 through 64, inclusive, though only those 21 to 44 would be subject to the draft.

Some Republicans predicted that if the Senate plant conscription amendment were added to the measure by the House, it would make many more votes against the bill on final passage.

Representatives Smith, Democrat of Connecticut, and Brooks, Democrat, of Louisiana, planned a counter proposition to authorize the Government to take over defense plants only on a rental or lease basis. They said this would prevent the accumulation of too much industrial machinery in Government hands.

In addition to these two major issues, other questions which figured considerably in informal discussions of members were:

Whether the legislation should provide only for the training of men called up or whether the provision training and service should be permitted to stand.

Whether the Senate limitation of 900,000 on the number of land force trainees in service at any one time should be increased to 1,000,000—as recommended by the House committee—to provide an allocation for the navy as well.

Whether there should be safeguards to make certain that proper authority to handle all conceivable situations was vested in proposed local draft boards.

Although administration leaders and sponsors of the legislation gave assurances that there would be ample opportunity for debate, there were indications that discussion would not be as extended as in the Senate.

Other Questions Up

Other questions which figured considerably in informal discussions were:

Hutchins Backs Draft, Asks Ban On Volunteers

Educator Call Selection 'the Only Way of Putting Right Man in Right Place'

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (AP).—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, said today that he favored reliance upon selective service for national defense to the point of prohibiting volunteer enlistments.

"The whole effort in any selective service," he averred in an interview, "is just what the name implies—to put people where they belong. Volunteering defeats that.

"You can't leave it up to the people to select the places for which they are best suited. Men volunteer, as a rule, not because they have aptitudes for certain branches of military or naval service, but because relatives or friends have enlisted previously, and they join up, usually with the outfits closest to their homes.

"If we go to war again there will be tremendous social pressure to volunteer. The only way to prevent that, and to be reasonably sure that persons are placed according to their qualifications, is to forbid volunteering.

"The principal virtue of selective service," Dr. Hutchins emphasized, "is one seldom mentioned: It is the only way we have of putting the right man in the right place. Manifestly, the effective operation of selective service depends upon a highly intelligent administrative personnel."

The forty-one-year-old university president, himself a veteran of the World War, cited a passage from Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf," which he said indicated the futility and wastefulness of haphazard volunteering:

"Hitler said the worst mistake Germany made in the last war, causing an irreparable loss to the nation, was admitting to the army a host of enthusiastic young volunteers—the best blood of the country—which was sent into battle and mowed down."

It should be understood, Dr. Hutchins continued, that "all this military business is justifiable for national defense, not on the ground that it has any educational, moral or spiritual value. The greatest discipline of all is to have to do a job on your own, go through with it and deliver. The life of an army private is the opposite of that."

Dr. Hutchins said he was opposed to any attempt to link military training and education.

"Our principal mistake, educationally, in the last war was the effort to combine military preparedness and education, particularly in the organization of the Student Army Training Corps. The result was bad military training and bad education.

"You cannot train men for the army in colleges and universities any more than you can train industrial workers there. In order to get the best results in education and national defense the two must be separated."

The educator supported President Roosevelt's view that young people should continue the normal course of their education, unless and until they are called, but he said he was not in favor of exemption of college and university students as such.

"I cannot imagine anything worse," he asserted, "than to degrade our educational institutions by making them places to go to avoid the draft."

Curran Says Peace Draft Is Industrialists' Scheme

Maritime Union Chief Asks Fair Trial for Enlistments

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (AP).—Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, asserted today that peacetime conscription "is directed solely against the wage-earners" and part of an effort to "destroy the social and economic gains of the last few years."

Curran, who also is president of the C. I. O. Industrial Council of Greater New York, was one of the scheduled speakers at the "emergency peace mobilization" sponsored by "the committee to defend America by keeping out of war."

Delegates rallied for the first session of the three-day meeting amid accusations by critics that it is Communist controlled. Twenty-seven New York C. I. O. unions rejected Curran's appeal for funds for the meeting, stating it "would benefit the totalitarian nations."

In his prepared manuscript Curran said that organized labor was not opposed to national defense, but contends that until voluntary enlistment has been given a "free trial" peacetime conscription "smacks of Fascism."

The labor leader charged that "the great industrialists and bankers" were seeking through the dissemination of war propaganda to create fear and hysteria with a view to attacking "our work and living standards, and wiping out the trade unions as a factor in our economy."

Murray Plavner, New York, director of the National Foundation for American Youth, a so-called "pro-American" group backed by former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney, asserted that "the Communist leaders" of the American Youth Congress were prime movers in the mobilization idea.

Seek to Exempt Press, Radio in Industrial Draft

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP).—Rep. Smith (D., Conn.), said today steps would be taken to insure exemption of newspapers and radio stations from any final provision in the Burke-Wadsworth bill empowering the government to take control of manufacturing plants for national defense.

Smith and Rep. Brooks (D.) La., are drafting a substitute for the Overton-Russell amendment, adopted by the Senate, which would enable the government to condemn and take over "any existing manufacturing plant or facility" considered essential to national defense. Some legislators were of the opinion that "facility" might be construed to include newspapers or radio stations.

LABOR URGED BY ROOSEVELT TO AID DEFENSE

President Calls For Dedication Of All To "Common Purpose"

Assures Workers Support Will Not Be At Cost Of Lower Standards

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 31—President Roosevelt said in a Labor Day statement tonight that wage earners, farmers and business men could view with satisfaction the improvement in their lot and that of the nation "in the last seven years."

That improvement has come, he asserted, "largely as a result of a far-reaching economic and social program conceived in Democratic principles and dedicated to the common good."

Urges Aid For Defense

Because of the defense program, Mr. Roosevelt said, this Labor Day calls for a more than ordinary observance and for the dedication of labor, management, farmers and government to a common purpose of protecting and continuing "this great democracy."

He assured wage earners that their contribution would not be "at the cost of lowered labor standards or impaired social advances." These wage earners, he said, are well aware of the great economic and social gains they have made "in the last seven years."

Material and economic advances since 1933, the President said, "have been accomplished in a democracy, for a democracy and by a democracy and they can only be retained and expanded through a continuation of the principles and practices to which we as a nation have always been committed and which we are determined shall be unchanged."

Among Gains Noted

Among the gains, the Chief Executive noted:

Nine million more jobs now than in 1933 in non-agricultural employment, aside from work for more than 2,000,000 additional persons for the WPA, CCC and NYA.

An increase in pay rolls of manufacturing industries in the same period by "the enormous weekly total of $110,000,000."

Cash income of American farmers $3,000,000,000 greater last year than in 1932, exclusive of $807,000,000 in benefit payments. Promises of a further increase this year.

Combined net profits of $648,000,000 for 400 leading industrial firms in the first six months of 1940—"a very large gain over last year" and a contrast with 1932 when "most corporations were showing little or no profit."

"These are material gains of which we may well be proud," the President asserted. "And they have been accompanied since 1933 by such social advances as are embodied in the social security program, for which this and future generations will always be thankful."

U. S. Defense: Plans' Bottleneck Broken

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Aug. 31—Newly placed orders for airplane engines—once called the bottleneck of the defense program—today brought production prospects abreast of the army-navy goal of a 25,000-plane fleet in the next two years.

With new plant facilities under construction and output increasing steadily, a survey showed more than 40,000 motors for all types of planes ordered for delivery by mid-1942.

At the rate of 1½ engines per plane, figuring in multiple-motored craft, experts estimated this total would be more than adequate to meet the goal defense officials have set.

New Plants Needed

To obtain the expanded production of plane engines new plants will have to be built. In the war and navy announcements of the new orders, specific dates for beginning and completing these plants were not given.

In another step toward building a more powerful air defense, the War Department awarded contracts yesterday for 687 planes costing $100,728,742. The total was divided into 410 interceptor pursuit planes and 277 heavy bombers, and the department said the award brought to 2,677 the number of planes ordered out of 4,247 provided for in 1940-41 appropriations.

Of the 2,677 planes, however, only 743 were listed as combat ships, while the remainder were chiefly training planes.

Defense Industries Spread Out

Other defense developments included disclosure by army officials of a plan for spreading strategic defense industries over five inland areas comprising, roughly, all sections of the country 200 miles or more from coasts or international boundaries.

Army Secretary Henry L. Stimson sought to avoid conflict between manpower and industrial production needs by requesting release from the National Guard of all officers and men holding key positions in defense industries.

Stimson, preparing for expected mobilization of the guard next month, sent the request to commanding officers in every State. It was an advisory instruction, Federal authorities having no direct jurisdiction over the guard in peacetime.

Largest Engine Contracts

The two largest engine contracts let so far were made public by the army and navy this week. They call for the manufacture of 20,000 Wright motors by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation and 17,000 Pratt & Whitney motors by United Aircraft Corporation.

Previously 3,000 Rolls-Royce motors were ordered from the Packard Motor Company—which also agreed to produce 6,000 for Great Britain—and arrangements were made with General Motors Corporation to produce Allison aircraft engines.

These contracts, and others yet to come, foreshadow a huge expansion of manufacturing facilities. Only a few months ago Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., coordinator of British and American purchases, said engines constituted a defense bottleneck because of limited production space.

Emphasis is expected to be placed on inland locations for new plants to avoid vulnerable concentrations.

Under this policy the plan for the five strategic inland areas was developed. It is intended to place in each area such industries as a small-arms plant, an ammunition-loading plane and perhaps an aircraft factory.

The five divisions, still subject to change, are roughly, first, a strip starting with northern Indiana and running westward; second, a section including parts of four States centering around Virginia; third, a strip starting with southern Indiana and running westward; fourth, eastern Tennessee and the inland areas of North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama; fifth, a section starting with western Tennessee and running south and west.

Reports Given On Relief In 14 Countries At War

$9,770,335 Collected In U. S. And $6,009,088 Spent Since September, 1939

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—The State Department today announced 293 organizations and individuals in the United States had reported receiving $9,770,335 and spending $6,009,088 for relief in fourteen belligerent countries from September 6, 1939, through last July.

The reports, made under laws requiring registration of foreign-relief activities exclusive of the American Red Cross, also showed contributions in kind valued at $1,097,808 had been sent abroad in the same period.

A total of $823,160 was spent for administration, including publicity campaigns, by the reporting registrants. They also reported an unexpended balance of $2,959,733 in cash and materials valued at $268,201 on hand on July 31.

Torpedoing Reported

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Aug. 31—Mackay Radio picked up a message today stating that the Belgian passenger ship Ville de Hasselet, a former American liner, had been torpedoed.

No details were given in the message, which was sent by station KGT in England.

The ship, an 8,862-ton vessel, formerly the United States liner American Trader, left New York for Liverpool on August 11. She was one of eight United States liners sold last February to the Societe Maritime Anversoise of Antwerp.

After her sale she was placed on the New York-Liverpool-Glasgow-Manchester-Belfast run and had made several round-trip crossings of the Atlantic.

Three Previously Sunk

She reached Liverpool August 22 and was expected to leave yesterday for the United States.

If confirmed, her sinking would raise to four the number sunk of the eight sold to the Belgian firm.

The former passenger liner President Harding was the first to be lost. Four sailors were killed when she was bombed, machine-gunned and beached near Ostend, Belgium, May 14.

The former American Merchant was torpedoed without warning June 19 in the Bay of Biscay. Survivors who arrived in New York two days ago reported four men were killed.

Mackay Radio picked up an SOS August 18 from the Ville de Gand, formerly the American Importer. She was torpedoed about 300 miles west of Ireland. The United States Line has received reports from half of the crew of fifty-four. The others are unreported.

TELL HOW BRITISH SEIZED SHIPMATES

Passengers On U. S. Liner Puzzled By Action Of Officials At Bermuda

Rolls Of War Film Taken From American Photographer By Force

[By the Associated Press]

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 31—Puzzled officers and passengers of the American Export liner Exochorda told tonight how British authorities at Bermuda, disregarding the captain's protests, removed three German subjects from the ship without explanation and seized rolls of war film from an American photographer after a scuffle.

The vessl, which arrived today from Lisbon, Portugal, with 166 passengers, also lost 425 pouches of mail to British censors at the Bermuda stop.

Capt. Wenzell Habel said he believed the incident was the first since the start of the war in which passengers had been taken off a vessel flying the American flag.

He said British authorities asked by name for Dr. Herbert Block, 37; Adolf Sandhaus, 41, and Hans Schiffmann, 33.

Refused All Comment

The British made no comment, Captain Habel said, and refused either to entertain his protest of their action or to explain why they wanted the three passengers.

He said that they questioned a fourth passenger, Sigmund Egelhardt, 59, a jeweler and uncle of Sandhaus, but did not take him off.

Sandhaus, passengers related, told the British he was an Austrian who never had been in Germany, but who had spent months in German concentration camps in Belgium and France before he was released after the capitulation of France.

Dr. Block had told passengers that he was en route to Boston to teach political economy in a college. They did not recall the name of the college.

En Route To Richmond

Schiffmann had informed shipboard acquaintances that he was en route to Richmond, Va., to visit relatives whom he did not name.

More exciting to passengers than the removal of the three Germans, however, was the seizure of film from Frank W. Van Lew, of Lawton, Okla., a photographer employed by the European Picture Service, a continental organization with outlets in the United States.

Van Lew said he had been given sixteen rolls of German war films in Switzerland and that some of the films, made by Germans, showed action in the historic British retreat from Dunkerque, France.

When the British censor demanded the films the photographer said a general scuffle ensued on the ship's deck.

Police Used Force

Later, he said, the censor went ashore and "came back with three big police officers who took them from me forcibly."

Van Lew said that during the past several months he had sent 2,200 still pictures to the United States by clipper planes, with assurance that the planes would not stop at Bermuda, but that only 166 pictures ever reached New York.

Among other things taken from him, Van Lew said, was his Phi Beta Kappa certificate and his University of Oklahoma diploma.

Severty of the passengers were United States citizens and the remainder mainly Jewish refugees.

In the ship's strongbox was $2,964,350 in gold from the Banco Portugal, consigned to the Federal Reserve Bank, and a private case of gold and jewels worth $42,000, from the Bank of London and South Africa, consigned to the Commercial Bank and Trust Company in New York.

SAYS BRITAIN HAS WON

Lothian Finds Evidence of Victory Is Increasing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (A. P.).—Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, said today he saw increasing evidence that his country has won the battle of Britain through this autumn, and thus made ultimate victory in her war with Germany more certain.

Only two weeks of weather favorable for an attempted invasion of the British Isles remain, he told reporters.

The war, Lothian predicted, will go into the winter with Britain steadily gaining strength and striking harder blows at Germany.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE GERMAN LUFTWAFFE, CARRYING ON AN ALMOST UNCEASING AERIAL ASSAULT ON THE BRITISH ISLES, CLAIMED A DECIDED ADVANTAGE IN PLANE VICTORIES OVER THE BRITISH DURING THE 52ND WEEK OF THE WAR.

A TABULATION FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING LAST SUNDAY, SHOWED THAT GERMANY REPORTED DESTRUCTION OF 432 BRITISH PLANES IN THAT PERIOD WHILE ADMITTING THE LOSS OF 120.

THE BRITISH ASSERTED THEY HAD DESTROYED 253 GERMAN PLANES AT A LOSS OF 89 BRITISH PLANES.

BRITISH IN FIRST RAID ON HEART OF BERLIN; GERMANS AGAIN RAID LONDON--THUS EUROPE'S BIG BELLIGERENTS MARKED THE END OF ONE YEAR OF WAR IN EUROPE.

ON SEPT. 1, 1939, ADOLF HITLER, HIS TERRITORIAL DEMANDS REBUFFED, ORDERED HIS LEGIONS INTO POLAND. BRITAIN AND FRANCE DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY TWO DAYS LATER.

SINCE THEN FRANCE, POLAND, DENMARK, NORWAY, THE NETHERLANDS, BELGIUM AND LUXEMBOURG HAVE FALLEN. OF THE POWERS CHALLENGING HITLER, BRITAIN ALONE REMAINS IN THE FIGHT.

THE COST:

IN BLOOD, ESTIMATED: 3,300,000 TO 5,300,000 DEAD, WOUNDED AND MISSING.

IN SHIPS, MERCHANT AND NAVAL: MORE THAN 3,075,000 TONS.

IN PLANES: THE BRITISH SAY THE GERMANS HAVE LOST MORE THAN 4,000; THE GERMANS SAY BRITISH LOSSES EXCEED 5,000. NEITHER SIDE ADMITS MORE THAN A MERE FRACTION OF THESE FIGURES.

ITALY, WHO CAME IN JUST BEFORE FRANCE SURRENDERED, CLAIMS MORE THAN 300 PLANES DESTROYED, ADMITS LESS THAN 60 LOSSES OF HER OWN. ITALIAN-BRITISH SHIPPING LOSSES LIKEWISE HAVE BEEN FEW.

~~IN DESTRUCTION: HERE AGAIN THERE IS A BIG SPREAD BETWEEN CLAIMS AND ADMISSIONS. MUCH OF THE LOW COUNTRIES~~

IN DESTRUCTION: HERE AGAIN THERE IS A BIG SPREAD BETWEEN CLAIMS AND ADMISSIONS. MUCH OF THE LOW COUNTRIES, NORTHERN FRANCE AND POLAND IS DEVASTATED. BUT AS FOR GERMANY AND BRITAIN, THE CENSOR'S PENCIL LARGELY HAS HIDDEN.

GERMANY REPORTS THAT WITHIN 12 MONTHS NAZI AIRMEN HAVE DROPPED 5,000,000 BOMBS WEIGHING MORE THAN 75,000 TONS AND ENOUGH TO FILL 50 AMERICAN TRAINS OF 30 CARS EACH.

THE BRITISH SAY THEY, TOO, HAVE DUMPED COUNTLESS TONS OF BOMBS ON GERMANY AND THE TERRITORY SHE HAS CONQUERED.

(WX) INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

BY EDWARD E.BOMAR

THE WAR THAT STARTED JUST A YEAR AGO WITH THE SUDDEN INVASION OF POLAND HAS SERVED AS A CONTINUOUS DEMONSTRATION THAT SURPRISE IS STILL THE DEADLIEST OF WEAPONS.

STATESMEN, ARMY GENERAL STAFFS AND MILITARY EXPERTS ALMOST WITHOUT EXCEPTION HAVE BEEN AS MISTAKEN AS THE MAN IN THE STREET IN ANTICIPATING THE CONFLICT'S COURSE.

EVEN ADOLF HITLER AND HIS ADVISERS, WHO POSSESSED THE INITIATIVE FROM THE START, MUST HAVE BEEN STARTLED REPEATEDLY AT THE POWER OF THE MILITARY AND PSYCHOLOGICAL FORCES THEY CALLED INTO BEING.

THE PRESTIGE OF THE PROPHETS HAS GONE WITH THE REPUTATION OF THE GENERALS WHO ERRED. THERE WERE A FEW FORGOTTEN PREDICTIONS OF AN EVENTUAL BURIAL OF DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE NAZI AND COMMUNIST DICTATORS, BUT WHO ASIDE FROM THE PRINCIPALS THEMSELVES ANTICIPATED THE ACTUAL ALLIANCE BETWEEN HITLER AND SOVIET RUSSIA'S JOSEPH STALIN?

HARDLY A MILITARY MAN FORESAW WITH ANY DEGREE OF CERTAINTY THE DESTRUCTION OF POLAND THREE WEEKS AFTER THE FIRST BLITZKRIEG WAS LAUNCHED LAST SEPTEMBER 1. THE INVASION OF NORWAY WAS AS COMPLETE A SURPRISE TO THE WORLD AT LARGE AS IT WAS TO THE UNSUSPECTING NORWEGIANS THEMSELVES.

NOT EVEN THE GLOOMIEST OF ALLIED CASSANDRAS VOICED A WARNING THAT THE ARMY OF FRANCE, WHICH NEUTRAL OFFICERS OFTEN TERMED THE WORLD'S FINEST, WOULD BE WIPED OUT AS AN ORGANIZED FORCE IN LESS TIME THAN REQUIRED FOR THE CONQUEST OF POLAND.

IT IS NO SECRET THAT THE FOREMOST AMERICAN ARMY MEN WERE AS DECEIVED AS FRENCH AND BRITISH LEADERS AS TO THE STRIKING POWER OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND AIR FORCE.

AFTER MUNICH, FRANCE AND BRITAIN WERE FAR LESS CONFIDENT, BUT THEY FELT FAIRLY SECURE BEHIND THE MAGINOT LINE AND THE BRITISH FLEET. IF WAR CAME, IT WAS TO BE RELATIVELY ECONOMICAL, WITH THE ALLIES ON THE DEFENSIVE WHILE GERMANY WAS SQUEEZED INTO SUBMISSION BY A BLOCKADE. WHAT WAS FEARED WAS "TOTAL WAR" BY AIR ON CIVILIAN POPULATIONS BEFORE THE ALLIES BUILT UP THEIR OWN DEFENSES AGAINST THIS NEW PERIL.

FOR MONTHS THE STRATEGY APPEARED SO EFFECTIVE THAT AN ITALIAN GENERAL IN FEBRUARY SUGGESTED THE POSSIBILITY OF ANOTHER 30 YEARS WAR LIKE THAT OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

IT IS MOSTLY FORGOTTEN NOW, BUT THE PREDICTIONS WERE CONFOUNDED AS COMPLETELY A QUARTER CENTURY AGO. IN 1914 A SHORT WAR OF MANEUVER WAS GENERALLY ANTICIPATED INSTEAD OF THE BLOODY FOUR-YEAR STALEMATE THAT EVENTUATED. GENERALS WERE DECEIVED AS WELL IN 1870 WHEN FRANCE WENT UNDER SO QUICKLY.

WITH THE UPSETS OF THE LAST YEAR FRESH IN THEIR MINDS, MILITARY MEN ARE INCLINED WITH REASON TO BE CAUTIOUS NOW. THE GREATEST SURPRISE OF ALL WOULD BE THAT THERE WERE NO MORE SURPRISES IN STORE. IF HITLER'S BAG OF TRICKS SHOULD BE NEARING EXHAUSTION, STUBBORN BRITAIN APPEARS STILL CAPABLE OF STARTLING THE WORLD.

HY1246PES The War Today - DeWitt MacKenzie

THE POINT OF IMMEDIATE IMPORTANCE ARISING FROM THE AXIS-IMPOSED "SETTLEMENT" OF THE RUMANIAN-HUNGARIAN TERRITORIAL QUARREL IS THAT HERR HITLER PROBABLY (THOUGH NOT CERTAINLY) HAS AVERTED FOR THE MOMENT A BALKAN UPHEAVAL WHICH WOULD HAVE BEEN A CALAMITY FOR HIS BLITZKRIEG AGAINST ENGLAND--ALREADY RUNNING FAR BEHIND SCHEDULE.

TRUE, THE BALKAN POT WAS BOILING ANGRILY THIS MORNING. NOT ONLY WERE TEMPERS RUNNING HIGH IN RUMANIA AND HUNGARY (ESPECIALLY THE FORMER, WHO LOST GREAT TREASURE TO HER NEIGHBOR), BUT GREECE WAS CLEANING GUNS BECAUSE OF FEARS OF ITALIAN AGGRESSION.

THE RUSSIAN BEAR WAS STALKING THE WESTERN BOUNDARIES OF HIS PRESERVES, WHICH IS A MANNER OF DESCRIBING MYSTERIOUS WAR MANEUVERS. HE WAS MOVING CIRCUMSPECTLY, AFTER HIS FASHION, BUT WITH RUMBLINGS IN HIS THROAT WHICH MIGHT DENOTE EITHER DISSATISFACTION OR PLEASANT ANTICIPATION.

STILL, DESPITE THE TENSION THE MAILED FIST OF THE AXIS POWERS OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO KEEP THE LID HAMMERED DOWN FOR THE TIME BEING. IF AND WHEN THEIR PRESSURE IS LESSENED, WATCH OUT.

THERE ARE SEVERAL OTHER FEATURES OF THIS GERMAN-ITALIAN MOVE WHICH ARE WELL WORTH CONSIDERATION:

30.24-4649

(1). THE ARBITRARY DECISION OF MESSRS HITLER AND MUSSOLINI, WHEREBY SOMETHING LIKE HALF OF THE FINE PROVINCE OF TRANSYLVANIA IS RIPPED OFF FROM RUMANIA AND RETURNED TO HUNGARY WHICH LOST IT IN THE WORLD WAR, IS GOOD ONLY SO LONG AS HITLER IS HEAD MAN IN EUROPE. IT'S LENGTH OF LIFE DEPENDS ON WHETHER HE WINS THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN.

(2). THE MANNER IN WHICH HITLER HANDLED THIS SITUATION IS AN EXCELLENT ILLUSTRATION OF THE RULE WHICH OBSERVERS GENERALLY EXPECT HIM TO IMPOSE ON HIS "NEW EUROPE" IF HE DOES WIN THE WAR. HE TOOK TWO NEUTRAL AND SOVEREIGN COUNTRIES, KNOCKED THEIR HEADS TOGETHER AND SAID IN EFFECT:-"DO THIS FAST, AND NO NONSENSE."

(3). MAINTENANCE OF "PEACE" IN THE BALKANS IS, AS INDICATED, VITAL TO THE AXIS ASSAULT ON BRITAIN. BUT THIS "PEACE" CANNOT GIVE TO HITLER THE SUPPLIES WHICH HE SO SORELY NEEDS FROM THIS PRODUCTIVE REGION. THE CROPS OF THE DANUBIAN BASIS, ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT GRANARIES,

UNDATED--FIRST ADD THE WAR TODAY BY DEWITT MACKENZIE XXX WORLD'S GREAT GRANARIES, ARE SAID BY EXPERTS TO BE THE POOREST IN TEN YEARS. FURTHER, AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION HAS FALLEN OFF HEAVILY BECAUSE ALL THE BALKAN STATES ARE STANDING AT ARMS.

THE PEACE WHICH THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN HAS CONJURED OUT OF HIS FIST CAN'T ALTER THOSE FACTS, THOUGH OBVIOUSLY IT DOES AMELIORATE THE SITUATION.

(4). KING CAROL'S CHANCES OF GETTING BACK THE TERRITORIES WHICH HE HAS LOST TO RUSSIA, BULGARIA AND NOW TO HUNGARY, WOULD SEEM TO REST WHOLLY WITHIN HIMSELF. THE ONLY BALM THERE IS IN GILEAD FOR HIM IS THE MAXIM THAT GOD HELPS THEM WHO HELP THEMSELVES.

HE HAD THE BACKING AND FRIENDSHIP OF BRITAIN, BUT LOST THAT. IT LOOKS AS THOUGH THE ONLY WAY HE EVER WILL GET BACK HIS DOMAINS IS WITH HIS OWN TWO HANDS, IF THE TIME EVER ARRIVES WHEN HE CAN USE THEM.

(5). THE TIME HASN'T YET ARRIVED FOR THE SHOWDOWN BETWEEN HITLER AND STALIN WHICH MANY OBSERVERS CONFIDENTLY EXPECT. THEY STILL SPEAK TOGETHER, BUT WITH GUNS STRAPPED ON THEIR HIPS.

RUSSIA'S AMBITION HAS BEEN TO HAVE CONTROL OF THE LOWER DANUBE IN RUMANIA, THE BLACK SEA COAST, AND THE DARDANELLES, THUS BLOCKING GERMANY'S SIMILAR DESIRE. THE OPERATIONS OF EACH OF THEM IN RUMANIA ARE INIMICAL TO THE INTERESTS OF THE OTHER.

THE POSITION IS STILL THE SAME AS IT WAS AT THE END OF JUNE WHEN RUSSIA FORCED RUMANIA TO CEDE BESSARABIA AND NORTHERN BUKOVINA TO THE SOVIET. GERMAN LEGATION SOURCES IN BUCHAREST AT THAT TIME DECLARED THAT GERMANY COULDN'T PERMANENTLY ALLOW RUSSIA TO DOMINATE THE MOUTH OF THE DANUBE AND NORTHERN BUKOVINA BECAUSE OF THE MILITARY DANGER AND THE POSSIBILITY OF RUSSIA BLOCKING GERMANY'S APPROACHES TO THE BLACK SEA.

SEP 1

THE PRESENT AWARD OF TRANSYLVANIAN TERRITORY ERECTS A BARRIER WHICH TENDS TO HAMPER RUSSIA'S PROGRESS SOUTHWARD, AND STRENGTHENS HITLER'S HAND. THUS THE MOVE CANNOT BE AGREEABLE TO MOSCOW.

HERE AGAIN, SETTLEMENT OF RUSSO-GERMAN DIFFERENCES IN AMBITION AWAIT THE OUTCOME OF THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN. IF HITLER'S DOESN'T WIN, HERE IS ANOTHER SPOT OF BOTHER FOR HIM.

THE LAST WEEK OF THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR, NOW BECOME MAINLY A SLOW, DESTRUCTIVE FIGHT FROM THE AIR, FOUND NAZI WARPLANES STILL HAMMERING AWAY AT ENGLAND, SCOTLAND AND WALES, WHILE RAF BOMBERS POUNDED AT GERMAN TERRITORY AND EVEN DROPPED EXPLOSIVES ON THE CENTER OF BERLIN.

BRITISH PLANES RENEWED THEIR ATTACKS ON NORTHERN ITALY'S INDUSTRIAL AREA WHILE THE BRITISH FLEET BOMBARDED BARDIA AND

TUESDAY, AUG. 27--NIGHT "CHAIN RAIDERS" ATTACK LONDON FOR SIX HOURS, BUT DO LITTLE DAMAGE; BERLIN HAS SECOND AIR RAID, LONDON IS THREATENED WITH REPRISALS FOR BOMBINGS OF CIVILIANS; BRITISH SAY SIX TONS OF BOMBS DROPPED ON ITALIAN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS, INCLUDING FIAT WORKS, BARDIA AND BOMBA BOMBARDED BY NAVY; HUNDREDS OF SOLDIERS REPORTED KILLED IN RUMANIAN-RUSSIAN BORDER CLASHES, HUNGARIAN AND RUSSIAN PLANES SHOT DOWN BY RUMANIAN AIRMEN.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 28--LONDON DEFENDERS FIGHT OFF TWO WAVES OF DAYLIGHT RAIDERS; BERLIN REPORTS HEAVY AIR ATTACKS ON BIRMINGHAM, CHATHAM; ROME SAYS HAIFA BOMBED; PORT SAID ATTACKED FOR FIRST TIME; GERMANS SAY SURFACE RAIDER SANK BRITISH SHIP IN INDIAN OCEAN; GERMAN AND ITALIAN DIPLOMATS RUSH FOUR-POWER CONFERENCE TO PRESERVE PEACE IN BALKANS; FRENCH CHARGE BRITISH FOMENT REBELLION IN CHAD, FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA.

THURSDAY, AU. 29--NAZI RAIDERS ENGAGE IN DAY-LONG ATTACKS ON VITAL BRITISH PORTS AND INDUSTIRAL WORKS AND GERMAN SPOKESMEN CLAIM HEAVY DESTRUCTION OF PORTSMOUTH NAVAL BASE. BOTH SIDES INSIST MORALE OF THEIR PEOPLE UNSHAKEN. TEN REPORTED KILLED IN BERLIN BOMBING BY RAF; CASUALTIES BELIEVED HEAVY IN LONDON. THE FRENCH CAMEROONS AND CONGO FOLLOW LEAD OF CHAD TERRITORY IN FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA IN PLEDGING TO FIGHT BY BRITAIN'S SIDE.

FRIDAY, AUG. 30--GERMANY FORCES RUMANIA TO CEDE HALF OF TRANSYLVANIA TO HUNGARY IN AN AXIS-DOMINATED CONFERENCE, WHILE RUSSIA BEGINS SECRET MANUEVERS; BOMBA IN THE AFRICAN THEATER OF WAR.

ON THE DIPLOMATIC FRONT, THE AXIS-POWERS HAD ANOTHER "MUNICH" SUCCESS, FORCING RUMANIA AT A CONFERENCE IN VIENNA TO CEDE HALF THE PROVINCE OF TRANSYLVANIA BACK TO HUNGARY, WHICH LOST IT IN THE WORLD WAR SETTLEMENT.

THE DAY-BY-DAY ACCOUNT IN BRIEF:

SUNDAY AUG. 25--LONDON, STARTING THE LAST WEEK OF A YEAR OF WAR, IS SUBJECTED TO REPEATED AIR RAID ALARMS AND SOME BOMBING: GERMANY REPORTS NUMEROUS AIR, PORT OBJECTIVES BOMBED, INCLUDING ROLLS ROYCE MOTOR PLANT; BRITISH ADMIT CONSIDERABLE AIRPORT DAMAGE, BUT TELL OF EXTENSIVE BOMBING IN GERMANY, INCLUDING ATTACK ON DAIMLER-BENZ ARMORED CAR PLANT AT STUTTGART; BOMBS KILL THREE IN IRELAND; GREEKS SEND TROOPS TO ALBANIAN BORDER DISTRICTS; HUNGARY CALLS THOUSANDS OF RESERVISTS FOLLOWING BREAKDOWN OF TRANSYLVANIA NEGOTIATIONS WITH RUMANIA.

MONDAY, AUG. 26--BERLIN IS RAIDED FOR THREE HOURS FOR FIRST TIME IN WAR, BUT FEW BOMBS ARE DROPPED, AND NO DAMAGE REPORTED; BRITISH SAY ARMS PLANT AT BERLIN ATTACKED; AFTER SIX RAIDS ON LONDON IN 48 HOURS, NAZI FLIERS CENTER ON DOVER AND FOLKESTONE; 50 KILLED IN MIDLANDS AND SOUTHEAST ENGLAND; ITALIAN EDITORIAL SPOKESMAN WARNS EGYPT NOT TO HELP BRITAIN; DUKE OF GUISE, PRETENDER TO FRENCH THRONE, DIES.

FIRST ADD--UNDATED WEEK OF WAR (BY AP) X X X SECRET MANUEVERS; OVER 500 GERMAN PLANES HAMMER FROM NOON UNTIL LONG AFTER SUNSET AT LONDON'S DEFENSES, BOMBING THE CITY'S OUTSKIRTS AND CAUSING FOUR GENERAL ALARMS. NAZI SPOKESMEN CLAIM WIDESPREAD DAMAGE AND ACKNOWLEDGE THAT RAF BOMBERS ATTACKED MILITARY OBJECTIVES IN GERMANY, HOLLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE, INCLUDING KRUPP ARMAMENT WORKS AT ESSEN.

SATURDAY, AUG. 31--RAF BOMBERS HIT CENTER OF BERLIN FOR FIRST TIME IN HISTORY. GERMANY REPLIES BY SENDING WAVES OF NAZI WARPLANES AGAINST LONDON AFTER INTENSIVE NIGHT OF RAIDING. LONDON HAS SIX AIR RAID WARNINGS. SOUNDS OF DISCONTENT ARE HEARD IN RUMANIA; BUCHAREST GOVERNMENT CIRCLES REPORT THAT GERMAN AIR BASES AND HEADQUARTERS FOR NAZI TANK CORPS AND MOTORIZED UNITS ARE TO BE ESTABLISHED ON RUMANIAN SOIL.
